

May Week REALLY Opens Monday Development Drive Opens as Bricker Pledges Support

Governor Promises Personal Contribution;
100 Team Captains Set $15,683 as Goal

"I'm going to dig down deep in my own pocket." With these words Governor John W. Bricker pledged his support to the Ohio State University Development Fund at the "kickoff" dinner Wednesday night in the Faculty Club.

The dinner was attended by approximately 100 team captains and volunteer workers and marked the beginning of the Franklin County and Columbus drive to achieve a goal set at $15,683 in contributions from the 27,000 alumni who live in the county.

It is Governor Bricker's conviction that this fund will "help to build a University that will mean much in the years to come, and will turn out men and women who will become a valuable part of the social, political and business life of the state."

Need Proposals
"I have scanned the list of scholarships and improvements that the Development Fund will support, and I firmly believe that all the things proposed are much needed and that from them much good will come to

Court Calls Candy Food

COLUMBUS—Although Ohio Supreme Court justices think candy is a luxury, they held today that it is also a food and therefore exempt from the state sales tax. Their decision means that Ohio will lose an estimated $500,000 annually in tax revenue.

Chamberlain States Policy

LONDON—Chamberlain said today that Britain is not concerned with Germany's actions so long as they do not threaten the independence of non-German people. The Prime Minister denied that Britain is trying to isolate and encircle Germany. On the other hand, he said, "We are not prepared to sit by and see the independence of one country after another successively destroyed."

Personnel Council Weighs Labor Quiz

After consideration of the results of the Student Labor Board's survey of student employment this afternoon, Professor R. C. Davis, department of business organization, president of the University Personnel Council, issued the following statement:

"It (the council) feels that the board's project is quite worth while. It believes that further investigation by the board is most desirable. It has so recommended to the board." The Personnel Council will meet again next Thursday.

750 Persons Attending Welding Conference

MAYOR TO SELECT 6 BEAUTIES AT RALLY

The mayor of the city of Columbus will leave his official worries and headaches for a few moments Friday, surround himself with co-ed photographs, and ask himself "Which is the most beautiful?"

Mayor Myron Gessaman has consented to judge candidates for queen of May Week. He will be entrusted with the fate of representatives from several sororities, dormitories and women's organizations on the campus, to select the six young beauties who will compete for the title of queen at the opening rally of Traditions Week Monday night in the Stadium.

To those sixfortunates who appease the mayor's palate for pulchritude will go the privilege of conducting a major portion of Monday night's proceedings, as well as considerable participation in the entire week.

Vote at Rally

The voting will be held prior to entrance to the Stadium and those candidates who fail to win will form the queen's court.

The number of bonnets in the ring was increased to eight today when three sororities and one dormitory announced their queens. This number will probably be augmented by last-minute entries before the deadline at 5 p. m. today.

Latest entries are Mary L. Tully, Kappa Alpha Theta; Margo Tosner, Kappa Delta; Ann E. Denman, Phi Mu, and Dorothy Bowman, Oxley Hall.

A novel feature of this year's activities will be that of bringing to the fore traditions of individual organizations.

Letters Sent Out

Letters were to be sent by the May Week committee to all organizations on the campus today stating that the committee "has decided to conduct a 'search for traditions' during May Week."

1100 Grads Invited To Pharmacy Meet

Pharmacy Council Event
Set for June 9; Vincent
Facciuto Student Head

Invitations are being sent to 1100 alumni for the first annual post-collegiate assembly of the College of Pharmacy June 9 on the campus. Vincent Facciuto, Phar-4, is chairman of activities for the Pharmacy Student Council, sponsoring organization.

Similar to the post-collegiate assemblies of the Medical and Dental Colleges held here annually, the program will include lectures on the latest advances in science by nationally known medical and pharmaceutical authorities.

The program will open at 10:30 a. m. June 9 and close with a dinner at 6:30 that night in the Faculty Club.

Ohio State will be represented on the program by Dean Clair A. Dye of the College of Pharmacy; Dr. William McPherson, acting president of the University, and John B. Fullen, alumni secretary. Formation of an alumni organization for the College of Pharmacy will also be considered.

Delegates Elected To Teachers' Meet

Six delegates to the annual state convention of the Ohio Federation of Teachers, AFL affiliate, to be held Saturday at the Fort Hayes Hotel, were elected by members of the University branch of the American Federation of Teachers at a meeting Wednesday night.

Those chosen are: David C. Williams, department of mechanics, president of the University branch of the Federation; Professor Alma Herbst, department of economics; Merriss Cornell, School of Social Administration; S. Clayton Newman, department of sociology; I. Keith Tyler, Bureau of Educational Research, and Dr. Bronson Price, department of psychology.

There was also a discussion of a proposed new constitution for the group, drafted by a committee of which Professor Tyler is chairman. Since this was the last meeting of the school year, further action on the revision was postponed until the first meeting of the autumn quarter.

Plans were made for the first annual dinner scheduled May 31.

Mirrors Will Elect Committee Heads

Committee chairmen for the coming year will be elected at the meetings of Mid-Mirrors groups at 4 p. m. today in Pomerene Hall.

Results of the vote will be announced Monday at the Mirror Lake ceremony in which members of Mid-Mirrors accepted will be initiated.

Because of changes made in the Mirrors' by-laws only 30 of the Mid-Mirrors members who took tests at committee sessions in Pomerene Hall are eligible for the sophomore organization.

Although it will not become effective until fall quarter, a provision has been inserted in the constitution raising the point-hour ration requirement from 2.0 to 2.3.

Parents' Groups To Meet May 13, 14

Students Plan Welcome
For Mothers, Dads; Dinner
Scheduled for Saturday

Sunday is officially Mothers' Day, but Ohio State students are preparing to welcome Dads too. Both the Mothers' and the Dads' Associations will meet here Saturday and Sunday.

A joint dinner for the leaders of the two groups will be held at 5:30 p. m. Saturday in Pomerene Refectory, with Dr. William McPherson, acting president, as speaker. Following the dinner, each group will confer on their own problems. Mothers will have round-table discussion on program, membership, and financial problems of their local county groups.

A concert, with all major student musical groups participating, is scheduled for 3 p. m. Sunday in the Men's Gymnasium. Fraternity, sorority, and independent groups are planning special affairs for the mothers of their members.

Officers Named

Officers of the Mothers' Association are: Mrs. Bruce Baughman, Osborn, president; Mrs. M. G. Morrison, Youngstown; Mrs. H. D. Miracle, Mt. Gilead, secretary; Mrs. John W. McCoy, Barberton, treasurer.

The Dads' officers are: S. E. Laybourne, Springfield, president; M. O. Bretzius, Coshocton, vice president; H. D. Miracle, Mt. Gilead, secretary; F. W. Kleinfelder, Sandusky, treasurer.

Executive secretaries for the two groups are Dean of Men Joseph A. Park for the Dads and Mrs. Christine Conaway, assistant to the dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, for the Mothers.

Student Bands to Tour Europe This Summer

"Oh, a life on the rolling waves and a home on the bounding main," will no longer be just a song of wishful wanting to 11 University students after June. The glamour of far-away places and read-about but seldom-seen vistas will be had for the asking by members of two "local talent" orchestras called "Barons of Rhythm" and "Ohio State Collegians."

The six lucky seafaring lads composing the "Barons of Rhythm" are Roland Miltz, Jack Finkes, Philip Hertenstein, Joe Hoffman and Leonard Klonowski. Roland Miltz will swing the baton.

The "Barons" will play five hours daily for second class passengers in return for which they will receive their passage. Before they sail they probably will visit the New York World's Fair and then leave Hoboken on the Holland-American liner Veendam. They will return August 12 on the sister ship Volendam.

Barons Will Toot

The "Barons" will land at Rotterdam and will probably use bicycles part of the time to visit Belgium, Germany, former Czechoslovakia and Austria, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Italy, Switzerland, France and England during the seven weeks that they are in Europe.

The "Ohio State Collegians," led by Robert Redding, A-3, will leave June 29 on the S.S. Hamburg and will return August 11 on the S.S. Europa. They plan to bicycle over the British Isles.

The other music makers in the band are: Robert Weislogel, John Sigler, Noel Hamilton and Weldon Ayres.

Bon voyage!

Setterfield to Go Abroad

Dr. Hugh E. Setterfield, department of anatomy, has been asked to give a paper in August at the International Neurological Congress in Copenhagen. The subject is "Quantitative Effects of Vitamin Deficiencies on the Peripheral Nervous System." Dr. and Mrs. Setterfield will leave in June, returning to America in September.

1939 GRADS EXPECTED TO CONTRIBUTE $3200

Stifling the spontaneous objection of an indignant minority, the Senior Class voted today in University Chapel to contribute donations to construct four pillars at the campus gateway as a class memorial at an estimated cost of $7000.

Leading the opposition to the pillar construction plan were Irving M. Lichtenstein, A-4, and Paul E. Jacobs, A-4. Alternating as speakers, these two seniors attempted to rally the seniors present in favor of rejection.

After Jacob A. Shawan, A-4, chairman of the Memorial Committee, presented the recommendation for the pillars and detailed architectural plans, the opposition demanded the floor amid a roar of cheers and boos.

"Why should the Senior Class enter a masonry project when the WPA will do it for nothing?" Lichtenstein blasted.

"More Fitting Memorial"

"A more fitting memorial would be a human memorial. Why can't the Senior Class contribute toward a fellowship fund for two or more seniors, one in natural sciences and the other in social sciences, instead of a masonry project," he added as the audience roared.

Fred E. Bernard, A-4, took the floor and argued for the pillar plan.

How's That, Boys?

Two freshmen were puzzled at 11 this morning as to just what the large group of students in University Hall Chapel might be. "It looks like a survey of education class," one of them was heard to say.

It was the senior class mass meeting.

"We want something concrete," he argued. Alex Schoenbaum, A-4, followed suit with the declaration, "We want something to look at!" The crowd hissed.

From the numbers of cheers and boos, it seemed the pillar proposition would be defeated at this point. Then Tom J. McFadden, A-4, editor of the LANTERN, demanded a chance to speak.

"The fellowship idea isn't practical," he said. "We have no guarantee that following classes will follow suit and the memorial would collapse after one year. There is no precedent anyway."

Change to Pillars

A decided swing toward the pillar plan was noted. A group of unidentified seniors then interlarded various other schemes for library book donations and contributions for a student loan fund. All were given a thumbs down rating.

Jacobs, the second pro-fellowship speaker, rose indignantly and said, "There is a decided lack of research facilities on this campus which need remedy." He pointed out the progress made by the University of Michigan. "We can't even crack an atom here!" he said.

"The 'pylon' plan is foolish because it won't be completed this year and all of the following Senior Classes will have to go on the in-

Peace Committee Elects Officers

Eleanore Burt, A-3, YWCA representative, was elected chairman of the Peace Mobilization Committee for the coming year at a meeting Wednesday in the Ohio Union. Albert H. Socolov, A-1, is the new secretary, and Andrew F. Henry, A-1, treasurer.

The committee plans to hold one more panel discussion this quarter. Robert L. Aronson, A-3; Betty A. Neff, A-Ed-4, and Bella D. Weiner, A-2, comprise the committee in charge.

A picnic for members of the committee will be held at O'Shaunnessy Dam on Saturday, May 20. Betty Neff is in charge of arrangements.

Bull to Head Research

Wilbur R. Bull '36 has been appointed to take charge of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce newly formed research department. His title will be assistant to the executive secretary. The appointment was released by the Board of Directors today.

Need a Car? Here's How to Win It!

Are you one of the few lucky seniors who will receive a car for graduation? Or are you trying to scrape together $75 to buy that jalopy you've been eyeing down in the used car lot for a trip this summer?

In any case, whether senior or lowerclassman, you'll be interested in hearing about the new Willys Overland coupe which is the prize offered in an essay contest for University students, announced today by Bob White, Inc., Columbus automobile dealers.

Entrants in this contest are to write a slogan describing the Willys Overland car and an accompanying 150-word essay describing the car and explaining why the slogan fits it.

Must Be Student

Under the rules of the contest, the only requirement for entry is bona fide registration in the University. There is no charge and nothing to buy.

The car which will be given as the prize will be driven around the campus for students to inspect. Additional information about the car may be secured from a folder available at the University Book Store in Derby

Advisory Committee

The Board of Trustees took a great stride towards drawing the faculty and administration into closer cooperation for the best interests of the University when it approved the creation of a committee to represent the faculty in an advisory capacity to the Board.

The existence of such a committee places an instrument in the hands of the Board through which it can become familiar with the problems of the University as seen from the faculty point of view. Though the precise manner in which the committee is to function has not been determined, it will operate as an advisory body in matters affecting the general welfare of the University, probably with power to make recommendations relating to policy and practice.

As created, the committee has five members. Two are from the College of Arts and Sciences, one from the College of Law, one from the College of Medicine, and one from the College of Commerce.

This alignment leaves most of the University's eleven colleges without direct representation on the committee. And it offers both a challenge and a responsibility to the members to represent the entire University and not only their own departments or colleges.

Flying Spikes

Less than three years since Jesse Owens' flying spikes carried him to the top of the athletic world, his fame and fortune are spent. Last week the great runner filed papers of voluntary bankruptcy in Cleveland.

Something caught in our throat when we read of Owens' plight, because through his special talent and pleasant personality he contributed much to Ohio State. Certainly, no other athlete ever carried the University's name so far or bore his success so modestly as Jesse Owens did in 1935 and 1936.

One should not condemn his subsequent professional career, though aspects of it bordered on the ridiculous. When Owens returned from his Olympic triumphs, he was the idol of sport fans throughout the nation. His fame was worth money and he took advantage of that fact. Unfortunately he was not able to retain the wealth he acquired.

No doubt, many who idolized him in 1936 will criticize him today for pursuing an unsuccessful professional career instead of returning to the University. They are wrong now as they were wrong then when they established him as a super-man. The flying feet that stamped a rhythmic staccato on the world's running tracks belonged to an athlete, who though talented, was subject to the same errors and misfortunes as other human beings.

Wednesday night we listened to the University's symphonic band. Beside us was a working man in a blue shirt with grease on his arm. There were many others like him in the audience—not students, not faculty members, but residents of Columbus. The outdoor concerts are one of the many ways the University contributes to the enrichment of the community in which it functions.

Shifting Ground

After several months of opposition to housing regulation, the Columbus Rooming House Association is ready to shift ground and support the new housing ordinance written by City Building Inspector George W. Matson, if two changes are made in it.

The association is asking that the section calling for two stairways leading from the second floor be omitted and that the proposed inspection fee be reduced from $5 per year to $3. Although the ordinance would be less effective if these changes were made, it would be folly to refuse a compromise and risk losing it entirely.

The ordinance, written after careful survey of Columbus rooming house conditions, is a good one. Realizing this the Men's Housing Bureau has declared itself in complete accord with all its proposals. Even with the two controversial sections deleted, there still would be much in the new ordinance beneficial to students living in campus rooming houses.

Right Turn . . .

The English Are A Funny Race . . .

By JAMES O'BOYLE BURKE

(This column was written by Willard K. Hirsch—Ed.)

Whoever said, "The English are a funny race" definitely hit the nail on the head, in lieu of the unaccountable boycott of the Duke of Windsor's radio speech Monday. This act by the British government showed nothing but a lack of courtesy to the man who once ruled the Empire, and in recent history, was the most popular member of the royal family prior and during his tenure in kingship.

Though the government gave no valid reason for the British Broadcasting Corporation's refusal to carry the speech over its facilities, the press of Great Britain was against its deliverance, particularly the London Express, Lord Beaverbrook's paper, which expressed itself as believing that "Edward's speech was ill-timed especially while their majesties were on the high seas en route to America."

So what? By what stretch of the imagination could Edward's speech possibly cause any alarm especially when it was known in advance of the broadcast that its text would plead for world peace and a better understanding among peoples of the world. In our opinion, Edward has done more for world peace than the quiet-mannered present monarch. It is safe to say that the Duke, in his two speeches since his abdication, has had command of a larger international radio audience than any other man with the exception of Hitler. What can George the VI show to equal this amazing international listening audience! Nothing, and we dare say he never will.

Despite the fact the BBC and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation did not allow the Duke's speech over their facilities, a British audience nevertheless heard his talk via an exclusive broadcast over an American network! We repeat, the English are a funny race. The very fact that the British government decided not to carry the speech made the populace all the more curious to hear what their former ruler had to say. And they were not disappointed. Spakning in a slow, well-modulated tone, his sentences beautifully worded and chosen, the Duke spoke again to the world on a subject close to his heart and to all lovers of peace, urging the world to stem the reams of war propaganda that are flowing between nations and imploring leaders of those nations to sit down at conference tables "to save humanity from the terrible fate which threatens it today."

Left Turn . . .

It Won't Work
Anymore, Boys . . .

By IRVING M. LICHTENSTEIN

The great world pastime today seems to be rationalization. At least one would think so in light of what's happened in Europe during the past year or so. And to bring the boil of interpretation to a head, this excuse making is passed off in newspapers as legitimate news based on facts.

The rigmarole started with Munich. Hitler grabbed the Sudetenland and the experts were left at the post. They came to the brilliant conclusion that it was his legitimate claim after all and that he would be satisfied and be a nice boy. Economists of rank added that the acquisition would mulk the economic setup in the Reich.

Fascist legions usurped Spain and the speculation continued in earnest. Disregarding the fact that the false-neutrality of the democracies helped the rape along, British statesmen rationalized that Franco would play cricket at the English wicket and forget his Fascist mortgage, Gibraltar or no Gibraltar.

Then the Berlin division of the Axis expanded to conquer the rest of the Czech nation. Democratic commentators imbibed in a little more absinthe and added Hitler is really headed for a fall. "Il Duce will split with him and join the non-aggression front," they said in reverse logic.

Albania then came under the Italian stiletto and Franco joined the spiliers with the remark that Il Duce's move would result in Turkish and Balkan animosity. Animosity or no animosity, France is still a second rate nation and Italy is vacationing in the Balkans.

Then came the dawn. The Rome-Berlin Axis removed its mask and declared itself a military alliance. Any doubt in the public's mind that Italy and Germany would split became an over-realistic day dream.

Now the clairvoyants are back at work again. They know that they can't pass off destruction of Fascism through an act of God, so they have switched over to Russia. It seems that Britain has cold feet again in regard to an anti-Fascist military alliance and she doesn't want to admit it. It seems that Russia is now in line for blarbs about its alleged pro-Fascist tendencies.

Our comment is, "It won't work anymore, boys. It won't work."

Turnin' The Dial

Success Story . . .

Just a week ago we luckily happened to be on the listening end of a radio success story that would do credit to Horatio Alger for supposed impossibility. It has been so long since we heard Major Bowes on the air that the genial gentleman and his amateurs were a refreshing dose of radio listening last week. One of his performers was a Brooklyn College amateur, Lawrence Iesler, by name.

who did a masterful job of mimicry, we thought, of Edward G. Robinson, Charles Boyer, Boake Carter, Ronald Colman, Charles Laughton, Basil Rathbone, Clem McCarthy and Roland Young. Walter O'Keefe and Andre Kostelanetz thought so too in the Columbia Playhouse studio where they were listening to the Bowes program before they followed it on the air with "Tune Up Time." Both gentlemen were so impressed with Iesler's work, they immediately phoned the Major and asked him to rush the young fellow over to their Forty-fifth and Broadway studio, where they were waiting to go on the air. When Bowes told Iesler he was wanted as a guest star on "Tune Up Time," the amateur was halfway out of the studio when Bowes suddenly asked him whether he knew where the No. 1 Columbia Playhouse was. All of this repartee was going out over the air. Iesler had to sheepishly answer, "No," while the studio audience roared. The fellow was that excited over his good fortune.

The following hour we heard him again on the "Tune Up Time" show and he went over just as big as he did for the Bowes audience. And this brief story shows the speed with which radio showers success on some. One hour Lawrence Iesler was doing his stuff for nothing and the next he was getting paid for it! We expect to hear more of this fellow in the future.

stallment plan to complete it," he charged. "Let's inflate our ego through another human being on a fellowship and not through an overdose of mud-pies."

He sat down.

Passed by Vote

Richard T. Baker, A-4, president of the Senior Class, then put the question of pillars versus fellowships to a vote. Fraternity and sorority leaders lined up supporters and the pillar construction plan was passed by a 2 to 1 vote.

In essence, the construction of the pillars will be according to the following plan: The present Senior Class will attempt to raise $3200 and add the amount to the $1300 already contributed by an alumni fund. This amount will cover the construction of two of the four pillars. Other graduating classes to come will raise funds to complete the project.

The present class will raise its share of the financing in the following ways:

1. Each senior will be asked to contribute $1.
2. Profits of the Senior Prom.
3. Concessions run by the Senior Class.

Asked Senior Aid

John B. Fullen, alumni secretary, closed the meeting with an appeal to each senior to contribute his dollar. He pointed out the pride that seniors would have in years to come when they see the completed pillars.

Committee reports read before the seniors included:

1. Ring committee: Selection of a new ring, a combination of gold and red onyx, to sell for $22.50 and $12.50.
2. Announcement committee: Reported prices on cardboard covered, leather and plain paper announcements.
3. Class Day committee: Announced that a class dinner will take place June 10, followed by the planting of an oak tree.
4. Cap and Gown committee: Reported rental price would be $1 for bachelors' gowns and $3.50 for hoods.
5. Dress for women committee: Girls will be required to wear white dresses with collars to fold over the black gowns.

is being asked to write and tell about the traditions of his organization.

From the replies that are received a list of five will be selected by the committee which it believes have the most significance and interest for the whole student body. These five will be announced and explained to the student body at the Monday rally.

Organizations submitting traditions must limit their letters to 800 words and must have them in the hands of the Student Senate by noon Monday to be eligible.

"Some Recognition"

"In this way," the committee's letter states, "we hope to give some recognition to Ohio State's numerous but unheralded traditions."

The letter cites one such tradition—that of Phi Gamma Delta—which has three chandeliers in the living room, hanging down to about six feet from the floor.

Initiates in this fraternity are asked to kick one of these before they become actives.

"This is just one example. There must be many more similar ones in the organizations about the campus."

Hiking Is 'Thumb Fun,' Social Institute Claims

By JACK JONAS

Thursday Social Problems Editor

Many of us are in the situation where we cannot afford to pay bus fare every time we feel the desire to go home for the week end. Thus, a great number of college students use the technique which is known as hitch-hiking.

This method of getting places has* often been explained in various ways, but several persons have written the Thursday Social Institute and asked for a thorough analysis of the problem.

This was done, and the following results were obtained:

1. The "danger" method. If you have a friend working in the highway department, this is the method for you. Get him to obtain a sign for you which is used on road projects, one reading "Danger, Men Working." Set this up a short distance from the place where you are waiting for a ride. Cars will slow down, and they will be more apt to see you than they would if not slowed down. This method has one danger, however, in that you might be mistaken for the person who is supposed to be working on the road.
2. The "glove" method. Secure a stake about 8 feet long. Drive this about 1 foot into the ground along the side of the road. When this has been done, pull an old canvas glove over the end of the pole, with the thumb pointing in the direction you wish to go. Then you can sit down and rest while waiting for a ride.
3. The "I-don't-care-if-you-don't-attitude" method. When you spy an approaching car, throw up your hand carelessly and nonchalantly, assume a stance which says, "I don't care if you don't stop; I got lots of ways of gettin' places." Then people will pick you up just for spite, so you won't get to try your other ways of getting places.
4. The "professional-twist" method. Here you must assume the attitude of being a professional. Flip your wrist in the general direction in which you wish to go and say with your eyes, "I know what this is all about, bud, pick me up." This generally gets results because the driver of the car will say to himself, "Oh, well, if I don't someone else will."
5. The "after-all-else-fails" method. After using all of the above methods, and still failing to reach your destination, the only thing left for you to do is take a bus, or to stay home. It would be cheaper to stay home, and we will survey the problem of ways to spend your leisure time during an evening at home at some future time.

The members of each organization knows about their own, but the rest of the campus goes on blissfully telling each other and the world that Ohio State has no traditions."

Some Won't Enter

Preparations for the week met a temporary barrier when a few sororities announced their endorsement of the measure before the Student Senate, limiting the number of queens, and refused to submit candidates for this reason.

This opposition became negligible, however, when other organizations continued to select their candidates. Precise function of the queen and her court have not yet been definitely announced. They will reign over the entire week's proceedings and the queen herself will give the signal to turn on the light that will burn in the Stadium during May Week.

A large attendance is expected for the opening ceremony when torches will light the path to the Stadium. The night will be spent recapitulating the entire year, reviewing the success the University has achieved since the fall quarter.

the University," declared Governor Bricker.

"I regret," he said, "that sufficient funds cannot be appropriated to the University by the state government to fulfill all its needs, but at the present time the government is faced with serious problems of finance because of increased demands for money by welfare and public school departments."

Within the past year Governor Bricker accompanied a group of state executives and legislators and University men, headed by Dr. William McPherson, acting president, on a trip to the University of Illinois and the University of Michigan for the purpose of comparing them with Ohio State. Members of the group were introduced at the dinner by Governor Bricker.

Speaking of the trip, he said that he came back with a new appreciation of our own University, but also with a feeling of envy for the other two great universities.

Have Reached Limit

He added, "But the executives of the state, many of whom are graduates of the University, and the legislature with 25 or 30 University alumni or former students among its members, have gone to the ultimate limit that available funds will permit in recommending appropriations."

"This year the University has received an increased amount of money and we hope that this will help it to move along and set the pace for the University of the future as the Central State universities should do."

"We cannot build spirit and friendship with money," Governor Bricker declared. "But a campaign like this will do much for all who take part in it."

Appeals for Aid

Governor Bricker appealed to alumni to contribute to the Development Fund in reciprocity for the benefits they had received from their alma mater. He pointed out what the University has done for Franklin County and Columbus, and said that without Ohio State business and social life here would be at a lower ebb.

George M. (Red) Trautman, president of the American Baseball Association, who used to pitch on the same baseball team with Governor Bricker, reviewed in his talk the things that the University has done for him.

Renew Contacts

"The spirit of Ohio State couldn't be bought for a million dollars," he declared, and he expressed the belief that the Development Fund campaign would help alumni to "turn back the clock" and renew their contact with the spirit of the University.

Freeman T. Eagleson, attorney, and chairman of the Franklin County campaign, presided at the dinner. He called the project "more than a drive or a canvass, but an opportunity to form a personal relationship with the University today."

The first report of the campaign which started this morning will be given at a luncheon meeting at the YMCA at 12:15 p. m. Thursday, May 18.

Takes Us Back to the Olympics
Of 1904 and Tells Us a Secret
Of Someone Near and Dear to Us

Lantern Sports Writer

It is a typical tropical summer day in St. Louis back in the year when grandfather was busy stuffing the ballot box for Teddy Roosevelt or Howard Taft and father wore the dunce cap in grammar school.

Everything is in a hurry on this memorable day. There is a dual attraction in this city known as "The Gateway to the West," the World's Fair and the Olympic Games. The year is 1904. The Olympics are still in the embryo stage and few foreign athletes have braved the trip across the pond to compete in this international display of running flesh.

It is the hey-day of the athletic clubs, for collegiate runners are scarce. There are spindle-legged sprinters from such eastern athletic organizations as the Boston A. C., but our interest for the day is centered upon one runner from an eastern school, Colgate.

He is Frank Riley Castleman who is known to us as a football player of some repute in addition to being classified as one of the outstanding hurdlers in the country. His gridiron ability has earned him several all-American mentions and his load of track medals is enough to stagger a mule. He is entered in the hurdles today.

The dashes have been run. The 1500-meter and 800-meter runs are history as the time for the low hurdles approaches. There is no let-up in the terrific heat.

Where Is Our Hero?

There is the first call for the hurdles and several runners start to prance around and to step over a few of the crude barriers. We look for Castleman but he has not put in his appearance as yet. There is still plenty of time. But our hero does not appear after the second and third calls. Could he be plotting a last-second entrance?

Our pulse increases and our hopes decrease as the runners toe their marks. The gun barks and the runners are off—with-out Castleman. What could have happened to the Colgate Clipper?

That evening we get the story. The heat got Castleman. It made him sleepy. When he spied a shady spot under a tree a short distance from the track he could not resist the temptation to catch 40 winks. But it was not many winks before Castleman was completely lost to the world of reality. Reveling in his dreams, he slept through the running of his event. Well, at least he slept through part of the race. He woke up just as the runners cleared the first hurdle!

Today Dr. Frank R. Castleman, one of the greatest athletes in Colgate's history, can be found in his office in the Physical Education Building where he rules as Director of Track of Ohio State University. He still enjoys his sleep but as far as we know he stays away from shady spots.

Home Runs by Sigma Chi Bring 10-8 Victory in I-M

Two home runs in the first inning gave Sigma Chi an early lead in its 10 to 8 victory over Phi Delta Theta in Wednesday's outstanding intramural hardball game.

Home runs by Abbot and Bliss, with one man on base each time, accounted for the four runs Sigma Chi made off Lewis, ace Phi Delta hurler, in the opening frame.

The Phi Deltas garnered two runs in their half of the inning and matched Sigma Chi run for run during the rest of the contest, but they were not able to overcome the initial lead.

The victory puts Sigma Chi in the semifinals of its flight race.

Towers Defeat Jitterbugs

The Towers took over a hard playing Jitterbug outfit 8-7, with Seaman and Belden pitching nice ball for the winners. For a while it looked like the Jitterbugs were going to have a last inning rally and win the game, but they didn't have quite enough on the ball, and fell one run short of tying the game up.

Wirth of the Jitterbugs led the batting with four hits out of four tries.

Alpha Tau Omega managed to win a 10-9 decision from Sigma Phi Epsilon in a four-inning game. Hill, pitching for the Sigma Phis, was wild and walked 10 men. Tweedie, ATO star twirler, gave only seven hits, and received fine support from his mates.

The softball league featured some terrific hitting sprees with two teams getting over 25 runs apiece. Phi Delta Chi beat Mu Beta Chi 27-5, while Mining trounced Electrical 28-2. The surprising thing about the Phi Deltas getting 27 runs was the fact that they got only one home run. In getting their total, the Miners managed to garner seven four-base hits.

In the closest game of the afternoon, the Ceramics won a 5-4 victory from Industrial. The Industrials took over a 4-2 lead in the first inning, but the Ceramics slowly overtook them. The winners didn't put the game on ice until the last inning, when a triple and three straight singles did the trick.

Diamond Squad Whips Miami

Bucks Pound Out 8 to 1 Win Behind Six-Hit Pitching

By BOB RIES

Showing definite signs of coming out of their protracted batting slump, Ohio State snapped a five-game losing streak here Wednesday by bunting eight hits for eight runs to scalp Miami's Redskins, 8-1. The win was the first recorded by the Bucks since they spilled Ohio University, 10-6, a month ago.

The fray, performed before a handful of fans, was well played. Only two errors were charged, both against Miami. The hitting star was Tony Jesko, willowing right fielder, who punched out half of the Buck hits with a home run and three singles in four trips to the plate. He drove in three of the Buck runs.

Coach Fritz Mackey, endeavoring to find a capable starter for this week's pair of games with Purdue, the current Big Ten leaders, used Jim Sexton, Mark Kilmer and John Dagenhard in three-inning stretches. All of them responded with masterful pitching performances.

Kilmer Pleases

Kilmer, making his first 1939 appearance, delivered sensationally for Mackey. Although a bit wild, Kilmer wasn't touched for a solitary hit in his three-inning stay. Only 10 men faced him, and four of them went down swinging.

The deceptive curve baller showed that his long pitching layoff has cramped his style very little, for in the sixth inning after pitching seven straight balls, he bore down to retire the side on strikes.

The Bucks were very stylish afield, manipulating two rapid-fire double plays, but the hitting improvement was a revelation to Coach Mackey. Miami boasted two good pitchers in George Rung and Les Heise, both of whom twirled in the tough Class A Cleveland sandlot league during the summer months, but their offerings were anything but a puzzle to the heretofore impotent Bucks.

Rung to Showers

Rung got by for two innings, but in the third, the Scarlet jumped on him for three runs to send him to the showers. Heise, who took up the pitching burden, was hampered by a streak of wildness, and his inability to locate the plate presented three additional runs to the Bucks. Hoyman finished the game, but even he failed to weather the Buck bombardment, as he was shelled for two runs in the eighth.

After the Bucks piled up a safe 6-1 margin in the sixth inning, Mackey inserted several substitutes that he has been grooming for positions on the squad next season. Among these were two blossoming sophomores, Jay Ingram, outfielder, and Ralph Leopold, third baseman. Ingram made an auspicious debut, slapping out a line single in his only time at bat. Leopold whaled a sizzling liner directly into the second baseman's hands in his only trip to the plate.

Miami Scores

Miami scored its only run off Sexton in the third inning.

Ohio scored three times in its half of the inning. Sexton, first up, singled. Coyer hit to Stupak, but both runners were safe when Sexton beat Stupak's throw to second. Myers sacrificed, advancing both runners. After Lynch had grounded out, Laybourne walked to fill the bases. Hensel walked, forcing in Sexton, and then Jesko came through with his second hit to score both Coyer and Laybourne.

Ohio capitalized on Heise's wild southpaw slants to register two more runs in the fourth. Morgan and Sexton walked, and Coyer singled to fill the sacks with none out. Myers walked to force in Morgan. Lynch forced Sexton at the plate, but Coyer scored the second run of the inning by coming home on Laybourne's long fly to right.

Ingram Steals

The Bucks added one run in the sixth on Myers' pass, Lynch's single and Stitzel's error, and then wound up in fine fashion in the stretch inning by corraling their last two runs. Jesko, first up, hammered a terrific line home run to the incline in right center. Ingram singled and stole second. After Morgan and Dagenhard fled out, Ingram scored when Innis allowed Coyer's hot smash to get away from him.

The Bucks will endeavor to halt Purdue's relentless march to the championship this week end in a pair of games. Mackey feels that his Bucks will sidetrack the powerful Boilermakers if they pound out blows with the bases occupied as they did in the Miami fray. John Dagenhard will go to the hill in one tilt, while either Kilmer, Dornbrook or Sexton will get the call in the other.

Linksmen Prepare For Indiana Match

Ohio State's linksmen will go after their first win in Western Conference competition this Saturday, when they meet Indiana. The match is to be played on the University golf course.

The Buckeyes will be trying to enter the win column again after absorbing two straight defeats on enemy territory over the week end. Indiana will bring a fairly strong team to Columbus. Their latest victory was against Detroit this past Saturday. This is the same Detroit team which took the measure of the Bucks on Monday.

The Bucks have been working out on the University course since their return from Detroit. The team which will play against Indiana will be selected by Coach Bob Kepler today.

Jobs Galore for Welders

At least five freshmen won't have to look for jobs after graduation. The five are in the newly created course of welding engineering. Professor James R. Stitt, department of industrial engineering, who was pioneer in establishing the first welding course in the United States, said that the project had created much enthusiasm in welding equipment manufacturers.

AIEE Picnic May 20

The student branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers will hold its annual picnic May 20 at Columbus' Oak Park.

Two Scarlet Pin Twirlers To Seek Title

The little publicized and coachless Buckeye gymnastic "team" is at it again. For the second consecutive year its two members are going after a national AAU title.

They aren't confident, by any means, of winning the national team championship, but they hope to retain the rating they gained last year when Vernon Gilmore and Don McCullough placed second and third in the Indian club event to give Ohio State fourth ranking among the nation's gymnastic teams.

In the 1938 championships the Union Hill, N. J., Turner Club placed first to retain the team title they have held for the past six years. The United States Naval Academy placed one-two-three in the rope climb for second place and the University of Illinois' Gialombardo won the tumbling event to give the Illini third team ranking.

The wide dispersment of places and the victory of many unattached men helped the two Ohioans to a team placement last year. This year they hope for even better luck.

At both Pittsburgh in 1937 and Philadelphia in 1938, Gilmore succeeded in edging McCullough by a narrow margin. They placed third and fourth in 1937 and second and third in 1938. This Saturday at the United States Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md., they hope to place first and second; each contending the other second place honors.

McCullough is quite a versatile athlete, being a member of the 1938 national champion Buckeye swimming team, a physical education major, candidate for drum major and a tumbler of note. Together the two boys plan to work up a double juggling act within the near future.

Caton Cobb, a Columbus high school student, who placed eleventh in the parallel bar event in 1938, will accompany the gymnasts as will his father, Sam Cobb of the physical education department. The Ohio Staters, as place winners in last year's meet, will be guest of the Academy from Friday noon until Sunday noon.

Cardinals Play Exhibition At Illinois Monday

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., May 11—Illinois field is being made ready for the appearance of the St. Louis Cardinals Monday when the most colorful of big league teams will play the University of Illinois.

The Cardinals will arrive early Monday morning from Cincinnati where they will conclude a three-game series Sunday and depart Monday evening via Tolono for home where they open a series Tuesday with the New York Giants.

The roster of the club will be as follows:

Catchers — Arnold Owen, Don Padgett, Herman Franks.
Pitchers — Lon Warneke, Robert Weiland, Curt Davis, Paul Dean, William McGee, Clyde Shoun, Bob Bowman, Mort Cooper, Ken Raffensberger, Tom Sunkel.

Infielders — Jim Brown, Don Guttridge, Stuart Martin, John Mize, Frank Crespi, Lynn Myers, Joe Orenge.

Outfielders — Johnny (Pepper) Martin, Joe Medwick, Terry Moore, Enos Slaughter, Elvin Adams, Lynn King.

Wallie Roettger, the present Illinois coach, is a former Cardinal outfielder. Roettger, batting second in the first game of the St. Louis-Philadelphia world series of 1931, singled to center for the first hit of the series.

"Nothing before or after gave me such a thrill as this," comments the modest coach of the Illini, who is bringing his old club to Illinois field Monday.

Arrange Election

Arrangements to elect officers of Browning Dramatic Society for the coming year were to be made at an executive committee meeting at 4 p. m. today in Pomerene Hall. Browning's spring production, "The Merchant of Venice," will be given June 9 and 10 in the amphitheater.

Early Grid Practice Sought By Ohio Conference Schools

CLEVELAND, O., May 11—(UP)—A movement for an earlier starting date for Ohio College Conference football practice next fall was under way today in several member-schools. Leader in the proposal for a September 11 practice opening was Dr. Clarence W. Spears, coach and athletic director at Toledo U.

The plan had seconds from athletic officials at Case, John Carroll and Baldwin-Wallace, three Conference members in the Cleveland area. Last year's practice start was September 16.

"The earlier date would be fine for us," Ray Ride, athletic director and coach at Case, commented.

"We can use every day that's allowed us, particularly when we have to compete with Western Reserve, for example, which opens its football camp at the end of August." Reserve is not a Conference member but plays all three of the Cleveland schools.

The question likely will come up at the next Conference business meeting May 26 and 27 at Granville.

Wesleyan Plays Miami

COLUMBUS, O., May 11—(UP)

The Ohio Wesleyan baseball team invades the diamond precincts of Miami University and the University of Dayton this week end for three games that should give a definite turn to the immature Ohio Conference championship race.

Only three league games have been played. Miami, the defending champion, took its only start from Dayton, 12 to 10. Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio U. have split a two-game series while Dayton has lost its one game to Miami.

Wesleyan takes on Miami for a double-header Friday at Oxford and moves north to Dayton to play the Flyers on Saturday. Miami has a return engagement with Dayton at Oxford next Tuesday.

Librarians Kept Busy Despite Spring Fever

Spring and young love may cause a young man's fancy to wander, but it is more than likely that he and his fancy are wandering to the Library, according to the statistics from the Main Library's April report. More than 14,000 books were handed over the delivery desk on the second floor of the Main Library compared to 9800 in January.

If every month we collected 5000* students and gave each one a book to take home to read, we would be doing no more than the libraries do in an average month. Last year we would have needed only 4000 students.

Library Buzzes

More than 175,000 "Joe Colleges" and "Betty Co-Eds" kept the Main Library buzzing with life and activity in January, counting not only the number of books they called for at the delivery desk but books and papers used in the stacks, closed reserve, art reserve, periodical room and seminars.

February saw a decrease in attendance and the number of books circulated, but 165,000 students presented their fee cards to get books. March winds must have blown out some students, but maybe spring vacation had something to do about

Kappa Delta Writes A Song-'Dreaming'

Phi Beta Delta and Zeta Beta Tau Fraternities Will Celebrate Mothers' Day Next Sunday

By JUDITH SMILACK

Original songs are almost as hard to write as original leads. Maybe harder. We never tried to write a song. But Maxine Morral, Kappa Delta pledge, not only tried, but has one ready to be presented next Friday at the Kappa Delta spring formal. That Maxine has a fine soprano, we know, and now she blossoms into a song writer! The dance will be held at the Columbus Country Club which is being decorated with the sorority colors, green and white. Kappa Deltas and escorts will dance to The Masqueraders' music.

P.S.—The name of Maxine's song is "Dreaming" and it's one of a number of original compositions.

Once a Year

Mothers' Day is Sunday. Phi Beta Delta's annual Parents' Day Get-Together is also Sunday. Besides planning all kinds of entertainment for their fathers and mothers, the Phi BD's are going to have an enormous picture taken of everybody together.

Southern style fried chicken will tickle the palates of more than 200 people, after which the "Zeta Beta Tau Mothers' Club" will hold its meeting. Bill Platka and Herbie Ackerman have been delegated to provide guest entertainment for the afternoon.
