Two Satellites Go Up, Up, Up...

Group Plans Educational TV Network

By Al Brown

A "live" statewide educational TV network is being planned by the Ohio Council for Educational Television.

Last June, the OCET was formed by seven interested universities and community organizations throughout Ohio. At the present, an exchange program of kinescope films has been set up by WOSU-TV in Columbus and WCET, Cincinnati. These are the two Ohio ETV stations, now on the air.

AMONG THE WOSU-TV programs currently scheduled for broadcast in Cincinnati are "Aspects of Art," "Die Deutsche Stunde," and "National Security Today."

WOSU-TV in return will receive from WCET, several programs featuring musicians of the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music and "You and Your Future," a series on careers designed for young people.

Richard B. Hull, OCET president and director of the Ohio State Telecommunications Center, said "Immediate plans call for an expansion

'Menagerie' To Open Tonight

By Sara Pentz

The sensitive hands of a skilled glass blower bring life to delicate glass animals in "The Glass Menagerie," a University Theater production opening tonight at 8 in University Hall Theater.

William Leonard, supervisor of the glass shop of the department of chemistry, has created small glass animals to be used in the play which will run through Sunday.

LEONARD IS A master of all types of glass blowing which he does for the University. He has changed ordinary glass tubes into the small animals used in Laura Wingfield's menagerie.

Laura, played by Renee Bushman, is the sensitive, shy and crippled daughter of a nagging and spoiled mother. The Wingfields, a fading Southern family, are each desperately trying to grasp reality. Mrs. Wingfield is to be portrayed by Sue Hubbard.

Laura finds solace in the world of her menagerie where she is no longer a sensitive and shy person. The play's most pathetic and humorous scenes are produced by the efforts of Laura's mother to match Laura with a gum-cracking fellow worker of Laura's brother. George McGown is acting the role of the brother.

Alan Berman as Jim completes the cast.

WITH THE use of Leonard's carefully blown glass menagerie, the audience will enjoy the symbolized search for reality present in Tennessee William's successful play.

Tickets for the play may be purchased from 12:30 to 5 p.m. daily in the Derby Hall box office. Tickets may also be purchased in the evenings from 7 to 9.

Discoverer II, Vanguard III On Their Way

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA.

— (UPI) — An "economy shot" attempt to launch two earth satellites on a single Vanguard rocket ended in failure minutes after blast-off last night when the second stage failed to fire properly.

The shell of the slim Vanguard, its unfired third stage and the two scientific-probing satellites fell back into the Atlantic ocean.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA., —

(UPI) — A Vanguard rocket streaked into the sky last night in an attempt to launch two satellites into orbit around the earth with one vehicle.

The Vanguard launching provided the United States with its first double-barrelled satellite firing. Only 4½ hours earlier, Air Force rocketeers on the West Coast hurled a 440-pound artificial moon into an orbit that crosses the north and south poles.

NESTLED in the smaller Vanguard's nose were two unique moonlets much smaller than the Discoverer II satellite which went into orbit earlier. But, like Discoverer II, the Vanguard satellites could provide vital information on manned space flight.

THE DISCOVERER announcement came a little more than two hours after a 7-story, 50-ton Thor rocket had climbed into the heavens with a 195-pound instrument package which the Air Force hopes to recover after its flight in space.

A spokesman said the orbit of the 440-pound "moon" took it 445 miles from earth at the farthest point. It is 158 miles up at its closest point.

Chances for recovering the instrument capsule from the Discoverer satellite fired at Vandenberg during the afternoon were regarded as very slim, but an attempt will be made.

ROTC Issue Pigeonholed

The Faculty Council will not consider the Student Senate resolution to abolish compulsory ROTC at its meeting tonight.

Lawrence Jones, secretary of the Faculty Council, said Monday afternoon that the Council is waiting for supporting evidence from Student Senate.

Senate would have compulsory ROTC training replaced by a required freshman military survey course on the ROTC program.

The Council has received the resolution from Student Senate, but the documentary support will not be ready for the Council before Wednesday.

Musings

Next year we're going to have two Block O's, one in the regular section 13A and the other, freshman block in the closed end of the Stadium. Previously students had joined the Block because it offered the best student seats in the Stadium. However, seats in the new block won't be any better than the seats freshmen are normally allotted. We can see one advantage, though, now the Block members can see what the show looks like.

According to speculation, Secretary Dulles will announce on April 20 his decision as to whether he will continue in the high State Department post. Since Dulles' return to Walter Reed Hospital on Sunday, hope has dwindled that the brilliant secretary will return to "active duty." Cancer seems to have nearly ravaged Dulles' body, but not his mind or spirit. The nation's greatest hope for a successful summer Geneva conference seemed to lie in Dulles' hands. We may not be just losing a great Secretary of State, but a peace conference as well.

Friday the Board of Trustees authorized President Fawcett to admit entering freshmen at "such quarter of the academic year as he may designate." However, the Board did not divulge any details of the future admission schedule. Does this mean that if facilities get even more crowded than now, freshmen can be forced to wait a quarter or even two, before they can be admitted? From that way of thinking, any high school graduate can still be admitted to Ohio State, but only at the quarter designated by the President.

It was a pleasure to hear that the Board has finally decided to vacate and demolish the River Road dorms. This is an action that many have been urging for years. Not only are the River Road dorms inconvenient, and in some eyes, undesirable living quarters, but they are an unattractive part of the campus landscape. With the demolition of River Road, the University has decided to move women students into the east wing of Baker Hall. Other schools have used the mixed housing plan, and it seems to have worked pretty well. There's only one thing: If the University is concerned about the closeness of Siebert Hall and the new men's dorms, how will they feel when there is only a wall, instead of a parking lot to separate the men from the women?

Last Friday 16 students were luncheon guests of the Board of Trustees. To our surprise it was not the cut and dried session we expected it to be. Several of the students were selected to describe their area of campus life, and their remarks were not all flattering to the University. Students reminded the Trustees that they thought it was unfair that only nine hours of English were required in comparison with 12 hours of ROTC, better lecture facilities were needed by the College of Medicine, more subtly could be used by the Administration, that more pertinent facts should be disclosed in major discipline cases and there was a need for higher faculty salaries.

But the Board received some thanks, too, for the Report to the Campus, for the excellent dormitory program, and for the broad-mindedness and cooperation of the University toward the international students.

Tut! . . .

To the Editor:

Tut! tut! is this good journalism? A news article about CBS President Stanton in an Ohio State newspaper, yet no mention that Stanton took his Ph.D. in psychology from this University and was later granted an honorary doctorate. Does Ohio State honor so many of its graduates that it is to be overlooked in the Ohio State LANTERN?

How was your reporter to know about Stanton? That is your problem. I should surmise it is the basic problem of journalism.

Senator Learns New Language

(By United Press International)

Stephen M. Young has advised the homefolks that he had to learn a new language when he became a U. S. senator and began dealing with Pentagon generals this year.

THE OHIO Democrat gave these translations of Washington gobbledegook:

"It's in process": The matter is so wrapped up in red tape the situation is almost hopeless.

"We'll look into it": By the time the wheel makes a full turn, we assume that you'll have forgotten about it too.

"PROGRAM": Any assignment that cannot be completed by one phone call.

"Expedite": To confound confusion with commotion.

"Channels": The trail left by inter-office memos.

"Coordinator": The guy who has a desk between two expeditors.

"Reorientation": Getting used to working again.

"We're making a survey": We need more time to think of an answer.

Editor's Mail Bag

Jerome Ellison Article . . .

To the Editor:

Oh God bless you! And more power to you—masses of OSU. It's heartening to read the LANTERN and realize what well-rounded individuals the University is producing.

YOUR VARIOUS reactions to Prof. Jerome Ellison's famous Saturday Evening Post article is basic proof of your stability. It has shown your pride, resentment, awareness of shortcomings and desire for improvement. But the most admirable perhaps is the capacity to accept criticism (for what it's worth) and use it to evaluate yourselves, as you have done . . . How can you miss?

I'm sure I speak for all parents and loved ones, in saying, "We're proud of you!"

THE IMPORTANCE of a higher education cannot be over-emphasized. Unfortunately the cost of that education has skyrocketed to an almost prohibitive sum, for far too many. However, OSU students have one basic quality in common; you come from a good home. Yes, all of you. Whether it is a small apartment or a mansion, a good home has the same characteristics everywhere. It is a place where children learn that a high standard of living is not so much the number of rooms one has, but the high standards one lives by . . . a place where it is more important to enlarge mind and soul than to enlarge the house.

Some of you are not brilliant scholars but broadening your interests is important. It promotes a general vitality of aliveness, an acute sensitivity to all the finer things in life, an awareness of responsibility and a love of life. A life wherein, merely existing, is a thing into itself—apart from living-to-the-fullest.

Remember it takes the courage of one's own convictions to write as Ellison.

Does it sometimes seem our criticism is the gall of expecting perfection from you? We love you!

Mrs. Loretta Slusarczyk.

Men's Point-Hour Ratio . . .

To the Editor:

In the LANTERN correspondence column of April 8, Dean Sedgwick (spelled "Sedgewick" there) referred with obvious pride to the all-men's point-hour ratio for last quarter (2.370), which he says is "admittedly below the ideal."

AT THE RISK of seeming cantankerous, I must object to his implication that the higher average grades are, the better the students are (or the better they are performing).

This does not follow at all. Grades may indicate—they ought to indicate—the quality of a student's performance, but they say nothing about the challenge to which he had to respond. The best education is not that which permits students to obtain the highest marks, but that which presents them with the most demanding and rewarding tasks.

IT SEEMS to me that one is equally justified in inferring from these statistics that our teachers are getting more lax. Perhaps our grades are suffering from inflation, and we are not giving "B's" for work that once got "C's." I hope that this is not so, but I see nothing in the statistics to prove that it isn't.

Let us admit that statistics on grades cannot be interpreted at all until we can judge the quality of the instruction with a similar mathematical exactness, and let us face the possibility that an improvement in the education offered at Ohio State is an over-all point-hour ratio not higher than the present one, but lower.

Coed Claims Nationalists Need U.S. Help

By Jann Janoviak

"The Chinese Nationalists want to get back to the mainland. They need the United States to help them, both morally and financially."

This was a comment made by Lillian Liu, A-3, on the present Tibetan situation.

"LILI," AS SHE is known to her friends, is the daughter of a Nationalist diplomat. He is at present in New York working as the advisor to the Foreign Ministry of Formosa.

Life in China today would really be a change for Lili.

"I lived in China until 1949. Our family is all split up now—half of them are in Formosa and half in Red China. The cherished 'filial piety' of the Chinese is gone now. Our lives are so changed," said Lili.

WHEN LILI CAME to the States her father was the Ambassador to Canada. She lived in New York with her three sisters and brother until her father became the Ambassador to Mexico.

"We moved to Mexico and I went to Mexico City College. We've traveled through many countries but our home is in Jamaica, N. Y.," said Lili.

As an ambassador's daughter Lili has many social obligations. She meets with other ambassador's families, attends receptions, acts as hostess to receptions and must keep up with the latest world situations.

LILI CAME to Ohio State in the fall of 1958 and continued a major in Spanish. She is now the president of the Chinese Students Association and at present is busy working on the Chinese display for the International Fair on April 19.

"I find that I like Ohio State very much. The Spanish department is 'sympatico' and there are so many opportunities for international students," said Lili.

"The United States is so 'nerve-racking.' Everyone is going—going—going. Where? They probably don't know," added Lili.

EVEN THOUGH Lili finds the United States so confusing, she does not plan on going back to the "radically changed" China.

Lili plans on teaching Spanish or working for the United Nations as an interpreter.

When asked about ROTC in college Lili said that the students here have it easy.

"IN PRESENT-DAY China, military training is required in both high school and college. After college a student is required to go through an extensive training school and then go on to graduate school if he likes," said Lili.

"Perhaps some day, when Nationalist China gets back to the mainland, this rigid military training won't be necessary," added Lili, "so far the outlook is bad."

Knighthood Is Still Around; Honor Bestowed in Europe

Knighthood still exists today, although most people do not realize it. This honor is still bestowed by many of the European countries, including Spain, Italy and England. Of these, the English tradition is the most well known.

Of the nine orders of knighthood in England, the Knight Companion of the Most Noble Order of the Garter is the oldest and most exclusive in the world. Limited to 25 Knight Companions, it was founded by King Edward the Third in 1349.

LEGEND SAYS that the sovereign picked a lady's garter from the floor to spare her embarrassment. Thereafter he gave his favored knights garters to wear on their armor.

In England, the aspirant is received into an order by kneeling before the sovereign. At the present time this is Queen Elizabeth. She then lays the flat of the sword of State upon either of his shoulders. At this point, she says,

"Rise," calling him by his Christian name with the addition of "Sir" before it.

Knighthood is bestowed by the sovereign for distinguished service. It is not a hereditary distinction. Persons have to be knighted by royal warrant from the sovereign.

ONE OF the more recent individuals to be received into an order was Sir Winston Churchill in 1954. He was installed as a Knight of the Garter.

The honor of knighthood is not limited to a British national. Honorary Orders of Knighthood are conferred from time to time on foreigners. In 1947, President Eisenhower received the British Honorary Knight Grand Cross of the Military Division of the Order of the Bath.

General MacArthur, Admiral King, Admiral Nimitz and Douglas Fairbanks are but a few examples of 70 Americans who have been knighted.

Jets Meet Rochester In '59 Season Opener

By Jack Wittenmeier
Sports Editor

The Columbus Jets face the Rochester Red Wings tonight in their International League opener at 8 p.m.

Although the weatherman predicts a "cloudy, chilly" evening, GM Harold Cooper figures a crowd of 12,000 will brave the weather to watch the Jets' fifth home opener.

FANS AND baseball officials both are expecting big things from the local nine this season after they made the playoffs with a weaker club last season.

Only Buffalo, with probably the fastest outfield in any baseball league, and Richmond, the International League outpost for the also-run Yankees, should have more potential ball clubs when the curtain goes up tonight.

The Jets will play outfielders Tom Burgess, a season veteran obtained from Rochester, speedy Joe Christopher and Jim McDaniel, who walloped 37 homers at Salt Lake last season.

THE INFIELDBERS include Ken Hamlin, a top notch glove man at shortstop, veteran Leo Rodriguez at third base, speedster Nino Escalera at first base, and rookies Julian Javier at second base.

Catcher Bill Hall, rated at the top of the list of Pirate receivers in the minors, should provide steadying influence for the young pitching corps.

THE CRAFTY righthander Lynn Lovenguth, will open on the mound for the Jets tonight.

Behind Lovenguth, the Jets have one of the youngest hurling staffs in the minors. Returnees Art Swanson and Joe Gibbon should carry the brunt of the pitching chores along with veterans Lovenguth and George O'Donnell.

However, the other Jet hurlers, though lacking experience in triple-A ball, could make all the difference between a first division club and a possible pennant winner.

LEFTY DICK Lines, and right-handers Don Corella and Jim Hardison, though lacking experience could turn in some important wins for the Jets this season.

Past records and press clippings don't make a pennant winner. Tonight begins the four month "test" period to prove or disapprove the success of the Columbus Jets—1959 edition.

Coach Recalls '25 Penn Meet

The 1924 Penn Relays are still quite vivid in my memory. Never before had my running brought me face-to-face with titled folks other than policemen. In this case it was Lord David Burghley in the 400-meter hurdles. When I drew the outside position (we didn't run in lanes in those days) there were nine or ten of us in the race and if you wanted to be right up there you had to go out fast to get a pole position around the first turn.

When the gun cracked, I was off like a 220 low hurdler and got the pole lane after 80 yards. I steamed along all alone until the tenth hurdle where Dave caught me and sailed on to win. He went on to win the Olympic Championship at Paris later that same year.

I was a tired lad after that race but Seymour Van Blake, then a free lance trainer but now at Princeton, had me ready for the hop, step, and jump 40 minutes later.

The competition in the triple jump was not so keen and I was leading once again—rather sweat-stained and bedraggled—from the black dirt of the jumping pit when Lord Dave, immaculate in his blazer and scarf, came over to watch. His comment was, "I say, deucedly, all around, old fellow." Well, I won that event and then on Saturday in the high hurdles I beat Ivan Riley, AAU champion, and Crip Moore of Penn State. Later, I also gained second place in the broad jump.

It was a wonderful experience for me and had a lasting effect because of my victory in the high hurdles. I had been known as "Lorry" Snyder through high school, but when a newsreel cameraman asked me my name, in all my fatigue I blurted out "Larry"—and I have been Larry Snyder, track coach at Ohio State for the past 34 years.

The Philadelphia Phillies topped both leagues in 1958 with 11 pinch home runs.

Alabama's 1945 eleven scored 396 points in nine games.

Track Outlook 'Bright'

By Bob White

Ohio State's freshman track squad has a lot of talent and should improve the varsity team next year, according to track coaches Larry Snyder and Charlie Beetham.

With graduation claiming the "Barberton Bullet," Glenn Davis, and ineligibility taking Lee Williams, Sam Tidmore and Jim Marshall, there will be quite a few spots to fill on the 1959-60 squad.

LEADING THE freshmen harriers is Walt Toles, a physical education major from Braceville, O. Toles was outstanding in the state high school meet last year, collecting 20 points.

The frosh runner copped the century in 10 seconds, the furlong in 21.8 seconds, the quarter in 50.5 seconds and placed fourth in the broad jump.

Lavelle Rogers is the top middle distance prospect. Running for the Air Force, he was credited with a 48.5 second quarter and a 1:54 half mile. During the past indoor season, Rogers ran the 4:31 mile.

ROGERS IS backed up in the middle distances by Wendell Kessler, Ted Ebersold and Bill Fry.

Running for Mansfield High last year, Fry placed second in the state 440, with a time of 49.6 seconds.

Kessler, a Bexley graduate, placed fourth in the state 880 with a 1:59 effort and has also ran a 51 second 400. Ebersold ran 51 seconds in the 400 to place fifth in the state meet.

CAGE STAR Jerry Lucas and gridder Ron Weldy are tops with the weights. Lucas threw the discus over 156 feet, good enough for fifth in the state meet.

Weldy placed second in the shot with a toss of over 57 feet. Paul Bunnell from Bedford is also a weight prospect.

Don Lawyer, Bob Riley and Dick McDaniels will add power in the high jump. All three have cleared six feet, one inch this year. McDaniels and Riley could also develop into good hurdlers according to Coach Beetham.

AL STEVENS heads the distance runners followed by Jim Frear, Keyes Townshend and Dale McCormick.

Stevens won the state 880 and pole vault in 1957 and this year has rounded the track four times in 4:28.

Gordon, Campbell and Walt Williams will provide power in the field events. Campbell, a graduate of Toledo Scott, is state champ in the pole vault event. His best vault effort is 12 feet, 8 inches.

Williams copped a blue ribbon in the state broad jump. His best distance is 22 feet, 6 inches. He is also a sprinter.

U.S. Science Advisor Speaks to Students; Talks on National and International Theme

By Eunice Wood

The Science Advisor to the U. S. Secretary of State visited campus Friday to speak at the National Security Policy Seminar held weekly in the Main Library. His topic was, "Science, National and International."

He did not speak as a State Department representative but as Dr. Wallace Brode, former Ohio State chemistry professor, discussing problems with students working toward degrees under the Merzhon Program for National Security Studies.

THE "SCIENTIST statesman" works now under the State Department's program on the re-establishment of science offices. The job requires him to serve as science advisor to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles; advisory for the State Department in the meetings of President Eisenhower's Science Advisory Committee; part of the newly formed U. S. Science Council and to concern himself with the establishment of this country's science attache program in foreign countries.

"The cooperative support which universities of this country have given to the program by permitting distinguished scientists to serve for a more extended period of time than normally allowed for leaves of absence has been most welcome and they are certainly strengthening the program," Brode commented.

"Science attaches are in many of our major countries," he continued. "I leave soon for Japan, India, and Moscow to discuss arrangements in those areas."

PROF. H. F. HARDING is chairman of the seminar which meets weekly. He is also executive secretary of the Faculty Committee which supervises this part of the Merzhon program.

Other duties of this committee are to plan all activities financed from the military portion of the Merzhon bequest.

The Merzhon Program for National Security studies at Ohio State was announced last year. It consists of a plan for complying with the terms of the bequest of the late Col. Ralph D. Merzhon, class of 1890.

HIS WILL stipulates that the income from half his estate be used to promote and improve civilian-military training and education in the United States and its territories.

National Security Policy Seminar was the first phase of NSS. The program has no formal connection with other University studies. Its participants cross section departments of the University. Student advisors must approve it as an elective course of study. NSS carries three to five hours credit and is catalogued as National Security Studies 701, 702, 703.

Students Get YM Awards

Two graduating seniors and one freshman received awards for their outstanding contribution to the service of the campus YMCA at the annual recognition banquet and installation service of the YMCA-YWCA.

William Hartman, A-4, and Robert Schmidt, A-4, were honored with the Frank C. Caldwell award presented by Mrs. Caldwell.

This trophy is in recognition of the many years Professor Caldwell had served as chairman of the YM Advisory Board. The award has been given for 10 years and this is the second year in a row that two men have received it.

Philip Krill, Engr-1, was awarded the freshman award for service and support to the Freshman Cabinet.

Also at the banquet, five past YWCA officers were honored for outstanding contribution. They are: Jane Barbee, Ed-3; Miriam Bensen, A-3; Carole Karshner, Ed-3; June Joachim, Ed-3, and Vondale Willis, Ed-3. Mrs. Harold Chamberlain, chairman of the YWCA Advisory Board, was also recognized for her services to the Y's. National Security Studies 701, 702, 703.

Shirt Satellite Launched!

The first Shirt Satellite is finally a reality! Just yesterday, during their lunch hour, Van Heusen scientists launched a Van Heusen Century Shirt into the stratosphere. It's now circling the earth 180,000 miles up, in an orbit so large that a grown man couldn't walk it, even in a whole day! Traveling at the legal 35 miles per hour, it is expected that the Van Heusen Century Shirt Satellite will remain up there in the blue beyond for at least 1200 years. And, with luck, maybe 1201.

"But," you will ask, "what value will the Shirt Satellite have for science?" Just this, friend! It will further prove the immutable law that the soft collar on Van Heusen Century Shirts won't wrinkle . . . ever! You see, the slick Van Heusen physicists have attached an electronic Wrinkle-rieter to the collar of the Van Heusen Century

Shirt. This clever device will constantly send back electronic reports on the condition of the collar, so, for 1200 years, we earthlings will have absolute proof that the soft collar on Van Heusen Shirts won't wrinkle . . . ever. Should you ever have any doubts, just drop in to the Van Heusen office, and listen to the reports coming back from the Shirt Satellite.

One more thing—the Van Heusen Century Shirt Satellite will drop back to the earth in the spring of 3157 (possibly 3158) and you're all invited to the return party! If, in the meantime, you want to see the Van Heusen Century Shirt, you can at your campus haberdashery. He has them in 5 collar styles, in white, stripes and colors. $4 & $5. Ohio State Professor Co-Authors New Book

"The problem today is not to preserve civilian control but to make it intelligent and effective," said Prof. Harvey C. Mansfield.

Professor Mansfield, chairman of the political science department, is co-author of a new book, "Arms and the State," which deals with civil-military relations.

PROFESSOR MANSFIELD along with Walter Millis and Harold Stein collaborated on the book. Professor Mansfield's part in the book deals with the pre-war and war periods of World War II.

He said that his objective in looking at both periods was to see what share military and civilian officials had and how far military and civilian considerations were effective.

"I looked at the period in the early 1930's when the United States was dominated by the idea that if we stayed at home and minded our own business, we would be safe," he said.

"A GOOD PART of the book goes to show the realization after the war of the need for changes in our government institutions and the way they operate," he said.

Professor Mansfield said that this study makes it fairly plain that the old 18th and 19th century fears that the military powers would get out of civilian control were unrealistic.

He said that their purpose in writing the book was to synthesize more detailed research studies of particular episodes of the last 25 years in order to contribute to the public a better understanding of the subject.

THE BOOK WAS published by the Twentieth Century Fund in

New York last fall after three years of work.

Walter Millis is a consultant to the Fund For the Republic, and Harold Stein is in the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs at Princeton University.

Clevelanders Please Crowd

By Jann Janoviak

If the audience could have had its way, the Cleveland Symphony would have played until way past midnight in Mershon Auditorium last night.

Under the direction of George Szell, the orchestra presented to to Columbus, a new composition, "Partita" for orchestra by William Walton.

The audience was more than appreciative — they were greatly moved. "Partita" is a fine poetic contemporary composition full of color and sharp contrasts in instruments.

Each member of the orchestra is a soloist — par excellence. In the presentation of Debussy's "La Mer" ("The Sea"), the wind and waves became almost audible.

With the full house response last night, the Cleveland Symphony would be whole-heartedly welcomed again — anytime.

CORRECTION

The buffet dinner at the Fiesta Internacional, April 18, will be held in the Ohio Union ballrooms and not in the cafeteria as previously announced.

Watch What You Eat! May Not Be Real

John Flippins

Those mushrooms you ate for dinner last night might not have been real mushrooms, but a synthetic food developed to taste like the edible fungus.

Dr. Radcliffe Robinson, supervisor of biological research at Battelle Memorial Institute, said during a lecture that many "mushrooms that are being sold today are really synthetic mushrooms."

He addressed the University's Interdepartmental Seminar in Nutrition and Food Technology held in the Agricultural Administration Building.

"When the consumer believes he is tasting mushrooms, he is really tasting a caramel flavoring which has been added," Dr. Robinson said.

Researchers at Battelle Institute have developed a process called "deep vat fermentation" which cultivates pure mushrooms called "morels." Now food manufacturers no longer need to add artificial flavoring.

Dr. Robinson said that because the morel mushrooms, a favorite of the spring mushroom hunter, can be easily produced the market price of mushrooms would be greatly reduced. "In two weeks," he said, "we can produce as much as would normally take two years."

Many of the leading food companies are interested in the morel mushroom. Dr. Robinson said that The Kraft and The Heinz companies would like to put them on the market today.

"However," he said, "the morel probably won't be on the market for another year."
