Parks get funds rejected for race

As council opts to divert money, two city departments lose funds

By E. Smith Lantern staff writer

Columbus City Council voted denied to the Columbus 500 last week back to one of the programs for which it was originally in-tended.

for which it was originally in-tended. Mayor Dana G. Rinehart last week proposed trimming $200,000 from the budgets of three city departments and giving it to Auto Racing of Columbus to help meet expenses for the race. The group needed $365,000 to finish paying for last year's race and to fund this year's race. The group failed to meet the Thursday deadline set last week by the International Racing Association, which said it would begin looking for another city to host the race. Council voted to give the De-partment of Recreation and Parks the entire $200,000 plus an addi-tional $460,000 for funding park maintenance operations this year. The department would have lost $25,000 if Council had given the money for the race. The Office of Management and Budget lost $160,000 of the sug-gested race money and the De-partment of Development lost $15,000. Council also decided to sus-pend yoting on a plea from area

Drunken driving trials limited by high court

WASHINGTON - The SuwASHINGTON - The Super-preme Court ruled Monday that people accused of drunken driv-ing usually have no right to a jury trial if they face a jail term of no more than six months.

Despite mounting national concern over the seriousness of concern over the seriousness of intoxicated motorists, the court said unanimously in a Nevada case that states do not violate fair-trial rights by treating drunken driving as a petty offense not warranting trial by intro-jury. The court said imposing other penalties – such as suspending driving privileges or requiring community service – generally does not require a jury trial as long as six months remains the maximum jail term.

Soviets want nuclear weapons reduction in Europe

VIENNA, Austria (AP) - The Soviet Union proposed huge reductions in troops and armor and recommended Monday that the Warsaw Pact and NATO negotiate to eliminate all battlefield nuclear weapons from Europe. Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevarndad-

Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevarndad-ze's proposals went far beyond the reduc-tions NATO plans to suggest at conven-tional arms talks that begin Thursday. In a later speech, Secretary of State James A. Baker III told 35 foreign ministers gathered in a baroque palace that the West's goal, at least initially, is to reduce the Warsaw Pact's current advan-targe in conventional forces in conventional forces.

tage in conventional forces. Estimates vary, but give the Soviet led atliance at least a 2-1 advantage in tanks. "The Warsaw Pact's conventional military preponderance, especially in the spearheads of attack, is what makes an invasion possible," Baker said. He urged Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev to implement the "new thinking" that guides economic and political reform in the Soviet Union by renouncing the Brezhnev Doctrine "beyond any shadow of a doubt."

That doctrine permits military intervention in a Soviet bloc country in the event of a liberal insurrection. The late President Leonid I. Brezhnev enunciated it after the Red Army crushed the liberal "Prague Spring" of 1968 in Czechoslovakia "Those in the East should be free of the fear that armed Soviet intervention, justified by the Brezhnev Doctrine, would be used again to deny them choice "Baker

He also said Australia would organize a conference to prevent the spread of chemical weapons, and the Bush administration was exploring ways to speed the removal of U.S. chemical weapons from West Germany.

Baker added, however. "Unilateral action is not eriough. The Soviet Union has enormous stocks of chemical weapons enormous stocks of chemical weapons threatening Europe. We therefore call on the Soviets to join us, to accelerate the destruction of their enormous stockpile of these frightening weapons." In Bonn, Chancellor Helmut Kohl said: "I welcome this intention to explore ways for the early removal of chemical weapons" torea the Enderal Republic"

from the Federal Republic.'

Kohl's chief spokesman, Friedhelm Ost, said earlier Baker had telephoned the chancellor Sunday night and told him the aging US chemical weapons would be withdrawn by 1992. Shevardnadze countered a NATO prop-osal to retire at least 25,000 Warsaw Pact tanks, then reduce armor, artillery and personnel carriers on both sides by 5-10 percent, with a three-phase plan for radical Cuts. The foreign minister's arms reduction

"Let me ask what kind of reductions are these if they do not affect the main compoent of armed forces – their person-nel?" he said. "And surely airplanes and helicopters can be used for a surprise attack

In the Soviet second phase, 500,000 men on each side would be demobilized.

Black firefighters' leader angered by chief's remark

TOLEDO (AP) - The city's fire chief should resign for making a lewd remark about a female iewd remark about a female municipal employee, and to raise morale among black and white firefighters, the head of a black firefighters' group said Monday. Earl Landry Jr., president of the 50-member Glass City Black Brothers United, said Chief Wil-liam Winkle's remark was insensi-tive toward women.

Landry also said morale among black and white firefighters is at an all-time low, and Winkle's actions over the last few years have increased racial tensions within the department.

City Manager Philip Hawkey on Friday suspended Winkle for 20

Aritay suspended winkle for 20 days without pay for making a sexually oriented remark at an early February staff meeting. "I think when you have the highest official of the Fire Divi-sion making off-handed statements about a founda city official it just about a female city official, it just does not sit right with our organization," Landry said.

The incident involves Winkle's remark about Peg Wallace, chief of examinations in the city's human resources department. When a question about promotion procedures came up during the Feb. 1 staff meeting, Winkle recommended that they call Ms. recommended that they can Mus. Wallace. Winkle said she could be reached at a number with a 245 prefix, followed by a derogatory four-letter word that refers to a part of a woman's anatomy. Several telephone messages left Monday at Winkle's house were not returned.

Landry said the suspension has not gone far enough. He contends that Winkle has "an overall lack of respect for all women in the department."

More than 20 percent of the department's 545 firefighters are women; about 17 percent are black; another 3 percent are Hispanic.

Hawkey said he suspended Winkle because he "will not tolerate sexually oriented remarks guide them." Hours after Bush spoke, Repu-

Landry said black firefighters are disciplined more harshly than white firefighters. He said close to 30 black firefighters have either been fired or forced to resign in the last five years, while during the same period less than five whites were forced to resign.

Dawn Stokes, a freshman from Springfield and a night monitor for the Blackburn complex, said a key is needed to enter any door of Nosker House, but after 11 p.m. an OSU ID card is required to enter at the main entrance, or one student can register another as a guest. The other two entrances do not require an ID verification.

A resident of Nosker House who wished to remain anonymous said security "is a joke" and that anyone can get into the building without being a resident.

Haas also said dormitory sec. urity is poor.

"There's really no security; anybody can get in here and do whatever they want," she said.

She said many of the female residents on her floor feel the same way.

Walker said people don't always enter through the door where the security is, they enter through the other two doors that are not monitored. She said it is very easy for anyone to get in if they just wait for a resident who has a key and then follow them in.

A Nosker House resident said they think the crime on north campus is a lot worse than it was two years ago.

In the past year there have been 10 crimes committed in Nosker House, Joseph F. Gaynor III, police manager for OSU police, said. These crimes included two telephone harassments, two incidents of criminal damages, two aggravated burglaries, one theft; disorderly conduct, tampering with coin machines and Walker's robbery

Harp said police are investigat ing the incident.

Sgt. Ray Eckles of the Colum³ bus Police Department said robberies on elevators are rare.

Statistics on elevator robberies are unavailable, he said, because of the way statistics are compiled. The set of rules, or uniform crime index, set up for every agency by the FBI, is concerned with the type of weapon or violence used, not the location.

Mateen reviews career

By Steve Helwagen

Grady Mateen was one of the most highly sought after high school basketball players in America five years ago, when he averaged 22 points and nine rebounds per game as a senior at Akron Central Hower.

Mateen, a 6-foot-11 senior cen-ter spurned Ohio State and many other schools, and went to Georgetown University. Two years later, Mateen frustrated with his lack of playing time transferred to Ohio State

Last year, he was Ohio State's sixth man and averaged eight points and 3.8 rebounds per game.

He continued in that role this year, averaging eight points and 4.5 rebounds per game. His role, however, has changed in the last three weeks.

During that span, Mateen moved into a starting spot at forward. His 18 points against Indiana and his 11 rebounds against Wisconsin have solidified his hold on that spot. OSU Coach Gary Williams said of Mateen:

Grady has given us some valuable scoring this year. Any-time you have a 6-11 player that can shoot the ball, it helps your offense because they are tough to defend. They present different problems in terms of passing angles and things like that. He's also had some good rebounding games for us. He's been solid all year, whatever his role has been.

The following is an interview with Mateen:

Lantern: Grady you came out of Akron in 1984 as the Ohio AAA player of the year. What were the factors in your decision to go to Georgetown? Mateen: The main factor was that I didn't think I'd fit in here under Eldon Miller and his system. Plus, (At Georgetown) I felt I had a better chance to win a NCAA Championship than I did at Ohio State. Of course, we did get there and played against Villanova (in 1985) but lost.

Lantern: While you were at Georgetown, you got to play with (All-Americans) like Patrick Ewing and Reggie Williams. How was that experience?

Mateen: That was a part of the growth that really helped me become a better player.

Lantern: What were some of the factors in your decision to transfer to Ohio State in 1986?

Mateen: The main reason was that I wasn't playing as much as GYM.

I should have. I had already decided to transfer from Georgetown (before Gary Williams was named coach). Coach Williams was coming here and I was from Ohio, I just decided to come back here.

Lantern: What are the differences in the styles between Coach Williams and Georgetown Coach John Thompson?

Mateen: There is a big differ-ence. They both like to run, but Coach Williams likes more of a controlled atmosphere than Coach Thompson does. Coach Thompson gives you more leeway to play. Lantern: At Ohio State, you've been used as an inside scoring punch off the bench. Have you een happy with that role? Mateen: Oh, most definitely. I've been happy with that role. Hey, I'm going on to bigger and better things. That's how I've always looked at it. It's never really fazed Lantern: Are there any regrets in transferring? Mateen: I did have some at

Landry's firing reveals lack of loyalty, respect

I have been a Dallas Cowboys fan for a long time and I can remember back in 1978 during Superbowl XIII when the Dallas Cowboys took on the Denver Broncos.

I can remember the magnificent catch by Golden Richards as he was falling into the endzone for a touchdown to help the Cowboys corral the Broncos, 27-10. That was in the midst of the glory days of one of the NFL's most prolific teams. Last week, another Cowboy took a fall of a different kind - Coach Tom Landry was fired. Coaches come and coaches go, and a coach getting fired is not new to the sports world, but the way it was handled - with wreckless abandon and disrespect wreckless abandon and disrespect to Landry — was poor. Landry found out through a reporter that his firing was ru-mored to take place within the next few days. But Landry, being the calm, cool and collect coach he is work on with his job w going is went on with his job by going over game films and meeting with the other coaches. His dedication to the team was far greater than the team's dedication to him.

I'm sure Landry knew he was in an uphill battle last season when his team had a disappoint-ing 3-13 season and the media hounded him at every turn. But some sports fans might recall a certain Bengal coach who went 4-12 recently just to come back and take his team to the Super-bowl the following season. And he didn't have half of Landry's cperience. The actual firing was completed on Saturday and the media seemed to know about it sooner than Landry. The new owner of the Cowboys, Arkansas oilman and millionaire Jerry Jones, told reporters, "Frankly, coach Landry would have known about it a second after (team president) Tex Schramm would have if we could have gotten to him. Well, get to him!

You don't just go to Landry of the whole ordeal. Landry had been the head coach since its beginning as an expan-sion team in 1960. He invented the flex defense; he guided the Cowboys to a 270-178-6 record; he set an NFL-record 20 consecutive winning seasons. Quite a remarkable feat - and uite a remarkable feat - and this is the respect he got. Jones said he just couldn't meet with Landry before the takeover. In a situation like this, it is important to make the effort. realize Jones had to react quickly, especially since the origi-nal asking price of $180 million was brought down to $140 million. But it should have been in his best interest to meet with all of those involved - including gent thing to do. Bright could have rectified the situation by informing Landry about the firing, however he was very nonchalant and even said that since he owned the football team, he probably hadn't even exchange 15 words with Landry. A good owner would have found time to meet with a coach, who has led the team to five Super-bowls and brought home two championships.

It seems to me that somewhere Bright's "southern hospitality" got lost in the shuffle.

This just goes to show that football is a business and not entertainment. Landry should have been given the opportunity to complete the final year on his contract to try and rebuild his team from a dismal season last year. By doing this, he would have ended his after the fact and expect him to accept the decision. From a per-sonnel and communications stand-point, this is considered a night-mare. Jones had meetings with Schramm, new Dallas Cowboys Coach Jimmy Johnson, and previ-ous owner H.R. > In 1985, Notre Dame opted to honor its contract with then Coach Gerry Faust rather than indiscriminately shove him out the door. The university was fair enough to let Faust know he was in his final year of his contract, which gave him a chance to have a proper farewell with his team members and coaching staff.

> They waited it out, hired a new coach, and within two seasons had a national championship. Notre Dame also gave Faust a chance to look for a coaching position with another team. So what if it was the Akron Zips, he was still given the chance, something Jones ne-glected to consider.

hired was because he lost just two games in four years. More than likely the real reason he was hired was because he knew one particular person - Jerry Jones. After all, the two played football together at Arkansas and have been friends for years.

The Cowboys have always been "my" team ever since I watched Roger Staubach throw a long touchdown bomb to Drew Pear-son, or see Butch Johnson danc-ing in the endzone after he scored, and the Dallas Cowboys' Cheerleders — need I say more scored, and the Dallas Cowboys Cheerleaders — need I say more. And, of course, Tom Landry. A true role model of integrity and humility. Last week, the thought surfaced to rename Texas Stadium to Landry Stadium.' I hope it comes true. comes true.

During his reign as coach, Landry compiled statistics and gained the respect of sportsfans, nationwide. Landry's reign more than merits the consideration. It could be the one event that would overturn this most unfortunate circumstance.

Commercial television hits high schools

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - Channel One, the widely criticized commercial television news program aimed at teen-agers in schools, debuted today in several high schools complete with ads for andy bars, dandruff shampoo and blue jeans.

The 12-minute daily program is being produced by Whittle Com-munications, a Knoxville-based media company, and is being tested over the next two months in six schools around the country. The first program included cover-age of the show itself and the controversy surrounding it.

Before the first show was even aired a number of education groups objected to the idea of allowing advertisers to pitch their products to students in the classoom

Central High School on the north side of Knoxville is one of the test schools and the 20 students in Connie Wilkes' homeroom appeared to pay close atten-tion to the program.

The program featured stories on students' reactions to the continuing death threats against au-thor Salman Rushdie and life for a teen-ager in the Soviet Union, in addition to the one on the controversy involving the launch of Channel One.

Also included in the program were 30-second television ads for Snickers candy bars, Head and Shoulders shampoo, and Levi's 501 jeans.

If the test proves successful and advertisers can be persuaded to make a long-term commitment, Whittle Communications LP hopes make the program available 8,000 or more schools in fall 1990

The program is being produced by Whittle, a fast-growing com pany that has specialized in creating magazines and sponsored posters that enable advertisers to reach narrowly defined audiences.

The Channel One test is expected to cost about $5 million. Whittle estimates the hardware alone required to take the prog-ram nationwide will cost more than $100 million.

Each of the test schools was given about $50,000 worth of television monitors, video record-ing equipment and a satellite dish that Whittle promises to maintain.

Lab obtains new teaching facility

By Lisa Baumgardner

A highly technological teaching facility is in the making in Alpheus Smith Laboratory, said the director of the Center for Teaching Excellence. Ann Pruitt said a grant of $70,000 from the Classroom Coordination Council will fund the purchasing of new equipment which will create a center for technical research for both faculty and students.

The equipment to be added to room 1153 of Smith Lab includes a color video projection system; a Macintosh II computer system for graphics work, that would include a high-resolution moniter; a graphic printer and table; two video cameras; and a laser disc player and white boards, that are good for showing instructional material, Pruitt said.

The equipment will be installed during the breaks between spring and summer and summer and fall quarters, she said. The room will be completed by fall quarter. The classroom will be used for lectures and research, Pruitt said. Some of the research will include studies on using the technology for teaching. "We anticipate that several thousand students will be able to use the room over the course of the year," she said.

A competition of departments on campus determined what department would design the room, Pruitt said.

This quarter a notice was sent to all departments that asked for proposals for the design of the room and what it should contain. Pruitt said.

Out of 26 proposals, the physics department was awarded the privilege of designing the room, she said

Randy Knight, associate professor of physics, wrote the proposal which included recommendations for the possibility of a high tech classroom and how the room could be used by everyone on campus

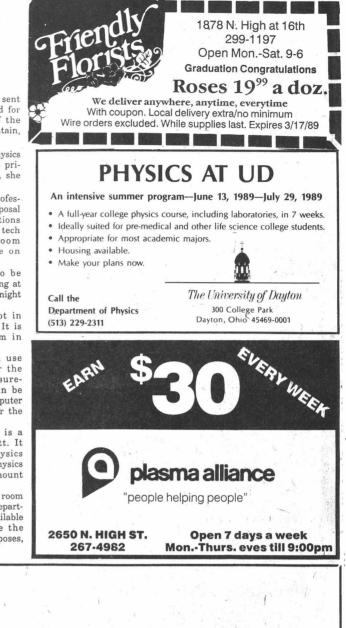

"I designed the room to be available for improving teaching at the university as a whole," Knight said.

Computers are used a lot in everyday life, said Knight. It is important to utilize them in classroom lectures "With this room we can use with this foom we can use lecture demonstrations for the first time," he said. "Measure-ments and experiments can be figured out right on the computer screen with direct results for the students."

The classroom selected is a combined room, said Pruitt. It does not belong to the physics department, although the physics department does a large amount of teaching in this room.

During the hours that the room is not used by the physics depart-ment, the rooms will be available for others to learn to use the equipment for research purposes, she said.

Soviets line up to purchase Western records at stores

MOSCOW (AP) - Hundreds of enthusiastic young Soviets lined up in a snowstorm outside record stores Monday to buy a new album by two dozen of the West's biggest rock stars, and authorities erected steel barricades and dispatched police to control the crowd

The hoopla was especially great n Kalinin Prospekt outside the on Kalinin Prospekt outside the Melodiya store, where British rocker Peter Gabriel and Annie Lennox of Eurythmics auto-graphed copies of "Breakthrough." A police guard was posted at the door, and a steel barricade was set up on the sidewalk as Soviets wearing traditional Rus-sian fur hats and Western-style sian fur hats and Western-style ski caps massed.

phy, the most common and severe form of the disease. The research represents "the most exciting approach for human therapy that, in my opinion, has ever come along," said Donald Wood, director of research for the Muscular Dystrophy Association. Preliminary experiments in a limited number of Duchenne patients may begin this summer, after researchers from several nations meet in June to discuss the issues involved, Wood said. Those studies, focusing on single muscles or a few muscles, could lead to larger human stu-dies. It is too early to say when the injection procedure could be made widely available, if it proves useful, Wood said.

One mouse study was performed by Louis Kunkel and Eric their early 20s. Hoffman of Harvard Medical School, Childrens Hospital and the Howard Hughes Medical Institute in Boston, and Terry Partridge most common form of muscular, and others at the Charing Cross dystrophy, scientists have cor- and Westminster Medical School in London.

We basically have the first step toward a potential to do therapeutics. It looks promising," said Kunkel in a recent interview.

Their study is "extremely excit-ing work," said Theodore Munsat, In humans, lack of the protein auses Duchenne muscular dystro-Medical School and director of neuromuscular research at the New England Medical Center Hospital in Boston.

The other mouse research was done by George Karpati and colleagues at the Neuromuscular Research Group of the Montreal Neurological Institute.

Both studies were presented at a recent meeting of muscular dystrophy researchers in Perth, Australia.

Duchenne muscular dystrophy is a genetic disorder that strikes boys almost exclusively, appearing in about one in every 3,500 male births in the United States. It causes a progressive weakening and wasting of voluntary muscles. Most patients must use wheelchairs by age 12, and most die in

The experiments tested an experimental therapy using immature muscle cells called myoblasts, which normally help repair muscle fibers that have broken because of injury or strenuous exercise.

Researchers injected myoblasts into mice that lacked dystrophin and found that the myoblasts fused with muscle fibers. Once inside a fiber the myoblast nu-cleus provided a gene that allowed the fiber to begin producing dystrophin.

The scientists could not demonstrate any impact on dystrophy symptoms because, for reasons not well understood, mice that lack dystrophin show no outward symptoms in the first place.

Kunkel's team, which reported its results recently in the British journal Nature, found that mouse myoblasts fused to muscle fibers in 39 of 70 mice that received injections in a leg muscle

Those fibers produced up to 30 percent to 40 percent of the normal amount of dystrophin, which probably would be enough to ease muscular dystrophy symptoms greatly in humans, Kunkel said.

Karpati's experiment involved injecting human myoblasts into the thighs of about two dozen mice. Some dystrophin appeared in every mouse, Karpati said

Decisions of this committee are final.

The Ohio State Lantern does not restrict advertisers beyond the limits of responsible journalism and the rules imposed by the Ohio State University on all student publications.

- Copy will be furnished by noon three days before publication
- b. All advertisements are required to occupy at least as many inches in depth as they do columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in depth will be considered full column (21 inches) and charged accordingly.
- The Ohio State Lantern reserves the right to reject any advertisement that promotes illegal activity or activity detrimental or damaging to the university and its educational mission. It further reserves the right to revise any copy which is deemed objectionable for any reason.
- d. The Ohio State Lantern will not be responsible for typographical errors except to cancel charge for such portion of advertisement as may have been rendered valueless by such typographical error. In order for adjustments, complaints about errors must be registered to the Lantern Business Manager by local advertisers within three days of ad publication date, and out-of-town must contact the Lantern Business Manager at time of receipt of tearsheet of ad in question. Noncompliance with this request will leave full responsibility with the advertiser.
- Guaranteed position is sold at Business Manager's discretion.
- A composition charge will be made for all advertisements set up and canceled without insertion and also for extensive change in copy or style after advertisements have been originally set. No proof will be furnished on any advertisement which is received after deadline or for ads smaller in
- g. size than seven (7) column inches.
- If the Lantern finds it necessary to stop contract advertising because of nonpayment, advertiser will be in violation of agreement and will be required to pay re-bill.
- Advertisers are encouraged to avoid making misleading claims or using art or words that impugn or degrade sex, race, national origin, creed or color.
- Advertisers must pay in advance of insertion until credit rating is established with the Lantern. The Lantern reserves the right to require advance payment for advertising, or to reject advertising, if the advertiser is delinquent in payment, or advertiser's credit is impaired. CERTIFIED check or money order required for out-of-town advertisers.
- k. Advertisers on contracts will furnish the Lantern with a rateholder ad of the minimum size in the contract for use in contract period the advertiser does not provide an ad.
- 1. A tearsheet will be furnished to advertisers for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tearsheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser notifies the Lantern Business Office prior to publication.
- m. Advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Ohio State University, its Board of Trustees, and its officers, agents and employees from and against any and all loss, cost and expense, including reasonable attorney fees, resulting from the publication by the Lantern of advertiser's advertisement.
- Advertisers in the Ohio State Lantern agree that they will not represent themselves in any way as being endorsed by the Ohio State University. Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required; this information is for our records only and not available to the public. All mail-order advertisers are required to submit sample/proof of product prior to publication.

Sun runners dash for diabetes bucks

The Spring Fever 5-K Sun Run was an appropriate title for the race on March 4 where sunny skies and warm temperatures greeted the 275 registered run-pers ners.

ners. The five-kilometer race, spon-sored by the OSU Communcation Club, and organized by students in Communications 494-E raised about $750-00 for the Diabetes Foundation. Two 2.5-kilometer loops made up the course which started at Baker Hall, wound around Lincoln Tower and ended on the South Oval. -

Oval.

The project was so successful because of the work of the students said Mary Beth Debus, communications instructor. She wanted the class to form an organization and devise a worth-while project. The students brain-stormed and came up with several ideas, but finally decided they would put all of their energy into planning a charity race.

planning a charity race. Polly Ivan, a student of the class said, "The amount of work was unbelievable, but it was a great experience. "I have learned more about

The class worked closely together and had no idea how much detail work was involved in the project.

Jose Baron, a race organizer Jose Baron, a race organizer and communications student said, "We ran things pretty smoothly, considering this was only the first time that the race was run. Several people asked us at the end how many years we were running this and were suprised when we told them it was our first." first Runners were at various skill levels. Some were serious runners who found out about the race through student-written radio ad-vertisements and some were roped vertisements and some were roped into it by their friends. Barry Klein, a graduate student in the college of Pharmacy, ran because Brian Maves, also a Pharmacy graduate student and a Columbus Marathon runner persuaded him. "I try to run a little when the weather warms up, but I wanted to participate to help the Diabetes Ecundation "Klein said Foundation," Klein said.

Runners at the Spring Fever 5-K Sun Run start the race at the sound of the gun on South Oval across from Baker Hall.
