Police investigating man for creating student IDs

Students with false identification receive money to take math exams

By Michelle R. Weber
Lantern staff writer

Campus police are investigating a man who may be helping students falsify identification cards for the purpose of taking math examination credit tests.

Police believe a local man may be playing the role of an ID broker. A student contacts the man to find another student to take an EM credit test for him.

The broker recruits a student to take the tester's Social Security card and birth certificate, have an ID made with his picture on it, and pose as the tester.

Campus police learned of the possible scam from a student who responded to an advertisement in the Lantern looking for people to "help test out of Math 130 and 131."

The student, who wants to remain anonymous, said he thought the ad was recruiting tutors to help prepare for these tests. He said he called the number and gave the man basic information about himself and his qualifications.

The student said that the man told him he would get the book and syllabus about two weeks in advance. The pay would range from $200 to $300 for two nights.

The man explained that the student would take another student's Social Security card and birth certificate to have an ID made with the student's picture on it. It would be identical to the test taker's ID with the exception of the picture.

After receiving the false ID, the student would go to the testing center and pose as the person originally trying to get credit for the course.

The student said the man assured that there would be no trouble because the student would be posing for someone from a university other than Ohio State.

OSU Police Deputy Chief Richard Harp would only comment on the investigation to say that police are trying to uncover new leads and trace the ones they have and the process is slow.

Judith Berenstein, a counselor at the math department, said that an OSU student who wants to test out of a class must complete several standard steps.

First, the student applies for permission from the department to test for EM credit. The department verifies the eligibility of the student and provides a test referral form if the student has never received a mark for the course.

A referral card is good for the whole quarter, so students may call the testing center any time that is convenient for them to take the exam.

At the center, the student must present a signed referral card from the math department. There are signatures on file at the center to check the validity of the form.

Paul Simmons, associate registrar, said the students show the test administrator their referral form and a picture ID before the exam. The completed exam is returned to the math department for grading, and the department notifies the student of the results.

Berenstein said that this system would allow students to use false ID cards because no person works at both the math department and testing center.

If an OSU student gives the referral card, Social Security card and birth certificate to the man, he can give all of it to the hired

Alternative detour plans sought

By Lois Wright
Lantern staff writer

St. Stephen's Episcopal church was filled Wednesday with about 250 angry and concerned residents, business owners and state representatives at a public meeting for the proposed I-71 detour plan.

Many in the crowd booed and hissed at city and state officials as they tried to explain the detour plan.

Others carried signs reading "Stop the Indianola 500."

Mark Hatch, university area commissioner, paneled the questions and ideas of the audience.

New information from the city and state, revealed in the meeting, did not satisfy many in the crowd.

"I still have lots of questions," said one Indianola Avenue resident.

Joe Ridgeway, city engineer, said the original detour plan developed by the Ohio Department of Transportation and the city traffic engineers had been dropped that afternoon. He said a new plan would be developed from meetings between the area commissions and the city and state representatives.

The plan, which was expected to begin in 1990, originally called for rerouting southbound traffic from I-71 onto Indianola Avenue at Cooke Road. Traffic would then go south on Indianola to Hudson Street, cross over to Summit Street, proceed south to I-670 and back to I-71.

The northbound lanes of I-71, which will undergo construction, would have traffic rerouted to the southbound lanes.

"We just decided this afternoon to no longer pursue this plan and to go back to the drawing boards," Ridgeway said.

The commissions represent Clintonville, Italian and Victorian villages, North and South Linden and the university area.

The commissions will meet on Monday at 5:30 p.m. in the city council conference room. The meeting is not open to the public.

"At this meeting, we will give the commissions one week to come up with alternative plans to then address to us at the end of next week," Ridgeway said.

Ridgeway said city residents have to realize the project must be done soon.

He said the time schedule the city is calling for implies that the plan be ready by the first part of May.

"The people of Columbus have to realize that this interstate has to be repaired," he said. "It is filled with potholes and bad rutting."

Hatch offered some alternatives to the plan.

He said using the other lane of I-71 or diverting the traffic to I-270 at the I-71 interchange should also be considered.

Ridgeway said traffic cannot be maintained on the highway during construction.

Most of the audience was concerned about the plan because it diverts interstate traffic through residential areas.

If the detour plan were implemented as planned, 383 semi-trucks would drive down Indianola

Battleship explosion kills 47 U.S. crewmen

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A huge gun turret packed with gunpowder exploded in flames on the battleship USS Iowa near Puerto Rico Wednesday, killing at least 47 sailors in one of the worst naval disasters since the Vietnam War.

The death toll from the accident, during a gunnery exercise, "could go higher, but we don't know at this point," said Lt. Cmdr. Steve Burnett, a spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet, based in Norfolk.

The number of crewmen injured had not been determined, he said.

Two ships participating in the same exercise collided Wednesday afternoon about 500 miles east of Jacksonville, Fla., causing one minor injury, said Archie Galloway, a civilian public affairs officer at Norfolk.

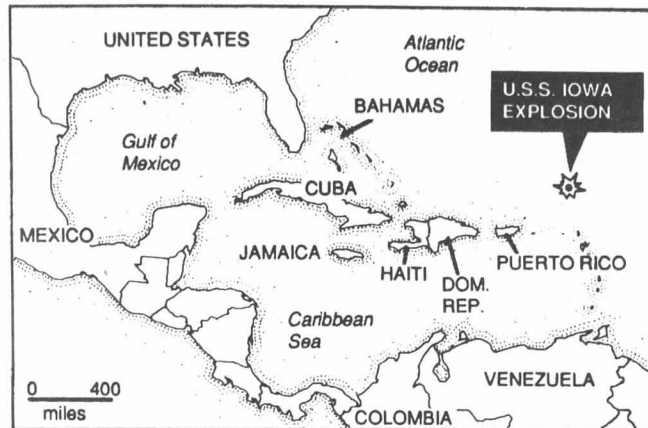

Neither the USS Platt, a fleet oiler, nor the frigate USS Tripp was in danger of sinking, Galloway said. The ships were not in the same area as the Iowa.

Iowa crewmen put out a fire in the gun turret, which supports three of the ship's nine 16-inch guns, flooded several compartments holding explosives as a precaution, and declared the ship out of danger, said Lt. Cmdr. Chris Baumann, another spokesman for the fleet.

The fire was in the second of two forward turrets, at the loading position of the middle gun, said Bruce Nason, a Navy spokesman at the Pentagon. There also is a turret at the back of the Iowa.

It took 80 minutes after the 10 a.m. explosion to extinguish the blaze.

The Iowa rendezvoused at mid-afternoon with the aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea, which carries three doctors and has full medical facilities, Baumann said. Helicopters from the Coral Sea brought medical equipment to the Iowa and transferred some injured crewmen to the carrier.

"The ship has not sent a list of the wounded. They have other things more pressing to worry about," said Lt. Russ Grier, an Atlantic Fleet spokesman.

The Iowa will proceed Thursday to Roosevelt Roads, a Navy base in Puerto Rico, said Cmdr. Robert Franzmann of the Atlantic Fleet. The 46-year-old ship, one of the four largest in the fleet, is based at Norfolk.

Navy officials were personally notifying relatives of the deaths, Baumann said.

The explosion occurred during a gunnery exercise about 330 miles northeast of Puerto Rico, Burnett said. The ship's guns were being test fired and the turret was "full of gunpowder," Baumann said. The 16-inch guns can fire 2,700-pound shells a distance of 23 miles.

A gun turret is normally occupied by 27 people, but can hold 60 or 70 people, Baumann said, but,

"We don't know how many people were in there at the time."

Mark Newton, a former Marine who spent a week as a guest on the Iowa in 1987 and now is curator of the permanently docked USS Massachusetts in Fall River, Mass., explained how a shell is loaded.

After the shell is placed in the gun, a door is opened to the gun room from the powder hoist room, he said. Cylindrical powder bags, containing about 110 pounds of powder, are then rammed in behind the shell and what is called a breech plug is sealed to prevent the leakage of powder gases.

Newton said there were "at least five" stages in the firing process when the explosion could have occurred but would not speculate further.

The training exercise to improve fleet readiness began April 13 and involved 19,000 people aboard 29

Blacks to 'walk' with police

By Juli Klyce
Lantern staff writer

The Columbus Division of Police and the local branch of the NAACP announced a joint program Wednesday aimed at improving relations between law enforcement and the black community.

Sybil McNabb, president of the Columbus National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said although the program is a step in the right direction, she still is concerned about police discrimination.

"I think there's discrimination in the City of Columbus in every department," McNabb said.

Discrimination toward black youth, among other concerns, is the reason why the NAACP has agreed to become involved in the program, McNabb said.

The program, "Walk in Their Shoes," will begin in May and will last 12 months. The local branch of the NAACP will recruit 52 leaders from the black community to participate in the two-part program, Police Chief Dwight Joseph said.

The first part of the program involves the police department's Citizen Ride-Along. The participant will ride in a one-officer vehicle for anywhere from two to eight hours and observe the daily routine of an officer on patrol, Joseph said.

During the second part of the program, the participants will watch a simulation movie called "Shoot, Don't Shoot." They are given a gun loaded with wax bullets and must decide whether or not to shoot when faced with a variety of situations, he said.

Wright awaits judgment

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats, looking warily toward the task of judging Speaker Jim Wright's ethics, have heard his ethics and now turn their ears to their constituents.

"When this hits the (House) floor, it's not going to be about justice," said Rep. Ron Dellums, D-Calif. "It's going to be about how it will play in Peoria."

Members began spreading across the nation to their home districts after the House adjourned Tuesday for a long Passover holiday weekend.

Before they left, Wright worked hard to fortify Democrats for the inevitable onslaught of questions they will face during the town meetings, picnics and barbecues of hometown politics.

Wright, knowing he had to talk to his members before they hit the road, had committee chairmen cancel any meetings that conflicted with a special caucus of all House Democrats.

He spoke for 40 minutes in the closed session, disputing the ethics committee charges that he violated House rules in 69 instances involving his unusual book publishing deal and his benefits from a business partnership.

"I told them I intend to fight and I intend to win," he said.

Supporters were charged up. "There's a lot of outrage about how this whole process has become a Frankenstein" that's consuming Congress, said Rep. James Scheuer, D-N.Y. "There's never any allegation that he did anything with corrupt intent."

Rep. Joseph Kennedy, D-Mass., a second-term member, said Wright's speech was "a very important first step in gaining the confidence of the members."

Rep. Bill Alexander, D-Ark., said he would remain a staunch supporter of the speaker unless the facts show he did something wrong. Constituents might not understand at first, he said.

"You get beyond the beltway, what have they got besides a perception?" he asked. For some members, public perception would be the only issue, he said with a tone of disapproval.

"You know who they are," he said, licking his finger and raising it in the springtime air.

In fighting a charge that he accepted improper gifts from Fort Worth developer George Mallick, a longtime friend and business partner who the committee suggested had interest in legislation, Wright has focused his defense on the $18,000 salary his wife received from the partnership — a salary the ethics committee labeled a gift.

Sanese Weather

Chet shouted out the window with joy, "It will be sunny and warm all day, with highs near 65. Tonight it will become cloudy with lows near 45."

With the promise of sunny skies, Chet decided to surprise his main squeeze with a picnic featuring her favorite Sanese menu items.

He quickly changed over all his dollar bills and went about the agonizing process of picking the right stuff.

What would it be? the Monte Cristo, with the sumptuous combination of ham, turkey and processed Swiss cheese on French toast, or would he become the apple in her eye for selecting a dinner entree for just 10 cents more?

This was quite a tough decision considering the dinner selections — Spanish Swiss Steak and the tuna croquette with mac and cheese.

After deciding to go with a Dagwood and Sidewinder, Chet rounded out the meal with a portion of crabmeat salad, two hard boiled eggs, BBQ pork rinds and two peanut butter parfaits.

Armed with his gym bag full of Sanese, the Buffalo plaid blanket, both "Dirty Dancing" soundtracks and his clarinet, Chet was ready for the picnic on the shores of Mirror Lake.

Joseph said the movie, which is preceded by lectures on firearm safety and department policy, is a part of regular officer training. He said the movie will give the participants a better feel for the different situations police sometimes face.

McNabb said the program will open lines of communication between the two groups. She said she hopes the program will establish responsibility, and positive actions and reactions.

McNabb said the rift between law enforcement and the black community has been created by ignorance and closed lines of communication. She said "Walk in Their Shoes" is step one and more activities may be added to the program.

Samuel Gersham Jr., of the Columbus Urban League, said the program is a good move forward, although he said the problems between the two groups go far beyond what the program does.

Joseph said the two groups need to stop communicating through the media and open up a two-way street of communication. Joseph said safety is a main concern with the ride-along program. The one-officer cars do not normally get into dangerous situations without another vehicle there, he said.

The rider gets to pick where and when they want to ride. He said participants sign a waiver of liability and undergo a background check before riding in the cruiser.

McNabb, mother of two, said black youths' respect for authority is a concern but she said she also believes respect is earned, not learned.

She and Joseph said the program is a result of lengthy meetings between the Columbus NAACP and the Police department during which both were able to express their opinions and concerns.

Avenue between 12 noon and 1 p.m., said Dave Leland, of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio. He said this would amount to one truck every 19 seconds.

Leland said the traffic fatality rate on streets in the city is 12 and a half times more likely than the rate on an interstate.

Joyce Bushman, a university area commissioner, asked about the proposal of a traffic mitigation committee.

Ridgeway said the city is currently working on implementing this type of committee to come up with ideas for decreasing traffic flow. He said possible solutions would be van and car pools.

Residents questioned the driving force behind the amount of time it will take for the construction.

"The construction plan is expected to take two years, but the detour would only take eight months," Ridgeway said.

Earlier this week, Mayor Dana G. Rinehart told Service Director Gisela Rosenbaum to come up with an alternative plan.

Rinehart lives in Clintonville, one of the areas opposing the detour route.

test taker. The hired test taker can then have a student I.D. made and go to the testing center with the referral card and never be suspected of impersonating an OSU student.

To have an I.D. made at Ohio State, students must show their current paid fee receipt and driver's license or other form of picture I.D. If the student has no other form of identification, the student may have an I.D. made based on a Social Security number and a paid fee sticker.

"The only verification is made by checking the signatures on file at the center with whoever signed the card here (at the math department)," Berenstein said.

She said, it may be possible to catch a student who has someone else take an exam for them, but she knew of no such case at Ohio State.

Berenstein said the math department goes over each test with the individual to help determine partial credit points.

"If students can't tell me how they got an answer or their handwriting is different from the exam, I'd be suspicious," Berenstein said.

If students are caught using a false I.D. or actually allowing someone to take a test for them, they are referred to the Board of Academic Misconduct.

Tami Stone, secretary for the Committee on Academic Misconduct, said, "After an instructor refers a student to us, the student is scheduled for a hearing. From that, the committee decides what happens."

She said that each case is treated individually, depending on circumstances, and punishment may range from probation to dismissal.

U.S. ships, three allied ships and shore-based aircraft, Baumann said.

There were 1,600 people aboard the ship, including Vice Adm. Jeremiah Johnson, commander of U.S. 2nd Fleet.

In Washington, President Bush was asked during a photo session with congressional leaders to comment on the explosion.

"It is a great tragedy and a matter of terrible sadness," he said.

"I will take this opportunity to express my regrets, especially to the families of the kids that were killed," Bush said. He called it a "terrible tragedy to lose a lot of fine young lives."

In addition to its massive 16-inch guns, the 887-foot Iowa is equipped with 12 five-inch guns and Tomahawk and Harpoon missiles. It was the model for three other Iowa-class battleships and is among the most heavily armored of U.S. warships.

The Iowa and its sister ships, the New Jersey, the Missouri and the Wisconsin, are the largest battleships ever built except for two Japanese ships of the World War II era, the Yamato and the Musashi.

The Iowa was built during World War II, mothballed until the Korean War, and mothballed again. It was modernized and reactivated in 1984, at a cost of $409 million, and returned home last year after service escorting Kuwaiti tankers in the Persian Gulf.

THE LANTERN FIRST ANNUAL ESSAY WRITING CONTEST

In his State of the University Address last October, The Ohio State University President Edward H. Jennings described the university as "eminently prepared for this globally competitive society." He concluded that speech by saying, "We are a university essential to the success of a knowledge-based economy...We are a university of vision and opportunity...We are the model for the American university of the 21st-century."

The topic of your essay is how a large university like The Ohio State University responds to the challenges President Jennings has provided.

As a starting point, your essay might address questions like: How does the university prepare students for a "globally competitive society"? Is a university "essential to the success of a knowledge based economy"? How is The Ohio State University "a model for the American university of the 21st century"?

The essay is limited to 500 words, double-spaced, typewritten or submitted from a word processor. Handwritten essays will not be considered.

All essays must be received in the Lantern Business Office, Room 281-E Journalism, 242 W. 18th Avenue, Columbus, OH 43210 by 5 pm Friday, April 28th.

The judges will select a first place winner and three honorable mentions. The first place winner's essay will appear on the editorial page of the Lantern one day in May, together with a photograph of the author.

All winners must be OSU students who will be required to submit proof of student status before receiving their awards. The first place winner will receive $150 and each honorable mention will receive $50. Branch campus students are encouraged to submit essays.

Essays will be judged on originality of ideas, expression and development of thought, and proper grammatical usage. Employees of the Lantern or students currently enrolled in Journalism 421.01, 421.02, or 421.03 are ineligible.

Individuals from the following entities will serve as judges: Lantern Editorial Staff, English Department, College of Medicine, College of Engineering, College of Business and Long's Bookstore.

Solidarity activist surprised by recent union legalization

By Denise Affolter
Lantern staff writer

A Polish Solidarity activist, who was jailed for her work in the underground labor movement, discussed her role in the union's legalization and history at a meeting in the Journalism Building Wednesday.

Ewa Kulik said she is surprised the legalization came during the present regime.

"The agreement to legalize Solidarity was made by the same people who banned it," she said. "The re-legalization of Solidarity is a victory of independent society in Poland."

Her speech and visit to Ohio State were sponsored by the OSU chapter of Frontlash, a pro-labor union student organization affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

Adam Aufdencamp, OSU Frontlash president, said they wanted to bring Kulik here because she represents Solidarity in Poland.

COMMUNIST AUTHORITIES in Poland have not recognized Solidarity as a legal independent workers' union for the last seven years.

The final decree for legalization was given Monday by a three-judge panel completing the decision of Polish leader, Gen. Wo-jcich Jaruzelski, who is the same person who earlier banned Solidarity.

Kulik said her first initiative to support the Polish opposition movement was in May, 1977, when she was 19. She said it was "a moral impulse."

She said the 1970's was a period of apathy in which people were making money and were preoccupied with their own concerns.

"They pretended not to know about the persecution," she said.

WHEN SHE heard about a labor worker being beaten to death by the police she decided she could make a difference.

She became a leader of the Student Solidarity Committee, whose goal was to promote a student organization independent from the Communist party.

Kulik said she ran the Worker's Defense Committee's Information Bureau during the strike in Gdansk shipyard in August 1980, keeping a constant watch and passing news to Western media.

She later edited Warsaw's Solidarity newspaper.

From 1981 to 1986 she was underground running the Organizational Bureau of Warsaw's Solidarity headquarters. She said she established and maintained informational channels between Warsaw and other regions of the country, and organized meetings of the national underground Solidarity leadership.

KULIK WAS jailed for 14 weeks in 1986, charged with "aiding the conspiracy to overthrow the government." She was released under the national amnesty for political prisoners in September, 1986, she said.

She then became an open member of the Warsaw Solidarity Executive Committee.

Kulik is now studying contemporary American fiction at Boston University on a scholarship affiliated with the Robert F. Kennedy Human Rights Foundation.

She said she hopes to work as an official translator when she returns to Poland.

Rick Greszler, OSU Frontlash vice president, said the organization is comprised of young unionists and college students, and supports local labor unions and their activities.

IN ADDITION to educating people on the purposes of labor unions, Frontlash also supports social issues, such as Apartheid and Solidarity, Greszler said.

Riffe still undecided about political future

(AP) — Democratic House Speaker Vern Riffe is geared up to run for governor, with $2 million in the bank and commitments for $3 million more, but still has not made the decision to run, he said Wednesday.

Riffe, of Wheelersburg, promised a decision by Labor Day and said if he does not run for governor in 1990, he then will make up his mind by December whether to seek re-election to the House and an unprecedented ninth term as speaker.

"If I had to decide today (whether to run again for speaker), I would run," he said at an impromptu news conference where he spoke of future options but, with political finesse, kept them all open.

But there were some nuances:

- He has a commitment from a campaign adviser or campaign manager of national prominence. He refused to name the person but said he had run successful campaigns in Kentucky, Pennsylvania and New Jersey.
- He has worked out an arangement with a consulting firm that would handle his media campaign, and is being coached on how to improve his speaking style. In a Youngstown speech recently before about 400 people, "they said it was the best speech I have ever made," he said.

• He has the support from elected officials in several of Ohio's largest counties that apparently include northeast Ohio where Ohio's Democratic voters are heavily concentrated and are usually decisive in party primaries.

Democratic Gov. Richard Celeste is barred by law from seeking a third straight term next year, and has not endorsed a successor. Riffe has figured prominently in speculation for many months although recently there have been reports that his ambitions have cooled.

The speaker did mention a couple of negatives. "I'll be 65 in 1990. I have four children and seven grandchildren. I'd like to spend more time with my family," he said.

But he said, "I've done everything I have to do except that one thing (deciding to make the race). It's a very tough decision."

He said that he has had recent reassurances from two potential rivals for the nomination that they will not oppose him in the primary. Riffe did not name the rivals but nodded affirmatively when asked if he meant State Auditor Thomas Ferguson and Attorney General Anthony Celebrezze Jr.

Ferguson and Celebrezze have not been clear as to what understanding they had with Riffe. The speaker has insisted since late 1986 that they promised to step aside if he (the speaker) entered the race. Riffe said that while he didn't want "to get into that again," he has had the assurances repeated "within the past 30 days."

Celebrezze and Ferguson, meanwhile, have been raising money and indicating they will run for governor but have not made formal announcements.

Date rape myths addressed

By Sonia Kelly
Lantern staff writer

Mary, a college freshman, has been asked by Joe, a junior, to go out on a date. Mary is delighted to be asked out and says yes. They attend a party given by Joe's friends. On their way home, Joe tells Mary that he has to stop at his apartment to get something. He invites Mary in.

She decides that Joe is a nice guy and goes into his apartment. After they get in the apartment, Joe becomes very aggressive and tells Mary that he wants to have sex with her. Mary is startled at his request, but does not say no because she fears he might become angry and use unnecessary force to have get his way.

Joe rapes Mary and the incident is never reported because Mary thinks it is her fault because she agreed to go up to his apartment.

This scenario is typical of what happens to many college students said Marion Garbo-Todd, coordinator for the Community Outreach Project at Women Against Rape.

Garbo-Todd said her office receives about 200 calls per month on their rape crisis line from people who have been raped or seeking information about a rape victim's rights.

The issue of date rape is a topic that many students are interested in, said Sue Green, coordinator for Rape Education and Prevention Program. She said her office deals with physical and emotional abuse.

"If you said 'date rape' five years ago, people would look you in the face and say 'what are you talking about,'" she said.

Green said her office also focuses on date and acquaintance rape and the myths that surround these issues.

Green said acquaintance rape is between two people that know each other and date rape is between two people who have a dating relationship.

Some myths of date rape and acquaintance rape are that the act is usually committed by a black man or someone with a mental problem, Green said.

"In reality it is probably someone who you know of your same race; the guy sitting next to you, your boyfriend or your next door neighbor," she said.

The Office of Rape Education and Prevention, a division of the Office of Student Life, is sponsoring several programs this month that will discuss issues such as self-defense for women, rape prevention for black women, helping men understand what sexual violence is and what attitudes they can take to help decrease this trend, Green said.

The office does not have a 24-hour hotline, but students can call 292-0479 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. or the Rape Crisis Center at 221-4447 to discuss their concerns, Green said.

For further information on Women Against Rape call 291-9751.

Football walk-ons play for fun

After spending an enlightening afternoon with two unique individuals, I got a sense of what college football is supposed to be all about.

Allow me to introduce Allen DeGraffenreid and Brian Stablein.

DeGraffenreid and Stablein are two redshirt freshmen receivers vying for a spot on the Buckeye's roster this spring.

Forget the big-time coaches' salaries, the lucrative television contracts, the 'technological' changes in the way the game is played and the name brand shoes the players wear.

These guys bring the game back down to earth.

DeGraffenreid and Stablein are striking examples that, yes, there really are human beings behind all that equipment. Just ordinary teenagers, like the rest of us are or were. Remember?

They restore the neglected idea that, "Oh, yeah, sports are supposed to be fun aren't they?"

DeGraffenreid and Stablein still believe football is fun.

They have to believe it.

The two would not be practicing and getting banged up four days a week if they didn't. You see, they are of the virtually-extinct species known as walk-ons. Translation: no scholarship, no guarantee of getting to play, no sympathy if they're cut from the roster. Welcome to college football 1989.

So why bother? Stablein mentions something about pursuing dreams. DeGraffenreid says something about love of the game.

Naive? Perhaps. But certainly within reach of their goals.

Wide receiver coach Gene Huey, in fact, gave both players a big vote of confidence.

"Both those guys work pretty hard," Huey said. "They're positive individuals and they're working to improve daily. As they continue to practice the remainder of this spring, then hopefully at the conclusion of it, they will be much better football players going into next fall."

Better football players, but will they play, especially with letter-winners Jeff Graham, Bernard Edwards, Bobby Olive and another redshirt freshman, Greg Beatty, ahead of them on the depth chart?

Huey said no one has a lock on any position. He said he has been dissatisfied with the way all his receivers have been blocking. In addition there are "daily problems" the group needs to concentrate on, such as catching the ball consistently and running patterns more precisely.

So DeGraffenreid and Stablein have been working hard and keeping faith.

"It's just a challenge, just to try myself each day," DeGraffenreid said. "Get pumped up and go show the coach what I can do."

"I want to be ready to play, that's about it," Stablein said. "I hope to God they use me, but if they don't I can live with that, I guess."

Two humbler players might be hard to find, but don't let that fool you. Their actions on the field speak for themselves.

Stablein, at 6-foot-1 and 169 pounds, does not consider his size a factor. He is just as willing as the next guy to go down the risky middle of the field where mauling linebackers prowl.

"Sometimes, maybe if you take a shot, you kind of start thinking about it a little, but I usually don't think about it," Stablein said. "I usually concentrate on the ball as much as I can."

Taking a chance, both physically and philosophically, is what it's all about.

The 6-foot-2, 178-pound DeGraffenreid shares that attitude.

"Show the coaches you want to play and they'll find a spot for you," he said.

"I think I have a shot," Stablein said.

With attitudes such as these, it's hard to believe the Buckeyes will not find a spot for these two.

And maybe we as fans can learn a lesson from these guys. The moral is this: remember that there are a lot of DeGraffenreids and Stableins behind those scarlet and gray uniforms and that those players symbolize the spirit of the game. Let's not forget that they are human too.

Men's tennis team wins close match

By Leslie Mendelsohn
Lantern sports writer

The OSU men's tennis team defeated Ball State 5-4 Tuesday at the Jesse Owens Recreation Center West.

Ball State is ranked fifth in the region, while Ohio State is in the seventh spot. But the Buckeyes lead the series between the two schools 4-2.

Tuesday's match was the first of a seven-match homestand for Ohio State.

"We will use our home-court advantage in the upcoming matches," Coach John Daly said.

Freshman Ty Tucker, who was in the No. 1 spot, lost to Ball State's John Noble.

Junior Steve Miguel won in the third set against Stefano DeMarchi. The scores were 6-2, 3-6, 6-3.

Junior Kostis Glavas went into a tie-breaker set and defeated Brian DeVirgilio.

"I have lost the last few matches and I really wanted to win," Glavas said.

Glavas was down 4-2 in the second set.

"I got upset because it wasn't looking too good," he said. "I decided to stick to it and work harder. It eventually paid off."

Senior Chris Gatt played in the No. 6 spot against Mitch Turnbull and won 6-4, 6-1.

"It was easy," Gatt said. "He couldn't threaten me with anything."

Gatt did not have a strategy when he went into the match.

"I just had to keep the ball in play," he said. "He missed it a lot."

Senior Ted Glavas played a strong match, defeating Ball State's Mike Raymond 6-3, 6-0.

Senior Ulf Hartwig lost a singles match to Todd Kafka in the third set.

The Buckeyes went into the doubles matches ahead 4-2.

In the No. 1 doubles spot, juniors Miguel and Kevin Dibelius won in a tie-breaker set against Noble and DeMarchi.

Miguel and Dibelius' win sealed the day's match for Ohio State.

Gatt substituted for Hartwig in the No. 2 doubles spot and joined Buckeye junior Enrico Sartori. They lost 2-6, 6-4, 6-3.

"We won the first set and got up to 4-3 in the second," Gatt said. "It was at a crucial moment in the match when we collapsed."

A rally by Ball State's Mike Raymond and Kafka sent the Buckeye pair down to defeat.

"That is what hurt us the most," Gatt said. "We lost our concentration and intensity from then on and lost in the third set 6-3."

The Buckeyes now have a record of 12-7.

"It's great, but not real great," Daly said. "We really think we will be fine with the home matches and the fans coming out to see us."

A new tradition has started on the team. When a player wins a match, he is presented with an Ohio State baseball hat. However, the hat must be given back if the player loses a match.

"It is an extra incentive," Daly said.

The Buckeyes will be at home this weekend against Illinois on Saturday and Purdue on Sunday. Both matches will be at 1 p.m. at the Wirthwein Tennis Center on Olentangy River Road, across from the Fawcett Center for Tomorrow.

Lacrosse squad eyes playoff bid

By Leslie Mendelsohn
Lantern sports writer

Even with the OSU lacrosse team off to a 3-5 start before Wednesday's game against Ohio Wesleyan, an NCAA championship is still possible, Coach Fred Koval said.

The team's tough schedule, rather than any lack of talent, has been responsible for the losing record, he said.

"We have the potential to win all of those games," Koval said. "They (the players) are in better shape. The weight lifting program they're on has improved the team."

"Notre Dame (April 29) will be a difficult game. They have won seven straight games," he said.

There is a May 6 game against Hobart, which has won nine straight Division III championships.

The Buckeyes then play rival Michigan State May 13.

The team has kept a high morale this season.

"We have played very good lacrosse this year," Koval said. "If we can play four good quarters, we can beat any of the teams left on the schedule."

The team has also been optimistic.

"I think we are getting better," sophomore Mike Avery said. "Because of academics, we lost a few players. We are starting to play better as a team."

There are five more games

"Our first games were a disappointment, but we are still optimistic," Koval said.

"To make it to the NCAA Championship in May, the team has to get a couple of key wins," Koval said.

"We have to win especially at Notre Dame and Michigan State," he said. "I believe we will go to the playoffs."

Some of the players think going to the NCAA Championship is a possibility.

"My big goal is to get to the championships," Avery said. "We have a couple of tough teams coming up and if we beat some of those teams, we can go."

Senior and co-captain Tim McCabe is looking forward to the team's future.

"I would like to see us play all of the teams as hard as we can," he said. "We will do okay and are capable of winning. We have had a respectable season."

The team is in Division I and in the Great Lakes Conference.

"We try to travel, but we are tied geographically," Koval said. "We would like to play more of a national schedule, but we don't have any grant-in-aid scholarships."

The team's record is a disappointment to Koval, but he is still optimistic about the rest of the season.

Three of the games were lost by one goal.

The team lost its other two games to national powers North Carolina and Duke.

Second baseman Jeff Anderson turns a double play of Ohio Wednesday in the fourth inning of Ohio State's win over Miami

Buckeyes rout Miami by 16 runs

Lantern staff reports

The Ohio State baseball team found a way to avoid splitting a series Wednesday at Trautman Field. They only played one game against Miami (Ohio) University.

The Buckeyes pounded the Redskins 16-0 to move their overall record to 19 wins and 18 losses behind the shutout pitching of freshman Mark Mesewicz and junior Carl Myers. Junior third baseman Keith Klodnick had three hits and three runs batted in.

Ohio State had split its last four series before beating Miami (13-22).

Mitchell unleashes calmness, coolness

By C.R. Barclay
Lantern sports writer

Style and patience provide OSU's Susan Mitchell success both on and off the tennis court.

Mitchell plays in the No. 2 singles and doubles position on the tennis team. She brings to both a sense of calmness and total control of the situation.

"I play tennis because it's fun and I enjoy the game," Mitchell said.

She credits her strong family upbringing in Pittsburgh, Pa., for the type of play she now relies on.

"My family is very successful and strong willed," she said. "It sets a good example for me."

Mitchell, 21, started playing tennis at the age of 13, late in comparison to other college tennis players, most of who started playing at about the age of five, said Mitchell.

But she learned quickly as she took part in her state's high school tennis championships during her senior year. She finished third in the singles and second in mixed doubles competitions.

She continued her success at Ohio State, where she began her college career in the No. 6 singles and No. 3 doubles spots.

Mitchell is 10-12 in singles and 15-7 in doubles play this spring.

"Susan's very important to us in singles and doubles," said Debbie Horton. "She gives us experience and keeps us loose."

Mitchell's doubles partner, freshman Amy Marzluff, tells what Mitchell's on court presence does for her.

"She is an all-around good player," Marzluff said. "I feel confident that when I play with her we're in every match."

Mitchell said she does not take the leadership role of the team because they all pick one another up when anybody gets down.

"We're a close knit group, with seven freshman in it," said Mitchell. "The atmosphere is more relaxed than in other years. The freshmen are outgoing and energetic."

Mitchell, a junior majoring in industrial-organizational psychology, plays tennis similar to the way she conducts herself off the court; reserved, drawing very little attention to herself.

Upon graduation Mitchell hopes to work in a corporation and do some traveling. She wishes for her teammates and others to remember her as not just an athlete, but a student as well.

Harlem dancers perform at Mershon

Twenty-one years ago Martin Luther King Jr. was assassinated. One year later, in homage to King's death, the Dance Theatre of Harlem was established to advance the purpose of the Civil Rights Movement.

The Dance Theatre of Harlem is a world-class international ballet company founded in 1969 by Arthur Mitchell, former principal dancer of the New York City Ballet.

Celebrating its 20th anniversary, the company is including Columbus on its nine month national tour.

BalletMet will present the Dance Theatre of Harlem for three performances at Mershon Auditorium this Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"This is the second time in three years the company will be performing in Columbus," said Maureen Miller, associate marketing director of BalletMet.

Dance Theatre of Harlem and his own career, Mitchell is considered a pioneer in the field of dance.

In the past 20 years he established the company as an international force on the dance scene. During his dancing career, Mitchell was the only black dancer in the New York City Ballet and began to break down barriers of discrimination for black dancers.

"BECAUSE OF the work of people like Arthur Mitchell, there are black dancers in ballet companies around the nation," Saunders said.

Although the company is predominantly black, its universal approach is to develop the best ballet dancers in the world.

The company members are good dancers who fit into the company line, style and way of doing things, Saunders said.

"It's not about being a black ballet company, it's about being an excellent ballet company," Saunders said.

The Dance Theatre of Harlem is primarily a touring company, and has performed around the world in Japan, Australia, Europe, Canada and the Soviet Union. Approximately 50 members perform on tour.

The piece uses about 25 dancers dressed in their practice clothing of leotards and tights.

"The Firebird," which is the last dance of the program is a fairytale. The setting is in a mythical tropical forest with maidens, creatures of evil, a princess and a prince with a magical feather.

"John Henry" is the first ballet Mitchell has choreographed in 12 years. The piece tells the tale of a legendary man named John Henry who is recognized in many American folk tales. Mitchell created the piece partly in homage to American actor and singer Paul Robeson.

Couple brings touch of Ireland to campus

Husband-wife duo present Irish culture through poetry, songs

By Setsuko Isoe
Lantern staff writer

Irish literature has been famous for its folk music and traditional words, and an Irish couple will bring that cultural beauty to campus tonight.

Michael Yeats and his wife, Grainne Yeats, will have a lecture and recital at 7:30 p.m. in the Ohio Union Conference Theater.

Michael Yeats, the son of poet William Butler Yeats, will speak on "Words and Music," focusing on the relationship between words and music in his father's work.

Yeats is a lawyer and economist by training and was chairman of the Irish Senate and vice president of the European (Common Market) Parliament. His lectures on political and cultural topics have been widely received throughout the United States and Europe.

During his speech, Grainne Yeats will sing some of the ballads written by W.B. Yeats.

"W.B. Yeats preferred not to use any music instrument in his ballads because it interferes the meaning of words," Michael Yeats said.

W.B. Yeats is widely recognized as one of the greatest poets of this century, and this year is the 50th anniversary after his death. Michael Yeats was 17 years old when his father died in France. "I could never discuss the poetry with him," he said.

"Anyone who knows Irish cul-

ture realizes that among the many things at which the Irish excel are their power with words, especially in their literature, and their wonderful traditional music," said Morris Beja, professor for the Department of English, which is sponsoring this evening's event.

In W.B. Yeats's poetry, his effort to capture the sense of music in poetry is pervasive. The first poem in the book "The Collected Poems" is "The Song of the Happy Shepherd," and many others are also called "The Song of ...," or "The Ballad of..." Beja said.

Grainne Yeats

W.B. Yeats was fascinated with the Irish past, and frequently used Irish folklore, myth or history of the entire world.

Such topics as Irish politics and the struggle for Irish freedom were also reflected in his works.

Fish oil may work on ills, study shows

BOSTON (AP) — Large doses of fish oil can relieve mild high blood pressure and may work as well as some commonly used prescription drugs, a study concludes.

Many claims have been made about the seeming benefits of fish oil on the heart and circulatory system, but convincing data to back up these beliefs have been scarce and many experts remain dubious.

The latest study, conducted on 32 white males, provides some of the strongest evidence yet to support at least one of fish oil's reputed merits.

Fish oil seemed to work about as well as two mainstays of blood pressure therapy — diuretics and the beta-blocker drug propranolol.

However, the amounts taken were much higher than the doses usually suggested by manufacturers of widely advertised brands of fish oil capsules. In fact, when taken at the recommended doses, the oil did not change the subjects' blood pressure.

Other studies have suggested that fish oil can prevent heart disease by repairing damaged arteries, lowering dangerously high cholesterol levels and slowing the blood's tendency to clot.

Howard R. Knapp and Garrett A. Fitzgerald, the researchers who conducted the latest study at Vanderbilt University, have been among fish oil skeptics.

Both said they were surprised to find that it seemed to work. But they cautioned that people should not exchange their blood pressure pills for fish oil until doctors know more about its effectiveness and safety.

"For the time being, we are taking a cautious approach and not recommending it as a therapy for high blood pressure," Knapp said in an interview. "Certainly I wouldn't throw away my propranolol and start taking fish oil instead."

At Boston's Beth Israel Hospital, Richard Pasternak said doctors should wait for the results of several large studies now under way before making up their minds about fish oil.

However, he added, "This research is consistent with other experimental evidence, and this is an important break in that regard."

According to the latest report, published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, a month of fish oil lowered the men's average blood pressure from the starting point of 139 over 94 to 132 over 90.

Bush offers unions support

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush today promised union leaders "the door will be open" to them at the White House while skirting two issues that have caused a souring of labor's relations with the new administration: the Eastern Airlines strike and the fight over raising the minimum wage.

"We have had honest differences, but we agree on goals," the president told a gathering of about 3,000 officials of building trades unions. "You build a better America every single day."

While avoiding the Eastern and minimum wage issues, Bush courted his audience by promising to appoint officials to the National Labor Relations Board "whose neutrality and integrity are above reproach. My appointments will not be anti-labor or, as I say, anti-business."

That comment drew Bush hearty applause from the union officials, who have accused former President Reagan of appointing anti-labor representatives to the labor relations board.

The speech was Bush's first to a labor organization since his election. Although many union leaders have complained recently about the administration's positions, Bush promised "the door will be open" even though he is likely to have "honest differences" with labor.

Bush also saluted the American labor movement for supporting Poland's Solidarity movement, saying, "When the free trade movement is threatened, so too is democracy."

The president received a polite response from the delegates and was given a standing ovation when he entered the room and another as he departed.

Bush's appearance came 24 hours after Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell told the AFL-CIO Building and Construction Trades Department conference that "the president is against us" in the minimum-wage fight and urged them to press him on the issue.

"Maybe you can ask him this question," Mitchell told the delegates. "How is it that the president can propose a tax cut of $30,000 a year for the very richest Americans and yet at the same time say that 30 cents an hour for the poorest Americans is too much? I say that is wrong and that is unfair."

Mitchell, D-Maine, was referring to Bush's proposal to cut capital gains taxes, and to the 30 cents an hour difference between Bush's offer to raise the minimum wage to $4.25 by 1992 and the $4.55 target in legislation passed by both the House and Senate.

The delegates gave Mitchell rousing applause when he vowed to pass the Democrats' minimum wage bill and a number of other Democratic initiatives "with or without" Bush's support.

Health care workers return to jobs

CLEVELAND (AP) — Striking Cuyahoga County health care workers voted Tuesday evening to approve a contract that provides 2,200 employees with fully paid medical insurance and 9 percent pay raises over three years.

The approval by voice vote at a rank-and-file meeting at Public Hall cleared the way for strikers to return to their jobs beginning with the 11 p.m. Tuesday shift at MetroHealth Medical Center, formerly known as Metro General Hospital, plus a nursing home and clinic run by the county.

The voice vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the contract and a subsequent motion to make the approval by acclamation was endorsed, union spokesman Jim Grossfeld said.

The agreement between American Federation of State, Council and Municipal Employees Locals 3353 and 3360 and the Cuyahoga County MetroHealth System provides fully paid medical insurance, a key demand of strikers.

The paid medical insurance will mean up to $46 in additional monthly employee take-home pay, the union said in a one-page summary of the agreement.

"In an age when families are being whipsawed by rising health care costs, winning fully paid medical insurance is no small achievement," said Pat Moss, chief negotiator for the unions. "With the paid medical insurance and pay raises, we have a solid financial base for our folks," Moss said after the contract ratification.

She said employees currently pay about $46 monthly for family coverage, about 20 percent of the total $255 cost, with the hospital paying the difference.

The hospital won a reduction from 15 to 10 days in annual sick leave for employees. The hospital originally had proposed reducing the sick leave only for newly hired employees, a double-tier opposed by the union.

The last pay offers by the county before the walkout was 3 percent, 2 percent and 3 percent, while the unions had sought 5 percent annual raises before the strike began March 27.

Soviet ship to aid in cleanup of oil off Alaskan coast

VALDEZ, Alaska (AP) — The tentacles of America's worst oil spill washed up on a beach nearly 200 miles away at Seward, where officials were staking hopes on a huge Soviet oil-skimming ship.

The ship was scheduled to arrive today at the end of 30-mile Resurrection Bay in Seward, the first town outside Prince William Sound to have oil wash up on a beach.

The bay is in the Gulf of Alaska, where seas recently have run as high as 12 feet, far higher than in the scenic, island-protected sound where the Exxon Valdez ran aground March 24.

The relatively small ships used previously to suck away the slimy residue are designed to work in waves of no more than 5 feet. But the 11,400-ton Soviet ship Vaidogubsky can tackle far higher seas and can potentially scoop up more sludge.

"If they can capture oil out there and pick it up before it blows on shore, that's much to our advantage," Seward Deputy City Manager Darryl Schaefermeyer said Tuesday night.

"Our goal is to get the oil picked up and not wait until it gets on beaches, and then have to clean beaches."

Coast Guard Adm. Paul Yost, who is coordinating the cleanup, left Valdez on Tuesday to brief President Bush.

He said he was instructed to improve oil skimming operations and communications, which he said had been done. He was also ordered to get Exxon to come up with a shoreline cleanup plan, which the company produced Saturday.

"I think we have that plan ... a start on the plan," Yost said. But he said he still had reservations about whether Exxon could work at the necessary pace to clear at least 300 miles of shoreline by winter.

Yost's concerns were shared by Alaska Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Dennis Kelso.

But Lawrence Rawl, Exxon's chairman and chief operating officer, angrily challenged such reservations and blamed governmental red tape for the cleanup's sluggish start.

"Now I'm not going to tell you that if you go up there a year from now you won't find some black places on some rocks, but we're going to make every effort to get it off," he said at a news conference in New York.

"I am telling you that a year from now the toxicity will be eliminated."

Yost said he was glad Rawl thought the cleanup could be accomplished by the promised Sept. 15 deadline.

"I'm on his side," Yost said.

Yost turned over the cleanup to Vice Adm. Clyde Robbins, who characterized the plan as a draft and said, "It will be expanded very quickly."

The company has until May 1 to add strategies for getting rid of the oily materials left over from the cleanup, and for cleaning beaches along the gulf.

The oil that washed ashore near Seward was a taffy-like goop mixed with seaweed, and was cleaned up Tuesday. But more oil was in Resurrection Bay, and still more reported on nearby islands and headlands of the Kenai Peninsula, including at Kenai Fjords National Park.

A pair of Coast Guard skimmers in the bay might have intercepted the oil before it reached the beach, but they broke down. Their pumps became gummed up with the oil, which is growing ever thicker after nearly four weeks in the water.

Exxon, in the plan demanded by Yost, said it would have a peak force of 4,000 workers and scores of vessels working by early June.

Man changes story of wife's drowning

MORRILTON, Ark. (AP) — A state police investigator told a jury Tuesday that a former Ohio man accused of murdering his wife in 1978 changed his story about how her death occurred.

State police investigator John Bailey, testified in Conway County Circuit Court in the first-degree murder trial of Richard Bennett, accused in the drowning death of his wife, Marcia Good Bennett. Her body was found in the Arkansas River.

Bennett, of Salisbury, N.C., contends that his wife tripped on a blanket she had wrapped around her and fell from a bridge into the water. He told authorities he was unable to find her after exhaustive efforts, including diving into the river himself.

Bailey testified that, two days after his wife's death, Bennett said he had walked back to the couple's car when she fell from the Arkansas 109 bridge. Three months later, Bailey said, Bennett told him the couple was sitting on the edge of the bridge when she fell.

Also in testimony Tuesday, Logan County Sheriff Bill Kimbriel said that when searchers found Mrs. Bennett's body, it was wrapped in a blanket.

Kimbriel said when authorities arrived at the scene they found Bennett standing on a bridge, and he told police his wife had fallen and he couldn't find her.

In his opening statement Monday, Prosecutor Bill Bullock claimed that Bennett killed his wife of three months to collect $53,000 from her estate and from life insurance proceeds.

A former builder in Centerville, suburb of Dayton, Bennett was convicted of first-degree murder in January, 1988, and given a sentence of life in prison.

The state Supreme Court reversed the circuit court conviction and ordered a new trial in November 1988, saying the court was wrong to allow prosecutors to introduce deposition testimony from material witnesses who were not shown to have been unavailable for the trial.

The sheriff said he thought the case would go to the jury Wednesday or Thursday.

The case is being tried at Morrilton because Circuit Judge Charles H. Eddy granted the defense's request for a change of venue from Logan County, where the death occurred.

Hispanics' societal role promoted

Making Hispanics aware of their place in American society was discussed by the publisher of Hispanic magazine.

Alfredo Estrada, also editor of the magazine, spoke to students and faculty at the Journalism building Tuesday afternoon in commemoration of Hispanic Awareness Week.

"How Hispanics perceive themselves is very important, because awareness really becomes perception and self-perception is self-awareness," Estrada said. "They saw the potential for what they could achieve if they really tried, and took their place in American life."

Estrada practiced law in Washington and New York for about three years, before he started Hispanic magazine, which has been in circulation for one year.

"We've cut across ethnic and geographic lines," Estrada said.

The magazine has done a variety of stories from Mexican-Americans in San Antonio, Texas to Puerto Ricans in New York.

"When people think of Hispanics, they think of people who don't speak English, they think of people who are illegal aliens, and that is just not a representative picture of the Hispanic community," Estrada said.

The Hispanic community has all different income levels, age groups, and interests. Corporate America still tends to think of Hispanics as living in the barrio or living along the border, and Estrada said this is a very distorted picture.

"If Hispanics are aware of their potential, this will lead to a stronger self-image," Estrada said.

He said the magazine tries to build Hispanic identity, which is really self-discovered.

Estrada addressed the concern over who the word Hispanic should apply to, and said it could mean a lot of things. He said the term Hispanic should be a very inclusive one.

Margarita Gonzalez, a graduate student from Puerto Rico, said a Hispanic is any person that lives in a country that speaks Spanish, and in an institution of this size there are many of them.

However, she said, the only

Alfredo Estrada

Hispanics who received information about Hispanic Awareness Week were Puerto Ricans, Cubans and Mexicans.

Gonzalez said she has many friends from Venezuela, Costa Rica, and Bolivia who did not receive any information about Hispanic Awareness Week, and only found out about it from a poster on campus.

Estrada also talked about the role of Hispanics in the future. He said that by the year 1990, in terms of labor statistics, blacks and Hispanics would make up 26 percent of the workforce.

"Companies, particularly high-tech companies, will have to recruit skilled technical labor from the minority community," Estrada said.

The magazine tries to stress the value of education, especially in the areas of science and math he said.

"I would like to see more of an emphasis on education because that's really the bottom line," Estrada said. "Building this labor base is really going to be very important in 10 years."

Positive attitude helps battle cancer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A positive outlook on life appears to promote natural killer cell activity for fighting disease in certain cancer patients as well as healthy individuals, according to studies presented today.

"It doesn't seem to be so much whether one is exposed to stress or not, but how people are reacting to similar types of stress," said Dr. Ronald Herberman, director of the Pittsburgh Cancer Institute and part of the research team.

"If they're not as well adjusted ... we have indication that it has health consequences."

Herberman and Dr. Sandra Levy, an associate director at the institute, say they have found that colon and skin cancer patients who combine standard medical care with psychotherapy have higher natural killer cell activity than those who do not undergo counseling.

In a separate study being presented at a medical symposium at Johns Hopkins University, they said healthy people with positive outlooks have higher natural killer cell activity than physically fit complainers.

The upbeat subjects suffered fewer colds and other viral infections. Their ailments also did not last as long as illnesses suffered by those expressing "more hostility and anger about their life," said Herberman, who followed the subjects for six months.

These findings, based on an analysis of 120 men and women between ages 18 and 45, confirm the results of a smaller pilot study conducted by Herberman and Levy three years ago at the National Cancer Institute.

"We were looking at how serious the stresses were to them ... their hassles, things that happen to all of us, fights with the boss, that kind of thing," Levy said in an interview Tuesday night.

James Zabora, director of patient and family services for the Johns Hopkins Oncology Center in Baltimore and the symposium's co-director, called the findings

"interesting" but said they must be kept in perspective.

"They're moving into a very difficult area," Zabora said. "The immune system is an incredibly complicated system and maybe to this point in time we have examined 1 percent or 0.5 percent of what the immune system is all about."

Researchers currently can only speculate why happiness seems to promote activity of natural killer cells, which comprise 5 percent to 10 percent of all white blood cells, according to Herberman.

"It isn't clear what's going on," Levy said. "All we're asking is whether behavior or central nervous system-mediated factors play some role for some tumors. If they do, that's important because behavior can be changed."

To test that notion, Herberman, Levy and Dr. Judith Rodin, professor of psychiatry at Yale University, followed 30 people between ages 18 and 45 with colon cancer or malignant melanomas. All had had their tumors surgically removed, and the disease had not reached advanced stages.

Eighteen received individual counseling once a week for eight weeks. The remaining 12 received only standard medical care. Both groups were identical in background.

By the end of psychotherapy, the 18 with counseling showed significantly higher natural killer cell activity than those without, Levy said. The counseled group reported less depression and anger and seemed better able to cope with their lives, she said.

The 12 who did not undergo psychotherapy tended to blame themselves for their problems, Levy said.

"We don't believe ... that your psychological status is going to make the difference as far as whether the disease is present or not," Herberman said. "But on top of all the physical issues, the nature of the disease and the body's immune response to it, the psychological factors can have a significant effect."

Israeli officers question nation's morals

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli army officers serving in the occupied lands complain of feeling like "stone fodder" thrown into a futile battle with Palestinians and say settler and army brutality have corrupted Israel's morals.

"I am reaching the end of my thoughts about Zionism in this country," said officer Uri Dan. "My next war will be against Jews. That's what I feel."

His comments and those of 10 other reserve officers appear in "Commanders' Reflections," a 34-page booklet published by the Kibbutz Artzi movement that unites 85 of Israel's 160-odd kibbutzim, or communal farms.

The booklet, released on Tuesday, quotes remarks made by the officers, members of kibbutzim, in a February conversation with Maj. Gen. Amram Mitzna, head of the army's central command. Their ranks were not given.

The officers single out army regulations on opening fire, lack of proper ammunition, pressure of increased reserve duty and their feeling of futility in dealing with the Palestinian revolt.

The 16-month uprising — known to Arabs as the "intifadeh" — in the occupied West Bank and the Gaza Strip has claimed at least 439 Palestinian and 18 Israeli lives.

"Once in four, five months you are called to intifadeh, and you see that nothing has changed, maybe it only got worse. I can even say that ... in a certain way, you feel like stone fodder," said Omri Frish of the kibbutz Mesilot.

Army rules on opening fire, which forbid troops to shoot live ammunition unless a dagger to life exists, still "leave the final, last and only consideration to the lonely soldier in a side alley," Frish said.

Frish said that as to the alternative plastic or rubber bullets, these may be hard to find.

"The means we have at our disposal ... are very poor. A soldier asks his commander, why we have no rubber bullets, or helmets, or this, or that, and it's a problem," he said.

Other officers criticized even the use of plastic bullets.

Avi Ofer of kibbutz Maanit in central Israel said rules allowing such bullets to be fired for riot dispersal were "illegal."

"There are so-called 'plastic bullet ambushes.' One soldier provokes the residents, one of the duped residents hurls a stone, and another (soldier) is ready with a plastic bullet," said Dani Gal of the Kfar Menahem kibbutz.

Elisha Shapira of Ein Hashofet said he complained to army authorities who took action against two lieutenant-colonels posted in Nablus, the largest West Bank town.

"They engaged in manhunting ... they were just driving around, looking for a possibility to harm an Arab," Shapira said, without elaborating.

Some officers said they reached a breaking point during night search-and-arrest raids.

Winery employee caught, arrested

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Ramon Salcido, a California winery worker wanted in the slaying of seven people, including his wife and two of his three small daughters, was arrested in Mexico, a U.S. Embassy source said Wednesday.

The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Salcido, 28, was arrested in a rural area around Ciudad Obregon, 900 miles northwest of Mexico City in Sonora state.

"He is in the custody of the Federal Judiciary Police. Salcido was arrested in a rural area around Ciudad Obregon, that's my understanding. We have no other details," the source said.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Bill Graves said he had no details regarding the arrest and didn't know if Salcido is an American citizen. "We don't know for the moment what his citizenship is," he said.

Vicente Mendoza, a spokesman for the Attorney General's office, said he could not confirm or deny the report. The Federal Judiciary Police is a branch of the Attorney General's office.

"We have no information for the time being," he said.

Ciudad Obregon is 120 miles north of Salcido's hometown of Los Mochis.

The arrest came a day after California authorities reported numerous possible sightings of

Ramon Salcido
SHERIFF'S DEPARTMENT

Services were being held in Glen Ellen, Calif., today for some of the six members of Salcido's family who were killed. About 300 people attended a memorial service Tuesday for another of the victims, Tracy Toovey. Twenty sheriff's deputies attended to keep a lookout for Salcido.

Authorities in California also said Salcido, a forklift operator who worked with Toovey at a winery, may have been spotted in San Francisco sometime after the slayings began Friday morning.

Convenience store robbed of $1,000

More than $1,000 was stolen from a convenience store at 1604 N. High St., Columbus Police reports said.

Sandra Wilson, employee of The Convenient Place, said a man came into the store around 7 a.m. Monday and purchased beer, wine and chips.

He returned later, went behind the counter and demanded that she give him the money that she was preparing to put in the store safe, Wilson said.

Wilson said she told him she would not give him the money and turned her back to the man. She said the man grabbed her, and she dropped to the floor still clutching the money.

The man then grabbed her arm and bit her hand several times until she let go of the money, Wilson said.

Wilson said she grabbed the man by the coat and was pulled up from the floor as he tried to run out of the store. The man swung around and hit her in the head. The blow knocked her into a chair, she said.

The man escaped out the front door and Wilson called the police.

Police obtained the suspect's fingerprints from a bottle he had touched in the store cooler, Wilson said.

Wilson said she had to get a shot from her doctor for the bites on her hand.

Reports said Wilson suffered a bruised face and hand.

She said the man looked too old to be a student.

Wilson said she will not count the money again while she is in the store alone. She has been working at the store for 8 years, and had never been robbed, she said.

Police are still investigating.

Paint company site of FBI investigation

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — FBI agents are executing a federal search warrant and excavating a paint company's property where hazardous wastes may be buried, an FBI agent said Wednesday.

Agents began the excavation Tuesday and continued digging near a loading dock Wednesday at Sencot Paint Manufacturing Co.

"We're looking for evidence," said Robert Friedman, resident agent in charge of the FBI's Youngstown office. "We're conducting a search."

Friedman said he could not say what the agents were looking for or if they had removed any materials from the site.

However, Sencot owner Roland Brothers said Wednesday that several barrels were found buried on the property. He said he plans to contact his attorney and declined to comment further.

The Youngstown Fire Department has a truck stationed on the property, but Fire Chief Gerald Kernan declined comment because the search is being done by the FBI.

After a search in December, the FBI sent to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency fluid and soil samples for analysis, Friedman said.

No barrels containing paint byproducts were found buried then, but the current investigation is a continuation of the December investigation, Friedman said.

Last month, Rep. James Traficant Jr., D-Youngstown, told the federal agents to end the investigation, saying the probe has damaged the company's business.

"If they have a case, bring it in its proper form, but get off the back of this family," Traficant said.

Brothers has said he believed the investigation stemmed from statements made to authorities by disgruntled former employees.

A plant at the paint manufacturing company burned in January, and police and firefighters said they suspect the fire was arson.

Jews celebrate Passover, exodus from Soviet Union

NEW YORK (AP) — A modern parallel is unfolding of the ancient Passover story of liberation — the rising exodus of Jews permitted by the Soviet Union.

The resemblances were cited as the week-long Passover observance started Wednesday evening, marking the Jewish flight from bondage in Egypt.

However, Jews today don't have to rely on rituals of the past, said Theodore Ellenoff, president of the American Jewish Committee.

"Before our very eyes, the gates of the Soviet Union have been thrown open, and Jews are using the opportunity to stream out," he said.

During the first three months of this year, 9,461 Jews have been allowed to emigrate from the Soviet Union, triple the number in the same period last year. And with projections, the 1989 total may reach 40,000.

That would be the third year of a steadily rising surge of departures under the more open policies of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

Shoshana Cardin, chairman of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry, applauds the increased emigrations and improvements in religious and cultural rights of Soviet Jews, but adds: "Our priority this Passover remains our often voiced demand, 'Let our people go.'"

"We will not be silent until every Jew who wishes to emigrate is free to do so, until every Jew who wishes to remain in the Soviet Union is allowed full cultural and religious rights."

The demand, "Let my people go," originally was flung by the ancient Jewish leader Moses at the Egyptian Pharaoh in the world's earliest struggle for religious freedom nearly 4,000 years ago.

"Those words still are relevant," says Gerald Strober, information officer of the NCSJ. "Pharaoh has begun to loosen up and we welcome it. But we must remain ever vigilant."

Moderating conditions for Soviet Jews, however, were seen as similar to the Jewish deliverance from oppression in Egypt, the Passover event, which has become a universal symbol of human liberation.

As in the case of the Israelites, the troubles weren't over for Soviet Jews after being let out of the country.

About 7,000 of the people are stranded at a center near Rome. Most of them want to come to the United States, but cannot because of exceeded U.S. immigration quotas or refused U.S. refugee status as fleeing persecution.

Israel accepts all wishing to go there, but the logjam has persisted, with efforts being made in this country to modify the restrictions.

In the light of the ancient liberation from Egypt, Ellenoff said, "It is no surprise that the new mass emigration of Soviet Jewry has raised new perplexities."

"Our Bible teaches that physical emancipation is just the beginning of a long, painstaking redemptive process. We read that the freed Israelites complained bitterly to Moses about the hardships of freedom."

"When they had been slaves, the masters had taken care of their basic needs in return for obedient subservience. Only now, with emancipation, did the Israelites have to worry about food, water and protection from armed attack."

While more Jews are being allowed to leave the Soviet Union, the situation for those still there has moderated. Added facilities are being provided, and the NCSJ says all 15 Jewish prisoners of conscience have been released.

Manhattan's Park Avenue synagogue for the second successive year airlifted Passover supplies to Soviet Jewish congregations in Moscow and Odessa — two tons of matzoth, wine, gefilte fish and other kosher foods for Passover.

Rabbi Arthur Schneier, leader of the Manhattan congregation and head of the Appeal of Conscience Foundation, recently negotiated the return to Moscow's Choral Synagogue of an adjoining building for a community center.

He said the center, when refurbished through funding by the Manhattan synagogue, would provide a lecture hall, meeting rooms and classrooms for Jewish adult education, courses in Bible, Jewish history and Hebrew and a kosher restaurant.

Soviet Jews are celebrating Passover with a new haggadah — recounting God's deliverances — in Russian and Hebrew, published by Moscow's Choral Synagogue with help of the U.S. Memorial Foundation for Jewish Culture.

The Soviet's Jewish population has been estimated at about 2 million, and the numbers wanting to leave is uncertain. The NCSJ says that several years ago, it estimated the figure at more than 300,000, but it now may be less.

Questions remain about various aspects of the situation, Ellenoff says, and the answers may not come quickly. "After all," he adds, "it took 40 years for the emancipated Israelites to reach the promised land."

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The Lantern cannot accept advertising that advocates sedition or other illegal actions, violates normal standards of morality and taste, or attacks an individual race, nationality, ethnic group, religion or sex. In cases of doubt, the proffered copy, illustrations and layout will be submitted by the business manager of the Lantern to the School of Journalism Publications Committee and judged by a majority vote of the members. Decisions of this committee are final.

The Ohio State Lantern does not restrict advertisers beyond the limits of responsible journalism and the rules imposed by the Ohio State University on all student publications.

DATABASE SUPPORTS ANALYSTS, APPLICATIONS ANALYSTS, & SUMMER INTERNS

Information Dimensions, Inc. (IDI), the recognized leader in Text Information Management Systems, currently has several opportunities available for fulltime Database Analysts to join our Customer Services Group. We are one of the most dynamic and aggressive companies in the country and are seeking individuals with solid computer and customer support skills to help us provide the best customer support services in the industry. In exchange, we offer excellent in-house training and real opportunities to learn and grow in a professional environment.

In addition to our fulltime opportunities, we also have Summer Intern positions available. These positions will be responsible for writing application specific programs and executing predefined QA test plans. We are seeking a Junior or Senior-level Computer Science major capable of working in our Dublin Office 40 hours per week for a minimum of 10 weeks during the summer. Positions requires some programming experience, preferably FORTRAN, and good communication and interpersonal skills. Please send resume and cover letter indicating current GPA, to address listed below.

Database Support Analyst

In this position, you will assist customers in the use of IDI products, investigate, report and solve problems reported by customers, and assist customers in tailoring IDI products to their applications. This position requires a B.S. in CIS or equivalent with 1-5 years of related experience and excellent telephone skills.

Applications Analyst

The responsibilities of this position include providing technical expertise and support to clients to analyze database applications and tailor IDI products to specific client needs, and designing and developing database applications. This position requires a B.S. in CIS or equivalent with 0-5 years of experience.

Other requirements for these fulltime positions include:

- Experience with and/or training in at least 1 DBMS required (BASIS and/or DM experience highly desirable)
- Proficiency with COBOL, FORTRAN, or C required, experience with multiple operating systems a plus
- Previous experience with customer service or support required
- Excellent problem-solving skills required, along with good organizational skills
- Must be willing to travel 10-25%

IDI offers an excellent starting salary and a comprehensive benefits package for fulltime staff. To pursue our opportunities, send resume and cover letter indicating position preference to:

IN CLINICAL PHARMACOLOGY STUDIES

There are currently a number of clinical studies being conducted in the Clinical Pharmacology Unit During APRIL, MAY AND JUNE, 1989.

1. A new topical application intended for the treatment of psoriasis which will require one in-house day for Group 1 and three in-house days for Group 2. All other visits are on an outpatient basis. This study will begin approximately April 17, 1989.

2. A new antihypertensive (decreases blood pressure) compound. This study will require 14 consecutive days in the clinical unit. There will also be one followup visit. This study will start April 10, 1989.

3. A new nonsteroidal antiinflammatory (pain reliever) intended for the treatment of arthritis which will require three days in-house over a period of six weeks. This study will begin approximately April 20, 1989.

4. Tenidap, a new nonsteroidal antiinflammatory/analgesic used in the treatment of arthritis along with lithium. This study will require 16 in-house days. This study will begin approximately April 16, 1989.

5. Tenidap, a new nonsteroidal antiinflammatory/analgesic used in the treatment of arthritis along with warfarin. This study will require 10 days in-house over a period of 44 days. This study will start early May, 1989.

6. Piroxicam, a new topical nonsteroidal antiinflammatory (pain reliever) cream as compared to Feldene® capsules. This project will require three days in-house over a six week period and will begin approximately mid May, 1989.

Child abuse: When will it stop?

More than 1,000 children died as a result of child abuse in 1987

Lisa Steinberg only wanted to be loved. But instead she was severely beaten by her father in November and died four days later.

Lisa, who was illegally adopted, is one of thousands of children who died last year from child abuse injuries.

April is National Child Abuse Prevention month, and the National Assault Prevention Center of Ohio will sponsor programs to help educate the public about child abuse, said Sally Finch, spokeswoman for the organization.

In 1987, 1,132 children died as a result of child abuse in America. New York state, where the Steinbergs lived, had the highest number of child abuse deaths, 181. In Ohio 50 children died from abuse.

Fitch said the National Assault Prevention Center, NAPC, is a non-profit corporation and its mission is to prevent violence between two or more people through research, public education workshops and training.

THE PREVENTION center has two divisions: The Child Assault Prevention, CAP, project and The Assault Prevention Training project for adults, she said.

Fitch said the Child Assault Prevention project was founded in 1978 to prevent the physical, emotional and sexual abuse of children. The program serves preschoolers, elementary students, children with special needs, such as those with multiple handicaps, teachers, parents and professionals.

Through a curriculum-based education children are taught to evaluate different types of abuse, self defenses and to know they can turn to people in their community who will understand their problems and provide the proper assistance in getting help, Fitch said. The program stresses prevention rather than intervention.

"It's a program that teaches children that they have basic personal safety rights; the right to be safe, strong (good self esteem) and free," she said. "It's a very comprehensive program. One of the unique things of the CAP program is that it is empowerment curriculum versus the stranger danger message."

Fitch stressed that parents need to talk to their children about other things besides staying away from strangers. She said conversations should include topics such as safe and unsafe secrets, safety skills in the community and children believing in their abilities to make safety a priority.

CHILD ASSAULT Prevention currently has more than 230 programs in the United States, Canada and Great Britain. Each school year more than one million children, their parents and teachers will receive child assault prevention services, Fitch said.

The projects are multi-cultural and workshops are offered across the United States and internationally.

The elementary curriculum has been translated into seven languages: French, Spanish, Japanese, Cantonese, Cambodian, Lao-tian and Vietnamese.

Fitch said the project trained people last summer in the Grand Bahamas, Costa Rica, Zurich and Switzerland. The group has been asked by the Netherlands government to visit the country because the government wants to implement the program as a national primary prevention program, she added.

In 1983 the program authored a book entitled "Strategies for Free Children: A Leader's Guide to Child Assault Prevention" which has been sold in 50 states and 12 countries, Fitch said.

THE ASSAULT Prevention Training Project for adults was started in 1982 to provide materials for adults who are labeled chronically mentally ill and developmentally disabled, Fitch said.

The goals of the Assault Prevention Training Project are the empowerment of people experiencing disabilities, and building strong peer and community support networks, Fitch said.

Services provided by the program are done through workshops for persons with disabilities, in-service training for staff, significant others and community people, she added.

Rosemary Bolig, associate professor of Family Relations and Human Development, teaches a course titled "Children and Their Families Under Stress," which deals with problems that families face, including child abuse.

Bolig said students who take the course are taught about child abuse, not only in terms of prevention, but also in terms of the impact on the child.

"WE TRY to teach students that reporting child abuse is part of their legal, moral and ethical responsibility to help prevent child abuse," she said.

Students are also taught about the characteristics of families that may be more abusive than others, Bolig said.

She said some of the characteristics of an abusive family are an unevenness in the family power system and a parent history of being abused as a child.

"Apart from the specific horrific aspects of being abused, the cost to the individual is great," Bolig said. "We all pay the price for this kind of way of treating children and to permit it to occur also says a lot about us."

Bolig said if society turns a blind eye to the problem of child abuse and assumes it will go away or says it is the parents' or families' right, then eventually society pays the price.

BECKY ANDERSON, TeenCAP local services coordinator and a team leader, said their goals are to increase community awareness of the assault of adolescents, to provide adolescents with knowledge and skills to handle dangerous situations and to change the basic underlying causes of these kinds of violence.

Anderson said the TeenCAP project has three distinct emphases: teacher/staff in-servicing in the schools, parent and community resident education programs, and workshops for teens that are held during their normal school day in their regular classrooms.

Teachers get in-service training to help them understand the criteria for effective primary prevention, some common signs of abuse in adolescents and how to respond effectively to teen crisis.

They also learn about resources that are available in the community and their own rights and responsibilities under Ohio law about reporting child abuse, Anderson said.

On the first day of the Child Assault Prevention session two facilitators — one male and one female — teach students what their common safety rights are, the various types of abuse, and strategies for handling dangerous situations.

THE STUDENTS are separated into two groups on the second day, to enable more response from the students.

The young men continue to discuss personal safety rights and strategies for handling peer aggression in a positive manner.

The young women work on assertive communication and physical defense techniques.

On the third day of the workshop young people remain in separate groups and discuss various kinds of sexual assault including known adult sexual abuse and date rape, Anderson said.

After each workshop, time is set aside for individual students to meet with workshop facilitators.

ANDERSON SAID workshop facilitators are able to reinforce Child Assault Prevention concepts during this time and give the students the opportunity to discuss concerns or questions in a private setting.

She said recent research suggests that adolescents are particularly vulnerable to assault:

- One in four young women, and one in six to nine young men, will be sexually assaulted before they reach the age of 18. Of those, more than 85 percent will be assaulted by someone they know and trust.
- In 1983, a study was conducted on students and rape. The study showed that 75 percent of female college freshmen said they had experienced sexual aggression. Most incidents occurred during their senior year in high school or first year in college.
- At least 12 percent of high school students have experienced physical abuse in a dating relationship.

• The majority of offenders charged with rape are between the ages of 16 and 25. The highest frequencies include 16-20 year olds.

• Teenagers are victims of violent crimes twice as often as adults.

Fitch said programs for the month will include public education meetings, Child Abuse Prevention network programs, special education articles in local newspapers and ongoing workshops and training in the community about child abuse prevention.

TRENDS IN CHILD ABUSE

SIGNS OF ABUSE

- Fear of going to a certain place or being with a certain person, or fear of adults in general
- Unexplained bruises or bleeding
- Self-destructive or self-mutilating behavior
- Sleep disorders (bed-wetting, nightmares, sleeplessness)
- Knowledge of sexual behavior at an inappropriate age
- Sexually transmitted disease
- Running away, promiscuity, stealing, drug use
- Onset of school failure or discipline problems
- Aggressive or withdrawn behavior
