Local groups to help areas hit by Hugo

By Terry Brown
Lantern campus reporter

Ohio-Drake Union Activities Board and the Columbus chapter of the American Red Cross are joining forces to help the victims of Hurricane Hugo.

Rob Bradley, a member of the ODUA Contemporary Issues Committee, said they began organizing efforts earlier this week.

He said the idea of starting campus relief efforts to help hurricane victims actually came from a friend of his roommate.

Being a member of ODUA, Bradley realized he had access to a group capable of getting something started on Ohio State's campus.

ODUA members met Tuesday evening to discuss involving OSU students in relief efforts and setting up money collection boxes at the entrances of both Ohio and Drake Unions and in the lobbies of all dorms on Thursday and Friday for student, staff and faculty donations. The money collected will then be donated to the Red Cross, he said.

ODUA plans to approach the Office of Residence and Dining Halls today for approval of the fund raiser, said Mike Poleway, ODUA president.

American Red Cross board member Tom Stockdale, will be working with ODUA to keep campus and Red Cross efforts flowing smoothly, said Bradley, a junior from Springfield.

ODUA is not the only campus organization trying to help in relief efforts.

Horace Khalfan Neal, a member of Black Student Programs, has started a collection of non-perishable items which will be sent to people in the Caribbean Islands.

"The Caribbean was hit first and hardest and has been overlooked by the American press," Neal said.

Neal said he hopes to get a community-wide effort going. He is also working with the Red Cross.

"When a storm hits like this it is important to get the non-perishable items down within the next two weeks," Neal said.

Can goods can be dropped off at the Office of Black Student Programs, 345 Ohio Union. The Department of Black Studies, Law Building and several local churches. More drop-off sites will be designated at a later date.

As of Tuesday afternoon, damages to the Caribbean Islands and the Carolinas had reached $42 million, up from $38.7 million on Monday, Columbus American Red Cross Communications Director Gail Fritz said.

"We really need financial support. We are the first non-profit organization called in; we even get

Two OSU students assaulted

By Spencer Schein
Lantern city reporter

The OSU Police Department arrested four males in connection with the assault and robbery of OSU students on the south side of Park Hall early Tuesday morning. Deputy Chief Richard Harp said.

Two of the suspects, Verlon Lamont Reed, 18, of 1355 N. 6th St., and Ron Holman Shipley, 19, of 1608 Summit St., were charged in connection with two counts of robbery and taken to Franklin County Jail.

The names of the two other suspects, both juveniles, were not released. Both were charged with curfew violation and released to their parents.

Police do not know if the youths belong to a gang.

Harp said the first victim was walking in the vicinity of 110 W. 11th Ave. when four males approached him at about 12:45 a.m. The other victim was approached by the same individuals at around the same time in the same area.

Police reports said Reed struck the victims in the face and demanded they hand over their money.

The victims, one of whom lives in Park Hall and the other in Siebert Hall, were robbed of a combined total of $3.87.

The victims called campus police early Tuesday morning.

At approximately 1:52 a.m., the police stopped four youths near Park Hall who fit the description given by the victims. One of them was on a bicycle. Two of the youths were identified by the victims as the suspects who assaulted them.

One victim was taken to the emergency room at OSU Hospitals, where he was treated for facial abrasions and contusions, and was later released.

The second victim was examined by medics and was released without treatment.

A spokesman for the County Clerk's office said Reed and Shipley would be arraigned in Municipal Court on two counts of robbery at 9:00 a.m. today, where the judge will set bond and a time for a preliminary hearing.

U.S.S.R to reduce chemical arms, Soviet head says

ASSOCIATED PRESS

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze on Tuesday accepted President Bush's call for deep U.S.-Soviet chemical arms cuts and challenged the United States to go further and faster.

Shevardnadze said the Soviet Union will "radically reduce or completely destroy" its chemical weapons, halt nuclear tests and stop making weapons-grade plutonium and uranium — all if Washington reciprocates.

Shevardnadze, speaking to the U.N. General Assembly, said the two governments have narrowed their differences and he predicted that by the U.S.-Soviet summit next spring or summer, "We may have passed the last turn on the road" toward a treaty reducing strategic arms by 50 percent.

There was a quick response from the White House. Bush said, "I am very pleased with the way things are going. The reaction from the Soviets to our proposals yesterday has been positive so now the goal is to get moving and try to work out these agreements."

White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater called Shevardnadze's statements "a very constructive response. Our ultimate objective is total elimination of chemical weapons. And it appears that both nations are now ready to act."

Shevardnadze also said that if NATO countries agree to start talks on tactical nuclear weapons, the Soviet Union will respond by further unilateral cuts in its tactical nuclear missiles in Europe.

He repeated his government's call for a nuclear test ban and said Moscow was considering extending a 1963 treaty to cover underground nuclear explosions.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III later praised Shevardnadze's nearly hour-long address as "a good speech, an interesting speech." He called it "very responsive to the President's statement" on chemical weapons.

Eduard Shevardnadze

UPI

But Viktor P. Karpov, the Soviet Union's chief arms control expert, told reporters, "Our proposal is a wider one" and does not wait to destroy all weapons or halt production until all nations capable of producing them have signed a ban.

"It will not be sufficient only to get rid of old weapons if the United States is going to produce new chemical weapons," Karpov said.

Bush told the General Assembly on Monday that the United States will destroy more than 80 percent of its chemical weapons, before an international treaty banning use of the weapons is signed, if the Soviet Union will reduce its arms to a similar level. That would mean greater cuts by the Soviet Union, which has a larger stockpile.

Bush said in the first eight years of a chemical weapons treaty, the United States would be ready to destroy 98 percent of its arsenal if the Soviet Union joins the ban. The United States would destroy all chemical weapons

Quayle visit stirs violence in Manila

Two Americans killed by unidentified rebels

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Suspected Communist rebels killed two Americans Tuesday near a U.S. military base shortly before Vice President Dan Quayle arrived for a three-day visit, Filipino officials said.

Six unidentified gunmen firing from a passenger jeep killed the pair at about 5 p.m. in Capas, about 60 miles north of Manila, said Col. Florentino Amorabon, spokesman for the Philippine Constabulary in central Luzon.

Amorabon said the two were civilian employees of Clark Air Base, a U.S.-run facility 50 miles north of Manila.

The military believes the assailants were Communist rebels, who operate in the Clark area, Amorabon said.

In April, rebels killed U.S. Army Col. James Rowe as he was driving to the headquarters of the U.S. Joint Military Assistance Group in Quezon City. In October 1987, rebels killed three Americans in simultaneous attacks outside Clark Air Base.

ALSO TODAY, suspected Communist rebels killed a captain from President Corazon Aquino's guard force in an ambush about one mile southeast of where the president will hold talks with Quayle on Wednesday.

As Quayle arrived today for talks on the future of U.S. military bases here, hundreds of leftists burned his effigy and an American flag while chanting "Bases out! Quayle go home!"

Quayle made no statement as he arrived at Ninoy Aquino International Airport from Japan, where he ended a six-day visit with a short stop on Okinawa, an island that was a major World War II battlefield and today is home for more than 35,000 U.S. troops.

Before boarding a U.S. Air Force flight to Manila, the third leg of his Asian tour, the vice president called his Japan visit positive and said it helped strengthen the two nations' "global partnership."

QUAYLE'S TALKS in the Philippines were to focus on the future of Clark Air Base, the Subic Bay naval base and four smaller installations, the leases of which expire in September 1991.

Court to decide if gun ban is constitutional

City law scheduled to begin October 31

By Muchun Yin
Lantern city reporter

A federal court will decide whether Columbus' gun control law is constitutional, a judge said Tuesday.

"It involves a U.S. Constitutional question and a State of Ohio constitutional question, which is, in effect, the right to bear arms," said Franklin County Court of Common Pleas Judge C. Howard Johnson.

The city law, scheduled to go into effect on Oct. 31, will ban the sale of assault rifles, will require a seven-day waiting period before guns can be owned by purchasers, and will require permits for all guns sold after the law goes into effect.

The law was proposed to City Council in May. At that time, several private citizens came before council to protest the proposal.

Despite the opposition, City Council passed the law.

In September, nine opponents of the gun control law filed a lawsuit against the city.

The lawsuit asked the court to declare the city's gun control law unconstitutional.

In turn, the city filed a removal petition, asking the court to move the opponents' suit to federal court.

Tuesday, Johnson upheld the city's request, based on federal laws that allow a civil lawsuit involving a federal constitutional issue to be moved to federal court.

"I couldn't stop it... It's solely in the federal court jurisdiction," Johnson said.

"The first and primary effect (of the move) is that it prevents testimony from city council members before the elections," attorney David Buda, who represents the nine citizens, said.

"We haven't quite decided what to do yet," Buda said.

He said the gun control opponents he represents may have the case dismissed from federal court.

Then, Buda said, he may reword the lawsuit so that only state, not federal, constitutional issues are involved. That way, the city cannot move the case to federal court, he said.

"We definitely want City Council to be accountable to the public before the election," Buda said.

Having the case directly moved to federal court prevented a long, drawn-out legal process of decisions and appeals, Johnson said.

If the case had not been moved, the Franklin County Court would have decided it, Johnson said.

After the state court had decided whether the gun control law was constitutional, opponents could have appealed the decision to the Ohio Supreme Court, he said.

This process of appeals could have continued all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court, Johnson said.

Moving the case is similar a shortcut through the judicial process, he said.

there before the government," Fritz said.

She said the Columbus-area Red Cross must raise $171,000 in its local quota campaign for Hurricane Hugo relief.

The organization needs monetary donations only, said Jan Looman, Red Cross manager of financial development. She said this is because small donations are expensive to ship. Money can get there quickly and buy disaster victims exactly what they need, she said. Looman said by sending money directly, local businesses feeling the financial stress from Hugo will be able to get back on their feet quicker.

Fritz said the Red Cross needs volunteers to answer the phones during this week.

Anyone needing information about hurricane victims or anyone interested in making donations can contact the 24-hour Red Cross Hot Line in Columbus at 252-5663.

The American Red Cross will also be accepting donations for Hurricane Hugo by mail. All checks can be sent to the American Red Cross, 995 E. Broad St., Columbus, Ohio 43205.

To ensure donations go to the hurricane relief efforts, write "Hurricane Hugo" in the lower left-hand corner of your check, Fritz said.

within 10 years once every nation capable of building the weapons signs the treaty, he said.

Shevardnadze said: "The Soviet Union is ready, together with the United States, to go further and assume mutual obligations prior to the conclusion of a multilateral convention."

The Soviet Union offered to:

- Cease production of chemical weapons, as it says it already has done, including more sophisticated binary weapons.
- Renounce the use of "those barbaric weapons" under any circumstances.
- Institute rigorous verification of the cessation of production.

Shevardnadze praised the U.S.-Soviet dialogue and said progress had been made in recent talks.

Last Vietnamese troops leave Cambodia

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOC BAI, Vietnam (AP) — Hundreds of aging trucks and buses rumbled across the border into Vietnam today carrying thousands of soldiers in what Hanoi says is the pullout of its last 26,000 troops from Cambodia.

Led by officers riding in a U.S.-made jeep and a string of armored personnel carriers, the troops passed by thousands of schoolchildren waving flags along the sides of Highway 1.

The narrow, potholed road was one of the main routes used by Vietnamese forces when they invaded Cambodia in late 1978 and ended nearly four years of Khmer Rouge terror, installing a pro-Hanoi government.

Vietnamese schools were closed to mark the return, and relatives of soldiers ran across the border at Moc Bai.

"I am so happy to be leaving Cambodia," said a soldier from Can Tho province as his 3-year-old daughter tugged at his hair.

But many soldiers said they were worried about their future. Vietnam has said it will demobilize many after the withdrawal, and unemployment is high.

For the past decade, tens of thousands of Vietnamese troops have been in Cambodia helping the Phnom Penh government battle a coalition of guerrilla groups whose strongest faction is the Khmer Rouge.

The governments of both nations hope the troop withdrawal will convince countries around the world to end economic and diplomatic boycotts imposed after Vietnam's invasion.

Phnom Penh's Premier Hun Sen says he also hopes the pullout will persuade China and Thailand to stop aiding the three guerrilla groups.

There is widespread fear that the Khmer Rouge, which from 1975 to 1978 sent hundreds of thousands of Cambodians to their death as it tried to turn the country into a primitive agrarian commune, could fight its way back to power.

"After the withdrawal of Vietnamese troops the war will continue," Hun Sen told reporters Sunday. "As to the scope of the war, we think it will depend on foreign countries," he said.

The guerrillas have called the troop withdrawal a sham, and say thousands of Vietnamese troops will remain, disguised as Cambodians.

At a series of farewell ceremonies over the past six days in key provincial towns, Cambodians cheered the departing troops and praised the communist solidarity between the two neighboring countries.

Some Cambodians said they welcomed the withdrawal, while others said they feared the Khmer Rouge, which has been on the offensive as the Vietnamese withdrew.

On Monday, Khmer Rouge radio claimed its forces had captured "a major strategic position" on the road between the key towns of Battambang and Pailin in western Cambodia.

Pailin is the center of a remote ruby mining district near Thailand, where the guerrilla groups are based.

Phnom Penh's defense minister, Gen. Tea Banh, has acknowledged the guerrillas have seized territory near Pailin, but said the area remained under government control.

Cambodian officials have repeatedly assured reporters that they are capable of fighting the guerrillas without Vietnamese military support, but concede that some Phnom Penh residents have begun stocking rice and other staples in anticipation of a cut-off of supplies to the capital.

Dublin fined $75,000 for sewage problems

By Aria Ala-U-Dini
Lantern City reporter

The city of Dublin must pay $75,000 in fines and take measures to improve its sewage handling system by Dec. 15, according to an agreement reached recently between the city and the Ohio Attorney General's office.

Since 1984, Dublin has discharged raw sewage into the Scioto River on an average of two times per year.

According to Dublin City Manager Tim Hansley, this occurred because of heavy rainfall when the city's sewage pump station would overflow into the river.

"We would get as much as 5 million gallons of rain into our sewer lines," he said.

Hansley said the pump station, which is located on High Street between Short Street and Karrer Place, is designed to transfer the sewage under the Scioto River to a sewage disposal system known as Upper Scioto East.

This sewage handling system, operated by the City of Columbus, links stations located on the west side of the Scioto River to the water treatment facilities on east side via underground tunnels.

"During the periods of high rainfall, the pumps would occasionally get overflowed and spill into the Scioto River," Hansley said.

Dublin city officials thought the problem was caused by rain water getting into the sewage system through manholes.

"We spent half a million dollars sealing the manholes, but still experienced heavy overflowing," he said.

Julie Graham, press assistant in the Attorney General's office, said the office was contacted by the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency in March of this year because Dublin had failed to take appropriate steps to control the overflow problem.

"Although Dublin installed larger pumps to increase the capacity of the pump station in 1982 and 1986, the pump station continued to be a problem," she said.

Ohio EPA's unit superintendent for water quality planning and assessment, Rod Melhop, said they discovered the problem during an inspection when they noticed the sewage collected in the lift station was overflowing into the Scioto River.

"The concerns we had were how concentrated the waste was," he said.

After taking water samples from both upstream and downstream of the spill site, the EPA found no significant difference in the quality of the water, Melhop said.

Hansley said the Ohio EPA worked in a fair way with Dublin to best deal with the problem.

"We are reasonably happy with the settlement we received," Hansley said.

Originally, the state was suing for $250,000 but agreed to settle for $75,000 and assurance from Dublin that the problem would be resolved, he said.

"We are doing extensive testing to figure out exactly where this infiltration is coming from," he said.

While City of Dublin officials have been unable to pinpoint the exact location of the leak, Hansley said they at least know what the problem area is.

Celeste asks for reforms in educational programs

ASSOCIATED PRESS

(AP) — Gov. Richard Celeste met with single-parent college students and some state lawmakers Tuesday in final preparations for President Bush's education summit in Charlottesville, Va.

Celeste, who made a series of visits to schools and other educational centers over the past several days, said he solicited more ideas to take to the conference with the president and the nation's other 49 governors.

The meeting begins today and concludes Thursday.

"Ohio has a clear message for the president. If he wants to be remembered as the education president, he must replace rhetoric with action. There is no other way to adequately prepare this nation's students for the future," Celeste said.

Postal Service initiates drive to end misdelivery problems

ASSOCIATED PRESS

(AP) — The U.S. Postal Service and letter carriers have started a drive in suburban Worthington to stamp out the problem of misdelivered mail.

Letter carriers along selected routes have agreed to pay 25 cents out of their own pockets for each piece of properly addressed mail that they deliver to the wrong location.

"We're calling it the Worthington Letter Carriers Money Back Guarantee," Michael Newman, the postal service's acting manager for communications, said Tuesday.

The 60-day trial project along

11 routes is an outgrowth of a national, voluntary program by the Postal Service and the National Association of Letter Carriers.

About 3,000 to 5,000 customers will be involved in the pilot, which Newman said could be expanded to other areas of the city.

Participating carriers each will pay the 25 cents bounty for any misdelivered mail, defined as first-class items with the proper street address which are delivered to the wrong location.

Customers along the routes will be informed about details of the program, which began Monday, and provided with a form to fill out and an envelope in which to return any misdelivered mail, at no cost to the customer.

Carriers will put 25 cents in the envelope and return it to the customer.

"The individual carriers are paying for it, except in the case of substitute carriers," Newman said. He said the union would pay for misdeliveries by part-time or substitute carriers.

Newman said misdelivered mail is more a problem in some areas than others. "It will occur more frequently when there are substitute carriers, or someone who is not a full-time letter carrier on the route," he said.

Student arrested on Friday for receiving stolen property

Campus Police arrested and charged an OSU student with receiving stolen property at 12:15 a.m. Friday at College Road and Hagerty Drive.

Police originally stopped the motor vehicle for a violation of not having a rear bumper. Upon asking for his license, police noticed he had several altered licenses, and after running a check on the car, found out the car's license plate was stolen from another vehicle.

Timothy Cox, of 543 Marguerite Av., Cuyahoga Falls, was charged with receiving stolen property for possession of a stolen license plate.

He also received four traffic citations for having three altered drivers licenses, and for operating a motor vehicle without a rear bumper.

OSU student assaulted

An OSU student was assaulted by an unknown suspect on Curl Drive on Saturday at 4:10 p.m.

Campus Police reports said the student was parking his car on the south side of Barrett House.

When he opened his car door, it struck a vehicle, possibly a maroon Pontiac Grand Am.

The suspect got out of his car and struck the victim in the chest, reports said.

The suspect is described as a white male, 6'0", weighing 190 pounds. He has short dark hair and was wearing jeans and a button-down shirt.

Man crashes Union dance

A man broke a window on the northwest side of Ohio Union, 12:57 a.m. Saturday.

OSU police officers who were working at a dance, sponsored by the Delta Sigma Theta fraternity, had escorted the suspect out of the dance earlier that evening for not having proper identification.

The suspect then sneaked back in using someone else's I.D., and the officers told him he had to leave for a second time.

The man ran up to the door and broke the glass in the door.

The suspect is described as a black male, 6'4" and weighing about 240 pounds.

He has a light moustache, a chipped tooth, and was wearing a yellow jacket with purple lettering

Receipts found missing

The Division of Traffic and Parking reported a money bag was missing from the Public Safety Building, 2043 Millikin Rd., sometime between 10:20 p.m. Thursday to 3:00 p.m. Friday.

The bag contained the receipts from the Arps Hall West traffic booth.

A traffic and parking employee told police the money bag, containing $462.50, was put in the drop safe in the Public Safety Building Thursday night.

There were supposed to have been 26 bags in the safe, and when the safe was opened and the bags were removed on Friday, one bag was missing.

Evans Lab has screws loose

An attempted breaking and entering was reported at 4087 Evans Laboratory sometime between 11:30 p.m. last Wednesday and 6:30 a.m. Thursday.

Reports said an unknown suspect removed the screws from the vents that are on the two doors to room 4087. The suspect then pushed out the panels to gain entrance to the lab. Nothing was taken.

Toshiba computer stolen

A computer was stolen from the Hospital Clinic Buildings, 456 W. 10th Av., sometime between 4:30 p.m. Friday to 2:00 p.m. Monday.

The Toshiba personal computer, valued at $3,500, was located in room 902B, a large office in the basement of the clinic.

The cable that secured the computer to a desk had been cut.

Several people have keys to the room, which is locked over the weekend, OSU police said.

Cambodia: Stop Khmer Rouge

Cambodia could soon be left to a bunch of genocidal fanatics and the United States has no real policy on the situation.

Vietnam had agreed to withdraw its remaining 26,000 troops from Cambodia by yesterday, ending its 10-year occupation of the country.

It's easy to be happy about Vietnam pulling out. But we shouldn't forget what Cambodia was like before the Vietnamese invaded, or the possibility that power could return to those responsible.

The Khmer Rouge, to whom the Chinese supply arms, ruled Cambodia from 1975 until the Vietnamese invaded in 1979. It is now considered the most powerful faction seeking to unseat the Vietnamese-installed government of Hun Sen.

During the Khmer Rouge's rule an estimated 1 million Cambodians were slaughtered when the government tried to carry out an agrarian revolution.

Khmer Rouge leaders, many of whom are the same people who led the country in the 1970s, said they have "learned from their mistakes."

One million people executed in three and one-half years? Some mistake.

The United States has been a supporter of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the leader of an uneasy resistance coalition that has been fighting the Vietnamese. Vice President Dan Quayle has even proposed providing Sihanouk with arms.

However, the U.S. government has flip-flopped on its commitment to oust Hun Sen. At one point officials were calling the Hun Sen government an illegal regime that is unacceptable for Cambodia, and at another point accepting Hun Sen's government as the foundation of a new one if Sihanouk would have some authority in a power-sharing agreement.

Hun Sen has offered Sihanouk an opportunity to join the government, and has also denounced the murderous Khmer Rouge.

Sihanouk should accept that offer.

Civil war would be disastrous, considering the Khmer Rouge's strength.

The U.S. government should form a policy encouraging Sihanouk to accept coalition with Hun Sen, which would increase his power base and help prevent the Khmer Rouge from returning to power.

And even though we apparently have little influence with the Chinese, we should encourage them to stop supplying the Khmer Rouge since the Vietnamese have left.

Hun Sen's Communist government may not seem ideal for the United States but it is certainly the lesser of two evils.

Charity: Everyone benefits

With AIDS, environmental ruin, the national debt and a host of other problems plaguing the United States, it might be easy for one to see our society as a hopeless mass of humanity being hurled toward a perdition of pain and suffering.

Amid all our problems it seems we as caring individuals, not as societies, governments or states, are willing and able to help those truly in need.

The latest example of this phenomena is the efforts put forth to aid those residents of South Carolina who were hardest hit by Hurricane Hugo.

Individuals and communities around the country are mobilizing efforts to send everything from blankets and food to entire staffs of electrical technicians.

Efforts such as these are commendable, but why does disaster have to be the force that brings us together? Is it human nature or our social structure that keep us from making our best effort to help others all the time instead of just during the most critical hour?

Whatever the philosophy behind our motives, as a mass society we should act upon our good intentions more often. As individuals we should take an inventory of our own charity.

Before entering the rat race based on the obscene pursuit of money, complete your education at Ohio State by taking time out to help someone who has less than you.

Teach someone to read. Give blood. Volunteer to work at a homeless shelter. Clean up High Street.

It doesn't always take money, but it does take a little virtue.

It will certainly change your outlook. It will probably change your self-image. It could even change your life.

Talk about a complete education.

Big Skate candidates nominated

Pop quiz time: What do Pete Rose, Al DeSantis, and Hank (or is it Carl?) the cow have in common?

All are Ohioans? Not so. Hank, the 1989 Ohio State Fair Grand Champion Steer, actually hails from Donovan, Ill.

All are animals? Well, could be. But rumor has it that lab tests have been inconclusive.

Give up? The answer is that all three have been caught breaking the rules, yet each has negotiated for the Big Denial, thereby sidestepping any true admission of guilt. As a result, all three are nominees for the Big Skate Award of 1989.

The ingredients needed to win this award are simple. Put equal parts notoriety, greed, and pride in a large bowl. Whip liberally. Pour mixture into a thick crust of legal fees and contacts. Media-bake at 500 degrees until crust hardens. Let cool. Cut deals in appropriate-sized slices.

The saga of Rose is well known to anyone who knows anything about baseball. Allegations of gambling by the all-time hits leader were investigated by then-commissioner Bart Giamatti, who announced that a decision would be reached in June. But Rose's lawyers filed a motion to have the case heard in Cincinnati, based on accusations of prejudice on the part of Giamatti. After a two-month impasse, a deal was made whereby Giamatti banned Rose from baseball for life as a result of his gambling activities. In return, Rose will be able to apply for reinstatement in one year, and will not suffer the embarrassment associated with a finding of guilt.

Huh? The case of DeSantis is known to anyone who lives in the campus community, whom he lovingly refers to as "pigs." The IRS filed charges of tax evasion against DeSantis last March, citing the alleged preparation of false tax returns for five employees as well as improprieties in his own returns. After months of legal maneuvering and plea-bargaining, DeSantis was allowed to plead guilty to two counts of underreporting his income in 1982 and 1983. As part of the agreement, charges of tax evasion were dropped by the government. According to U.S. Attorney Michael D. Crites, "The only difference is that we changed some of the language."

Right. The story of the Hank/Carl controversy is much the same. Hank was accused of being the same steer who placed second at the Iroquois County (Ill.) Fair in July, under the name of Carl. Competitive cow that he is, he was allegedly sold by former owner Donald Kopsell to the Shealy's of Tiro, Ohio. He was then shown at the Ohio State Fair, garnering a Grand Champion trophy and $28,000 prize money. However, junior fair rules state that a steer must be owned by an exhibitor by Jan. 1, and an investigation was launched to determine the true status of Hank. After examination by OSU professors Thomas B. Turner and Peter W. Spike, it was determined that Hank and Carl were one and the same. As a result, fair officials struck an agreement whereby the Shealy's would return the $28,000 and be barred from competition for five years.

And as part of the agreement, the Shealy's do not admit to any guilt in the matter.

Confusing? It should be. Can anyone tell me that Rose didn't know that betting on your own team is a more serious offense than smoking crack between innings? Or that DeSantis didn't know what he made for two years? Or that Hank's handlers couldn't tell one cow from another?

When I was a kid, I was told there was a difference between right and wrong. As I watched my dad shave one morning, he put it in perspective.

"Dad, when will I be able to shave?" "When you're a man," he told me.

"When will that be?" "When you can take the responsibility to admit when you're wrong, and still walk away with your head up."

It took me longer than most, but I eventually saw the wisdom in his words. I learned to admit when I was wrong. At work. Among friends. During a marriage that lasted but five years. In a bar in Pataskala. Somehow, just the act of saying it seemed to take off the edge.

But things are changing, and that concerns me as the father of a young son. J.D. hasn't yet asked me when he can shave, but eventually he will. What will I tell him? That right is right and wrong is, well, not always wrong exactly, so long as you can justify it in the end? Would it be appropriate to say that it isn't whether you win or lose, but how you beat the system? Should I tell him he'll be a man when he can say, in the popular passive parlance, "mistakes were made?"

But enough philosophy. Let's talk prizes. The Big Skate of 1989 will receive a one-week, no-expense-paid (but tax deductible) stay in a DeSantis campus apartment. In addition, our lucky winner will be mentioned in my column once during the next ten weeks. The runner-up will receive a two-week stay in a DeSantis unit, and will be mentioned here twice. Consolation prizes will be the actual bat and jockstrap worn by Pete Rose when he broke Ty Cobb's record (now in a limited edition). Whoo-ee!

The nominations aren't all in yet, and I predict competition will be keen. Jim Bakker and Zsa Zsa Gabor look like sure-fire finalists, but it depends on the results of their trials. And I welcome reader participation. To nominate your favorite, simply write a letter to the editor explaining why your candidate deserves consideration for this esteemed award.

How will today's nominees come out? Well, Rose still has all those hits, and I predict that he will eventually be re-admitted to baseball and take his place in the Hall of Fame. He'll never manage again, but it won't matter. He'll be able to devote more time to hawking autographed balls, bats, and gloves on cable TV.

DeSantis still has all those apartments, and I predict that he will continue to charge rents that will render minor necessities like food and clothing unaffordable. He'll be cited by the ASPCA for cruelty to animals, but his lawyers will prove that his tenants are bipedal. But under an agreement reached between the parties, he'll hire a maintenance man who will promptly go on vacation.

And Hank? Well, Hank is still, after all, one helluva cow, and I predict he'll do well in the market. But after initial success, he'll drop out of sight. It won't matter, though, because he'll still be a hit at barbecues for months to come.

In this case, crack was a talent

The first time Slat's Grobnik cracked his knuckles, dogs all over the neighborhood began barking, and a squad car came by to see who had been shot. Slat's knew then that he had a special gift.

He could get two resounding cracks out of each finger and one out of each of his thumbs. That made 18 of them, and when he did it fast, it was like a string of Zebra firecrackers.

It worried his mother so she took him to the doctor. He said Slat's had real loud knuckles and charged her $10. As they walked home Slat's said: "I would have told you that for a quarter."

The sound bothered some people. In school he cracked them during tests because he liked to see the teacher jump. She finally made him wear heavy, fleece-lined gloves to muffle the sound. It was more peaceful, but by the time everybody else was reading at the seventh-grade level, Slat's was still trying to get his first book opened.

He liked cracking his knuckles in the movies best, especially during the romantic scenes. When Charles Boyer was kissing Bette Davis, Slat's would clasp his hands together and race through all 18 knuckles. The audience thought that Bette Davis' teeth were breaking. Who knows what they would think during the romantic scenes in today's movies.

As he got older, his knuckles grew even louder. Every summer, Slat's was given the job as starter at the alderman's neighborhood olympics.

During the winter Slat's was sponsored by Crazy Al's Tavern to crack his knuckles in competition with representatives of other taverns.

He lost only one match out of hundreds. And that loss was to Mrs. Ruby Peak, an elderly widow who represented Bruno's Tap. Mrs. Peak had a left knee that cracked like a rifle shot. It took her nearly four hours of steady cracking to beat Slat's that one time, but after that Mrs. Peak walked funny.

Like most great natural athletes, he was modest about his talent. He'd say things like: "I guess somebody up there likes to hear my knuckles pop." Or: "I could have never done it without my mother and father who both got big hands."

He once appeared on the Morris B. Sachs Radio Amateur Hour, cracking his knuckles in time to "Lady of Spain I Adore You." He did well, too, finishing in the judging behind a boy who clicked his teeth to "Lady of Spain I Adore You" and a girl who toe-danced while playing "Lady of Spain I Adore You" on her accordion.

Somebody once asked Slat's why his knuckles made a cracking noise. Slat's who could be philosophical, said: "What else are they good for?"

His answer satisfied him, and it satisfied me. Some things should not be explored too deeply or the mystery is destroyed. Look at what has happened to sex.

But now scientists, who can't leave anything alone, claim to have found the reason for the cracking sound that knuckles make.

Some British researchers did it by using special knuckle-cracking machines, X-rays and other measuring devices on a team of volunteers.

They have found this answer: There is fluid in the knuckle joints. When people stretch these joints, tiny gas bubbles form in the fluid. When you bend your fingers forward, the gas makes a popping noise.

Big deal. Now that they have figured that out, they'll probably start working on the question of why some people can wiggle their ears and others can't.

Slat's could really wiggle his. He even thought he had solved the mystery of flight. But that's another story.

Mike Royko writes for the Chicago Tribune.

Griffey's future with Reds uncertain despite good year

CINCINNATI (AP) — Interim manager Tommy Helms doesn't know whether he will be back with the Cincinnati Reds next season, but he says veteran Ken Griffey should be.

Griffey, 39, signed in August 1988 for his experience and leadership qualities after Atlanta released him, has had a productive season in 1989, an otherwise dismal year for the Reds marked by the demise of former manager Pete Rose and a rash of injuries to key players.

"He is in a situation where he's done a good job and he's in the frame of mind where he did a good job. Why not keep it that way for the off-season?" I would think we'd have to want him back here next year," said Helms, who hopes to learn soon whether the Reds will hire him as manager for the 1990 season or make a change.

Griffey's versatility in the outfield and at first base make him a valuable backup commodity, Helms said.

Griffey, whose son Ken Jr., stars in the outfield of the Seattle Mariners, said he would appreciate the invitation.

"If the team wants me, I have every intention of coming back next year," the senior Griffey said.

Going into spring training,

Griffey was expected to be used as a pinch hitter and occasional starter. No one expected him to wind up being a starter in most of the 103 he has appeared in this year. But that was before the injuries that decimated the Reds' starting lineup.

"I did a little more playing than I anticipated," Griffey said. "I only figured on about 150 at-bats or even less."

He has done better this season as a regular player than as a pinch hitter. Going into Tuesday night's game in San Diego, he was batting .266 with eight doubles, three triples, eight home runs and 30 runs batted in.

He fouled out as a pinch hitter in the sixth inning of Monday night's 5-3 Cincinnati victory. As a pinch hitter this season, he was eight-for-39 going into Tuesday's game for a .205 average with one homer, but a team-high five runs batted in.

He has played less in September as the Reds have called up young players from the minors for a look in the big leagues. But Griffey, whose major league career dates to 1973 with Cincinnati, said he fully understands a team's desire to get a first-hand look at young talent.

Cincinnati happy with Ball

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals coach Sam Wyche says he is pleased with rookie Eric Ball's performance filling in for injured fullback Ickey Woods in Monday night's victory over Cleveland.

Ball, a second-round draft choice from UCLA who was making his first professional start, gained eight yards on his first carry and finished with 78 yards on 18 carries, with his longest run going 15 yards. Veteran reserve running back Stanford Jennings, slated to spell Ball at fullback, did not have any carries.

"Eric played error-free football, no fumbles and no assignment mistakes," Wyche said. "I'm so happy he burst onto the scene the way he did."

Backfield mate James Brooks rushed 13 times for 67 yards and caught one of Boomer Esiason's three touchdown passes in the 21-14 victory.

Woods, who has been starting alongside Brooks, is out for the season after suffering a torn left knee ligament when he was tackled Sept. 17 by Pittsburgh safety Thomas Everett.

As a team, the Bengals have averaged four or more yards per rushing attempt for 16 consecutive games, a National Football League record. They averaged 4.7 yards per attempt against Cleveland.

"It all starts with giving our runners a start. It starts with the offensive line," Wyche said.

Pro tennis player returns to Ohio State

Editor's Note — Each week the Lantern will try and feature an OSU Athlete of the Week. This week pro tennis player Wendy Klitch is featured. While Klitch does not play for Ohio State, she certainly is an athlete and also an OSU student (note her grade point average below).

By Scott Campbell
Lantern sports reporter

When OSU student Jenny Klitch wrote a paper in the fifth grade describing how she was going to become a professional tennis player, her family laughed good-naturedly.

When she won the girls state high school tennis championship four years later as a freshman that laughter was reduced to chuckles.

By the time she faced tennis great Martina Navratilova in a 1985 tournament no one was laughing.

Klitch, a 24-year-old junior from Grandview Heights, returned to Ohio State as a full-time student last autumn bringing with her a court full of tennis achievements. Among those accolades were wins over Top 10 players and a ranking of 50th in the world.

"I started playing tennis when I was seven or eight but I didn't get very serious about it until I was 12 or 13," Klitch said. "I turned professional when I was 17 so I didn't play anymore high school tennis."

Klitch, who played the Virginia Slims women's circuit as well as Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and the French Open, said she had reasonably good success after turning pro in 1983.

"My best year was probably in 1985 when I was ranked as high as 50th in the world," Klitch said. "People I beat that were in the Top 10 were Kathy Rinaldi, Helena Sukova and Manuela Maleeva."

Klitch said her encounter with Navratilova was exciting although a bit nerve-racking because the Czech was on a marathon winning streak.

"It was a little intimidating because she is so physically strong," she said. "She kind of blows you off the court. She was right in the middle of winning 150 consecutive matches and I think I was number 130. It was a good experience though. It was a lot of fun."

Klitch, who maintains a 4.0 grade point average at Ohio State, said injuries and illness in 1986 convinced her to trade her tennis racquet in for textbooks.

"I had a pretty bad year when I had to have knee surgery and I was in a car accident," Klitch said. "And then I got mononucleosis and hepatitis. I wasn't able to play much that year so that's when I got back into school."

"I just started taking a few courses here and there. And once I got started full-time it was kind of hard to go back on the tour."

Klitch said the constant travel and financial worries of the professional tennis circuit reinforced her decision to return to school.

"When I was on the tour I was out of town probably 26 weeks out of the year," Klitch said. "The lifestyle on the tour is lots of highs and lots of lows. One week you're having great wins and the next week you're having tough losses."

"Some years the money was very good like in 1985. But the next year when I had all those injuries I hardly made anything. Your income is determined week by week by your performance. And expenses are incredibly high."

Klitch, who has competed in tournaments in Europe, South America and the Bahamas, said her father, Dick, was her coach throughout her career.

"I liked having him as my coach," she said. "Nobody knows my game as well as my father. I could call him on the phone and tell him about problems I was having with my game and he could tell me what I was doing wrong."

Dick Klitch, who is a teaching pro in Columbus, said his daughter's ability to take advantage of opponents' weaknesses was a key to her success.

"Her strong point was that she used great brain work when she played," he said. "She was very tactical. She always found the right way to win if it was possible."

Dick Klitch said a tournament in Indiana was the most memorable moment of his daughter's career.

"I think the highlight was when she beat Helena Sukova in a tournament in Indianapolis," he said. "She had almost beaten her the year before and lost in three sets. Sukova is not a nice person and wasn't very gracious about (the loss). So it was very gratifying."

Jenny Klitch said she remembers Chris Evert as having a great sense of humor.

"She (Evert) has this image of being 'Miss Cool' but when she gets in the locker room, she's the first person in there telling a dirty joke," Klitch said. "She was a lot different than the image she has."

Klitch, who teaches tennis part-time at a local tennis club, said she is majoring in psychology and plans on pursuing a degree in law after graduation.

Browns may use Bengals' set

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEREA (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals are pushing NFL rules to the limit, and sometimes beyond, with their no-huddle offense, Cleveland Browns coach Bud Carson said Tuesday.

"It's just another way of taking advantage of the rules, in my opinion, and they do the best job in the world of that," said Carson, whose team lost to the Bengals 21-14 Monday night. "It's a bad time to say that, because that sounds like sour grapes, but I would have said it before the game."

In fact, Carson had criticized the Bengals' style previously. But he says the Browns are now working on their own version of it, and he's sorry they didn't have it ready in time for Monday's game.

"As a defensive coordinator, when you play Cincinnati, you can tear up half of your game plan and leave it in the locker room, because they're not going to let you use it," Carson said. "That's the advantage they have."

"We're thinking of doing it. I told several people last week that if I'd had time, I'd have had it specially prepared for those people, because they have 90,000 different lineups on defense."

Carson was particularly critical of one early pass completion from Boomer Esiason to Tim McGee that he said was illegal because the Bengals had made a quick substitution and then ran the play before Cleveland could also substitute.

NFL rules say a team that makes a substitution may not run a quick play to prevent the opposition from substituting, Carson said.

"The umpire called it. I don't know how he got talked out of it," Carson said. "They conferred for about three or four minutes after the play."

Carson was also critical of his own team's play-calling on the final drive of the game. The Browns got to the Cincinnati 4-yard line with about two minutes left, but Bernie Kosar then tried three straight passes, missing two of them and getting sacked once.

"We were at the 8-yard line and we got 4 or 5 yards on first down (on an Eric Metcalf run) and then we throw the ball three times," Carson said. "It looks like we had all the wrong calls. We were in a little bit of a fix with our goal-line offense because we had (linemen) Rickey Bolden and Dan Fike out with injuries. I've said all along, we have to be better at running the football."

Carson, a long-time NFL defensive coordinator, is leaving offensive play-calling to offensive coordinator Marc Trestman and Kosar.

"I'm not critical of our coaching staff," Carson said. "I've been spending so much time with the defense, I haven't given much leadership to the offense. I still think that's the way I have to do it. But I also am responsible for winning and losing, and I won't be here very long if we keep losing."

Metcalf, a rookie first-round draft pick from Texas, reported to training camp late because of a contract dispute and is still learning the Cleveland offense.

He scored one of the Browns' touchdowns on a short but spectacular catch-and-run late in the first half, but he didn't get a chance to repeat the performance on the final three plays after he took the ball inside the 5 in the fourth quarter.

"The more he got the ball, the better he looked. That's a typical quality of the great running backs in this league," Carson said.

Boston College coach excited about return to Ohio Stadium

Former Ohio State player, coach works with Eagles backs

By Brent LaLonde
Lantern sports reporter

When former OSU head coach Earle Bruce was fired in 1987, Lenny Willis was left in coaching limbo. His boss got fired, so he didn't have a job.

But the ex-OSU assistant coach landed firmly on his feet and is now in his second season as a running backs coach at Boston College and will return Saturday to Ohio Stadium when Ohio State (1-1) hosts the Eagles (0-3).

"When Earle got released I had to find a job," Willis said. "And coach (Jack) Bicknell gave me the opportunity here at Boston College."

Willis, who played wide receiver at Ohio State in 1974-75 before spending five years in the National Football League and three in the United States Football League, said he will enjoy extra satisfaction Saturday when the Eagles enter Ohio Stadium.

"Ohio Stadium is a real joy to me," Willis said. "It will be a pleasure to coach inside the stadium. I will be just on a different side of the field is all."

Willis spent three seasons (1985-87) coaching on the OSU sideline after coming back to Ohio State in the autumn before his final year of professional football. He finished pro career in 1985 with the Portland franchise of the USFL.

He approached Bruce about the possibility of joining the OSU staff. "And the next year a wide receivers coach position opened up," Willis said. "I made up my mind then I wanted to be a coach and I have to give all the credit to coach Bruce for giving me the chance."

Like most OSU football players who competed from 1951-78, Willis was physically and emotionally touched by Woody Hayes.

"Coach Hayes helped mold my life," Willis said. "He tried to help me become the best football player I could be, but also to blend into society. He is one of the persons that influenced me becoming a coach. I apply the things I learned from coach Hayes."

Willis came to Ohio State in 1975 as a running back who carried junior college All-American honors. But with Archie Griffin about to begin his two-year reign on the Heisman Trophy, Willis was shifted to wide receiver.

He caught 17 passes for 350 yards during his senior year to help the Buckeyes to an 11-1 season, with the only loss coming to UCLA in the Rose Bowl.

Willis fondly remembers watching Griffin become the only man ever to win two Hesiman Trophies.

"It was a great achievement. Being a teammate of his, I had a small hand in it," Willis said. "Because I was basically a blocking wide receiver."

While Griffin left a lasting impression on Willis, so did Willis on Griffin.

"Lenny was all speed. Fastest guy on the team," Griffin said. "He is also a fine football coach

Lenny Willis and has done a good job at BC. And he did a good job while at Ohio State."

Boston College is averaging nearly 200 yards rushing per game this year, with tailback Mike Sanders pacing the Eagle rushers with 287 yards on 50 carries.

"We are playing well," Willis said. "We are the best 0-3 team I've seen but we have had a few bad breaks and missed calls."

While Griffin, who is now an assistant athletic director at Ohio State, remembers the quickness of Willis from their playing days, that is not the only thing that has stuck in Griffin's mind through the years.

"He was always a great dresser. Better than the rest of us," Griffin said.

On Saturday, Willis will again be sharply dressed — but he will be decked out in the maroon and gold of Boston College instead of the familiar scarlet and gray of Ohio State.

Golf team enjoys trip to Japan

By Thomas J. McHale
Lantern sports reporter

When the Ohio State men's golf team set out to their first match of the season last week, it was quite a bit different from the usual car or van ride.

The Buckeyes traveled to the 7th U.S.-Japan Intercollegiate Golf Tournament, played at the Tanagura Country Club in Sushiyama Prefecture, Japan. It was the first time the Ohio State team was invited to the event. The U.S. teams that participate are selected by a committee.

The team played three rounds on three consecutive days and placed third. Arizona State, the No. 1 team in the country, won the tournament with a team total of 865. Fresno State, a distant second at 888, was followed by Ohio State, a shot back at 889 and Georgia Tech at 897. Twelve Japanese teams competing in the contest filled in the remaining finishing spots.

"We went over there not for the competition but to have fun, enjoy the experience and make friends," head coach Jim Brown said. "It's an experience we won't forget. I'm sure we all made some lifetime friends while we were there."

Junior Chris Smith led the Buckeyes with rounds of 75-74-71-220 to place fifth in individual scores. Doug Davis scored 76-70-75-221 to tie for sixth. Other Ohio State golfers were Chris Rule 81-77-68-226, Gary Nicklaus 77-78-73-228 and Mike Schafer 75-81-85-231.

Brown said the team improved their performance as the three day tournament progressed. On the last day, the team shot a one under par 287 on the par 72 course.

Smith said the course was set in the mountains, about four hours by bus from Tokyo.

"It is a very prestigious tournament and it was an honor to be invited," Smith said.

"We went over hoping to have a good tournament and we did well as a team," Smith said. "We have some really good talent. We're strong and have some depth. It's encouraging for us."

Brown said the Japanese don't have access to courses and practice facilities as most of the U.S. colleges have.

"Many of the Japanese golfers don't have the opportunity to play as much as we do," Smith said. "There are so few courses and it takes so much time to travel to them."

Brown said he gave an open invitation to any of the Japanese teams to come to the Ohio State courses to play. Though most Japanese teams that travel to the U.S. will play in Hawaii or California, Brown hopes a team can make it to Columbus.

"We gained a lot of confidence from the tournament," Brown said. "We think we can play well this season."

This week the team starts an eight round qualifier to decide who fills the top five spots on the squad.

Ohio State's first match of the season is the Buckeye Fall Classic on October 13, 14, and 15. Teams from the Big Ten and throughout the Midwest will be competing.

Music school welcomes violinist

By Cheryl Cannon
Lantern arts reporter

One of the world's most outstanding violinists and teachers will be welcomed to The Ohio State University today.

Yfrah Neaman, director of advanced violin studies at the Guildhall School of Music in London, will speak on the topic of Brahms' violin and piano sonatas at 8 p.m. in Weigel Hall Auditorium. He will also hold a master class for violin students, Thursday at 10 a.m. in Weigel Hall Auditorium. Both events are free.

Neaman is a distinguished musical scholar and has published editions of major works in the violin area. He has also made recordings of different types of music.

Donald Harris, the dean of the College of the Arts, said "Neaman is a great teacher and coach. He is an inspiration to all students and gives a wonderful master class."

Harris has also presented Neaman to speak at the University of Hartford Hartt School of Music and considers him to be one of the greatest violinists around.

This is Neaman's first visit to OSU.

Neaman, who has been a prominent violin soloist for the past 30 years, gives master classes and speaks throughout the world.

He has spoken at schools such as Indiana University, Mannes College, and the Manhattan School of Music.

Michael Davis, professor of music at OSU, said, "Neaman is very much in demand as a visiting guest because of his unusual musical insights and outgoing personality."

Davis said even though Neaman is in demand, OSU did not have a difficult time getting him to speak here.

As soon as Neaman has finished speaking at OSU he will be going to Italy to judge a competition there, Davis said.

In the past, Neaman has taken two OSU students with him to London for further study of the violin. There are no students studying with him at this time.

Sharon Ferguson, public relations manager in the office of communication at the College of the Arts said, "We are very excited to see such a prominent violinist come to speak to OSU students. I hope they will take the opportunity to go see him."

Publishing unaffected by 'Satanic Verses'

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — "The Satanic Verses" is one novel that shook the world. But one year and 1.1 million hardback copies after it was released, the factors publishers weigh in deciding what to print remain the same, experts say.

"The book was one of a kind — I mean it was a fictional fantasy that happened to affect large numbers of people and particularly people in positions of power, and I think that's a very unlikely thing to be repeated right now," said John Baker, editor-in-chief of Publisher's Weekly, a trade magazine.

Viking Penguin Inc. published the book a year ago.

Six months later, on Feb. 14, Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini fixed the world's attention on it when he put a $5.2 million bounty on the life of its Moslem author, Salman Rushdie. Khomeini also urged Moslems to kill his publishers.

The book, which most Moslem countries banned because they said it blasphemed Islam, plunged Iran into a confrontation with the West.

Viking Penguin says its decision to publish the book was not influenced by its potentially inflammatory content.

"We certainly didn't buy 'The Satanic Verses' because we thought it would be controversial. We bought it because we think Salman Rushdie is one of the most distinguished authors of the late 20th century," said Paul Slovak, a spokesman at the publishing house.

Slovak declined Monday to disclose sales or profit figures for the book. But he added that despite the huge sales, Viking Penguin may just about break even due to costly security measures it was forced to take.

"We can't let our guard down completely even now," he said.

The book's release in England on Sept. 22 led to a series of bookstore bombings and other troubles, including the refusal of some stores to stock it out of fear for their safety.

"The Satanic Verses" first appeared in U.S. stores in January, though it wasn't officially released in this country until Feb. 22.

David Rubin, a New York University journalism professor, said the determining factor among book publishers in deciding what books to offer is profitability, not whether it will be controversial.

"The notion of publishing a book because it is critical of government or some group — Palestinians, Moslems, or Jews — and banking on that and the publicity that may come from it is much too speculative a strategy for people who are basically kind of accountants," Rubin said.

Barbara Reno, a spokeswoman for Simon & Schuster, said "people assume a lot of the time publishers aren't publishing a book because they're worried about controversy — in fact, they're making business decisions."

Jeffrey Robinson, who wrote a best-selling, controversial biography of former Saudi Arabian oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani published in England, said profit motivated Viking Penguin to print more copies of "The Satanic Verses" when demand skyrocketed.

Charles Hayward, president of Simon & Schuster's trade division, said controversy should not factor into a book's rejection. "Satanic Verses was such an extreme, there's no way to anticipate that type of outrageous reaction," he said.

But, he admitted, "we sometimes buy controversial books to generate news."

Greenwich Village folk singer Eric Anderson will be performing Thursday night at Stache's, 2404 N. High St. Opening for Anderson will be J.P. Olsen, a former lead singer of the local band The Beetkeepers. Tickets are $8 in advance and $9 at the door, and are available at Used Kids and Singing Dog Records.

Musician shows he's no ghost

For Eric Anderson, it took 12 years, but he's finally back.

The popular Greenwich Village songwriter recently released a new album, "Ghosts Upon the Road" on Gold Castle records, his first American release since 1977.

Anderson is also in the midst of a world tour, stretching through the North and South America, Europe, Australia, and Japan.

From 1964 through the mid-1970s, Anderson had a string of hits, including "Violets of Dawn" and "Thirsty Boots." His songs have been recorded by Linda Ronstadt, the Grateful Dead, Joni Mitchell and others.

But in the mid-1970s, folk music went out of fashion, and with it, the music which carried the Woodstock generation through the Vietnam War.

The late 1980s, however, have brought a slew of new folk musicians such as Tracy Chapman and Suzanne Vega, who are bringing folk music near the top of popular music. With this resurrection, a whole new generation is discovering the first wave of Greenwich Village folk music, and leading the way is Eric Anderson.

During the last few years, Anderson has never stopped writing, nor has he changed his style to fit in with the commercialism that the late 1970s ushered in.

"I did not look at it in terms of trends," said Anderson. "I was really concerned about writing, being able to write what I wanted to, and to look and examine things that I wanted to. Trends do not offer or provide those boxes of concept."

"Ghosts Upon the Road" is a musical tribute to the Greenwich Village movement of the 1960s. Anderson weaves tales of his early, struggling days as a songwriter, as well as songs about lost friends, opportunities and love.

MUSIC

While Anderson enjoys listening to many contemporary artists, he sees today's music and stardom as mostly commercial and posing.

"A lot of it is just bland, processed music. It does not really have a nerve to it," Anderson said. "I do not attach any particular status or prestige to being a rock singer. I've met a lot of dumb ones."

Educating the public about issues and concerns through the strength of music is very important to Anderson. He is deeply concerned about tackling issues such as the Vietnam veterans, the homeless and racism. Anderson believes that music can help end hunger, injustice and discrimination.

"By getting people to hear music, we can at least bring issues to their attention," said Anderson. "I think the recipients of the music have to learn to think for themselves, and be aware of it and sit down for 10 minutes and think about it. If they think about it, they will see something true about what is going on."

Anderson, 46, first felt the impact of music in the 1950s, listening to Elvis Presley and the Everly Brothers. His extensive readings of books by Kerouac, Dostoyevsky, and others, peaked his interest in the messages of lyrics. With that, he became interested in folk music and artists like Woody Guthrie and the Weavers.

By 1961, Anderson had begun opening up for acts like Ramblin' Jack Elliot and Peter, Paul and Mary. By 1964 he had moved to New York, where he became part of the first wave of Greenwich Village songwriters, which included Tom Paxton, Phil Ochs and Bob Dylan.

Since then, Anderson has recorded many albums, including the acclaimed "Blue River" in 1972. He also performed at pop festivals over the years, including a tour for UNICEF in 1980. In 1976 he was the first American singer-songwriter to tour Japan.

After 25 years of performing and recording music, Anderson has not slowed down. One of the reasons for his longevity, is he has not given in to the pressures of commercialism and the stress of stardom.

"I got into this business for the long run," Anderson said. "Language is the main vehicle that attracted me to this thing. I did not come in as a guitar player, session guy or pop songwriter. I got into it more for the exploratory possibilities of writing. Where the river went around the bend, I had no idea."

For Anderson, music is a form of art. It is something which should be cared and labored for, and most importantly, loved. On "Ghosts Upon the Road" and throughout his career, Anderson has consistently brought these qualities together, to transport his listeners with his musical tales.

Anderson will perform in Columbus at Stache's, Thursday September 28 at 8:30 p.m. The opening act for Anderson will be J.P. Olsen from New York. The concert will be a homecoming for Olsen who used to be the lead singer for the now-defunct local band "The Beetkeepers."

Singer Joel suing former manager

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Billy Joel is suing his former manager for $90 million, alleging that he stole millions of dollars and lost millions more in risky investments such as horsebreeding.

The suit was filed Monday, the day after Joel was hospitalized with severe abdominal pain from kidney stones, the New York Post reported today.

The pain struck Joel as he waited Sunday afternoon at John

F. Kennedy International Airport for a Concorde supersonic flight to London, said Joel's lawyer, Leonard Marks. The trip was part of a tour of Europe to promote his new album, "Storm Front."

Marks would not disclose the name of the hospital. "He's in this country and he's OK — that's all I can tell you," he said.

The lawsuit was filed in state court against Frank Weber, who was fired Aug. 30, after an audit uncovered the alleged thefts, Marks said. Weber also was Joel's former brother-in-law.

The lawsuit charges that Weber used Joel's money in the form of interest-free loans; misused his power of attorney by signing the singer's name to documents without his consent; and invested Joel's money in high-risk ventures despite the singer's express instructions to invest conservatively.

Court documents said the horsebreeding venture in which Weber invested without his consent, Thoroughbred Breeding Associates, is a partnership with Weber as general partner.

There was no answer at Weber's lawyer's office when The Associated Press called Monday.

Dayton probes drug problem

ASSOCIATED PRESS

DAYTON (AP) — The city that recorded 1,400 drug-related arrests last year may provide a gold mine of information for an Ohio Senate panel researching the drug problem.

"It's sufficient enough that ... after several years we have been able to obtain both state and federal funding to assemble various task forces in this area," Montgomery County Sheriff's Inspector Michael D'Amico, director of a local anti-drug task force, said Tuesday.

State Sen. Neal Zimmers, D-Dayton, invited to sit in on the Tuesday night field hearing called by the Ohio Senate Judiciary Committee, has said about 1,400 people were arrested on drug charges in the city last year. He said 85 percent of those charges were related to crack cocaine.

Despite the magnitude of the problem, D'Amico said there is progress.

"We are now able to focus beyond the street-level narcotics," D'Amico said. "We are making substantial seizures of cocaine. We are seizing assets."

Last Friday, Jay Aaron Shephard, 25, of suburban Trotwood, was indicted on federal narcotics charges that allege he was the biggest cocaine and heroin seller in the Dayton area, bringing in perhaps as much as 20 kilos of cocaine a month from Los Angeles and other points. U.S. Attorney D. Michael Crites described Shephard as the head of "probably the largest cocaine-heroin organization" in the region.

Candidates meet in TV debate

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland's five mayoral candidates began the final week of the primary campaign Tuesday with traditional stump appearances and preparations for the second of three televised debates.

Scheduled to participate in the debate were Clerk of Courts Benny Bonanno, City Council President George Forbes, Cuyahoga County Commissioner Tim Hagan and state Sen. Michael White, all Democrats, and Republican Ralph J. Perk Jr., Cleveland school board president.

Hagan said he was participating in the debate under protest because one of the original panelists, Mary Anne Sharkey, editorial page director of The Plain Dealer, withdrew when three Forbes' campaign representatives protested her selection.

The three had warned the sponsors — WKYC-TV and the League of Women Voters — that they would urge Forbes to skip the debate if Sharkey was a panelist, citing their objections to a Plain Dealer political cartoon they considered racially offensive.

The newspaper later apologized for the cartoon. Sharkey said she was withdrawing from the debate panel so the paper would not become an issue in the campaign.

The non-partisan primary will be held next Tuesday, with the two top vote-getters advancing to the Nov. 7 ballot.

Mayor George Voinovich is not seeking re-election. He is a candidate for the 1990 Republican nomination for governor.

The first televised debate was Sunday on WEWS-TV. The final televised debate will be Saturday on WJW-TV.

Panelists in Tuesday's debate were Vivian Goodman, news director of WERE-AM, who replaced Sharkey; Sharon Glaspie, a community relations manager of Ohio Bell; and Dick Feagler, a commentator for WKYC.

Most of the candidates took some time out earlier Tuesday to prepare for the debate.

Bonanno had a mock debate Tuesday morning with supporting city councilmen, according to campaign spokesman Jeff Hedrick. Bonanno also appeared at a midday fund-raiser and a private

It was against this backdrop that the committee planned to hold the first of six hearings outside the state capital of Columbus to assess the drug problem.

"The principal thing is to get a cross-section of input from people who are directly affected by the drug problem," said Sen. Paul Pfeifer, R-Bucyrus, committee chairman.

Dayton's hearing was set in an inner-city housing project, with officials, ministers, police officers, social workers and hospital workers scheduled to testify.

"They want to go out in the communities where there's been a significant problem with it," said Joel Potts, a spokesman for the committee. "It's basically because the legislation that we pass is going to affect them the most."

But Zimmers said it is time to stop holding hearings and begin work on drug legislation.

"What we don't need in this state is another round of community hearings," Zimmers said. "It's time to get to work on the bills."

Zimmers is a sponsor of a $50 million anti-drug bill that would create special judges and prosecutors, new prisons and a state drug enforcement agency.

"My personal view is we don't need more study," Zimmers said. "I think that the chairman's ultimate purpose is to further enhance his statewide political ambitions."

Pfeifer has said he is considering running for governor.

meeting with clergymen, Hedrick said.

Forbes talked to a group of senior citizens and attended work at his private law firm during the day, according to his scheduler, Ruby Moss.

Hagan set aside several hours before the debate to run, spend time with his family and prepare for the debate. His other campaign stops included an appearance at a meeting on teen pregnancy and testimony at a hearing on health care legislation proposed by his brother, state Rep. Robert Hagan, D-Madison.

Perk divided the day between campaign appearances before small groups and at his private law practice, according to campaign manager Pat Gallina. He also set aside some time to practice for the debate by responding to questions put to him by staff members.

White went to East High School to discuss his proposal for a daytime curfew to curb truancy. He prepared for the debate in between the news conference and two other campaign stops, spokesman Tom Andrzejewski said.

Senate shuts down bases

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate on Tuesday overwhelmingly endorsed shutting down 86 military bases and scaling down five more, approving the cost-saving plan as part of a $288.2 billion military spending bill.

By a vote of 86-14, the Senate approved an amendment that effectively eliminates a provision that would have held $300 million for the base closings until the General Accounting Office certified that the savings exceeded the cost.

A federal commission, in making its recommendation last December, estimated a savings of $5.6 billion over 20 years. Previous Defense Secretary Frank C. Carlucci accepted the panel's plan and the House last spring upheld the proposal.

The Senate action on the measure sponsored by Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, came despite appeals from a handful of members petitioning on behalf of their home-state bases.

Prior to the Senate action, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said further cuts in the defense budget by the Democratic-controlled Congress may force him to close more bases.

"Given all the demands to redirect dollars from the defense budget to other areas, I've got no choice but to find ways to close additional bases," Cheney told reporters.

THE DECISION came the day after Senate Democrats and the administration reached a tentative agreement to boost President Bush's anti-drug effort by $900 million. The plan requires a cut of about $1.3 billion in the Pentagon budget.

In other work on the spending bill, the Senate:
• Approved by voice vote a non-binding resolution supporting continued research and development on the National Aerospace Plane, the joint NASA and Defense Department project. The resolution asks the National Space Council to report to Congress on the combined program.

• Debated an $8.5 billion amendment that includes $1 billion for four cargo ships and two tankers, $1.3 billion to replace nuclear power reactors on the carrier USS Enterprise and $1.7 billion for 174 Apache helicopters.

• Considered a Republican-backed amendment increasing the funds for Star Wars by $298 million. The spending bill cuts President Bush's $4.9 billion request for Star Wars to about $3.7 billion, which when added to the $355 million in Energy Department money and military construction funds leaves a total of about $4.1 billion. That amount falls short of the $4.5 billion total approved by the Senate in the authorization bill.

IN THE debate over base closings, Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, argued that a mistake had been made and the provision simply asks "that the comptroller general analyze, otherwise these bases have no appeal. There is no Supreme Court. This is the Supreme Court."

Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill., who has fought against plans to close Chanute Air Force Base near Rantoul, Ill., charged that the commission "cooked the books."

Behind the scenes, the lobbying firm of Patton, Boggs and Blow urged members to vote against the Nunn amendment. Picking up the lobbyists tab of about $30,000 were residents and businesses in several Illinois counties and cities near Chanute AFB.

But Nunn warned against the provision, calling it a "backdoor way to block a process that has been under way for a year." Sen. John Warner of Virginia, ranking Republican on the Armed Services Committee, said the provision would undercut any future base closings.

UC workers plan picket, seek first union contract

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Clerical workers seeking their first union contract with the University of Cincinnati planned to picket a board of trustees meeting in an effort to pressure the school into agreeing to their terms.

District 925 of the Service Employees International Union organized the rally and a one-hour afternoon work stoppage Tuesday. The union said it also plans a one-day strike Thursday unless there is an agreement reached.

The union represents about 1,200 employees at the university and the University of Cincinnati Medical Center. About half of the employees belong to the union.

Debbie Schneider, the union's regional director, said the union wants a 4 percent cost-of-living raise now with an additional 1.5 percent in January, and 5 percent raises on July 1, 1990, and 1991. The union has rejected the proposed health plan, contending it would force employees to pay for benefits they already receive.

University officials say four other campus unions have already accepted 4 percent annual pay increases and the same health benefits plan the clerical workers rejected. The other four unions represent faculty and librarians, nurses, maintenance and custodial workers, and operating engineers.

"We believe that the package we've got on the table is an excellent one," university spokesman Greg Hand said.

The union is trying for its first contract with the university since becoming the collective bargaining representative of the employees last October. The length of the contract has not been determined.

Clerical workers receive average annual pay of $19,000 at the 36,000-student university, the state's second largest behind Ohio State University.

Contract negotiations have been under way since February, but even the intervention of a federal mediator and a fact-finder have failed to resolve the issues. The union wants the university to increase its salary offer and improve a proposed health benefits plan.

Last Thursday, union members and supporters were asked to shut off their computer terminals for a half hour in protest. There have been no contract talks since Friday, Schneider said.

"The ball's in their court," she said of university officials. Classes started Sept. 20.

Two weeks ago, union members rejected the university's latest proposal, which a fact-finder had recommended and the university board of trustees approved.

Smith Corona presents three products that can help make schoolwork academic.

The Smith Corona PWP 2000 Personal Word Processor is in a class by itself. It's so compact it can fit in the most compact dorm room. Yet, thanks to features like a built-in disk drive, 100,000 character DataDisk capacity, and a crystal clear display, it makes it easy to transform B's into A's.

For those who prefer an electronic typewriter, the Smith Corona XD 4600 is the typewriter of preference. With its 16 character display and approximately 7,000 characters of editable memory, you can have the convenience of word processing features with the simplicity of a typewriter.

Of course, the pocket-size Spell-Right™ 300P also comes with impeccable references. In this case, a built-in electronic dictionary, a thesaurus, a calculator, even a collection of challenging word games.

So if you're thinking Magna Cum Laude at the end of this year, don't forget to think Smith Corona at the beginning of this year.

Mad Dads fight drugs in Omaha

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Los Angeles gangs have found a new market for their drugs in the Midwest, and the resulting violence has stirred a group of fathers calling themselves "Mad Dads" to fight back.

The Mad Dads, armed only with radios, patrol gang-infested areas of north Omaha to break up drug deals and reclaim neighborhoods marked as gang turf.

Earlier this month, they announced plans to use a helicopter, but a spokesman said Monday the group was grounding that idea because it caused too much controversy.

Formed by fathers angry about gangs known as the Bloods and Crips dealing drugs in their neighborhood, Mad Dads has expanded its reach throughout the city.

"We felt we had to get out on the streets and start offering to our community some semblance of security," Eddie Staton, an organizer, said last week.

"If Mad Dads have done anything citywide, it's created an atmosphere that there are some folks fighting back who have been perceived as part of the problem," Staton said.

Police estimate there are about 50 hard-core Crips in Omaha and an equal number of rival Bloods. Each gang also has about 200 associates and "wannabe" members in the city, police said.

The Los Angeles-based gangs have established a drug trade laced with a kind of violence new to this largely middle-class city of 350,000.

Drive-by shootings are becoming commonplace, and one public housing project is so racked by drugs and violence that residents have nicknamed it "Vietnam."

After gang members beat John Foster's son, Foster, Staton and four other men formed a committee that in May became Mad Dads — Men Against Destruction Defending Against Drugs and Social Disorder. The group has grown to more than 200, 85 percent of whom are black, Staton said.

Sheppard to end silence

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND (AP) — The son of Dr. Sam H. Sheppard, convicted in a celebrated 1954 murder case, returns to Ohio next month to campaign against the death penalty and break a 20-year silence on his father's case.

The death penalty "is a moral blight on our nation," said Sam R. "Chip" Sheppard, 42, who indicated he would discuss the murder of his mother and his father's two trials during his appearances in his hometown.

His father was imprisoned 10 years for the 1954 murder of his wife in their suburban Bay Village home. The doctor was later acquitted of the crime.

Sheppard is coming to Ohio as part of a speaking series sponsored by Citizens United for Rehabilitation of Errants, or CURE.

After a 1968 news conference marking his father's acquittal at his second trial, Sheppard refused all interviews.

He settled in Cambridge, Mass., where he works about three days a week as a dental technician, using the rest of his time working for groups like CURE that oppose the death penalty.

"I hope for a fair and even-handed reception. I hope for constructive discussion of these things, and not some of the low-handed sensationalism that has been a hallmark of the case," Sheppard said.

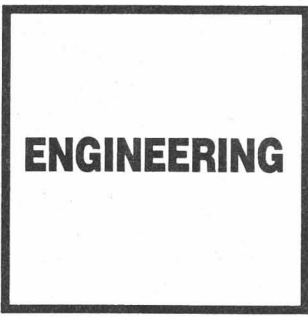

Sheppard will speak in the Warren area Oct. 24 and the following day he will be in Columbus to speak to the state's Correctional Inspection Committee. Sheppard will speak to the Cleveland City Club on Oct. 27 and at Cleveland State University on Oct. 28.

City council helps homeless, Housing Now to attend march

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOLEDO (AP) — Seven of nine City Council members donated a total of $1,050 Tuesday to help finance a housing advocacy coalition's trip to Washington to attend a march for the homeless.

The members donated $150 each to help send Housing Now representatives to the Oct. 7 demonstration. Councilwoman Judy Jones did not pledge money. Councilman Gene Cook did not attend Tuesday's meeting.

Ms. Jones declined comment on why she did not support the measure. Several telephone calls to Cook's office were not returned Tuesday.

Toledo's Law Department ruled Monday that the city could not give $1,000 as promised to Housing Now for its trip. The department found that granting the money would be an improper expenditure of city funds.

AT TUESDAY'S meeting, Councilman Russ Wozniak said he would raise money to help fund Housing Now's trip. Wozniak last week requested legislation to give $1,000 to the group.

Councilman Jack Ford told Wozniak that said he would donate $150 and most of the council members pledged their support.

"I was proud of the Council members who supported the measure and the premise that people make a difference and people count," Wozniak said after the meeting.

At issue with the Law Department was whether the money would serve a public purpose, Wozniak said.

"The department stated that they did not feel it (the demonstration) was an appropriate sense of public purpose. I strongly disagree with them," he said.

"But once they said that publicly, I believe it poisoned the well. I think that anything Council would have done with public dollars would have been tainted and second guessed as to whether it was appropriate or not."

Housing Now will be among hundreds of groups marching to demand that Congress restore billions of dollars cut from federal housing programs since 1981.

The Ohio Board of Realtors last week also donated $1,000, allowing Housing Now to send four buses with nearly 200 people to Washington.

"I'M PLEASED that they are willing to personally make a contribution," said Sister Ann Verhesen, Housing Now's Toledo director and a member of the Ohio Coalition for the Homeless.

"We weren't sure what would happen without the money. We would have gone, but we might not have been able to send as many people," she said.

Housing Now has asked Toledo officials to allocate $1 million annually to the city's Department of Housing and Neighborhood Revitalization to fund housing programs for the next 10 years.

Council will examine the proposal at an Nov. 2 public hearing.

Housing advocates contend Toledo has 4,400 abandoned homes that, if rehabilitated, could help solve the city's housing problem. Several thousand people are on waiting list for public housing.

The coalition estimates that several hundred people are living in shelters and the streets. Thousands more may be living with friends, families, in cramped quarters — one step away from being homeless.

Bill to help home buyers

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government should help people buy their first homes by providing matching money to stretch small savings into bigger down payments or cover closing costs, Rep. Marcy Kaptur said Tuesday.

The Ohio Democrat introduced legislation to set up a special matching-fund program for first-time home buyers who don't earn enough to save for a down payment required by lenders.

"This program will help the working men and women of America scale the toughest hurdle they face in buying a first home: accumulating a down payment," she said.

Under her bill, matching money would be available to low- and middle-income people who would qualify by meeting an income requirement. The requirement would vary from state to state, but Ms. Kaptur said it would be about $31,000 in Ohio.

Anyone who earned less than that would be able to put money aside in a special interest-bearing down payment account, with a goal of saving the equivalent of a 5 percent down payment.

People would be given seven years to save, and would have to repay the government money as part of their mortgages.

Ms. Kaptur estimated the program would cost $17 million in the first year, rising to $381 million in the fourth year. But she expected the total cost of the program over 30 years to be $240 million, taking into account money repaid to the government.

Here's how the plan would work:

The government each year would look at the total amount saved and provide a written promise showing how much matching money each would-be homeowner was due. People considered in the medium-income range would get $1.50 or $2 for each dollar saved on their own. Those on the low end of the salary scale would get $3 or $4 for each dollar saved.

After saving enough for a down payment, program participants would decide whether to use the government's money to pay closing costs or provide a larger down payment.

They would still have to go through the usual procedures to find a mortgage and negotiate rates and monthly payments.

Repayments to the government would be rolled into the mortgage payments.

Ms. Kaptur's bill is an outgrowth of an unusual alliance between the mortgage insurance industry and the Chicago-based consumer group National People's Action. They worked out all the details and then took the idea to Ms. Kaptur.

"This bill will make it possible for many more hard-working American families to own their own home," William Lacey, president of the Mortgage Insurance Companies of America, told a news conference. "It helps the people who need help and it gives them the right kind of help."

New York man stands trial

ASSOCIATED PRESS

URBANA (AP) — A New York man charged with aggravated murder in connection with the July 1982 slaying of a Christiansburg farmer appeared in court Tuesday after being returned to Ohio to stand trial.

Vincent Salvatore Simone Jr.,

41, of Highland, N.Y., was flown back to Ohio from New York on Monday night by sheriff's deputies, according to Champaign County Sheriff Paul Williams. Simone appeared before Champaign County Judge Roger Wilson and was presented with the indictment against him. Wilson ordered Simone's arraignment scheduled for later this week and bond set at that time.

Williams said he and two Miami County deputies who are pilots flew back to Ohio with Simone, who was being held in the Champaign County Jail. However, Williams told Wilson he intended to transfer Simone to another detention facility.

Walkout continues

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CANTON (AP) — The strike by 5,400 Timken Co. steelworkers entered its second day Tuesday and both sides said they had agreed to resume contract talks.

Jack Nicholson, president of United Steel Workers of America Local 1123 in Canton, and John Mulder, a company spokesman, said talks would resume at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday. Bargaining began Aug. 17 and talks were last held on Thursday.

The walkout affects about 5,000 workers in Stark County, about 190 in nearby Wooster and 250 in Columbus.

Timken makes alloy steel bars and tubes, as well as tapered roller bearings, for use in the automotive, railroad and construction industries.

The workers walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. Monday, when the four-year contract expired, after a dispute over benefits and pay.

Under the expired contract, workers were paid an average of $11.83, the union said.

The union said it wanted a "significant" increase in pensions. The current minimum pension received by an hourly worker with 30 years of service is $592 a month, the union said.

Philips holders file suit

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Two Philips Industries Inc. shareholders filed suit Tuesday in a bid to block a $750 million merger that would result in the sale of all company stock.

The suit was filed in Montgomery County Common Pleas Court by Thomas Roever of Chicago and Edith Citron of Palm Beach, Fla. The two ask that the complaint be certified as a class-action suit, with more than 4,300 potential members.

On Monday, Jesse Philips, founder and chairman of the building-materials company, announced a merger agreement in which a Merrill Lynch holding company would buy out Philips stock at $25.50 per share and the new company would go private.

The suit alleges that the merger comes at a time when Philips Industries is poised to significantly increase its earnings and that top management has failed to tell shareholders the full extent of that potential. It goes on to say that shareholders could reap a much higher profit if the assets of the company were sold.

The Dayton-based building-materials company employs about 10,000 workers in 50 locations around the country and in Canada and Holland. Approximately 500 of those employees work in Dayton.

Philips spokesman William Roberts declined comment on the suit.

"We've got to review the lawsuit before we can make any comment," Roberts said.

Named as defendants in the suit are Jesse Philips, Robert H. Brethen, vice chairman; Joseph W. Deering, president; and William J. McCanna, chief executive officer.

The suit alleges the deal is being undertaken to allow some of the defendants to remain as officers of the new company while cashing out shareholders at an unfair price. It also alleges that Philips Industries has a longstanding business relationship with Merrill Lynch, which has a history of keeping key management in place.

The suit called the action "an attempt by defendants to aggrandize their personal and financial positions and interests and to enrich themselves at the expense of and to the detriment of the public stockholders."

Philips said the merger agreement with MLPI Holdings Inc. was signed Sunday and the transaction is expected to be completed within about 90 days. MLPI Holdings was formed at the direction of Merrill Lynch Capital Partners Inc. to complete the deal.

According to the lawsuit, there were more than 28 million shares of Philips Industries common stock as of June 7. It said Jesse Philips owns about 1.5 million shares, or 5.4 percent.

Philips, who earlier this year announced plans to retire, has said he intends to vote in favor of the stock sale.

The suit requests an injunction blocking the merger and unspecified compensatory damages.

Philips Industries was founded in 1957 by Philips, who built it from a window manufacturer with 20 employees to a diversified corporation with 10,000 workers. The company manufactures components for buildings, manufactured homes, recreational vehicles and the transportation industry.

New fridge has it all

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON (AP) — A new appliance that can chill beer, keep ice cream frozen and cook pizza has college students clamoring, and the inventor, a former computer salesman, crossing his fingers.

The Microfridge is a three-piece appliance comprised of a compact refrigerator, a separate freezer compartment and a mini-microwave. It retails for $429.

The founders of Microfridge Inc. of suburban Sharon did more than stack three appliances on top of one another and paint them the same color, however. Their machine, which stands under 4-feet tall, was invented to use no more power than a compact refrigerator.

"Quite simply, when one unit is running, the other one is off," explained co-founder Robert P. Bennett, 33, who said he holds two patents on the Microfridge's circuitry.

When the microwave is turned on, the freezer and refrigerator shut off temporarily. They go back on when the cooking is done, Bennett said. Product testing showed that even when the microwave was on for 45 minutes, the refrigerator and freezer sections gained only 3 degrees, he said.

The first shipment of 1,700 Microfridges went out at the end of August. The company plans two more shipments by the end of November. Sales are expected to top $1.9 million this year, Bennett said, and "the phones are still ringing."

Microfridge has three distributors, which sell the appliance through colleges, military bases and a few stores. The device, whose components are made in various countries, is assembled in San Diego by the U.S. arm of Sanyo Electric Co. Ltd., the Japanese electronics and appliance giant.

"The biggest problem is going to be eventually we'll have to think about competition," said Bennett. "Once we create a market, either we'll have built up until we're the recognized name, or we won't have — that will allow someone else to come in."

For now, the efforts of Bennett and his co-founders, Peter Soriano, 47, and Ed Ward, 37, are focused on promoting the appliance for use in schools, hotels, office suites and military bases.

More than 88 percent of the first shipment was bought by colleges and their students, Bennett said. And students are forming waiting lists at Brown University in Rhode Island and the University of Southern California.

Lauren Massara, a freshman at Brown University, raved about her Microfridge.

"I think it could almost be considered a necessity if you're not on the three-meal plan. You can make breakfast, Eggo Waffles," she said. Because of the Microfridge in her room, Massara said she plans to go off the full-meal plan.

Relying too much on the relatively small college market could ultimately sink Microfridge Inc., said Chuck Ryan, an industry analyst at Merrill Lynch & Co.

"I think he's got a difficult sale on a price basis, because college students can buy a $99 refrigerator and a $99 microwave and save yourself a lot of money," said Ryan.

According to Bennett, however, a separate freezer makes up for that price difference.

Marassa agreed. "You don't have to worry about this teensy space not big enough to hold ice cubes," she said, referring to the minute freezer compartment of most compact refrigerators. "I mean, this can hold ice cream."

Kroger walk out continues

ROANOKE, Va. (AP) — Members of the United Food and Commercial Workers union rejected Monday night a tentative agreement with the Kroger Co. food stores to end a strike that has idled 2,600 workers in three states.

Gene Moser, president of Local 278, said the agreement failed by 70 votes.

He said the union was prepared to stay on strike as long as it takes to get an acceptable contract.

Moser had said earlier in the day that union and company officials met through the night in an emergency session after about 900 union members voted to reject the company's then-final offer Sunday night. The tentative agreement was reached about 6 a.m. Monday, according to union officials, who said they would recommend that the membership accept the settlement.

The 2,600 workers involved are at 39 Kroger stores in western Virginia, eastern Tennessee and southern West Virginia.

"All Kroger food stores will continue to be open for business," Edwin Sieveking, vice president for Kroger's Mid-Atlantic marketing area, said Monday in a statement released from his Roanoke office.

Moser said picketing would continue until a settlement is approved by the membership.

The offer rejected Sunday called for a 20-cent-an-hour wage increase. The union's request for a 38-cent-an-hour increase over four years was contained in the tentative settlement rejected by the rank and file Monday.

Moser said the union gave up a $1-per-hour increase when it signed the old contract three years ago in an attempt to help the company fight off a takeover. Since then the company has returned 62 cents of that give-back in pay raises, Moser said.

He said the union also gave up pension benefits worth 5 cents an hour and health and welfare benefits worth 11 cents an hour under the old contract. Moser said the company's proposed health-and-benefits package was unacceptable to the members, but declined to give any details.

Kroger, a Cincinnati, Ohio-based company, reported losses of $17.5 million in the first half of 1989 on sales of $8.9 billion.

The contract expired on Sept. 9 but the company and the union agreed to a two-week extension to allow the union to collect additional information on health and welfare benefits.

Bakker scandal points at Falwell

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — A former builder for Jim Bakker testified in the PTL founder's fraud and conspiracy trial that the Rev. Jerry Falwell offered Bakker a $300,000 annual salary for life to keep quiet.

Falwell, who took over PTL after Bakker resigned in a sex and money scandal, also offered Bakker other perks, Roe Messner said Monday.

Messner testified that Falwell sent him to Palm Springs, Calif., in May 1987 to offer Bakker a deal: the $300,000 salary, a maid, a security guard, health insurance and telephone expenses "if he kept his mouth shut."

But a Falwell spokesman said it was Bakker who asked for the money and perks.

It was not clear whether Bakker turned down the alleged offer, Messner, testifying for the defense, was not questioned further about the matter.

Bakker's wife, Tammy, jotted down the offer on a piece of her pink stationery, and Bakker wrote at the bottom: "I'm not making any demands on PTL. I'm not asking for anything," according to Messner.

Messner also said a PTL official claimed Bakker knew nothing about $265,000 in hush money to Jessica Hahn, the church secretary with whom Bakker had a sexual encounter in 1980.

Bakker is accused of defrauding followers by using more than $3.7 million in ministry money to fund his lavish lifestyle. The TV evangelist faces up to 120 years in prison and more than $5 million in fines if convicted on all 24 counts of fraud and conspiracy.

Defense attorney George T. Davis never asked Messner what Bakker was supposed to keep quiet about.

Falwell, founder of the now-defunct Moral Majority, denied Messner's account.

The offer actually was a demand from Bakker, said Falwell's spokesman, Mark DeMoss, in a telephone interview.

DeMoss said Falwell did dispatch Messner to Palm Springs to talk to Bakker, but he carried no offer. DeMoss said Messner returned with a handwritten list of demands on Tammy Bakker's stationery.

DeMoss said Bakker's demands included hospital insurance, a $300,000 annual salary for life, a $100,000 annual salary for life for his wife, royalties on inspirational books and recordings made by the Bakkers, secretary and maid service for a year, use of a South Carolina lakefront house and furniture and attorneys' fees.

Messner, who testified that he handled the $265,000 payment to Hahn, also said that at a Feb. 21, 1985, lunch, PTL Executive Vice President Richard Dortch told him: "I'm going to ask you to do a big favor. I'm asking you because I know you'll keep it confidential."

Dortch told Messner that if he didn't pay a woman from New York $265,000, then she would go to The Charlotte Observer with allegations that Bakker raped her. Five days later, Messner said, he wired the $265,000 to an account number in California that was given to him by Dortch.

Messner said he asked Dortch if Bakker knew about the payment, and Dortch replied: "No, I'm acting on my own."

Messner said he agreed to make the payment in part because the Assemblies of God was named as the potential party in a lawsuit threatened by Hahn.

"I didn't think the church ought to be dragged into this incident," Messner said.

Miami U. Chinese students hold rally

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OXFORD (AP) — Some Miami University students are hoping to rekindle American support for Chinese students who pushed for democratic reforms in their communist country, a leader said Tuesday.

David Burgess, president of Students Advocating Democratic Reform in China, said he hopes his group can help focus more attention to the plight of the Chinese activists whose movement was crushed by their government in the bloody crackdown in Beijing last June.

Burgess's group teamed with Amnesty International to sponsor a rally on the Oxford campus Tuesday night. Also on the program was a speech by Pei Min Xin, a Harvard University professor who recently met with exiled Chinese student leaders and served as a U.S. liaison to the Chinese student movement.

Burgess, a sophomore political science student who serves on the Miami University student senate, said his group of a half dozen members is contacting other campuses in the country.

Chinese students in this country have formed similar support groups. But Burgess said members of Students Advocating Democratic Reform in China are Americans who were inspired by the Chinese dissidents.

Burgess, 19, from the Cleveland suburb of Richmond Heights, said he hopes to build public awareness to help prod the Bush administration into pressuring the Chinese government to consider the activists' concerns.

"We're a mainstream group. We're not advocating revolution in any way," Burgess said. He said the group would like to see the U.S. government gradually put pressure on the Chinese government to show more concern for the students of China.

He said if other campuses provide support, he hopes to help arrange a national demonstration next summer in Washington during the first anniversary of the Chinese government's crackdown.

"Our main purpose is to raise the consciousness of Americans and American students. Our purpose is to lobby the U.S. government to drop the don't-rock-the-boat policy," Burgess said.
