

Rabbit Teeth Get Once-Over From Research Students

A series of research problems which will determine the effects of fever and infection on tooth structure is being conducted by students in the College of Dentistry, it was revealed today by Dr. Linden F. Edwards, department of anatomy.

Three problems, which will be submitted as masters' theses, are being investigated at the present time by Milton Berman, Grad-Dent-3; Lowell E. McKelvey, Grad-Dent-4; and Walter J. Johansmann, Grad-Dent-2. All are hitherto untried researches in their respective fields.

Berman, whose research covers the effects of high fever on the tooth structure, is experimenting with the constantly growing incisor teeth of rabbits. His research has revealed that high, prolonged fevers, artificially induced, produce some evidence of the disturbance of calcium formation in the teeth. It is generally assumed that high fevers in children at a young age has the same effect, Dr. Edwards revealed.

McKelvey is studying the effect of artificially induced infection in pulp cavities on the rate of growth of second teeth. He is using kittens as experimental animals, and has found that when first teeth are infected they come out more rapidly than normal, and second tooth growth is more rapid.

Studying the pathway of nerves to the teeth, Johansmann is attempting to discover whether the tooth nerve follows the blood vessels or other nerve paths.

Senate Gets Bill To Replace Board

Removal of Present
Trustees Proposed by Former Coach and Alumnus

The Legislature had before it today a bill to replace the present Board of Trustees of the University. The measure was introduced in the senate by Senator Grant P. Ward, alumnus and former assistant football coach. It proposes removal of the present seven-member board and creation of a new nine-member governing body for the University.

At his press conference today Governor Bricker, also an alumnus, said it had not been discussed with him and that he had given no consideration to any such proposal. Asked whether he favored a change in the personnel of the Board, he replied that he had not thought of the matter.

Four of the present members were named by former Governor Davey. The proposed bill would allow Governor Bricker to appoint all the proposed nine new members for nine-year terms. Present members' terms run seven years.

Faculty Lists Choices for Prexy

A confidential report listing preferences of Ohio State University faculty members for a new University president was studied today by members of the Board of Trustees, according to a United Press report. Vice President J. L. Morrill led in the faculty preference. Out of 189 making recommendations, 98 named Morrill as one of their five choices.

Others who ranked high in the questionnaire replies were: Howard L. Bevis, former state finance director now at Harvard University, 45 choices.

A. J. Klein, dean of the College of Education, 31 choices.

Dr. Arthur H. Compton, University of Chicago, 28 choices.

Dean G. F. Arps, Graduate School, 19 choices, and Dean H. W. Arant, Law School, 14 choices.

The faculty listed 73 choices.

Engineers Glad to Explain Details, Impatient with Hurry for Television

A talk with the speakers at the Broadcasting Engineers' Conference is like a step into the future, for these men are very impatient with people who inquire "When will television be here?"

Dr. Vladimir K. Zworykin of RCA, who is often recognized as the leading authority in the world on television, pointed out that it is now available in the New York area, where there are several stations either in operation or under construction. "Sets will be placed on open sale in that area this April," he said. "There will be demonstrations of television broadcasting at the World's Fair this summer, which should give added impetus to this development. These sets will receive from any television station now built, or which will be built."

When asked how long it would be before it would be available in this area, he replied that it was a matter of finding someone willing to spend enough money to build stations. "Television differs from radio in that its range is limited to the visible horizon, which means a circle of approximately thirty miles radius, depending on the height of the transmitter. The cables necessary to network broadcasting are very expensive, and at the present time there is only one in this country, between New York and Philadelphia."

Professor William L. Everitt, department of electrical engineering, director of the Conference, added that other factors retarding the use of television in the home were the difficulty of finding sponsors for the programs, due to the limited audi-

Doctors Debate State Medical Aid

Issue Involves Four Billion Dollar Expenditure by Public for Care, Health

Socialized medicine, as an issue involving a four billion dollar expenditure by the public for medical care and the health of the people of the United States, was debated by two doctors under the auspices of Sigma Alpha Sigma and Sociad in the Social Administration auditorium Tuesday night.

Dr. A. Henry Dunn, local physician and long an advocate of socialized medicine, supported such a plan while Dr. Jonathan Forman, lecturer in the College of Medicine and editor of the Ohio State Medical Journal, took the opposite side.

In defense of socialized medicine, Dr. Dunn pointed out the need for expensive equipment and precision instruments which many doctors, especially in small towns, are handicapped in not having.

Poor Distribution
"Doctors are not distributed well because they go where there is the most remuneration. Science is useless if not available to the average person and since 42 per cent of the population make only $470 a year, the present system will always be beyond their reach," he asserted.

To finance a system of public medicine, Dr. Dunn advocated a tax by local governments on income, real estate or other broad bases. The local governments would then be aided by the federal government.

Destroys Democracy
Socialized medicine would be an entering wedge for the destruction of democracy and the American form of government and not only would it regiment the doctors but it would be entrusting our personal problems to politicians, Dr. Forman said.

In place of socialized medicine, Dr. Forman said, "The Ohio State Medical Association and other medical societies are formulating plans designed to finance medical care for persons in the low-income group, which may be adapted to all communities throughout the state."

"A mechanistic scheme of socialized medicine, with its enormous cost, governmental red-tape, political ramifications, and a lower standard of medical care are some of the reasons the medical profession is opposed to the application of principles of socialism to a problem which can be met in the American Way," he continued.

Far Eastern Film Showing Cancelled

"Thunder Over China," a movie sponsored by the YMCA and YWCA as part of the publicity for the Far Eastern Student Fund drive, was not shown Tuesday night at University Hall as scheduled because the film had not been reviewed by the state board of censors.

Although the film has been shown twice in Columbus, at the Hillel Foundation on January 13 and at the First Congregational Church on December 11, it has never appeared before the board of censors because the previous showings were private ones.

Kenneth S. Kline, executive secretary of the University YMCA, said, "When it was discovered that the film had not been submitted for review to the state board of censors, it was decided immediately to postpone the showing of the film until the proper steps had been taken."

Poor Fraternity Publicity

Banta's Greek Exchange, a national magazine dealing with fraternities, in an editorial in its current issue condemns several Ohio State fraternities for the unfavorable publicity they have received recently. Referring to the October 24 edition of the LANTERN, the editorial comments on a speech given here during Greek Week by Malcolm Sewell, General Secretary of Sigma Nu. We quote:

"The Address (by Mr. Sewell) called attention to the harm being done the fraternity system by those fraternity chapters which persist in the practice of cheapening and brutal initiation stunts. According to the LANTERN, Mr. Sewell said, 'Hell Week is passé. It has no place in the fraternities if it is to be in keeping with their principles.'

"As our eye glances down the page to the other feature our comment at this point is 'Oh, Yeah?' For initiation was going on at Ohio State at the time that Mr. Sewell spoke and the picture on the same page of the LANTERN which was taken from the Columbus Dispatch was entitled 'Pledges Enjoy Dinner.' This was the caption: 'Four X X pledges are seen here participating in a form of Last Supper as Hell Week Activities drew to a close Saturday night. Wearing burlap clothing and with hands clasped at their backs, each attempted, with varying success, to eat such things as pumpkin pie and whipped cream.' The four pledges are lying on their stomachs and the burlap clothing starts well above their knees.

"We shall expect to see this picture reproduced in Life magazine so that the public may see what a fine contribution the fraternities at Ohio State are making to the culture and social life of the students. Life has already shown in pictures the mock initiation of a movie star by one of the Ohio State fraternities and the use of a 'wrestling' or 'necking' room by another. As we all know to our sorrow they followed this with a rushing feature, repeating the 'wrestling' room and giving the public an artificial and totally fantastic idea of the conduct of fraternities at that institution.

"The thoughtlessness and the desire for publicity on the part of some undergraduates in allowing themselves to be posed by professional photographers is unfair to the University and unfair to the fraternities. If some inexperienced boys and girls are without knowledge of the ethics of the situation or the proper conduct of gentlemen and ladies, then they ought to be educated by their fraternities instead of encouraged to flaunt such activities in the public's eye.

"These deplorable incidents are the direct outgrowth of the deliberate campaign on the part of some fraternity leaders to get notoriety for their organizations at any cost. They are willing to drag the entire system in the mire to satisfy their lust for printer's ink. It is no wonder that undergraduates sometimes become confused and lose their bearings as to our real purpose."

Attend the Sophomore Banquet

The Sophomore class cabinet has announced plans to sponsor an all-class banquet in cooperation with Romophos and Mirrors, the two sophomore honoraries. We have been super-critical all year of the lack of work of class officers and their cabinets.

Now it seems that one of them has crossed us up and has actually announced plans for doing something. This is embarrassing, but far be it from us to let a little thing like editorial policy interfere with endorsing what seems to be a good idea.

The purpose of the banquet would be to instill a more vigorous class spirit into the Sophomore class. We hope it is a great success. Members of the class should make an effort to turn out April 25 and meet their classmates. Ohio State could use more class spirit and banquets are one way of helping to create it.

We hope the banquet becomes a tradition on the campus. If it does, and if by some accident class officers should happen to be abolished some time in the dim future, we see no reason why Romophos and Mirrors couldn't continue to carry on the tradition.

Backstage Chatter

... by Paul E. Jacobs

Over the week end your correspondent traveled to Cleveland to view the much talked of film, "Doctor Mamlock." After leaving the theater we could not understand why the Ohio Board of Censors did not permit the immediate showing of the picture. It is a great documentary film which, in these troubled times, has much significance for us here in the United States.

"Doctor Mamlock" is universal in its application. For us who are constantly subject to the talk, condemnation and propaganda of all kinds of "isms," it is a far greater cry for the protection of our democracy than is the current "The American Way."

The film documents the rapid growth of the Nazi party during the chaos of the early 1930's; the betrayal of the German people by the Brown Shirt horde; the brutality of their anti-Semitism; the fear and dread of the German people.

Essentially it is the story of the great scientist Mamlock who has no time for politics but devotes his life to the fight against disease. He soon finds that politics built on racial prejudice, discards science and art, making beasts of men, plunging man back into the abyss from which he arose.

Mamlock's last speech is probably the most powerful that this commentator has seen filmed and recorded. It is both a prayer and an indictment. Standing on a balcony of his clinic surrounded by Storm Troopers, he calls upon them "to put away your machine guns before it is too late, before they are taken from you. Otherwise your time will be a nightmare in history."

"Doctor Mamlock" is a picture that stirs. It doesn't attempt to stamper, it attempts to motivate thought. It doesn't, as so many of our contemporary films and plays do, say, "Here is something evil." It is rather a stirring call to think and avoid that which is evil.

"Doctor Mamlock" might very easily have been made in England, France or the United States. It is a "must" film for every citizen of every democracy.

We bless this land of ours as a place that still has freedom of the press, freedom of speech, freedom of assembly. In a recent radio forum it was said that as long as we maintained a free press we shall have a free nation. The Third Reich has disproven the assertion. They failed to think.

It is only when we have a free press and free speech, but, above all, think about what we hear, what we read, what we say and what we publish shall we retain the American Way without waving flags.

Off-Campus Comment

Teaching Democracy—Democratic Impossibility

Eastern universities, notably Yale and Harvard, were subject for attack recently by a metropolitan newspaper for harboring radical professors, among them the recent appointee to the Supreme Court, Felix Frankfurter. The liberal damnation of the institutions for allowing men of advanced social consciousness and ideas to teach in their ivy clad halls ended on the patriotic note, teach democracy and not the isms.

Unfortunately, this intolerant attitude is all too prevalent. The assumption that the teaching of all doctrines, radical and conservative alike, is undemocratic, that is incompatible with the democratic tradition. Tolerance of ideas is the essence of democracy.

Professors are, fortunately or no, human beings. It is difficult for a man to leave his moral, political, economic and social philosophy behind him when he enters the classroom, as the newspaper advocated. Further, it is not desirable that he do so, for his philosophy is, after all, his originality which is valuable as a thought stimulus to his students.

It is up to the student to accept or reject a point of view brought out by an instructor, or to use it as a basis for formulating his own new individual judgment. It is certainly a flaw of reasoning to ask that no conflicting or disturbing issues be touched upon in a university course, or to assume that students should emerge from college with exactly the same ideas with which they entered. Such a procedure would hardly be education.

We read much in our own press today of censorship of ideas in European countries, which newspapers go to great lengths to deplore. It is an American paradox that certain members of the fourth estate should advocate in their own land practices which they do not favor in foreign countries. — Daily Northwestern.

Corset—Scarcely a Bad Word

All along I have had the sneaking suspicion that I should leave matters like this alone. Still, that would have been no less than an admission of my own weakness if not fear. Corset, as I have indicated, is not a bad word even if I do have a distinct distaste for the corset as an institution.

Naturally I know very little about them, being acquainted only in the slightest way with their anatomical functions. But the fact that I see red and go prickly at the spine when the things are so much as mentioned is to me most reasonable when you consider the circumstances. But I am ahead of my story.

Along about the time in life when I traded Grimm's Fairy Tales for Moby Dick I went to work in a department store. All of 14 years I slicked down my hair and spent two weeks of each month at work and the other two in high school. I was officially known as a cash boy, a job which had very little to do with cash and a great deal to do with almost anything else. That "anything else" had to do with picking up pins to wrapping baby buggies and it was inevitable that I should attach to myself responsibilities more important than necessary.

At 14 and a half, I took to wearing separate collars so I might look like the floorwalker. Our only difference at that point, so far as I could see, was that I was the shorter, and had more hair. I went him one better by wearing a carnation in my lapel every Saturday morning.

Naturally I learned many lessons. I took the store seriously—all five floors of it—but my transgressions were many, and why they didn't fire me long before they did will always remain a mystery.

It was an interesting life (I lasted three years), and I learned that retailers couldn't resist calling an all-cotton blanket part wool. I learned that the customer could scarcely be sure a dress was rayon when a clerk swore it was silk, cross her heart, hope to die. Barnum himself was our advertising manager (how that man could bring in the old hens), and we paid dividends right on through the depression. Six per cent.

But then there is this matter of corsets to be settled. I have said that I have nothing against the corset as an institution and I hope this won't influence you one way or the other.

One day, however, when Barnum had announced one of his "everything below cost" days, with a bar of soap free, balloons for the kiddies, we stand in back of our merchandise, et al., the boss called me. "Go up on the second floor," he said, "and bring down a pile of size 36 to 50 corsets for the bargain table."

I hustled into the elevator and out again on the second floor. The corsetier, or whatever the woman who fools 'em is called, started piling up my outstretched arms. More, and more, and more, until it was only with great effort that I could see out over the pink pile. It was on my way down in the elevator that I began to have misgivings. Someone tittered. Some fool woman with no conscience tittered at me and that brought home, with horrible clearness, how very funny, indeed, I must appear looking out over a pile of size 36 to 50 corsets.

Anybody can realize that a young man who takes himself seriously, and feels that he is as important as the floorwalker would suffer. The bargain table was miles across the main floor. Traffic was heavy and I wove in and out, red as roses, and perspiring into the pink monstrosities tucked under my neck. The girls at hosiery giggled. Eventually I reached the main aisle. Far down to the front was the corset table. I stopped; tried to get a new grip on myself; drew a bead on the table and, jumping the corsets into

Contrast Between IMA, Ohio Staters Shows Senate Representation Evils

By MANNY SCHOR

Nothing indicates the unbalanced condition of the present system of Student Senate representation better than a contrast between the representation given to the Independent Men's Association and to Ohio Staters, Inc.

Ohio Staters, Inc., is a service organization made up of administrative officials, faculty members and BMO's. It has 52 members, who traditionally are represented in the Senate by their president. However, last year the president of Ohio Staters was already a Student Senate representative from another campus organization, and therefore another member was named representative.

Thus one of the smallest organizations in the Student Senate was able to boast that two of its affiliates held Senate seats.

On the other hand, the IMA is an organization with approximately 200 independent students as members. This group of 200 represents the interests of at least 6500 independent men. Until last year these students, comprising a majority of the student body, did not have a single Student Senate representative.

Then, however, the IMA was granted a seat in the Senate and the IMA president, who is the group's representative in relations with other campus organizations automatically became the Student Senate representative. But the person who is elected president of the IMA is not chosen for that position with his qualifications as a senator foremost in mind. He is chosen primarily because he has been and is expected to continue being of service to the independent movement.

Koads Council

The Koads Council, representing approximately 175 affiliated Negro students and 250 independent students, also has one seat in the Senate. In accord with a provision in the Koads Council constitution, the president of the council automatically becomes the Student Senate

Canners Gather For Annual Meet

Approximately 80 canners are on the campus today for the eleventh annual Canners' Conference which started Tuesday.

Faculty members speaking at the conference include: Dr. Brown; Joseph H. Boyd, extension service department of horticulture and forestry; Dr. Harry W. Cordell, department of business organization; Dr. H. Gordon Hayes, department of economics; Dr. D. Frank Holtman, department of bacteriology; Dr. Jay Boardman Park, department of agronomy.

A luncheon at Pomerene Hall today will conclude the conference.

representative. Although the president is democratically elected by members of the council, he is not chosen primarily as a Senate representative, but as a leader of the Negro students on the campus.

The intramural department is one of the few organizations represented in the Student Senate by a student who is chosen on the basis of his qualifications as a representative. However, he is not elected, he is appointed.

Each year Professor Leo G. Staley, director of intramural sports, appoints one of the senior intramural managers to represent the department in the Senate. His ability to represent the interests of the 5000 men who participate in intramural athletics is the chief consideration in his selection.

Student Bar Plans Law Book Rentals

The Student Bar Association plans to establish a rental system book exchange which eventually will take care of the entire law book needs for all law students.

A ways and means committee has been selected by the Student Bar Association consisting of Fred W. Cole, L-3; Russell H. Dixon, L-1; Richard K. Grace, L-2; John F. Jones, L-1, and William L. Coleman, L-3, chairman.

Election of officers will be made by the Bar Association within the next two weeks, according to Coleman.

Petitions Ask Change In Civil Service Law

Petitions declaring that the 20 per cent preference given war veterans by the Ohio civil service law is unjust and asking for amendments to the civil service law are being circulated on the campus and elsewhere this week.

These petitions are expected to be filled by Thursday and then will be presented to the Legislature. The petitions are reported as being backed by the Women Voters' League and the Civil Service Reform League.

Snoopin'

"Tempus Fugit" indeed! Seems as though we should still be looking forward to Christmas and here I suddenly discover that half of February has gone with the wind. And that brings me and my "snoopin'" close to February 24th ... Will Osborne ... The Junior Prom.

You've never been luckier in the way of formals. You've heard about "good-enough-to-eat" colors. That's a perfect description of the new chateau greens, sunny yellows, heavenly blues and pinks. You've heard about looking "fragile and feminine and infinitely precious" ... Just slip into the 'cloudy, frothy folds of the new marquisettes, nets, laces, chiffons! It's amazing the things these frankly sentimental frocks do for you! If they don't bring out the "Sir Galahad" in your escort I don't know what will. Prices from $10.95 to $35.

Have you seen the extravagantly sheer hose with rhinestones, yes rhinestones, flashing from their heels. No end smart with your heel-less sandals. $1.95. And speaking of sandals, you'll like the colorful, candy-striped brocades on our Fourth Floor. They're $6.50 and at the same price—sleek black satins or dyeable white satins.

Here it is time for lunch again, so bye bye.

Talks to the "Koon Dog" and Finds
Out That Tomski's Times Against
Yale Do Not Worry Him too Much

Lantern Sports Editor

Waldemar Tomski, Michigan's ineligible free-style star, returned to active warfare against Yale Saturday with two astonishing triumphs in the 50- and 100-yard events and he turned in the fastest intercollegiate times of the year in doing so, but this fact is not causing the 'Buck swimmers' and Mike Peppe as many headaches as we thought it would.

Tomski did a 52.1 for the 100 and a 22.9 for the 50 in his first races of the year, and he was not pressed in either attempt. The time for the 50-yard race does not mean anything, because Peppe does not have anyone whom he figures to get any better than a third place here anyway. But in the century Ohio State's Billy Quayle is expected to garner five valuable points, and he has never done better than a 52.5 in winning his specialty.

Four-tenths of a second is a pretty good margin in the short 100-yard race, so we decided to ask Mr. "Koon Dog" Quayle how Tomski, who was always an easy mark for him to beat, could turn in such a fast time.

"Shucks, now," retorted Quayle. "Walt has been practicing for weeks and he has been able to get in top shape without having to travel around for any meet. Against Yale, he was pretty anxious to get off a good race, and he did. He probably got off to a perfect start and continued to swim the race of his life."

But we still wanted to know how he (Quayle) was going to beat Tomski when he had never swum so fast before in his life. "You can't laugh off that time of Tomski's against Yale," we replied.

"No, you can't laugh off Walt's time," said Bill, "but if he is able to do a 52.1 against us Saturday, the old 'Koon Dog' will do a 52 flat."

We believe Quayle, though to many it may sound like an idle boast. Bill is the type of swimmer who will never go any faster than he has to in winning, but when he has to, can always rise to the occasion. Tomski, in all probability, will not be able to go so fast this week as he did against Yale, but if he does, we believe that he will push the Buck star to a new record.

Haynie in Top Form . . .

Captain Tom Haynie of the Wolves also turned in a very fast time in the 220-yard free style against the Eli, when he negotiated the distance in 2:12. Bob Johnson, Ohio's best 220 man, turned in a 2:17 in winning over the Pitt entries Saturday, but he will have to do a lot better to edge Haynie or Welsh, who is also a very fast 220 man. Haynie's return to form this season will aid the Wolves in the Intercollegiate and the A.A.U. meets to come, for when he is in top shape, there are very few swimmers in the country who can beat him at 220- or 440-yard races.

Red Woodling will be pitted against Haynie in the 440, and he may stiek with him if he is right Saturday. Woodling's chief trouble is that he almost has to swim a mile before he can get going. Red holds the record for the real distance swims, for there is nobody in this country, at least, who can beat him at five miles.

However, 440 yards is the longest distance of any one race this week end, so we hope the little red head feels "right" Saturday and is able to get out there and beat Mr. Haynie.

Phi Gams Top Tekes in I-M Cage Contest

In one of the foremost games of Tuesday night's I-M competition Phi Gamma Delta took over the hard-fighting Tekes, 16-11. This insured the Phi Gams a place in the University Fraternity championship elimination, Jackson led a smooth passing attack for the Phi Gams, while Coyer was the mainstay of the Tekes.

The Phi Beta Delta five, after requiring an overtime period, finally conquered a fast Pi KA team. Rickles led the Phi BD's with eight points to give them 11 points at the half, while the Pi KA's got 10 in this period. Both teams played hard to garner six and seven points respectively in the last half, but Jaffee sank a foul in the overtime to put the game on ice.

The Sigma Chis eked out a tough 27 to 26 decision over a fast Theta Kappa Phi quintet. McKeever of the losers planked in 10 points to lead both teams in scoring, while Coleman of the Sigma Chis led his teammates with seven markers.

Betas Win . . .

An outclassed Zeta Beta team valiantly but hopelessly tried to overcome a fast, clever and well playing Beta five. Sarkkinen, playing beautiful ball, led the victors with six buckets and one free throw, while Noll played his usual good game for the vanquished.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon in defeating the TEP's won their flight championship. With Varsity footballer Jimmy Sexton leading the victors with nine points, they easily out-pointed the TEP's. The final score was 18-14.

Thomas, playing a bang-up offensive game for the Chi Phis, got the night's high total of 20 points. His brothers got another 15 tallies to make a total of 35, which was sufficient to take the Sigma Pi's, who made 27.

The Alpha Sigma Phis led by Black, who made 12 tallies, swamped the Kappa Delta Rhos. The Alpha Sigs were hot all night and consistently made their difficult shots count. The final score was 37-14.

Harrison House . . .

Perhaps the most interesting, exciting and well balanced game of the evening was that played between the Harrison House and the Snacksackers No. 1. The Harrison quintet proved itself to be one of the outstanding teams of the I-M lineup. Led by Spaulding, who played well both defensively and offensively, the Harrison Housers showed a beautiful passing attack. The Snacksackers, who also played very clever ball, snagged 15 points, but were just three short of their most worthy opponents.

In one of the closer battles of the evening, the Delta Chis took over the Sigma Phi Epsilons 29-26. Dagenhard of the winners and Bowers of the losers were both jockeying for high point position, but ended up in a tie with both men making 12 points each.

The ZBT-Sigma Chi B match showed two scrappy teams fighting for a win. Mindel starring for the Zeta Betes made 12 out of the total of 14, while Tommy Dellinger scored five out of the 11 made by the Sigma Chis.

The hero-for-a-day medal goes to Barnes of Alpha Gamma Sigma, who made a beautiful long shot in the second overtime period to give his team a 15-13 victory over Delta Sigma Delta. At the end of the second period the score was 13-13, and in the first overtime not a marker was made.

Frosh Grapplers' Final Matches to Start on Monday

Two World Track Marks Equaled

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 15—(UP)—Two indoor world records were tied last night in the second annual Knights of Columbus games here.

Alan Tolmich, Wayne University hurdler, twice was timed in 5.7 as he topped the 45-yard timbers to equal Sam Allen's record, and Kenny Clapp of Brown, won the 40-yard dash in 4.5 to equal Ben Johnson's unofficial time.

Scheduled feature was the mile run, won by Glenn Cunningham in the not unusual time of 4:16. Glenn put on his usual last lap kick to out-sprint Archie San Romani by five yards. Don Lash was third and Joe McCluskey fourth.

Backfield Intact

Although Notre Dame's football team loses its first string line for the coming season, no cries of sorrow will be heard from Elmer Layden. He still has his great backfield intact.

Ben Stephens Heads Iowa Cagers Who Play Here Saturday

By MANNY SCHOR

When the current basketball season began, word was sent out from Iowa City that the University of Iowa cage squad was not to be considered in title speculations.

Apparently the Hawkeyes knew what they were speaking about, because when they come to the Coliseum Saturday night for a clash with the Buckeyes they will be in ninth place in the Conference standings with a record of two victories and six defeats.

However, the cage sages of Iowa, and especially Coach Rollie Williams, are not letting the Hawkeyes' record dampen their spirits. Because Iowa is in the building stage; there is only one senior on the roster of 15 players. The rest of the squad is comprised of sophomores and juniors who are being groomed to play an important part in the championship race next year.

"Blazing Ben" . . .

The senior on the squad is Captain Ben Stephens. Standing 6 feet tall and weighing 165 pounds, his brilliant play during the past three years has earned him the nickname of "Blazing Ben." He is highly regarded by players and coaches alike and is considered one of the finest cagers in the Conference.

Until an attack of influenza forced Stephens out of the lineup prior to the Iowa-Michigan game he was setting the pace in the Big Ten individual scoring race. Since that time, however, he has been unable to overtake the Buckeyes' Jimmy Hull, who now leads the league with 162 points.

In his first year of Varsity competition in 1937, Stephens ranked twelfth among the Conference scoring leaders. Last year he was fifth with a total of 136 points.

The Hawkeyes' two victories were over Chicago and Purdue. The Chicago victory was expected, but in the light of the power Purdue has shown in recent games, Iowa's feat of whipping the Boilermakers assumes added proportions.

Among the teams which have defeated Iowa are Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Northwestern, Illinois and Indiana.

Coach Williams, who is completing his tenth year as head basketball coach at Iowa, was himself an outstanding Western Conference athlete. During his undergraduate days at Wisconsin in 1921-22-23, he was an all-Conference guard on the hardwood court and an all-Conference halfback on the gridiron. He starred in baseball as well and, during his three years of Varsity competition, earned nine letters.

Set Record . . .

Last year the Hawkeyes had their most successful season since 1935. Although they did no better than break even in the Big Ten standings with six wins and the same number of losses, they set a new Iowa scoring record of 743 points for 21 games.

Iowa lost one player when the outcome of final examinations was announced early this month. He is center Dick Evans, a junior from Chicago.

Shoe Shop on the Rouge

It MAY surprise you to learn that a cobbler's shop runs daily at the Ford Rouge plant in Dearborn. But the Ford plant is full of surprises. Every one has a practical answer.

Hundreds of workers in the Rouge require special types of footwear. These the company furnishes. So a steady stream of worn-out footwear reaches the Rouge cobblers, and the busy tap-tap of their hammers joins the rhythm of ten-ton presses and heavy rolling mills.

The cobbler's shop is one part of the great drive that prevents waste in the Rouge. Lumber from incoming crates is sorted and used for outgoing shipments. Waste paper and wood chips go to the Rouge paper mill. Metal particles removed by grinding wheels and metal saws are reclaimed. Nothing is lost—nothing wasted.

All this plays a part in making finer, better Ford cars. Pennies saved are pennies earned. Multiplied at the Rouge into millions, they help build the value that keeps millions of Fords delivering dependable, economical service year after year.

Snow and Slush No Barrier When a Lady Wants to Talk

Three inches of slush were not enough to dismay a woman leader this morning. Upon alighting from the 9:30 a. m. train out of Washington, Mary Anderson, head of the Women's Bureau, Department of Labor, went to a downtown department store and purchased a pair of galoshes.

"Women have a much greater chance for advancement today because of their increased opportunities for education and training," Miss Anderson said when interviewed this morning in Oxley Hall. Women first began their entrance into business through industrial fields, she said, adding that the tendency today is for more women to be drawn into the clerical and professional fields.

Miss Anderson stated further that, although there is still a certain amount of antagonism toward women in professions, this prejudice is not nearly so noticeable as it was a few years ago.

Miss Anderson was born on a farm in Sweden and came to the United States when she was 16. She worked in a shoe factory for 18 years until she became organizer for the National Women's Trade Union League. During the war she was called to Washington to assist the government in its labor problems. She was made head of the Women's Bureau at the time of its creation 20 years ago. Miss Anderson's present interest in the field of labor problems is the minimum wage law.

Simply dressed, Miss Anderson wore a wine-colored dress with matching hat and a single string of pearls. Her voice was deep and she talked in a slow modulated tone.

Miss Anderson will speak on the problems of employed women at a dinner given in her honor by the Vocational Information Conference Committee at 5:45 this afternoon in room 307 of Pomerene Hall.

Students from the College of Arts and Sciences, made a total of 1164 calls. The remainder were divided among the 10 other colleges and professional schools. There were 43 patients transferred to the University Hospital during November. They lost an average of five and one-half days of school.

Cobb and Company In Sports Spotlight

Sam Cobb of the department of physical education not only made an enviable record for himself as a young man, but now he has several sons who are following in their athletic father's footsteps.

Caton, aged 16, who is a senior at a local high school, entered a gymnastic meet in Cincinnati last Saturday and when the meet had finished Caton was the proud possessor of four first place medals. He won top honors on the horse, parallel bars, high bar and in free calisthenics. Caton also placed twelfth in last year's national AAU meet on the parallels.

Another son, Sam Cobb, Jr., won the state high school cross-country crown last fall. Both, naturally, expect to enter Ohio State.

Boys Like Mail

Mail-time has become a big occasion with swimmers Bill Quayle and Bud Howard. When the letters come, if any, they are offered an opportunity to use their recently acquired letter openers.

It seems that when the swimming team was in Florida Christmas time, Bud, Bill and Herman Wirthwein went fishing. The 139- and 147-pound specimens which the boys caught were not mounted. The beaks were cut off, shellacked and shined for use as letter openers.

One letter they have long awaited is one of complaint from Coach Wirthwein: he didn't catch a thing.

League Breaks Up

The Eastern Intercollegiate League which has many times been confused with the more ancient Ivy League of the same name, will have no more after the present basketball season. The seven-year-old conference has been dominated most of the years by Pittsburgh. Its other members are Carnegie Tech, Temple, Georgetown, Penn State and West Virginia. A geographical problem was given as the reason for abandonment by H. Gabriel Murphy, Georgetown, league president.

Doctor in House?

Suffering from a sprained ankle, hurdler Don Smith did not expect to run in the recent Illinois meet. He went downtown Saturday afternoon, therefore, attended a show, ate peanuts and had a huge dinner.

On the way out to the Coliseum with the gang Coach Snyder told Smith he looked in shape. After three false starts, Don's race started and he succeeded in placing third, despite the first three hurdles—the show, the peanuts and the dinner.

Hoosiers Try Luck

Three players on Indiana's Big Ten baseball champs of 1938 have signed with major league organizations and will report soon to their farm teams. Bill Smith, the Conference's leading hurler last year, belongs to the New York Giants, while John Hobson, an outfielder, is St. Louis Cardinal property, and Henry Decker, another outfielder, is connected with the Chicago White Sox.
