Calls to Remembrance: Commemorating Japanese American Internment; Otterbein College, January 29, 4 p.m.; The Ohio State University, January 30, 11:30 a.m. lunch, noon-1:30 p.m., program: Shortly after World War II, the horrifying atrocities committed by the Nazis against humanity were brought to light and remain widely studied. However, the acts committed in America against people of Japanese descent are hardly remembered. Although not genocide, the racial discrimination suffered by Japanese Americans should not be ignored.

Calls to Remembrance, a joint project through both Otterbein College and The Ohio State University, will commemorate this period through the lives and writings of Toyo Suyemoto and Lawson Inada. Suyemoto survived internment camps in Utah. After the war, she eventually came to Ohio and worked for more than 20 years at The Ohio State University, becoming the head librarian of the Social Work Library. Toyo retired from Ohio State as associate professor emerita in 1985 and donated her extensive papers to the Rare Book and Manuscript Collection shortly before she passed away. Susan Richardson, a retired English professor who was a friend of Toyo's, edited a collection of Toyo's writings about life in the camps, in recently published memoirs titled, "I Call to Remembrance."

Inada, who is a third-generation American and poet laureate from Oregon, wrote a book of poetry, "Legends from Camp." It details his childhood experiences of staying in a Japanese internment camp due to unjustified fears that he would commit treason against his family's country of over 40 years.

The presentation will include a short film, A Day of Remembrance: Toyo Suyemoto Kawakami Remembers Internment. Additionally, editor Richardson will read from "I Call to Remembrance." Finally, Inada himself will conduct a reading.

The dates, times, and locations of this event are as follows:

- Otterbein College: Tuesday, January 29, 4 p.m., Philomathean Room of Towers Hall, 1 S. Grove St., Westerville

Rarities: Unusual Works from the Caniff Collection

Through January 19, 2008

Cartoon Research Library

Milton Caniff was a saver, and he was the son of a saver. As a result, the Milton Caniff Collection, the founding collection of The Ohio State University Cartoon Research Library, is enormous - nearly 12,000 original artworks by Caniff, 85 boxes of memorabilia, and more than 450 boxes of manuscript materials, fan letters, and business records. This exhibition celebrates the richness of the Caniff Collection and provides insight into the work, friendships, and influence of one of the 20th century's great cartoonists. In addition to work by Caniff, several drawings of Caniff by Noel Sickles, a fan letter from Mort Walker when he was 13, and an oil painting of General George Patton by Bill Mauldin are among the items on display.

The Little Black Dress: A Fashion Icon

Through May 10, 2008

Historic Costume & Textiles Collection

Is anything more iconic or versatile than the little black dress? Sixty of the collection's little black dresses will be on display through May 10. The Little Black Dress exhibition illustrates its namesake's many facets from its beginnings in the late 1920's through the end of the 20th century. Dresses range from the classy and eternal cocktail dresses from the 50's and 60's to the funky styles of the days of disco. Classic pieces that echo the timeless sentiments of Audrey Hepburn in Sabrina and Breakfast at Tiffany's are featured alongside eclectic pieces, such as the dress featuring a design of the Eiffel Tower fashioned from silver buttons by Patrick Kelly, the first African American to show in Paris. Many of these dresses are created by some of fashion's most well-known and respected names including Christian Dior, Oscar de la Renta, Calvin Klein, and Chanel, the designer credited with "inventing" the little black dress. Two are creations from the minds of Irene Lentz Gibbons and Gilbert Adrian who made their reputations designing for MGM in Hollywood's golden years. The exhibition is located on campus in Campbell Hall's Geraldine Schottenstein Wing at 1787 Neil Avenue. For gallery hours and parking information, visit costume.osu.edu and to schedule a tour of 10 or more, call 292-3090.
