Group To Study Bias

By James Katz

There has been a lot of talk about discrimination on the Ohio State campus lately, but now someone is doing something about it.

THE NEWLY formed Human Relations Sub-commission of Student Senate recently announced the selection of five students to represent Ohio State at the first national inter-collegiate Human Relations Workshop at the University of Illinois, Aug. 8-18.

Selected were Harlan Randolph, Grad.; Norman Clary, Grad.; Sally Harmon, Ed-2; Kent Bennington, A-1; and Niki Schwartz, A-3, chairman of the subcommission.

Frank Watanabe, executive secretary of the YM-YWCA here, is director of the national workshop.

THE GROUP attending the National Student Association sponsored workshop will constitute the core of the Human Relations sub-commission next year. Through discussion and study at the workshop, the group hopes to learn positive actions which they can recommend to campus organizations.

"We hope to implement principles set forth at the workshop when we get back to Ohio State next year," Schwartz said.

The workshop hopes to provide the nation-wide group of college students with a thorough exploration of human relations principles and barriers to their fulfillment on college campuses.

THIS IS not the first attempt by the Student Senate's Human Relations Sub-commission to combat discrimination at Ohio State.

The first subcommission was formed in 1954. In 1957, Student Senate made an attempt to combat campus discrimination through the publication of "A Study of Race, Creed, Color, Religion, National Origin in the area of Human Relations at Ohio State."

The present commission is seeking a way to produce good human relations as a standard of conformity by reaching as many people as possible and showing them how the discrimination problem has been solved on other campuses.

"We plan to start in the areas of least resistance," Schwartz said. "Then after we make gains we can move to more important things."

"An exhaustive study that will insure quality education is essential before any decision can be made about future Ohio State branch colleges," the president's assistant in charge of off-campus colleges said yesterday.

Referring specifically to a request by Lima City's Board of Education that Ohio State open a branch college in that city, Kenneth J. Arisman said, "There are many factors to consider before any final action can be taken."

"POPULATION, Concentration of near-by public and private colleges and the number of students from that area who participate in higher education all must be considered," he explained.

Last CSA Meeting Has Busy Agenda

By Don Bandy

A six-member work group to prepare a draft of rule changes being sought by the Council of Graduate Students was formed last night at the final meeting of the Council on Student Affairs.

Also, in other campus-wide interest matters, CSA ap*proved recognition of the Committee of Fifty for Better Student Government and denied to Panhellenic, a request to change sorority initiation dates for spring of 1960.

In securing CSA recognition, the Committee of Fifty now has the green light in which it hopes to form a third political party at Ohio State. The group was just formed this quarter.

Panhellenic sent a request asking that the 1960 sorority spring initiation dates be changed to May 18 through 22, from April 19 through 24.

ON THE WORK group concerning rule changes will be representatives from the Graduate Council, a professional college, a CSA student member, a CSA faculty member, the dean or associate dean of the Graduate School, and William S. Guthrie, executive dean, student relations, and chairman of CSA.

Seven members, along with Graduate School Dean Everett Walters, were presented at last night's meeting to present views from the Graduate Council.

The grads are asking for administrative rule changes different from those which govern undergraduates at Ohio State.

"WE FEEL WE should be differentiated from the undergraduate as far as rules are concerned," Richard Naskali, Grad Council president, said. He pointed out that nearly all the grad students are over 21, have more experience and that most of them are working for the University as assistants, instructors or in some other capacity.

Also, the grads desire to secure a Graduate Student Court to handle

Loyalty Oath Issue Comes Up in Senate

By Bud Dawson

Student Senate will take action on the controversial "Loyalty Oath" issue, a section of the National Defense Education Act, at its weekly session tonight.

SECTION 1001(f) of the act states that "No part of any funds appropriated or otherwise made available for expenditure under the authority of this act shall be used to make payment or loans to any individual unless such individual:

1. Makes or has executed and files with the Commission an affidavit that he does not believe in, and is not a member of and does not support any organization that believes in or teaches the overthrow of the United States Government by force or violence or by any illegal or unconstitutional methods, and;

2. Has taken and subscribed to an oath or affirmation in the following form: "I do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will bear true faith and allegiance to the United States against all its enemies, foreign and domestic."

OU Has Glum Finals Week

ATHENS, OHIO — (AP) — Ohio University students were concluding final examinations — in many instances considerably altered from the professors' original versions — today in an atmosphere even more uncomfortable than is usual for "finals."

In view of reports that advance copies of exams were stolen in recent days, some instructors made last-minute changes in content.

The situation was accompanied by an investigation by university deans. President John C. Baker ordered the probe yesterday rather than "overlook rumors" prevalent on the campus about the thefts. Substance was lent to the rumors by an unsuccessful attempt Sunday, evidently by a student seeking test papers, to break into a professor's office.

OSU Growth To Be Studied

By Myron Belkind

The branch director pointed out that Bowling Green and Ohio Northern Universities and Findlay and Bluffton Colleges are all near Lima.

Ohio Northern University is presently offering evening classes in Lima. However, it notified the City Board of Education earlier this month that it would discontinue its branch program at the end of this quarter.

ARISMAN EXPLAINED that his office has not yet received the Lima invitation but understands that one has been sent to President Fawcett.

He said that the request by the Lima Board was not university-initiated and is "but one of 50 to 60 that Ohio State has received."

Arisman estimated that a complete study of the Lima situation would take about a year. Should the decision then be in the affirmative, he added, another year would be needed to set up the program before classes could begin.

OHIO STATE presently operates branches in Newark, Marion and Mansfield. The first two opened in 1957 and Mansfield's started last September.

The basic university requirements, except ROTC and physical education, and some electives, are offered at the three colleges.

The branch program is designed so that the students enrolled in it can transfer to the Columbus campus after two years without any academic difficulties," Arisman said.

West Article Continues to Draw Comment

No Clear Sailing for Negroes . . .

To the Editor:

I am of the opinion that the author of the letter "Clear Sailing for Negroes" not only missed the boat in his analysis of the "West article" and the "segregation issue," but also that his efforts to reduce such a complex issue to simplicity, by labeling undefined and subjective "loneliness" as the cause, and motivating factor behind the Negro's struggle for racial equality betrays either a superficial analysis, or epicureanistic indifference to the whole problem.

In any event his wishing you and yours "smooth sailing" epitomizes the essential complaint of the aforementioned article. Smooth voyages are the product of able and willing crews.

To stand on the shores, off of the sea of racial conflict, and say, "if you satisfactorily answer the questions that I put to you then, Bon Voyage," is tantamount to saying after you pass the test, then go on and pull yourself up by your own bootstraps. It is this kind of "do it yourself approach" that leaves the Negro, student and non-student, in status quo.

To say that stripping the "West tale of its racial connotations reduces it to loneliness" is absurd, for I submit that to strip any tale of its facts, and derivative connotations means that you have not "loneliness," but rather nothingness.

To argue that the Negro's perennial struggle for political assertion, economic independence, legal and social justice, and a sense of racial well being is analogous to the frustrated efforts of a young social-status seeking matron, who subsequently complains of maltreatment fails as an argumentative example in that the situations simply are not analogous.

One has no legal right to social status, but the Declaration of Independence, Constitution, laws, ordinances, OSU, and the courts have been for years telling the Negro that he has those rights, which he is still fighting for, and must continue to fight for.

To say that "the racial problem will remain much the same" flies into the teeth of the historically demonstrable fact that the racial problem is not a stagnant issue; nor is it a God-given curse that man must passively accept, but rather it is man-made, and it can be remedied by men, i.e., those who are willing to climb aboard the vessel and sail towards workable solutions.

Perhaps the general nature or tone of the West article lends itself to the improper (I think) inference that the Negro student comes to this University with the expectation of being greeted, by the white inhabitants, overseers, administration and faculty, with that same zeal, and exuberance associated with the return of the prodigal son.

I submit that this is not only untrue, but that it is impossible to conceive of any Negro student as being so naive, despite the fact that he is the product of a life-time of systematic indoctrination in the precepts and principles of equal rights, brotherly love, justice and a host of other undefined generalities associated with this land of the free, and home of the brave.

He is not an impractical idealist, but rather a confused member of a struggling, restless minority that is genuinely concerned with means and ends in this vital to him, but less vital to others, in direct proportion to their self-maintained distance from the area of the racial segregation problem.

To place the burden of answering questions on West, or any other Negro student, before wishing them "smooth sailing" is to leave concealed and unanswered certain questions that the University, faculty, administration, and student groups should first answer for the Negro student, and the taxpayers who support the University.

I say that the burden of disproving the West allegations, and other Negro student complaints and charges of "quota systems" in the Dental and Medical school, and Graduate Schools, and explaining the conspicuous absence of Negro faculty members in a University boasting of some 20,000 students annually, along with demonstrable proof, that if the University is ever granted the privilege, of "screening" and accepting its freshman undergraduate classes, that the Negro will not have to "over-qualify" to gain entry as, he is often forced to do as a matter of routine. They should bear the burden, because of the fact that they alone have the records of the applicants, and they alone know the real reason for these glaring unjustifiabilities.

This is not an attempt to evade the questions posed by the writer of "smooth sailing," but rather an effort to clear the air, and lay the proper ground work for a real analysis, and pragmatic approach to a complex problem.

Moreover to answer the questions posed in a manner that is satisfactory to one student, does not insure the bon voyage, for others may desire more specific answers, and I submit that this potential plethora of questions and answers can only be reduced if we hear from the powers in being, i.e., the people who run the school, make the policy, abide by or acquiesce in its unequal administration, and cause students like West, and others to play Diogenes with lantern in hand looking for an honest man.

Only after this takes place can we discuss means, but the simple answer to the query of

Fee Cards for Senior Gift . . .

To the Editor:

Around graduation time the seniors who are about to depart receive in their mail a letter from the University signed by the class president which contains information about and tickets to the graduation ceremony. This, of course, is to be expected. However, in the envelope there are also three cards which resemble the older type fee cards and at the top of these cards is written—Bursar's Memorandum, Student's Receipt, and on the third card Development Fund Record.

In the letter with information it states, "Enclosed is a bursar's memorandum to facilitate your returning the contribution you want to make to our memorial."

On the top of one of the cards is written, "Please print your name and address on this card, make checks payable to The Ohio State University and return the three cards to the Bursar."

After receiving all of this information I was a little irritated and when talking with some of the other people, who had received the same letter, I found that they were, too.

I, for one, need no receipt when I give someone a gift and feel somewhat insulted by being submitted to such a procedure whether it facilitates record keeping or not. Fee cards yet.

Petition . . .

To the Editor:

One voice, like a single tone in a piece of music, is insignificant. But several sounds find their counterpart in the echo of the multitude.

In this particular case, the "echoes" are 302 red-blooded undergraduate students in the College of Education who believe in the values of education.

The following petition has been drawn up by the students and for the students. It has been circulating in the College of Education classes for two weeks meriting the signatures of individuals who would like a more challenging education which sets knowledge and understanding in diversified disciplines are the keynote.

We wish to thank all those students and faculty members who gave the petition reflection and consideration in their classes. Discussion with the administration of the College of Education will follow some time this week.

In the interim we believe the petition tells its own story.

Phyllis Asnien,
Lisa von Haam,
302 student "reverberations" in the College of Education.

PETITION

The College of Education faculty and student body are as one in their deep concern in the values of education. We see the education of men as a positive direction toward World Peace.

If you believe, as we do, that one of the functions of education is the fostering of serious and constructive criticism, we feel certain that you will take the following suggestion for its intrinsic worth. If our society has values, we will be able to say it is "smart to be smart." We see teachers with fertile minds as the key to amelioration of education and, in turn, education as an avenue to World Peace.

Therefore we would offer as a possible approach to the dilemma a more challenging curriculum rooted in the basic disciplines:

Philosophy (plus a course in Religion), History, Anthropology;

Sociology, Psychology (plus a course in Exceptional Children).

Biological sciences; Political Science; English Literature; Fine Arts, and Music.

These are subject areas which are of fundamental importance in the education of every teacher.

The student body of the College of Education offer this suggestion in the hope that through a basic curriculum which sets knowledge at its heart, we may be awakened more vitally to an understanding of the needs for

Columbus' Blue Laws . . .

To the Editor:

The height of provincialism has been reached by Mayor Sensenbrenner in his fight to enforce the "blue laws." These ancient rules which are a violation of the theory of separation of church and state as set forth in our constitution are outmoded and should be nullified.

Mayor Sensenbrenner is being dictatorial in insisting that Sun-

"What are your long range goals" admits of only word one answer—eradication.

This is not an attempt to (proselytize) white students into do-gooders, or exponents of brotherly love, nor is it an attempt to pave the way for mass interracial social climbing, but rather, it is a request from the little nobody people that obvious barriers be struck down, that the Northern Campus quit aluding to the "cotton-curtain" for its examples of prejudicial policy and discrimination; that Ohio State University, as well as the United States as a nation clean up its own house before it points an accusatory finger.

day is the sabbath. For people of some religions Sunday is not the sabbath. But perhaps Mayor Sensenbrenner is unaware of the existence in Columbus of people who do not believe in the Christian religion or any other religion for that matter. If he is aware of this fact his actions do not betray his knowledge.

Mayor Sensenbrenner owes the people of this city some explanation as to why he is suddenly making a lot of fuss over the "blue laws." Did he just wake up to the fact that they exist or has he been high-pressured by religious groups?

Did it ever occur to our Mayor that Sunday may be the only day people have free to transact certain types of business which may not be essential to him but which may be of the utmost importance to the people transacting the business?

It is certainly too bad for the City of Columbus that we have a mayor who does not realize that enforcing the "blue laws" will not force people to sit and commune with the Almighty or go to church on Sunday!

Russia Finds New Drilling Saves Time

NEW YORK — (AP)—Russia has developed new oil drilling equipment designed to save time and cut costs.

Oilmen of the world received first details of the new electro-drill (CQ) methods.

RUSSIAN PAPERS read at the fifth world petroleum congress also outlined other time-savers for drilling operations. Emphasis also was placed on a boom in Soviet oil explorations and a search for more efficient exploration equipment.

Two electrodrills were detailed. Both are powered by electricity. One makes use of conventional drill pipe. The other is pipeless and the drilling bit is controlled by a wire cable.

Most modern drilling rigs are powered by gasoline or diesel engines.

RUSSIA IS NOT participating in the six-day International Oil Forum. The Soviets submitted 21 technical papers for presentation but withdrew after charging restrictions had been placed on the United States travels planned by the authors of the papers.

The papers were not withdrawn, however, and congress officials are having them read as scheduled.

The electrodrill papers attracted considerable interest from the 5,000 oilmen from 48 countries. The equipment was exhibited at the Brussels World's Fair but the Russians refused to release details.

THE DRILLING bit of the electrodrill is attached to the shaft of a spindle. Power is supplied to the spindle through electric wiring mounted inside each piece of drill pipe.

"The process of electrodrilling is automatic and accurately controlled," the Russians said.

"The main advantages of drilling with a pipeless electrodrill are light weight, portability, and a sharp decrease in the time spent on operations."

The Russians said several wells have been drilled with the pipeless equipment. They reported a drilling rate of about 2,000 feet a month.

Alaska May Fear Large Tourist Season

ANCHORAGE — (UPI) — Anchorage, Alaska's largest city, is looking forward to the biggest tourist season in its history this summer. The only trouble is it might be too big.

Merchants are happily anticipating the sound of jingling cash registers but those directly involved in the tourist industry are fast developing ulcers over the very real prospect of not being able to meet the demand for accommodations.

TRAVEL AGENTS and progressive hotel owners realize that their future business depends largely on the impression Alaska makes this summer on the flood of visitors expected to arrive for a glimpse of the 49th state.

To avoid requiring tourists to sleep in their cars because they cannot find rooms, the Chamber of Commerce opened its tourist information center a month early on May 1. Since June 1, two girls have been on duty seven days a week to help steer visitors and to act as a clearing house for information on sleeping accommodations.

The chamber has also issued a call to local residents to open their homes to outsiders when hotels and motels are full. These private rooms will be inspected before they are placed on the office's accommodations list. Until this year, Alaska's tourist business was strictly a summertime deal. Hotels and motels were practically empty half the year and only partly full during spring and fall.

UP TO ALASKA'S entry into the union, people knew little about the former territory and thought everyone lived in igloos. But the millions of dollars of free publicity which followed statehood has loosened pocketbooks all over the country and created a lively curiosity among residents of the "South 48" to find out more about their neighbors to the north.

For the first time since the war and then the big construction boom of 1952 and 1953, Anchorage hotels were filled to capacity all this past winter. Financiers, especially those from the east coast and Texas, have been sliding in and out of town in droves looking for places to spend their money and some have found them.

Michael Halbouty, independent Texas wildcatter, joined forces with Walter J. Hickel, Anchorage millionaire contractor, to build a $10,000,000 hotel and office building development in downtown Anchorage. The two structures are scheduled for completion in 1961.

The Captain Cook Hotel will have 11 stories and the office building 10.

WESTERN HOTELS, owners of the Westward Hotel and Westward Inn, bought out the former owners of the Anchorage Hotel this spring. The company has already started work on building what will eventually be a 16-story hotel.

But Alaskans are still faced with the problem of handling more tourists than they have room for during the next two years.

HOW THAT RING GETS AROUND!

Group Sponsors Free Babysitting

Free babysitting during commencement will again be sponsored by Scarlet 'n Gray, a women's semi-honorary group. This year the babysitters will be available in the North Recreation Room of the Stadium if the weather is good. However, if graduation is held in St. John's Arena, the children should be brought to the Varsity "O" Room of the Arena.

Sue Erlenbusch, Scarlet 'n Gray's babysitting chairman, would like to encourage the parents to bring some of the child's toys with him since the number of available toys is limited. However, the child's toys should be carefully labeled with his name.

Milk and cookies will be furnished by Scarlet 'n Gray.

Slumping Tribe Must Win or...?

By John Purser

"That bird," is resting right on top of the Indians' teepee but it is getting restless and may soon fly away.

After Detroit beat the Tribe 3-1 Monday it knocked the Indians down to .500 ball for their last 20 games. Yet because the White Sox and Orioles have a habit of winning and losing with Cleveland, the Tribe has hung on to the top rung.

THIS SUDDEN downfall of the Cinderella team of the AL has brought out the usual crape-hangers among loyal Indian fans, and if things don't improve soon Manager Joe Gordon may go the way of Bobby Bragan and Kerby Farrell.

To play .500 ball this early in the season and still be in first is a feat generally reserved for the sandlotters which the Indians are beginning to resemble.

So far this season the Tribe has dropped four games on errors, three of which shortstop George Strickland booted away in the ninth. After the last Trader Lane got Granney Hamner from the Phils and this hole was plugged for the present.

UP UNTIL 14 games ago the hitting and pitching was enough to overcome most of the boots by Strickland & Co.

Right now the Tribe finds itself with a pretty sound defense but not enough hitting to keep an old outfielder busy. But one thing is certain, if the Indians don't snap out of it in a hurry, they will hit . . . bottom.

After the first few games Gordon was worried about his bull pen crew not getting enough work and was glad when they had a chance to hurl. Nowadays it looks like Grand Central Station between the bull pen and the pitcher's mound.

THE LOYAL fans are also discontent with the way Gordon is running or not running the team. They cite some cases that seem to back up sayings that Joe is asleep at the switch.

1. In a game with Detroit two weeks ago, Herb Score was shakily protecting a 2-1 lead and Gordon had no one ready in relief. The Tigers tied it up in the ninth and barely missed winning.

2. The same series produced a bases-loaded situation in the ninth with no one out and the Tribe trailing, 6-2. Joe let Russ Nixon bat for himself. His average then was a lousy .176. Russ popped out.

3. GORDON ALSO pitched Cal McLish with a sore finger—net result—four homers in two innings.

The Indians were trailing 3-0 in the fourth with a man on second and Joe let Garcia bat for him.

Columbus Jets Finally Gain First Place in IL

By Phil Rohr

It has happened at last. After four years of struggling to get out of the second division of the International League and into first place, the Columbus Jets have succeeded.

To the happy baseball fans of Columbus, this is a momentous achievement. How long it will last, however, is quite another matter.

Ever since Columbus moved out of the American Association and into the tough International League, Columbus baseball writers and Jet officials have promised that the Jets would wind up the season in at least the first division.

DURING SPRING training, this promise is usually made in all its glory. The officials say that with a little pitching here, a little power there, etc., the Jets could go all the way.

Last year, the Jets came as close to fulfilling these spring promises as they ever have, finishing in fourth place.

On occasions the Jets have been as high as third during the regular season but they have never been in first at this stage of the campaign.

EVEN THOUGH the Jets have attained this lofty position, the loyal fans of the Jets should not become too optimistic because of the balance in this Triple A league this season. At this stage, almost any team is capable of climbing into first since only seven games separate the Jets from the last-place team.

The Jets achieved their feat of gaining first place Tuesday night at the expense of the Montreal Royals by sweeping a doubleheader from them. Tomorrow the Jets will try to increase their hold as they tangle with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Manager Cal Ermer deserves a great deal of credit for the Jets' great showing recently. Ermer has very effectively shuffled his lineup trying to get the most from his players and he has been successful so far.

AFTER AN early season slump in which the Jets could do nothing right, they now seem to be doing nothing wrong. The hitters are hitting and the pitchers are coming through in grand style, and this kind of baseball is hard to beat.

If Ermer can keep his charges doing this the rest of the season, then maybe Columbus will be rewarded with a first place team come September 7 when they wind up the season.

One reason for the Jets' mild their first division showing. Lynn Lovenguth has been the big gun, winning seven of his 10 outings.

AL JACKSON, who won five of six starts before being called up by the parent Pittsburgh Pirate, was one of Ermer's most dependable pitchers, but his loss has not been felt too deeply yet. He was replaced by Paul Giel, the former Minnesota football All-American. Giel was not too impressive in his first outing for Columbus, but looked very effective in his next start before being lifted for a pinch hitter.

Other pitchers who have given a good showing for themselves so far this season have been Dick Lines, a southpaw, who seems to have relatives in every International League city; George O'Donnell, a two year relief ace for the Jets; and Joe Gibbon, who has looked very impressive in a couple of starts, including his last one against Montreal in the second game of the doubleheader Tuesday night.

IF THE PITCHING holds up and the hitters show a little more power than they have so far, the Jets will continue to display their hold on first place.

Who knows, maybe the wishes of long time Columbus baseball fans will come true next September. It's about time.

self. Just another out and no score.

There are other times when it seemed that Gordon was out to lunch but four examples are enough to prove the point.

TO SHOW just how many runs have been produced by the Tribe in the last 14 games I did a little research. They have scored 36 runs in 14 games or about five runs per two games.

In official batting averages released Tuesday the Indians do not have a regular batting over .300. This is a drop of some 30 points for both Power and Colavito in the last few weeks.

Aaron, Haddix Are Winners Of NL Award

CINCINNATI—(P)—The hitting of Hank Aaron of the Milwaukee Braves and the pitching of Harvey Haddix of the Pittsburgh Pirates gave them a tie today for the National League's First Player of the Month Award for 1959. The award covers play during the month of May.

Only two other players figured in the voting. Elroy Face, the Pirates' relief pitching star, received four votes and two went to Johnny Logan, shortstop for the Braves.

It was a cinch that much of the support given Haddix came as the result of one game—the tilt with Milwaukee on May 26 when he pitched 12 consecutive perfect innings before losing in the 13th.

But the little 33-year-old southpaw did some other good pitching during the month. Although he had only a 2-3 record for May, he completed four of the six games he started, allowed only 34 hits in 52, walked only 7 and struck out 39. His earned run average was 2.08.

Aaron, the league's leading batter, compiled a .376 average during May. He hit 8 home runs and drove in 31.

Face appeared in 11 games for the Pirates and had a 5-0 record for the month plus several "saves."

Communists Put Chinese Fishermen Back on Land

HONG KONG — (UPI) — The Communists are putting China's floating population into a social drydock.

By the end of this year, all fishermen operating along the Pearl River in South China will have been moved ashore into housing settlements.

FOR THESE fishermen, who number in the thousands, it will be a shocking break with tradition. For centuries, they and their ancestors have lived, loved, eaten and slept on board their junks and sampans.

Their rare excursions ashore were to sell their catches and occasionally purchase the necessities of life. But for all intents and purposes, they lived on water from birth 'til death.

Now the Communists are changing all that. Already the majority have been re-settled ashore, and the remaining 5,000 will be transplanted by the end of 1959.

THE MAGAZINE Peking Review said of the program that the Communists by no means intend to put the fishermen to work at other jobs. They will still go to sea to catch fish — but their families will stay ashore.

The Reds give sociological reasons for the program, but it is apparent that what they really want to do is hold the families as virtual hostages to make sure the fishermen return to China after their expeditions and sell their catches to the state.

What has troubled the Communists, especially in recent months, is the increasing number of fishermen who have fled to Hong Kong and Portuguese Macao. The Portuguese enclave alone has embraced an estimated 800 junks carrying as many as 6,000 persons all told.

THE EXODUS from Red Chinese waters wasn't apparent at first, because it has been normal for junks to tie up any place they choose, even inside Macao harbor, for hours or days, while awaiting good fishing weather.

One morning, however, both the Communist Chinese and the Portuguese government of Macao awoke to the fact that many of the junks were determined to stay.

Recently, a Macao government official admitted that the Reds had planted agents among the floating population in an attempt to lure the fishermen back to China. Some fishermen even have been kidnaped at gunpoint.

BEHIND THIS migration is the Communist regulation which forced fishermen to turn over their entire catch to the government, in return for credit coupons exchangeable at state-run stores for food and household necessities.

This system ran against the fishermen's traditionally independent grain. They didn't mind selling their catches to the Reds, but they wanted, as they had done for centuries, to sell to the highest bidder. And they wanted to keep a sufficient quantity of their catch to feed their junk-borne families.

The Communists capitulated slightly this year and reduced the percentage of the catches which had to be turned over to the government. But that didn't eliminate all the unrest.

THE "RESETTLEMENT" program actually was started in 1956, but it has been only in recent months that sufficient housing has been made available for the fishing families.

The Peiking Review referred to the floating population as having been "ostracized, exploited and despised" by their fellow Chinese. Their status, however, has changed since the Communist regime came into power, the magazine said.

"When the last of these river-bound people come ashore, with a roof over their heads and solid ground under their feet, Canton (capitol of Kwangtung Province) will say goodbye forever to what was one known in Kwangtung as the "floating population."

It will be interesting to watch as these fishermen try out their newly-imposed "land-legs," as yet another phase of Chinese tradition crumbles under the Communist boot.

Fendt Chosen As New Dean

COLUMBUS — (P) — Dr. E. C. Fendt, dean of the Theological Seminary at Capital University, was elected president of the seminary by the University's Board of Regents.

The appointment is in line with theological education policies jointly agreed upon for the American Lutheran Church, a new body which will come into being in April 1960 through the merger of three Lutheran groups. The theological seminary now will be operated by its own administrative setup.

When the University was Chartered in 1850, the theological seminary was one of four divisions of Capital University and has functioned in that way most of the time until the present.

Officially, the name has been and will continue to be the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Seminary at Columbus, Ohio.

The American Lutheran Church, which owns and operates both the university and the seminary, will merge with the Evangelical Lutheran Church and the United Evangelical Lutheran Church. It will be known as the American Lutheran Church.

Dayton Mayor Is 'Up In Air' Over Pet's Monkey Business

DAYTON — (P) — Dayton's Mayor R. William Patterson was literally up in the air over monkey business last week end right in his own home.

Saturday was Mrs. Patterson's birthday. Remembering her stories about a Marmoset Monkey she had owned in the past, the Patterson sons and daughter decided to surprise their mother. They did — with a Marmoset.

Sunday afternoon, while the family's twin sons were preparing for their Chaminade High School graduation, the door on "Impy's" cage came open and he promptly departed.

Neighbors, friends and relatives, and the mayor himself, scrambled vainly after him as he swung nimbly from tree to tree.

Later, "Impy," who reportedly resembles a small squirrel and blends perfectly with the tree trunks, still was free.

The Mayor, who shinnied up a couple of trees during the chase, would just as soon not be asked for comment.

any disciplinary matters involving graduate students.

The Graduate Council, among other things, is seeking permission to allow possession of alcoholic beverages and firearms, in their living units and also to have women guests without chaperones.

As far as allowing possession of firearms, approval would have to come from the Board of Trustees, which passed a rule several years ago prohibiting students to possess firearms.

Faculty rule changes approved last night include that staff members who are not in teaching positions at the University, are eligible to become advisers of campus groups and organizations.

IN OTHER rule changes, CSA approved making separate classes of identification for faculty-student organizations and for wives' clubs.

This change will permit the above groups to use University facilities but will release them from regular reporting and University auditing requirements.

BOB YOUNG was appointed as CSA representative to attend the Student Life Conference to be held next October.

In other action, recognition was given to the Rural Sociology Club and permission granted to the Inter-Club Council of Stadium Dormitories to change its name to Park Hall Council.

Attending his last meeting as a CSA member was D. Alexander Severino, associate dean, College of Education.

last year urged the repeal of Section 1001(f).

Bob Young, a Senate sub-commission chairman, introduced a recommendation to oppose NSA's decision at the last Senate session. He initiated the proposal because he felt that "the oath is of a different nature because it does not prevent anyone believing as he pleases. It only states, in essence, that the Government will not offer financial aid to those who refuse to confirm their allegiance to the United States Government."

Stu Summit will oppose Young's motion on the Senate floor on the ground that the oath attempts to regulate beliefs. "I do not oppose loyalty oaths," he said, "but I do object to the regulation of what one believes."

Following any action taken by the Senate tonight, its recommendation will be placed before the NSA representative National Executive Committee for further consideration.

U.S. Lt. Governor Says 'Younger Set' Informed

OKLAHOMA CITY — (UPI) — American teen-agers, pictured by many as junior criminals feeding on a diet of rock 'n roll music, have a stout defender in George Nigh, the nation's youngest lieutenant governor.

"American youth is not going to the dogs," insists the 30-year-old Oklahoman. On the contrary, he said, the younger set holds the potential for future leadership of the country and the world.

"YOUNG PEOPLE today are more informed than at any other time in history on governmental affairs, probably more than the average adult," Nigh said.

"The important thing is that they know adults really do care about them and are concerned."

Nigh does more than his share of working with youngsters. Hardly a day goes by that a group of Boy Scouts or Campfire Girls doesn't visit his office. And he makes dozens of speeches a month in high schools throughout Oklahoma.

A FORMER HIGH school history teacher and state representative, Nigh also has served as adviser to 12 youth legislatures.

"Every generation has been condemned for one reason or another," he said. "We live in an age of sensationalism and it's the teen-ager who does wrong that you read about — not the one who does something worthwhile."

"Teens are no different than adults. They go through typical fads— whether it be blue jeans and T-shirts or blue suede shoes."

"AND TAKE the bop. We thought it was so terrible. But nobody bops anymore."

For every "hipster," Nigh believes, there are many young boys and girls developing into future leaders.

"I can't speak for other parts of the country," he said, "but in Oklahoma young people are being pushed to the front as leaders."

HE CITED the accomplishments of Oklahoma youth in winning recognition in Future Farmers of America and 4-H Club programs and in other fields.

"And we've got the best example in athletics," he said. "I think Oklahoma probably has made more contributions than any other state."

As for politics, Nigh said the youth movement in Oklahoma had its beginning when Tulsa elected a 31-year-old mayor. Nigh was a senior in college and 22 years old when he was elected, along with three of his classmates, to the Oklahoma House of Representatives.

THE OUTSTANDING example of the state's young look was the election of J. Howard Edmondson, Tulsa county attorney, as governor. Edmondson, at 33, is the nation's youngest chief executive.

"Here was a man who sold the people on his desire and ability to serve," Nigh said. "It wasn't a question of whether or not he was too young."

Nigh said he believes there is a trend "that recognizes a person's ability regardless of his age."

THE LIEUTENANT governor is a firm believer in education, and of the type which develops a child's character and personality, rather than having him memorize names or dates.

"Preparedness is one of the most important things this country must have," he said. "I hope the pendulum doesn't swing so far that we spend more time on learning how to destroy each other and not enough on how to get along and help each other."

Tryouts Set For Theater

Wives Group Ends Quarter

The Engineering Wives Association plans to round out the quarter with two social functions.

The group will meet at 8:30 tonight at the Buckeye Village Recreation Hall to hear Miss Lilyan Bradshaw, Placement Director and Assistant to Dean in the College of Engineering. She will speak on "Making Engineering a Professional School."

At the meeting, plans will be made for a pot luck family picnic to be held June 20 in the Shadow Shelter House at Blendon Woods. The picnic will be held from 4:30 to 9:30 p.m. with supervised recreation for the children and games for the adults. Each family is asked to bring labeled table service and a covered dish.

'Cradle to Grave' Health Program Is 11 Years Old

LONDON — (UPI) — Britain's "cradle to the grave" health program marks its 11th anniversary in July, and, although it still has its critics, its political success can be measured by the fact that both parties claim they thought of it first.

Because the scheme was introduced in 1948 during a Labor government, it is generally referred to outside Britain, and sometimes inside too, as socialized medicine.

IN ANY EVENT, it works this way: Adults pay nine shillings, eleven pence weekly (about $1.40) as their contributions to old age and unemployment insurance as well as complete health coverage for themselves and their dependents.

This entitles them to medical, dental, surgical and optical care, hospital or sanatorium treatment, and so on. In fact, anything that might happen to a person's health from birth to death is provided for almost completely without cost.

At first, everything was free. But because some patients tended to abuse the right to demand medical attention, small charges were levied on certain services — for example, one shilling or 14 cents on each prescription and various sums for full sets of false teeth, spectacles, wigs and other apparatus.

THE COST of the nation's health services in 1959 is estimated at 695,000,000 sterling ($1,946,000,000).

This is considerably more than original estimates and committees are constantly considering how the cost can be controlled. Where drugs are of equal efficacy doctors are encouraged to prescribe the cheaper and patent medicines sometimes have to prove they can do what their advertisements say before they are eligible to be prescribed.

Britons are the second longest-lived people on earth — next to the Dutch — and have never been healthier, according to recent vital statistics. This is cited as a reply to the many who criticize the way the health program is being run.

IT SHOULD BE made clear that very few of the critics want the scheme abandoned in favor of private medicine. Their complaints center mainly on details.

Doctors once vaguely threatened to strike because they felt they were not getting enough money. They were given a raise. Health scheme officials say that it is true some doctors do not make as much as they did in private practice — but on the other hand many doctors who barely could scrape along are now earning a living.

The major opposition to the health scheme is centered in a group of 2,000 doctors banded into the Fellowship for Freedom in Medicine — which describes itself as a "large minority" of the 20,000 practicing doctors in Britain.

Attention Students

With your cooperation we will again cash your personal checks. Our decision Friday, not to cash student's personal checks, was caused by the huge number of checks returned to us by the bank at the close of school last year. Many of you closed your accounts at the bank, but still wrote checks. Others did not allow for bank charges. Some of these returned checks were taken care of promptly. Many were not. In reaching our decision not to cash checks, we were unaware of how much inconvenience we were creating. Since we prefer not to cause any hardship to you, please help us by observing the following: If you are closing your account, write your check for $2.00 less than your balance, to allow for bank charges. Do not impose on us by cashing a check when you know there are not enough funds in the bank. Whether we can continue to cash checks at the end of the school year depends wholly on you.
