Gun-holding man robs $4 from student

By Nancy Milosevich

A 20-year old OSU student was robbed at gunpoint Tuesday night near his apartment on Lane Avenue.

According to police, David Marc Gentil, a junior from Cincinnati, was walking to his apartment at 133 E. Lane Ave. at about 9:30 p.m. when a man stuck a small blue revolver in his side and said, "Give me your

When Gentil told the man he did not have much money, the man put the gun to Gentil's head and said, "I'll blow your head off," police said. Gen-til opened his wallet and the man took

The suspect then ran south or Waldeck Avenue.

Detective Chet DeLong of the Columbus Police Department said the victim described the suspect as being a black man, medium complexioned, from 20 to 25 years old, about 6 feet tall and about 165 pounds.

The suspect was wearing a tan waist-length leather jacket and a light brown tweed hat, Gentil reported.

DeLong said the incident could be related to three Sunday night Tobberies in the campus area.

In separate incidents, three OSU students were robbed by two men carrying a small blue revolver. The robberies occurred on East 13th and East 14th avenues.

DeLong said the recent rash of rob-beries in the area could all be related, with one of the crimes will be ques-tioned about all of the incidents.

Italian terrorists assassinate U.S. Sinai force commander

ROME - Gunmen firing from a car Wednesday shot and killed Leamon R. Hunt, U.S. commander of the multinational peace-keeping force in Sinai, police said. A left-wing extremist group claimed responsibility.

Police said two or three gunmen fired automatic weapons at Hunt as he stepped out of his chauffeur-driven car outside the gate of the small villa he shared with his wife and son in the Mussolini-built suburb on the southern outskirts of Rome.

Less than half an hour after the shooting, a telephone call to the left-wing private radio station "Radio Popolare" in Milan claimed respon-sibility for an Italian left-wing extremist group called the Combatant Communist Proletariat.

Hunt, 56, of Mill Creek, Okla., a retired foreign service officer who was director general of the Multinational Force and Observers in Sinai, had left the organization's headquarters at 6:40 p.m. (12:40 p.m. EST) for the short drive to his

The caller added the slogans: "Imperialist forces get out of Lebanon. Italy get out of NATO. No to the missiles in Comiso."

One hundred twelve U.S. cruise missiles are to be deployed in southeastern Sicily starting in March.

The shooting occurred only six hours after U.S. Vice President George Bush left Rome for Paris after talks with Italian leaders and an audience with Pope John Paul II.

Columbus experienced a landslide Wednesday.

It occurred in the Ohio House of Representatives. Rep. Mike Stinziano, D-Columbus, had few problems getting his fellow legislators to approve his bill which would allow a mass transit authority to lend money to the state for interstate highway construction, provided the highway reserve a lane or lanes for buses.

The bill was passed by an 89-to-7 vote and must now go to the Senate for approval.

If it passes the Senate, the Central Ohio Transit Authority could lend $10 million of its projected $51 million surplus to help local and state agencies meet the requirements to obtain federal matching funds. This would provide the bulk of the money needed to finance construction of the I-670 extension. The legislation also includes an emergency clause to allow construction to begin upon its signing into law by

Gov. Richard F. Celeste.

The governor endorses the legislation and has said he will sign it if passed in the Senate. Rep. Jo Ann Davidson, R-Reynoldsburg, urged legislators to forget party affiliation and pass the bill. She pointed out that construction of the highway would route from downtown to the airport.

"There is no reason for a capital (city) to lack a highway to the rest of the city," said Rep. Dean Conley, D-Columbus.

Stinziano said the state will lose the federal money which could be used for I-670 unless Ohio moves quickly and begins construction. The State Department of Transportation approved the construction of the highway in 1975, he said, and after nine years the state has spent $33 million on the project, but the I-670 extension remains incomplete.

Rep. Robert E. Brown, R-Perrysburg, opposed the legislation. He said because the completion of the highway is supposed to be a high priority of the state, the state should be able to provide the funds.

"COTA should expand its services in other areas, reduce its rates, or even consider returning money to the taxpayers," Brown said of the use of COTA surplus for the highway.

Ohio State has five entries in the race for $16 million in research money offered by the state.

The university has applied for state development grants to set up Advanced Technology Application Centers in five areas of study. The centers would fund research for businesses that could eventually create more jobs, said Sandra Slezak, assistant manager of the Thomas Alva Edison Partnership Program.

The application center funds come from the Edison program, a division of the Ohio Department of Develop-

Before funds for application centers can be approved, universities must secure matching grants through private funding.

So far the Ohio Department of Development has received 22 letters of intent from universities outlining proposed programs. The department will choose four to six programs for grants, Slezak said. Decisions are expected to be made in June.

Ohio State has applied for grants to fund the following programs: An Ohio Welding Technology Application Center would provide more money to the university's existing Center for Welding Research.

The National Science Foundation and 12 companies currently fund the center.

• A center for the Development of Human Therapeutics would add money to the Pharmaceutical and Toxicological Research Institute. Donald Witiak, director of the institute, said the proposed center would work with Ohio's six other colleges of medicine in testing

 A Center for Knowledge and Information Delivery Technology would study better ways of organizing and communicating information.

An Agricultural Biotechnolog Cente research cures for plant and animal diseases in addition to genetic engineering.

An Agricultural Advanced Technology Center would study new crop varieties, wine production and pesticide delivery systems.

Coalition may change nursing act

The nursing profession has changed and so should the laws that regulate it, said Mary Beth Strauss, director of continuing education and advancement in the College of Nursing.

In 1914, under the Ohio Nurse Practice Act, a board of nursing was established to safeguard the public. It set guidelines for what nurses could and couldn't do, Strauss said.

In 1965, a phrase was added to the act that made it mandatory for nurses to be licensed by the state. Since then, nothing has been changed, she said.

The act's definition of nursing needs to be changed, Strauss said.

"The definition of what nursing is in the law needs to reflect what the public really is allowing nursing to do," she said.

Nursing needs to be defined in a general way, Strauss said.

'We don't want, in the law, a laundry list of tasks because then it's outdated almost before it's printed," she

A general definition would still protect the public but would also provide for change to occur without the law's becoming outdated, Strauss said.

tatives from all nursing organizations in the state, was formed by the board of nursing to revise the act, said Strauss, an alternate member of the coalition.

This coalition is looking, for instance, at nurse practice acts in other states to see how Ohio's can be up-dated to best serve its function, she

The coalition will then prepare a bill from the final language of these revi-

The powers of the board of nursing could be strengthened, Strauss said. The Nurse Practice Act protects the public by keeping people who are not nurses from practicing nursing, she

"We can be nurses only if we've learned certain knowledges, have certain skills and have graduated from programs which meet certain qualifications," she said. Revisions in the Nurse Practice Act could strengthen the investigatory powers of the board in cases of alleged misconduct or malpractice by a nurse, she said.

Another change that could be made is to add a public member to the board of nursing. The board presently consists of eight members — five registered nurses and three licensed practical nurses. The public member would represent the consumer, rather than special interest groups.

In addition, Strauss said, continuing education could be made mandatory

'This would mandate continuing education participation for every nurse who wants to renew her license," she explained.

Any nurse should feel that she must keep up on her education, said Kim Parker, a senior from McCutchenville majoring in nursing. Nurses need to stay updated because new things are developed each day, she said.

However, there may be some con-troversy over a change like this, Strauss said. Some states already have a continuing education requirement for nurses and have spent a lot of money to set up complicated monitoring systems.

Strauss said that Ohio needs a costeffective system.

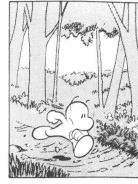

"I would hope that we would put a lot of accountability on the nurse," she said.

Strauss feels that the overall language of the practice act needs to be updated.

Council unanimous in opposition to food machines in Main Library

By Judith P. Hampton-James Lantern staff writer

Vending machines will remain "sold-out" in the Main Library.

Despite attempts and pleas by Todd Shaver, Undergraduate Student Government president, to persuade the Library Council to reconsider its decision to remove the vending machines from the Main Library, the council is maintaining its stance.

At the council meeting, Shaver presented a letter written by Provost Diether H. Haenicke that said Haenicke would try to allocate funds for an experimental program in which a paid monitor would patrol to keep students from taking food out of the designated area.

Haenicke said he would allocate the funds if lack of money was the only reason the council would not accept

The vending machines were not taken out of Main Library due to lack of money for patrols, said Charles W. Hoffmann, professor of German. Hof-fmann said the vending machines were taken out to protect the valuable collections in the library and to eliminate the litter and clutter.

Shaver then asked council to consider putting the vending machines back in the library on a trial basis for one quarter. Shaver said it would give students a chance to prove themselves.

One quarter would not be long enough to determine if Shaver's plan was effective, Hoffmann said.

Goodwin Berquist, professor of communication, offered a motion favoring student access to the Rathskeller, an eating facility in Pomerene Hall. The motion passed.

said he discussed the vending machine issue with library staff members and they agreed that since the machines were removed, the library had been much cleaner. It is the duty of the administration to protect the library at all costs, Balcer

The council may be unanimous in its decision not to accept his proposal, but Shaver said, "the undergraduates are not unanimous in not wanting vending machines back."

Students who are caught with food in the library should be fined, Shaver said, but the entire student body should not have to suffer.

Students are still bringing food into the library, Shaver said.

Hoffmann said the problem has not been eliminated but it has been con-

The Ohio House of Representatives unanimously passed legislation Wednesday that would make communication with state officials easier for the deaf or hearing-impaired.

The bill was presented to House members in sign language by its sponsor, Rep. Judy Sheerer, D-Shaker Heights — a first in the General Assembly's history. Sheerer also presented the bill orally.

The bill would require the House, the Senate, the governor, and other state officials and state agencies to

The Ohio Department of Natural Natural Resources has stocked a late winter feeder walleye — around the state for more than twenty years. But the results haven't been impressive.

Walleye don't take well to the muddy bottoms of most

"The waters are too turbulent for walleye. There's too much silt," said Kenneth The division of wildlife Fritz, a fish management supervisor with the division of wildlife.

Fish biologists knew walleye could be crossbred with sauger to produce saugeye. Since sauger do well in the muddy Ohio River, it was hoped the new hybrid would be better adapted to the Ohio lake environment. Fritz said the experiment has been a success. The hybrid saugeye look and taste like walleye, yet do better right from the start.

"We get better survival of the fry at the hatchery," Fritz said. "And they survive better after we stock them in the lakes."

Saugeye also grow faster than walleye, Fritz said.

'It was caught by Bill Owler and registered at Frostie's Bait and Tackle. It was 26 inches long and weighed eight and three-fourths pounds," Fritz said.

Why does saugeye fishing heat up during one of the coldest months of the year?
"To begin with, they are a

Saugeye are nocturnal feeders. The fishing tends to improve from sundown to midnight, then it tapers off again.

Because saugeye feed on the bottom, most Deercreek fishermen use a bottom bumping lure. They cast onto shallow riffles where the current can sweep their lure into deeper water. Most use a slow, steady retriever.

A one-quarter ounce leadheaded jig with a long, col-orful rubber tail is recommended by many saugeye fishermen.

Fritz advised starting with an orange or char-treuse tail. If nothing hits, switching to another color may help.

Old career in sight for former champion

BOSTON - The doctor who treated Sugar Ray Leonard's healthy right eye said the former champion's eye problems should not end his boxing career.

Dr. Edward A. Ryan of the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary froze the outer edge of Leonard's right retina in a 15-minute office treatment Monday, to prevent a possible detached retina. Leonard had retired in 1982 because of a detached retina in his left eye.
Ryan said Monday's treatment was aimed at creating inflammation and scarring in the eye that would hold the

Ryan said in a prepared statement that if Leonard's right eye "heals properly, and should the patient be desirous of resuming his boxing career with the full knowledge that in medicine there are no guarantees, it would appear that his present situation should not preclude going ahead with his boxing career."

The statement was released by officials of the Centrum arena in Worcester, Mass., where Leonard's com-eback bout was to take place on Feb. 25 against Kevin Howard of Philadelphia. Promoters said welterweight bout would be rescheduled this week.

Ryan declined to speculate on what caused the thinning of the retina, the light sensitive membrane in the eyeball connected to the optic nerve, saying the problem could have been fight-related or a holdover from Leonard has returned to his home in Maryland and will be examined Friday by Dr. Ronald Michels of the Wilmer Eye Institute at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore. Michels has been treating Leonard since the original eye injury in May 1982.

Ryan said Leonard's left eye, the cause of a 15-month retirement, "was well-healed and in good condition." He said Leonard, 27, had 20-20 eyesight in both eyes, but declined to offer a long-term prognosis.

But Ryan, in an examination required by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, said Leonard needed 10 days to two weeks of home recuperation, forcing the postponement of his comeback.

Documentary of Beatles' career not a rousing Columbus success

By Patty Ubbing

Columbus Beatles fans can relive some of that Beatlemania this week by catching a few of the group's past experiences at local theaters.

Raintree Cinemas is presenting "The Compleat Beatles," a documentary which follows the group's career from small taverns in Hamburg, Germany, to the death of John Lennon on Dec. 8, 1980.

Brian Prince, manager of the theater, said the film is a collection of old black and white film. Some of the footage has never been seen.

Although WLVQ-FM is giving away free passes, Prince said the response has not been very good. He said the quality of the film, which is very grainy because the film was reproduced poorly from the video version, might be hurting its appeal.

Showings are scheduled at 12:30, 2:45, 5, 7:15, and 9:30 p.m. through Friday. However, it may continue for a second week.

The Palace Theater is presenting "The Beatles Invasion of the Palace" this weekend to commemorate the twentieth anniversary of the Beatles' arrival in

"I was general manager at WNCI and during much of my career there the Beatles were really the thing," he said. "They're still affecting music today and probably always will."

"Let it Be" will show Friday and Saturday at 7 p.m. followed by "Yellow Submarine" at 8:40 p.m. and "Let it Be" again at 10:15 p.m.

Sunday's shows will be at 1, 3:40, and 4:15 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the door for $2.50, and the theater will open 45 minutes before the first showing to allow people to browse through the memorabilia.

NEW YORK - Singer Melba Moore will be seen on PBS in a repeat performance of her part in the Broadway hit musical "Purlie," a role she liked so much she hopes playwright Ossie Davis might do a sequel or even a TV series about

"Lutiebelle is mine!" she exclaimed during an interview at her record production office. "I love Lutiebelle."

"Purlie," based on Davis' 1962 play "Purlie Victorious," opened on Broadway in 1970, ran for 797 performances, and won two Tony Awards, including one for Moore as Best Supporting Actress in a Musical.

PBS will air the musical as part of its "Great Performances" series March 12 at 9 p.m.

The play is about a Southern youth who is abused by police. Davis once said in an interview that he had initially planned to do a serious drama, but decided satire, rather than direct assault, might be more powerful.

Moore said that when she took the part in "Purlie," she really didn't try to interpret the play in terms of social issues, nor did she think about the idea of a successful black

"I wasn't taking a risk career-wise, but to be sure I didn't know what I was getting into. I didn't know whether the play was good or bad or indifferent. To be honest, I didn't care. I wanted to get some experience. Originally,

But she took the part and magic happened. Besides the Tony, the music teacher-turned nightclub singer whose only previous theatrical experience had been a stint in "Hair," won a New York Drama Critics Award, a Theater World Award and a Drama Desk Award.

If Lutiebelle doesn't live on, Moore hopes some part of

"I hope that after the 'Great Performances' showing that Ossie will be inspired to do something off of her character. I think she's a great character to have as a foundation. For me anyway, something in that vein. Maybe you don't want to do exactly that character."

"It also makes sense that if you have a formula for success you don't abandon it. You develop it. Maybe the entire piece bears development."

"But maybe if it's a classic, you just can't do anything with it. You just leave it alone."

Look up 'Mrs. Byrne' for absurdity

By Philip Piemonte

If someday you're sitting in a park and a kakapo lands on your head—no need to fret.

For if you have with you the new paperback edition of "Mrs. Byrne's Dictionary of Unusual, Obscure, and Preposterous Words," you will quickly discover that you have got nothing more embarrassing than a New Zealand parrot on your noggin.

Ten years ago Josefa Heifetz Byrne introduced her bizarre lexicon to the public. Now, after the demise of "The Preppie Handbook," "Real Men Don't Eat Quiche" and dozens of other entries in the oddball market, Byrne's book quietly goes into another printing with yet a third edition.

The strange success of Byrne's Dictionary is that for all its nonsense, it fills a niche.

Scrabble freaks will find "q" entries that contain no "u". Crossword fanatics finally have a place to verify that a Malay gomuti is an ejoo, and that it takes 100 grosz to make

A collection of words from an eccentric jumble of sources. Byrne's book contains the classical cream as well as the spoiled curd of the English language.

Among things you may not want to know is that meringue on a pie may also be called calf-slobber.

And Byrne's is the perfect weapon with which to defend yourself against petty grammarians, or grammaticasters, bent on footling away your time. Throw simous at them. Or

REVIEW

Some of the entries sound perfect for what they mean. When your dog watches you eat, hoping you'll give him some, he's groaking. And what more appropriate word to describe a young pig than gruntling.

But there are some less than legitimate entries. Byrne includes some foreign words merely for the inability of the English-speaking tongue to conform to them. The Italian words sgabello, sdrucciola and sfumato are examples.

And she sometimes cheats, including words that have no place in English at all. Caoutchouc and maquillage are just commonplace French words meaning money and rubber. And non-English words czigany, tsigane and zigeuner all mean gypsy.

Some entries, like belvedere, bushwacker, cachet, eider, geodesic, magma and scrimshaw aren't oddball words like glink, brumous or drumble, but they increase the volume.

You get a good idea of what Byrne is all about from the entry for cholangiocholecystocholedochectomy. For pronunciation, it says, see Chargoggagoggmanchauggagoggchaubunagungamaugg.

"Mrs. Byrne's Dictionary" is published in paperback by Washington Square Press. The price is $3.50.

Russian leader assails U.S. policy

United Press International

New Soviet leader MOSCOW Konstantin Chernenko, meeting with Cuba's Fidel Castro and Nicaragua's leftist leader, Wednesday attacked U.S. policy in Central America and the "aggressive intrigues of U.S. im-

Both sides strongly denounced Washington's intention to whip up tension, to interfere in the internal affairs of countries in that region and to impose its writ on them," the official Tass news agency reported after his meeting with Nicaraguan junta leader Daniel Ortega.

Chernenko's attack on the United States came less than 24 hours after he met with Vice President George Bush, who said the new Kremlin leader agrees "constructive" steps are needed to halt the decline in U.S. Soviet relations.

"We felt the spirit of the meeting was excellent," Bush said Tuesday after his talks with Chernenko following the funeral of Soviet President Yuri Andropov.

"The way the whole relationship was discussed was very temperate, very reasonable," Bush had said before leaving for Rome.

After his meeting with Ortega, whose leftist regime is under attack from U.S.-backed Nicaraguan guer-Chernenko reiterated Moscow's support for "the Nicaraguan people, defending the freedom and independence of their homeland."

The comments indicated Central America remained one of the biggest obstacles, along with the Middle East and nuclear arms, toward improved U.S.-Soviet relations.

Chernenko also met with Castro, Tass said, and reiterated Kremlin backing for Cuba's opposition to "the aggressive intrigues of U.S. imperialism."

Chernenko, who succeeded Andropov Monday as head of the Soviet Communist Party, also met with Politburo member Truong Chinh of Vietnam and was scheduled to see Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau later in the day.

OSU health official expects asbestos removal to be costly

By Richard Brown Lantern staff writer

OSU will have to spend an estimated $20 million to clean up its asbestos problem, an OSU health official said.

Dr. Edward Lazear, OSU chief of environmental health and safety, said about $1 million will be needed from the state for each of the next 20 years to remove asbestos from university buildings.

University buildings constructed after World War II and before the early 1970s will have to be inspected for asbestos problems, Lazear said.

Lazear is a member of an Ohio Board of Regents ad-

Paul Zindel's Ladies at the Alamo February 14-17 8 p.m. February 18 2 & 8 p.m. Studio Theatre, Mount Hall General Admission $2.00 For further information call 422-2295

visory committee established last year to develop a unified approach for educational institutions to obtain funding for asbestos inspection and removal.

Asbestos can cause asbestosis and mesophelioma, two forms of lung cancer, when inhaled in dangerous levels, Lazear said.

Funding for asbestos removal will probably have to come from capital improvements projects approved by the state, he said.

Marty King, state department of health asbestos coor-inator of Ohio said the main problem with asbestos removal is determining its danger.

"Risk levels for asbestos are unknown," he said. Health hazard levels have been established for industry, but not for the public, he said. Asbestos was used extensively from the end of World War II to the early 1970's for fireproofing and insulation, Lazear said. He said there have never been dangerously high levels of asbestos in air samples at OSU.

Universities are not required to report asbestos problems under the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Asbestos in Schools Program, which requires all primary and secondary schools to notify the public of high concentrations of asbestos.

Brian Bell, Board of Regents facilities planning analyst, said, a 1981 executive order by former Gov. James A. Rhodes requiring colleges to make a two-month evaluation of their asbestos problems was a dissapointment. "I know there wasn't adequate training for the inspectors," he said.

The university self-evaluations produced results that were either incomplete or not totally reliable, he said.

The board of regents advisory committee is planning to spend $10.5 million for cleanup of all state universities in the 1985-1986 biennium, of which OSU has requested $1 million and an additional $.5 million for 1986-1987.

Lazear explained that testing asbestos danger is very difficult because there are no satisfactory test animals. 'We have a 25-year incubation period between exposure and the appearence of the first cases of asbestosis," he He said the causes of lung cancer are difficult to pin down because many other factors, such as smoking, can contribute to its developemnt. Lazear said an estimated $1 million has already been spent in the last four years at OSU for asbestos removal. King said the deterioration of car brake shoes containing asbestos cause it to be released into the atmosphere.

Communication is the key for showing love says Josh

By Judith P. Hampton-James antern staff writer

Respect begins with listening. That is why we have two ears, and just one mouth, Josh McDowell said Tuesday night in Mershon

McDowell is the author of over 14 bestselling books, and is the international representative of Campus Crusade for Christ in San Bernadino, Calif.

He said to become a better lover there must be perception, performance, possession, power, and position established in the relationship.

McDowell said the leading complaint among couples today stems from man's inability to communicate.

He used an example of how his wife once criticized him for not knowing how to talk.
McDowell said he told his wife he thought he knew how to talk.

Nevertheless, she told him he never explained anything. For instance, one day he told his wife that someone they knew had told his wife that someone they knew had just had a baby. His wife asked questions like "was the baby a boy or girl? McDowell said "I don't know." His wife asked "how much did the baby weigh?" McDowell said "I don't know." She said "honey, what did they name the baby?" McDowell yelled "I don't know! They had a baby! That's all I don't know! They had a baby! That's all don't know! They had a baby! That's all I

McDowell said he had not given the issue much thought before, but started working on improving this fault after that time.

Many men have the problem of not being able to communicate. But, most wives will not voice their opinion, he said. Another problem that plagues the generation is "the fear of never being loved" and 'the fear of not knowing how to love,"

McDowell said. The quality of a person's love life is a reflection of his character. And character is not built overnight, he said.

nearly full auditorium and said, there are no ugly people here.

"Take a look at the person who is sitting on your left. Take a look at the person on your right. Now, two out of three ain't bad people." The crowd laughed.

"Every individual is the image of God," McDowell said. "Everybody is unique and should stop trying to be like someone else, he said. Accept yourself."

Our society is filled with bitterness,

McDowell said. People do not forgive unconditionally.

The first time they were asked, 30,000 women said they chose their mate based on sex appeal, McDowell said. When these women were asked a second time, they said they would choose their mate based on his ability to communicate.

The aspects of communication include talking, listening, and forgiving, McDowell said. The constant spirit of rebellion is a major cause for breakups.

McDowell said whether or not a person gets total fulfillment out of marriage depends on that person's spirituality. And that people who are deeply spiritual have a meaningful and enjoyable sex life.

McDowell cited several ways to figure out "is my love mature enough to produce sex, love, and marriage?"

Commitment and the sense of responsibility is important, he said. "The hap-piness, security, and development of your spouse should be as important as your Married couples are not finding intimacy in bed, he said. Sex has gotten to be a physical activity only and not enjoyable as it is meant to be, he said. Hidden resentment against each other also hinders a fulfilled sex life.

McDowell said couples must enjoy being with each other. Students are suffering from what Mature love is realistic and creative, he McDowell called "The Uglies Epidemic." said. Show love for a spouse by the way you casually, McDowell peered out into the walk and talk to each other.

Fast food, nutrition can co-exist

In a health conscious society, fast foods often come under attack for their lack of nutrition.

But two OSU nutritionists said eating at fast food restaurants can be just as nutritious as eating at home if we watch what we eat.

Alma Saddam, assistant professor of human nutrition and food management, said eating nutritious food at quick service restaurants is a matter of choice.

"It's only bad for you when your selection is poor and if you eat fast food all the time," Saddam said. "But usually the conve-nience (of eating fast food) wins over eating the same food every day." Saddam said the fast food business has made progress in the past few years because of the variety of food they now offer. She said any restaurant that offers a salad bar and serves foods high in vitamins A and C, has improved its nutritive value. Anyone can get a wellrounded meal if they substitute nutritious fast of a soda, drink milk or juice and have a cheeseburger.

Saddam rated Wendy's, because of their salad bar and chili, and McDonald's, because of their breakfasts, highest in nutritional value.
"What we recommend is to eat a variety of food over a period of time," said Diane Traver, assistant professor of human nutrition food management. "There's no perfect diet and no perfect menu."

Traver said even dieters can get a wholesome fast food meal because salad bars offer food low in calories but high in vitamins and proteins.

Fresh fruit and vegetables contain many vitamins and minerals. while

Saddam suggests dieters eat a hamburger without ketchup or mayonnaise, salad bar and milk while omitting french fries which are high in calories and sodium. "Vitamins and minerals don't add pounds to you,'

Traver said eating food from the four basic food groups is the simplest guideline for getting a variety of nutrients.

In fact, we'll even pay you more than $575 a month while you attend. That's in addition to paying for your full tuition and required books and fees.

It's all part of the Armed Forces Health Professions Scholarship Program. How does it work?

If you're selected for a Physician Scholarship-from the Army, Navy, or Air Force-you're commissioned as an officer in the Reserve.

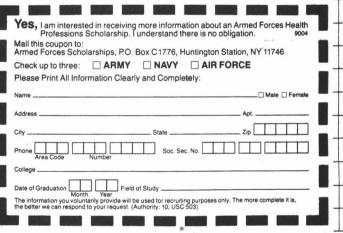

While you're in school, you'll serve 45 days a year on active duty, gaining valuable medical experience. After graduation, you will serve three or more years, the length depending on the requirements of the Service selected and years of scholarship assistance received.

As an Armed Forces physician you'll receive officer's pay and benefits, and enjoy the advantages of working regular hours. You'll also see a diversity of patients and have opportunities to use sophisticated medical technology.

But most important, while you're in medical school we'll help pay the bills.
