University presidents talk with Voinovich over cuts

COLUMBUS, (AP) — Public university presidents met privately Tuesday with Gov. George Voinovich to talk about a projected state budget deficit that could lead to a 15 percent cut in state aid for higher education.

The presidents or representatives of the 13 state-assisted universities voiced support for tax increases to forestall another round of subsidy reductions.

They said they were encouraged by the meeting they requested with Voinovich, but acknowledged they received no assurances that cuts could be avoided.

E. Gordon Gee, president of Ohio State University, said Voinovich expressed strong support for higher education.

"We didn't walk out with a check, we walked out with a commitment," Gee told reporters.

"The governor, I believe, clearly understands the issues confronting higher education and he indicated his strong support for trying to deal with our problems. I would say that I was very encouraged, and that's not rhetoric," Gee said.

President Carol Cartwright of Kent State University said tax increases were not discussed in detail, but that the presidents said

"It would be a devastating situation for higher education, just devastating. I think that the governor is very sincere in his effort to do everything he can to help avoid it (further budget cutting)."

—Regents Chancellor Elaine Hairston

they were willing to support them. "We understand that part of the solution here is creating a bigger pie. And we're willing to go to bat to help create a bigger pie," Cartwright said.

The delegation also underscored its request for lifting a state-imposed limit on the amount of tuition increases that may be imposed in the budget year starting July 1.

State law limits boosts in instructional and general fees to 7 percent or $175, whichever is greater, the Ohio Board of Regents said.

Tim Cosgrove, the governor's director of legislative initiatives, said Voinovich expressed a willingness to work with presidents to resolve the fee cap issue, but that no promises were made.

The state faces a deficit of at least $576 million after July 1. Voinovich is preparing a budget-balancing package made up of spending cuts, $200 million of increased revenues including boosts in alcohol and cigarette taxes, and welfare reform.

Regents Chancellor Elaine Hairston said the revenue package needed likely would be larger than the one Voinovich previously submitted to legislators.

Hairston said the system could not withstand a subsidy cut of 15 percent.

"It would be a devastating situation for higher education, just devastating. I think that the governor is very sincere in his effort to do everything he can to help avoid it," she said.

Organized labor puts aside past, endorses Clinton

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Organized labor is putting aside past differences with Democratic front-runner Bill Clinton and joining a party effort to rally behind the probable nominee well before the Democratic convention in July.

AFL-CIO leaders on Monday recommended endorsing Clinton. Such backing would help the Arkansas governor in union-heavy Pennsylvania, his next battleground with Jerry Brown.

Clinton heads into that April 28 contest with a huge delegate lead over Brown, which will continue to grow after his win in Virginia's presidential caucuses. Clinton won 52 percent to 36 percent for an uncommitted slate and 12 percent for Brown.

Clinton canceled campaign appearances in Pennsylvania today because of chronic laryngitis that has grounded him since Wednesday night.

His schedule now includes fund-raisers Wednesday in California and Thursday in Ohio before heading to Pennsylvania, as Clinton tries to mix campaigning with raising money — all the while under doctors' orders to keep his talking to a minimum.

Despite having given Clinton mixed reviews in the past, leaders of the 14.2 million-member AFL-CIO decided to weigh in now instead of after the convention with a perfunctory endorsement.

"Now is the time to act," AFL-CIO

President Lane Kirkland said in announcing the political committee's recommendation to back Clinton. The endorsement by the Committee on Political Action (COPE) virtually ensures that the AFL-CIO executive council will endorse Clinton at its May 5 meeting — adding steam to what party strategists say is a critical Clinton effort to rally the party before the convention.

"The earlier we are together the better because we're not going up against a nice guy," said Illinois Democratic Chairman Gary LaPaille. "George Bush and his political operation are tested and proven street fighters."

The labor backing comes as Clinton courts members of Congress and other super delegates to the Democratic convention. It could make the difference if Clinton ended the primary season slightly short of the 2,145 delegates needed for first-ballot victory.

Most super delegates are expected to endorse Clinton eventually.

But some are holding out and voicing their concerns about whether Clinton can overcome voter doubts about his integrity. Among the loudest in this group is Pennsylvania Gov. Robert Casey.

"Read the polling data, the unease of the American people and Democrats about Gov. Clinton is as plain as the nose on your face," Casey told reporters Monday. "What I'm saying is that the party disregards that at its peril."

Casey said he is urging other party leaders to "just stay loose" until the convention — a period Clinton hopes to use to solidify his support and get an early jump on the fall campaign against President Bush.

Union leaders had been waiting, largely because of Clinton's lackluster labor record. Clinton was criticized by the state AFL-CIO for advertising Arkansas as a low-wage location for overseas investment.

Arkansas also has a poor worker safety record and Clinton backs negotiating a free-trade pact with Mexico. Labor strongly opposes the free-trade agreement, fearing it will result in the loss of American jobs to Mexico.

Staff members encouraged to attend rally against cuts

By Kevin Corvo
Lantern staff writer

OSU staff members are being encouraged to show support for students by attending a rally on the Oval today at noon.

The rally is sponsored by the Council of Graduate Students, Undergraduate Student Government and the Interprofessional Students Council in an effort to make state officials aware of the severity of budget cuts on the student population.

Debbie Gill, chairwoman of the Staff Advisory Committee, asked Monday that staff members support the students.

"Students are the ones who are suffering because of these cuts. They are being closed out of classes because of the cuts," Gill said. "Academic programs are being cut. Services, such as campus bus routes, are being drastically reduced. The hours of recreational and cultural centers are being curtailed."

"We are not talking about minor inconveniences here. We are talking about some core activities and essential programs. The impact of additional cuts would be devastating," Gill said.

The rally is one of 13 campus rallies to be held around the state today. On the following Wednesday, April 22, members of the other campus rallies will convene in Columbus and participate in a march to the Statehouse.

"We want to let legislators know students are concerned about the cuts. We want to make student voices heard," Amy Bashforth, Speaker of the Assembly for USG and rally organizer said.

A phone booth will be located between Bricker and Derby Hall and will be available all day for students to call their respective legislators. There will be ten phones, and voter registration available for students.

"We are not talking about minor inconveniences here. We are talking about some core activities and essential programs. The impact of additional cuts would be devastating."

"Our main goal is to get students fired up for the 22nd, we want to get as many students as possible downtown next Wednesday," John Hilbert, USG vice president and rally organizer said.

The sponsoring student councils passed out fliers, printed advertisements in campus newspapers and relied on word of mouth for further public awareness of the rally, Hilbert said.

"USG assembly members have gone to their own colleges to get support and once we get the message out to all the students (we hope) they'll be frustrated enough to want to participate. We want to get them primed for the rally next Wednesday," Hilbert said.

"The state thinks they can continue to cut the budget without affecting the quality of our education," Hilbert said. "We have sustained all the possible cuts we can without diminishing the quality of education at Ohio State."

Preventing further budget cuts is the obvious purpose of the rally, said Herb Asher, a political science professor, special assistant to the president and the USG adviser.

"Our short term goal is to head off any additional damaging cuts. Higher education has already suffered two rounds of cuts in a disproportionate manner. Our long term goal will be to make higher education a top priority again in the state budget," Asher said.

Staff and faculty have supported the rally by personal donations to the USG to cover travel expenses to the rally downtown on April 22.

"Because university funds were not available to the students, I asked for any donations people were willing to make to help the students," Asher said. "We (USG) have received out-of-pocket voluntary contributions from staff and faculty members and administrators in the amount of about $1,300."

"President Gee said he was sending a donation to support us, too," Hilbert said.

"These cuts are affecting all of us directly, through fewer courses and higher enrollment. No tuition cap exists for graduate students and many of our associate positions such as research and teaching assistants are being cut each quarter," Sean Tipton, council president said.

Scheduled to speak at the rally are Matt Markling, president of USG, Tipton, Gill, Asher and State Representative Mike Stinziano (D-Columbus). The speakers will be convened in front of Bricker Hall.

Grad student job placement policies differ

By Kevin Corvo
Lantern staff writer

Graduating OSU graduate students will find each department has different job placement policies.

The graduate school at the Political Science Department has a policy of choosing and nominating one graduate student for a single placement position, said John Kessel, placement coordinator for the Department of Political Science.

"The intent of the policy is to prevent Ohio State students from drumming out other Ohio State students for the same position, but there are numerous exceptions that makes this policy far from being inflexible," Kessel said.

Political science graduate students are notified of openings in a newsletter published by the American Political Science Association, Kessel said.

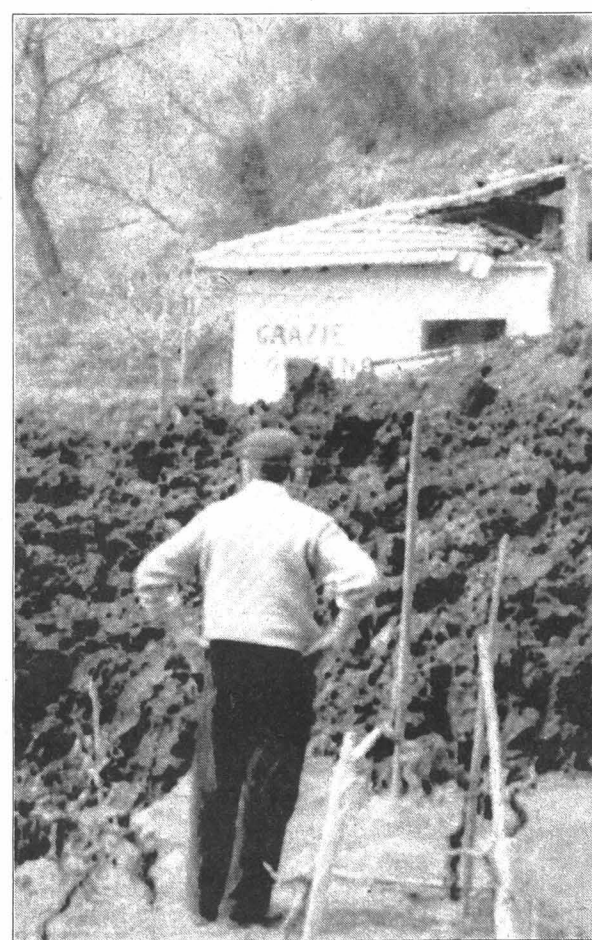

"Students approach us with their choices of placements and we try to determine whom is best qualified for the positions," Kessel said.

Often more than one student is eligible for the same job, Kessel said. However, the employer is sent only the file from the first student who applies.

"If the school requests the file of a particular student they know of or ask for more than one file for the same placement we always oblige," Kessel said.

Shannon Smithy, a political science graduate student who will be working at the University of Pittsburgh in January, said she is pleased with the placement process within her department.

I'm for reform, DeWine says

COLUMBUS, (AP) — Lt. Gov. Mike DeWine, a former congressman, said Tuesday he would push for reforms to restore public confidence in Congress if he is elected to the U.S. Senate.

"Quite simply, the system in Congress is broken. My proposals are designed to fix it," he said at a news conference.

None of his reforms dealt with special membership privileges, although he indicated he would propose some later.

DeWine earlier disclosed that while serving from 1983 to 1991, he wrote 31 checks on the House bank without sufficient funds. But he said he did so inadvertently and later made them good.

DeWine proposed cutting congressional staff by 50 percent and making Congress subject to laws that apply to others but not its own members. He also said there should be fewer committees.

"Introduction of these proposals will be my first order of business as Ohio's U.S. senator," said DeWine, who seeks the Republican nomination June 2 to run against Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, in the Nov. 3 election.

DeWine said congressional staff totaled 4,072 in 1950. It had grown to about 10,000 in 1970 and today totals more than 40,000, he said.

He listed the number of committees and subcommittees at 280 and said the average senator serves on 12.

Many have overlapping meeting schedules, meaning all cannot be attended and senators lack time to study issues, he said.

"It is little wonder that in the last Congress, 6,973 bills were introduced and only 3 percent became law," he said.

DeWine said Congress enacts laws that affect individuals, companies and government agencies but not its own members.

As examples, he cited civil rights laws that do not protect congressional employees, laws on wages, hours and overtime; age discrimination, privacy and statutes that ban conflicts of interest but for not members of Congress.

"These are fundamental changes that I am calling for. This is not nibbling at the edges," he said.

DeWine said that while he was in the House, staff reductions were proposed unsuccessfully "and I voted for them time and time again."

The difference today, he said, is public disenchantment with Congress.

"There is really a window of opportunity. I have never seen things so ripe for change. We have to seize that opportunity in 1992 and in 1993 with a new Congress," he said.

Dale Butland, Glenn's campaign spokesman, said DeWine showed no enthusiasm for reforms when he served in Congress.

He said Glenn introduced a proposal in 1978 that, perhaps unknown to DeWine, already extends civil rights protections to Senate employees. Butland said the Senate has no say over the House in such matters.

Butland also said Glenn has been fighting to reduce staff and has returned $325,000 of his staff appropriations since 1985.

"At the beginning of each year, students who are going to be on the job market attend a placement meeting where students receive instruction from the department about how to prepare," Smithy said.

In the history department, graduate students can go to the Homer Hockett Library and find a listing of job openings in the national market for history graduates. Students are eligible to apply for any position for which they feel qualified.

In the mathematics department, graduate students receive employment information in "Employment

Information in the Mathematical Sciences."

Advisers play an important role in job placement, said Phil Huneke, vice-chairperson and professor of the mathematics department.

"Advisers may know of a professorship at some university and know of a graduate student at our university that has a specialty in that field. They can help students find openings that match their specialties," Huneke said.

"Job openings are made available to students through a publication by the American Economic Association," said

Masanori Hashimoto, director of graduate studies for the department of economics.

Anthony Libby, director of the graduate program in the department of English said, "This is a terrible year in the job market. During the 1980's there was much positive speculation about the job market in the 90's, but that just didn't happen."

The Modern Language Association publishes a job list for students in the department of English and students are responsible for taking their own initiative.

Children explore campus with computer

How would you like to help OSU President E. Gordon Gee find his bow tie?

A computer program, designed by University Systems, enables youngsters at the Center of Science and Industry to play a game, which gives them clues to find Gee's bow tie while exploring the Ohio State campus.

"Ohio State is revealed as a leading institution for teaching, research and public service," said Egondu Ezirim Onyejekwe, director of multimedia services at Ohio State.

"We wanted a new public image and used the resources already available," she said.

Touch Ohio State is an interactive computer system that will also be featured in the Ohio State building at AmeriFlora. The program was developed to answer the questions of prospective students who are considering visiting the campus or answer general questions about programs or activities at the university.

Touch Ohio State is part of a larger program called University Front Door Systems. This system is unique in that the user is in complete control of what is on the screen, Onyejekwe said.

This system is different because it is interactive, yet computer-based, using laser technology, which integrates video, still images, audio, graphics, graphic animation and text.

By touching the computer screen "doors" open up to topics such as careers, campus life and reasons why one should attend Ohio State.

A television monitor then plays a short video corresponding to the choices made. This type of personal contact with Ohio State eliminates the bigness of the campus, Onyejekwe said.

This is the first contact a person should make with the university and therefore should tell the story of Ohio State in an encapsulated version leaving the person with a profile of what OSU is all about, she said.

"We've had very positive comments and feedback about Touch

Ohio State," said Heather Weigand, director of media relations at COSI.

Ohio State has been a sponsor of COSI for 10 years and the new program is an upgrade in computer technology, she said.

"We must dare to be imaginative and creative in the creation and dissemination of knowledge. We must be at the cutting edge of learning at all levels," said Gee in Access Line, University Systems' newsletter.

Using Gee's motto "do more with less," this project cost Ohio State almost nothing and yet it is high tech, cutting edge and very popular, Onyejekwe said.

The program was first put into effect by Gee, who originally gave University Systems a time frame of six months to complete the project. With hard work and utilization of resources, the project was completed in three months, Onyejekwe said.

This campus is enormously rich with intelligent and hard-working people that enabled us to combine efforts to do things that aren't possible for any one department to do, she said.

"The whole system at COSI is geared toward kids using colors and graphics," said Mike Fulmer, program analyst at University Systems.

For AmeriFlora, Fulmer said, the target audience will be more international and the system will be changed to adapt to fit these needs.

The amount of text on the computer screen will be eliminated and a voice over installed. The still images will be cut drastically, allowing more time for moving pictures related to the topic chosen, he said.

The user's choices are recorded to note which paths are used most frequently, enabling Fulmer to make adjustments accordingly. "The system asks two questions, age and gender, and stores this information so we can continually upgrade for the user," Fulmer said.

Future plans for Touch Ohio State include a location at the Ohio State building at AmeriFlora, which opens June 1. The Ohio State Fair is the next project on their list.

Student's project used in campaign

By Margie Franklin
Lantern staff writer

A brochure designed by an OSU student has been selected for publication and distribution by the American Cancer Society. It will be used in a campaign to promote educational resources to Franklin County elementary and secondary school teachers.

Rachel Cotrell, a senior in journalism from Lima, created the brochure as a final project in her Journalism 311 class, The Graphics of Communication.

Cotrell's brochure was selected from 10 to 15 of the best designs presented to the Society. More than 100 Journalism 311 students submitted final projects.

"I'm really happy that they chose my design because they could have used my design in combination with elements from various other ideas submitted, but they chose my design in its entirety. I'm pleasantly surprised," Cotrell said.

Candy Rotolo, public education director for the Franklin County Unit of the American Cancer Society, said the brochure will be used to inform teachers of the availability of teaching aids such as movies, health kits, brochures about breast self-examination and smoking, as well as information covering a range of general health topics.

Rotolo said selecting a brochure from among those submitted was a difficult task.

"The selection committee and our executive committee looked at it, and we think it's very, very creative," Rotolo said.

"We haven't had a brochure in the past. We really needed a professional piece. We're very, very excited to have one now," she said.

David Richter, associate professor of journalism, is also pleasantly surprised that the work of one of his students was selected.

"It gives the students exposure to a 'real' project. It's nice because when they see it's a 'real' project they put in more effort," he said. "It also gives them something for their portfolio, and it's good practice."

Although students are not compensated for their design, Teaching Assistant Ken Stammen thinks Cotrell has shown a creative flair as an illustrator and put in a lot of hard work.

"In a recession, compensation might be nice, but here we have an undergraduate, who is taking a 300-level class, get something published. It's great. It's good for her and for our school," he said. "She did a really solid, good job."

Cotrell's design is a well-illustrated brochure using the The American Cancer Society's sword emblem in six-panel, fold out style. These elements are taught by Richter and his teaching assistants in the graphics classes.

Richter has presented student designs from his graphics classes to several organizations for publication in the past. "The Consortium of Popular Culture Collections in the Midwest picked one in 1990, and we've had brochures selected by Friends of the Library and AmeriFlora," he said.

Human rights vigil to raise awareness

By Sue Sowa
Lantern staff writer

The OSU chapter of Amnesty International begins a 36-hour vigil for human rights today at noon on the Oval.

"The event is meant to raise consciousness about human rights issues," said Angela Pitts, president of Amnesty International OSU.

Amnesty International's goal at the vigil is to collect 3,000 signatures on petitions for 10 different human rights violation cases worldwide, Pitts said.

A copy of each petition will then be sent to the U.S. ambassador in each of the nations where a violation is occurring, she said.

A copy of the petition will also be sent to an official in each country, Pitts said.

Pitts said sending the petitions will make those countries involved in human rights violations aware that the public knows of their actions.

It will embarrass these nations and make them look bad, Pitts said.

The vigil is composed of several events which include: a candlelight vigil at 8 p.m. on the Oval; a death penalty discussion Thursday at noon on the Oval, (rain site is Room 222 in the Ohio Union); and a speech by Dr. Rick Scarnati Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Buckeye Rooms A and B to close the vigil.

Scarnati will speak on psychiatric abuses past and present in the former Soviet Union.

Popular jazz band plays the Palace

By Monica Lisle
Lantern staff writer

Jazz guitarist Pat Metheny and his band, the Pat Metheny Group, will be in concert at 8 p.m. at the Palace Theatre.

During tonight's performance, Metheny and the seven-member band will be playing music from past albums, mainly emphasizing the last four: "Song X," "Still Life (Talking)," "Letter From Home" and "Question and Answer."

If an artist's talent can be measured by the amount of awards bestowed, then Metheny is certainly one of the best jazz musicians around.

Metheny, 36, began his professional career at 15. He has recorded 16 albums and has received more than 80 awards, including six Grammys and eight additional Grammy nominations.

Being nominated and receiving awards is a great and flattering feeling; however, it is not the most important reason for recording music, Metheny said.

"The best award for me is to get the acceptance and praise of other musicians that I play with or admire. That's the only thing I can trust," he said.

Metheny said it's sad music has become so regimented and divided. It was seen as a political issue, not appreciated because of love for music, he said.

"There's so much good music in the world. It's really a shame most people say, 'Well, I like jazz, or I like pop, or I like rock.' To me, music is more about music than it is anything else. There's a lot of it that's really good, and it's usually not defined by style," he said.

While enjoying a successful career in the United States, Metheny said he and his band also are popular in Europe, Italy, Japan and South America.

"One of the things that is great about our music is that there are no lyrics. We can play for people everywhere, and they can respond to it. There's no communication problem," he said.

Metheny said he can remember great experiences playing all over the world, especially in the former Soviet Union.

In 1987, he became the first American musician to do an extensive tour of the Soviet Union.

"It was just after the Perestroika thing started and there was this incredible optimism in the air. It was very exciting," he said.

Metheny said that at the young age of 15 he began receiving phone calls from great, older jazz musicians who wanted to hire him to play with their bands.

During his career, Metheny has had the chance to play with many of jazz's best musicians, including Sonny Rollins, Herbie Hancock and Steve Reich. He has also written tunes for David Bowie and Jon Mitchell.

Also included in Metheny's credentials is a list of scoring projects ranging from movies to ballets. He has scored such movies as "Arachnophobia," "Fandango" and "Falcon and the Snowman."

Metheny is finishing a new album that will be released in July. He will be touring in September to promote the new album and said that Columbus will most likely be one of the cities scheduled.

Coffee House is no meat place to eat

The King Avenue Coffee House is much more than its name might suggest.

Tucked away on King Avenue just east of Neil Avenue, this restaurant offers a varied menu of vegetarian victuals, the largest list of teas this reviewer has ever seen, along with one of the best cups of coffee around.

Decidedly alternative in character, The King Avenue Coffee House bills itself as "the no-meat place to meet to eat." It is casually chic with ceiling fans and a slightly worn look that makes it look as if it would be more at home in New York's Greenwich Village than in the campus area of The Ohio State University.

The host and hostess, with their bored expressions and don't-bother-me-now attitudes complete the New York effect.

The menu at King Avenue offers an eclectic blend of vegetarian fare that would work equally well for meal or just a snack.

There are sandwiches such as the watercress club for $4.35; cheese melts with a choice of white Cheddar, Muenster, Swiss or smoked baby Swiss served with lettuce, alfalfa sprouts, red onion or cucumber for $3.65; and the baba ganouj pita, a blend of egg plant, organic tofu and tahini for $3.35.

There are selections such as marinated tofu over rice noodles, described in the menu as organic tofu marinated in rice-wine vinegar, sesame oil, garlic and soy sauce with red chili peppers and brown sugar served over bifun noodles and a brie cheese plate with apple slices and spinach garlic bread for $4.25.

There are also some breakfast-type offerings such as scones, Irish soda bread and cinnamon current toast, all about $1, which would also be good with a cup of tea or coffee for a mid-afternoon or late-night snack.

For those with more of a hunger, The King Avenue Coffee House also offers a more substantial fare, which is what my dinner companion and I sampled.

I chose the chili served over blue corn chips accompanied with guacamole for $5.95, preceded with a tabouli salad, which is a mix of bulgar, parsley and mint blended into olive oil and lemon for $2.00.

The tabouli used a coarsely ground bulgar and had a strong mint taste.

The chili was served heaped over the blue corn chips with a sprinkling of Swiss melted on top with a dish of guacamole served on the side.

King Avenue's chili is made with organic pinto beans, fresh mushrooms and green peppers seasoned with anise and chocolate to create a piquant mole flavor not often found in chili around Columbus. The guacamole was very creamy, but had too much lemon juice, giving it a slightly sour taste.

There is also a daily pasta on the menu, which on the evening of our visit was spinach fettuccine with herbed cream sauce served with salad and a whole wheat roll and was the entree of choice for my dinner companion.

While reasonably priced at $5.25 the pasta special did not make for a satisfying dinner as the herbed sauce was not adequately seasoned leaving it bland in flavor. Also the whole-wheat roll was soggy and flavorless from being steamed too long.

The final course of the evening meal proved that King Avenue is truly deserving of the title "coffee house," as I sampled a cup of cafe au lait and found it to be a very enjoyable cup of coffee.

Overall, The King Avenue Coffee House fell short of expectation because of several inconsistencies in food and service.

While the coffee was first-rate and the chili quite good, the fettuccine with herbed cream sauce was a disappointment. And while our server was friendly, service overall was slow and disorganized.

With so many franchise operations around town, The King Avenue Coffee House offers a welcome alternative.

ALBUM REVIEW

drums.

"It's our goal, with every record, to create an hour or so of headspace for people to go to and relax. That's all it is," said guitarist Rick Savage in a press release.

However, it would take a deaf person to be able to relax to Def Leppard's repetitious hard rock music.

The first song on the album, "Let's Get Rocked," has already grabbed a lot of airtime and will probably become their first hit off the album.

This is because of the abundance of Def Leppard fans who still think they're in the 80's and want to hear that same Def Leppard music.

The band was set back in 1991 when guitarist Steve Clark died from taking a lethal combination of alcohol, anti-depressants and painkillers, according to the press release.

Phil Collen replaced Clark on guitars to help finish Def Leppard's recordings.

Def Leppard was a successful band in the 80's, but they need to do more than sing songs about women if they want to become a success in the 90's.

Attention hard rock fans: Def Leppard has finally come out with another new album, named Adrenalize.

Def Leppard's last album, Hysteria, was released three years ago. Adrenalize is only their third album since 1983.

Listeners who liked Hysteria should dust it off and listen to it again. It could save money and the time of buying Adrenalize.

If Def Leppard was going to take three years to come out with a new album, they should have at least come up with something that sounds new and original.

In fact, the popularity of the 10 tracks on Adrenalize will rely on old fans who want to hear that same Def Leppard sound of heavy vocals drowned out by thundering

New doctor series has potential

NEW YORK (AP) — If caring, sensitive, compassionate doctors are alien to your experience, you can at least see them on TV if you tune in to "The Human Factor," premiering Thursday on CBS.

The one-hour drama set in a Chicago teaching hospital stars John Mahoney as Dr. Alec McMurtry, who teaches medical students about the emotional component of the doctor-patient relationship, the — you guessed it — "human factor."

It's McMurtry's job to get his students to see their patients not as a collection of symptoms needing diagnosis but as human beings with lives, families, goals, projects and emotions.

Is this fantasy? Maybe not. Most medical schools nowadays require third-year students to take an "Introduction to the Patient" course, said John Mankiewicz, the series' creator and, with Dick Wolf and William Sackheim, a co-executive producer. He also wrote the pilot script.

"I thought it would be interesting to have that class taught by someone like Alec McMurtry," Mankiewicz said, "a doctor who understood the importance of basic humanity, empathy, communications skills — and refused to let those values and skills be considered as grace notes in a medical education."

The premiere episode opens with McMurtry lying in a hospital bed with oxygen tubes in his nose. One by one, the medical students come in and inform him of various diagnoses, all of them terminal.

"As a class," he fumes during his critique, "you have about as much sensitivity as George Steinbrenner."

This first episode suggests that "The Human Factor" has tremendous potential, and tremendous potential problems.

The problems are inherent in the nature of the show. It has a traditional (some would say tired) structure of an "A" storyline and a "B" storyline, both of which are resolved by the final credits.

The "B" story concerns a little boy with a defective heart valve. His deeply religious parents cannot allow him to undergo a surgical procedure to correct the defect. The boy has perhaps a month to live.

The parents alertly obtain a restraining order to keep McMurtry and his ilk away from their son. McMurtry's considerable efforts to save the child include a visit to the district attorney's office.

The "A" story is much better, even though it's that old chestnut, Med Student Falls in Love with Dying Woman.

The story is deeply touching, thanks to the fine acting of series regular Kurt Deutsch as the med student, Matt Robbin, and Trini Alvarado as Betsy, the young woman. Her passing is a two-hankerchief story.

Students' art at exhibition

By Anna Welch
Lantern arts writer

The Undergraduate Juried Exhibition, now showing at the Hopkins Hall Gallery, features works by students in the department of art chosen by three jurors.

The exhibit features works of different mediums, including painting, ceramic and wood.

Students with exceptional works were presented with awards and scholarships from the department of art. The jurors were Debra Priestly, Bonnie Biggs and Ed Colston.

The Juror's Choice Award went to a mixed-media exhibit by Callie Schmeltz titled "I Am a Liar and a Thief." Schmeltz half-filled a red wheelbarrow with silverware with tags tied to them. On the tags are statements such as "You look good in braces," and "I want to live to be 80." On the wheelbarrow, Schmeltz explains why she is a liar and a thief.

Dana Schmalenberg was awarded a Juror's Merit Award and a Robert and Marion Gatrell Cash Award for her work, "A Woman's Work is Never Done: F, B*, C*." A television continuously plays cheerful music and three segments of a woman doing household chores, with the scenes broken by a word beginning with B, C or F, such as behave, contempt or faithful.

Three stands next to the television hold folded clothes in a laundry basket, a mixing bowl with a flour and water mixture, and a plastic wash tub with cleaning supplies.

An honorable mention and a Robert and Marion Gatrell Cash Award went to Xan Paley for "The Sugar Cross."

The large cross, made of sugar cubes, glows from the neon light inside it. Strands of icing run along the four tiers that support the cross and at the intersection of the cross.

The exhibit showcases the talent and creativity of art students at Ohio State. The variation of the mediums used provides an excellent opportunity to see the diversity of artistic expression.

The Undergraduate Juried Exhibition is showing at the Hopkins Hall Gallery until Friday. Gallery hours are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

AIDS photos displayed

By Cecile Bishara

An exhibition of 43 black and white photographs depicting AIDS victims and their loved ones will be displayed to educate the public today through June 7 at the Wexner Center.

It is hoped this exhibit, "Brian Weil: The AIDS Photographs," will promote discussion at "Gallery Talk." There will be a presentation led by Weil 4 p.m. today at the Wexner Center.

"Gallery Talk" is organized by the Education Department Programs, which will also offer a lecture series and a panel discussion, co-sponsored by AIDS Coalition to Unleash Power, OSU AIDS Education and Outreach Committee, and the OSU Bisexual, Gay and Lesbian Alliance.

"Brian Weil: The AIDS

Photographs" is a traveling exhibition of photos taken in Haiti, Thailand, the Dominican Republic, the United States and Africa.

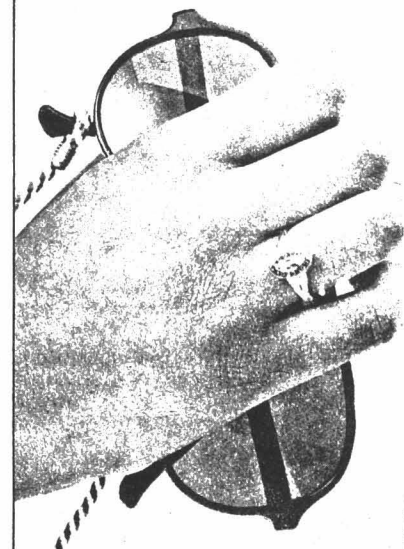

The images focus on the humanity of the people involved, said Darnell Latt, public relations coordinator for the Wexner Center.

Because the disease is generally shocking and connected to a certain image, the photographs portray the victims as people, not things, making it easier for the public to handle it, Latt said.

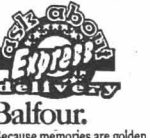

"The exhibition deals with one of the most critical issues that we live with today," said Sarah Rogers-Lafferty, curator of exhibitions for the Wexner Center.

The former curator of exhibitions at the Wexner Center had the idea to bring the exhibition, originated by The International Center of Photography, New York.

Women's golf team dedicated, improving Cleveland fan familiar with disappointments

By Barb Peck
Lantern sports writer

There are big changes going on in the OSU women's golf team.

The team has switched coaches, changed attitudes, adjusted its swings and improved this season.

"Our attitudes have changed a lot," said senior Alyssa Lynch. "We're all more dedicated than before. Compared to the years before, it's a lot more organized."

The Buckeyes have improved 10 shots a round this year and 30 shots a tournament, said first-year OSU Head Coach Therese Hession.

In the fall of 1990, the team's top finish in a tournament was fifth place. In the fall of 1992, with Hession, they had second, third and two fourth place finishes.

"We worked on some mechanics with their swings, a lot of course management and a lot of different strategies instead of just hitting the ball," Hession said. "I think basically that's the difference."

"We've overall improved our short games, cut down strokes, have better course management and have better team bonding," said sophomore Adriana Prieto. "Before there was more competition in the team and now we feel (we work) as a unit . . . against other teams."

To help them with the weaknesses in their game, Hession requires each player to keep a stat sheet during their tournament. She then analyzes it and designs practices and drills that concentrate on weaknesses, she said.

"Their practices are pretty structured," Hession said. "Each day they know what they have to do, and I can go out and play a few holes with other girls. It is very important to make the most out of their time so they can improve the most."

Hession also had the team working out all winter with goal sheets, freshman Linda Ulliman said.

"We had conditioning . . . that not only got us in shape, but brought us together as a team," Prieto said.

The team came off the winter break a few weeks ago and headed for the South Carolina Invitational.

"The first round of South Carolina we had our highest round of the year, but it was also the first round we had played in four-and-a-half months," Hession said. "The second day we shot 302, which is the lowest round we had all year. It wasn't that they weren't prepared. I think they were just a little nervous getting back out into the routine of competition."

The team then went to the Indiana Invitational and placed fifth out of 15 teams.

This weekend, the team is heading to the Southern Intercollegiate Invitational in Athens, Ga.

"There is going to be a pretty good field of teams down there," Hession said. "If we finish in the top five or six, it will be a good tournament for us. There is probably going to be ten teams (ranked) in the top twenty down there."

The Buckeyes are ranked 37th in the nation and hope to finish in the top thirty with a win at the Lady Buckeye Invitational April 24-26 and a strong showing in the Big Ten Championships, Hession said.

"If we could win the Big Ten that would give us a birth in Nationals because they have to represent each region," Hession said. "That's definitely where we have our eyes set."

Indiana is the only Big Ten team that is ranked above Ohio State.

"There's only two other coaches in the nation that have tour experience, so I think I know more than the average coach as far as helping their golf swings and golf course management," Hession said. "Hopefully, I'm setting up practice routines that will help improve their scores."

"There's a lot of goals for us and dedication that is going to effect us and help us," OSU freshman Heather Haas said. "We're the start of something new."

Scott Kendrick
SPORTS
COLUMNIST

Yes, northeast Ohio sports fans, it's that time again.

Time for another Cleveland sports team to take us to the brink of a championship before choking in front of the nation, making Cleveland teams the butt of everybody's jokes.

Do you detect a note of bitterness? Well, believe me, it's not unfounded. As a lifelong Cleveland sports follower, I can speak for the millions of us out there—we are sick of it.

Is there another town that has had as much sports heartbreak as Cleveland? Not since the 1964 Browns has Cleveland won a major sports title, and many times the teams have flirted with success before floating back to mediocrity.

This time it's the Cleveland Cavaliers, who haven't had much experience disappointing us, but are nonetheless guilty.

This might be painful, but let's refresh the memories of those that got away:

1. The 1954 Cleveland Indians. This choke, which happened nearly 40 years ago, is way out of the thoughts of 99 percent of the people who are reading this, but it's still a great example.

The Indians were unstoppable during the regular season, winning an unbelievable 111 games in a 154-game season—a record that still stands today. But all of that meant nothing when Willie Mays and the New York Giants swept the Tribe in four straight in the World Series.

2. "The Drive." In 1986, Cleveland was crazy with excitement, as the Browns appeared to be on their way to the Super Bowl. Radio stations were making up songs, Bernie Kosar was made out to be a god, even little, old ladies were caught up in the excitement. But, John Elway led the Broncos on a 98-yard drive in the fourth quarter of the AFC Championship Game, and many Cleveland sports fans were treated for a bad case of heartbreak, especially a 15-year-old living about 50 miles south of Cleveland Stadium.

3. "The Fumble." See above, except this one probably hurt even more. The only difference was that this game was played in Denver, and a furious second-half comeback by the Browns came up short when Earnest Byner fumbled the ball on the three-yard line in the closing minutes. It was Denver who got to go to the Super Bowl again.

4. "The Shot." Most people haven't had great reasons to dislike Michael Jordan until now, but Cleveland fans have. The Cavs beat Chicago every time they played them during a 57-win regular season in 1989, but the Bulls rallied in the playoffs to force a deciding fifth game.

In that infamous game, it looked like the Cavs would win when Craig Ehlo scored on a back-door layup with just seconds to play. But Jordan hit a double-pump, 20-footer at the buzzer, and the Cavs were sent home for the summer. Even now, television producers love to shove that one down our throats by showing the shot over and over as part of every NBA highlight clip.

So now it's time again. This year's version of the Cavs is very similar to the one that stumbled four seasons ago.

Cleveland has the third-best record in the league, and will have home court advantage in the first two rounds of the playoffs, which begin next week.

Talentwise, the team is on par with any in the league. Brad Daugherty is a dominant center, one that could be on the Olympic team. Mark Price is one of the league's best point guards after coming back from a serious knee injury. Larry Nance is one of the most underrated offensive players in the league, and has always been a great shot blocker. John "Hot Rod" Williams is one of the best sixth-men in the league. And Ehlo, another unsung hero, should be back from an ankle injury which has kept him out of action for the past month.

These are all great reasons why the Cavs could and should make a run for the championship. But we've seen it all before.

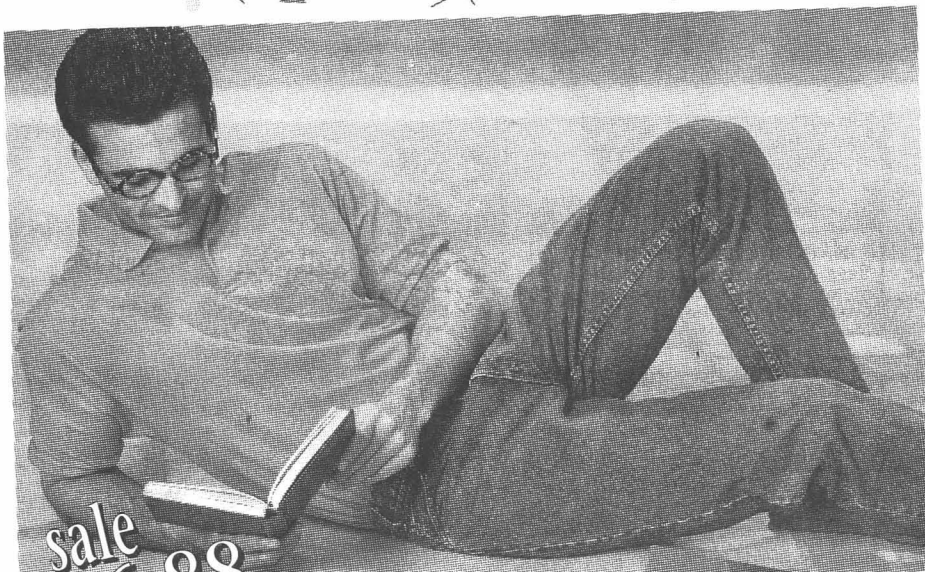

Maybe this will be the year when a Cleveland team could bring home a title, or at least live up to its potential.

Or, it could be another stab in the heart to all Cleveland fans if another team fails us again.

Isaiah 9:6-7 For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the LORD of hosts will perform this.

Eph 3:14-21 For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, That he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, May be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; And to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulness of God. Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us. Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

Cheerleaders rank ninth at competition

By Dawn Marinacci
Lantern sports writer

The OSU varsity cheerleading squad is ranked ninth in the nation after competing in the National Cheerleading Championships in San Antonio, Texas last weekend.

Fourteen squad members traveled to Sea World in San Antonio, where they performed a two-minute and twenty second routine that consisted of at least one cheer and one sideline. The remaining time was used to perform pyramids and tumbling and a dance that only the women performed.

The competition began on Friday with rehearsal. This allowed them to get used to the lighting, the atmosphere and the crowd. There was no formal judging involved in the rehearsals. The main purpose was to get the squad to feel comfortable and relaxed. The actual competition began at noon on Saturday.

There were a total of three divisions competing in the Nationals: Division I, II and I-A. Ohio State is categorized as the Mid-Atlantic region in Division I-A. The Kentucky Wildcats took the championship title for that division.

The squad made a videotape in February that consisted of a cheer, a sideline, the traditional fight song and a two-minute crowd participation segment. The segment included two minutes of their best performances. It could be composed from football or basketball games or an outside event.

After the tape was reviewed by the judges, Ohio State was selected as the first-place winner for the Mid-Atlantic region and the overall leader for the remaining three regions, which are the South, East and West regions. This qualified them for finals.

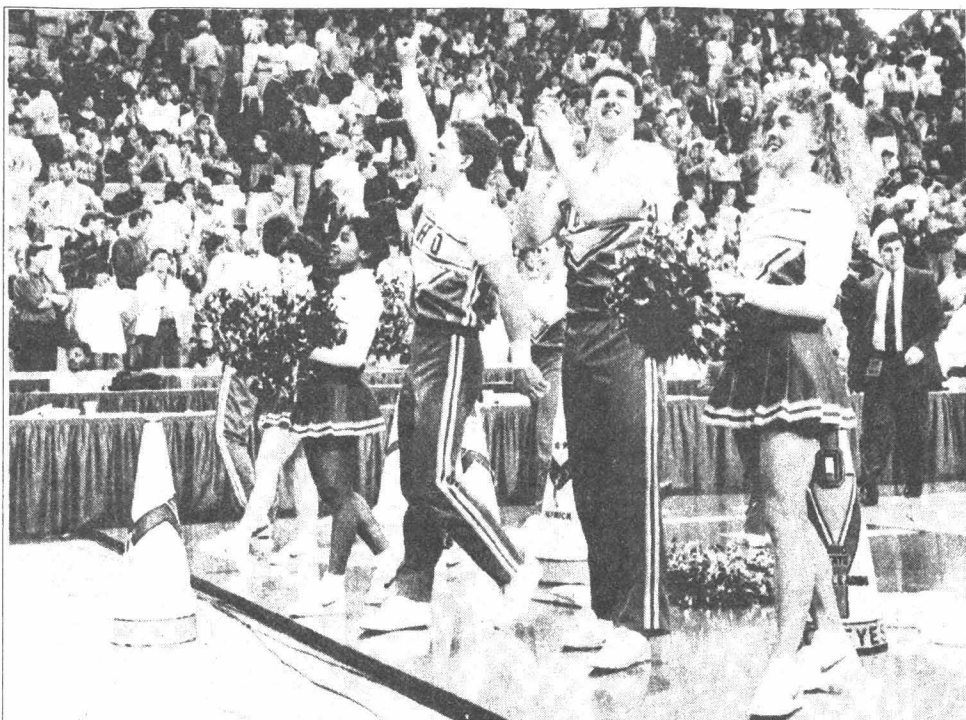

Kelley Liming, a senior cheerleader majoring in fashion merchandising, said performing in the National Cheerleading Championships is an experience of a lifetime.

"Win or lose, you leave that platform with such a good feeling because you made it so far," Liming said.

This was Liming's last year on the squad, and she said she feels very confident about achieving the goals she had set.

"The Nationals are the ultimate goal for a cheerleader," she said. "I know I did the very best that I could, and I'm pleased with that."

Liming competed in Nationals for two consecutive years, and she said this year she was much more relaxed during the competition. She thinks the squad did better this year than last year. Although she said this time she was able to have more fun and enjoy the trip, she admits that the more she went, the more she wanted to win it all.

"It's addicting!" she said. "It's like the football team's desire to go to the Rose Bowl."

OSU Cheerleading Adviser Judy Bunting said she feels somewhat disappointed they did not place within the top five; however, she thinks this squad is by far one of the most talented Ohio State has ever had. She said she has no regrets about competition and knows they did their absolute best in preparing for it.

"I think the squad was very focused during their performance," she said. "I know how hard they worked; therefore, I have no regrets."

Bunting, who's been the adviser at Ohio State for five years, thinks that since the squad had only a few returning members from last year's competition, the experience and the time taken to rebuild confidence takes a toll on the performance. She said that in 1989-1990, Ohio State did not enter the competition and that makes it difficult to jump back into something that is unfamiliar to the squad.

Eddie Hollins, a co-captain and a senior communications major, also thinks the experience is great and in his opinion, the competition is a major accomplishment for them. He said it's a cheerleader's goal to be there.

"For the cheerleaders it's like our NCAA tournament," he said. "It's our Final Four of cheerleading."

Mitch Price, the only graduating senior on the squad, is also a co-captain. He admits he had high expectations for his individual performance going into the competition but overall, he's just happy they qualified. He said that the squad had somewhat of an off day and that they are better than what they've been ranked.

Baseball Bucks attempt rebound from losses

By Lenny Roberts
Lantern staff writer

The OSU baseball team will try to rebound from three losses to Indiana when they host Eastern Michigan today at 2 p.m. at Trautman Field.

The Buckeyes (21-13 overall, 8-4 in the Big Ten), who have won 20 or more games for five consecutive seasons, will take a one-game break from their grueling conference schedule to play the Eagles. Eastern Michigan comes to Columbus for the first-ever meeting between the two schools.

The Buckeyes will send freshman pitcher Andy Nofke to the mound to face possible starter junior Mike Sulak (0-2) for the Eagles. Nofke is 1-1 with a 7.89 ERA in six appearances, three of which have been starts. Nofke's last start was a 22-5 win against Marshall University April 8.

"It will be good to get back on the field and get our batters recharged after this past weekend."

—OSU assistant coach Duane Theiss.

"It will be good to get back on the field and get our batters recharged after this past weekend," said OSU Assistant Coach Duane Theiss.

Eastern Michigan is led by third baseman Jason McDonald. McDonald is hitting .306, and outfielders Mike Wiseley and Charles Richardson are hitting .295 and .286, respectively.

Jeff Anderson leads the Buckeyes with a .421 batting average, followed by Jamie Taylor at .407 and Doug Wollenburg at .398.

Buckeye Notes:

• Wollenburg is coming off a six for 13 series with Indiana in which he had four RBI's. He also had his 22-game hitting streak snapped in the series finale. The streak was the second longest in OSU history behind the 23-game streak of Jay Semke in 1987.

• Ken Tirpack, who was two for 12 at the plate against Indiana, needs only six RBI's to become Ohio State's all-time leader in that category.

• The Buckeyes were outscored 26-13 by Indiana and left 18 men on base compared to 24 for the Hoosiers.

• Ohio State will resume its Big Ten title chase at home against Penn State this weekend in a four game series. The Buckeyes hold a one-game lead in the Big Ten over five teams that are tied for second place.

Sports Briefs

HAINES CITY, Fla. (AP) — Reggie Sanders jumped to the major leagues with the worst possible label: the next Eric Davis.

Sanders admires Davis. He enjoyed being with him last year in the Cincinnati Reds' clubhouse. But the expectations were too much for a player trying to go right from Class AA to the major leagues.

"I just didn't pay any attention to it," he said.

With Davis traded to the Los Angeles Dodgers, the comparisons have subsided. And Sanders is relieved.

"That's what I've been telling people," Sanders said. "Comparisons are fine, but don't expect me to do what he does."

Sanders, 24, is no Eric Davis. But he combines speed, power and average in a way reminiscent of the former Reds' center fielder.

Company name changed, but not DeSantis' ways

Look whose name is in the news again. Residents of a North High Street apartment complex, primarily students, have had to do without gas, and therefore heat, hot water and the means to cook, for a week.

Is it any surprise that the management company responsible for the repair delay is Olentangy Management, formerly DeSantis Property Management Company?

Why has it taken so long to get a leak fixed and get the gas back on line? A leak of the type affecting the complex is the responsibility of the management company and not the city. A spokesman for Olentangy Management claimed they had to wait for a permit from the city before they could begin work. The city says no such permit ion site required.

In other words, the excuse spouted by Al DeSantis' mouthpiece is a load of hooley.

The law says a landlord must fix such a leak within a reasonable amount of time. A week is not a reasonable amount of time.

It is obvious that DeSantis changed the name of his management company in an effort improve public relations.

It is easy to change the name of a company; it takes more effort to change company practices.

If DeSantis really wants to improve the image of his company, he should consider treating his tenants with some dignity and respect. He might even want to try offering decent living conditions at a decent price. But we aren't holding our breath.

Nor are we surprised when one of Al DeSantis' employees explanation conflicts with the city about why the company is not providing the service they are legally bound to provide. It is precisely what we have come to expect, no matter what the name of the company.

Skewed priorities

University regulation unfair to professors

Because of an agist mandatory retirement policy, three Ohio State professors are being forced to retire before July 1, 1992.

The policy was abolished by the OSU Board of Trustees on April 3 to comply with the Age Discrimination in Employment Act. However the new policy will not take effect until Jan. 1, 1993, leaving the three professors in a bureaucratic no-man's land.

Those professors are:

- Johanna S. Belkin of the German department
- A. E. Wallace Maurer of the English department
- Harlod Shecter of the organic chemistry department

By all accounts, these three are fine teachers, and they have all expressed an interest in continuing. It is within the university's means to rehire them, and yet, so far, no action has been taken in that direction.

By next year, such forced retirements will not be allowed by law. For a short time though, the policy stands. In essence, the university has chosen to enforce the letter of the law and ignore the spirit of the new law.

As the Lantern has pointed out in past editorials, other Ohio State professors have been denied tenure because they did not publish frequently enough to fulfill a predetermined standard, despite their outstanding ability to teach and motivate students.

OSU President E. Gordon Gee continually tells the student body and the general public that teaching is the prime mission of the university. Yet when we see the denial of tenure to two of the finest teachers within our own School of Journalism and the loss of the three professors because of a soon-to-be-abolished policy, it is difficult for us to believe him.

Brush with homeless is food for thought

I had a really interesting experience Saturday that caused me to think about my life and how lucky I am.

I was out riding my brand new bike, which I happen to be very proud of, and stopped to chat with a friend who was sitting on his porch enjoying the sunshine. We were laughing, talking and just hanging out, when a man walked by.

He was one of those people you see on the street. Was he homeless? A vagrant? A drunk?

He looked bad, real bad. He was dirty, he smelled foul and he looked like he was way out there.

He was one of those people who you glance at as you pass before quickly turning your head and moving on.

I like to think that I am a compassionate person, but I am as guilty as anyone else when it comes to passing by these people.

Most of the time when I pass a homeless person on the street I just keep walking. I don't know why. I guess maybe I think if I don't look at the person, then they're not really there.

I think our government also feels this way, but that's another story and I won't get started on that right now.

Jo Crawford

I really hate myself for ignoring them. I realized this Saturday afternoon, but I am not sure what to do about it.

My friend, Dave, began talking to the man. Dave didn't ignore him, he was just carrying on a fairly normal conversation with "Doug" and treating him like a human being.

"Doug" talked to us about his past, his "campsite" and his parents. He said he hadn't talked to his parents for 13 or 14 years.

Dave tried to convince "Doug" to give his parents a call. It was really sad. I can't imagine not speaking to my parents for even a week. For that matter, I can't imagine living on a street, not taking a shower for a week or not knowing where my next meal will come from.

What bothered me the most about "Doug" was that even though I felt sorry for him, I still had a hard time looking him in the eye. I wasn't afraid of him, but I just felt uneasy around him.

Maybe I couldn't look him in the eye because I felt guilty about all of the unnecessary, trivial things I complain about.

Dave told "Doug" that he should try to contact his parents because even though parents don't act like it all of the time, they still love and worry about their kids.

"Doug" was looking upset and said he would think about calling them, but he just didn't know if he could.

It just upset me to see this man in such a bad state of mind, and to think that there are so many other people like me out there who just walk by and ignore these people.

"Doug" said something that struck a nerve in me. He said that he treated all people the same, regardless of any differences, because they were all human beings and that is all that matters.

It was sad to hear this man, who is treated badly by so many people and ignored by the government, say how much he loves people of all kinds and enjoys talking to them.

The whole time "Doug" was talking to us, he kept looking at me in a very strange way. Although I thought he was harmless, I was still uneasy about him.

I am upset at myself for being afraid of him because he is probably just a lonely man who doesn't have anyone to talk to. I know I would go crazy if I had no one to talk to.

I guess the whole point I want to make is that these people I have tried to ignore aren't going away just because I choose not to see them. In fact, my ignorance can only make the problem worse.

I'm still unclear about what I think should be done. But I've always heard the first step to solving a problem is to admit there is a problem in the first place.

I think I will start by looking the next person in the eye, saying "hi" and just letting them know that someone knows they are people too.

"Publish or perish" policy permeates system

I'm sure many of you are familiar with the "Publish or Perish" concept that is becoming famous at Ohio State.

For those of you who aren't, it's the idea that professors need to produce a certain amount of written research in order to keep their teaching positions.

Sometimes that makes sense, sometimes it doesn't. Right now it definitely doesn't. I agree that professors should be encouraged to do research, but I don't agree that it should be the most important issue when they go up for tenure.

Research is emphasized more in a huge university because it must keep up with other universities. Education can be a very competitive industry, and Ohio State is among the best.

You can't get something (like a big name in the research field) for nothing. But, in this case, the "nothing" could be a very valuable professor.

It looks to me like the inches of published material is the only factor considered in determining which professors remain at Ohio

Alice Exworthy

State. Some people can manage to excel in both the teaching and research aspects of education.

Others, however, are let go simply because their names aren't seen in print often enough. What about the teachers who invest their time in the classroom, rather than behind a stack of papers?

Maybe the teachers who don't research as much are too busy. Too busy wasting their time with students. They sure have some nerve trying to gyp the university out of valuable research time and spending it with lowly students.

It seems like there is a fine line between being an effective professor and providing an adequate amount of research. If a professor publishes plenty of research and it takes away from their classroom work, well that's okay. Ohio State still benefits.

But if a professor dedicates more time to students and classroom work, then forget them. After all, only the students will benefit in that situation.

I'm speaking from personal experience, of course. I've had professors who were a great help to me who are being denied a permanent position at Ohio State. They have been dynamic in the classroom and served in important advising capacities to students. This is much more valuable to me than knowing I have a professor who has produced the "right" amount of research.

Maybe they'll get out of education or maybe they'll go to a smaller school that emphasizes a smaller teacher-to-student ratio. They deserve to be in a job where their abilities are appreciated and rewarded.

Is the students' input even considered when a professor goes up for tenure? After all, the students are the ones who must deal with them on a daily basis. And the students are seeing the people who have been most instrumental in their education turned away. We have a right to a say in which teachers are valuable to the institution.

At a university as big as Ohio State, I value what I feel is a good teacher. And I realize that there's a big difference between just being an easy teacher and being a good one. A good teacher challenges you, stimulates interest in the material, cares about the students and is fair.

Maybe it's a little idealistic to hold that point of view but I can always hope. And I've had some really good professors. They are few and far between but they're there. At least for now.

So for all of you who went into education to educate, please know that you are very appreciated. It may only be by the students, but we happen to think we count.

Putting up with rude dudes, no fun in class

Have you ever had one of those buttheads in a class who constantly talks through the lecture? Who makes a spectacle of themselves and makes up stories just to get attention?

Well, I'm sure you have. I know I have.

Just the other day in one of my overcrowded classes, this guy (and you know who you are...), who thinks he's supercool, decided to hold a conversation about his weekend plans with another classmate as our teacher tried to lecture.

Can you say "rude"?

I can. Of course, those of us who were subjected to his babbling got quite annoyed and asked if the teacher would talk a little louder so we might be able to hear him. "Joe Supercool" jumped out of his seat accusing us of being stupid and annoying to him.

I realize he is the kind of person who needs just the right amount of attention because of the fears and insecurities he has. Our teacher really tries to coddle him and give him attention.

But sometimes it's intolerable.

Michelle Johnson

When the same person, lecture after lecture, talks throughout the entire class, it almost makes me not want to go.

But I won't give him that satisfaction.

And then there's those other people, you know the type, who make up stories about their life or their family just to make people say "hmmmm," he's cool. I have met tons of those at Ohio State.

This one guy told everyone in another of my classes that he was hosting a certain celebrity that weekend. At first, everyone was like, "wow." But after he got really defensive and pleaded and pleaded that he was telling the truth, we knew he was lying.

Of course, what he did not realize was that two days earlier, there was a picture of said celebrity in the paper showing her in a remote part of the world. Certainly beyond a road trip to Ohio.

You make the call.

I'm sure some of the stories you might hear from these kinds of people may turn out to be true, but it's very unlikely. Who would ever believe that I drive a Ferrari unless I could prove it to you (I wish I did, but I don't).

People who make spectacles of themselves obviously are not at Ohio State for an education. They probably came to college because it was expected of them, but do not really enjoy being subjected to the horrible thing we do here called "study."

I feel sorry for those people who do not appreciate the fact that they can get an education. There are people in this world who will never get that chance and probably be better off in their place.

I get tired of having this kind of person in all of the lower numbered courses offered at this university. It's rude and distracting to those around them.

We all pay to be here and I think if you want to go and listen to the lecture, then go; but if you want to go and talk, then just stay home.

We're not in high school anymore, kids. Long gone are the days we need to bring notes from mom explaining our absence.

For anyone who fits into one of these categories, learn a lesson: Not everyone goes to Ohio State just to go to the bars every night and get laid. Some of us are really here for an education.

Secondly, if you really hate going to class that much, then just don't go. I'm sure you can get the notes from someone you know (as if anyone believes you care about passing). We really are tired of being inconvenienced by your self-centered attitude.

And finally, do not think we are going to sit back and take it anymore.

We can be just as rude as you can.

The Lantern is an independent, student-written laboratory newspaper published Monday through Friday during the school year, Monday and Thursday during summer quarter (except finals week, legal holidays and university vacations) by the OSU School of Journalism.

The university administration has no control over content; editorials reflect a majority opinion of the Lantern staff. Viewpoints expressed in columns, cartoons and letters are those of individuals and do not necessarily reflect those of the staff.

The newsroom is located in the Journalism Building room 271, 242 W. 18th Ave., Columbus, 43210. The business office, room 281, is open 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.

LETTERS

The Lantern welcomes letters from its readers. Letters may be delivered in person to the newsroom, Room 271 of the Journalism Building or mailed to Samantha G. Haney — Editor, the Lantern, 242 W. 18th Ave., Columbus, Ohio, 43210.

Letters must include the writer's full name, class rank and daytime telephone number.

We ask that letters be concise and legible. Letters of 300 words or less will receive preference. The Lantern reserves the right to edit for length and clarity. Because of space limitations, we cannot publish all letters received.

Rehired retirees?

Concerned about the irony of canceled classes and forced retirement of three needed professors, the Lantern of 13 April 1992 alluded to the OSU Board of Trustees action allowing departments to re-employ retired faculty part-time. While university students, administrators, and faculty might think they see help for students and delight for ousted faculty in this plan, they must understand the reality behind it.

A department and a retiree (three of each now, as identified by the Lantern) might demonstrate great need for one another, but there the plan suddenly stops. Why?

No one in Central Administration had funded it while offering it. In response to my inquiries, the chair of the English Department, Professor Morris Beja, has assured me of his and the department's unqualified support of such re-employment "in principle," but he can go no further for lack of designated money. Without that, the plan is a mirage, leaving the three professors where President Gee's operative date for the abolition of mandatory retirement (1 July 1992 instead of 30 June 1992) leaves them: ousted.

A.E. Wallace Maurer

Pro choice

Despite the fact that Tricia Ingraham is just reporting on the pro-life rally, I think it is an outrage for the OSU "Students for Life" to actually think that Planned Parenthood is in business to end pregnancies purely for profit. It is a non-profit organization that is intended to educate young people about sexuality regardless of race or gender. The parents of this country seem completely inept at educating their kids in this area. The real problem in this country is not abortion, but the destruction of the family as a whole. Women are demanding equal rights in all aspects of their lives, which is excellent, and to take away our right to choose is wrong. It would be a step backwards. The "Students for Life," if they are intelligent, know this is true. They forget that ending legal abortion will not bring back the breakdown of the family, but will cause more financial and emotional disharmony. The woman who is forced to have an unwanted child regardless of rape or mistake is subject to the final decision of middle-to-upper-class white men. She may not ever have the opportunity to have an education or a better life. This is not every case by far, but the majority. I ask the "Students for Life" to please not impose your ideals upon others. How would you feel if one of your rights was taken away? This is not a religious issue, but one of logic and in need of education. Don't be selfish. That is a bad attitude at Ohio State.

Alexandra Koeberer

Dear Michael

(In response to Michael Alwood's column of April 8, titled, "Amish man robbed of inalienable rights")

Are you a nitwit? Religious freedom is not without limits. One of those limits is that one may not cause harm to another. Improper disposal of sewage can cause epidemics of disease. Are you willing to risk a typhoid or cholera outbreak just to allow a religious nut to dump raw sewage because another religious nut decided that sanitation is unholy?

Wake up and face the twentieth century. Or even the nineteenth. A sane society does not grant an individual the liberty, religious or otherwise, to recklessly threaten the lives of others.

Daniel Zook may prefer to live in the seventeenth century and remain ignorant of bacterial disease, but we aren't obligated to tolerate his negligent and dangerous behavior.

Douglas Campbell

Never said 'never'

While I was pleased to see my letter ("More ammo," April 13) printed so quickly, I was disappointed by the typographical errors, only one of which is worth correcting.

In reference to "Teflon-coated bullets," I wrote that they had never been made available to the general public. The word "never" was unfortunately omitted from the letter as it appeared in the Lantern. To clarify, KTW sold their armor-piercing ammunition only to legitimate law enforcement agencies, as a matter of policy. Since they were designed to give police officers an edge on the street, it would have been foolish to do otherwise.

As a side note, I should mention that the Teflon was not added to penetrate ballistic vests, but primarily to protect the gun barrel from the tungsten-alloy bullet.

Don't blame BRUTUS

The other evening (4/10/92) WCMH Channel 4 aired a story about Ohio State. The focus of the piece was the decreasing availability of classes for the OSU student population. The consequences of this situation include students taking courses which do not interest them so that they can maintain their financial aid and students taking up to five years to earn what is supposedly a four year degree. In an attempt to give the general public a simple and brief explanation for why students must now waste more time and money at OSU, the station stated that most students are blaming BRUTUS for the current situation.

When I heard this, I thought to myself: I hope this is not the case. I hope that everyone remembers that a computer does not control us nor does it determine our destiny. The computer only does what it is told (or programmed) to do. BRUTUS does not have a mind of his own. What is going on is that course offerings and course sizes are being limited due to BUDGET CUTS. (This explanation was only addressed fleeting by the TV station. The majority of the piece focused on BRUTUS). If anyone is looking for someone to blame, I think their time would be better spent by turning their attention to Voynovich and not BRUTUS. I truly hope that this was a misrepresentation of OSU students' opinions by the television station.

Please . . . if you want to get into the classes you find interesting, if you want to attend class without sitting on a floor or in a hallway or if you want to graduate in a reasonable amount of time - do not blame BRUTUS. Instead, write to the addresses in the Lantern (4/10/92) and attend the rallies. While BRUTUS does have its problems, it is not the root of the problems that Ohio State is facing and will continue to face. If people think things are tough now, just hang around and see what happens if the proposed budget cuts go through. Then it will become painfully obvious where the blame lies.

Thanks Neal

Thank you for Neal Havener's column on non-profit radio in the April 6 issue of the Lantern, especially the kind words about News 820, WOSU-AM. While there are many differences between public radio and commercial radio, one thing remains the same the same — the need for operating funds.

Forty percent of WOSU-AM's funding must come from the public. We are currently about to begin our Spring Membership Drive. This is one of only two drives to be held this year, in which we ask our listeners to become members of the Friends of WOSU with a financial pledge of support to the station and its mission.

This month also marks WOSU-AM's 70th broadcast anniversary. The station first began broadcasting April 24, 1922. The call letters then were WEAQ-AM (Willing-Energetic-Athletic-Ohio). As one of the oldest radio stations in Columbus, WOSU-AM is proud of its heritage and tradition of excellence.

Public radio and News 820, WOSU-AM, have a lot to offer their listeners, and with the continued support of our listeners, the university, and the community-at-large, WOSU-AM will be celebrating its 140th anniversary in the year 2062.

Obit a tad tacky

I would like to comment on Monday's edition of the Lantern, specifically Samantha Haney and Terry Monnett's article titled "Wanted: Curious readers for personals." As a student at The Ohio State University, I am very embarrassed that the sophomore comments on the death of Samuel Kinison, which were written by the editor of the Lantern and a graduate student representing this university, were printed. Of course, these two "journalists" wrote this article under the auspices guaranteed by the First Amendment. However, I believe that this article crossed the fine line between free speech and poor taste. I think that it is sad that anybody, with or without an education, would write an article poking fun at a person who has just died. Their views of Samuel Kinison are irrelevant because such opinion is purely subjective. However, he was a human being and he and his family deserve proper respect. I think most people would agree that this kind of distasteful humor is proof that it is necessary to educate the ignorant in order to form at the most, a better society and at the least, a civilized one. It is unfortunate that this article was co-written by the editor of the paper and it shows a real lack of professionalism and responsibility by the editor and the advisers of the paper who allowed this article to be printed. I am ashamed that the person who represents our paper's integrity to other colleges and universities around the nation does not measure up to the standards which define good journalism from ignominy.

Who's a 'hack'?

Ha Ha, death sure is funny. In their "bimbos leading the blind" column, Samantha Haney and Terry Monnett refer to the death of comedian Sam Kinison in a manner that goes beyond any form of decency of taste. Before the man is even cold, these hack skags call him a "finally silent comedian." Granted much of Kinison's material was offensive, but reveling in the man's death is even beyond the crass standards of this sniveling, pitiful rag.

As journalists, these two rate somewhere below the quality of those who write for Hustler, or possibly even David Duke's platform. I'm truly offended.

If there is a God I hope he whips up a particularly nasty demise for these talentless, physically repulsive freaks, worthy of this cheap shot. Maybe something like terminal stomach cancer.

Have a nice day.

What inconsistency?

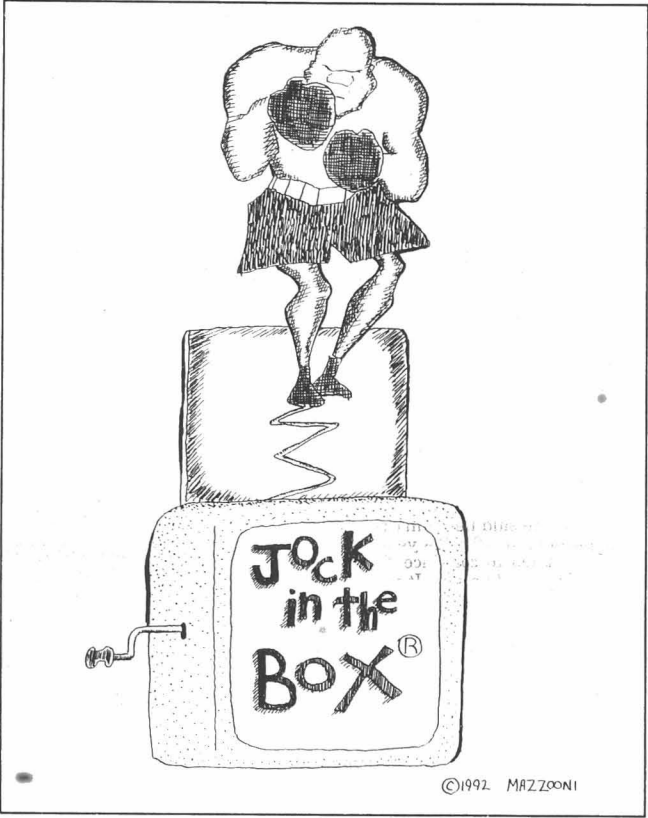

I had a question about your Monday editorial, "Anti-abortionists' words lack logic, credibility."

Is the sentence that you use in your editorial, "Few things irritate most Americans more than a bunch of self-righteous Bible thumpers trying to shove their view of the Scriptures down our collective throats," a model of the coherent and logical argumentation that you wish your opponents would use?

If so, please explain how this lends credibility to your argument.

If not, please explain the inconsistency between what you say you want and what you say.

Protesters rally to save hotel from demolition

CINCINNATI (AP) — Advocates for homeless people are fighting to save a downtown hotel they say provides emergency shelter for the homeless. The city wants the hotel razed to build apartments, but is exploring possible solutions.

The Greater Cincinnati Coalition for the Homeless plans a rally today outside the Milner Hotel to publicize the group's effort to save the 115-room hotel, group spokesman Mike Fontana said Tuesday.

Fontana said more than 30 social service agencies use the hotel as emergency shelter for transients and others needing help. He said his group has been lobbying the City Council and the city's economic development department for ways to spare the hotel.

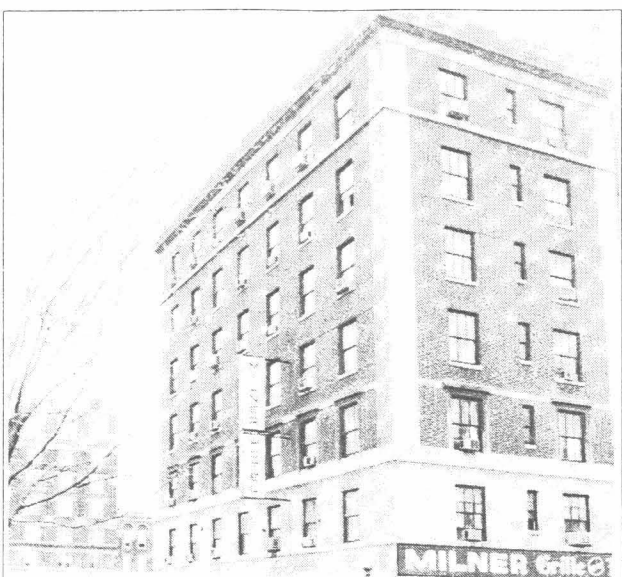

Fontana said city officials have suggested using another downtown hotel, the Fort Washington, for emergency homeless housing. But it is not as large as the Milner and is not always available, Fontana said. "It wouldn't make much sense," he said. "It would make the problem worse instead of better."

The city administration proposes to acquire the Milner through eminent domain and raze it to make room for the second phase of a project to build moderate-income apartments. Apartments are already being built across the street in the project's first phase.

At the request of council members, the economic development department is talking with the homeless advocates to discuss possible solutions, department director Quentin Davis said. He is to meet Monday with members of Fontana's group.

Davis said the City Council directed the city's administration not to acquire the Milner until a plan was presented to address the issue of emergency shelter.

Car companies combine efforts to build minivan

AVON LAKE (AP) — The Ford Motor Co. Tuesday began production of an upscale minivan in a joint venture with Nissan.

The 1993 Mercury Villager, a seven-passenger, front-wheel-drive minivan, was designed by Nissan. It will be marketed as the Nissan Quest.

The vehicle is being produced in the expanded $900 million Ohio Assembly Plant, which opened in this Lorain County city in 1974 and had been making van bodies.

The expansion has turned it into a full assembly plant. Lorain County provided for tax abatement, and Ohio invested $22.5 million in road improvements, site development and job training grants.

"It's a proud day for Avon Lake, Northeastern Ohio and the rest of the state as well," Gov. George Voinovich said to about 1,000 people at a plant rally. "I brag about this plant and the enlightened labor-management relationships, and I'm trying to get that into state government. It's like a good marriage, and you can't take it for granted."

Voinovich said the expansion was welcome as the state tries to emerge from a recession and keep its budget in balance.

Don Schnur, chairman of United Auto Workers union Local 2000, said the Villager would provide job security for workers.

"We've all worked very hard to make the plant a success," he said.

Alex Trotman, Ford executive vice president-Ford North American Automotive Operations, said he was pleased to help dedicate the expanded plant "in times when the trend has been to close plants, not open them."

He described the venture with Nissan as "a very cooperative relationship."

"It's a team effort, but the fundamental product design was done by the Nissan team. There's a joint effort in putting the production process together. It's Ford's investment here, and these are all Ford employees in the plant. So it's manufactured by Ford," he said.

Trotman would not discuss how much the Villager might cost.

"We haven't decided yet," he said. "We'll be doing that shortly. I don't even want to range it. But it will be competitively priced in the multipurpose vehicle segment."

The industrial-based economy of Lorain County has been hit hard by the recession, with unemployment estimated at 12 percent, said Lorain County Commissioner Herbert Jacoby. The county laid off 15 sheriff's deputies late last year but has since recalled eight.

"We're thrilled," Jacoby said. "It's going to be a tremendous boost to the economy of Lorain County, which we sorely need."

News Briefs

CHARDON (AP) — The Geauga County sheriff's department is investigating a pair of vandalism attempts involving pipe bombs.

Last week, a pipe bomb placed in a mail box failed to explode. In the other, a pipe bomb placed in a telephone booth Saturday exploded, but did little damage.

Deputy Joe P. Keough said Tuesday that although no one was injured, he is concerned about the safety of residents and the reported vandals.

"Obviously, these are not munitions experts," he said. "There's a real danger they could injure themselves as well as someone else."

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — The Youngstown teachers union has filed a grievance against the Rayen School, claiming students are out of control and undisciplined and administrators are slow to act on the problems.

John Senzarin, president of the Youngstown Education Association, said teachers are angry.

But school officials disputed the claims.

"We're doing quite well out here," Principal Alex Murphy said.

Assistant Superintendent Douglas Hiscox, who will conduct a hearing on the grievance, said Murphy has been informed of the union's concerns.

Irene Fillers, a Rayen teacher and union representative, said problems at the school have declined since Senzarin complained to the school board earlier this month.

Chicago official fired blamed for flooding

CHICAGO (AP) — Mayor Richard M. Daley on Tuesday fired an official he said failed to heed a warning that probably could have prevented the flooding that has paralyzed much of Chicago's business district.

"This morning I have requested and received the resignation of acting transportation commissioner John LaPlante," Daley said at a news conference at City Hall.

LaPlante ignored a memo on April 2 that warned him to immediately repair a crack in a tunnel under the Chicago River, Daley said. "The memo said the wall should be immediately repaired, citing the danger of flooding the entire freight tunnel system," Daley said.

On Monday, the tunnel burst sending water through the turn-of-the-century freight tunnel network and flooding basements under the city's Loop district with millions of gallons of water.

Phones went unanswered at LaPlante's office Tuesday afternoon.

Daley said that after the memo came in, LaPlante's department began getting cost estimates from a couple of construction companies, decided they were too high and was weighing further action when the collapse occurred.

Referring to LaPlante, he said, "The problem was brought to his attention, but he failed to act, resulting in a major problem that could have been avoided. This was not a minor oversight."

Much of the Loop remained closed Tuesday, as city workers struggled to plug the leak and drain the water that stood more than 40 feet deep in the bowels of some high-rises.

Some 200 buildings remained dark Tuesday. Power was shut off to avert a threat of transformers shorting out and exploding in the flooded areas. Officials said they were not certain when power would be restored.

Gov. Jim Edgar said he has declared Chicago a state disaster area and would ask the federal government for emergency disaster relief.

Despite reports late Monday that the hole leading into the old system of freight tunnels had been sealed, Dave Mosena, chief of staff for Daley, said that water continued to flow.

"We are not out of the water by any means," Mosena said Tuesday morning.

Subway riders were forced to use buses or elevated trains to get downtown, uncertain whether their buildings were open. Police directed traffic at busy intersections where signals were blacked out.

City workers and engineers continued to pour concrete into the river at the site of the leak.

Others worked to drill a shaft that would drain water from the tunnels into a huge new storm drain that lies some 240 feet below the surface. The drilling could take a week, officials said.

The Chicago Mercantile Exchange traded on a limited basis Tuesday. The Chicago Board of Trade was closed for a second day.

The 110-story Sears Tower, the world's tallest building, and the 80-story Amoco Building, both reopened Tuesday.

Some businesses used their own generators to try to keep the doors open.

"We worked till 2 in the morning to make sure we could open," said Ed Flor, a maintenance worker for a Walgreen's drug store in the Loop, which opened with a few dim lights and one functioning cash register.

For tens of thousands of downtown workers, the flooding meant one more unscheduled day off.

The Internal Revenue Service gave Chicago taxpayers affected by the flood a week's extension on the federal April 15 filing deadline. Taxpayers were advised to write "Chicago flood" at the top of their return to alert examiners.

"We will accept the honor of the taxpayer signing the return," IRS spokesman Mike McGrail said.

Genetic identification techniques supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — Genetic fingerprinting is a reliable and valid way of convicting the guilty and freeing the innocent, and should continue to be used in courts, a National Research Council report said Tuesday.

The report said that genetic identification techniques now in use are good, but that they could be improved by setting a national standard for laboratory techniques and by the certification of lab personnel.

"We think it is a powerful tool for criminal investigation and for exoneration of innocent individuals and one that should be used even as standards are strengthened," said Victor A. McKusick, chairman of the NRC panel of experts that conducted a two-year study.

"We did not say that courts should cease to admit this evidence," he said.

McKusick, a Johns Hopkins University gene expert, said that the committee found no reason to call for a halt in use of the current genetic identification system, called DNA fingerprinting. He also said that the committee found no reason for courts to reexamine past criminal cases that have been influenced by DNA fingerprinting evidence.

"As a general matter...we recommend that courts accept the reliability of the technology and recognize that current laboratory techniques are fundamentally sound," McKusick said.

The statement came at a hastily called news conference organized, McKusick said, to correct a published account of the committee's findings in Tuesday's New York Times.

"It seriously misrepresents our findings," he said. "The impression it gives about our conclusions is misleading."

Gina Kolata, who wrote the Times' account, said she stood by her story. She said she read parts of the report to prosecuting and defense attorneys and law professors and asked them, "What does this mean to you?"

A spokesman for the National Academy of Sciences, of which the NRC is a part, said the final report, with the conclusions discussed by McKusick, was not released until Tuesday.

The report said that the reliability of DNA fingerprinting evidence depends upon the quality of work in laboratories that apply the genetic technology. The committee said that setting standards and requiring certification of personnel would help assure the technical quality of the evidence.

DNA fingerprinting is a method of matching an individual with biological evidence gathered at a crime scene. It is based on the fact that the genetic pattern, as carried in the molecule of deoxyribonucleic acid, or DNA, in every cell, is unique for each person, except for identical twins.

By comparing the DNA pattern from the blood of a suspect with samples recovered at a scene, experts can determine if there is a match. Crime scene samples that can be used include bits of skin, semen, blood or hair.

Individual genetic differences can occur at 3 million or more different markers within the DNA structure. The technique as now applied generally uses only a small set of genetic comparisons and then extrapolates the odds of there being a match to these markers in a randomly selected population. As a result, experts using what is called a multiplication technique may be able to conclude that the odds of another individual having the same genetic pattern could be one in a million or more.

Easter Means

The ancient Romans used the word "Tetelesti" to mean "It is finished" or "Paid-in-full". They also wrote this same word over the document of a prisoner when his sentence was completed. The prisoner was then released as a free man.

We find it more than coincidental that Jesus Christ uttered this same word, "Tetelesti", as His last word from the Cross just before He died. (John 19:30)

To us, Easter commemorates the greatest event in mankind's history: the Resurrection of Jesus Christ! His return from death is a well-documented historical event that is evidence of the truth of His claim to be the Messiah, the Son of God.

We, the following faculty and staff at The Ohio State University, have found a new hope, freedom, and life as a result of understanding that through His death and resurrection, our debt has been PAID IN FULL.

Stubborn renter finally gives in the hard way

NEW YORK (AP) — Jean Herman, the stubborn apartment dweller who turned down a $750,000 buyout offer and forced a skyscraper to be built around her two-room flat, finally surrendered her lease last month. She died.

That, Herman promised, was the only way she'd ever lose her home of three decades. And on the day of her funeral, the landlord changed the locks.

But Herman has her monument: 134 E. 60th St., a four-story brownstone built in 1865 that juts from the base of a 31-story glass, granite and steel office tower built in 1988.

"She was the ultimate holdout," said Seymour Durst, the developer who wrote "Holdouts," a book about such personalities.

Herman's death at age 69 returned to her landlord the rent-controlled, fourth-floor walkup for which she paid $200 a month in a neighborhood where rents can easily reach four times that amount. But it left unanswered why she hadn't taken the money and moved.

"I honestly do not know," said her brother, Harold Herman. "She liked the publicity; she liked the neighborhood. Did she think she could get more (money) from the developer?"

Her lawyer, Joseph Fallon, added two more motives: "She had a principled opposition to overdevelopment. And she was eccentric."

Whatever her reasons, they made Herman famous. In a decade and in a city when almost everything had a price — and someone almost always had enough money to pay it — she wouldn't sell out.

"She was an inspiration to the people who fight these battles," said Joyce Matz, who represents tenant and community groups.

A native of Newburgh, N.Y., Herman came to the city to attend college in the 1930s and never left. She worked in market research and publicity, and brightened her tiny apartment with window boxes of petunias and geraniums.

But in 1981, Cohen Brothers Realty Corp. bought her building and every other on Lexington Avenue between 59th and 60th, across from Bloomingdale's department store, with plans to demolish them all.

New York law, established in the wake of rent-gouging during World War II, virtually precludes tenants in rent-regulated apartments from being evicted. The law allows landlords to evict them if it's determined the building is not economically viable. Herman's building failed this test, however. And even in those cases, landlords must find tenants suitable substitute housing — but the tenant decides what suitable means.

Lacking a law to force them out, the developers paid tenants handsomely to move, until only Herman was left. She was shown two dozen other apartments. None satisfied her.

Retail sales decline; recovery remains uneven

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retail sales in March registered the steepest drop in seven months, the government said Tuesday in a report analysts took as a sign of an uneven, rather than a derailed, economic recovery.

The Commerce Department said retail sales fell a seasonally but not inflation-adjusted 0.4 percent from the previous month to $157.1 billion. The dip followed strong gains of 1.3 percent in February and 2.1 percent in January.

"It was inevitable those huge increases in January and February weren't sustainable," said economist Sandra Shaber of the Futures Group, a Washington-based consulting firm.

March marked the first drop since October and the worst since August. Still, even with the decline, first quarter sales were up 2.9 percent from the previous quarter, the best in more than three years.

"This is a relatively small decline and it certainly doesn't signal we're entering another downturn," Shaber said. "I think it's probably a useful reminder this isn't going to be a terrific recovery."

Most analysts agree economic growth this year will be far weaker than the 6 percent average during the first year of other post-World War II recoveries.

Retail sales represent roughly one-third of economic activity overall, and economists had welcomed the strong gains in the first two months of the year as confirmation the recovery was under-way.

They still hold that view, attributing much of the March weakness to special factors. Temperatures during the month were colder than normal in many parts of the country. Also, Easter falls later than usual this year, likely shifting some sales from March to April.

The stock market shrugged off the news, rallying instead on International Business Machine Corp.'s better-than-expected first quarter profit of $595 million, up 7 percent from a year ago.

Economists said last week's quarter-point cut by the Federal Reserve in short-term interest rates should help stimulate borrowing for autos and appliances in the months ahead, particularly among Americans holding off on purchases.

"There's a significant amount of pent-up demand. People have been putting off purchases for the better part of two years because of concerns about the economy," said economist Mark M. Zandi of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa. "Lower interest rates reinforce the perception among consumers that policymakers are intent on pulling the economy out of its funk."

So far, only one major bank, Chemical Banking Corp., has matched the Fed's cut by trimming its prime rate from 6.5 percent to 6.25 percent on Monday.

Both Shaber and Zandi cautioned that consumer spending could fizzle unless the recovery generates more jobs. The Labor Department said employers added only 19,000 jobs to their payrolls in March, and much of the gain was attributed to local governments hiring temporary workers for primary elections.

Helmsley heads to the 'big house'

NEW YORK (AP) — Former hotel queen Leona Helmsley said Tuesday she was prepared to serve the four-year prison term she received for tax evasion now that it has been upheld by an appeals court.

Helmsley had been ordered to report today to a federal prison hospital in Kentucky.

"I accept the judgment and I'm prepared to abide by the law," Helmsley said through publicist Howard Rubenstein.

Earlier Tuesday, the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously rejected arguments from Helmsley's lawyers that the sentence should be reversed.

They said the sentence may have been fair when imposed in 1989, but the "dramatic change" in her health since then has turned it into a virtual life sentence.

"We're arguing not that the original sentence was wrong, but that circumstances have changed," said defense attorney Alan Dershowitz. He asked the appeals court to allow Helmsley to do community service work instead of going to jail.

Prosecutors argued that the 71-year-old hotel queen remains an active woman and allowing her to avoid prison would "make a mockery of the law."

"The end has come," Assistant U.S. Attorney Mark

Hellerer said.

Helmsley was convicted in 1989 of evading $1.7 million in taxes by billing personal expenses to companies she and her husband, Harry, owned.

She has remained free on $25 million bail, but the appeals of her conviction ran out in February when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the case.

Her lawyers have argued that the stress of life behind bars could kill Helmsley, whose ailments include hardening of the arteries and severe high blood pressure.

They maintained that separating Helmsley from her ailing husband, 83-year-old Harry Helmsley, would kill him as well. Harry Helmsley also was charged with tax offenses, but was ruled not competent to stand trial.

In court papers Monday, her lawyers also said Helmsley's status as "a notorious, widely reviled, vastly wealthy New York Jew" puts her at greater danger for "hostility and abusive treatment" by other inmates.

Dershowitz also had asked the appeals court to allow her to remain with her husband until April 27, when the Passover holiday is concluded.

Helmsley would have to serve at least a third of the prison sentence before becoming eligible for parole. She has paid about $8 million in fines and restitution.

In cases of doubt, the proffered copy, illustrations and layout will be submitted by the Lantern Business Manager to the School of Journalism Publications Committee and judged by a majority vote of the members. Decisions of this committee are final.
Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required; this information is for our records only and not available to the public.

- a. Copy will be furnished by noon three days before publication, except for published special early deadlines.
- b. All advertisements are required to occupy at least as many inches in height as they do columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in height will be considered full column (21 inches) and charged accordingly.
- c. The Lantern reserves the right to reject any advertisement that promotes illegal activity or activity detrimental or damaging to the university and its educational mission. It further reserves the right to revise any advertisement which is deemed objectionable for any reason.
- d. Make-good/adjustments will be considered only for those advertisements where errors occur in the following: business/group name, address, or phone number; item price; date, time, or place of event. The error must be solely the fault of the Lantern. Adjustments will not exceed the cost of the advertisement, and will be based on the portion of the advertisement nullified by the error. Minor spelling errors will not qualify for adjustment. Complaints must be registered to the Business Manager within 45 days of publication to qualify, otherwise the advertiser accepts full responsibility.
- e. Guaranteed position is sold at the Business Manager's discretion.
- f. A composition charge may apply to any changes, revisions or cancellations made after deadline.

- j. The Lantern reserves the right to require prepayment for advertising, or to reject advertising, if the advertiser is delinquent in payment, or if advertiser's credit is impaired. Advertisers must prepay all advertising until credit rating with the Lantern is established. CERTIFIED check or money order is required for out-of-town advertisers.
- k. Contract advertisers will furnish the Lantern with a rate-holder ad meeting contract minimums, for use in any contract period for which the advertiser does not provide an ad.
- l. A tearsheet will be furnished for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tearsheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser notifies the Lantern office prior to publication.

Tax preparers ready for laste minute rush

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the man who says "let's just make up some more deductions" to the woman who files her returns eight years at a time, professional tax preparers have seen it all. Now they are bracing for a rush by millions who have a habit of filing on April 15.

"There's always a lot of panic at this time of year," says Donna Halligan, who oversees seven Jackson Hewitt Tax Service offices in Syracuse, N.Y. "They expect us to pull off miracles at the last minute."

"We've had spouses fighting, people crying, people afraid the IRS is going to take their house tomorrow because they can't pay," adds Harry Buckley of Kansas City, president of tax operations at H&R Block, Inc.

Because of the battered economy, millions of taxpayers made an extra effort to file early this year. Nevertheless, the Internal Revenue Service figures up to 20 million may have waited until the last two or three days before the midnight Wednesday deadline.

Taxpayers who owe can face stiff penalties and interest if they fail to file on time. There is a considerably smaller penalty for not paying any balance by the deadline.

But there is no late-filing penalty for the 80 percent of taxpayers who are due refunds, meaning there is little reason to risk a mistake by rushing to mail a return. Although the IRS eventually could pursue criminal charges against someone who refuses to file, the only practical sanction is that the right to a refund is lost after three years unless a return is filed.

About 5 million couples and individuals are expected to file Form 4868 instead of their returns. That will give them an extra four months — until Aug. 17 — to file a return. They still must estimate how much tax they owe and enclose a check with the request for extension.

Because of the Patriots' Day holiday in Massachusetts, New Englanders and New Yorkers who mail their returns to the Andover, Mass., IRS service center have until midnight Thursday to file.

The IRS, acting with unusual speed Tuesday, granted an extra week of filing and paying time to taxpayers and their return preparers who are affected directly by the flooding in downtown Chicago. A return, payment or extension postmarked by midnight April 22 will be considered on time.

The agency also announced that many of its offices across the country will be open late Wednesday night for walk-in and telephone assistance.

The IRS expects 114 million couples and individuals to file returns this year. Through Friday, 75 million returns had been received, 64.1 million had been processed and 51.6 million refunds averaging $975 apiece had been certified.

Just in case taxpayers needed to be reminded about their obligations, the Department of Justice announced it had preferred charges in 90 cases for failing to file returns and planned charges in 34 other cases.

About 50 percent of taxpayers hire professionals to prepare their returns, and as might be expected, things get a little hectic in the final hours.

"With all the pressure people are under, they come in and get real tense, then when they see others in the same boat, they lighten up," says Ray Hite, who oversees H&R Block operations in the Washington area.

Campaigning tough in Jerusalem

JERUSALEM (AP) — About a half-dozen members of the radical Kach movement tried to punch Labor party leader Yitzhak Rabin as he campaigned Tuesday in Jerusalem's main open-air market, police said.

Rabin was not injured, but a policeman suffered head injuries during the scuffle, officials said.

Two of the Kach attackers were arrested, the police said. None of the assailants was armed.

Rabin, 70, was campaigning in the Mahane Yehuda market with Jerusalem Mayor Teddy Kollek when the incident occurred. The mayor also escaped injury, police said.

Rabin, who was prime minister from 1974 to 1977, hopes to unseat the ruling Likud party of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir in national elections June 23.

The Labor party supports a land-for-peace settlement with Israel's Arab neighbors.

The Kach movement, the party of the late Rabbi Meir Kahane, advocates expelling all Arabs from the Jewish state, including the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

An Israeli police officer restrains Benjamin Kahane, center, son of slain Kach leader Meir Kahane, during a campaign appearance of Israeli Labor Party leader Yitzhak Rabin in a Jerusalem market Tuesday. Assaults attempted to jump Rabin during two separate incidents in the market. The man at right, an unidentified "Kahane Lives" member, was arrested.

Four years ago, the movement was banned from participating in Israeli elections because of its racist stance. The Parliament decision was upheld by the Supreme Court.

Kahane was murdered after a speech in New York City on Nov. 5, 1990. A small band of his followers remain active in Israel.

Yeltsin's reforms preserved in Russia

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia's Communist-dominated parliament backed down Tuesday from a week-long clash with President Boris Yeltsin and passed a declaration that will allow him to continue his free-market reforms.

The declaration preserves Yeltsin's power to rule by decree and directs the government to continue the painful reforms that the lawmakers oppose.

It apparently averted one of Russia's most serious political crises since the collapse of the Soviet Union last December.

On Monday, Yeltsin's Cabinet threatened to resign, claiming parliament's attempts to trim the president's powers would cripple reforms, raise inflation and block Russia's entry into the world marketplace.

After the 530-236 vote by the Congress of People's Deputies, Yeltsin's ministers happily clapped each other's shoulders and his parliamentary supporters burst into applause. Yeltsin was not present for the vote.

"This eliminates the need for our resignation," Yeltsin's right-hand man, State Secretary Gennady Burbulis, told reporters.

Lawmakers had a chance to change their minds and amend the document Tuesday.

Yeltsin had been at an impasse with the Congress since the legislative body opened April 6 in the Grand Kremlin Palace.

The declaration was approved without debate at the climax of a second day of raucous cheering, bitter name-calling and sudden walkouts in the Kremlin.

The margin of victory was extremely narrow, just six votes more than the 524 needed for a majority of the 1,046 lawmakers.

Passage of the declaration came after Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady told reporters in Moscow the Congress was jeopardizing a $24 billion aid package by taking "steps backwards in... world confidence."

The declaration tempers a resolution that the Congress passed last Saturday demanding the government lower taxes and raise wages to ease the pain of the reforms. That resolution prompted the Cabinet to submit a collective resignation on Monday.

Yesterday's declaration said the Cabinet should carry out the will of the Congress, "taking into account real, evolving economic and social conditions."

That provides a loophole for Vice Premier Yegor Gaidar, who has argued that lowering taxes while raising expenditures would destroy the reforms and alarm the West.

"On the whole, I think this document would allow the executive branch to carry out further reforms," Gaidar told lawmakers before the vote.

The declaration also reaffirms a decision by the Congress last year to give Yeltsin power to issue economic decrees and appoint Cabinet ministers without legislative approval. And it allows Yeltsin to remain prime minister until at least Dec. 1, said Economics Minister Andrei Nechayev.

The vote followed the public humiliation of the parliament's speaker, who apologized on national television for insulting the Cabinet ministers.

Parliament Speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov sat silently in front of parliament all day Monday while one of his deputies chaired the session.

Khasbulatov apparently was chastened after apologizing on television Tuesday for calling the Cabinet ministers "kids" who had "lost their heads."

Lawmakers also voted Tuesday not to accept the recent change in the name of Russia's second-largest city, from Leningrad to the original St. Petersburg.

More than a dozen delegates from the city then stalked out of the chamber in disgust and did not return until the lawmakers reconsidered.

World Court upholds Libyan sanctions

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP) — Libya got no help from the World Court yesterday in its effort to stave off U.S. and British sanctions for refusing to turn over two men sought for the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103.

The court said the matter had properly been put before the U.N. Security Council, which yesterday confirmed its decision to impose arms sale and air travel embargoes unless Libya surrenders the suspects.

The sanctions were set to go into effect today. The council rejected a last-minute effort by Libya to turn the suspects over to Malta.

In Washington, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater praised the World Court ruling. "We believe Libya must comply with our request for the Pan Am 103 perpetrators," he said.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III told reporters "some consideration" had been given to expanding the sanctions to include a ban on purchases of Libyan oil. That would cripple Libya, which relies on oil sales for most of its income.

Baker also noted that the United States and its allies had gone to war with Iraq to ensure its compliance with U.N. resolutions.

The Security Council has demanded the surrender of the two men indicted for the bombing of Pan Am Flight 103 over Lockerbie, Scotland, in 1988, an attack that killed 270 people. It also says Libya must provide proof it has renounced terrorism and cooperate with France in the investigation of four other Libyans in the bombing of a French airliner that killed 171 people in 1989.

Col. Moammar Gadhafi's government appealed to the World Court, the U.N. judicial arm, in an indirect attack on the U.N. sanctions.

The court hears only cases between sovereign states, so Libya sought orders barring the United States and Britain from taking any military or economic action intended to force Tripoli to give the two men up for trial.

Although the court's panel of international judges refused by an 11-5 vote to block military attacks, there was no indication either nation planned such actions.

"We've been working for a political solution all along, and we're very pleased that there's no interference with that," said Edwin Williamson, legal adviser to the U.S. State Department.

It was not clear when the sanctions would officially begin. Diplomats at the United Nations said they would take effect at 12:01 a.m. EDT Wednesday, or 6:01 a.m. in Libya, but Fitzwater and other U.S. officials in Washington put the time at about 24 hours later — midnight EDT Wednesday.

The World Court's decision was delivered by its acting president, Shigeru Oda of Japan. Speaking to a standing-room-only crowd of diplomats, dignitaries and reporters, he said Libya could not be protected from sanctions by the 1971 Montreal Convention, which governs international air travel.

Oda said Libya, the United States and Britain are all obliged to carry out the decisions of the U.N. Security Council, so "the obligations of the parties in that respect prevail over their obligations under any other international agreement, including the Montreal Convention."

British soldier murdered; Irish group claims guilt

DERBY, England (AP) — An Irish group opposed to British rule in Northern Ireland yesterday claimed responsibility for killing a soldier who worked in an army recruiting office.

Royal Signals Sgt. Michael Newman, 34, died in a hospital hours after being shot in the head Monday night, said police in this city 125 miles northwest of London.

The Irish National Liberation Army made the claim of responsibility in telephone calls to the British Broadcasting Corp. and Downtown Radio in Belfast. It used a recognized code word in one of the calls.

The killing follows two bombings in London on Friday and Saturday. The Irish Republican Army said it set off a bomb in the capital's financial district, killing three people, wounding 91 and causing $1.7 billion in damage.

In the attack Monday evening, the soldier had left the army office and was walking to his car when two men ran up, shot him once in the head with a handgun and then fled, Derby police said.

Dozens of shoppers witnessed the shooting.

Irish groups have previously used guns and car and parcel bombs to target military careers and information offices, killing one recruiting sergeant and wounding 11.

The IRA bombed the Derby recruiting office in 1990, causing damage but no injuries.

The Irish nationalist group, set up in 1975, has rarely carried out attacks on the British mainland. However, the group claimed responsibility for killing 17 people, including 11 soldiers, in the 1982 bombing of a pub in Londonderry.
