Calls to Remembrance: Commemorating Japanese American Internment; Wednesday, January 30, refreshments, 11:30 a.m.; program, noon-1:30 p.m, Frank W. Hale Jr. Black Cultural Center, 153 W. 12th Ave.:

Calls to Remembrance, a joint project through both Otterbein College and The Ohio State University, will commemorate this period through the lives and writings of Toyo Suyemoto (known to OSU Libraries' faculty and staff as Toyo Kawakami, her married name, or simply as "Mrs. K") and Lawson Inada. Kawakami survived internment camps in Utah. After the war, she eventually came to Ohio and worked for more than 20 years at The Ohio State University, becoming the head librarian of the Social Work Library. Toyo retired from Ohio State as associate professor emerita in 1985 and donated her extensive papers to the Rare Book and Manuscript Collection shortly before she passed away. Susan Richardson, a retired English professor who was a friend of Toyo's, edited a collection of Toyo's writings about life in the camps, in recently published memoirs titled, "I Call to Remembrance."

Inada, who is a third-generation American and poet laureate from Oregon, wrote a book of poetry, "Legends from Camp." It details his childhood experiences of staying in a Japanese internment camp due to unjustified fears that he would commit treason against his family's country of over 40 years.

The presentation will include a short film, A Day of Remembrance: Toyo Suyemoto Kawakami Remembers Internment. Additionally, editor Richardson will read from "I Call to Remembrance." Finally, Inada himself will conduct a reading.

Cultural Explosion

Designer and author Rosemary E. Reed Miller, will present her book, Threads of Time, The Fabric of History-Profiles about African American designers and dressmakers from 1850 to the Present.

Did you know:
African American designer, Ann Lowe designed the wedding dress for Jackie Kennedy? It is the most photographed wedding dress in American history. People Magazine voted the wedding dress as the most beautiful dress ever. The New York Times covered the 1953 wedding, wrote about the dress but did not mention the designer. When Franklin Mint made a doll with a replica of the wedding dress, they listed the artist as 'Oleg Cassini.' A small detail, but typical of the problem of documenting the contribution of African Americans to American history.

Reed-Miller has spotlighted this small, but interesting area of achievement in her book which profiles 22 women including Rosa Parks, Zelda Wynn, who designed costumes for the Dance Theatre of Harlem and Elizabeth Keckley, who designed for Mrs. Abraham Lincoln.

Anne Mergen: Editorial Cartoonist

February 1 – April 11

Cartoon Research Library

Anne Mergen's editorial cartoons chronicle history from the Great Depression through the Cold War. During that time, she was the only woman in the nation working as an editorial cartoonist. Mergen was born in Omaha, Nebraska, in 1906. She studied commercial art in Chicago before moving to Miami in the mid 1920s to work as a fashion advertising artist for a local department store. When the Miami Daily News, part of the Cox newspaper chain, hired her as its editorial cartoonist in 1933, she was the only woman editorial cartoonist in the United States, a status that continued until her retirement in 1956.

She continued to have cartoons published as late as 1959. She had a home studio and all of the contemporary press coverage about her career celebrates the fact that she drew her editorial cartoons only after fulfilling her duties as wife and mother to two children. In addition to being published in the Miami Daily News, her cartoons were published in other Cox newspapers including the Atlanta Journal and the Dayton News. The editorial cartoons in this exhibit range from Mergen's take on Goebbels' propaganda to the advent of nuclear power. She was a thoughtful commentator on the events of her time and her work merits wider recognition.

Anne Mergen died in 1994. The cartoons in this exhibition were donated to the Cartoon Research Library by her grandchildren, Matthew Bernhardt and Christine Hoverman. The Anne Mergen Collection at the Cartoon Research Library contains almost 600 original editorial cartoons documenting her work. This exhibit is free and open to the public.

The Little Black Dress: A Fashion Icon

Through May 10

Historic Costume & Textiles Collection

Is anything more iconic or versatile than the little black dress? Sixty of the collection's little black dresses will be on display through May 10. The Little Black Dress exhibition illustrates its namesake's many facets from its beginnings in the late 1920's through the end of the 20th century. Dresses range from the classy and eternal cocktail dresses from the 50's and 60's to the funky styles of the days of disco. Classic pieces that echo the timeless sentiments of Audrey Hepburn in Sabrina and Breakfast at Tiffany's are featured alongside eclectic pieces, such as the dress featuring a design of the Eiffel Tower fashioned from silver buttons by Patrick Kelly, the first African American to show in Paris. Many of these dresses are created by some of fashion's most well-known and respected names including Christian Dior, Oscar de la Renta, Calvin Klein, and Chanel, the designer credited with "inventing" the little black dress. Two are creations from the minds of Irene Lentz Gibbons and Gilbert Adrian who made their reputations designing for MGM in Hollywood's golden years. The exhibition is located on campus in Campbell Hall's Geraldine Schottenstein Wing at 1787 Neil Avenue. For gallery hours and parking information, visit costume.osu.edu and to schedule a tour of 10 or more, call 292-3090.

NewsNotes is distributed weekly on Tuesdays. The next issue will be published on February 5. Please submit items, including pictures, by Friday, February 1. Submissions should be emailed to Larry Allen.
