Daughters Vie for Choice
After the dress rehearsal of Wednesday one could easily pity the King who must limit his choice of a beautiful wife to one of the many daughters in their unique costumes representing their various parts of the program of the year. However, the King, sitting on his throne dressed in the purple robes of royalty, trimmed in priceless ermine, knows best, for his choice is the Queen of May, dressed in rich white satin with early spring flowers clinging to her train.

The gay-colored costumes of the dancers mingling with the uniquely costumed snowflakes of January, purple mists of February, black and white clownlike Harlequins of March, are to precede the more delicate May flowers and dainty June butterflies. To the onlooker, the hollow might easily be a fairyland haunt and these strange, beautiful creatures grouped about the hillside and back among the trees trying to hide from the curious eyes of strangers.

Costumes Result of Much Work
This is not the case, however, for the girls have been working for weeks past on these costumes being cut uniformly by the girls in charge of the different groups and made by the girls themselves. Thus they change from co-eds to black witches, dangerous fire-crackers, yellow jack-o'-lanterns or yellow and purple columbine. Even more realistic are the months of September and its sunbeams, October with the many-colored autumn leaves and November with the harvesters bringing in the gifts of fruits and grain.

In addition to the processional, the pageant will end with a grand recession of the groups in the final gorgeous array. Every girl who will take part must be dressed and ready with her group at 3:45 p. m., as the affair will start promptly at 4 p. m. Every group is supposed to keep its place after passing until the call comes for the recession, and no girl will be excused until after it is over.

Ticket Sale Continues
Tickets were called in at the Keystone meeting Thursday at 3:30 p. m. in the Chapel, although they may still be obtained at Hennick's, the Jolly Gargoyle and the gabroom and from members of Woman's Student Council. There will be tickets on sale at the entrance for those not purchasing them before. It will be to the advantage of the spectators to come early, as no seats will be reserved, there being just the three sections of seats.

TO CHOOSE REPRESENTATIVES

A representative to the Republican national convention will be chosen at the meeting of the Republican Club Thursday at 8 p. m. Election of officers will also be held.

TO DISMISS CLASSES

All classes meeting at 4 p. m. or after on Friday are dismissed on May 28 on account of the May Fete. Those participating in the fete are excused from all classes meeting at 3 p. m. and after.

COLORED ARROWS WILL GUIDE GIRLS TO WIENER ROAST

Why the yellow and white arrows scattered about the campus? Has Cupid used up all the red ones in his strenuous assailing and have the fair ones been compelled to choose another color as a substitute?

Not at all! They are to act as guiding signs to those girls going on the annual Eagles Mere cross-country hike Thursday afternoon, each group being given a particular color to follow and all the arrows leading to a point of junction where the groups will gather around the campfire for the wiener roast.

The Eagles Mere hike is given annually for the members of the Y. W. C. A. Each girl will be charged 25 cents to cover expenses of the food.

OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT OF COMPETITIVE DRILL

Drill to Be Followed by Review of Two Infantry Regiments and Awarding of Medals.

Announcement has been made by Captain Charles F. Leonard concerning the competitive drill which will take place on Ohio Field Saturday. Concerning this he says:

"Competitive drill this year will take place on Ohio Field at 1 p. m. Saturday. The judges for this occasion are Major Frank D. Hawkins, infantry, and First Lieutenant John Bowen, infantry, both from Columbus Barracks.

"The competitive drill will be followed by a review of the two infantry regiments on Ohio Field, at which time the captain of the winning company will receive the gold and silver medals, respectively, for first and second prize. At this time the winner of the prize of $15 for the best solution of a map problem in outposts will be announced, and the winner of the brigade rifle match will receive the commandant's medal.

"This is the first competitive drill day held since 1916, due to the war, and the faculty and student body are invited to be present. No entrance fee will be charged. Invitation is also extended to the public."

OPPORTUNITIES ARE GIVEN FOR SUMMER POSITIONS

Girls, want to go camping? Miss Elizabeth Courtney of the city Y. W. C. A. is offering positions to University girls as advisers at the central association camp on Big Darby Creek, 14 miles out West Broad Street.

The girls will go in groups of two for a two weeks' stay during the camp season, which extends from the middle of June to September 12. The girls will have an opportunity to gain experience and have a pleasant vacation with little expense, as their board and room will be paid for by the association.

The camp is better equipped this year, with several additional improvements in conveniences. There is a screened dining-hall and 12 floored tents for sleeping quarters.

Those girls, preferably of Columbus, who would like to do this sort of thing the coming summer are asked to leave their names with Miss Ernestine Cookson, campus Y. W. C. A. secretary, as soon as possible.

DIPLOMAS ARE PRESENTED BY VETERINARY SOCIETY

Society diplomas were awarded to the senior members fulfilling the requirements of the Veterinary Medical Literary Society at its last meeting of the semester, Tuesday. Officers for the ensuing year were also elected.

This year the custom was inaugurated of making the last meeting a commencement affair and a general get-together of the alumni as well as a farewell to the outgoing seniors.

After an address given by Dean David S. White, which he concluded with the presenting of the society diplomas, a smoker followed.

At the close of the election, the new president, George W. Bond, VM-3, took the chair and presented to Dean White and Secretary Oscar V. Brumley the emblem of the society, a golden horseshoe enclosing a blue letter "O" which bears the inscription "V. M. S."

CAMPANILE BOARD PICKS STAFF HEAD FOR ENSUING YEAR

Vernon K. Richards Selected as Editor-in-chief, With H. L. Wilson as Associate.

Herbert G. Baum Chosen Business Manager, With E. Donald Euans as Assistant.

Vernon K. Richards, A-3, was chosen editor-in-chief of the Campanile for next year, by the faculty advisory board of the literary publication at a meeting Wednesday night.

Richards has had experience as an editor, working as assistant news editor on The Lantern and as a member of the editorial board of the Campanile. He is president of the Writers' Club and a member of La Boheme.

Henry L. Wilson, A-3, was selected as associate editor.

Herbert G. Baum, CJ-3, was made business manager. To assist Baum as manager three positions were filled by those who have been connected with the magazine as members of the business staff. These persons and their offices are: E. Donald Euans, CJ-3, assistant business manager; Maxine H. Davis, CJ-3, publicity director, and Philip E. Heim, Ag-3, circulation manager.

The advisory board, which is composed of Professors Louis A. Cooper of the department of English, Joseph S. Myers of the department of journalism, Joseph R. Taylor and Clarence E. Andrews, both of the department of English, also decided that the magazine should be published five times next year. It will appear every other month until the publication is firmly established, and then a monthly schedule will probably be adopted.

At the beginning of next year a campaign for subscriptions will be inaugurated by the circulation manager. The Campanile will then be sent to the homes of the subscribers and also sold on the campus.

POSTPONE RENDITION OF MEMORIAL CANTATA

Lack of Time Necessitates Substitution of "Holy City" for "Requiem Mass" by Choral Union.

Due to lack of time to work up the production of "Requiem Mass," by Berlioz, which was to have been sung by the Choral Union on June 13 as a memorial to Alfred R. Barrington, former director of the organization, the society has postponed the rendering of the production until next year. "It is not because the girls and boys have not done their part," declared "Pop" Hoenig, in explaining the reason for making the change in this year's program, "it is absolutely a matter of four weeks being too short a time to work up a number of such character."

"The Holy City," an oratorio composed by A. R. Gaul, will be substituted for the first concert on this year's commencement program. Margaret L. Wood, A-Ed-3, will take the soprano solo part in the Sunday program, while William P. Jenkins, P-2, will render the violin selections.

Edgar A. Sprague, A-1, member of the Freshman Glee Club, will carry the tenor solos in "Gypsy Life," by Becker, a concert of light nature to be given by the Choral Union, Monday, June 14. A special number, "Concerto in F Sharp Minor," by Raminckoff, will be rendered by Mrs. Marian Wilson Haynie of Columbus, assisted by Miss Helen Clark.

The University Orchestra will accompany both concerts.

WILL INTERVIEW SENIOR MEN

Dr. Albert A. Snowden of the Standard Oil Company of New York is staying at the Deshler Hotel, where he may be interviewed by men from all senior classes who are interested in foreign service. He will be in Columbus until Friday noon and urges all senior students who are interested in this work to interview him.

MUST SUBMIT PAGEANTS BEFORE MONDAY, MAY 31

Monday, May 31, is the date set for the closing of the contest of pageants for the semicentennial. The judges have announced that several students may correlate in competing for the $10 prize offered to the winner.

As previously stated, a pageant dramatizing a student procession across the oval, which will include all student organizations, is preferred. It is further desired to have a historical sketch of the progress and growth of the University in the last half-century and plans for the future.

All pageants must be submitted to committee on student participation, of which Professor M. Blakemore Evans of the department of German is chairman. Judges for the contest are Professors Charles F. Kelley, Thomas E. French and M. Blakemore Evans.

PHI BETA KAPPA SELECTS OFFICERS FOR NEXT YEAR

Graves of the department of English, president of the society, and Dean Joseph V. Denney of the College of Arts.

Edwin N. C. Coolidge, recently chosen to Sigma Xi, was also elected to Phi Beta Kappa Wednesday evening.

DETAILS ARE PRESENTED FOR STADIUM CAMPAIGN

Plans and details for the mammoth stadium drive to begin next fall were laid before the chairmen of the different counties by George M. Trautman and Professor Thomas E. French at a meeting held in the band room of the Gymnasium Wednesday night. "The main purpose of the meeting," said Trautman, "was to make sure that every man would be in school next year, and if he will make a few sacrifices in working for the stadium."

Several maps and diagrams were shown and explained by Professor French, showing the recreation size of the proposed new athletic field, and a short talk was given on the structure of the new stadium. "There are three divisions to this drive," said Professor French—"the student division, the City of Columbus and the outside alumni." The stadium campaign is in charge of a downtown committee of which the Boost Ohio is a direct agent, serving in the capacity of an executive committee. The actual campaign starts the week of October 18.

Each member who has taken one trip and sung in one home concert will be awarded a plaque, according to a decision reached.

There are at present more than a dozen entries. The committee wants one good song to head the edition.

GRADUATION PLANS FULLY EXPLAINED IN FACULTY LETTER

Friday, June 11, Is the Last Day on Which Diploma Fees May Be Paid.

Seniors Urged to Make Preparations for Attending Early Breakfast on Campus.

The faculty commencement committee has sent a letter of instructions to each member of the senior class. This letter contains a schedule of events and gives, wherever necessary, explanations of the various functions.

Friday, June 11, is set as the last day on which diploma fees may be paid. There will be a rehearsal of the conferring of degrees on Saturday morning, and at this time each candidate will receive two tickets for friends. On Sunday, June 13, at 3 p. m., the seniors are to assemble at the Library and march to the baccalaureate service. The caps and gowns will be worn at this time.

Breakfast on Campus

Monday, June 14, is class day, and the seniors are to start early in order to plant ivy and get to the class breakfast at 8:30 a. m. This breakfast will be served on the campus in front of the Library. At 12:30 p. m. there will be an informal lunch served in front of the Library for the parents and immediate friends of the seniors. The President's reception is to be held in the Library from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. The reception is for the graduating class and its friends, the alumni, the faculty and the friends of the University.

The call of the bugle at 9 a. m. Tuesday, June 15, will be the signal to assemble for the commencement day ceremonies. At 9:35 a. m. the class will be on its way down the Long Walk from the Library to the Armory. The President will confer the degrees.

Wear Tasseled Caps

Until the degree is conferred, each candidate will wear the tassel of the cap on the right-hand side. After receiving the diploma the graduate will, as he steps from the platform, change the tassel to the left side. At the close of the commencement exercises the President will ask the audience to remain seated, while the faculty and graduating class march out. The graduates will form a double column, facing inward from the door of the Armory to the steps of Page Hall.

Through this double column the President, trustees and faculty will march and form a group on the steps of Page Hall. The graduates will then close in and group themselves in front of the faculty. The closing ceremony will include: (1) "Carmen Ohio," (2) greetings of the Ohio State University Association, (3) University's farewell message by the President, (4) bugle call to service.

MOB PSYCHOLOGY

The demonstration accompanying the taking of the all-University picture Wednesday noon afforded an excellent study of mob psychology. But it is to be lamented that opportunity for such a study should have been presented on the Ohio State campus.

Although the rumpus Wednesday did not reach serious proportions, it had several disgraceful aspects that reflect distastefully on the character of the student body. Even though it was the minority that caused the trouble, resentment of their acts should be borne by the majority.

However, the whole affair had its valuable lessons. One of them that should be remembered by those in charge of future assemblages of such size is that some activity should be provided to keep the crowd occupied constantly. It is to be regretted that there was not more singing and yelling for Ohio State. But the biggest lesson is the one that should be realized by every student as to the dangers of descending to the level of the mob.

It takes a man to resist the mob. When a large number of people are gathered together they may be designated as a crowd. But if any delay or inconvenience irritates them, the individualities of the weaker-minded succumb to the pressure of the crowd. They become subject to any random impulses and soon their acts become those of the mob.

At first their actions may be incited only by some harmless joke, as was the case Wednesday. But usually offense is given, the offense spreads, sides are taken and trouble begins. At that time the weaker-minded are drawn toward and precipitated into the central disturbance, blindly and without reason, like sheep following the leader.

The real man stands on his own feet, does not allow himself to be swayed by every purposeless whim and caprice of those around him, and acts with calmness and sanity.

What we should aim to develop at Ohio State is real men, and not children subject to mob psychology.

WITH THE PASTIMERS

The baseball team has left for the last and probably the hardest trip of the season. On the outcome of the three games that it will fight in as many days depends its final standing in the Western Conference.

After the spirited reception that we gave the Illinois team and the yelling that accompanied that famous ninth-inning rally and victory, it is to be expected that the wearers of the Scarlet and Gray will get little sympathy or support when they invade the hostile territory of Champaign.

Then, too, the Wisconsin rooters will be thirsting for revenge after the defeat Ohio State has given their nine and they will be counting on taking at least one out of two.

As far as support from the bleachers is concerned, it's going to be hard sailing for the Buckeyes. But if back here on the campus we have the spirit of confidence and strong wishes for victory, some of our feelings simply will not stay within the confines of this commonwealth, but will surge beyond its borders to the diamonds of Illinois and Wisconsin and help bring home the bacon, assuring us second place. Of course we would prefer to be in the top notch, but it has been a hard-fought race and considerable honor is attached to the runner-up, and every Ohio Stater is proud of the brand of ball the team has offered.

So on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, since we can't be with the boys, let's be pulling strong for them.

THE SPRINGTIME LANDSCAPE

Fame comes to Ohio State University through many channels. Athletics probably rank as the best-known activity, followed closely by the various publications, traditions and individual achievements in scholarship and other lines.

Seldom do we stop to consider the general arrangement and landscape of the campus as a direct influence and fundamental asset of the school. That the distinct and almost unparalleled beauty of our campus makes a lasting impression on the many visitors who come from time to time is unquestionable.

The somewhat "take for granted" attitude on the part of the student body is not a conscious one. Many of those who walk upon the campus from day to day would recognize this feature of the University's assets were the matter brought to their attention or if they were suddenly located in a place devoid of any such attractions.

Especially at this time of the year, when the various flowers and shrubs grouped artistically about the buildings and along the walks emphasize the beauty of the students' surroundings, should he be proud to be one enrolled in an institution such as this, and, carrying that realization away with him, BOOST OHIO.

After allowing publication of that scurrilous letter "On Co-eds' Hair," the editor is resting on his oars in hopeful anticipation of a heated reply from some of the fairer sex on how she'd rather be a "scraggly, hair-netted creature" than a "bandained slicker."

This column always seems wittiest when the "makeup" man inadvertently drops in as a concluding shot: those two thrilling lines: "Lantern want ads bring results. A trial will convince."

As a spectator of such an imbroglio as occurred on the campus Wednesday, the editor of a college daily is torn between the enjoyment of hopping into the conflict and the duty of censuring childish behavior.

Does the great wealth of bridal-wreath blossoming on the campus signify anything in connection with the coming month of June?

Ohio State has a chance to make a clean sweep of Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin this week-end. Here's hoping.

It would be interesting to know how many students go into the Library at night singly and come out in pairs.

For all the dictionary's best adjectives, see the May Fete. Most of them will find expression there.

Class meetings give seniors the opportunity of comparing their prospective salaries.

Nothing is more of a distinct shock than to see a girl's ear.

How can anyone knock lessons cold in such warm weather?

THE CAMPUS COP

An Alarming Situation
 Eleven o'clock and an atmosphere of drowsiness pervaded the classroom. The professor was only having mild success in interesting the class in how large fortunes are amassed. The majority of the class had settled down for their morning nap. Suddenly the class came to attention—an alarm clock started to ring in the back of the room.

A chance for greatness comes once in each man's life. That was the professor's moment, and he rose to the occasion. "I have known for a long time," he murmured, "that people were sleeping in my classes, but I never knew they were so afraid of oversleeping that they brought their alarm clocks to class. I promise you that it is unnecessary; I will wake you up when class is over."

The alarm clock replied appreciatively—it was an intermittent one. Then followed a chorus of laughter in which everyone but the embarrassed owner of the new Big Ben joined. Hereafter he will take all his purchases home directly.

"Getting By"

Sitting in the back row of the classroom, Hester and Maybelle were listening to the recitation in sociology of a very small girl who occupied a front seat. Just as the girl started to speak, the bell rang and the professor dismissed the class abruptly. The Tower Clock registered 4 o'clock.

"Well, I'm glad of that!" exclaimed Maybelle.

"So am I," replied her companion. "I've had about enough school today and besides, I didn't want to hear that green know-nothing recite. Isn't she the limit?"

"She certainly is," answered Maybelle. "I never heard anyone make so many blunders in all my life. I don't see how she gets through school."

When Hester arrived home she told her mother about the girl who made so many mistakes in class and was always asking questions.

"I don't see why she gets such good grades in her work, when the rest of us only get averages."

"Well, Hester," replied her mother, "she may make plenty of blunders, but perhaps she doesn't make the same one twice. Don't you see that every mistake you make can teach you a lesson? And you say she is always asking questions? That only means that she is thinking ahead. She has that rare faculty of initiative. The other students 'got done' thinking when they had finished the problem they had been put at."

"You really mustn't sneer at a girl of that kind, Hester, because by the end of the semester she will have learned more about sociology than the other students."

"I guess you are right, mother," murmured the daughter, thoughtfully. "She always passes the finals and I suppose she deserves it."

The next morning Hester told Maybelle of what her mother had said. Maybelle laughed lightly.

"Now I don't care so much if I do make mistakes in class," she said. "And, Hester, let's make friends with that girl and have her help us with our lessons. I think she is a wonderfully sweet-looking thing anyhow; don't you?"

From the Alumni

TO THE EDITOR OF THE LANTERN:
 May the alumni add theirs to the other appeals which have been appearing in The Lantern, for hard study and real scholarship in the University?

Perhaps the strongest pull in Ohio State interest with the alumni lies in athletics. For that reason the student athlete who has ability to win for the school on the gridiron, baseball diamond or wherever else, but who fails of eligibility simply because he won't study, is regarded pretty much as a quitter by the alumni. The graduates are proud of Ohio State in athletics and they like to feel that the fighting spirit which makes for victory on the field figures also in the classroom and in the battle of brains.

After all, we go to school to study, and the longer a man or woman is out of college the more vital this fact becomes. It is increasingly clear that alumni interest in athletics and student enterprises of all kinds is stronger, cleaner and more wholesome for the University now that rules have been made which require decent classroom grades from the man or woman in school who is to represent the University in student ventures and enterprises of all kinds.

So that the alumni will watch the results of this semester's examinations with a very lively interest and will be anxious to see in these results, the proof that Ohio State is right at the top in education as well as the other fields.

J. L. MORRILL,
 Secretary.

VICTORY DOUBTFUL WHEN OHIO'S TEAM MEETS MICHIGAN

Ohio State's chances for success in the dual meet with Michigan Saturday received a body blow when two leading Buckeye cinder-choppers received injuries during practice. Shortly before Pittenger, Ohio State's star quartermiler, pulled a tendon in the interclass 100-yard dash, news came that "Louie" Moorehead had turned an ankle.

Pittenger, who was relied on as a certain point-getter in the 440, will be out definitely for the remainder of the season. Moorehead's injury is of unknown seriousness, but it is hardly likely that he will be able to take part in his full quota of events and still show his best form.

Added to the bad news of these injuries comes the newspaper reports that Captain Johnson, Wolverine star, is once again busy on the cinder paths. While it's not certain that he will compete Saturday, the fact of his appearance at hurdle drill once again is significant. His presence on the Maize and Gold squad will greatly strengthen the competition the Buckeyes will face.

Michigan's strength will appear chiefly in the hurdles, the pole vault and the weights. Wolverine pole-vaulters have been consistently bunched in this season's meets, and Leidle and Hill of Ohio will have to be in the best of form to carry off any large number of points. In the weights, particularly the shot, the best Ohio can hope for is second. The distance events find the Buckeyes slightly the favorite.

The dashes depend largely on whether or not Moorehead is in shape to run. He will be accompanied in all probability in both the 100 and 220 by both Hane and Lock, and was counted on for a first in the 220. What effect his injuries will have is yet to be determined.

The squad which will make the trip will number close to 25 men. The team will leave Friday afternoon for Toledo, staying there overnight and making the trip to Ann Arbor Saturday morning.

BASEBALL TEAM LEAVES FOR THREE-DAY JAUNT

Fourteen players, accompanied by Coach St. John, left Wednesday at 9:45 p. m. bound for Champaign and Madison, where the last three games of the season will decide whether Ohio State finishes second, third or fourth in the Big Ten baseball race. The team is slightly handicapped by the absence of Fenner, who sustained an infected ankle on the Southern trip. McMillan has been shifted to short and Fick placed on third. Fenner accompanied the team and will be put in as a pinch hitter if necessary.

Three hurlers—Kime, Fish and Miller—were taken on the trip, with each man scheduled to hurl a game. Kime will be used against Illinois and probably will start in the second game with Wisconsin. Fish, an experienced man, will pitch the first game against the Badgers. Miller, with a speedy ball and a fast hook, can be depended upon to do his share of the work on the mound. Huffman and Deutsch will divide the catching job. Dolezal has been working in right and may get a chance to play in the outer garden. McGee, Slyker, Fick and McMillan will take care of the infield, with Fogle and McNulty backing them up in the outfield.

Double the Value of Your Estate

Into this country, the present condition of financial affairs, offers to the man of business a greater opportunity than ever known before.

The future holds an admitted promise for still greater and richer returns from every form of legitimate enterprise, industrial activity and mercantile pursuits.

The man who has some capital at his command, even though in modest amount, will indeed be fortunate to learn that he can embark upon such expansion of activities with a definite knowledge of protection without investment.

This organization is fulfilling a distinctively unique function by selling insurance with no financial embarrassment, permitting you to double your estate on credit.

We are an insurance agency, fully incorporated, that has a strong financial backing within itself. It is the logical institution for men of affairs to secure a dependable protection. Here is how it works:

For Example

A hundred thousand dollar policy would ordinarily necessitate an immediate investment of $3,640.00. We assume the burden of this entire amount, continuing full credit until you care to eliminate it, your actual expenditure being but 6 percent of your premium.

This offer is for any amount from the smallest to the largest premium. We invite you to investigate this company's plan to double the value of your estate. It will incur neither obligation nor later aggressiveness.
