Compromise Sought As U. S. Says Reds Promote Revolt

PARIS, Oct. 26—(AP)—John Foster Dulles told the UN Political Committee today Russian action before the world peace agency was part of "a general effort to extend the power of Soviet communism throughout the world."

The American delegate spoke as small powers of the Security Council renewed their efforts to mediate the Berlin blockade crisis after Russia's veto of a compromise offered by six smaller powers.

Despite the veto late Monday, well informed quarters today predicted negotiations to settle the dispute with the Council would continue among the United States, Britain, France, Russia and the neutral members.

Links Berlin and Greece

Dulles, foreign affairs adviser to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential candidate, said international communism is working for a world revolution through "force, coercion and terrorism."

It was one of the first important speeches on over-all American foreign policy in this Assembly session by the Republican leader, who has been regarded as a possible selection to become secretary of state if Governor Dewey wins the presidency.

He linked the Greek question, which is before the General Assembly, and the Berlin deadlock, before the Security Council, as parts of the Russian plan to dominate the world through communism's spread.

Presents New Resolution

Dulles said he was presenting a resolution to send the UN Special Commission on the Balkans (UNSCOB) back to work for another year investigating the Greek civil war and appealing to Greece's northern neighbors to cease aiding efforts to overthrow the Greek government.

The resolution, presented in the name of Britain, China, France and the United States, was not made public immediately.

Dulles spoke to the Political Committee after it rejected by a vote of 50 to 6 a Yugoslav move to invite representatives of Markos Vafiades, Greek guerrilla leader, to participate in the debate.

Plan Talks on Berlin

There was no immediate indication what the next Security Council move would be in the Berlin blockade crisis. However, a British source said that U. S. Secretary of State George C. Marshall, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman would meet this morning at the French foreign

Students Voice Views On Women Voting To Select Queens At Campus Elections

Are women good judges of queens?

Thomas C. Redd, Ed-4, doesn't think so. He introduced a motion in the Student Senate that only men be allowed a voice in selecting the campus beauties.

Twelve men and 12 women were polled in an effort to learn where the students stand on the issue. Some seem to think women choose queens for personality and not on their beauty as many believe they should be picked.

Here are some of the answers they gave.

John McComb, A-4, came bouncing back with, "Women pick queens for their character; men pick them for their sex appeal. It seems reasonable that queens should be selected for their sex appeal. You can print that—I'm married."

Kay Melhman, H-Ec-4, said, "Women know too much about the queen candidates. Men can pick them more objectively."

George Davis, V-Med-1, said, "I think men alone should select queens. It will eliminate those large sororities from organizing and playing politics to have their candidates selected."

Herb Floyd, Ag-3, was quick to assert himself, "I think that a representative vote is not possible without both men and women voting in all campus elections," he said.

Rodney Harrison, Ed-3, thought awhile, then brought women suffrage into the question. "Women suffrage became law a long time ago," he explained seriously. "Women should be able to exercise their suffrage rights in queen elections, and I also think men should vote for Gold Digger's Kings."

Rose Ann Douthitt, Ed-2, was of the opinion that "women judge on personality; men on looks alone. Therefore, men should select queens."

Over-all, students thought it a good idea to let men select queens, while women alone should be privileged to name their Gold Digger's King. The results obtained are as follows:

Question: Do you think men alone should select queens in campus elections?

	Yes	No
Women .....	8	4

A Spectator Speaks . . .

By Don Mathews

The opening week of basketball practice is over and speculation on what the coming season holds in store for the Buckeyes will soon begin. Although the prospects for a successful year are quite good, there is a definite possibility that local fandom may build hopes a little too high.

The rapidity with which last year's sophomore squad improved as the season rolled along could easily lead its followers to expect great things of what is virtually the same team in the 1948-49 Western Conference race. Though they have gained much-needed experience, the Bucks should not be considered title contenders.

For one thing they will miss Neil Johnston's height at center. Coach Tippy Dye has no lack of faith in the ability of hustling Bob Raidiger at the pivot post and the likeable center fits well in the Buck style of offense. But on defense he will be at a disadvantage against some of the taller pivot men in the Big Nine.

And as Dye himself puts it "two good centers are better than one." The Buck mentor looks for some unexpected help from Jack Pfeifer who he says looks better at shooting than in 1946. The big veteran still has a big task of getting into shape after a year's lay-off.

Another obstacle in the path of the Bucks' success is the generally light losses due to graduation on other Big Nine rosters. Of the leading scorers in the conference only Murray Weir of Iowa and Bob Cook of Wisconsin are gone, while in addition to the Bucks' Dick Schnittker, Jim McIntyre of Minnesota, Dike Eddleman of Illinois and Bill Sticklen of Northwestern are still around.

The entire starting five of the defending champion Michigan team are back again and naturally the Wolves hold the top spot in most pre-season prognostications. They have lost their coach Ozzie Cowles, who brought them a championship in only two years and now has gone to Minnesota, where he will attempt to build another one around the All-American, McIntyre.

Coach Dye is remaining almost noncommittal on his cagers chances for the coming campaign. Probably this is because he doesn't want to stick his neck out, but perhaps he is resting on his laurels after his accurate prediction at this time last year.

He said then, "Don't expect too good a won and lost record, but before the season is over this squad will be capable of giving any conference opponent a good battle." And that they did, several times in fact, during the latter part of the season.

The Bucks' mentor has said that this year's quintet should end up in the top half of the conference. And that would be a successful season.

'One Vote' Plan Praised

The problem of how to elect a Homecoming queen and keep everybody happy seems to be solved at last.

At least the "one vote" system approved by the Student Senate last week meets the approval of most students interviewed by the LANTERN Monday. The new plan calls for but one vote in contrast to the six votes students were required to cast in previous elections.

Claimed by many to be the fairest possible type of election the plan was agreeable to all but one student interviewed.

Pat Mosconi, Engr-3, criticized the plan. "It is easier for a single group to swing the election by power politics when a lone vote is cast," she pointed out.

Coleman D. Zwick, Com-4, praised the plan. He said, "The 'one vote' plan is a good idea. It will save the voters time and the girl elected queen will actually be the candidate wanted by most of the voters."

Martin Kellog, A-3, favored the plan. "We only cast one vote for President. Why cast six for Homecoming queen," he asked.

"The new system is much better," said Wayne Pidock, A-3, "It gives an organization backing one candidate a better chance to have her elected."

Kay Kenily, Ed-2, also liked the change. She said, "It's a good idea. The girl with top number of votes should be queen and the others should be on the court."

Wildcat Speed And Power Spell Trouble For Bucks

"Northwestern is just as fast as Wisconsin, but doesn't have to indulge in any of the Badger cleverness," Jack Graf said Monday. Speaking before the weekly press and radio luncheon, Graf, who was on hand to watch the Wildcats blast Syracuse 48-0, warned of Northwestern's power.

GASPER PERRICONE
Northwestern Fullback

Whereas the Wisconsin backfield specializes in finesse and speed, Graf explained that the Wildcat ballcarriers rely on straight-away power and speed.

"Frank Aschenbrenner, Art Murakowski and the other Wildcat backs smacked those poor Syracuse boys so hard they didn't know what hit 'em," he said. "They're strong runners and you have to get both arms around them to bring them down."

Coach Bob Voigts has a complete set of veteran backs in Murakowski, Aschenbrenner, Tom Worthington, Gasper Perricone, and Don Burson. In Captain and Center Alex Sarkisian, Voigts has one of the best line backers in the nation.

In the won and lost department Northwestern and Ohio State are on equal footing, which makes the Saturday game even more important. The Wildcats have conference wins over Purdue and Minnesota, while losing to Michigan.

Against Syracuse last week, 37 Wildcats saw action. The regulars rolled up 26 points in the first half.

Stan Kenton Declares 'Be Bop' Here To Stay

"Ou Bop BE Da, with a flattened fifth," said Stan Kenton in a fond musical greeting.

After the concert at Memorial Hall last week your reporter went backstage to get a few of Kenton's ideas. Kenton, a very likeable and friendly guy, is very impressive when he stands up to his full six foot four inches.

Kenton had visited a few sororities and fraternities on the campus that afternoon. "Ohio State is one of the nicest universities I've seen," Kenton said. He added, "In general college kids and young people are most receptive to our progressive music."

"The music we play is aimed at reproducing our emotions," Kenton explained. Life isn't only smoothness and harmony as most music tries to portray. It is also hard, sad, brash and full of disharmony. When we blow loud it is an attempt at producing an effect. Our music is for listening not for dancing."

Be Bop is here to stay, Kenton declared, we use a lot of it and it has affected musical thought tremendously. Most young musicians are playing it, but the older ones are still fighting against it.

Independent I-M League Races End

Independent touch football league play ended Monday with champions being crowned in eight leagues.

Play for the coveted league championships was fast and furious with two championship games being decided by one point. In a tie contest that required overtime play Civitas No. 3 grabbed the top spot in Independent League No. 8, with a 1-0 win over Civitas No. 2. In perhaps the most thrilling and hotly contested game of the evening the Fumblers gained the top spot in League No. 6 with a 7-6 victory over the Snakehunters.

The Shamrocks and DSAC clubs were the only league champions to garner easy victories on the last night of league play.

Paul Kappes countered two touchdowns as he led the Shamrocks to a rout of the Newman Club, 32-0, and to the championship of League No. 1. In League No. 2's deciding game the DSAC outfit rolled to an easy 31-0 win over runner-up ADSA.

The Bisons with Joe Chickerella tossing a pair of touchdown passes and converting an extra point edged the Blues 13-6 to grab off the League No. 5 championship.

Other Independent League champions are: Borden Beanery in League No. 3, The Southerners in League No. 4, and ASME in League No. 7.

One fraternity active contest was played Monday with the Zeta Beta Taus doubling the score on Delta Sigma Pi as they won 16-8.

*in an advisory capacity for the game. Michael S. Vargo, chairman of the SCC, said today that all 52 fraternities and all 22 Independent groups have pledged their full cooperation.

The SCC was formed last Spring to improve Greek-Independent relations after a physical battle between the two groups broke out during the May Week Panorama celebration in the Stadium. The battle started when Independents prevented a student Panorama official from lighting the traditional torch on C-deck of the East Tower of the Stadium.

The All-Star game is the initial function in a series of activities planned by the SCC designed to promote a spirit of friendly rivalry between all factions of the student body.

The game will be the first between Greek and Independent teams in 12 years. "Championship games between the winners of the Fraternity and Independent leagues had to be abandoned 12 years ago because they were doing more harm than good," Staley said Monday. The I-M director is hopeful, however, that the All-Star game will prove to be a success.

It is hoped that the game can be played on the Varsity practice field on either Saturday morning, Nov. 13 or Nov. 20. The time and place of the game will hinge on what facilities are available for the game which will be played about a week after the I-M league playoffs have been completed.

Balloting for the All-Star teams by game officials and team managers will start this week and continue throughout the playoffs. All ballots will be turned into the SCC central committee, which is composed of both Greeks and Independents.

I-M game officials will nominate three players from each of the teams participating in the game he referees.

In addition each team manager will nominate three players from the opposing team after each game. Each name listed on a ballot will be counted as one vote and the thirty men receiving the highest number of votes in both the Fraternity and Independent sections will be invited to play in the All-Star game.

Queen Elections: New Rules, Same Old Politics

The rat race is on. Within the next 24 days many students will become involved in the merry-go-round known as Homecoming queen elections.

Twice in the past four years the Homecoming queen has been an independent candidate. This proves that if the independents work hard, they can put over a campaign. When they don't succeed they can blame only their own lack of interest.

We wish we could say the election will be conducted with emphasis on beauty, rather than affiliation. Unfortunately for all concerned, Ohio State is rather backward in that respect and prefers to play power politics for the glory of the parties.

Some recent events might indicate, however, that both sides are beginning to put one foot in front of the other and, very slowly, are moving toward better queen elections.

If the Stadium Dormitories are granted recognition as a political party, they will try to remove some of the partisan politics by voting for their candidate on beauty whether she is a Greek or an independent.

The Student Senate is considering a revision of the election committee. Formerly representatives of the political parties were members and had full voting power.

The committee found a great deal of time was wasted, because each side was more interested in jockeying for favorable positions and measures, than working for a better election.

If the revision passes we hope the Senate will see fit to make the committee bi-partisan to forestall charges of prejudice.

Past queen elections with their charges and counter charges of fraud have brought the University some unwanted and unnecessary newspaper publicity.

Last year both the Homecoming and May queen elections were examples of what should not happen, but did. Because of vague publicity rules, it was some time before the campus knew whether a queen would reign over Homecoming festivities.

Last Spring an election plan, submitted by the election committee, was turned down by the Senate. The plan was similar to the one adopted this year.

In making its own rules, the Senate ignored past experience which showed that complicated ballots cause confusion and a light vote.

In the 1946 Homecoming elections only 3,678 votes were cast. One of the heaviest votes ever cast occurred in the 1947 Homecoming elections when 5,754 students voted. Last Spring only 2,429 qualified votes were cast for May Queen.

If so few students are going to vote it would hardly be any less representative of the student body to allow only men to vote, as OSPA is doing in selecting its candidates, and as has been suggested by Tom Redd.

While the men are not necessarily better judges of feminine beauty, they might be less prejudiced than the women.

The majority of the women will vote for a candidate because she belongs to the same sorority or lives in the same dormitory.

We would like to suggest that the election committee once again locate voting booths in the various dormitories. When the voter won't come to the election, then the election must go to him.

There will never be good student participation as long as affiliation, rather than beauty, is emphasized.

'What's That Place?'

It has been brought to our attention that a visitor motoring through Columbus would have no indication that he was near Ohio State, since neither on High Street or Neil Avenue are there any signs mentioning the University.

This is a good point. A Senior Class wishing to leave a useful and practical class gift might remember this, and provide some nice signs, informing the traveler that he is approaching Ohio State.

Backstage Jottings

By Marg Williams

'Conditions' Inside The Shumansky' Given At Weekly Players' Initiation

Although Wesley Players was founded to promote the production and understanding of religious drama, the activities of the group are not confined to that, as was evidenced by its recent initiation skit, "Conditions Inside the Shumansky."

Before the rise of the curtain on this three-act play, the audience was briefed in the traditions of the great Russian Theatre.

Ah yes, within this "drama" lies much of the poetry of the soul, the very essence of life. By way of example, Chekov's "Cherry Orchard" held the audience pie-eyed. Tears of joy have welled in the eyes of those who have witnessed the magnificent. Plain tears welled in the eyes of those who saw the skit.

The curtain struggled up. There is our hero, Art Schumann (Schumann-Shumansky, get it!) sitting with his feet in hot water, and surrounded by hot water bottles, cough drops, and Vicks. It is obvious that rigor mortis has all but set in.

The curtain falls, and Don Sparrow slinks out on the stage suggesting that there will be a quick shift to the second act since the first one wasn't important anyhow. This act (I use the term freely) reveals the hero in even worse condition.

And now the third act. The crisis has been reached and so has the climax. Even the curtain gives up on this attempt, but as all good tillers of the soil, when one crop fails there will be another year... another act, we hope another skit, but still in soul stirring passages the great Russian "drama" squirms on.

Though the insurmountable curtain may be drawn, always will there be "art."

As the new members of the group were about to recover from the foregoing dramatic blow, Dick Covey and Don Sparrow finished them with their rendition of "Casey At The Bat," a healthy addition to a most unusual evening.

The group is currently working on the first of their three productions, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

John Baker's Letter Home: . . .

"Dear Pop..."

No job yet. I'm still looking, though. It's fun. I keep running into these Ohio State alums who want all the scoop on what's new at the old school.

This one guy didn't give a hoot about the building project, the Diamond Jubilee, etc. But you should have heard him cut loose when I mentioned that it was time for Hell Week again.

"You guys are sissies," he snarled. "I read one of your LANTERNS last Spring. Hell Week, fiddlesticks. No paddles, no pledge walks, no discipline, no nothing. No wonder the Independents make fun of you!"

"We may have bruised some bottoms," he went on, "but when I was in school we got the wheat separated from the chaff during Hell Week. But what do you guys do? Send 'em to lectures, make 'em write essays on 'I like Upsilon Grammar because . . .'"

Still he wasn't through. "We didn't have to announce Hell Week in the paper. You could smell it. Men came to class with pockets full of rotten eggs and stinking to high Heaven of asafetida."

"And every night you could hear the chanting as they marched through the streets. And you send 'em to lectures. Bah!"

No kidding, Pop, he was really browned off. I was scared, but I finally told him. Told him that nothing has changed.

That's true, Pop. There's lots of literature to the contrary, but actually, nothing has changed. If you don't believe that, stop around

Reader Provides Sketch Of Student Progressives

Editor, the LANTERN:

Why are some students for Wallace? Because Henry wants "civil rights."

What does he mean by "civil rights?" Oh, he isn't sure except he thinks Negroes should be allowed to throw tomatoes at him, too.

How did these students come to be interested in "civil rights?" Why, they read in textbooks that minority groups are people, too. They suddenly got consumed with a philanthropic idealism. "Civil rights" is a simple term. Easy to understand. Appeals to the crusader.

Didn't someone once say that prejudice can't be legislated? Oh now, let's don't try to analyze anything. The masses can't understand that kind of talk.

House Assembly Outlines Possible Point System

The University House Assembly, the organization of all University house presidents or representatives, meets at 5 p. m. every other Tuesday in the YWCA room, Pomerene Hall.

This quarter tentative plans have been discussed at the meetings to devise a point system for University house representatives. Under the system each representative would receive points for attending the assembly meetings, turning in sign-out sheets at the Dean of Women's office on time, and doing work for the University House Assembly. Each month the representative with the most points would be awarded a prize to keep for the following month. At the end of the year, the house having the most points would have a special picture in the Makio.

Further discussion of the possibilities of the point system plan will be held at the next meeting, Tuesday.

Lucky Hawaiian Miss Gets Airmail Orchids From Home

By Dorothy Hogan

Not only is she a kindergarten teacher, she can hula dance!

Miss Kuulei Palama (pronounced Ku-oo-lay) came to the campus in July, 1947, from her home in Kalaheo Kauai, Hawaii. This is her second year of teaching at University School. She is also enrolled as a graduate student in elementary education.

Miss Palama has performed Hawaiian dances for several campus organizations, including Pleiades and University Women's Club.

"When I dance, I try to explain the history of the dance and costume. Without that story, people can't really appreciate the dance," Miss Palama says. She mentioned that the Hawaiian war chant isn't a war chant at all but really a love song which was written by a queen as a farewell.

Frequently she receives orchids sent by airmail from her home. The trip takes one and a half days, and the flowers usually last two weeks. Large orchids cost about $2.50 in the island cities.

"I like the cold weather. Hawaii has a temperate climate, and there is snow only on the largest island," she said. She has learned to ice skate here, but she cannot roller skate.

"In Hawaii, we wear lightweight clothes all the time. There, I had only one coat, unlined and three-quarter length. Two pairs of hose lasted all year." Then, she added, "Ohio State coeds may be interested to know that the 'New Look' isn't going over at all in Hawaii."

Clothes are made in the United States, but they are much more expensive in Hawaii than in the States.

Miss Palama did her undergraduate work in secondary education at the University of Hawaii. After graduation, she taught kindergarten in a school open to children of Hawaiian parentage. Several Ohio State alumni were on the staff, and they persuaded her to come to Ohio State for graduate work.

When Kuulei was on the train coming to Columbus, a woman asked Kuulei's companion if the Hawaiian girl were uncomfortable in American clothes, and if she could speak English.

Kuulei laughed when she told this story, because she speaks fluent English. In fact, she understands Hawaiian but speaks very little of it herself. She says the incident made her feel as if she should cross the States saying, "Me no speak English."

"Teachers in Hawaii have a problem. They must understand a smattering of Japanese, Portuguese, Chinese and Hawaiian besides English. The children come from different nationality backgrounds, and teachers from the United States have difficulty in learning these languages. It seems much easier to teach here when everyone speaks English," she believes.

The tall buildings fascinate Kuulei.

lei. Most buildings in Hawaii have one-floor plans.

The islanders have the same type of football games as in the States, except that "song leaders" take the place of cheerleaders.

The name "Kuulei" means beloved, and "Palama" means guardian or sentinel. Kuulei says that unlike names in the United States, every Hawaiian name has a meaning. Many islanders are christened with American names, but are known by their Hawaiian names. (Her name is really Violet Kuulei Palama.)

Kuulei certainly has been persuasive in singing the praises of Hawaii, so persuasive, in fact, that her roommate, Miss Audrey Pickworth, and the Pickworth family are planning to move to the islands in the near future. Kuulei says there are many job opportunities available.

The Hawaiian miss intends to finish her graduate work by next Summer. About the future, Kuulei says, only time will tell.

Mr. Cessarini is a junior in the College of Engineering and is a member of Theta Chi fraternity.

Hoppes-Snyder

Mr. Neal Hoppes, of London, is announcing the engagement of his daughter, Barbara, to Mr. Bernard Snyder.

Laura Gilberg Welcomes Smiling People Again

"I enjoy seeing people constantly laughing and smiling again. In Germany, they are seldom happy enough to laugh. I had forgotten what the United States was like, you never appreciate it until you have been away for a while," said Laura Gilberg, Com-1, of Youngstown.

Miss Gilberg, a Mack Hall * resident, worked in the U. S. government office at Frankfurt, Germany, for the last two and a half years. As an administrative assistant in the Judge Advocate office, she was civilian personnel administrator.

Although she could speak no German when she arrived, she picked up enough "pigeon-German" to ask directions and carry on simple conversations. This was especially useful on her week-end sightseeing trips in Germany.

Miss Gilberg remained in Germany until Sept. 24. Her return flight was quite exciting — she ate lunch in Frankfurt, dinner in Ireland, had a midnight snack in Iceland, breakfast in Newfoundland, and lunch in New York.

After some slight passport difficulties, she arrived on the campus Sept. 27 for classes.

For three and a half years before she went to Germany, Miss Gilberg served in the WAC. She was stationed in Iowa and Florida during most of that time. She obtained her job in Germany following her discharge.

Miss Gilberg's work in Frankfort was very interesting, in fact, so interesting that she hesitated to return to the United States. She said, "I really wasn't eager to come back, but I did want to begin my education. Ohio looks awfully good to me now, though."

AEPhi To Hold Pledge Dance

Coplon, pledge activities; Doris B. Jacobson, all-around pledge; Janet G. Shulan, pledge scholarship; Marian A. Ament, active activities; Arlene J. Tamarkin, gold fellowship; Jean L. ## This 'n' That . . .

By Dolores Todd

If you think you're having a hard time getting through college, just think about the German college students in the midst of ruins.

There is little vision of the future among students in German colleges today, according to Betty C. Schmid in an article in the current Mademoiselle * magazine.

Recently returned from a tour of German colleges and universities, Miss Schmid said that German students are "tired, physically and mentally." Currency reform has been hard on German students. Part-time jobs and special meals have helped students finish out their terms.

"The typical German youth today was disillusioned with the fall of Nazism, and at first looked for something to replace it," Miss Schmid said. She added, "There still exists hatred of the various nationalities among Germans, and the feeling that they are taking up room, food, and jobs."

One German architect told Miss Schmid, "The system of education in Germany has been greatly responsible for the lack of understanding of human beings. The professor teaches facts, but he is far removed from his pupils and the application of his facts."

She says the whole setup in Germany is paradoxical. "It all boils down to an attempt to spread democracy with an occupation army, which is not by nature a democratic procedure, to a people who have not been conditioned either mentally or psychologically for thinking along democratic lines."

Musicale To Be Given

How Tunnels Are Born

The final "breaking through" of the rock barrier where the two sections of the Brooklyn-Manhattan tunnel join underneath the waters of New York harbor took place with a considerable bang as a dynamite charge was used to blast a hole through the last few feet of rock separating the two ends of the tunnel. The project, which has been under construction since 1940 and will cost 70 million dollars, is expected to be open for motor vehicle traffic in 1950. Above, Sam Allen, superintendent of the Brooklyn section, shakes hands with Andy Amisano of the Manhattan section.

Minstrel Show Is Back

Scarlet Mask Features Bizarre Costumes In Its Forthcoming Minstrel Production

"Mr. Bones, who was dat woman I saw you with last night?"

"Dat was no woman—dat was mah econ professor!"

Yes, Mr. Bones and his gags, corny and otherwise, will make a return appearance this quarter. The old-fashioned comedian and his other cohorts will be seen when Scarlet Mask presents its forthcoming minstrel show at University Hall, Nov. 5 and 6.

"With our rehearsals now in full swing, we feel that Scarlet Mask will be able to present something new in campus entertainment," said Richard T. Greenwald, Com-4, production director.

In addition to the traditional end men and black-faced chorus, Greenwald plans to use four skits emphasizing campus life and activities. These skits were especially written for the show by Samuel A. Hanna, A-4, Charles W. Harriman, Engr-3, and Louis Clemons, Com-3.

The show will also have an all-male chorus line and a humorous

Grade Check Compiled By Registrar

Council To Recommend Better Grading System If Survey Shows Need

A report on all letter grades given by the University from the Autumn Quarter 1947 through the Summer Quarter 1948 has been completed by the Registrar's office.

The Faculty Council is considering this report to decide whether or not any changes are necessary in the University's grading system.

In the Spring of 1947, the Faculty Council proposed that a compilation of all grades given by the University be made for the purpose of discovering and correcting any errors in the present grading system.

Dr. Ronald B. Thompson, registrar and University examiner, was directed to collect the required information during the 1947-1948 school year.

All departments were required to submit the grades given at the close of each of the four quarters. The Registrar's office prepared a report of the distribution of University grades by college and departments.

The average point-hour for the courses were: 400, 2.37; 500, 2.70; 600, 2.83; 700, 3.01; 800, 3.49; 900, 3.80.

Although discrepancies were noted in certain departments, the overall average point-hour was nearly equal for all quarters except the Summer Quarter. Dr. Thompson explained that the Summer Quarter average was considerably higher (2.72) because of the attendance of graduate students.

The average point-hour of both the Autumn Quarter 1947 and the Spring Quarter 1948 was 2.52, while the percentage for Spring Quarter 1948 was 2.54.

adoption of the popular song, "The Maharajah of Magadore." John A. Haldi, A-4, will do the vocalizing.

With a purple jacket and yellow pants, Mr. Bones probably will set a new style in male fashions around campus.

Palestine Discussion Adjourned

PARIS, Oct. 26—(AP)—The American president of the United Nations Security Council angrily adjourned debate on Palestine today. He closed the session with a statement that the Council could not be lashed into action by Arab charges of bias.

Warren Austin, the U. S. delegate and October president of the Council, spoke up sharply to close the debate until Thursday at 10:30 a. m. (4:30 a. m., EST) after Mahmoud Bey Fawzi of Egypt pressed for immediate Council action.

The Council was called into the emergency session to hear an Egyptian charge that Israel is violating a cease fire order on the Negev front in southern Palestine.

Earlier, Faris El Khouri of Syria told the Council it seemed indifferent to Arab charges of truce violations.

Austin said "This is a matter requiring study before any action can be taken. The Council cannot be lashed into action by charges of bias."

Outside the Council, an informed British source said stern United Nations action to secure peace in Palestine is "in the back of many delegates' minds."

Glaciers On The Move

From two miles up and 10 miles distant a coast guard camera records the joining of two Greenland glaciers as they proceed to a fjord to deposit their iceberg quota. ## Odor In Lab Too Much For Cat And Kittens

By William J. Garmus

The housing shortage has reached the point where even a mother cat can't find a decent place for her young offsprings.

A stray grey and white cat with big blotches of red fur indicative of a poor pedigree, gave birth to four kittens last week in the storeroom of laboratory YB in the Chemistry Annex.

After spending nearly a week with her kittens in the storeroom, the mother must have been annoyed by the smell that always emits from a chemistry lab. For in the midst of a laboratory section Tuesday afternoon, she started to cart off her young.

She made two trips through the lab with a little bundle of fur each time. Then one of the embryo engineers facilitated her efforts by moving the box with the other two kittens, close to their new home. Consequently the mother didn't have to travel quite so far.

The new home is a cardboard box in a remote corner of the supply room which is not subjected to the traffic and odors of the lab itself. The cardboard box is piled high in the corner and is still half full of glass flasks and a little paper that is used for packing between the flasks.

The young ones had little to say about their new home because their eyes have yet to open for the first time.

Cane Rush Was 'Rough'

Frosh-Soph Debacle Was Once A Vital Part Of Poor Students' Life, Education

By Lloyd Stoyer

When three shivering guys clad only in old sheets climb out a window of Lord Hall, that's news. When three "wild men" with blackened faces pounce on a coy "coed" and start dragging her around a field—what goes?

No, it's not the Quadrangle Jesters up to their old tricks.

It isn't even "Informal Initiation* Week." It's just a good old-fashioned cane rush in full swing.

Never heard of a cane rush? What's become of this younger generation anyhow? Why just after the first World War cane rushing was the most popular sport on the campus, according to Makios published during those years.

Football, females et al took a back seat when cane rush time rolled around. Four or five thousand people from Ohio State's president on down came out to watch the fireworks, and they were seldom disappointed.

Cane rushes were held on Ohio Field near the present site of University High School. Each year the sophomore men and the "freshmen" lined up at opposite ends of the old Ohio gridiron. At a signal given by the president they rushed at each other and met with a thud in the middle of the field.

The sophs had a cane in their midst and their objective was to hang it from the goalposts that the frosh were defending. The first year men were equally determined to wrest the cane from some battered sophomore and make off with it themselves.

Originally the rushes were dreamed up by the sophomores as a means of putting the fresh freshmen in their "proper place." In those days the upperclassmen were well organized and their rivals seldom stood a chance.

What they lacked in numbers they tried to make up in brainwork, but sometimes their strategy backfired. One year they ambushed small groups of freshmen on their way to the affray, relieved them of their clothes, and locked them in campus buildings.

They didn't bar the windows on Lord Hall though, and three frosh daredevils wrapped up in old sheets, climbed out of their prison and spread the alarm to their classmates in time to save the day.

In another contest the innocent frosh watched a cute little "coed" stroll down the side of the field. When she reached the freshmen's eight yard line she suddenly dashed for their goalpost in a very un-girlish manner. An alert freshman grabbing her by the skirts just in time made a vicious tackle.

The masculine "charmer" was relieved of a corset stay that looked amazingly like a cane. By the time the irate frosh were finished with the "infil-traitor" he had on a "costume" that would have made Gypsy Rose Lee blush.

Yep, them was the days when men was men, and the guy with the cane was a dead pigeon.
