World Sees Retirement With Varied Reactions

The retirement of Nikita Khrushchev from his position as Soviet premier and Com-munist party secretary produced a variety of reactions throughout the world.

President Lyndon B. Johnson said the retirement may signal "deeper turmoil" or may lead to additional changes the Soviet Union. The President, speaking at a party rally in New York, said "we goal" of peace.

Red China reported with unusual alacrity the news of Khrushchev's retirement. The Peking regime denounced the new Soviet leader, Leonid Brezhnev, as "extremely reactionary" within hours after he took over from Khrushchev.

An Albanian attack on the renegades of the Khrushchev group followed. The New the attack by saying that "the revisionist Khrushchev clique is energetically preparing, under the cloak of 'unity,' a still deeper split to destroy completely the unity of the international Communist movement."

West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, unaware of the new development yesterday delivered a challenge to Khrushchev who was expected to make a state visit there early next year. There were of consternation in Yugoslavia where President Marshall Tito has been pro-Khrushchev.

In Belgrade, government and party officials, talking privately used words such as "shocked," "dismayed" and "dumbfounded.' People in the street seemed to find it hard Relations between Moscow and Yugoslavia frequently blew hot and cold during Khrushchev's reign, but in re-cent years Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union had drawn close together. The shared opposi-tion to the policies of Red China was a common bond.

A Sensation in Italy

Word of the change created sensation in Italian non-Communist political circles. Foreign Minister Giuseppe Saragat predicted that the change would "not have any repercussions on the good ties that exist between our two countries." In New York the reports that Khrushchev was out triggered the sharpest break in stock prices since President Kennedy was assassinated last Nov. 22.

Ohio State student reaction to the first "resignation" in history of a Soviet premier ranged from surprise to mild alarm, from "wait-and-see" to optimism.

"It was a good thing." "I'm really shocked, it came all of a sudden."

"I'm worried about it." "What about the U.S. election?"

These were a few of the comments made in interviews with about 20 students in the first hour after the announcement came that Nikita Khrushchev was being "released" from the jobs of Communist Party boss and Soviet premier.

Hoped Expressed A dominant theme in most of the interviews was the hope that Soviet relationships with the Western governments they had under Khrushchev. A foreign student, Mehdi Ahmadi of Iran, said he had heard the new Soviet first secretary, Leonid Brezhney make a speech in his country last year. Mr. Ahmadi said he was an extremely handsome person and seemed poised and calm.

"As far as I can see, Khrushchev's resignation is a good thing," Mr. Ahmadi said.

Brezhnev had done nothing to indicate he would be difficult to get along with and "the majority of Iranians view him as a calm person," he said. "Khrushchev was exactly the opposite."

Others Disagree

Another Iranian student disagreed with Mr. Ahmadi. Kha-Khosrowshahi said he thought Khrushchev was still the best leader in Russia.

thought the resignation was partly caused by the recent Sino-Soviet split.

Another student, Kenneth Dreitzler, said he hoped the new Soviet leader would be as easy to deal with as Khrushchev had been. "I also hope it does nothing to bridge the gap Sino-Soviet relations,' said. "Actually I just can't believe it."

'Wait And See'

Nancy Holderman, a freshman, said she didn't think it was anything to get excited about. "America will just have to wait and see. We've dealt with the Russians before, besides, it may be a good break

Jennifer Crew said the United States would have to wait and see how the new premier is going to react.

Soviet Switch Seen As Issue In Campaign

How will the replacement of Nikita Khrushchev affect the Nov. 3 presidential election? Here, in summary, are the views of several campus ex-

1. President Johnson will be aided by the power shift because international crises during a campaign always favor the incumbent.

2. The Communist power struggle will not affect the outcome, but will play a role in the two campaigns.

Two scholars on Soviet government, two specialists on U.S. government and a Russian historian commented last night on the power shift and possible effects on the elec-

Little Effect

One opinion, that the change will have little effect on the campaign, comes from Dr. E.

Allen Helms, political science professor.

Dr. Helms said that since "the Soviet Union isn't going to make any sudden changes now in foreign policy it's not likely to have any immediate effects."

But Dr. Helm's colleague and fellow specialist in American political affairs, Dr. Myron Hale, associate professor, thinks that "things that happen in the international arena aid the incumbent."

"It would certainly seem the height of ridiculousness to say that such a change would react no presidential expericence."

Struggle Begins

Dr. Hale feels there is no danger at the moment of any alignment between the Soviet Union and Communist China.

Top Party Position Goes To Brezhnev

MOSCOW (P)—The Nikita Khrushchev era, embracing 10 years of cold war and coexistence, has ended with his retirement as premier and top man in the Soviet Communist Party "in view of his advanced age and deterioration of his health."

The best available information indicated Khrushchev was away from Moscow when the power succession took place.

His protege Leonid Brezhnev, at 57 Khrushchev's junior by 13 years, has taken over the key party post. Alexei Kosygin, the man Khrushchev trusted to run the government during his frequent absences abroad, has become premier. Khrushchev's jobs are thus divided, as they used to be. In the last two days Khrushchev has disappeared from public view and a picture of him mounted near the Kremlin was taken down last night. Three hours later, at midnight, came the official announcement of the changes, capping hours of rumors that Khrushchev was on the way out. Tass said the changes were decided upon Wednesday and yesterday.

De-Stalinization To Continue

MOSCOW (P)—The Soviet Communist Party newspaper Pravda indicated today the party will continue to carry out policies of de-Stalinization and economic improvements under its new leadership.

With the announcements was the statement in bold type that "the Communist Pary of the Soviet Union firmly and consistently carries into life the Leninist general line worked out at the 20th and 22nd Congresses of Brezhnev, a burly native of the Ukraine who has been a Communist 33 years, has assumed the party post from which both Joseph Stalin and Khrushchev controlled Soviet affairs. The premier's role was secondary for many years, and both Stalin and Khrushchev assumed it after first serving as first secretary. It seems likely to become again the No. 2 spot in the Soviet hierarchy.

Loses Presidium Job

The Soviet news agency Tass, in carrying the announcement, said Khrushchev was "released" from the top job and also lost his membership on the Presidium of the Central Committee, a job he had held since 1939.

When Khrushchev defeated his leading party opponents in 1957 in a struggle for supreme power, he ousted them from the Presidium and banished them to remote jobs. Stalin killed many of those he defeated in power struggles.

There was no indication Khrushchev attended the party Central Committee meeting at which he was released. His release as first secretary was agreed upon Wednesday and his retirement as premier was voted yesterday, the announcement said.

Tass said Anastas I. Mikoyan, the durable old Bolshevik who succeeded Brezhnev this summer in the largely ceremonial job of president, presided at the meeting of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet, yesterday.

Midst Of Scramble

The action closes a decade during which Khrushchev dominated most of the Communist world. He left with the Red world shaken as Lenin and Stalin never could have imagined—in the midst of an ideological scramble with Red China.

In the eyes of Western diplomats, Brezhnev has seemed to take action and to speak in a responsible way, always, of course, within the Soviet viewpoint.

Kosygin has been a leading spokesman on the Soviet side in the dispute with China. A quarrel that has tended at times to take some of the heat off U.S.-Soviet relations.

Poor health, and conceivably an appraisal of poor results, were probably the factors behind Khrushchev's fall from power just three weeks before he was to preside over a celebration of the 47th anniversary of the Bolshevik Revolution.

Kept His Own Men

Khrushchev, who is suffering from high blood pressure and a heart condition, appeared to have kept his own men in Khrushchev said last year: "I am already 69 and I have the right to say so. Everyone understands I cannot hold for all time the position I now have in the party and the state." This year, presumably with Khrushchev's approval, Brezhnev was moved from the job of president to become first deputy of the party, a more important position

Khrushchev spent so much time outside Moscow it was obvious he could not be in active control of the highly centralized Soviet government.

Last year, gold in hand, the Soviet Union had to go to the United States and Canada for wheat to feed its people. This was despite Khrushchev's boasts that Communist agriculture was rapidly overtaking the Capitalist variety.

Wilson Apparently Succeeds Home As Prime Minister

son's Labor Party headed last night for a victory over the Conservatives in the British national election.

If late reporting results continued the trend, Wilson would become Prime Minister and Sir Alec Douglas-Home with the opportunity to give a leftward slant to this island kingdom's government after 13 years.

There seemed little doubt, even in Conservative Party headquarters, that this would be the final outcome, although it still could be close.

The Laborites marched toward control of the 630-seat House of Commons by winning in the marginals, the districts thinly held by the Conservative side.

Wilson and his followers would get a five-year mandate to attack the nation's economic problems along Socialistic lines and revise the foreign and defense policies. Tabulations from 429 districts out of the 630 showed: Labor 247, gain 47 Others nil, loss 1

Conservative 180, loss 44 This represented a net gain seats, all but three at the expense of the Conservatives Two districts were captured from the Liberals and one other from an independent. The Conservative net loss was 43 seats.

The Labor Party headquarters said it expected the remaining count to reveal only one thing-the size of the Labor Party's margin in the House of Commons. An edge of at least 20 seats is considered essential for a government to function efficiently and live out its term.

Unless there is a last min-fro the Labor Party of 46 ute upset, the 48-year-old Wilson will be called to Buckingham Palace for an audience with Queen Elizabeth II who will invest him as Prime Minister. He will present a new cabinet to the nation. The results so far were a disappointment for Douglas-Home, a 61-year old fomrer nobleman, who had hoped to lead the Conservatives to a powerful, fourth straight national election triumph.

The count had gone far enough to reveal that the Conservatives could hope for nothing better now than something resembling a dead heat.

He mentioned the names "Baker" and "Sol Estes." The crowd's answering shouts added the names of "Jenkins" and "McCloskey."

Khrushchev said then that Brezhnev was needed for fulltime work as a secretary of the Communist Party's Central Committee.

Sharp Mind

Brezhnev is known to Western diplomats as a man with a sharp mind and a friendly but reserved manner.

Brezhnev has been associated with Khrushchev's career since 1938 in the Soviet Union's Ukrainian region. He and Khrushchev came up in the Ukraine as faithful party workers.

Bounced Back

When Joseph Stalin died in 1953, Brezhnev was fired from his job as first Communist Party secretary of the Moldavian Republic, but bounced back as political commissar of the Armed Forces.

Khrushchev sent Brezhnev to Kazakhstan, to head Khrushchev's "virgin lands' agricultural experiments, as secretary of the Communist Party.

In 1956, at the time of the 20th Party Congress, Brezhnev returned to the ruling Party Presidium as a candidate mem ber. He also was placed on the powerful Secretariat of the Central Committee.

He became a full member of the Party Presidium and when Khrushchev later ousted Klementi Voroshilov, Brezhnev took over as president, two years later surrendering his Central committee job.

A Leader Leaves And We Wonder

The news of the retirement of Nikita Khrushchev came as somewhat of a shock to us.

Now, there is no great love between our ideology and his, but, as Communists go, Khrushchev wasn't a

We remind those persons who see his retirement as a blessing, that, except for his advocacy of "soft-line" peaceful coexistence, the world situation might be much more explosive today, less tolerable for sure.

The memory of Joseph Stalin and the "hard-line" communism of the early post-war years is reason enough to cause some concern and regret on our part.

One of the possible reasons for Khrushchev's retirement is that the Communist Party disliked his attitude toward the West, which was a cause of the Sino-Soviet split.

If this is true, there is an element of irony in it. Our late President Kennedy was criticized by many Americans as a result of his efforts toward peaceful coexistence with the Soviet Union. The height of the reaction against Mr. Kennedy, and probably the height of Soviet discontent with Khrushchev, was at the time of the Nuclear Test Ban.

It is for these reasons, among others, that we look toward the Kremlin with at least a little apprehension; and we wonder.

Interview With OSU Expert: The Power Shift In Russia

Philip D. Stewart, assistant professor in the Department of Political Science, lived in the Soviet Union from September completed his Ph.D. dissertation on local Soviet politics, to be received in February from Indiana University.

LANTERN: Mr. Stewart, could you give us brief back-grounds of A. N. Kosygin and . I. Brezhnev who replaced Khrushchev?

MR. STEWART: Briefly, Brezhnev, now the First Secretary of the Communist Party, is 58 and a 1935 graduate of Dneprodzerzhnisk Metallurgical Institute. During the purges, when Stalin removed many of the authorities, he was an engineer and in 1939 moved into party work in the Ukraine, under Khrush-

During the war he served as political officer on the Ukranian front, was a major general in 1943. He returned to party work afterward as First Secretary in a series of provincial party committees. In 1952, a year before Stalin died, Brezhnev was made Secretary of the Central Committee and then a candidate member of the party Presidium. Again, from 1953 to 1954, he returned to a political position in the Ministry of Defense as First Deputy Chief of the Main Political Board.

After working two years with the Kazak Communist Party, he returned to the Presidium. In 1957 a group tried to oust Khrushchev from power, but Brezhnev supported him and was rewarded with full membership in the Party Presidium. From 1956 to 1960 he was Secretary of the Communist party: from 1960 until several months ago Chairman doesn't have. of the USSR Supreme Soviet. Just recently Khrushchev

Kosygin, the new Chairman of the Council of Ministers, is 59 - Khrushchev is 70 - and has been in light industry and consumer goods administrative work. brought him again into party

During Stalin's reign he was a member of the Politburo (small ruling body of the party), but was dropped from it in 1952. Like Brezhnev Kosygin arose politically after and in May 1960 was made a full member and First Vice Chairman of the Council of

LANTERN: Which will probably have the most pow-

STEWART: Probably Breshnev, the party head, rather than Kosygin, the government head. Khrushchev formed the policy that makes this likely because under him the head of the party formed most of the policy and gained the power to appoint or remove all governmental and party officials. By skillful use of this power he can create a loyal following in the major party and governmental organs, powers which Kosygin

LANTERN: Since Brezhnev and Kosygin once stood behind Khrushchev and might be considered his proteges, how closely do you think they will follow Khrushchev's patterns of leadership?

STEWART: There will, obviously, be patterns of continuity and change in the new administration. One element of continuity, I would say, would be the reliance of party persuasion, as opposed to the police terror of the Stalinist rule, to assure compliance with party lines.

The party will probably still continue to be the source of policy positions and the basic structure of state-owned and state-run enterprises and farms will probably remain the same. Conceivably, though, new means of solving agricultural and industrial problems will be sought-say, by giving greater autonomy and flexibility in agricultural planning and administration to local agricultural officials. LANTERN: We have heard a lot about agriculture failures. Does this tie into the power shuffle?

STEWART: Power struggles are the continuing and viet political system and they resolve around issues. When a policy of one in power fails, opponents usually use the failure as a weapon in the power struggle.

Although Khrushchev seemed to be achieving a certain degree of success with his Virgin Lands Program until 1958, since then his efforts have been increasingly unsuccessful, culminating in the purchase of wheat from the West in 1960. No doubt this was used against him by his opponents.

LANTERN: What other major internal problems would you think might have contributed to his downfall?

STEWART: He made many enemies with the downgrading of authority of industrial officials in matters of industrial policy. In the 1957 reorganization of industry, Khrushchev gave local party officials the major voice in industrial policy. Great dissatisfaction was displayed by many industrial ministerial officials at seeing their ministries eliminated or liquidated—and being sent from Moscow to the provinces.

LANTERN: Do you think foreign policy problems, such as having moves frustrated by the United States, contributed to the power struggle?

STEWART: Yes, and here are complex issues involved. The main issue is determining the extent to which the Soviets would risk a major war pursuing foreign policy goals. Khrushchev held that war was no longer a feasible instrument of foreign policy because of the mutual anihilation an atomic war would bring. All major Soviet party officials recognize this basic principle, I would say, but differ on how far they could go diplomatically before courting a major war.

There is dispute as to whether the test ban treaty was necessary or desirable. There is the question of whether or not the Western powers can be removed from West Berlin by diplomatic means without bringing the world to the brink of global war. In November Khrushchev promised to get America out of Berlin; we are still there. In Cuba, he backed down when confronted by Kennedy. Undoubtedly these issues were used by Khrushchev's opponents in the power struggle.

LANTERN: How would you say the Sino-Soviet split might have been related to the power struggle?

STEWART: The dispute probably combined with other elements of dispute to act as a catalyst driving the opposition to take action.

Khrushchev felt the way to spread Communism was absolutely incompatible with the methods advocated by the Chinese and had called a planning session for December. This session of the major world Communist parties was to oust the Chinese Communists and their followers from the world Communist system. It is conceivable and, indeed, highly probable, that many Soviet party members viewed this development with great LANTERN: What might be done now?

STEWART: Three lines of policy are possible.

One, Brezhnev might attempt bringing about a rapid reconciliation with the Chinese Communists, accepting their point of view and admitting their own errors.

Two, he might continue with the split and hope for the best.

Three, he might take a road between those two extremes, and this appears most likely.

LANTERN: For example? STEWART: For example, he may try to conciliate the Chinese by blaming Khrushchev for exacerbating the situation while at the same time attempting to pursue the main elements of competitive co-existence. Thus he might admit the admissibility of war as a valid means of achieving revolution-in theory-while deny-

LANTERN: Would you say things look darker from the Western point of view?

Looking at Kosygin's back ground, too, with his back-ground in light industries, leads me to feel there will be no great emphasis on heavy industry and military might If a new policy of militarism was intended, a man of Kosygin's background probably wouldn't have been selected.

If he should isolate us from an opinion which is possibly kept from a clearer perception of truth by its confrontation with error."-Lantern editorial, 14 October.

". . All silencing of discussion is an assumption of infallibility . . ."-John Stuart Mill, "On Liberty."

In the absence of attribution, are we not entitled to some explanation for the remarkable similarity of vocabulary and syntax?

> Paul M. Konnersman Graduate Student Dept. of Philosophy

The editorial page staff regrets the attribution to Mills lost when two paragraphs were deleted to adjust to page space. Mills's essay was certainly a source. Other very generalized points of view expressed, but not reflected in vocabulary or syntax in the editorial, were from Alexander Meiklejohn's "Free Speech and It's Relation To Self-Government," and the writings of Circuit Judge Learned Hand. Burns' and Peltason's book, "Government By The People" also writes that "to forbid expression of ideas on the ground that they are dangerous is to set oneself up as an infallible " and lists and discusses in detail legal measures mentioned in our editorial.

Attacks Student Senator's Letter

To the Editor: Half truths are interesting little fellows (re: Dave Everard, Com-2, Administrative Assistant to Stan Darling, Student Body President-letter of Oct. 15.)

Mr. Everard began his "defense" of Mr. Darling by, "We in Senate . . .," meaning however, "We Buckeyes in Senate . . ." He must have hoped you wouldn't catch the "slip"i.e. Student Congress Party senators unanimously condemned, not defended, the past actions of Mr. Darling, and much to Mr. Everard's chag rin, are also in Senate.

After a brief personal attack of a previous letter writer, Mr. Everard moved to his second and third half truths.

". . . a budget for S.D.S. was passed in Senate Oct. 8, 1964 . . . unanimously." Unfortunately, but carefully, Mr. Everard omitted two facts:

1. He did not mention that the $780 requested by the budget had already been spent by Mr. Darling-without Senate's approval! Never in the history of student government on this campus has so much money been spent without the prior consent of the student's representatives. Such an act is prohibited by Senate's constitution.

2. He did not mention that on the "unanimous" vote of approval, approximately one half of the Senate abstained from voting. Reasoning behind the abstentions was that a "no" vote would cause Mr. Darling to pay the $780 himself-an absurd action- and a "yes" vote would allow funds that had already been spent to be spent—an equally absurd action. So out of frustration, and some anger, senators abstained.

The final point, the most crucial one expressed at the Oct. 8 Senate meeting, was that Mr. Darling mailed out the B.B.P. platform on Senate stationary; he used student money for party propaganda. Mr. Everard ignores this fact-for there is no defense! And Mr. Everard concludes his letter with the word "responsible," a curious

'Point of Pride In Goldwater'

To the Editor: There is no valid reason in Longnecker's letter of October 13, 1964, for anyone to vote for Barry Goldwater. Is there a point of pride in being able to claim that a candidate has voted against nearly everything constructive that has come up before the Senate?

It certainly is true that Mr. Goldwater stands behind his decision-for awhile. In past years, he has been accurately quoted as saying that he believes Social Security should be made voluntary, yet William Miller and other Goldwater supporters have found it necessary to deny this claim repeatedly. Barry Goldwater has the clever knack of being able to put both feet into his mouth. The only trouble with this is that they get stuck there. With modern news media reporting incidents as they happen, it is becoming increasingly difficult for a public figure to retract a state-

Not many can disagree with Mr. Goldwater's statement that we must look to future freedom; on the other hand, not many can agree that it furthers the cause of freedom to advocate use of nuclear power. The purpose of maintaining nuclear arms today is to provide a deterrent, not to use them for aggression.

Democratic ideals cannot be forced upon an uneducated people, particularly by showing off superior power.

Funny thing, I hear many people saying, "Wouldn't it be wonderful if Johnson won by a landslide?"

Lynn E. Williams

Barry Not Just An Intellectual

Around this University the most damning criticism of Barry Goldwater is that is is not "intellectual" enough for the Presidency. Most professors and young intellectuals can abide an adulterer, a Communist, or a thief, but under no circumstances will they accept a "simple" mind. One wonders how substantive this criticism is. A true intellectual structures his concepts of reality on something observable to human experience-something his reason can build on. He does not depend in any primary way upon his conscience, his "feeling of being right," to derive answers. It is unfortunate that Goldwater is linked with such terms, for they provide the gist of the criticism.

However, if one looks beyond the journalistic labels, one finds a philosophy based on the most rational premises available to human observation. That is, that human beings are essentially motivated by self-interest, and cooperation among humans is looked upon only as a means to the greater end of self-happiness. Self-interest is the base of man's morality. This position must reject the doctrine of original sin. Man is essenti-ally "good." Call it faith in God's creation, if you will, but recognize it as the only base on which man can build intellectually. We are moral because of our overwhelming desire to please ourselves. Concern for our fellow man is not the prime mover for "good." If it were, individuality would not exist, and moral codes would have no more foundation than a pleasing "Cooperation," then, works at cross-purposes with basic human motivation. It operates in inverse proportion to individual action. It is, therefore, essential that "cooperation," per se, among humans be limited.

However, the intellectuals of 1787-9 recognized the value of some cooperation among men. Their document, the United States Constitution, provides for just enough collective strength to protect the majority against those few who would use violence to destroy them. They rejected anarchy not because they believed that the majority of men were sinners, but because they feared the irrationality of a small minority. The difference is vital to an understanding of the choice we are given in the present election It is this positive belief in mankind which Barry Goldwater seeks to conserve. It is a philosophy of great depth based on a real confidence in the dignity of man, and a true understanding of the prime movers of men. Pseudo-intellectuals make their appeal on the basis that the majority of men are sinners, and that only a few are moral and cap-

This non-materialistic philosophy ton which America thrives and postulates that individual freedom and material goods are synoymous.

Vote against Goldwater because he is too idealistic. Turn him down because he credits the average man with too much intelligence. But don't, in the name of rationality, reject him because his philosophy is un-intellectual. Such would be a paradox of reason.

What Relevance Has Membership

In regard to Mr. Everard's letter of Oct. 15, I would like to ask if membership in the Student Senate is now prerequisite to a statement criticizing this body. Not all members of the student body have the time or privilege (?) to be a senator but many of us still have a deep interest in the activities of the campus community. I resent the implication that a student who "is not a member of Student Senate and . . . has no knowledgeable connec tion with this body" is not competent to criticize what he feels are questionable actions. Nancy McInturf

A Negro Is An American, Too

To the Editor: In your Oct. 15 issue of the Lantern concerning Dr. Martin L. King, I came across statements which appeared queer to me. The first one-Dr. King is the twelfth American and the third Negro to be awarded the Peace Prize." What kind of Americans are the remaining Peace Prize winners? Chinese, Italian or Russian Americans? I think the statement should have read: "Dr. King is the twelfth American to be awarded the Peace Prize." An American is just an American, whether Negro, Puerto Rican and so

The other statement is: "The other Negro Nobel Peace Prize winner was South African Leader Albert Lut-

In Africa the term "Negro" would not apply to chief Albert Luthuli of South Africa. He is a mere African and can further be classified as a Zulu by tribe. The American concept of branding every dark person "Negro" will not work in the African world.

Juma A. Kilimo

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Special Correspondent Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev put an end to one era of world diplomacy, opened up a new one, and in the process plunged communism into a worldwide internal brawl that rocked the movement to its foundations. The rotund, garrulous career politician from the Russian hinterland blazed an awesome trail across the world political firmament.

An inveterate globe-trotter whose missionary zeal for "peaceful coexistence" took him on spectacular trips to Asia, Africa, Western Europe stubby one-time shepherd boy reached a position of prominence as a world figure in some respects not even matchby the fearsome Joseph Stalin.

For Russians, Khrushchev was a new sort of ruler. Throughout their history, Russians knew both benevolent despots and bloody tyrants. They knew men like Ivan the Terrible, Peter the Great and Stalin the Mysterious.

Oozed Confidence

But the man who became premier in March, 1958, after heading the Communist Party as first secretary for four years, probably could best be described as Khrushchev the Confident. Khrushchev oozed confidence that the Soviet system would sweep world capitalism into the dustbin of history. He publicized his convictions with picturesquely earthy predictions about the wave of the future. He was confident and bold enough to remove terror from the internal apparatus of the state and substitute incentives based on proud Russian

Peaceful Coexistence

He advertised the need for 20 years to build the Soviet economy to the point where communism—by definition the U.S.S.R. was "socialist" and had not yet achieved communism-could become a reality. To provide this time, he pushed a program of "peaceful coexistence," which in essence meant that the Kremlin, although it would continue to support revolutionary movements around the world, would avoid risk of touching off world war.

For this, he brought down upon himself the wrath of the Chinese Communist Party. Peking directly challenged his leadership of the world movement. Mao Tze-tung regarded him as an upstart peasant with no claim to a place in the world Communist pantheon.

It was, indeed, a struggle for power which rose in intensity year by year as Moscow and Peking fired verbal barrages at one another. The struggle brought about a polarization in world communism. Many parties, notably in Asia and underdeveloped countries, rallied to the Peking side, and many others in all continents were split by the quarrel.

Deepened Rift While the Red Chinese burned with fury, Khrushchev led the U.S.S.R. into a limited Nuclear Test Ban Treaty with the United States and Britain in mid-1963. This deepened the Communist rift. So did Khrushchev's failure to carry out his promises to drive the Western allies out of West Berlin.

Khrushchev travelled to East Berlin early in 1963 for a meeting of Communist leaders from around the world in what was almost a climatic show down with the Chinese. He performed, at first more or less as expected at Berlin. He repeated the prediction that capitalism would be buried by communism, that the Russians someday would step on the West's "aching corns. But the congress got rough when the participants became involved in the world quarrel

Promised Abundance

Khrushchev, in person, carried his cause to the satellite countries in a whirlwind round of visits, and even to the Western world. In a three-weeks tour of Scandinavia in mid-1964 he preached coexistence and trade to stolid Scandinavians who received his ebullience with studied coldness.

At home Khrushchev, the consummate politician, for years appeared solidly in control as the man who not only promised abundance but gave people the impressi was the world's leading champion of peace. He had enormous troubles-notably with agriculture and other aspects of the Soviet economy.

He had been showing signs of strain. But to 1963 rumors that he was in a bad position. he snorted. "May God grant that I have such a difficult position to the end of my days. (Khrushchev never lost his folksy, peasant way of calling on the Deity, despite his professed contempt for religion. By his own admission, he was feeling his age. At his 70th birthday celebration in the Kremlin last April, he delivered a homily about his gratitude to those who had faith in him, but added that "a man hasn't much time left to pay back well for all he is

But he seemed ever-confiden that he had the support of those who counted in the Communist Party Central Commit tee and its Presidium, with whom, indeed, he seemed willing to share much of the power and authority over the viet system. Perhaps, Khrushchev once sought dictatoria power. If he did, he never achieved it.

Local Organist to Give Recital; Will Begin Autumn Concert Series

Dr. Wilbur Held will give an organ recital at 3 p.m. Sunday in Mershon Auditorium.

His program includes music from the Baroque through the Contemporary periods. He will play "Chorale No. 1 in E Major" by Cesar Franck, "Sketches for Pedal Piano" by Robert Schumann, "Three Pieces for Organ" (1964) by John Ness Beck, "Air" (1963) by Gerre Hancock, "Fantasy and Fugue in G Minor" by Johann Sebastian Bach, "Elevation (Mass for Convents)" by Francois Couperin, and "Concerto in D Minor" by Johann Gottfried Walther.

Dr. Held studied in the American Conservatory of in Chicago and with Frank Van Dusen. He also studied in Paris under Marcel Dupre and Andre Marchal. He received his degree as Doctor of Sacred Music from Union Theological Seminary in Princeton, N.J. In addition to being professor of organ and head of the keyboard department, he is organist and choir director at Trinity Episcopal church in Columbus.

His concert is the first in the "Sunday Afternoons at Mershon" series. There will be story about his wife:

In a crucial election for Lyndon Johnson in the 40's, Lady Bird's automobile overturned while she was campaigning in Texas. She was later asked what her first thought had been when she recovered consciousness.

With a straight face, the President quotes his wife as saying: "I wished I had an absentee ballot."

Role of Women

It's a madeup story but it points up the active role of women in the election campaigns. Never before have so many prominent Republican and Democratic women taken such an active part in a national election. There is a good reason. Never before have women had such a wide margin of potential votes over men, almost five million more ballots.

According to the Census Bureau, 591/4 million women and 541/2 million men are eligible to vote in the November election. But in the past, the women have not exercised their majority franchise.

Even With Men

Despite their edge in numbers, in actual votes cast it is figured the women come out just about even with the men. However, because of the wider margin and intense interest in the elections shown by women, some politicians look for the female vote to be greater than the male turnout at the polls this year.

The public opinion polls show President Johnson as an even greater favorite with women voters than with men. Both he and GOP candidate Goldwater have paid proper tribute to the role of women as a crucial factor in elections.

Peggy Goldwater is not as political-minded as Lady Bird. But she has pitched in to help her husband and says she is now getting to like campaign-

Mrs. Miller's counterpart, Muriel Humphrey, is a longtime campaigner. She has been making solo trips through the Midwest and doing what most candidates' wives try to avoid, talking about the issues.

Study Grants in Chinese Offered

A scholarship to study Chinese in Taiwan has been offered to Ohio State students by the Republic of China's Ministry of Education. Presentation was made through Dr. Chang Nei-Wai, cultural counselor of the Chinese Embassy, Washington, D.C.

According to Professor Eugene Ching of the East Asian languages department, quite a few students are now applying for the scholarship. Tuition is paid and each student will receive $8.00 per month in Chinese money for living expenses. Announcement of those who have been chosen will be made before March.

Last June, the University awarded its first bachelor's degree in Chinese language and culture. Courses in Chinese were begun here in the winter of 1962, and there are now 18 courses offered in this field.

Five students are majoring in Chineses language and literature, and 135 students are enrolled in Chinese and Japanese courses this fall.

Gibson Hurls Cardinals To Series Win Over Yanks

Louis Cardinals are at the top of the baseball world. They defeated the New York Yankees yesterday, 7-5, to capture their first World Series since 1946.

Highlighting the Cards' victory were home runs by Lou Brook and Ken Boyer, a brazen steal of home by Tim McCarver and a gritty pitching performance by Bob Gibson. Gibson, a pitching mainstay for the National League champions throughout the exciting seven-game showdown, off the Yankees in the free-hitting finale and was named the outstanding player of the series.

Gibson survived three Naw York home runs, winning his second game in four days and striking out nine for an alltime strikeout record of 31 in the series.

The Cardinals gave the 28-year-old right-hander a 6-0 margin before Mickey Mantle connected for a three-run homer in the sixth. Phil Linz and Cletis Boyer hit ninth-inning home runs for the Yankees. near-capacity crowd of 30,346 in Busch Stadium roared as the Cardinals snapped a scoreless tie with three runs in the fourth inning against

Yankee starter Mel Stottlemyre who, like Gibson, was pitching with only two days rest. The first run scored on Linz, throwing error, the second resulted from a double steal and Dal Maxville singled home the third.

Brock's homer off relief pitcher Al Downing in the fifth ignited another three-run burst, and after Mantle's third homer of the series cut the margin to 6-3, Boyer homered in the seventh for the final unsuccessfully to break up the third inning double play.

Dal Maxvil fires to first to double Bobby Richardson as Phil Linz tries

Crippled Harriers Face Pitt Tomorrow

By DON PIERSON

Ohio State's injury-plagued cross-country team will meet the University of Pittsburgh tomorrow at 11 a.m. on the Ohio State golf course.

The Buckeyes will be looking for their second win of the season but they probably won't get it, according to Coach Charles Beetham.

"Pittsburgh is very strong," Beetham said. "They beat Ohio University and Kent State last weekend. Ohio U. beat Miami the week before." Miami University perennially has one of the best cross-country teams in the Midwest.

Ohio State will again be without three top runners since Guntis Kalnins, Mike Alexander and Ken Acuff are nursing injuries.

Kalnins is out for the season and now Alexander, who did not get to run against Otterbein last Saturday, will probably not run all fall, Beetham said. The senior captain from Sandusky has a

"These injuries weaken us considerably," Beetham said. "Against Pitt, Dave Smith will do all right, but I'm afraid that's all we'll do.'

In last weeks 26-29 victory over Otterbein, Smith was the winner, covering the four-mile course in 21:06 minutes. Bert Koontz was fourth for the Bucks; Les Heitger, sixth; Dan Challgren, seventh, and Arvo Toukenen, eighth.

Booters Seek Initial Victory

The Ohio State soccer team, still looking for their first victory, travels to Dayton tomorrow for their third match of the season.

The Bucks have been defeated by Indiana, 2-1 and Akron,

GOP Charges Jenkins Case Raises Security Questions

WASHINGTON (A) - Goldwater forces stepped up their 'scandals" accusations against the Johnson Administration yesterday asserting that the Walter W. Jenkins morals case raises grave issues of national security.

Meantime, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover announced that President Johnson has directed him to make "a full and complete investigation of the matter without delay."

Mr. Jenkins, long-time confidant and top aide to Mr. Johnson, resigned vesterday,

It was disclosed he was arrested five years ago on a charge of "disorderly conduct (pervert)" and on Oct. 7 this year on a charge of "disorderly (indecent gestures)." He forfeited collateral in both

Mrs. Fulton Indicted by Grand Jury

Former Ohio State cashier Mrs. Gladys L. Fulton, 52, was indicted vesterday by the Franklin County Grand Jury. She is charged with embezzelment of $28,029 while employed at the University's Opometry Clinic.

Mrs. Fulton, of 3104 Norwood St., is accused of taking the money between 1950 and 1964. A special state audit which followed an audit con-ducted by the University uncovered the loss.

The audits show that in 142 accounts the former cashier took in more than $16,000 but deposited only $296.

Dozens of pages in one audit showed discrepancies starting as far back as 1950, according to Assistant County Prosecutor William Shimp.

The Grand Jury indictment charged Mrs. Fulton with 11 specific charges of embezzle-

Terrorist In Saigon

SAIGON, Vietnam (A) A firing squad yesterday executed Nguyen Van Trio, 19, a Viet Cong terrorist who sought to blow up U.S. Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara last spring. Troi went to his death at the stake in a prison soccer field, shouting defiance

"Long live Ho Chi Minh!" he screamed in salute to Communist North Viet Nam's president. "Americans get out of Viet Nam!"

He had been caught May 9 planting a 50-pound bomb beneath a bridge Mr. McNamara was to cross on a visit to Saigon three days later. Two of Troi's accomplices were sentenced to life terms.

Work with a group worth standing out in.

The more competent your co-workers are, the greater your satisfaction when they admire something you've done. And the better your chances are to learn so you can move on to additional responsibilities and rewards.

Boeing's world leadership in the jet transport field is an indication of the celibre of people you'd work with at Boeing. The forward-striding attitude re-sponsible for this leadership has, since 1916, provided a steady succession of pioneering achievements: first twin-engine, retractable-gear, low-wing, all-metal airliner; first four-engine, pressurized airliner; first modern, high-performance bomber; first large swept-wing, multi-jet bomber; and, of course, America's first jetliner, the 707, and the 720 and three-jet 727. (Right now we're designing a variable-sweep wing supersonic transport.) Boeing is one of the nation's major manufacturers of heavy transport helicopters (Vertol), and for more than two decades has pioneered most of the world's applications of the small gas turbine in aircraft, industrial, marine and vehicular fields.

And the space age? Boeing's contributions here include major contract responsibility for the Minuteman ICBM and NASA's Saturn V Booster — the launch vehicle destined to send America's first lunar landing team to the moon. We're also working full blast in all other phases of space flight, including a manned earth-orbiting laboratory and a lunar orbiter.

Projects underway in Boeing's extensive Scientific Research Laboratories mpass basic and applied research in celestial mechanics, solid state physics, nuclear and plasma physics, terrestrial and space flight sciences

Engineers and scientists at Boeing work in small groups, under supervisors picked for ability to inspire and promote the ideas of their associates. Individual initiative and ability get plenty of exposure that way. (The company encourages graduate studies at leading colleges and universities near Boeing installations.) Boeing is an equal opportunity employer.

We're planning to interview engineering and science seniors and graduate students on campus on the date listed below. So drop in at your campu placement office and arrange an appointment. We'll be looking forward to meeting you.
