No more butts in .public places

By Tasia Andrews Lantern staff writer

Columbus City Council overwhelmingly passed a controversial initiative banning smoking in all public places and businesses Monday.

The proposal will prohibit smoking in restaurants, bars, bowling alleys and bingo halls and will be in effect beginning Sept. 26. The vote on the ban was 5-1 with Councilman Richard Sensebrenner being the only person to vote no.

Opponents of the smoking ban are hoping to repeal it with a ballot initiative. In order to begin the process they must gather 5,060 signatures of verified registered voters. The signatures must be submitted by Aug. 19 to make it to the November ballot for voter consideration.

The law will ban smoking at business entrances and will also prohibit separate smoking areas with or without a ventilation system. Smoking will be allowed on outdoor patios only. If the patio has a roof or any overhead covering, it cannot have more than two walls. The ban also requires businesses to display "No Smoking" signs and include a phone number to report violations.

The ban does allow smoking in stores that sell mostly tobacco products. Smoking in private clubs will also be premitted, provided only members are present and the club has a D-4 liquor permit. Businesses that violate the law will receive a warning letter of the smoking violation from the Columbus Board of Health. If the business continues to violate the law it is a misdemeanor, and is administered a $150 fine for each offense.

Supporters of the ban say they are mainly concerned with the health effects of secondhand smoke in public places. They insisted the smoking ban pass to ensure the safety of others. Dr. Robert Crane, an Ohio State clinical assistant professor in the College of Medicine and Public Health and a member of SmokeFree Columbus, said people should not have to be exposed to smoke if they do not engage in it.

Hussein turned over, faces charges

By Fosnik Abrashi Associated Press

BAGHDAD, Iraq — Iraq's new authorities took legal control of Saddam Hussein and 11 key deputies yesterday, an Iraqi government statement said, setting the stage for a trial for alleged war crimes during the deposed leader's 24 years in power.

Prime Minister İyad Allawi's office said the Iraqis had assumed legal control "today, 30th June, at 10:15 in the morning." The 12 defendants are expected to appear in court today for a formal reading of the charges.

The first step has happened," Salem Chalabi, the director of the Iraqi Special Tribunal, told The Associated Press. "I met with (Saddam) earlier today to explain his rights and what will happen."

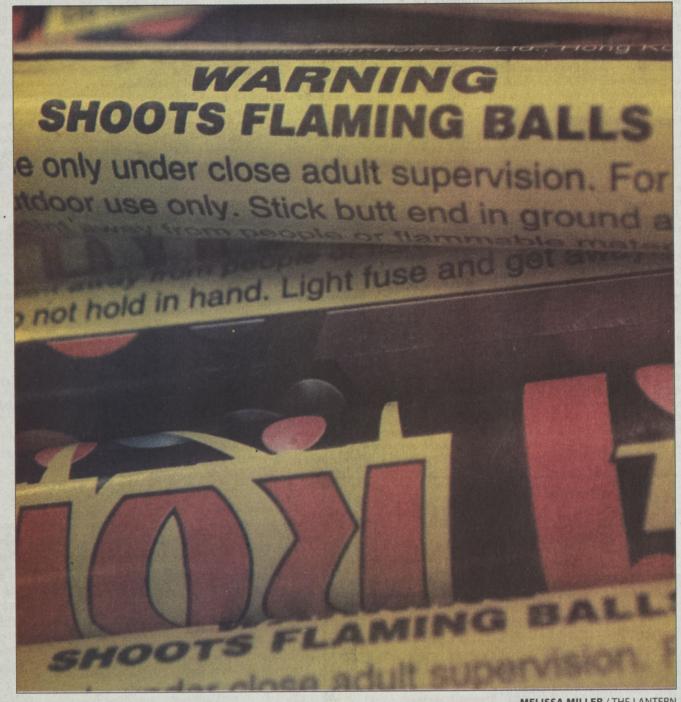

He refused to elaborate. The defendants were informed individually of their rights, said an international official who spoke on condition of anonymity. An Iraqi judge witnessed the proceedings.

Saddam, who appeared to have lost weight in confinement, said "Good" morning" as he entered the room, Chalabi said. After being informed that he was being placed under Iraqi jurisdiction, Saddam was ordered to leave the room, Chalabi added.

The other defendants also were brought into the room individually to hear that they would appear in court Thursday, Chalabi said.

"We've known for 50 years that smoking is bad, but within the past 15 years we've found more and more effects of secondhand smoke," he said. "More than 1,000 studies have shown that it causes heart attack, stroke, lung cancer, asthma and sudden infant death syndrome."

Reducing exposure to secondhand smoke could prevent many illnesses and health problems, Crane said.

'Secondhand smoke causes 53,000 preventable deaths a year and 200 preventable deaths just in the Columbus area," he said. "All of these are 100 percent preventable."

"It is anyone's decision to smoke and it should not be taken away," said recent OSU graduate Joel Custer.

When Custer heard the decision he thought it was unfair, he said.

"I think smoking should be banned in restaurants but not in bars," he said. "People go to bars knowing there will be smoke around, so if they don't want to have smoke around, then they shouldn't go to bars.'

Bars and restaurants are worried that the smoking ban will affect some of the business they receive from smokers.

'It will have an impact at some point," said Tim Klunk, Champs Restaurant and Bar manager on Olentangy River Road. "It might not affect us but it may affect small bars and little watering holes."

Klunk said he thinks people will be able to adapt eventually, but it might take time.

"I think it'll be interesting to see what happens during football season, because that's when the cigars and cigarettes are most prevalent," he said.

Following the lead of Columbus, some suburbs including Bexley, Dublin, Grandview Heights, Grove City, Powell, Upper Arlington and Worthington are also considering smoking bans in public places.

Some businesses are looking for loopholes in the ban, such as making their establishments private clubs or charities. Similar efforts to skirt the ban have failed in other places where bans have been enacted.

"Some of them looked very worried," Chalabi added.

Saddam will remain in a U.S.-controlled jail guarded by Americans until the Iraqis are ready to take physical custody of him, which is expected to take a long time.

The legal transfer means Saddam and the others are no longer prisoners of war but criminal defendants whose treatment will be in accordance with Iraqi law. The change in status gives them the right to attorneys.

Chalabi said earlier that the trials of Saddam and other senior figures likely would not begin before 2005.

L. Paul Bremer, the former U.S. administrator, said he was confident the Iraqis would handle the trials well.

Saddam "will get the kind of justice he denied his own people," Bremer told ABC's "Good Morning America.

"It's a wonderful day for the Iraqis to get him under their direct control. It will be a major event," he said.

The crimes against humanity for which Saddam is expected to be tried include the 1988 chemical weapons massacre of Kurds in Halabja, the slaughter of Shiites during a 1991 uprising in southern Iraq, the 1990 invasion of Kuwait, and the 1980-88 Iran-Iraq war.

Chalabi said Saddam's appearance at the tribunal is expected to be videotaped for public release.

The images would be the first of Saddam the public will have seen since his Dec. 13 capture by U.S. soldiers, when a clip showed the bushy-bearded leader opening his mouth for a dental examination.

The Saddam lieutenants who will also appear include Ali Hassan al-Majid, also known as "Chemical Ali"; former Vice President Taha Yassin Ramadan; former deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz; and two of Saddam's half brothers.

Already there are pretrial negotiations regarding the permission of Saddam's foreign legal team to work in Iraq, whether to televise the proceedings, and whether to reinstate the death penalty, which Bremer suspended.

Mouwafak al-Rubaie, Iraq's new national security adviser, said the trial would be broadcast live on television and radio and that the tribunal would be able to impose the death penalty.

He said Saddam would not be allowed to turn the trial into a o political game by calling witnesses such as President Bush or British Prime Minister Tony Blair.

'Saddam Hussein will be under the legal control of Iraqi law," al-Rubair told BBC. radio. 'He is going to be tried according to the Iraqi criminal code."

Preparations for the trial come at an extremely difficult time. U.S. administrators () turned over power to a sovereign Iraqi government only Monday. Allawi's government faces a relentless insurgency, and 160,000 U.S.-led foreign troops will remain.

Iraqi officials insist Saddam and the others will get fair trials. Hamid al-Bayati, Iraq's new deputy foreign minister and a leader of the main Shiite Muslim party, said there was "no chance at all" that Saddam might walk out a free man, perhaps on a legal technicality.

recognized yesterday for extraordinary acts in the line of duty.

Capt. Lawrence Francisco, Lt. Michael Burnheimer, and firefighters Stephen Bennison, James Kranyik, Scott Kulpa, Brian Morstadt, Bryan Sullivan, Barry Webster and Danny Whiteside were selected to receive "Firehouse" magazine's Heroism and Community Service Awards.

"Firehouse" is a national publication, and it sponsors the Heroism and Community Service Award program annually. The program is the largest of its kind in the United States.

During a presentation at the Columbus Division of Fire administration building, fire Chief Ned Pettus Jr. presented each of the firefighters with a medal and a certificate for their heroism.

Each year the Columbus Division of Fire nominates several firefighters for this award.

The Division of Fire submits an application along with a scenario and a drawing of the actual event to the magazine," spokeswoman Kelly McGuire said.

Once "Firehouse" has all the applications, they go before a selection committee and determine the winners, McGuire said.

Burnheimer, Kulpa and Morstadt were selected because of their actions at a house fire on 17th Avenue which killed five students. Upon their arrival at the house they were notified that there were several people trapped on the second floor. Without a hose, they entered the second floor from the rear of the house and began looking for victims.

With conditions on the floor quickly deteriorating because of high heat and low visibility, Burnheimer located a female victim and carried her to safety. He returned to help Kulpa rescue a second person, who. Kulpa found in a bedroom and then carried to the hallway as the fire was extending before him. He placed his recipients were from Toledo and body over the victim, and, with the Cambridge.

help of Burnheimer, pulled the person to safety.

Morstadt and Kulpa then car-Nine Columbus firefighters were ried out a third victim and began resuscitative efforts.

The fire flashed from the second floor just after the firefighters had exited. Burnheimer, Kulpa and Morstadt saved three lives that night.

Francisco and Sullivan were selected because they saved a man who became trapped in an elevator well, after being struck by the elevator car, which had dropped three floors. Sullivan sqeezed through a 10-inch opening to reach the victim. With minimal equipment and an unstable work area, Sullivan did emergency work on the elevator and began working on the victim. After 30 minutes the elevator was lifted 10 feet. Francisco entered the well to help Sullivan secure and rescue the man after several failed attempts to stabilize the elevator.

Bennison, Kranyik and Webster were honored for their efforts to rescue an unconscious victim in a basement filled with fumes from lacquer work. Once the victim was out of the basement the firefighters were able to revive him.

Whiteside was selected for his efforts to save two elderly women from a house fire. While visiting a relative out of town, Whiteside's wife noticed smoke and fire coming from a neighbor's house. While she called 911, Whiteside rushed into the house and, without any protection, led the women to safety. He grabbed an extinguisher and attempted to put the second-floor fire out, but the smoke and fire were too heavy. He left the house and noticed one of the women had returned to try to rescue some personal belongings. He led her to safety and then attemped to extinguish the fire two more times. When the local fire department arrived he led them to the fire.

The Columbus Divison of Fire nominated 10 firefighters for the award. There were only 11 firefighters in the state of Ohio to recieve the award. The other two

His campy one-liners and short, silly comic moments Raimi staples since his "Evil Dead" days — are more prevalent in the sequel and provide the audience with a breath of relief from the constant storm of hardships Parker continually experiences.

In particular, J.K. Simmons as J.J. Jameson steals every scene he's in with his fast-paced, 1930s-style speech and wit, and "Evil Dead" star Bruce Campbell also has another hilarious cameo.

Wilco CD unleashes excellence

By Brian Duff Lantern Editor

Few band-leaders are able to so readily redefine their sound blowing up successful formulas and rewriting their group's legacy - as Wilco's Jeff Tweedy. He joins the short list for this century, along with Radiohead's Thom Yorke, Blur's Damon Albam and a handful of other rock luminaries for artists willing to experiment for the sake of music.

Wilco's reemergence with "A Ghost is Born" is simply another striking musical choice from a group now well known for just that — the disk is surprising on many levels, but is not, in its essence, a surprise.

Following 1999's infectious and poppy turn on alt-country "Summerteeth" — a genre Tweedy helped create in the early-ninties with Uncle Tupelo Wilco's options seemed unlimited and its popularity grew. The struggle with the music label, Warner, was immortalized in the film "I am Trying to Break Your Heart,' and Tweedy became a cult hero.

Many critics considered "Yankee Hotel Foxtrot" to be the finest rock album of 2002, with its heart-wrenching lyrics and sonic ambiance to be the standardbearer for Wilco specifically, and alternative music in general.

Where "Yankee Hotel Foxtrot" was perfectly formed and almost surgical in its emotive power, "A Ghost Is Born" is airy and loose — drawing its power from languid vocals and sometimes harsh guitar dissonance. The album is airy and sweet, and while not dissimilar from Wilco's previous work, marks a change of pace for the band.

Ten minute tracks — a telltale sign of genius, or hubris occur twice on this album, and extended guitar solos pop up at odd and unpredictable times.

Tweedy, for the first time in his career, does not seem to feel pressure to produce sure-fire pop hits, and what is poppy here is organic. "Hummingbird" and "Handshake Drugs" are the most apparent "hits" and none has the pop firepower of "Heavy Metal Drummer" or "I'm The Man Who Loves You" from "Yankee Hotel Foxtrot."

Even if "A Ghost Is Born" is more organic and more comfortable, it does not inspire the same instant-classic emotion that its predecessor created. "Spiders" is an incredibly creative track, and "The Late Greats" is a gorgeous pop song, but none has the whispered maturity of "Jesus, etc." or "Ashes of the American Flag" from "Yankee Hotel Foxtrot." The reality is that few albums in the past ten years have achieved so much, and Wilco's follow up is an excellent album that stretches boundaries and is a more-thancompetent complement to its catalogue.

By Kevin Hall Lantern sports writer

In an 1-day trip that saw the best players in the Big Ten basketball conference tour around Australia, Ohio State's Jessica Davenport savored an experience that will be part of her memory forever. Davenport was part of an undefeated team that competed against foreign

For a freshman to come to a Division I college and be selected as part of the Big Ten All-Star team is unheard of, but Davenport accomplished the rare feat.

"I was excited about being able to play with the team and have a chance to go overseas. I was nervous too because it was so far away," Davenport said.

Jessica Davenport, who is 6 feet 5, towered over her opponents and played a game that was difficult to emulate. During the tour, she averaged 15 points and 6.8 rebounds and centers couldn't match her massive

"Every team played hard all the time right down to the wire," Davenport said. "I think I did a pretty good job against their centers. They were not as tall as I thought, but I think in some ways it made me work Hard work seems to be the key to Davenport's success. Davenport spends a lot of time laboring on the practice floor and in the weight room to stay ahead of the game.

"I put a lot of time into what I do to perform well on the court. It's not easy. I run, lift and play pick-up ball. When you're around good people, it makes it a little easier to get through things," Davenport

For Davenport, the trip to Australia wasn't all about basketball. It was an educational trip as well. Many people travel out of the country and can see the difference between the lifestyles of America and those of other countries.

"I would say that being 18 years old and traveling to another country was an experience in itself. I've gained cultural experiences like being able to learn how other countries live their life and seeing their basketball players compete," Davenport

Despite the grind of the Foreign Tour, Davenport had a chance to get together with the other players of the Big Ten and see what they are really like. She said the experience was

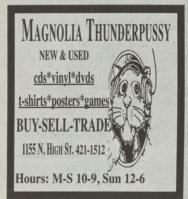

"You always play against the other players, but this time I got to spend some time with them off the court, and I got to really know their personalities," Davenport said.

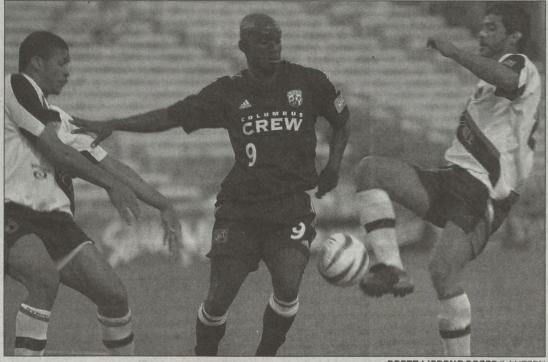

Being named to the All-Star team, traveling out of the country and touring around Australia while competing against other foreign players will be an experience Davenport will never forget, she said. Competing and playing well against other players will serve Davenport well when she competes in games alongside her Ohio State teammates, she said.

"Every time I step on the court and play, the experience in Australia will help," Davenport

Davenport graduated from Independence High School in Columbus and played in the 2003 McDonald's All-American basketball tournament in Cleveland. She won numerous awards during her high school career. She has not decided on a major, but she has decided what the goals are for herself and the team. "I'd like to continue to work hard and learn everyday. I'd like for the team to compete hard every time we play in a game," Davenport said.

Crew avoid cup catastrophe as extra time penalty wins it

By Aaron Stollar Lantern sports editor

By no means was it a pretty or perfect performance last night by the Columbus Crew, but it was just enough to win their third-round Lamar Hunt U.S. Open Cup match, 2-1, against the Syracuse Salty Dogs of the A-League.

Halftime substitute Kyle Martino was the hero when his 10 yard run in second half stoppage time was ceased violently by Syracuse defender Rene Rivas. Ross Paule stepped up confidently to take the resulting penalty kick and duly slotted it home to goalkeeper Paul Nagy's left.

Syracuse coach Laurie Calloway was blunt in his assessment of the call by referee Hilario Grajeda.

"I thought Martino took a dive," he said. "I thought we had a penalty just before that but it didn't go our way.'

Martino defended his play that led to Paule's second goal of the season.

The only arguing that was happening was from people that were frustrated at getting a (penalty kick called) in the 90th minute," Martino said. "It was a bad challenge and they

Coming on the heels of a disappointing 2-1 loss to the Colorado Rapids Saturday, the Crew hoped that this match against Syracuse would provide a chance to gain some momentum for this Saturday's Eastern Conference clash against Chicaleague one division beneath Andrulis said. Major League Soccer, came out and played a stultifying defensive game that stymied the Crew for the first 70 minutes.

Finally, Edson Buddle, who played the full 90 minutes for the third time this season, broke through the Salty Dogs' dogged defense and gave the Crew a 1-0 lead. Buddle received an inchperfect pass from Costa Rican international Erick Scott and he slammed it past a helpless Nagy. It was Buddle's third goal of the season, second in two games, and fourth in his U.S. Open Cup career.

"Scott played a great ball and I just found some space and put behind the goalie,"

Eleven minutes later Syracuse stunned the small but vocal home crowd as substitute defender Scott Schweitzer took advantage of a Jon Busch punched clearance that landed right in front of him and lashed it over the helpless goalkeeper.

"It's good to see the guys stayed after it after giving up a late goal," Crew coach Greg Andrulis said.

Scott, making only his third start for the Crew, got Columbus' first chance of the game. Syracuse goalkeeper Paul Nagy could only punch a Brian Maisonneuve cross to the top of the penalty area where Scott lashed a left-footed shot well wide of goal. Scott played until the 80th minute when he was felled by a cramp and replaced by Michael Ritch.

"He had a couple good chances and with more mingo. But Syracuse, who plays in utes he will get more of those,"

Andrulis also said Scott was named to the Costa Rica squad that will play in the Athens Olympics next month.

The Crew had some chances early on. In the fifth minute, a foul by Rivas at the top of the penalty area gave Paule a chance to swerve in the ensuing free kick. His effort curled towards the lower corner of the Syracuse goal, however, Nagy was able to dive down and punch it wide.

Just after the half-hour mark, Scott overpowered two defenders on the left side of midfield and found Manny Lagos with an incisive pass. Lagos though sent his shot wide to Nagy's left.

The Salty Dogs responded one minute later as David Lara cracked a right-footed shot just over the crossbar.

Columbus now advances on the fourth round of the 89-yearold knockout tournament that features amateur and professional teams from across the country. Columbus will face familiar MLS foes the Chicago Fire July 20 at Crew Stadium.
