CSA Gives Senate Bill To Faculty

By Don Bandy

At a request of Student Senate, the Council on Student Affairs will forward a Senate resolution on off-campus housing to the Faculty Council.

This motion was passed at last night's CSA meeting in the Ohio Union by a 5 to 3 vote, after an hour and 45-minute discussion on whether or not Senate should have requested that the resolution be sent to the Faculty Council.

CSA ALSO passed a motion to send the resolution through CSA Chairman William S. Guthrie to the President's Cabinet and the Board of Trustees for consideration.

The resolution, passed by Senate last week, asked that the University not register an off-campus rooming house in which the landlord practices racial or religious discrimination in renting rooms.

To send the resolution to the Faculty Council, Senate needed CSA's approval which would be sending it through proper channels. However, the resolution could be sent directly from Senate to the administration.

THE BIG TUSSLE came when it was pointed out that Senate should not have requested CSA to send the resolution to the Faculty Council and also that CSA should have had the right as to where the resolution should be channeled from Senate.

Senate President Kay Wagner, a CSA member, said Senate wanted the resolution to go to the faculty group for consideration and any action that the Faculty Council might want to take. She stated that Senate had received a letter signed by 158 faculty members asking for action on the controversial issue.

Dean of Women Christine Y. Conaway pointed out that the Faculty Council is the wrong place for the resolution to go and that the Faculty Council should have nothing to do with it.

MRS. CONAWAY said that if the Faculty Council wants to consider the housing issue, that faculty members should instigate the issue to be brought before that council.

She explained that the Faculty Council cannot legislate on the Senate resolution and all that it can do is to make recommendations. The Faculty Council should only receive requests from Senate dealing with academic policies and changes, it was explained.

Prof. Harry Phillian said that the housing issue is an administrative problem and that the 158 faculty members who sent the letter to Senate weren't representative of the University teaching staff.

JOHN DUDA, a CSA student member, made the motion that CSA, in compliance with Senate's request, submit the resolution to the Faculty Council for opinion and to do with it as it saw fit.

But Duda's motion was amended several times and CSA finally voted to comply with Senate's request and just to forward the resolution to the Faculty Council, not asking for that group's opinion.

Professors' Group Discusses Its Purposes And Objectives

By Monica Mandula

The American Association of University Professors at Ohio State had its first meeting of the academic year yesterday to discuss the organization's purposes.

Among the purposes discussed were a larger voice by AAUP in faculty affairs, better relations with the administration and increased status, prestige and salaries for faculty members.

CHAPTER president Paul A. Carmack, associate professor of speech, said that the association's goal of the last three years was accomplished in May 1959 when the University was removed from the censure list of the national AAUP. He told the chapter that a reappraisal of goals was now necessary.

Frederick Heimberger, vice president of the University and guest at the meeting, said, "I would plead with the group to reclaim some of its power and responsibility."

IT WAS noted, however, that the group shared its duties with several conference committees which, Professor H. Gordon Hullfish of Education, said gave the AAUP less to do. These committees, according to Professor Salvatore M. Marco, chairman of Mechanical Engineering, are staffed by some of our best scholars and consequently detracts from their performance as students.

Regarding status and prestige of professors, the problem of recruitment was discussed.

"Since recruitment is a crucial problem, it might be possible to gather together graduate students and advanced undergraduates who are interested in college-level teaching and talk over the life that's ahead of them," said Professor Robert E. Mathews of the College of Law. He concluded by saying, "We may be of some usefulness in encouraging those with promise."

WSGA To Inform Women Balloters

WSGA last night adopted a new plan for promoting citizenship among University women.

According to arrangements that are now being made, the women's organization will see that all women enrolled in the University who will be turning twenty-one will receive information concerning voting and registration before their birthdays.

In other business the board voted to accept a rule change concerning women students and to recommend that CSA consider incorporating this in the new student rule book. In its newly-worded form the rule now reads; "Any undergraduate woman who visits a man's room or apartment without University chaperones will be subject to dismissal from the University."

DANCE PROGRAM

The University Dance Group will present a workshop today at 4 p.m. in Pomerene Hall on the first floor.

Kottman Dean, Says News Exec

By Myron Belkind

The selection of Dr. Roy M. Kottman of West Virginia University as Dean of the College of Agriculture at Ohio State has been common knowledge at West Virginia for a week, it was reported last night by a Morgantown newspaper executive.

He said his first source of information was two key members of the West Virginia administration who asked that their names be withheld because the school had an agreement with Ohio State not to talk. They said the announcement would be made official at a meeting of the Ohio State Board of Trustees on Friday.

"THE OFFER to Dr. Kottman by Ohio State has been talked about all over town for days," a newspaper executive reported. He said the Morgantown Post carried a story yesterday on the proposed appointment.

"It's all wrapped up but the official announcement," he added. "West Virginia hates to lose him, but they can't compete with Ohio State."

Frederick Stecker, Director of University Relations, would neither confirm nor deny the report which broke first in the Columbus Dispatch.

"THE PRESIDENT has said 'no comment,' and I'm following his lead," Stecker declared.

The Associated Press carried a story confirming that President Novice G. Fawcett would say only "no comment."

Dr. Kottman has headed the West Virginia University College of Agriculture since July 1, 1958. He went to West Virginia from Iowa State College, where he was associate dean of the agriculture department.

Adventurer Breaks Jail

HAVANA—(UPI) — American adventurer Austin F. Young, who boasted he would serve less than two months of a 30-year jail term for conspiring against the Cuban Government, escaped from his Pinar Del Rio Prison yesterday less than 24 hours after being sentenced.

Young, 38, of Miami, Fla., asked a guard outside his cell block for permission to go to a washroom and went out of the window with a Cuban co-conspirator, Sergio Hernandez Reyes. It was not immediately known whether they had outside aid in their escape.

The two men were believed to have made their way afoot into the nearby Sierra De Las Organos Foothills. An immediate pursuit was organized by District Military Authorities.

KAHLER SPEAKS

A well-known German humanist, Dr. Erich Kahler, will give a lecture at 4 p.m. today in the Ohio Union Conference Theater on "The Good, the True, and the Beautiful." The lecture is sponsored by the Graduate School.

Investing In Democracy

Ever since the British evacuated India in 1947, native Indians have been faced with the responsibilities of self-government in a land that has many problems.

The Indian population, which is multiplying at a rapid rate, accounts for one-sixth of the world's people. With the introduction of advanced technology, India's food production has been increasing but not fast enough to meet the population growth.

To help the country meet this problem, the United States established an International Cooperation Administration (ICA) in 1952. The purpose of the organization is to help increase the productivity of India's agriculture and provide the support and resources necessary for successful industrial development.

Five land-grant colleges, including Ohio State, have been working in the program since 1955. These colleges exchange faculty members of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics with agricultural faculty members of some 40 Indian colleges of agriculture and veterinary science and two research institutes. The purpose of the exchange is to acquaint the Indians with American methods of agricultural education and let them decide how American methods would best benefit their own universities.

The participating American institutions concentrate mainly on Indian problems concerning teaching, research, and the extension of the advanced methods throughout Indian villages.

For convenience, the five land-grant colleges in the program have divided India into five regions, each taking one region. Ohio State is assigned the northwest states of Punjab and Rajasthan. To date Ohio State has sent 16 faculty members to India and Indian universities in Punjab and Rajasthan have sent 28 faculty members to Ohio State's College of Agriculture.

Change in India has come about slowly but there has already been some evidence of it and more is in prospect. Since gaining her independence in 1947 India has started 18 new agricultural and veterinary colleges.

At the request of the ICA, President Fawcett will leave for India on Dec. 26 to conduct a six-week evaluation tour of Ohio State's participation in the program.

The presidents of three of the other land-grant colleges (Illinois, Missouri and Kansas State) concerned in the program will also be making the trip for the same purpose.

President Fawcett will meet with Ohio State faculty members in the three agricultural institutions in the state of Punjab and the two universities in the state of Rajasthan. He will travel well over 1,500 miles in India.

The President will evaluate the University's contributions and attempt to determine whether or not Ohio State should continue in the program. The future course of the program will be determined by the government of India and the contracting universities.

The government of India has requested that the program be continued, possibly until 1966. So far the contract will last until March, 1962. The future of the exchange program will depend largely on the evaluation of the four land-grant college presidents.

India is attempting a leap of centuries to bring its agricultural program up to more effective present day standards. The majority of Indian farmers still use primitive methods for farming.

The United States so far has poured about $1.8 billion of aid into India. Most of the other countries assisting India feel that they are buying democracy by investing in India, for many Indians believe that if they can't meet their food problem, Communism is inevitable.

Millett Says Air Force Is Unconcerned

MAXWELL AIR FORCE BASE, Ala. — (AP) — An Ohio educator said yesterday many college administrators sense a lack of interest and concern by the Air Force with the ROTC program.

Dr. John D. Millett, president of Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, made the statement at a meeting of Air Force and Defense Department officials here.

HE SAID questions asked by educators at a Defense Department conference "four days before Sputnik" in 1957 have not been answered.

President Millett had been designated as spokesman for the 187 colleges and universities with AFROTC units, most of which also are represented at the conference at Air University here.

"It is not unfair to say that the administrations of many colleges and universities sense a lack of interest and concern on the part of the Air Force with the college education program," he said in a prepared statement.

"WE FIND no fault with the ROTC headquarters in the Air University, but we do sense that the Headquarters has not been able to answer many of our questions because it, too, has had to cope with uncertainty of mission from higher echelons."

Millett said the Air Force has not clarified whether the present objective of the AFROTC is still to train a corps of young reserve officers or has turned to recruitment of career officers.

The educators question whether Air Force demands on campus cadets have been re-evaluated to seek greatest compatibility with time requirements for the rest of the college course, the Ohioan added.

Federal support policies for the ROTC program remain unclarified, he declared, and more urgent problems have resulted in neglect of the student officer training program by the Air Force.

Editor's Mailbag

Loyal . . .

To the Editor:

Writer Ira Glasser has proved the point, only too well, that I have repeatedly made concerning the inadequacy of our educational system since he failed to spell my name correctly.

THE PROGRESSIVE system of education developed principally by your so-called liberal friends has failed miserably in achieving the essential aims of education. To prove this point is not difficult by any means because our high school graduates especially are deficient in reading, writing and arithmetic. They have been allowed to spend too much time molding clay, sewing and knitting, and hence have not been able to devote enough time to the more essential aims of education.

Mr. Glasser is quite right that I am highly patriotic, and if I am wild-eyed concerning this quality it is a great one and not an evil one because after my experience overseas with the army in which I had the opportunity to observe the economic conditions and ways of life of some other nations I developed a greater respect and love for my country, just as I have developed love and respect for my family, my friends and all those that have helped me throughout my entire life.

NOT ONLY has education failed to develop appreciation for the more important good things in life but it has also failed to teach the general value of loyalty.

I would like to take time out here and thank God for the many fine teachers and professors I have been blessed with in the past that developed in me many desirable objectives of efficient education.

In true respect to J. Edgar Hoover, certainly one of the greatest living Americans, he has not only given us dedicated service but has produced a most efficient and highly respected organization.

Mr. Hoover has repeatedly turned down offers by politicians to run as a presidential candidate. I say we draft this great man because America needs the kind of leadership of a Hoover or a MacArthur, etc.

I DON'T believe loyalty oaths are sufficient but do believe that stronger measures should be developed and applied to destroy the Communists, who don't even possess the intestinal fortitude to admit their conspiracy against the people of this nation.

I close with the simple but valuable expression, God Bless America.

Insincere . . .

To the Editor:

Either the argument of your correspondent, "Faculty Member," is insincere or he is without substance.

For considering his argument, and then his final statement, I quote, "When is the LANTERN going to quit printing such stupid trash?"

One is led to wonder whether or not "Faculty Member" read his own lines.

Loyalty Oath . . .

To the Editor:

It is odd that in the discussion concerning the affidavit appended to the loyalty oath for students borrowing money under the National Defense Education Act, neither Paul Herbert nor Gordon Hullfish on Columbus Town Meeting referred to the fact that on Wednesday, Dec. 2, President Eisenhower in his news conference stated clearly that he was opposed to the affidavit when it was voted by Congress and is still opposed to it.

For an article on the news conference and for a transcript of the President's words, I refer readers to the Thursday, Dec. 3 issue of the New York Times.

MAN IN THE NEWS

By the United Press International

At 75, President Rajendra Prasad of India is one of the oldest living lieutenants of Mohandas K. Gandhi. And like Gandhi he was in and out of British jails during the struggle for independence.

As is true of many of the men who followed Gandhi, Prasad came from an aristocratic family and was a highly successful lawyer before he joined in the fight for freedom.

Prasad was the first president of India's Constituent Assembly when the battle was won. Later he became minister of food and agriculture. When India became a republic he was the first president. He was re-elected to the post twice, in 1952 and 1957.

Prasad is a plain man with plain tastes and habits. He is a strict vegetarian. He does not drink alcohol and spends two hours in the morning and one hour in the evening at prayer.

Today's Bustling Society Makes Use Of Airplanes

Editor's Note—This is the third and final part of a series telling of Don Scott Airfield and Ohio State's School of Aviation.

By Virginia Benson

How can you get there faster, on the ground or in the air?

The obvious answer leads to an explanation of why airplanes are becoming more popular both in business and in private life. A fast-paced society demands fast transportation, and a fast defense.

COURTNEY CHAPMAN, chief flight instructor for Ohio State, enumerated several points on the value of flight training. According to Chapman, almost any career can benefit from the knowledge of flying and the access to airplanes. Aircraft aids individuals from the farmer to the civil engineer in their work.

As an Ohio State flight trainee, you have unlimited opportunities.

Flight training can be used for recreational purposes, as an aid to a job, or as a full-time professional career. To become a charter pilot, at least a commercial pilot's certificate is necessary. A charter pilot tailors his abilities to serve the requirements of clients, with special attention to their flying needs.

MANY LARGE corporations have their own aircraft to transport company executives to important meetings. There is an opportunity for employment as a full-time pilot in any of numerous corporations.

An instructor's certificate enables you to teach flying. Positions are open for flight instructors in schools and industries. You may also teach students privately.

An obvious opportunity for aviation knowledge is the armed services. However, the armed services require pilot candidates to complete their own basic flight training program.

FLIGHT TRAINING is an excellent background for airline pilots, but commercial airlines still require their own advanced training program.

If you have obtained your FAA instructor's certificate from Ohio State (or elsewhere), and meet the requirements you may be an instructor for the University. In addition to the regular staff, Ohio State currently employs three students who are qualified instructors.

Richard Gaebler, a senior in physics; Clay Tanner, a senior in vocational arts education, and Bill Cerhold, a graduate student in fine arts, are the instructors. Each has gotten all, or part of his flight training at Ohio State.

YOU CAN easily see how a knowledge of aviation assists in almost any profession. An agriculturist may use aircraft to spray crops against harmful insects. An airplane can be a quick means of checking on livestock.

A civil engineer finds the airplane useful to get an overall picture of ground work progress. It is easy to move quickly from one area of construction to another.

A sales representative can make more contacts over a larger area by using an airplane as transportation. More appointments can be conveniently scheduled.

"THE AIRPLANE is a terrific utility tool for services," summarized Mr. Chapman. In industry, almost anything can be done faster. Products and services can be dispensed much faster by using airplanes."

Will the airplane ever take the place of the automobile?

"I doubt it very seriously," says Mr. Chapman, "unless it would be in the form of a versatile air and ground vehicle. After all these years the automobile is definitely here to stay. But then, so is the airplane."

Receptionist Likes Work At Engineering College

By Sue Pardee

Promptly at 7:45 every morning a tall slender gray-haired woman steps out of a red and white Ford convertible and walks two blocks to McPherson Chemical Laboratory where she unlocks the door and enters a large, light-green office.

She is Phyllis Curran, a receptionist in the College of Engineering office. A graduate in English from Colby College, Maine, Mrs. Curran moved to Columbus 20 years ago. She began to work for the University in 1954.

"OF COURSE I meet everyone that comes into the office, and answer all the phone calls, but my most important job is to arrange appointments for the boys who wish to talk with a counselor—I try to match them with the counselor I feel will be able to help them the most."

Mrs. Curran, whose busiest times are at the beginning and the end of the quarter, estimates that she has made 70-odd appointments this week alone.

"The boys that come into the office generally have some problem such as grades or finances, but we also call in our outstanding students to praise them and give them encouragement. We don't have many girls—about half a dozen a quarter," Mrs. Curran added.

COMMENTING ON the difference between college students when she went to school and now, she said that the boys, in engineering especially, seem to be deadly earnest and planning seriously on getting the most they can from their education.

With the broadened curriculum in engineering which requires many more hours of liberal arts than formerly, the old controversy between these colleges is no longer true, she feels.

The owner of an 18-year-old terrier named "Mickey," and past president of Trudeau Guild, which raises money for tuberculosis victims, Mrs. Curran spends her spare time doing services for the community.

"But my main interest is in helping our students. I guess it's a good thing when you think that you spend one-half of your life at work."

Eye Instrument Is Donated

One of the newest and most dramatic instruments available for use in eye care has been donated to the department of ophthalmology at Ohio State by Miss Irene Hirsch.

The instrument, a $12,600 Zeiss Light Coagulator, was given in memory of Miss Hirsch's parents, the late Gustav and Aletta Hirsch.

The coagulator was purchased through "Operation Eye Research," a special part of the Ohio State Development Fund set up by Dr. William H. Havener, chairman of the department of ophthalmology, and Milton Staub, president of the Gustav Hirsch Organization.

One of 12 such instruments in the United States, the coagulator consists of a powerful light source and a focusing mechanism whereby the light can be concentrated on a pinpoint size area of the eye.

Capable of bringing eye tissues to a boiling point within a fraction of a second, the beam is used to fuse damaged tissue in treatment of eye cancer, retinal detachment and many diseases which could not be treated through surgery.

Lucas Plays Double Role, Scholar-Center

By Bill Teague

There's an old saying about athletes being dumb. But don't you believe it. The saying is as wrong as it is old.

Some 6-feet 8-inches of living proof that athletes are not dumb is currently enrolled at Ohio State.

HE'S JERRY LUCAS, leading scorer and rebounder on the Buckeyes' unbeaten basketball team.

Lucas is also a star in the classroom. All the proof you need of this is a look at his grades. Of the 49 credit hours Lucas has completed, 42 of them are "A" credit, one hour is "B" and six are "C."

The "C" grades were in two freshman English courses. And, in case you're wondering, the "A" grades were not in ballroom dancing and advanced basketball.

THE HIGH MARKS (like the average marks) were in old fashioned courses like accounting, botany, history.

This gives Lucas a point-hour ratio of 3.68 of a possible four-point, which is (to put it mildly) far higher than the average at Ohio State.

If history repeats, then Lucas probably will continue to get good marks. It's a habit he got into during high school at Middletown.

"I GOT STRAIGHT A's all through high school," Lucas said, "except for two B's . . . in Latin."

He won the school's scholarship prize in mathematics, and won an academic scholarship to Ohio State. He's studying in the College of Commerce.

"You can't cut classes and you have to study," is the way Lucas sums the secret of his grades. "Practice cuts in on my time a little, but I still have time enough for study. I usually hit the books from about 8 o'clock until bedtime."

PART OF HIS determination to study comes from basketball Coach Fred Taylor, who urges all his athletes to work hard in the classroom as well as on the hardwood.

"He talks a lot about grades to the boys," Lucas says. "And we all get pretty good grades. Last spring quarter the traveling squad had a pretty good average."

Taylor says the Spring Quarter average for the top eight men in playing time was 3.2. Two boys who had 3.5 were not in that average because they had little or no game time logged.

LUCAS IS preparing for finals, but says he probably won't take more than one book on the Bucks' trip to St. Louis.

"I won't have much time to study out there. But I'll have time to get ready for finals after I get back."

As for the next quarter when the Bucks begin Big Ten competition,

LUCAS HITS BOOKS—Jerry Lucas, outstanding Buckeye hoopster, not only excels on the basketball court, but also in the classroom. As evidence of his

Lucas says, "I plan to take a light* load in school—only 15 hours . . . economics, botany, speech and ROTC."

He's been carrying 17 to 18 hours work in past quarters.

scholarly ability, last year as a freshman, Jerry had 42 hours of A's out of 49.

Indiana, Cats, Future Buck Opponents, Having Troubles

By Phil Rohr

Indiana University, the team expected to give the Buckeyes a lot of trouble for the Big Ten title this season, have been having troubles themselves.

Two of last year's five starters for the Hoosiers have been benched, and two sophomores have stepped up to take their place on the starting unit.

Both got their big chance as a result of their play in the victory over Ball State and the loss to Missouri Monday evening.

GUARD JERRY BASS will take over for junior Gary Long, and either Charlie Hall or Bill Altman will draw a forward assignment in place of LeRoy Johnson for their next game with Ohio University.

Both Johnson and Long are very good shots but have been having difficulty getting started this season. Coach Branch McCracken figures that both are pressing too much and that a little rest will do them good.

Shooting was no problem for Indiana last year as they scored on 40 per cent of their shots, but against Missouri, their percentage was only 34 per cent.

ANOTHER FUTURE Buckeye opponent having troubles has been Kentucky. The Wildcats, always a top-ranked team, were bumped by Southern California last weekend.

Kentucky, coached by the almost incomparable Adolph Rupp, rang up a 24-3 record last year, despite a predominantly sophomore team. Bill Lickert, figured by many as an All-America potential, leads the Wildcats.

Lickert and the other four veteran Wildcats will meet the sophomore laden Ohio State Buckeyes at Kentucky December 28.

Letters To Santa Begin To Pile Up In New York

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Two thousand notes to Santa Claus have already been opened at New York's General Post Office. Several, such as one signed "Incident Divorcy" and post marked in Germany, attracted particular attention.

Postmaster Robert K. Christenberry thought Santa might have difficulty fulfilling the request of "Incident Divorcy," who wrote: "To Santa Claus, USA:

"I AM NOT a child any more. But I have the wish of a child, namely to come to America with my four children. The youngest is 10 months, it's a boy, and then two girls, three and five, and a boy, six. "I wish to marry some good, fine American.

"I work gladly and I am a good housekeeper."

Book Damage Big Headache For Libraries

By Marilyn Jarvis

Every student has gone into the Main Library to get a book or to read an article only to find that the pages have been badly marked or completely torn out.

David Wilder, assistant director of public services at the library, estimated that over $8,000 is spent annually to replace lost and damaged books.

"IT SHOULD be noted," he said, "that some of the money spent is used to replace books that have worn out from natural use."

Mrs. Jacqueline D. Sisson of the Fine Arts Library said that the art-education books are the ones which suffer the most. "A few students seem to think that it is all right to cut or tear out pictures and articles from books that many other students will want to use," she said.

"There is also a lot of damage done by students underlining in books and defacing pictures," Mrs. Sisson said.

THE MARKING of books and magazine articles is also the main problem in the reserve room according to George L. Williams of the closed reserve division.

"If the book is a technical one, the damage done to it is likely to be the tearing out of pages," he said. "Underscoring, however, is most common in the social science books."

If only one or two pages are missing, it is possible to have a photostat made from another book and pasted into the damaged one. If this process can't be used, a whole new book must be ordered.

"Every student should remember that damaging one book beyond further use means that dozens of other students must suffer," Mrs. Sisson said.

Australian farmers are expected to harvest about 180 million bushels of wheat this year, compared with last year's 214-million-bushel crop.

Popular Writers Offer Greetings

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—(UPI)—Some of America's best known writers express a "Merry Christmas" wish in prose and verse on this year's yuletide greetings. Inspirational messages have been penned by Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, author and clergyman and Father James Keller, founder of The Christophers. Sentimental holiday expressions by the late Edgar A. Guest and James Metcalfe, poets, also are expected to prove popular. Offbeat humor with a twist is to be found in the colorful verse of Ogden Nash, whose wacky rhymes have delighted Americans for years.

SOME WATCHDOGS
PENSACOLA, Fla.—(UPI)—Byron C. Melvin parked his car and boat trailer right behind the Highway Patrol Station here and went fishing.

He returned to find that the trailer had been stolen right from under the noses of the police.

Ohio Retail Sales Rise 3 Per Cent In October

October sales of Ohio retailers showed a rising trend despite the steel strike and its secondary repercussions, according to the current "Ohio Retail Annalist," published by the Bureau of Business Research at Ohio State.

THE OCTOBER sales were 12 per cent higher than those of October, 1958, and were up 3 per cent from September. For the first 10 months of 1959, the volume of retail trade has maintained a 10 per cent increase over the corresponding period of 1958.

The October increases ranged from a fractional rise to a rise of 58 per cent above last October levels, with motor vehicle dealers achieving the most significant October-to-October increase (a principal factor in the strong retail showing).

For this same period, five kinds of business failed to maintain October 1958 volume — lumber-building materials dealers down fractionally; women's ready-to-wear stores, down 1 per cent; grocery stores (without fresh meats), down 5 per cent; paint, glass and wallpaper stores, down 6 per cent, and other apparel stores down 27 per cent.

MOTOR VEHICLE dealers achieved a 10-month increase of 40 per cent while the next most significant year-to-date increases were found in other automotive dealers, furniture stores, and lumber-building materials dealers, all up 13 per cent. For 1959 to date, only women's ready-to-wear stores, grocery stores, heating, plumbing equipment dealers and miscellaneous apparel stores failed to achieve 1958 levels.

DEMONSTRATORS—Common Pleas Judge Joseph M. Harter (seated, center) and four Columbus attorneys will serve as "demonstrators" in an Ohio State Institute on Damages in Personal Injury Litigation, scheduled for tomorrow and Saturday on the campus. Shown with Prof. Robert J. Nordstrom, associate dean of the College of Law, are left to right, seated) John D. Holschuh, Judge Harter, and Rudolph Janata Jr., and (standing) John C. Elam, Professor Nordstrom, and Arthur M. Sebastian. More than 300 attorneys are expected to attend the institute, sponsored by the College of Law and the Ohio State Bar Association.

LUCKY STRIKE presents

Dear Dr. Frood:

Historic event! DR. FROOD REVEALS HIS ADDRESS

(See below)

Dear Dr. Frood: My roommate continually steals my Luckies. What should I do?

Sinned Against

Dear Sinned Against: The most successful defense is the traditional African one. Mold a small wax image of your roommate. Then, at full moon, insert half a dozen common household pins into the hands of the image.

Dear Dr. Frood: I was out with my girl and I saw this old lady and I laughed and I said, "Did you ever see such a worn-out old hag?" and my girl told me it was her mother. What can I do now?

Outspoken

Dear Outspoken: Take your left foot in your right hand and jerk sharply until it comes out of your mouth.

Dear Dr. Frood: If I were demented enough to want to write to you, how would I go about it?

Pen Pal

Dear Pen Pal: Address your letter to:
Dr. Frood
Box 2990
Grand Central Station
New York 17, N.Y.

No phone calls please. Thus far I've been unable to have a phone installed here in the box.

Dear Dr. Frood: Our football team has lost 8 games a year for the last 6 years. How can we improve our record without letting the old coach go?

Alumni Pres.

Dear Alumni Pres.:
Schedule fewer games.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am a 5'1" co-ed with a figure exactly like the Venus de Milo's. Would you say I should be in the movies?

Lovely

Dear Lovely:
I'll say anything you want me to.

Dear Dr. Frood: I told my fiancée we can't afford to get married until I finish college. She insists that two can live as cheaply as one. Is this true?

Dubious

Dear Dubious:
Yes. If they take turns eating.

DR. FROOD ON HARASSING HABITS OF ROOMMATES

Roommates resent these common faults in roommates: Staring at my girl's picture. Not staring at my girl's picture. Studying when I'm not. Having a homely sister. Having no sister at all. Only one thing is more annoying than having a roommate who always runs out of Luckies: Having a roommate who doesn't smoke Luckies.

COLLEGE STUDENTS SMOKE MORE LUCKIES THAN ANY OTHER REGULAR!

When it comes to choosing their regular smoke, college students head right for fine tobacco. Result: Lucky Strike tops every other regular sold. Lucky's taste beats all the rest because L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco.

Ballet Based On Old Story

Martha Graham's award-winning "Appalachian Spring" ballet, set to the Pulitzer Prize music of Aaron Copland, may be seen over Channel 34 at 9 p.m. Monday and at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 10.

Miss Graham appears as a principal dancer in the ballet which is set in the Appalachian region of pioneer Pennsylvania. This program, which won first prize at the Venice Festival of Documentaries and Short Subjects, is the only full-length ballet by Martha Graham now on film.

"Appalachian Spring" tells of a young pioneer, his bride, a pioneer woman, a wandering preacher and his small band of followers. The dance concerns the young couple's wedding day, building of their house, their celebration, the preacher's dire sermon, the pioneer woman's blessing, and the day's end.

Copland, who has been called the dean of contemporary American composers, was awarded a Pulitzer Prize in 1945 for the music upon which "Appalachian Spring" is based.

Jazz Forum Cuts 'Swinging' Album

The University's Jazz Forum has recorded an album that will be available on campus later this month. The title of the album is "Swinging At Ohio State With The Jazz Forum Big Band". It will be a 33 r.p.m., high-fidelity recording and will be priced at $3.98.

The "Big Band", directed by Lowell Lato, is the group that placed third in the Notre Dame Jazz Festival last Spring.

The selections recorded include modern jazz renditions and ballads. The recording was taped last spring by Magnetic Recordings of Columbus and is being pressed on long playing discs by the C. G. Conn Co. in Elkhart, Indiana. According to Joe Breiner, the Forum's president, booths will be set up on campus to help promote sales.

Resort hotels began rising on the Atlantic Coast, notably at Long Beach, Atlantic City and Cape May, N.J., after the War of 1812.

New Delhi Crowd Welcomes Ike

Editor's Note: The following dispatch gives the personal reaction of Merriman Smith, UPI White House reporter for 18 years, to the tumultuous welcome given to President Eisenhower in New Delhi, India, yesterday.

By Merriman Smith
UPI White House Reporter

NEW DELHI, India.—(UPI)—The local police say that President Eisenhower was welcomed by more than 1,000,000 people. If they had said 2,000,000, I would not have quarreled with the figure.

As a UPI reporter who has watched vast crowds for presidents from Franklin D. Roosevelt through Harry S. Truman and now Eisenhower, I have never seen anything even remotely matching the scene in New Delhi.

FRANKLY, I was scared stiff a good bit of the time during the ride from Palam Airport through midtown New Delhi. People seemed to be coming out of the ground.

Big crowds sometimes have a fault of becoming bad-tempered when they are pushed around by police, but the people of India did not react that way. They ducked under the swinging clubs of lithe police officers and smilingly continued to press toward the automobile in which Eisenhower was riding with Indian President Rajendra Prasad and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru.

Not in the most dramatic days of the late President Roosevelt was there ever such a crowd as this in the United States.

FOR EIGHT miles and more than two hours, there was a solid wall of humanity on either side of the motorcade and there were long periods when all possible police concentration could not keep the motorcade moving.

What was frightening to some of us riding four cars behind the President and Nehru was that the people were so enthusiastic they tried constantly to get in the car with us, shake hands, or engage in conversation while they were about to be mowed down by motorcycle officers.

One excited Indian reached inside the Press Association car, grabbed me by the arm and nearly wrenched it off while he asked how I was enjoying the trip.

SPECTATORS repeatedly disregarded police clubs to cling to the side of our car long enough to inquire whether we knew this was a much better turnout than Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev received here three years ago.

There were frightening moments when Indians, in what seemed to be exultation, beat against the side of our car like a bass drum and shouted in what I took to be a dozen different tongues.

For its mammoth size, however, the crowd was good-natured and well-behaved. The people just wanted to see Eisenhower and apparently did not care about the dangers involved.

JOHN AND Barbara Eisenhower, the President's son and daughter-in-law, were several cars back of us. Barbara seemed as apprehensive as I felt when the crowds climbed on the bumpers of the cars in the procession and proceeded to shout loud welcomes to anyone within range.

We finally had to roll up the windows of our car to avoid being suffocated by flowers.

The Indians threw in large garlands of blossoms strung together and double handfuls of loose blossoms.

EISENHOWER and Nehru were riding in an open car and had no protection from the flowers, with the result that their car was knee-deep in flowers when it finally reached the palace where the President set up the temporary White House.

My Indian colleagues say it will be this way every time Eisenhower shows himself during his five-day visit here and, if this is true, we certainly could use some good blocking backs from one of the good U.S. professional football teams.

MONTPELIER, Vt. — (UP) — State tax commissioner Austin Noble said the revenue from beer sales increased considerably in towns where "the people complained that the water didn't taste very good."
