New Talent Sought For WOSU Show

'Away From It All' Presents Opportunity For Writers, Actors

A unique Summertime programming experiment, in which the listeners write the scripts and amateur talent performs them, will be launched over WOSU starting July 9. Called "Away From It All," the half-hour dramatic presentations will be aired each Sunday afternoon through September until the start of Fall Quarter programs.

Producer of the new series will be Robert Norris, WOSU production supervisor. Mark Munn, Grad, script supervisor of the "Ohio School of the Air," will be program editor.

Aim of the new program is to offer quality radio entertainment for adults and at the same time give amateur writers and actors, both on and off campus, a chance to participate in radio work.

Scripts may represent an original story idea or may be adapted from a short story, book, or play. Selection will be based on worthiness of essentials, rather than on finished presentation. Scripts should be addressed to "Away From It All," in care of WOSU, The Ohio State University, Columbus 10, Ohio.

Auditions for actors and actresses will be held at the WOSU studios early in July.

Funeral Service Held Thursday For Blumberg

Prof. Henry Blumberg, 64, of the mathematics department, died Wednesday in his home at 76 E. Blake Ave. Funeral services were to be held Thursday in the Snider Funeral Home and burial was to be in the New Tilfereth Israel Cemetery.

Professor Blumberg had taught at the University since 1925. He studied at Columbia University where he received his B.A. and M.A. His doctorate was earned at the University of Goettingen in Germany.

He won the John Dash Van Buren prize in mathematics in 1907 and before coming to Ohio State, was with the Universities of Nebraska and Illinois. He was co-author of the book "A Short Course in Trigonometry" and has contributed many articles to mathematical journals.

'Male Animal' First Of Six Productions

By Bob Bolen

With the opening of "The Male Animal" July 5, the University and the city of Columbus will get their initial look at one of America's first Stadium theaters.

Now nearing completion, the theater is located under the east side of the Stadium. It was designed by Eugene Q. Hoak, technical director for the speech department, who describes it as an "indoor-outdoor" theater. Patrons, he says, will be cool without having to worry about rain.

The seating capacity will be 440 persons, with no seat more than six rows from the stage. Each row will be on a different level to provide a maximum of visibility.

The productions will be given in arena style with the audience sitting on all four sides of the stage. Such an arrangement calls for a minimum of scenery to suggest the locale of a scene.

Since a curtain is lacking in arena staging, the actors take their places on the stage while the theater is darkened. All actors' exits and entrances will be made by passing through the audience.

This type staging is not new. Originated by the Greeks some 2,500 years ago, it has been revived recently with notable suc-

New Zealander, Seeking Doctor's Degree, Discusses Socialism, American Education

By Dick Kubik

William John Desmond Minogue is tall, spare, thirty, and as typically British as Winston Churchill, Sherlock Holmes, or Basil Rathbone. To top it all off, he comes from New Zealand.

"Des" has been at Ohio State almost two years, working on his doctor's dissertation in Education. He has a scholarship under the auspices of the International Institute of Education.

"I think American education has something to teach us," he said when asked why he was studying here. A firm believer in the practical and social side of education, Minogue hopes to introduce some of his ideas into the New Zealand educational system when he returns.

Regarding the touchy question of socialism, "the result for New Zealand is very good," he declared. "There are specific historical and geographical conditions in New Zealand which make empirical and experimental socialism desirable for my country. But this type of socialism is not doctrinaire."

He also believes that it was a mistake when the Labor Party was voted out of power in New Zealand recently, because the Conservatives seek to stabilize wages, but not prices.

Minogue does not think that outlawing the Communist Party is the best policy.

"Communism stifles free thought," he stated. "To outlaw the Communist Party does precisely the same thing."

He believes the proper way to combat Communism is by keeping it out in the open where it can be seen and judged. "This is

Graduate School High With 3,000

Estimated enrollment for Summer Quarter is 8,500 according to Dr. Ronald B. Thompson, University Registrar. While this is a decrease of about 1,000 from last year's figure, Dr. Thompson explained that accurate figures will not be available until registration for the second term of the quarter is completed.

At present the Graduate School leads the enrollment with 3,000. Other enrollments are: Education, 1,300; Commerce, 1,000; Arts, 900; Engineering, 600; and Agriculture, 350. Registration for Twilight School is about 450. All are approximate figures.

New students were first introduced to Ohio State at a week-long orientation program in the Grand Lounge of Pomerene Hall on June 19.

President Bevis assured them that the University is interested in each and every new student and said they need not feel that Ohio State is too large for any individual.

The President explained that it would be impossible for him to remember every new student, but hoped that all would remember him and not forget to say "hello" when they meet him on the campus.

Dean of Men Joseph A. Park and Miss Kathryn Hopwood, associate dean of women, also spoke.

The group then divided for discussions of student activities. Paul V. Dimmick, Ed-2, chairman of the men's orientation program, introduced three student speakers: John T. Hentz, Com-3, president of Civitas; Lawrence Conaway, Com-2, secretary-treasurer of Fraternity Affairs Office; and Richard Slemmer, A-2, treasurer of YMCA.

Ewing Returns To WOSU After Year's Absence

William H. Ewing, program director at WOSU, has returned to the University station following a year's leave of absence.

During the past year, Mr. Ewing has been in charge of radio speech training at the University of Oregon at Eugene. He has also aided in the planning and production of radio programs for the state-owned station KOAC at Corvallis, Ore.

With Ewing's return to WOSU, Glenn Ellstrom, acting program director, will resume his former duties as Ewing's assistant.

Intramural Program Is Planned

Knowing that "all study in the heat makes a dull guy," the University has set up a full recreational program for Summer Quarter. With emphasis on softball, tennis, swimming, and golf, the program is bound to include at least one sport that will interest Joe College when he takes time out for play.

Heading the Summer recreation program is the men's intramural softball "Prickly Heat" League. Thirty teams have entered the competition and have been set up in six different leagues.

All games are played on Tuesdays, Wednesdays, and Thursdays, beginning at 5:15. The league has been organized on a round robin basis, and at the close of league play a single-elimination tournament will be set up.

Anyone connected with the University still has until July 5 to enter either singles or doubles play in the tennis tournament. Drawings will be made in the Men's Intramural Office on that day. Courts are open to anyone daily from dawn 'til dark.

The University pools offer both men and women the chance to beat the heat by remaining open each day. Pomerene pool will be open to women daily from 4 to 5, Monday through Friday. Men can swim at the Natatorium daily from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. except Fridays and Saturdays when the pool will be closed at 5. Mixed swimming is scheduled every Wednesday night from 7 to 9 in the Natatorium.

Golf enthusiasts must find their own transportation to the University course this Summer. Daily green fees are 75 cents; Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays, $1.

Women can improve their skill in archery by reporting to their field house any day from 8:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

Summer-ized Sports

By Charles Downe
Lantern Sports Editor

The PGA tournament is over, but memories of Ben Hogan, the little man who wasn't there, linger on.

By failing to show up for last week's match, Hogan left himself open to all sorts of criticism from sports writers and PGA members alike. The justification for this apparently was that the PGA made Ben, and it was more or less his duty to give the sports public a show along with the other "big pros."

Hogan is the most publicized figure in golf, and until last week, the most popular. By overlooking the PGA match he might have cut his own throat. First rate golfers are a dime a dozen, and unlike baseball players, golfers have little opportunity to develop audience appeal.

But Ben Hogan is a little different. His remarkable comeback after sustaining injuries from a serious automobile accident, two years ago, brought him into the public's eye.

So, like Joe Louis, Joe DiMaggio and other great athletes, Hogan can be the public's idol, or its favorite whipping boy, whatever the circumstances warrant.

The chances are that Hogan had good reasons for turning down the PGA meet. Golf after all is the major source of his income. Perhaps for reasons of health he really felt that he couldn't take the week-long grind of qualification runs, medal play and match play, particularly after competing in tournaments the two previous weeks.

Of course he could have forsaken one of the latter to participate in the PGA event.

At any rate, its too early for sports writers, or the public, to blackball the plucky little man who literally fought his way back into big-time golf.

Ex-Trackmen Tour Europe

Dave Albritton and Mal Whitfield, former Ohio State track stars, are among 55 athletes who will tour Europe this Summer.

Nosebleeds Halt Nieporte; Bucks Out Of NCAA

Nosebleeds forced Tom Nieporte, the Bucks' big gun in the NCAA Golf Tournament at Albuquerque, N. M., to drop out of the field.

After carding an aggregate of 144 in qualifying rounds, he had to quit on No. 10 hole Wednesday, the first day of match play. Officials ruled him out in favor of E. J. Rogers of Oklahoma by a 6 and 5 margin.

The three remaining team members were also eliminated. Art Deak lost to Ron Clark, Oregon, 3 and 2. Dick Horsch was defeated by John Wallace of Stanford, 2 and 1, and Chick Hendrickson was out-holed by Warren MacCarthy, San Jose State, 5 and 3.

Floyd Stahl, Bucks' Baseball Mentor, Takes Over Cage Coaching Job

Floyd S. Stahl, University baseball coach and assistant athletic director, will take over as head basketball coach, Oct. 1, 1950.

Stahl will succeed "Tippy" Dye, who has resigned to become head basketball coach at Washington University in Seattle. Coach Dye completed four years as basketball coach of the Buckeyes, climaxing that period with a Western Conference championship this past season.

The new basketball coach has been a member of the athletic staff at Ohio State for 10 years serving in two different periods.

From 1930 to 1938 he served in several capacities on the coaching staffs of the University in baseball, football and basketball. He left Ohio State after the 1938 football season to become head baseball coach at Harvard, winning the Eastern League title in 1943. Appointed assistant basketball coach in 1943, Stahl was named head coach of that sport at Harvard the next year, taking a team to the NCAA tournament as the eastern champions in 1946.

He returned to Ohio State in 1947 to become baseball coach and assistant director of athletics. In his first season his baseball team placed second in the Western Conference with 16 wins and nine losses for all games and nine victories out of 14 games in the Conference.

Summer Quarter

This is June. Thousands are planning their vacations or spending lazy afternoons on the beach, or fishing, or playing golf, or lolling in hammocks on hot afternoons, drinking iced-tea and reading.

We are enrolled in the Summer Quarter.

During July, others will be planning for the long Independence Day week-end. Some will start their vacations then, motoring through Canada, fishing in the cool lakes and streams of Michigan or enjoying life in general at a secluded mountain lodge.

We are enrolled in the Summer Quarter.

In August, it will be the same story—fishing, swimming, boating, sunning, etc.

We are enrolled in the Summer Quarter.

We will spend sweltering hours on the third floor of University Hall; strain our ears trying to hear above the carpenter's hammer in Hagerty Hall; get wringing wet beneath a rubber apron in the chemistry lab; swelter in the sweat boxes of Derby Hall where it is even too hot to sleep; listen to the rumble of traffic on High Street from Arps Hall, and when classes are held outside, give up all semblance of attention and just check the passing talent.

We are enrolled in the Summer Quarter.

When September comes, the others will be broke, sunburned, poisoned, sick of their jobs, tired and ill-tempered.

We, however, will have learned a few things in spite of ourselves. We will be one more Quarter closer to that coveted degree. We will have no sunburn, poison, malcontent, and be in reasonably good spirits when it is over.

We were enrolled in the Summer Quarter.

Immediate Seating

The following appeared in the Columbus CIO News in one of its features, "Checking the Press," written by an anonymous member of the Columbus local of the Newspaper Guild, CIO:

For some reason, the local papers are fearful of offending Ohio State University. This was indicated again when the University Board of Trustees met June 10 and decided to earmark some unreserved space in the $225,000 press box at the Stadium for use by the Trustees. Since the Big Ten has banned live television this Fall, television booths in the press box will be open for other use. The Trustees decided they might as well reserve it for themselves.

It was difficult to determine this fact from the stories carried by the Dispatch and Citizen on the Trustees' meeting. Both papers mentioned the fact in one paragraph and then used only the words of the board in its official announcement of its decision, leaving the readers wondering about the complete story.

Both papers reported the board "also announced that certain space in the press box, which is not presently required for television or radio purposes, shall be made available for official University use." That's all.

We have been informed reliably that the board did not desire too much publicity over its decision to watch the OSU football games from the press box.

In fact, we are told the Citizen had a story two days before the board met that the board was considering such a move. But the Citizen failed to print the story, waiting like the Dispatch for the official word from the board! And then buried it in one paragraph.

First of all, we don't see why the CIO News wants to pick on Ohio State and its Board of Trustees. They haven't been guilty, to our knowledge, of any labor baiting.

According to the LANTERN's "reliable source" members of the Board of Trustees may sit in vacant radio or television booths. So what? That means just that many more tickets available for football fans.

It was also learned from "a reliable source" that if the facilities are needed for radio coverage of a particularly important game, the Board of Trustees will vacate them in favor of the radio station or network.

To "Checking the Press" we plead: Leave us alone, we're going to have enough trouble winning those football games without bickering over who's going to sit where.

News Comment . . .

Future—World War III Or Korean Civil War?

By Sid Rowland

At any rate, one question has been answered in the last week: whether or not there's going to be another war.

The United States, by President Truman's order of Tuesday morning, is now engaged in the eighth war of its history.

Whether or not this war will be remembered by future historians as World War III, or merely the Korean War, is the big question in everyone's mind.

The conflict in Korea may stay localized. If, with American aid, the South Koreans are able to throw the invaders out; and if Russia allows this to happen without further moves, this may prove to be the case. The North Koreans may have jumped the gun and acted more or less spontaneously, without prearrangement with Russia, and Russia might decide not to back them up.

First Step?

On the other hand, this may be one step in a carefully thought out plan—engineered in Russia—and she may go further.

How big a war this is going to be is really up to Russia.

Now that we have a war, people have suddenly begun to ask why.

One theory, widely publicized locally, is that the late President Roosevelt caused the war, by making concessions on Korea at Yalta. This does not hold much water.

If President Roosevelt did make mistakes at Yalta—and responsible opinion would seem to think that he did—he made them because, given only human foresight, he could not have known that the purely Japanese phase of World War II was going to last only for the four brief months it did. No one, in February, 1945, could have accurately gauged when the atom-bomb was going to be finished; and if Roosevelt yielded ground to Stalin, it was to secure Russian aid for what everybody then expected be a long, drag-out battle in Japan.

No Connection

However, the State Department pointed out that there was no connection between Yalta and the settlement in Korea which was not reached until some time after President Roosevelt was dead. It was also pointed out that in the settlement made at the end of the war it probably would have been difficult to keep Russian forces out of North Korea, since at that time they had armies on the country's very border, while our nearest troops were south at Okinawa.

To some people, Roosevelt is a kind of a devil. These people exhibit a kind of naive faith in Roosevelt the devil, believing implicitly that he is the source of all bad things. In the minds of these people, all events occurred before Yalta or after Yalta, as they might have happened before Christ or in the Christian era.

Senator Taft, speaking in Steubenville Monday night, is reported to have said that Roosevelt caused the war by what he did at Yalta. Senator Taft seems to have said nothing of what the situation might now be if he, and not the late president, had been at Yalta.

Not Isolated Event

It is naive to try to blame this war on any single event or person. Many factors are involved—the tendency of an industrial area of a country to dominate the farming uplands (North Korea is industrial); the unsettled state of Korea in general, with its new legal independence after 40 years of Japanese rule; hatred of some Orientals for all western things. Some Koreans criticize the government of South Korea as being feudal.

The biggest factor of all, of course, is the Russian desire for expansion. Whether or not Sunday's invasion is part of a Grand Russian Plan, it certainly is part of the Grand Russian Dream.

The decision to make our fundamental line of defense in Japan, and not in Korea, would seem to have been made for strategic reasons. Also, the United States could hardly have kept a standing army in Korea, not a conquered enemy, and expected many Koreans to believe us when we talked about democracy.

One thing that is certainly true, this new war is the last chance for the United Nations. It lost much prestige two years ago in the bitter fighting between Israelites and Arabs in Palestine; and with any further setbacks, the name Lake Success might just as well be changed to Lake Failure.

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—(UP)—When three-year-old Rickey Atkins was being prepared for a tonsil operation, the doctor gave him some penicillin shots. Rickey howled.

After the operation, Rickey visited the doctor's office for a check-up. While the doctor talked to the lad's mother, Rickey found a hypodermic needle on the desk, slipped up behind the doctor and rammed it in. The doctor howled.

. . . And Come Out Smelling Like A Bed Of Roses

ST. LOUIS—(UP)—Presistence paid off for Mrs. Vivian McEvers, who lost three diamond rings valued at $2,400 when she accidentally flushed them down the toilet.

In spite of plumbers' predictions that heavy rains had washed her rings into the Mississippi River, she insisted they use every means to recover them.

Even after the street and sewer department had dug more than eight feet down to a screened sewer trap without finding the rings, she demanded they continue the work. The job was costing her $8.50 an hour just for use of a power hose.

Mrs. McEvers dropped a penny, a nickel and an old ring in the bowl to prove they wouldn't reach the screen trap.

Finally, after use of a plumber's cable, one of the valuable rings appeared. So did the other two diamond rings, the penny, the nickel and the old ring used in the experiment.

How To Defeat The Heat Or; Keep Cool In School

By Nancy Barnhouse

Sunback dresses and bare midriffs, sheer blouses and whirling skirts all call for pretty petticoats. Cotton, and its companion batiste, are perfect materials to wear under those gay Summer dresses.

Among the more popular versions are the sheer petticoat trimmed with a daisy-covered organdy ruffle and the petticoat bordered with prim red hearts.

To keep cool on even the hottest Summer days DRESS COOL. This doesn't mean just wearing lightweight clothing. You must also create an atmosphere of tingling refreshment by your appearance.

Avoid high-necked and long-sleeved dresses, tightly woven fabrics, uncomfortably tight hats and close-fitting jewelry.

Try to get a nap in the heat of the day. And before you doze off, set up your own air conditioning unit. Fill a bowl with ice cubes and put them in front of your electric fan. The result will be a wonderfully cool, invigorating breeze.

If you're in a hurry to dry your nail polish—quickly dip your fingernails two or three times into a bowl of ice water. They will be dry in a minute.

The Way To A Man's Heart

Take a tip from Hawaii's most famous cooks and use a suggestion of ginger when next you fry chicken. You'll discover a new taste treat if you add just a dash of dry ginger, as well as salt and pepper, to the flour you dredge your chicken in.

What is more welcome at a Summer luncheon than lemonade?

Expert To Give Bridge Lessons

Mrs. G. Eloise Neil, Columbus bridge authority, will conduct beginning and advanced bridge classes Wednesday evenings in the Grand Lounge of Pomerene Hall.

Classes for beginners are from 7-8:30 p. m., while those for advanced students are from 8:30-10 p. m.

When you are preparing your favorite recipe for this Summer beverage remember that frosty, chilled glasses (put them in the refrigerator for about two hours) add to your reputation as a good hostess.

For even cooler looking lemonade attach a lemon circle to the rim of the glass, float several cold strawberries on top, or stick in a sprig of fresh green mint.

Any time cooked meat, fish or fowl seem too pale, brush it with brown gravy coloring to give it a rich inviting color.

If lettuce looks tired and exhausted, place it in ice-water along with salt and a good squeeze of lemon juice. The lettuce will look appetizing in very short time.

Plan Second Starlight Dance For Saturday Night

By Georgine Branner, Lantern Society Editor

Let's hope Saturday night will be favorable to an outside dance with moon and all! The first dance of the Summer Quarter last Saturday got underway "under the stars" in the parking area across from the Union. But at the stroke of nine the rains came. The crowds immediately scattered and ran to the nearby Union, but the show went on in the rain.

Finally, the orchestra leader deciding that a roof was a refuge, transferred his equipment to Pomerene Gymnasium.

The leader, Bill Tarrants, was soaked with rain and red dye from the music stands. The sheet music, like wet leaves, was laid out by one of the band members on the floor to dry.

Finally the music got underway as the first dance of the season began. Approximately 1,000 were present.

Starlight dancing is the regularly scheduled Pomerene informal Saturday dance. They are open dances sponsored by the Social Board and Pomerene Hall.

Heart Study Gets $2,095

A grant of $2,095 to the University Development Fund by the Central Ohio Heart Association will be used by University research experts to combat heart disease on three fronts, Kenyon Campbell, fund field director, has announced.

In the department of research surgery, Drs. Louis Roettig and John Baker will use $500 of the gift for purchase of essential drugs, and for care of experimental animals.

Another $500 will be employed by Dr. Howard Sirak, working under Dr. Robert Zollinger in the department of surgery, for further research on a mechanical heart pump which Dr. Sirak has developed. The pump may actually allow the surgeon to evacuate blood from parts of the heart while continuing normal circulation through veins and arteries, making possible many surgical techniques before considered impossible.

The remaining $1,095 of the grant has been placed under joint control of Dr. Eric Ogden, chairman of the University's physiology department, and Dr. R. W. Kisanine, president of the Central Ohio Heart Association. Dr. Ogden, a nationally known research authority, will use the funds in the investigation of high blood pressure.

Receives Appointment

Dr. D. F. Miller, chairman of the department of zoology and entomology, has announced appointment of Dr. Alvah Peterson as supervisor of entomology within the department.

Former University Head Not Related To Student.

University administrators did a "double take" when they saw the name of William Oxley Thompson on the list of graduates to receive degrees in the Spring Quarter Commencement exercises.

Though no kin to the famous fifth president who headed the University for 25 years, this year's graduate was named in honor of the Ohio State educator.

8 Staffers Retire On 258 Years Service

Retiring from active duties this Summer are eight University staff members whose careers of service total 258 years.

They are Ray M. Royer, purchasing agent; Robert E. Smith, professor of education; Jacob A. Foust, instructor in welding engineering; Jay B. Park, professor of agronomy; Anna M. Green, accession librarian; Harry G. Good, professor of education; Arthur F.

Schalk, professor of veterinary medicine; and C. C. Caldwell, 4-H Club agent in Co-operative Extension work.

Mr. Royer's 48-year period of service represents one of the longest on record here at the University. He joined the staff in 1902, and in 1908 was made assistant purchasing agent. Eight years later he became purchasing agent.

Dr. Smith, who was born in Ireland, came to the University in 1912 as an assistant in wood-working, and later received three degrees here. He was at one time president of the industrial arts section of the Ohio Education Association.

Mr. Foust joined the staff as an assistant in forging in 1912. A year later he joined the industrial engineering department, and has taught in the welding engineering department since 1948.

Dr. Park became professor of farm crops at Ohio State in 1916, associate in agronomy at the Ohio Agriculture Experiment Station in 1917, and professor of agronomy at the University in 1933. Dr. Park is widely known as the originator of the Mingo soybean and other hybrid farm crops.

Miss Green, after being associated with libraries in Syracuse and New York City, joined the staff as assistant accession librarian in 1924. Eight years later she became accession librarian.

Dr. Good was appointed professor of history of education in 1926 and professor of education in 1933. Before coming to Ohio State, he was a member of the faculties at Bluffton College, Colgate University, and Ohio University. His book, "A History of Western Education," was published in 1947.

Dr. Schalk has been professor of veterinary preventive medicine since 1930. He is internationally known for his research contributions, among which is the "gastric fistula" technique, now used throughout the world, which permits photographing of the functions of the interior of the stomach of the cow.

Mr. Caldwell became 4-H Club agent in the College of Agriculture in 1920. Before coming to Ohio State, he taught in public schools and served with the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Bureau of Railway Economics, and as a county agent in West Virginia.
