"O's" by Woman's Organization for Efficient Work.

Mary Titus, Ag-4; Estella Gerhardt, Ed-4, and Margaret Williams, Ed-4, have been awarded an "O," the highest honor bestowed by the Woman's Athletic Association. The basketball cup, which is engraved each year with the name of the champion, was awarded to the class of '22 for the second time. Numerals were given for hiking, sports, general gymnasium work and exhibition work.

Y. W. TO PLAY HOSTESS TO NEW GIRLS NEXT FALL

Receptions, Teas and Hikes Will Make Up Program of Entertainment for Freshman Co-eds.

The Y. W. C. A. has made plans to help the new girls next year from the time of their arrival.

The campus social service committee, of which Margaret J. Hicks is chairman, will have a booth at the Union Station to direct the girls, and also a number of machines there to take care of their grips and suitcases. The association committee, with Ruth L. White as chairman and composed of 50 girls, will act as campus guides. The committee will have tables at the four main entrances to the campus and the members will wear insignia to distinguish them as guides.

Margaret L. Wood, and Elizabeth G. Guerin, freshman tea chairman, will have charge of an informal reception Monday and Tuesday of the first week of school, in the homemakers' laboratory. On Tuesday evening Irene L. Drean, conference chairman, will direct an Eagles Mere hike. Wednesday evening the membership committee, Alice R. Redfern, chairman, will have charge of getting all freshman girls out to the sing. Thursday afternoon there will be a reception for all freshman girls on President Thompson's lawn. Eugenia Bending's committee will have charge of this affair.

Friday evening there will be a co-ed hop. A special committee is to be appointed to take care of this. Sunday afternoon there will be an informal tea at Oxley Hall for the freshman girls.

There will be weekly parties for small groups of freshmen, in charge of Elizabeth G. Guerin and Sara L. Robinson, during the first few weeks of the year.

MILITARY MEN ASSIGNED FOR SUMMER R. O. T. C. WORK

Members of the military department are receiving their assignments for the summer's work among the R. O. T. C. camps. Infantry officers, including Captains Charles F. Leonard, C. H. Wright and Paul Murray, will go to Camp Custer, Mich. A number of the enlisted personnel will be sent to the Michigan camp. Although Captain Leonard is also under orders to go, it is probable that he will remain here to transact the large volume of military business that arises during the summer.

The artillery officers who will be absent during the summer are Captain R. O. Benner and Lieutenant F. E. Kauffman. Captain Parker and the enlisted men will remain.

The artillery camp is to be at Camp Knox, near Louisville, Ky., where 21 universities will be represented. Students will be drawn from as far east as Harvard, west as Oregon, south to Texas and north to the University of Wisconsin. The work will include actual firing. The camp will begin June 17 and extend until July 28.

Thompson, was killed Monday night when an automobile in which he was riding ran into a stone bridge near Carpinteria, Calif., according to a message received late Tuesday by Dr. Thompson. Miss Grace Hampton of Santa Barbara was killed at the same time and two others injured.

Thompson was 29 years of age and was employed by the Alpine Evaporated Cream Company, with headquarters at San Francisco. He left Columbus when about 18 years of age and has lived in the West ever since.

Besides his parents, the young man is survived by a brother, Loren of New York City, and a sister, Mrs. Sherman Randall.

The body will arrive in Columbus Sunday. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

COLISEUM TO BE SCENE OF 1921 TRACTOR SHOW

State Fair Grounds Selected for Annual Display During Farmers'
Week Next Year.

The National Tractor Show will be held at the Ohio State Fair Grounds during the 1921 Farmers' Week, according to a recent announcement. One hundred tractors will be entered in the show and 16 buildings besides the Coliseum will be used to house the display. Practically every form of power farming implement on the market will be on display and the demonstration of tractors is expected to attract farmers throughout the United States.

The department of agricultural engineering will have charge of the testing. To take care of this work, six new brakes will be built in addition to the two already in use by the department. Advanced students will man the brakes and conduct the tests. Five days will be required to test the 100 tractors.

The show will afford an opportunity to compare the relative efficiency of Canadian and American tractors. Every type of tractor made, ranging in size from the giant caterpillars weighing 10 tons or more and pulling a whole threshing and harvesting outfit at once, down to the baby machines used to mow lawns and cultivate gardens, will be seen side by side and compared.

It was originally planned by the committee in charge, to hold four shows of the same nature at different places in the United States, and Columbus put in a bid for one of them. Later it was decided to hold but one exhibition. According to the president of the National Tractor Club, Columbus was decided upon because of the activities of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce and the interest shown in power farming and the value of the work done along this line by the University.

In speaking of the coming show, Professor Glen W. McCuen of the department of agricultural engineering said: "It is a big thing for Columbus, bigger for the University, and certainly the biggest boost that the department of agricultural engineering has ever received."

CAMPANILE A BI-MONTHLY IS PLAN FOR NEXT YEAR

Individual covers and illustrations by the staff art editor will feature the five numbers of the 1921 Campanile, according to Herbert G. Baum, CJ-3, business manager-elect of the literary magazine.

Members of the editorial staff, in addition to the editor-in-chief and his associate, will be appointed, together with an art editor, next fall.

The magazine will be considerably larger than it was this year and will appear as a bi-monthly. The first number will be dedicated to the semicentennial and will be out in October. Other issues will be published before Christmas, at the beginning of the second semester, in the middle of April and just before the close of school.

MEDICAL ADVISER TO LECTURE

Dr. Caroline Hedge of Chicago to Speak Friday Night.

Dr. Caroline Hedge of Chicago will give an illustrated lecture Friday night in the Home Economics Auditorium, to which her many Columbus friends are invited.

The lecture will concern nutrition classes for children and the material for this lecture is the result of Dr. Emerson's work in Boston and the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund of Chicago.

Dr. Hedge is the medical adviser of the Elizabeth McCormick Memorial Fund of Chicago. She has lectured in Columbus before.

DEAN TO ENTERTAIN SENIORS

Dean Elisabeth Conrad and Professor Anna R. Van Meter, acting head of the department of home economics, will be hostesses at a tea Saturday, June 12, from 3 to 4:30 p. m., honoring all senior girls and their commencement guests. The party will be given near the spring, opposite the Home Economics Building. Several faculty women will assist the hostesses.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED BY BROWNING SOCIETY

Bess Willis Put in Charge of Breakfast in Hollow June 12—Plans for Play Discussed.

Officers of Browning Dramatic Society were elected for the coming year at a meeting of the club in the gabroom Tuesday.

Those chosen were: president, Erma C. Jeffries, A-3; vice-president, Adelaide Hibbard, A-3; secretary, Bess A. Willis, CJ-3; mistress of programs, Alice M. Brooks, Ed-3; wardrobe mistress, Annette Blue, Ag-2. A. Louise Matson, A-Ed-3, was re-elected business manager. The treasurer will not be elected until fall, following the usual custom.

Arrangements for the breakfast to be given Saturday, June 12, in the hollow, in honor of the new members—those who are participating for the first time in a Browning play—are in charge of Bess Willis.

Eleanor M. Ferris, Ed-4, was appointed to take care of the patrons and patronesses at the presentation of the play to be given Friday and Saturday, June 11 and 12.

MILITARY TACTICS HOURS CHANGED FOR NEXT YEAR

The military department is to conform to classroom schedules next year, if the plans of Captain Charles F. Leonard materialize. In order to keep sections small, eight classrooms will be used in the west wing of the Barracks, with 25 men in a section. By this plan 200 men can be accommodated at one class period. Periods will be changed to Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 9 a. m.; Monday, Tuesday and Friday at 11 a. m.; Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 2 and 4 p. m.; Tuesday at 8, 9 and 10 a. m. President Thompson's addresses will be given Thursdays at 11 a. m. for all cadets.

Practical instruction throughout the winter will be another change, instead of tactics classes only. One hour of theory will be followed by two hours of practical instruction. The war department has been requested to send eight more officers to take charge of classroom instruction, so that all work will be done under commissioned officers.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY CHOOSES NEW OFFICERS

Vance Clever, Ag-3, has been elected president of Townsend Agricultural Society for the first semester of next year.

He was also chosen a member of the executive committee of the Agricultural Society, the other two members being Everett B. Barker, Ag-3, and Lynn W. Finley, Ag-3.

Orman R. Keyser, Ag-3, was elected musical director, and Virgil M. May, Ag-2, sergeant-at-arms. No more meetings of the society will be held this year.

PHI BETA KAPPAS VARY AS TO FUTURE VOCATIONS

Some Honor Students Will Return to School, While Others Will Teach and Take Up Other Work.

"I'm not going to do anything for awhile," was the reply almost invariably received when a feminine member of Phi Beta Kappa was asked what she intended to do after leaving school.

The plans of the male members are various and but few are like the above. Most of the men intend to either return to school for higher degrees or teach and come back later.

Marion E. Allensworth says she has no immediate plans and has no idea of what kind of work she will follow. Charles R. Brokaw will try his hand at the theatrical game, plunging first into the spoken drama.

Fred C. Harrold will come back for an M.A. degree, then take to teaching for awhile, to break the monotony, and then make a great effort for the crowning achievement—a doctor's degree.

Howard C. Shaub is now teaching at Dartmouth.

Ethel M. Esper answered the inquiry by saying that she thought she had better stay at home and keep house for her husband.

Elsie L. Hinkle is undecided as to her future vocation.

Elizabeth Mitchell will teach. Margaret A. Bambach will return to her Alma Mater and continue grabbing all the honors in sight.

Colin A. Campbell is considering two things—either going to Johns Hopkins as an instructor in civil engineering or taking a position with a Pittsburgh firm as bridge designer.

Fred H. Humphrey will return for an engineering degree.

MANY FRATERNITY HOUSES TO BE OPEN THIS SUMMER

Most of the fraternity houses will remain open for the summer to take care of those who will attend the summer session or will work in Columbus, a survey made Wednesday showed.

Sigma Phi Epsilon is building a house which will be ready August 1. The present quarters will be taken over by the Avalon Boarding Club. Phi Delta Theta has not yet made definite plans for moving into its new home on Waldeck Avenue.

The house occupied by Phi Sigma Epsilon has been sold and the fraternity is looking for a house. Beta Alpha Chi will rent its house during the summer.

Other fraternity houses which will remain open this summer are, Beta Theta Pi, Alpha Gamma Rho, Phi Kappa Tau, Zeta Beta Tau, Theta Xi and Phi Gamma Delta.

SENIOR INVITATIONS TO ARRIVE

All senior invitations are expected to arrive Thursday and be distributed immediately. Of the 5000 invitations ordered, only 400 have arrived so far, due to a tieup in the mails.

FORMER INSTRUCTOR IS DEAN

Professor Shirley J. Coon, formerly instructor in economics and advertising at Ohio State, has recently been made dean of the School of Commerce of the University of Montana.

PRESENTED WITH LOVING CUP

Captain Clifford R. Cutright of Cadet Company A-1, was presented with a loving cup by members of his company at a meeting of the company Tuesday afternoon in Hayes Hall.

MORE FUNDS NEEDED TO RUN OHIO STATE, SAYS GOVERNOR COX

Ohio Executive Tells Reporter He Favors Annual Appropriation for Buildings and Equipment.

Governor Praises Work of University and Rambles at Length With Lessons From His Own Life

"I'd like to see $1,000,000 appropriated annually by the legislature for buildings and equipment at the Ohio State University," declared Governor Cox emphatically, as he considered and analyzed the conditions at the University, in a recent interview with a Lantern reporter.

"It is performing its function well and deserves help from the legislature. It is showing fine growth and helping to meet the needs of the state. I think there is a great need for dormitories on the campus, with sufficient rooming capacity to accommodate every University girl. But, not being able to read the legislative mind, I can't foretell what good things are in store for Ohio State.

"There should be a development of the business training in the Universities, and it should receive the highest consideration. What young men and women need today is sound business training and the Universities should emphasize it," he declared seriously.

Praises Agricultural College

Governor Cox spoke of the practical work being done in the College of Agriculture in terms of the highest praise. "I was reared on the farm," he said, reminiscing, "and still think farming is a great occupation." He expressed a special liking for raising of live stock.

When a young man Governor Cox taught school in a rural district and strongly advocates that special emphasis be placed on the teaching of basic fundamentals such as arithmetic, history, geography and civil government. In his opinion farmer boys make the best students for they have acquired more concentrated habits of study and have a more thorough mastery of fundamentals. Governor Cox never attended college, but received a common school and high school education and has risen by individual effort from the early position of a country school teacher to the responsible office of Chief Executive of Ohio.

Governor Cox appeals to one as being practical, interesting, pleasant, with a fine sense of humor. In his presence one is aware of his keen penetrating power of observation, his wide

ANSWERS TO QUERIES OF DEAN ARE RECEIVED

Girls in Favor of Woman's Union and Dormitories—Some Urge Boarding Clubs, Etc.

Practically all of the replies which Dean Elisabeth Conrad has received in answer to the letters she sent out recently to upperclass girls asking them to state things which they felt would help Ohio State spirit, include the requests for a Woman's Union and for dormitories.

The feeling seems to be that if the girls had some definite place which they might call their own, corresponding to Ohio Union for the men, a greater democracy and friendliness could be attained. More unity and co-operation would be possible, it is thought, and the out-of-town students would have better opportunity to get acquainted.

Several answers asked that boarding clubs for girls be formed and that eating facilities be improved. One letter urged that scholarship be worked up to a higher standard. Another advised that a "sister" class spirit was lacking and if the same were promoted the entire campus would be helped.

"Answers are coming in every day," said Dean Conrad, "and the material will be organized and tabulated this summer."

DYNAMITE NEEDED

Before leaving the University at the close of this semester, there is one thing that must be impressed, and impressed strongly, on every officer and member of the various student organizations—in fact, any member of the student body—and that is that he must plan to return to the University primed to pitch into some real work.

Things will have to start moving with a bang on September 14 as if set off with a charge of dynamite. Some high form of explosive will be necessary to incite the action needed to put the semicentennial and the stadium across in the following month. That explosive will be concentrated spirit.

In other years it has usually taken from a month to six weeks for various organizations to hold their first meetings, to find out who is back and to get things in smooth running order. But next fall this slow process of getting under way must be replaced by rapid and certain action. The student councils, the Panhellenic Councils, Strollers, Scarlet Mask, the glee clubs and others will be called upon for creditable performances either of an entertaining or of an executive character during both the semicentennial and stadium weeks. Their reputation among Ohio Staters everywhere will be based on the way in which they acquit themselves at these times.

Come back from your summer prepared to keep your coat off and your sleeves rolled up for real work. It will not be lacking, nor must the student body of Ohio State be found wanting.

THE PROPOSED PENITENTIARY

A comparative economical report on the proposed penitentiary to be erected by the state at London at an estimated cost of $8,500,000, made recently by Gaylord C. Cummin, expert engineer, before the legislative committee on administrative reorganization, brings out some facts—startling to a certain degree—that are no doubt of interest to many who have the welfare of the state's educational program at heart.

Mr. Cummin has prefaced his report with the following statement of some of the things implied in the proposed investment for housing 2000 persons convicted of felony:

The amount to be expended is almost one-half of the total amount now invested in state institutions for the care of defectives, whose population in 1918 was five times as great as the capacity of the new penitentiary.

It is within one-ninth of the total amount invested in Ohio State University, Ohio University and Miami University, which together care for 10,000 students.

It is 37 percent of the total invested in rural schools of Ohio.

It exceeds the entire present investment of the state in correctional institutions.

The proposed conservatory will cost six times as much as the average school building and 30 times as much as the average rural school building.

The proposed administration building alone will cost nearly 50 percent more than the State House annex.

The proposed administration building, auditorium, mess hall and kitchen will cost more than the State House.

The engineer's report also brings out the fact that many employees of the state are working in unsafe, unsanitary and unfit surroundings, and also asserts that millions are needed for schools and teachers' salaries. Mr. Cummin suggests, at the close of his report, that the people of Ohio ask themselves:

"How many cities of 3000 population have a hospital costing $300,000?"

"How many cities have an auditorium costing $430,000?"

"How many free citizens worship in a chapel costing $220,000?"

Whether convicts should have better living and working conditions than the great majority of free citizens?

"Whether the state can afford better living conditions for those convicted of crime than for those unfortunate in state institutions through no fault of their own?"

Ohio State University could use an auditorium such as that proposed for the new penitentiary. The University is also in need of new buildings and more equipment for the buildings already on the campus. Some of this money could well be used for increasing the salaries of the teaching force. What will the state do? Students and others interested are waiting anxiously for the decision of the Legislature.

After reading the feature story about how the girls gossip while they are rehearsing for "The Merchant of Venice," some mean, mean cat will rise up and say: "Oh, well, they mix that in with everything they do."

Perhaps prospective Makio subscribers will heed the warning next year when it is declared that only those annuals ordered will be printed. It gives the editors too fine an opportunity to declare "I told you so."

Would it have been paradoxical if Chimes should have erroneously been credited as beginning a campaign to obtain "Big Brothers"?

The only way to knock 'em cold is to tie an ice bag around your head and go to it.

The intramural leaders are bucking the finals in baseball as well as on paper.

Nothing seems more attractive right now than a railroad time table.

What's the difference if the sun is shining? It can't be enjoyed.

I'M THE GUY

I'm the guy who tries to get in ahead of you in the lunch line.

Why shouldn't I?

I don't like to stand around and wait my turn. I've got to eat some time and you're as good as anyone to get in ahead of.

What difference does it make, anyway? Must I wait until everybody has gone through and then eat? Or try to get ahead of someone else and get thrown out? Or go up and tell the proprietor that his line is entirely too long? Or go somewhere else?

Why you object is beyond me. A fellow ought not be compelled to hang around and wait. I always look out for yours truly. That's the only way that I can see to get anywhere in the world.

Anyway, I have a 1-o'clock class every day, and if I waited for all you folks I'd be late.

Besides, it makes the proprietor feel good to see people fighting to eat at his place. If we keep on fighting he'll feel so happy that he'll give us twice as much to eat.

If you object, that's your worry, not mine. Bring a policeman with you, or a revolver, or a bayonet, or let me do as I please. So long as it suits me, it should you.

That's how I feel about it.

THE FAILURE

His eyes were two round balls of milky glass;

His cheeks were putty pinched so pallidly;

His lips were tremors of a frightened doe;

His body was a weeping willow tree.

He was John Smith, the failure—once a man

Who set the world to gossip of his power—

He was John Smith, the failure—monarch once

Who held the reins of mankind in his hour!

I found him cowering in a self-made tomb

Far from the haunts of man, with fearful breath.

I thought it strange that he should fail

This failure—though its consequence be death!

I asked him, "Man, why fear this moment so—

The pains mere failure or e'en death can give?"

And from the darkness of his tomb there came

Reply: "I fear not death—I fear to live!"

The Ohio State Co-ed

TO THE EDITOR OF THE LANTERN:

Many, or rather most, men say that all women are alike, but we think that while all women may be alike, co-eds are different. They may be put in four classes. Of course a girl in one group may have one of the attributes of another class, but on the whole they will be of a definite type. In the following four paragraphs I have pictured a girl of each kind:

The first girl is the one who, after falling on the ice, exclaims, "My goodness!" or some similar nonsensical phrase, instead of concentrating her energy on one word. This girl never makes classroom acquaintances; doesn't dance, and is always careful to make her eyes behave. Nor does she have that obnoxious habit of using slang. Instead of saying, "I have cold feet," she exclaims: "A fit of involuntary bashfulness has overswept me and I am unable to respond." She says that the effect of the latter is "infinitely more inspiring." In the classroom she makes the "profs" feel that she considers them veritable storehouses—yea, fountains of knowledge. While she may be fair to look upon, she is not the kind that the fellows leave home for. It is not that the boys wouldn't like to go with her, but she is too nice and not quite human.

Then there is the girl of the baby-doll or butterfly type. She is generally fair to look upon and dance with, but that is all. She cannot start, continue or stop a sensible conversation, and her speech consists mainly of inane, empty, void and senseless chattering. This is the girl who is forever chasing rainbows, blowing bubbles, building castles in the air and flunking midterms. She breaks a date with less regret than a dollar bill. By being sincere or sensible, she thinks she will make the Ohio State man fell out of place, and so carefully avoids anything that might even hint of intelligence. She is a nice girl, but is a little conceited, has brains in her feet and needs to sober down and get past that high-school stage before she is graduated from the University.

Now slowly, sinuously, surreptitiously and silently the vamp wriggles, writhes, wends and works her way into the limelight. Men mean nothing in her young life but a never-ending source of dates, parties, dances and entertainment. She is most insincere and her actions are not governed by convention, but only by what is necessary to keep the boys "interested." As the rich young farmer fresh from Podunk Corners stands by her side and sings her that beautiful, blithe-some and bluishful ballad entitled "Father Makes the Butter and I the Butter-fly," he looks upon her as his idol of perfect womanhood. She has now assumed the air of the sweet, innocent and unsophisticated maid of 16, who has never been kissed. The next night finds her in the company of one of our lively campus fufflers. In spite of the fact that her versatile character is easily seen, many of our misguided brethren's feet stray toward her porch. (Many of them never get farther than that.) There are few of this type, as few girls are clever enough to get away with it.

Lastly, let us consider the Real Woman. The girl who understands a fellow and never makes fun of his shortcomings. The girl who steps out with a fellow not primarily for the time he is going to show her, but because she enjoys being in his company. This girl is a pal, a good friend and meets and greets a fellow with that wonderful air of comradeship that makes him instantly recognize her as a good fellow. She need not be further described, for we all know her, though we seldom find her. When we do find her, we put woman on a higher plane, for we have met a real woman, a pal and a good sport. Such a girl is often the cause for a sudden and unexplained absence from the Ancient Order of Anti-Co-ed Cynics.

Fateful Day Arrives with a Rush and Finds Students As Usual

That last theme for English; that belated midterm which comes for those who intentionally or otherwise stayed away when the faithful ones passed through the ordeal; that notebook containing a semester's work which must be rewritten, and that swimming test for the sophomore coeds who can barely manage to keep afloat, are just a few of the little things now on the minds of the students, keeping them in a wild state of excitement as the day of the dreaded finals arrives.

Fond hopes soared high when it was thought that the examination schedule would be postponed one day because of no classes on Monday, but all these have fallen as the announcement has been made that exams would begin Wednesday as scheduled. Plans were made by many delinquents to gather a large enough mass of knowledge in that extra day before finals to put them safely across the danger line.

Midnight oil was used to advantage by most every student Tuesday night and will no doubt be burned for the next 10 days. Cram, cram, cram, has been the slogan of the student body for the past week, and now that the fatal day has arrived many a wail of "Why didn't I study a little every day?" echoes from all corners of the campus.

There are a few, however—very few indeed—who can even be polite and agreeable during this week of all weeks, for they are the ones who have hammered at the old books day after day and are now ready to thump Mr. Examination on the nose and say: "Flunk me, if you dare!"

MORE FUNDS NEEDED TO RUN OHIO STATE, SAYS GOVERNOR COX

grasp of knowledge, and his forceful, convincing manner of expression.

One is much impressed with the Governor's room in the Capitol. It is spacious, light, harmonious in style, with an atmosphere of strength, majesty and comfort. In the midst, seated at a large, smooth mahogany desk with a mass of letters and papers before him the busy Executive spends most of his time and guides the affairs of state.

Likes the Lantern.

"Yes," he continued, "I have seen the Lantern and think it is a good campus paper. Journalism as taught in the colleges is very useful to the profession. Experience is the essential thing in newspaper work, but in order to be efficient one must also have an idea of the theory. Journalism in schools provides one with actual experience supplemented with a study of the theory which is excellent training.

"I think journalism is a very congenial and profitable field for women, and great opportunities are open to them in newspaper work," he said. "Women make good in the field because they seem to have a greater instinct for news and their range of reading is wider than that of men. The newspaper of today needs the feminine touch, the woman's viewpoint, and the reflex of her mind to appeal to composite man."

Governor Cox manifests great interest in the subject of journalism for he has been a newspaper man himself for many years. He first worked in a printing office, became a newspaper reporter and was connected in the editorial capacity with the Cincinnati Enquirer. In 1898 he bought the Dayton Daily News and five years later the Springfield Press, forming the News League of Ohio.

"Co-education must be a good thing, considering the number of matches made at the University," the Governor jested, as he led the way to the door. "You University girls must not neglect to learn how to cook," he concluded good-naturedly, stepping back to receive others waiting to see him.

And so is a lot of the advertising intended to appeal to a certain class of buyers but used in a medium circulating among all classes.

The main idea in advertising is to capture the buyer. If your advertising is read only by possible buyers, the pulling power would be very nearly 100 percent.

Ohio State University students are a class of the buying power. They spend over FIVE MILLION DOLLARS in Columbus each year. Are you getting your share?
