

Coed Talks With Cupid, But Dart Misses Mark

By Jann Janoviak

"Tell me Cupid, is there a St. Valentine?"

This I asked of that little fellow with the bow and arrows and golden wings who is supposed to be around shooting arrows into people's hearts tomorrow on St. Valentine's Day.

"Well," said Cupid, "it's a long story. Back in about 270 A.D., there was a mean old Emperor called Claudius. And because of war times, he sent out a decree forbidding marriage. He wanted all the men to do their fighting on the battlefield. But a good priest called Valentine heard of the decree and decided to do something about it. He began secretly marrying all the lovers he could. Finally old Claudius heard about this and got rid of Valentine . . . chopped off his head, in fact."

"WELL, THE STORY goes that the lovers were so crushed about their kind preist suffering martyrdom that they wanted to show their sympathy in some way. So, in behalf of that fatal day — February 14, 170 A.D. — the lovers of Roman times began exchanging love tokens in remembrance of Valentine."

"Of course," continued Cupid, plucking idly at his bow strings, "there are other legends about the beginning of St. Valentine's Day. One is that the Norman word — 'Galantin,' the name of a saint and meaning a lover of women (or what in these slangy days might be called a masher) has had an etymological change. The 'G', through mis-pronunciation, has become St. Valentine."

"ANOTHER STORY, more plausible to the modern mind, has to do with birds. Yes, birds — love is for them you know. It seems that during the Middle Ages the official-castle-bird-watchers discovered that on February 14th the birds began their annual mating. From this pigeon cooing developed the romantic idea and ideals of February 14th."

"From whence came the idea of sending those amatory billets called valentines?" I asked.

"I was just coming to that," said Cupid, fastening an arrow in the bow. The idea of sending valentines began with the festival of Lupercalia in ancient Rome. This was a feast held in honor of Luperus the Wolf Killer who protected the Roman farmers and their families from the menacing wolves. At this festival the youth drew lots for partners for the coming year. But this pagan custom was frowned upon by the Clergy. They decided to have the youth of Rome draw lots of names of saints and to imitate the virtues of these saints for the coming year."

"BUT THE ROMAN 'beatniks' wouldn't settle for ghostly partners in heaven. They wanted earthly partners. So in time Rome went back to their pagan ways."

"As centuries passed the drawing of lots became the exchanging of love letters and love messages. Hearts, arrows, doves, frills, lace and of course scented paper became the rage of the first valentines which appeared about the 15th century. They contained some beautiful poetry

History of Radio Compiled

Two Ohio State graduate students are attempting to gather into one collection the largest body of visual materials related to American radio available in this country. They are Raymond T. Bedwell, Jr., and Joseph F. Scharrer of the department of speech.

The research project grew out of work with Dr. I. Keith Tyler, director of radio-television education at Ohio State, in January, 1958.

SINCE THEN, Bedwell and Scharrer have collected over 300 original photographs of early radio broadcasting equipment, inventors, and personalities — all taken from the private libraries and collections of the various networks instrumental in the development of American broadcasting.

THE TWO will spend time in March visiting collections in such cities as Boston, New York and Washington, to determine exactly what materials are available. Then, in June, they will start an extended research tour to photograph and catalogue materials.

Ultimately, a complete catalogue of these visual materials related to early American radio will be published, probably early in 1960.

Hines' Show Wins Praise

Metropolitan opera star Jerome Hines gave what many thought a magnificent performance at Mershon Auditorium last night. A responsive audience greeted the handsome 6-foot, 6-inch singer.

"Welcome back. I must say you look a lot better than you did the last time," he told them.

This put the audience in a mood to receive his interpretation of a light comical aria, "All You Lovely Women" by Mozart.

The distinguished basso left the audience with a superb example of operatic skill as he sang Verdi's "Ella Giammai M'Amo" from "Don Carlos."

The performance ended with an indication of Hines' ebullient sense of humor and his devotion to religion as he closed with "Let Us Break Bread Together," "He's Got the Whole World in His Hand," "Jonah in the Whale," and "Down the River."

Come back, anytime, Jerome.

1200 Sign Petitions

The Ohio Students' Party Associated last night had about 1200 signatures on its petitions asking that the University abolish compulsory ROTC, according to John Peck, Com-1, head of the petitions committee.

At that time party members had been working since 1 p.m., covering dormitories and students in afternoon classes Peck said. OSPA hopes to get a total of 5000 signatures, he added.

Most of the students contacted were in agreement with the proposed change; a few took the attitude, "I took it, so can everyone else," he said.

Inspection Proposal Snubbed by Russians

GENEVA — (UPI) — Western nuclear conference sources said that the United States and Britain had offered to give Russia complete control of the most sensitive jobs at any atomic detection posts set up on U.S. and British soil.

But Soviet negotiators, the sources said, snubbed the Western offer — apparently to head off the stationing of British and American personnel at nuclear control posts within the Soviet Union.

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN offer was reported following a new session of the Geneva three-power conference that has been meeting here since Oct. 31 in an effort to work out a nuclear test ban treaty. Today's three-hour session resulted in no apparent break in the East-West deadlock.

A Western conference source said that the Americans and the British were willing to give "all the very important and most sensitive jobs" at control posts on their territory to Russians.

These, sources said, would include the jobs of post chief, deputy chief, overall supervisor, technical division heads and all major operation personnel.

IN RETURN the Western powers want reciprocal privileges at detection posts inside Russia.

Under the reported Western plan, half of the jobs at each post in Russia would be filled by Britons and Americans. Conversely, half of the spots at control posts in the United States and Britain would be filled by Russians.

The remaining jobs would be handled by personnel from non-nuclear powers.

A GLOBAL NETWORK of some 180 control posts is envisaged to police any ban on nuclear tests.

But Soviet negotiators insisted anew today that only their nationals should man technical jobs at posts within the Soviet Union.

The two Western powers claim this would leave the way open for Soviet technicians to falsify data and cover up sneak nuclear tests.

The staffing problem, along with Soviet demands for a veto over all decisions concerning inspection and control, are the two major questions currently deadlocking the talks. A new conference session was scheduled for tomorrow.

Midshipmen Pick Queen

QUEEN CANDIDATE—Unhappy or not with military training, ROTC students aren't apt to object to pretty Sandra Lee Dunkin, Ed-1. Sandy is the Midshipman Council's candidate for queen of the Military Ball, Feb. 21, at the Union.

Strong Support Could End Required ROTC

Reserve Officers Training Corps has been discussed, debated and despised by many at Ohio State for decades. But like the weather no one has ever done anything about it.

Once again an attempt is being made by a student group to alter the requirements of the program here. Ohio Students' Party, Associated is beginning what we hope is a sincere effort to end compulsory ROTC on our campus.

The petitions planned by OSPA to be presented to the Student Senate and the Board of Trustees will show the true sentiment of the Ohio State male students. If they are dissatisfied with the compulsory ROTC program, they will sign the petitions. The petitions are the first step toward some positive action. We hope the move is also supported by Buckeye Political Party and all the male students on campus.

We believe ROTC could better accomplish its purpose of producing qualified military officers if the program were centered around only the interested students. The military program as it is now is a hardship on many of the students in the two-year program, who have no desire to go on to advanced ROTC.

There are hundreds of men who literally detest the program, but they are forced to take it in order to graduate from this university. These dissatisfied men have no desire to contribute to the ROTC classes. For them it is just a chore like pushing your car out of a mud hole, so you can continue on your way.

ROTC classes burdened with disinterested men are poor training grounds for the students who are military career minded. The apathy of the disinterested students wears off on the sincere students, and causes some of them to lose interest also.

It is logical that classes composed of men with a definite spirit and an interested attitude toward the military will provide a better training atmosphere. Needless to say the system would be more effective if it were based on a feeling of teamwork. A basketball team composed of dissenters is not a winning basketball team; the same applies to ROTC.

It must also be discouraging at times for the instructors who must endure an indifferent attitude in the classroom.

The taxpayers foot the bill for the supplies, books and depreciation on uniforms. One-half million dollars from the Air Force have helped to make AFROTC branch at Ohio State the biggest in the nation. But what does this "bigness" prove if the majority of the men don't choose to enter the advanced Air Force program?

Why is so much money being invested in a program, when all that the disinterested men may derive from the two-year program is a better sense of discipline? Many rebel against this, for they can learn the discipline lesson elsewhere, if not when they serve their national military obligation.

Last year Look magazine reported that other universities were taking a second look at their compulsory ROTC program to see if it was serving the purpose for which it was intended. These colleges are thinking about either drastically reducing or even eliminating the program entirely on their campuses.

The article claimed that most officers are leaving the service because of low pay. Capt. Charles E. McCombs, naval science professor, said last year that there did not seem to be enough motivation for the students to enter the Navy program. He also said that the attitude of the public in general about service careers is poor.

Perhaps the campaign started by OSPA is the needed spark for eliminating a program which appears to be highly undesirable to most male students. A sincere and combined effort by the Student Senate, the State Legislature and all the male students on the campus should bring about a welcome cure for the pains of many freshmen and sophomore men.

Concert . . .

Attention Alexander Brailowsky
Dear Sir:

I wanted to say how much I enjoyed your concert at Mershon Wednesday night, Feb. 4. I have rarely heard anyone play with such force and vitality. It was an exhilarating experience to hear you play.

Yes, it's a shame you had to stop playing to enable people to be seated 20 minutes after the performance started. However, you must understand that we are as punctual going to concerts as we are going to classes. Of course you were fortunate in one respect, no one, that I know of, read a book during the program, and what is more, very few people left during the middle of the program. Some day perhaps. . . .

Any way . . . Bravo, Mr. Brailowsky. Bravo for a truly magnificent night of piano music.

POWER STEERING

WASHINGTON—(UPI)—The aircraft industry has developed an electronic power steering system for supersonic fighter-bombers that makes takeoffs and landings at speed of 200 miles an hour as easy as steering the family automobile.

Planes, official publication of the Aircraft Industries Association, says conventional mechanical steering systems were too slow to cope with the high speed of the latest aircraft. A half-second delay in responding to the pilot's signal could send the jet plunging off the runway.

The new system, which was tailor-made to match the average pilot's physical reactions, guarantees complete control of the jet on the ground at all times.

To the Editor:

I have wanted to write a general reply to the letters of those general failures whose chronic complaints are regularly printed in the LANTERN. These complainers have two things in common: (1) they are frustrated people who are unable to attain their personal goals and (2) they blame their failures on everything else except their own shortcoming.

IT IS IMPERATIVE to state at this point that I am not against valid criticisms. Such criticisms are necessary for the progress of society. They grow out of keen observations, systematic deductions, and a sincere desire on the part of the commentator to initiate improvements. These criticisms must be intelligent, conscientious, and objective. Above all, the critic must be absolutely certain about the motive which prompted him to voice his opinion.

In this golden age of laziness and irresponsibility, one tends to delegate his obligations and to blame his own faults on other people and other things. More often than not, those who are complaining are trying to blame their own failures—scholastic, social, and general incompetence as a human being—on whatever comes to their minds.

In this University, one often hears complaints on bad instructors, poor facilities, bad dorm food, etc. Granted, sometimes the criticisms are valid, but most of the time, they represent noises from the incompetents.

IT GIVES ME pleasure to write a reply to Mr. Doerner's letter which appeared in Tuesday's LANTERN. Doerner stated that the Stadium Dormitories is inadequate as a men's dormitory. In his attempt to disparage the Stadium, Doerner has shown himself to be completely lacking in facts and understanding. It's a pity, for if he had lived in the Stadium a little longer, he might have learned something.

If the Stadium residents have trouble studying, how can they consistently maintain a higher point-hour ratio than any other men's dorm, than the all-men's average, and the all-fraternity average? In my capacity as a study hall supervisor in the Stadium, I have to keep outsiders away from our study areas; this happens all the time. Evidently, the Stadium men are not the only ones who feel that our dorm is conducive to study.

The Stadium Dormitories are definitely not crowded.

IF THE STADIUM Dormitories are not fit to live in, why does Woody Hayes bring his football squad to live in it year after year? Hayes has given many talks in which he elaborated the fine points and the advantages of living in the Stadium.

Although I do not always agree with Hayes' sayings, I must join him in praising the Stadium Dormitories. After careful inspection of the new dormitories, I am more convinced than ever that the Stadium is the best dorm on this campus. . . .

To the Editor:

Newspaper writing is a tough job. Like being on the proverbial merry-go-round, one may never quite catch the golden ring for a free ride on the editorial page. Weighing and balancing all conflicting opinions is difficult, if not impossible. I know. I've done it before.

You can be certain that I have violently opposed some of your past opinions and possibly will oppose some of your future ones. You may have disagreed with some of my political ideals. At least this shows that individual thought and open expression are not yet crushed on this campus.

I will say that the LANTERN has finally achieved free speech and expression in its letters-to-the-editor column and in some of its editorials. This fact seems to me to be more important than success in distribution or in advertising circulation.

"I may disagree with a man's opinion but I will die for his right to say it." Ditto in your case. Ditto for Old Doc Carroll.

Unbeaten Tankers Set For Strong Spartans

By Frank Evans,
Sports Editor

Coach Mike Peppe, though quite pleased over his team's 72-33 win over Purdue last Saturday, cautions that "this week will be the test for the unbeaten Bucks."

MICHIGAN STATE, which gave Big Ten and NCAA champion Michigan a good run for those titles last season (with second and third spot finishes, respectively) boils into the OSU Natatorium tomorrow to see what the Bucks' 6-0 record is made of.

Frank Modine

When the Buckeye aqua crack-jacks had finished Purdue, five new dual meet pool records hung in Coach Mike Peppe's office.

MSU SWIMMING INFORMATION . . . Here's a couple of swimmers to watch tomorrow when Ohio State meets Michigan State. Frank Modine, their top breaststroke, is the defending NCAA champion in the 100 and 200-breaststroke. Modine has twice lowered the NCAA mark for the 200-yard race, latest effort being 2:23.4 against Indiana.

Billy Steuart, distance freestyle, is the defending NCAA champion in the 440-yard and 1500-meter freestyle. He is unbeaten this season in the 220- and 440-yard events.

Another defending NCAA champion is Don Patterson. This freestyle spriner is the NCAA's in the 100-yard freestyle. His top time in the 100 was 22.6 against Purdue.

DEPARTMENT OF THIS AND THAT . . . Ohio State's hockey team presently first place in the Ohio Intercollegiate Hockey Association with a 3-0 mark, goes after its fourth straight win Sunday.

Track Meet on TV . . .

Davis Still Doubtful

The win over Michigan State's track team tomorrow will rely on the back of Glenn Davis . . . and at present, the double-world record holder is still a doubtful starter.

Davis, who has been bothered by a bad back for the last two weeks didn't show up for practice Wednesday night, because of the injury.

Coach Larry Snyder, discussing the meet said, "It could go down to the last event if Davis does not run."

Michigan State main hope for victory in their first dual will be in the distance runs.

The Spartans are loaded from the quarter-mile on up, especially in the two longer distance runs, the one-mile and the two-mile.

IN THE TWO-MILE, MSU will have Capt. Fordy Kennedy, a senior from Toronto Ontario. In the Big Ten meet last year, Kennedy ran the two mile in 9:04.3 as he finished second. Later that season he went on to win the NCAA cross-country championship.

Bob Lake, a junior and a letterman, will be Coach Francis Dittich's main hope in the mile. Last year, Lake ran fourth in the Big Ten meet with a time of 4:15.7.

Other good long distance men are Bob Hughes and Brian Castle. These two men were half of the Spartan mile relay team that finished second to Ohio State last year. Castle is also very good in the 440 and 600. He has run the 440 in 49 seconds.

IN THE OTHER events, the Spartans are either fair or definitely weak. They have fair strength in the hurdles and pole vault, but are weak in the high jump, broad jump, shot-put, and even weaker in the sprints.

Coach Dittich is counting heavily on Mike Kleinhans in the hurdles since it is not sure whether or not Glenn Davis will run for the Buckeyes tomorrow. In the pole, Kleinhans can vault around 14 feet. This event could be one of the closest and most exciting tomorrow since Dick Bowers of the Bucks also vaults around 14 feet.

Ohio State's track coach Larry Snyder and his thin clads will debut before WOSU-TV cameras, channel 34, for their only appearance indoors, Feb. 14, at 1:15 p.m. in the Thomas E. French Field House.

Johnny Schmidt and Don Quayle will do the commentary and color.

The sprinters will be Bob Elliot and Tom Henson. Henson is from a family that has produced two MSU track captains. Dick was captain in 1952 and his father Lyle was captain in 1927. Tom is a junior at Michigan State.

IN THE MILE RELAY, which Buckeye coach Larry Snyder says might determine the meet, the Spartans will have Castle and Hughes, holdovers from last year, for sure. Bob Lake and Tony Smith will probably be the other starters. Jim Carr and Don Marsh are also prospects.

The dual meet between the Buckeyes and Michigan State will start at 1:30 tomorrow in French Field House. Activity cards will be good for admission of students. All others must pay $1.00.

Fencers Travel to Illinois

Coach Robert Kaplan's fencers travel to Illinois to meet the Illini and the Indiana Hoosiers in a triangular meet tomorrow.

Illinois and Indiana will both be represented by experienced and strong teams and the afternoon will be a tough test for the comparatively inexperienced Bucks.

The Bucks, with a 3-5 season record, will get a good idea of their chances in the Big Ten meet in the next three weeks. After meeting Illinois and Indiana, they will go against Michigan State and Iowa not to mention Notre Dame and Chicago. The Big Ten meet will be held in the Men's Gym on March 7, and will be an excellent chance for Ohio State fencing fans to see some of the finest fencers in the country in action.

The Bucks are a young, improving team and should give a good account of themselves this weekend. By the time the Big Ten meet rolls around such men as Larry Greene, Ron Weaver, and Bill Borland should be able to pick up points for the Bucks in the sabre division. Mike Cronk and Jerry Hirschberg are improving foil men and also may be able to pick up points for the Scarlet 'n Gray.

Grapplers Host MSU In Last Home Meet

By Ken Koblitiz

The Michigan State Spartans, who face the Buckeye wrestlers tomorrow at 1:30 in the Men's Gym, are a young team like their opponents.

The Spartans lost nine lettermen from last year's squad, which had a 4-7 record. Jim Ferguson, 177; Jerry Jackard, 147; Bob Moser, 157, and heavyweight Tim Woodin are the only returning lettermen on Coach Fendley Collins' team which finished third in the Big Ten Meet last year and fourth in the NCAA.

LEADING THE Spartans is heavyweight Woodin, last year's Big Ten champ at 177 pounds, and runner-up in the NCAA meet. Another tough customer will be the 177 pounder Ferguson. After missing most of last season with a broken nose, he still managed to place third in the NCAA meet.

Moser, a junior, 9-4 last year, placed second in the Big Ten at 157 pounds. Jackard is battling Gary Johnson for the 147 pound spot, and so far holds a slight edge.

At 123 for the Spartans will be Chuck Ferrari. He will battle John Fletcher, improving Buckeye, in what promises to be a good battle.

The Bucks, in their final home appearance, will be after their first Big Ten win of the season. They appear to finally be almost over the injury jinx which has plagued them thus far this season. Students will be admitted with fee cards and adults must pay 50 cents.

Tankers Set For Spartans

Before the swimming season's initial event, Mike Peppe, Buckeye coach, said that Michigan would have no trouble taking the tank championship and would leave Indiana, Michigan State and Ohio State to battle it out for the runner-up positions. Peppe promised the Bucks would be strong.

Saturday afternoon Ohio State belted Purdue with little mercy by the same lopsided count that Michigan topped the Boilermakers earlier in the season. The victory was the fifth straight for Peppe's undefeated squad, and his sparkling sophomores, for instance Don McPhee, George Oneakea, Charlie Stagman and Don Will, are looking tougher in each successive meet.

THIS SATURDAY may tell the story of what's in the future for this season's swimmers; Michigan State will be in town for a 3 p.m. appearance at the Ohio Natatorium. The Spartans will bring an extremely tough squad, and almost the same one that last year whipped the Bucks 68-37. Last year's victory was only Michigan State's second victory in 18 tries against the Scarlet and Gray.

THE SUCCESS over Purdue Saturday put the all-time Ohio State-Purdue record at a fantastic 21-0, favor of the Buckeyes, and was the 150th win for Mike Peppe and Ohio State.

THE WEEK'S NEWS IN REVIEW

Compiled by Jaan Kangilaski

Cyprus Peace

The week's biggest story was something good.

IT LOOKED as if the drawn-out, bloody struggle in Cyprus was over.

The Greek and Turkish premiers met in Switzerland and, after negotiations, drew up a constitution for an independent Republic of Cyprus. The new republic would be free to set its own foreign policy any way it wants to — but it can never join either Turkey or Greece.

Under the new constitution, the republic's president will always be a Greek. The vicepresident will be a Turk. Both will have limited veto power.

The British, who have been ruling the island since 1878, will retain their bases there. A small Turkish force will also be stationed on Cyprus.

TROUBLE on Cyprus began four years ago when members of the Greek majority on the island took to the hills to fight for "Enosis" — union with Greece. They fought against both the British forces and members of the Turkish Cypriote minority.

Eighty per cent of the island's 527,000 inhabitants are of Greek descent. The rest are Turkish.

The fighting Greek underground (the Eoka) has not yet said what it thinks of the constitution. The Cypriote Greeks' national leader, the exiled Archbishop Makarios, has approved of it. Greek and Turkish public opinion is rather reserved on the subject. The British are expected to approve this solution.

New Faces?

A new feature was added to the routine East-West talks scheduled to take place this spring.

The subject will be the same — West Berlin and Germany in general. But there will be an addition to the debaters. The Western powers have proposed that German representatives be allowed to sit in on the talks as "advisors."

This looks like another nice bone of contention between East and West. Who will the "German representatives" be? What will happen if the West Germany government refuses to take part of any conference on equal terms with East Germany?

This spring's conference was supposed to be a sort of showdown as a result of the Russian threat to turn land approaches to West Berlin over to the East German regime. The dispute over whether Bonn or East Berlin or both represent Germany could well wreck it before it gets started — not that it could ever have accomplished too much anyway.

Dulles In Hospital

The conference, if and when it does take place, may also be different in one other respect.

John Foster Dulles may not be there.

The Secretary of State entered a Washington hospital for a hernia operation and in order to recover from effects of an old intestinal ailment. The government insisted that his absence from world affairs will last only a few weeks, but some observers in Washington said that he might well leave for good.

Dulles will be 71 on Feb. 25.

According to the Associated Press, Assistant Secretary of State Christian Herter, who may take Dulles' place at the coming conference, is confident of getting the Russians to make a major concession. This is doubtful, though, since he does not expect to yield an inch on anything either.

Joblessness

The unemployment situation was bad on both sides of the Atlantic.

In Washington, the government set the January jobless figure at 4,724,000 — over 200,000 more than a year ago when the recession was at its worst. It was the highest January unemployed figure since 1941 and an increase of 616,000 over December.

The government regarded this as a normal dip in jobs after the holiday season. President Eisenhower said that economic recovery was bound to be spotty and that things would improve as the year goes on.

At the same time, the British unemployment figure was set at 620,000 — a record for the postwar period.

"If the sender had only poetic sensibility and no poetic sense he could consult such books as the 'Ladies Polite Valentine Writer' or my favorite, 'Cupid's Annual Charter,'" he explained.

"How about any traditions involved with St. Valentine's Day?" I asked, shielding myself cautiously.

"OH MY, YES," said Cupid. "Such things as giving loved ones anonymous gifts, or presenting your family with Valentine buns still is upheld in many countries of Europe."

"One of England's oldest customs is for a young girl to pin five bay leaves, sprinkled with water, to her pillow on St. Valentine Eve. This is to induce her to see her future husband in her dreams that night."

"An Irish colleen tries to invoke a dream in which she would see her future husband too. She does this by eating a hard-boiled egg on the Eve of St. Valentine. She must do this and not speak or drink afterwards."

"Thank you very much Cupid, I must be going now," I said.

"Where are you going in such a hurry?" he asked.

"Out to buy some bay leaves, of course!" I replied.

"You won't have to," he said, as I heard the bow string twang.

"Ouch," I cried, "that's not my heart."

"Oh, well, better luck next year," he sighed.
