

SEX SEMINAR—The Rev. Richard Dahl addresses students on "Sexual Responsibility" at the Ohio Union Thursday night.

Proper Perspective Of Sexuality Urged

Sexuality must be recognized as a dimension of the total person before there can be a real sexual revolution, according to the Rev. Richard Dahl of the Newman Center.

He spoke Thursday night at the second of two sex seminars sponsored by the Student Assembly.

Attitudes toward sexual responsibility today are changing to meet this new evaluation of sex as a vital part of the human personality, Father Dahl said.

"Norms governing sexual behavior have been based on only the physical aspect of sex," he said. The Catholic Church has in the past based its laws too much on the physical dimension and ignored sex's influence on personality, Father Dahl contended.

However, the sexual revolution has led to much confusion and guilt over sexuality, he added.

Those who follow the "Playboy" philosophy deprive sex of its meaning and value, according to Father Dahl. "They want accessibility to sex, but are not willing to give anything in return."

"Sexuality is a part of all our interaction and communication with each other," Father Dahl said. "However, many people are disappointed when they strive for deep communication and selflessness in dealing with another person and cannot find it."

"We must be realistic," he said. "Such a feeling of relating cannot be established on the first date."

Another problem arising from the sexual revolution is many people's confusion of sexual images, he added.

"Some boys do not feel adequate unless they are dragging some willing or unwilling coed off to bed," Father Dahl said. This attitude results from a confusion about what it means to be a man, he continued.

Many people also confuse sexual feelings with feelings that are not really sexual, according to Father Dahl. "Sexual release is used to deal with non-sexual conflicts—loneliness, hostility, boredom."

What sexual responsibility basically means is responsibility toward other people, he said. The acceptance of this responsibility and an ability to relate to other people are the basis of the new attitude toward morality which is part of the sexual revolution, Father Dahl continued.

Quoting other theologians, he summed up this attitude by saying, "Morality is loving people and using things." Immorality is loving things and using people."

"Persons who have never related to another or trusted another can never trust God or relate to him. It is psychologically impossible."

Britain Submits Plan For Mideast Peace

UNITED NATIONS. (P)—Britain submitted to the U.N. Security Council Thursday a compromise resolution aimed at breaking the prolonged diplomatic deadlock on a settlement in the Middle East.

Lord Caradon, British U.N. ambassador, urged a prompt and unanimous council decision. The alternative to effective council action, he said, is "too terrible to contemplate."

The resolution provides for Israeli withdrawal "from territories occupied in the recent conflict," a reference to the six-day Arab-Israeli war in which Israel seized hundreds of square miles of Egyptian, Jordanian and Syrian territory.

It also affirms the need for the termination "of all claims or states of belligerency."

It further makes provision for a

Reduction In Troops Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gen. William C. Westmoreland was quoted Thursday as saying the United States could begin reducing its forces in Vietnam in two years if its successes against the Communists continue and if South Vietnamese forces improve.

The report was made by Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., a member of the House Armed Services Committee which Westmoreland briefed privately for an hour after conferring with President Johnson at the White House.

There was no comment from the White House or the Defense Department on Westmoreland's reported prediction.

Ichord quoted the U.S. military commander in Vietnam as saying "there could be the beginning of a phaseout within two years if everything keeps going along as it has."

Westmoreland did not discuss how long the "phaseout" would take to complete if and when it began, Ichord said. "We could also be there for the next 20 years," the Congressman said.

Ichord said the "phaseout" did not amount to a "pullout" by U.S. forces. Instead, he said, it meant the start of a transfer of the U.S. combat load to South Vietnamese forces when they are up to the job, with a corresponding reduction in U.S. forces.

The White House gave no details on Johnson's midday meeting with Westmoreland, which was followed by a Presidential conference with Robert Komer, the deputy ambassador to Saigon in charge of pacification work.

Westmoreland and Ellsworth Bunker, the U.S. ambassador to South Vietnam, were expected to meet again jointly with the President before they return to their posts.

Ohio State Officials Assess Convention

University officials who served as delegates to this week's National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges convention say the gathering has laid groundwork for solving pressing educational problems.

"The focal point of the convention was the educational problems of the inner city and how to solve them," John T. Mount, vice-president for educational services, said. "By comparing our observations with those of national educational officials I think we made some headway towards a solution."

Mount said Ohio State has conducted seminars on the inner city problems and is working with institutions across the country. He said that groundwork was laid at the convention for additional programs involving inter-university cooperation to deal directly with the poverty zone problems—perhaps in conjunction with the Urban League.

"In order to fulfill these programs," Mount said, "we will need increased funds from state, local and federal governments and from private sources." Mount was the chairman of the convention's Council on Extension Education.

Roy M. Kottman, dean of agriculture, summed up the convention by describing it as "a battery-charging operation whose purpose was to exchange impressions and ideas. Although this year it was a matter of an evolution of ideas rather than any earth-shaking pronouncements, it was very successful," he said.

Sociologists Pen Dissent on Vietnam

Another home front has opened up in the war against President Johnson's handling of the war in Vietnam.

An open letter signed by 1,390 fellows and active members of the American Sociological Association (ASA), including 12 Ohio State faculty members, was sent to the White House early this week to protest the Vietnam war and its effects on American society.

The letter, circulated by the Ad Hoc Committee of Sociologists for Peace in Vietnam, criticized the channeling of resources and efforts away from serious social problems within the United States.

It contained three recommendations for a peaceful settlement of the Vietnam conflict:

- An immediate and unconditional halt to the bombing of North Vietnam;

- An immediate, "vigorous, and genuine" attempt to seek negotiations for peace with representation by all parties concerned;

- A systematic withdrawal of American forces from Vietnam.

Urges Veto Of Changes By CSA

By JEFFREY A. TANNENBAUM
Lantern Staff Writer

The Student Assembly reasserted Thursday its support of the Constitutional Convention's draft of the new undergraduate constitution.

By unanimous vote, the assembly decided to urge the Faculty Council to overrule the Council on Student Affairs' recommendation for revision of the document.

A resolution by Assemblymen Linda E. Heaton and M. Carole Ward calls for the Faculty Council to "adopt the original student proposals."

Earlier in the meeting, Student Body President Lloyd W. Siegel made a rare appearance before the assembly to report on the status of the constitution.

He noted that student voters had given the convention draft near-unanimous endorsement last April after nearly a year of convention meetings.

He said he expected an ad hoc committee of the Faculty Council to finish a study of the convention draft by the middle of Winter Quarter at the latest.

The committee is also weighing recommendations from the Faculty Council's organ on student matters, the Council on Student Affairs.

Siegel said adoption of the CSA revisions would significantly weaken a student bill of rights that is part of the convention draft.

He asserted, however: "Even if the constitution isn't complete when it goes from the ad hoc committee to the Faculty Council and Board of Trustees for approval, this would not be the end of the road."

He explained, "Any sections of the bill of rights which are not approved would remain as a program of action for the student government."

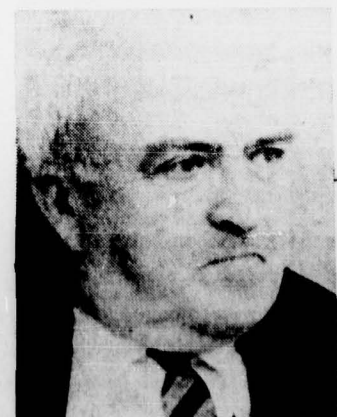

"We would have an excellent foundation for making further changes in faculty rules. We would continue trying."

Charles W. Breece, an alternate for Assemblyman Mark O. Stevens, asked Siegel, "Who is to say we could get later what we wouldn't get this time?"

Siegel answered: "Who was to say two years ago that the University would reverse its position on women's hours? We are building on a progressive rollback of all the things which have restricted students in the past."

Nationalism Called Key to Mideast

Sydney N. Fisher

Middle East strife is a natural result of the conflict between two highly nationalistic groups, according to Sydney N. Fisher, professor of history at Ohio State.

Fisher, who has traveled extensively in the Middle East since 1928 and was appointed to the Advisory Council of the Midwest Division of the International Studies Association in 1966, said that Arabs believe they can claim Palestine because of their 100-year residence there. Israelis feel, however, that all Palestine should be theirs, he said.

Fisher maintained that the two governments have reached an impasse.

"If the present Arab government under King Hussein would meet the Israeli government face to face and officially give up the land, it would be overthrown," Fisher said.

Likewise, if the Israeli government were to relinquish any territory it has gained, its people "would throw it out of power," he said.

"Neither Israel nor Arab nations have stated publicly what their terms would be in reaching a settlement of the dilemma," said Fisher.

Common ground is hard to find, he contended, because Israelis, in general, look upon Arabs as "a lower form of personages, and Arabs despise and fear Israelis, seeing them as 'Westerners.'"

Fisher said the blame for the conflict cannot be placed on only one side. Both governments are highly nationalistic, he said, fighting for what they consider to be their rights.

Fisher said the Israeli representative to the United Nations, Gideon

Raphael, stalled the calling of a ceasefire for two days last summer, until Israel had taken the land it wanted in Syria.

He said the Arabs never felt that the United Nations had the power to give part of Palestine to Israel in 1947. It was then that the Arab states invaded Palestine, he stated.

"We of the United States have thrown the Arabs into the arms of the Russians," Fisher maintained, "for the Arabs have been as opposed to the Russians as to imperialists from the West. We should have held to our word and forced the Israelis to stop their aggression."

Fisher is author of "New Horizons for the U.S. in World Affairs," "Social Forces in the Middle East," and "The Middle East, a History."

All Bowl Offers Out For Army This Year

WEST POINT, N.Y. (UPI)—The U.S. Military Academy announced Thursday night that no post-season bowl bids will be accepted by this year's Army football team.

A spokesman at West Point said the announcement was made following discussions on the subject between academy officials and the secretary of Army, Stanley Resor.

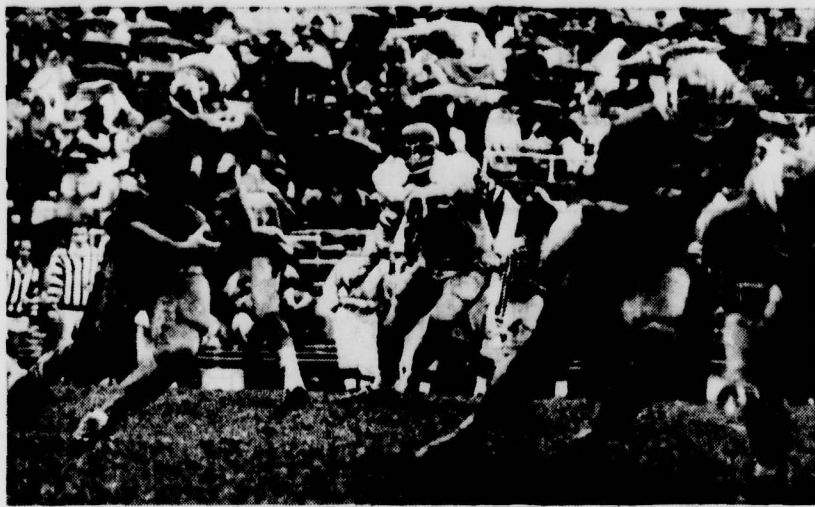

The Cadets, 7-1 for the season, were a leading candidate for the Sugar Bowl game in New Orleans. Army plays Pittsburgh Saturday and closes its season against arch rival Navy.

Sugar Bowl officials had favored the cadets because "Army is a very glamorous team."

The implications prompting the decision were:

- Acceptance of a bid would tend to emphasize football to an extent not consistent with the basic mission of the academy;
- It would extend the season a full month, making
- The academy does not have practice time available
- The academy does not have practice time available and facilities necessary for workouts beyond Dec. 2.

A West Point spokesman said the Vietnam War was not a major consideration.

TOP RUSHER—Halfback Dave Brungard (12), shown here following guard John Kelley (62) around right end against Wisconsin Saturday, has gained 373 net yards in 76 attempts in five conference games to lead all Buckeye rushers.

USC-UCLA Contest Televised

Indiana, Minnesota Clash

The whole ball of wax is up for grabs Saturday—Rose Bowl bid, the national championship and the Pacific Eight championship—when Southern California and UCLA meet before 93,000 fans and a national television audience.

The Heisman Trophy, awarded to college football's outstanding player, also may be at stake between UCLA's brilliant quarterback Gary Beban and USC's star halfback O. J. Simpson.

The top-ranked UCLA

Bruins are three-point underdogs to the Trojans, who were knocked from the No. 1 spot last Saturday when upset by Oregon State 3-0. The only blemish on UCLA's record is a 16-16 tie with the same Beavers.

Southern Cal boasts an 8-1 record while UCLA is 7-0-1. While this the Trojans' final game, the Bruins wind up with Syracuse next week.

The other Rose Bowl berth is hanging on the outcome of the Big Ten game between fifth-ranked Indiana and 16th-ranked Minnesota at Minneapolis. The Hoosiers (8-0), along with Wyoming the only unbeaten, untied major teams in the nation, have never made the trip to Pasadena and so far have been the year's biggest surprise.

Indiana has won six of its eight games by seven or less points in making Hoosier Coach John Pont a leading candidate for Coach-of-the-Year honors. Minnesota has registered a 6-2 mark, but only one loss has occurred in conference play. A victory could send the Gophers to the Rose Bowl. The game is rated a tossup, but a tie would put Indiana in the California classic.

Others Seek Berths

Other powerhouses seek to nail down bowl berths this weekend. Orange Bowl scouts are expected to give second-ranked Tennessee the nod if the Volunteers get by tough Mississippi (4-2-1) which has included Georgia and Houston among its victims.

Oklahoma's seventh-ranked Sooners, who also are coveted by the Orange Bowl Promoters, should land a berth by beating Kansas, an 18-point underdog.

The sixth-ranked Wyoming Cowboys are favored to beat the University of Texas at El Paso and boost their chances for a major bowl bid, possibly the Gator. Penn State, an Eastern power ranked No. 12 in the nation, also may grab a Gator Bowl spot by defeating Ohio University.

'Ed Podolak Is Back' Is New Buck Theme

By DICK NETHERS

Lantern Sports Writer

A common phrase in Big Ten football is "Thank God for Iowa," but Ohio State has quickly changed its phrase about the Hawkeyes to "Ed Podolak is back."

Iowa faces Ohio State Saturday in a 1:30 p.m. Dad's Day game at Ohio Stadium.

Podolak, a junior quarterback who has missed two games with a cracked rib, is the secret to the Iowa offense, which is rated as third best in the league.

Third Best

Podolak ran for 91 yards and completed 11 of 24 passes for 142 yards in Ohio State's 14-10 victory last season. He is rated as the third best passer in the Big Ten.

Silas McKennie, a 215-pound junior, is the Hawkeyes' only other backfield threat. He has a 4.4 rushing average. End Al Bream, the leading pass receiver in the conference, is Podolak's favorite target. Bream has a 12-yard average per reception.

However, that's as far as the Hawks go. Regardless of their offense, their defense has spotted opponents over 26 points a game.

Brungard Is Second

Ohio State should show some of its offensive punch against Iowa. Halfback Dave Brungard is second in rushing in the Big Ten to Leroy Keyes of Purdue with a 4.9 average per carry. Brungard is second in the league in kickoff returns with a 21.2 average. End Bill Anders has a 13.8 average per reception in the league.

Ted Provost, sophomore defensive back from Navarre, is tied for third place in pass interceptions with four.

Ohio State had a fine week of practice. Only a few bruises kept Paul Huff and Bill Urbanik out of Wednesday's session, but Woody Hayes expects the Bucks to be at full strength.

"We're passing better," Hayes said Thursday while unravelling numerous tee shirts. "Yes, a pretty good practice."

Hayes has been impressed with the improvement of the offensive line all season. Center John Muhlbach was named as the outstanding lineman last week for his fine downfield blocking against Wisconsin. Rudy Hubbard was named the outstanding back.

Dirk Worden, who led the defense with 10 solo tackles and two assists, was named the top defensive back. End Nick Roman was voted the outstanding defensive lineman against Wisconsin.

BACK LINERS: Plenty of tickets remain for the Buckeyes' final home game. The ticket office is open from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. daily. The only casualty at practice this week occurred Tuesday when managers Gary Wilding and Don Williams drove the equipment trailer over a stake, bursting a tire. Ohio State is a nine-point favorite. Northwestern scored 27 points in the second quarter against the Hawks in the Cats' 38-24 victory.

Wisconsin is trying not to duplicate in its field house what is being done on its gridiron. The Badgers seem only a year away from success according to a United Press International survey which rates them as the cream of the Big Ten crop in recruiting the nation's top high school basketball talent for 1967.

Wisconsin Coach John Erickson wants no part of recent Badger football tradition which has produced woefully inept teams the last five years. And to insure it Erickson has brought together five players from the upper Midwest who could put the Cardinal and White at the top of the Big Ten in the near future.

Model Neighborhood Grant Awarded City

By MONIQUE GUINOUX
Lantern Staff Writer

Columbus was one of 63 major cities in the United States chosen Thursday to receive a federal grant to make planning studies of model neighborhoods, James Crozier, Department of Development director, announced.

The project, passed by Congress as part of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966, will try to provide new programs to demonstrate how the welfare of people living in blighted areas can be improved. It calls for a comprehensive attack on poorly developed social, economic and physical aspects of the neighborhood, involved in the program.

The grants will pay up to 80 per cent of the cost of planning and developing comprehensive demonstration programs.

Columbus sent an official application for a $300,000 planning grant for a model neighborhood on May 1, according to William Hoyt, urban planner for the Department of Development.

The application stated that the planners would make a comprehensive study of one Columbus problem area, coordinate the existing social services in that area and involve local citizens in planning their own neighborhood.

The Model Neighborhood Study Area encompasses 2.56 square miles. The western boundary is the eastern leg of the Innerbelt, the southern boundary is the East Freeway, the eastern boundary is Alum Creek and the northern boundary is the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The various social services presently involved in problem areas, such as the Welfare Department and the Unemployment Agency, presently work independently from a central location. The Model Neighborhood Study proposes to involve the social services directly with the citizens of this area by having branches of these services in the model neighborhood, Hoyt said.

The study plan does not include the elimination of slums through clearance, Hoyt emphasized.

"Little thought was given to the social aspect of slum clearance 10 years ago, and there were many complaints that we (urban planners) were just moving the slums from one area to another," Hoyt said. "Now we try not to upset the social structure of the neighborhood by tearing it down. We find that many of the houses would be in good shape with some improvements, which will be provided by the grant."

In applying for the grant, urban planners had to state what the social, economic and physical problems of the neighborhood were, what the city proposed to do about them, and through what administrative means the city proposed to solve them.

The goals of the Comprehensive Model Neighborhood include rebuilding or revitalizing large slum and blighted areas, expanding housing, expanding job and income opportunities, reducing dependence on welfare payments, and improving educational facilities and programs.

Other goals include combating disease and ill health, reducing the incidence of crime and delinquency, enhancing recreational and cultural opportunities, establishing better access between home and jobs, and improving living conditions in general for the people in these areas.

'Journal' Chief Dies

By L. M. SOLOMON

Memorial services for Bernard Kilgore, the man who changed The Wall Street Journal from a small financial newspaper into the nation's only national daily, will be held at the First Presbyterian Church, Princeton, N. J., at 2 p.m. today.

Kilgore died late Tuesday night after a long illness. He was 59.

Kilgore was born in Albany, Indiana, Nov. 9, 1903, where his father, Tecumseh Kilgore, was superintendent of schools, and his mother, the former Lavina Elizabeth Bodenborn, was from a farm family in the area. He grew up in South Bend, Ind., his father having moved there to enter the life insurance business. He was graduated from De Pauw University in June, 1929, and went to work for The Wall Street Journal. In a career that spanned 38 years, he was a reporter, a copy-desk editor, a Washington correspondent, political columnist, managing editor and general manager before he was named company president in 1945, at the age of 36. He became chairman of the board in March, 1966.

Kilgore was the dominant figure in Dow Jones & Co., Inc., the parent corporation, during the past quarter of a century. He was responsible for the creation of The National Observer, the nation's first national weekly newspaper; for the growth of Barron's, a leading financial weekly; and for the extension of the Dow Jones News Service into a world wide supplier of business and financial news.

Kilgore was a crusader for brevity, style and excellence on his own newspaper and in journalism as a whole. He always proudly described his occupation as "newspaperman."

Hints of '1984' In Russia Today

In an ironic postscript to history, Stalin's daughter, Svetlana Alliluyeva, is being officially erased from the Soviet memory with the same 1984-like technique perfected by her father.

All trace of Svetlana has been removed from the only memorial left to her father, the Stalin Museum in Gori, the dictator's birthplace. Even a photograph of Svetlana with her two brothers was redone to eliminate Svetlana.

This pathetic attempt by the Soviet regime to hide from the implied criticism of Svetlana's departure might be comic except that it is a frightening reminder of an era of repression in Russia that has apparently not quite passed.

With the post-Stalinist "thaw" in the creative world and other much-heralded liberalizations reportedly taking place within the Soviet system, there was hope that even Russia, the totalitarian state, might escape Orwell's nightmare world of the future.

But, the government clerks who are busy clipping references to Svetlana from the history books and retouching her out of official photographs bear a close resemblance to the clerks in 1984's Ministry of Truth who spent their lives rewriting history to meet the whims of their rulers.

As long as a government is, like Russia, so sensitive to criticism that it must edit history to "protect" its citizens from the truth, it cannot be considered liberal, progressive, or free.

The View From Here
Boy Doll Stirs Controversy

By ROCHELLE M. SCHEPPS
Chief Editorial Writer

A controversy is being raised by mothers across the country. This time it's not about The Pill. It's about The Doll.

The doll, called "Little Brother," is a four-pound, 21-inch cuddly chubby toy for the two-to-five age group. It is an anatomically correct model of Andrea del Verrocchio's statue of an angel in the Palazzo della Signoria in Florence, Italy. It sells for $19.95.

But it isn't the cost that mothers are upset about. It's the fact that the doll, a model of a four-month-old baby boy, comes complete with male four-month-old genitals.

Little Brother came to this country from its birth in France as "Petit Frere" through Creative Playthings of Princeton, N.J., a pioneer in the design of intellectually stimulating toys.

The general manager of Creative Playthings saw Little Brother at the Toy Fair in Nuremberg, Germany last March and acquired the right to sell the toy in the United States.

Little Brother's arrival here started the controversy. Opposition centered in Norwood, Ohio, a suburb of Cincinnati, where women have formed the Citizens Committee to Protest Little Brother Doll. The committee has sent one thousand letters of protest to government officials, churches, clubs, department stores and citizens urging a firm stand against the "obscene toy" in a "campaign against this outrageous attempt to invade the playworld of children."

The committee is urging opposition to the sale of the doll and, if necessary, the boycott of 51 retail stores carrying the doll. The committee is "confident that many Americans like us are shocked and outraged by this flagrant display of sex on a child's toy."

Not only housewives are upset. A Lazarus Department Store spokesman came to their defense. He said of Little Brother, "It is not the kind of doll a normal housewife would order for her children." He estimated about 40,000 Central Ohioans receive the Creative Playthings' catalog and maybe four or five people have asked to order the doll.

Central Ohioans, in his view, must be normal while New Yorkers, whose stores have had to reorder Little Brother because of requests, are not. And the Swedes, who have bought 4,000 dolls, are the most abnormal of all.

Authorities, however, do not agree with the Cincinnati housewives and the Larus spokesman. They say Little Brother is a "perfectly natural play doll unless adult reaction makes it unnatural play."

A clinical professor of pediatrics at Cornell University Medical School, an authority on sex education for young children, said a doll like this should be very helpful because it is very important for little children to know the differences between boys and girls. Parents don't have to worry about a doll like this causing sexual excitement.

A British psychiatrist said there is no risk at all of shocking children with this doll. They will find it normal. From 18 to 20 months, all babies start to identify different parts of the body. From a very early age they realize there is a difference in sex. They are intrigued and interested in this, not shocked.

"There is no reason at all to hide such things from them," he said. "It is the parents who may be sensitive. It is their prejudices that will have to go."

Experts feel the problem is with the parents. Adults look at things through their own eyes which is wrong. They should look at things through the eyes of their children.

Experts believe a similar girl doll would be extremely useful. A psychologist, herself a married woman, said if Little Brother and a female counterpart were standard equipment in kindergarten, some of the sex education which more and more states are legislating into curriculums could be started in the natural easy way it should be.

The current catalog of Creative Playthings which distributes the doll states, "The surprising fact is not that there is such a doll now, but rather that one has never been made before."

Save the Ducks

Now that the temperatures are dropping and the snow is falling, the time has come to bring out this petty, but humanistic, point. There are three ducks in Mirror Lake that appear rather uncomfortable in the cold weather.

It is now time for these ducks to be removed and placed in a warmer environment. We feel that the Lantern, as the speaker of the campus, can contact the proper authorities. We hope this uncomfortable problem is relieved as soon as possible.

Don't Believe Reds

Come on, now, Mr. Noerager, what's all this jazz about a Communist satellite here in the United States? The USSR can't even control Albania, let alone a Communist United States! If there were a Communist takeover here in the mightiest economic power in the world, and the governing were done in Moscow, wouldn't that be a bit like the tail wagging the dog? A Communist USA would be ruled from the USA, Mr. Noerager, by citizens of the USA. I'd rather not get into the possibilities of the Communist party in the United States, an organization one tenth of one per cent the size of the Boy Scouts, taking over the USA. It's not worth the trouble. Just don't believe everything the Communists tell you, Mr. Noerager. They're just a bunch of liars.

Worker A Stand-off

Sorry to be so late getting into the game, but the vaunted "distribution system" for the YAF takeoff on the Worker faltered in my case, and I've just now seen a copy.

As far as I can tell, it's another stand-off. The historic positions of the far left and the far right as one barren of wit, insight, self-knowledge, and a light touch have not been altered by the vacuous drool that the YAF gnomes dribbled over the campus.

Discovery

As the world shrinks and differences vanish, the wisest young women come to the same school of thought about fashion.

No matter where they're from, they discover that they haven't started to be "finished" till they know about John Meyer.

At colleges all over America, the girl talk is about John Meyer's hundreds of niceties to wear now and after college—in this country or the world at large.

It's about the blending and matching of John Meyer coats, dresses, skirts, slacks, sweaters and accessories, the like of which is without equal.

It's about the exciting new John Meyer niceties that are now being shown this Fall at discerning stores everywhere.

Sinatra's in Miami

"Tony Rome," directed by Gordon Douglas, starring Frank Sinatra, Jill St. John, and Sue Lyon. At Loew's Ohio and Town & Country Cinema.

By MIKE CLARK
Lantern Reviewer

Nancy sings the title song as the old man swigs a Budweiser (his TV sponsor, you know), and the viewer gets ready for still another in-the-family Sinatra picture. Only this time around, Frank is trying harder than usual, the dialogue rings with wisecracks and racy double entendres, and the supporting cast is full of good actors.

Tony Rome is a Miami private eye who lives on a boat named the "Straight Pass," an item he picked up in a crap game. He plays the horses, charms the chicks, and shoots fast—all attributes of most paperback book detectives.

If George Montgomery or Gardner McKay were playing Tony, this film might be seen first-run at the drive-ins, but Frank, teeth intact, is in command of the role, making for a pretty entertaining 110 minutes.

Both the character and film "Tony Rome" resemble the character and film, "Harper." As for comparison, give the edge to the Paul Newman thriller, mainly because "Harper" was not plagued with Jill St. John, a stacked zombie, but a zombie nonetheless. Her almost needless part slows the pace of this film, and her acting really suffers in comparison with Sinatra's and the performances of such fine supporting players as Gena Rowlands, Richard Conte, and Simon Oakland.

The first part of "Tony Rome" is used to set its complicated plot in gear, and the film does not really get going until the second half. Then, there is always a fight, an argument, or some other out-of-the-ordinary bit, such as an absolutely great scene where Sinatra barges in on a beautiful stripper and her fat girlfriend at four in the morning.

"Tony Rome" is not the kind of movie that makes "Ten Best" lists at the year's end, but it is a pleasant way to spend an evening. So many people say that they only want to be "entertained" by movies, and then proceed to completely blow two hours on a Doris Day comedy or a Clint Eastwood Western. "Tony Rome," while admittedly too slick to be completely successful, does entertain. Ring-a-ding-ding.

Hallowed tradition of "pinning" a girl is up-dated by Sprite bottle caps.

According to an independent survey (we took it ourselves), a startling new practice is becoming widespread on some college campuses.

Suddenly, fraternity men are no longer "pinning" the lovely young things that catch their eye.

Instead, they reach for a bottle of tart, tingling Sprite—and proceed to "cap" the object of their affections.

Why has this come about? Perhaps because of what happens when you go through the ceremony of opening a bottle of Sprite. It fizzes! Roars! Buzzes! Tingles! Bubbles!

All of which makes for a much more moving moment than to simply "pin" a girl.

Then, too, the intimacy of two people engaged in the act of opening a bottle of Sprite in itself leads to strong emotional involvement.

Capped off, of course, by the sharing of a few moments of delicious abandon. (Tasting the tingling tartness of Sprite, that is.)

The beauty of the idea is that if the course of true love does not run smooth, you don't have to go to the trouble of getting back your pin.

You just buy another bottle of Sprite.

'A Little for All' From Top Comics

By EVELYN LEWIS
Lantern Reviewer

A little something for everybody was the aura surrounding the Wednesday opening of Tony Sandler and Ralph Young at the Maramor.

The duo had very little room on stage as approximately two-thirds of the space was occupied by a 12 piece band, but then you don't need much room to sing. The space limitation did seem to hamper the clowning though it came across well in spite of the difficulty.

Their first number was "Cabaret," with Young singing the English and Sandler interrupting, following and harmonizing in French. A statement by Young that he "don't know nothing about French" was countered by Sandler's statement that he didn't know anything about English either. A French lesson followed which would present a blow to the minds of University French instructors and students. To cringe or to laugh was the question of the evening, and raucous laughter was the answer.

An international "Bill Bailey" was the highlight of the evening. This presentation included a French version, complete with Can Can, and English version, pleading for William Bailey's return; a Swiss version, Nashville Tennessee's interpretation and many more. The last foreign job on poor Bill was by far the best and came straight from Tel Aviv.

They had a relaxed and spontaneous manner but a great deal of work is evident in their musical numbers. Perfect synchronization during simultaneous French or Italian and English versions of the same song, or entirely different tunes, looks easy.

The confused linguists will be appearing through Nov. 21 at 8:30 and 11 p.m. Reservations are necessary and there is a minimum cover charge.

Champ Says 'Walking' Hardest Part of Chess

By JENNIE BUCKNER

Would-be chess champions should start building up their leg muscles as well as perfecting their checkmating abilities.

Mitchel Sweig, former member of the U.S. international student chess team and physics research associate at Ohio State, said at exhibition games, "the hardest part is all the walking."

In a typical exhibition tournament a chess master may play as many as 20 challengers at one time. After each move, he goes down the line of chess boards to the next challenger.

"A player is allotted two-and-a-half hours for 40 moves and can spend this any way he wishes," he explained. "When players use too much time mulling over first moves, the end of the game goes as quickly as a ping-pong match," he said.

Sweig, 28, said he became interested in chess 15 years ago when he received a chess set for his birthday. The interest developed into skill and in 1956 he played "board one," the top position, on the University of Chicago's chess team.

The team won the national student team championship that year. In 1958 they again captured the title with Sweig as captain.

In 1963 he qualified for the U.S. international student team and traveled with them to a tournament in Yugoslavia and on exhibitions throughout Europe.

The next year the U.S. Chess Federation, which was responsible for team selection, resumed the practice of appointing the six team members instead of holding qualifying matches.

"I sort of had my foot in the door from the previous year," Sweig said, "and talked my way onto the team."

CHESS CHAMP—Mitchel Sweig, former member of the U.S. international student chess team and physics research associate of Ohio State, considers his next move.

World News Briefs

Execution Postponed

SAIGON (AP)—Three convicted Viet Cong terrorists condemned to die before a firing squad in a Saigon prison at dawn Friday got an eleventh-hour reprieve from Premier Nguyen Can Loc.

Communist broadcasts Thursday had threatened reprisals by the Viet Cong if the prisoners were executed.

American authorities expressed concern to South Vietnamese officials when they learned of the arrangements to execute the three.

Two such executions in 1965 were followed by Viet Cong announcements that they had killed American prisoners in retaliation.

UN Calms Cyprus

NICOSIA, CYPRUS (AP)—U. N. peacekeeping forces Thursday stood between feuding Greek and Turkish Cypriots on this Mediterranean island to enforce a cease-fire worked out after a seven-hour battle with tanks, artillery and other heavy weapons.

On the mainland, tensions triggered by the clash Wednesday ran high in Greece and Turkey. Both nations placed their armed forces on alert and closed their main airports for several hours.

Right to Fail Stressed

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP)—Richard G. Hatcher, a Negro elected mayor of Gary, Ind., over opposition of his own Democratic party, told a convention of young Democratic Clubs of America Thursday this nation will not reach "racial-political maturity" until a Negro public official has the right to fail as well as succeed.

"What people seem to expect is that we are infallible," Hatcher said. "We have to meet the standards and criteria not expected of other people."

Sanction Rule Passed

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee Thursday unanimously approved a resolution saying the United States should not get involved in any future conflicts like Vietnam without specific congressional sanction.

The committee also by a unanimous 14-0 vote, with five members absent, approved a second resolution urging President Johnson to make a new effort to get action by the United Nations Security Council to try to end the war.

Tau Beta Pi Plans Initiation Smoker

Tau Beta Pi, a national engineering honor society, will hold an initiation-smoker Sunday at 1:30 p.m. in the Battelle Memorial Institute cafeteria. All members and prospective initiates are invited.

dent's office to the East Room for the presentation of the Medal of Honor to S. Sgt. Charles B. Morris of Galax, Va.

U.S. Forces Knock Out Hidden Mortar Position

SAIGON (AP)—U.S. forces Thursday launched air assaults on jungle mountains rimming Dak To and knocked out a hidden Communist mortar position that had bombarded the highlands stronghold with deadly accuracy. In North Vietnam, U.S. jets bombed a previously untouched shipyard in the big port of Haiphong.

A North Vietnamese news agency report indicated the North Vietnamese capital of Hanoi also may have been under attack in Thursday's raids. It claimed six American planes were shot down Thursday, two of them over Hanoi.

Units of the American 4th Infantry Division made a helicopter assault on Hill 1338 overlooking Dak To to tighten security around their base, which sits in a bowl rimmed by mountains. They ran into light sniper fire, but the Communists chose not to make a serious challenge.

Some American officers felt the North Vietnamese might be pulling back after two weeks of bitter fighting in which they lost over 700 dead by official count but killed at least 121 American defenders and wounded 606 other U.S. soldiers.

"There are indications they may be withdrawing back into Laos," said Maj. Gen. William Peers, a former guerrilla fighter who commands the 4th infantry. But he added quickly "I expect another war to be fought to the north of here. That's where the North Vietnamese 34th Regiment is."

In North Vietnam, U.S. Navy Skyhawk jets from the carrier Coral Sea took advantage of a slight break in the monsoon weather to bomb the barge-repair facility named Haiphong Shipyard No. 2, located one mile west of the city's center and 1.4 miles from its main docks.

Revision Is Opposed

tions for revision of the convention draft would:

• Make the CSA a court of appeals over the Student Court, which the convention defined as having final authority over student disputes.

• Acknowledge the "possible need for regulations or policies that would apply to men only or to women only," though the convention called for "general principles of equal treatment" of men and women students.

• Recognize the University's authority to require students to reside in dormitories, although the convention stated, unequivocally, that students should live where they choose.

• Spell out student rights during University disciplinary investigations, though the convention had defined only "the right to written notice of specific charges."

The added details in the latter recommendation would give students a less elaborate safeguard than U.S. citizens are provided during criminal investigation, according to Maurice Kelman, associate professor of law.

At the beginning of the meeting, several assemblymen assailed the assembly for what they considered inaction.

Chairman pro tempore Ira B. Sully declared, "If the Student Assembly has accomplished anything, it has been to give the undergraduate student government a bad image, because the assembly hasn't accomplished a damn thing."

Later in the meeting, the assembly assigned priority to several planned investigations. A probe into student book prices is under way.

To follow, in order, will be investigations of: student fees, required academic courses, relations between students and the city of Columbus, the University libraries, the effect of the Selective Service System on student life, campus parking, food prices at the Ohio Union and racial discrimination in off-campus housing rentals.

Siegel has appeared at only one other assembly meeting this year. His administrative assistant, G. Timothy Marks, has acted as his spokesman. On one occasion, Siegel considered sending a tape recorder with a message from him to the assembly.

Several assemblymen have blamed what they consider inadequate communication with Siegel as a reason for "the assembly's inaction."

Siegel smiled and told the assembly: "When I was a little boy I wanted everybody to think I had close ties with the underworld so nobody would mess around and bother me."

"That's not true now. If you ever need to see me, I'm always in my office in the Union."

Assembly Chairman Reginald S. Jackson Jr. remarked that the majority of assembly members had probably never seen the assembly office.

Cincy Frosh Halfback Dies

CINCINNATI (AP)—Halfback Steve McKee, leading scorer on the University of Cincinnati freshman football team, collapsed and died Thursday while running laps at Nippert Stadium.

Teammates said McKee, a graduate of Cincinnati Mariemont High School, suddenly slumped to the ground and stopped breathing. All efforts at resuscitation failed. The 18-year-old youth was pronounced dead at Good Samaritan Hospital.

The Cincinnati freshman team had completed its season and had held only light workouts, with no contact, since then.

McKee scored two touchdowns to pace the unbeaten Cincinnati team in scoring in its three games this season. A 180-pound flankerback, he tallied the touchdown in the team's most recent 7-0 victory over the yearlings of Miami University of Ohio.
