FDA asks to halt gel implants

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration asked surgeons on Monday to quit giving women breast implants made of silicone gel, saying it "cannot assure the safety of these devices" pending an evaluation of new information about them.

The action fell short of the outright ban sought by some critics of the devices that are implanted in about 150,000 women a year and have been on the market for more than 30 years. It would stop their use until the FDA and an advisory panel, to be convened within 45 days, can assess the latest data.

Never before has the agency called for a halt, even temporarily, to use of a medical device employed so widely. The action was based on new reports regarding ruptures and "anecdotal" evidence that recipients may be at greater risk of immune system disorders.

The moratorium does not affect saline-filled breast implants, which will continue to be available. Saline implants are encased in silicone, but are not believed to pose the same risk as silicone gel implants because rupture or leakage releases saltwater, rather than silicone gel, into the body.

According to FDA figures, about 1 million women have received silicone gel breast implants, and more than 10,000 receive implants monthly. About 80 percent are for cosmetic purposes, with the rest used to reconstruct breasts removed as the result of disease or injury.

The FDA had previously estimated that 2 million women were affected based on the number of reported implants, but it halved that estimate Monday because most

"As long as they are out there, women are likely to get silicone breast implants."

—Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the Public Citizen Health Research women receive two implants instead of one, agency spokeswoman Betsy Adams said.

The FDA has received about 3,400 reports of problems with silicone gel breast implants and 3,000 reports on saline implants.

"Until the panel meets and we have had an opportunity to review its recommendations, I am asking that physicians cease using silicone gel implants," FDA Commissioner David Kessler told a news conference. "As physicians, our first obligation is to do no harm."

Kessler set no time limit on the moratorium, but said the agency would move as quickly as possible to resolve the issue.

The American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons said its members would comply, but its president, Dr. Norman Cole, called on Kessler to release the new information that triggered the moratorium.

"If the commissioner has new information, it is essential that it become available to physicians and their patients," Cole said.

Kessler also asked manufacturers to stop distributing the implants, and companies said they were complying though they disagreed with the FDA's action.

"We are still totally convinced that we have established both the safety and the efficacy of these ... devices," said Robert T. Rylee, chairman of Dow Corning Corp.'s Health Care Businesses.

Jan Varner, president of McGahn Medical Co., a leading manufacturer of silicone gel implants, said the FDA's action is "panicking a lot of people" when "we don't have any scientific reason to concern them." He called the FDA's action "unfortunate" and said "we're going to explore all recourse, and hopefully it won't take 45 days." He declined to elaborate.

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe, director of the Public Citizen Health Research Group, said the FDA's action is inadequate.

"I think it's irresponsible for the FDA to do anything other than recall silicone gel implants," he said. "As long as they are out there, women are likely to get silicone breast implants," he said.

Kessler disagreed, and said that "when the head of the Food and Drug Administration gets up and asks for a moratorium, I believe all physicians and manufacturers will abide by it ... and we're asking patients to understand that the FDA cannot assure the safety of these devices at the present time."

He added, "We don't think we're going to get to the question of enforcement."

Nation's capital suffers power loss

WASHINGTON (AP) — A two-hour blackout paralyzed much of the nation's capital Monday evening, trapping people in elevators and snarling rush hour traffic.

The outage hit at about 5:10 p.m. and lights began popping back on about an hour and 40 minutes later. All power was restored by 7:45 p.m., said Debra Leak, a spokeswoman for the Potomac Electric Power Co.

Fire Department officials responded to some 80 cases of people stranded in elevators, officials said. At the U.S. Trade Representative's office, workers were trapped behind electronic security doors that quit working when the power went out.

Pepco officials said a 230,000 volt line failed somewhere between the company's Potomac River generating station in Alexandria, Va., and the District of Columbia. A 480 megawatt generating station also failed and the cause was not known, the utility said.

About 18,000 customers were out of service, Pepco said, although one customer could be an entire office building. Traffic signals failed and, in some places, smoke rose from the manholes.

J.L. O'Neil, a battalion fire chief, said that the power outage caused a fire in electric cables under the streets near the Chinatown section of Washington.

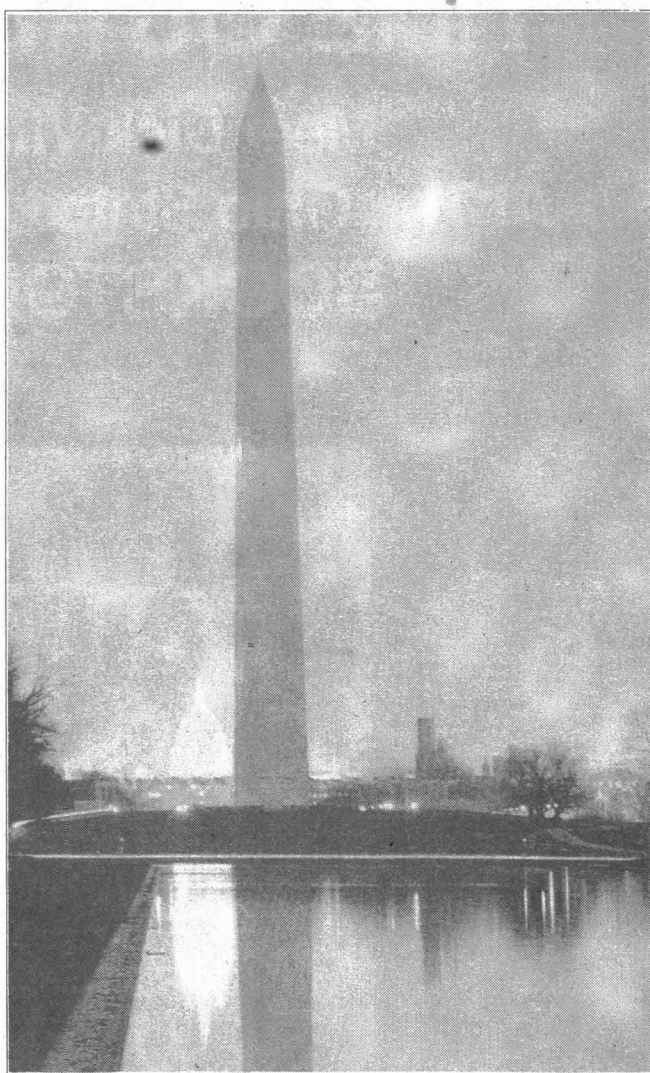

He said the tunnels under 6th street were "clogged with smoke," forcing firefighters to go several blocks away to fight the blaze and prevent it from spreading.

O'Neil said that the fire apparently was caused by an electrical surge that occurred at the time of the initial outage.

Fire and transportation officials said they had reports of several people stranded in elevators throughout the city.

The city's subway system said it had several people trapped in elevators at its Archives station and two at the Smithsonian subway stop. They were released within a half an hour.

Three downtown subway stations were blacked out. Escalators and turnstiles stopped but trains continued to run, subway officials said.

George Washington University Hospital was blacked out, said a hospital operator who said emergency generators had kicked on.

Eugene Brim, head of hospital security, said the hospital only had one elevator working and hospital staff was taking meals to patients by making a human chain up the stairs.

"The lights flickered briefly, but we're up and hard at work," said a staffer who answered the phone at the White House Press Office.

Traffic on downtown streets ground to a halt when lights quit working. Some citizens grabbed flashlights and stood in intersections to direct traffic while frustrated motorists blared their horns.

Loss of bus service brings complaints

By Julie Campbell

Lantern staff writer

Students who hope their complaints will resurrect the discontinued daytime bus service on Main Campus might find their voices muffled by financial reality, according to campus transportation officials.

Daytime campus bus service on Main Campus was eliminated Monday because of budget cuts in the OSU Department of Transportation.

Eight hours after the new, reduced routes began, the Department of Transportation fielded complaints in approximately 40 phone calls, said Beth Bame, assistant director of transportation and campus bus operations.

"Six or seven of those were pretty nasty," Bame said. Bame said most of the calls were from confused students who said they were not informed about the discontinued routes.

However, the university released notification two quarters ago, Bame said.

Parents were also among the list of callers, Bame said. Many were concerned that their children would not be able to arrive to classes on schedule.

Sean Tipton, president of the Council of Graduate Students, said he was extremely surprised that he had not received any complaints. Tipton said the low response was probably because fewer graduate students use the buses than undergraduates, whose classes are scattered across campus.

The biggest contingent of graduate students uses the buses to research facilities, Tipton said.

Student concerns will be accepted through phone calls or letters, said Helen DeSantis, assistant vice president for Business Management. DeSantis advises students to address letters to her so she can formally present higher administration with a compilation of responses.

Only if an alternative financial source is tapped can the buses return to serving Main Campus, said DeSantis. The transportation department's debt of $215,000 led to the busing cut, DeSantis said.

The department spends approximately $70,000 a quarter to operate and maintain the 18 OSU buses, Bame said.

The department explored an alternative of tacking an extra fee from one to ten dollars onto tuition to offset transportation costs. But when students were polled, responses were overwhelmingly negative in light of constant tuition increases, she said.

Bame said 45 percent of the students ride buses regularly. Bus passes could be made available for those students at a cost of about $6.

The pass would be similar to a student ID card with a metallic strip to indicate whether students had paid for bus service. Bame could not estimate of the cost of equipment development and installation because bus passes are only a proposal.

The passes would only come into effect if students agree to pay the fee. DeSantis and Bame contended that it is difficult to get a student consensus with such a large and diverse population.

Former state employees accuse department of discrimination and say layoffs were unfair

(AP) — Several former state employees told an Ohio House committee on Monday that they were laid off illegally or improperly by the Republican administration of Gov. George Voinovich.

Much of the testimony came from former employees of the Department of Natural Resources, which was accused by some former workers of discriminating against the disabled, women and minorities.

The administration denied similar charges at earlier hearings.

Rep. Wayne Jones, D-Cuyahoga Falls, chairman, and other members of the House Select Committee on State Employment Practices heard the latest complaints as part of a continuing investigation ordered by Speaker Vern Riffe, D-Wheelersburg.

Jones said the investigation is not politically motivated. The speaker simply wants to find out if the year-old administration violated Civil Service and non-discrimination statutes or union contracts, Jones said.

Bonnie Dierenfeld-Michael of Worthington, a Department of Natural Resources administrator from 1983 until last June, claimed she was fired after being illegally declassified.

Dierenfeld-Michael, an attorney, said she received a letter in April stating that her position had been classified under Civil Service by mistake and that she was being declassified.

She said she was notified in another letter in June that said her services were no longer needed. She cited a section of Ohio case law that said employees cannot be declassified without their consent.

Susan Ball told the committee that the Department of Natural Resources laid her off after saying her position was being abolished, but that she suspects her duties still are necessary to the department.

Ball said she could have bumped any of 16 other employees in her division who had less seniority but chose not to do so "as a matter of principle."

She and others cited statistics that they said show the department discriminates in hiring and promoting women and minority employees. However, she conceded, in response to questions, that the statistics "can be confusing."

Mary Douglas Lacy, a 20-year employee of the Department of Natural Resources, read what she called a statement from 40 fellow employees who said the department also is unfair to disabled employees.

She also said the department has abolished 198 positions in the last six months while at the same time posted listings for 80 vacancies.

Ms. Lacy said many employees doubt the administration's claims that it is acting to save money to increase efficiency and save money in the state's current budget crunch.

"Their actions indicate people are being targeted, and not positions," she said.

The Office of Management and Budget said late last month about 170 employees had been laid off but that 500-600 have been targeted. OMB Director Greg Browning said the administration plans to cut state employment, which now totals between 55,000 and 60,000, by about 1 percent.

Striking teachers reach agreement

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — A tentative three-year agreement was reached Monday night between striking teachers and the suburban Liberty School District, both sides said in a joint announcement.

The two sides said in a brief statement that teachers and the school board would hold ratification votes within 10 days and that teachers would return to their classrooms Tuesday.

No details of the agreement were disclosed. A message seeking comment was left at the home phone of the union president, Mary Frack. The office phone of Superintendent Grant Dieter went unanswered Monday night.

A 13-hour bargaining session ended early Monday morning, after failing to reach agreement on several points.

"Sunday's negotiations went on for 13 hours with little or no progress, and I saw no need to close schools. We had already hired substitutes," said Dieter.

The strike by the 100-member Liberty Education Association began New Year's Day. The Liberty Board of Education arranged for substitutes to teach 1,700 students as the holiday vacation ended Monday.

Pickets were set up for the first time Monday at all three of the system's schools. No major incidents were reported.

Parents who sat outside Sunday's bargaining session said they were on hand to represent the students, not the teachers or administrators.

"We want both sides to know that we want this taken care of," said Richard Metzinger, a parent. "We want the teachers and students back to school."

The union said it sent a contract proposal to school negotiators Sunday night. Sharon Sutherland, a consultant with the parent Ohio Education Association, said only the union negotiators, who were meeting Monday with federal mediator Tom Mick, were familiar with its details.

The board has sent a counterproposal to teachers, Dieter said.

He said the board proposed two options to the teachers. One offer would provide for 2 percent salary raises in the first and second years of a three-year contract and a 5 percent raise the third year.

The moon passes in front of the late afternoon sun Saturday to produce an annular eclipse as seen from the California coast near Cardiff by the Sea. The eclipse is at 75 percent at this stage.

Thousands view rare solar eclipse

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Clouds obscured the weekend's ring-shaped eclipse of the setting sun for most Californians hoping to see the phenomenon, leaving some glum that another wouldn't be seen in the same spot for about 20,000 years.

It was seen by thousands of people who lined San Diego beaches and parts of Orange County. But thousands of others missed the show after bringing viewing filters, cameras, binoculars and telescopes to points stretching from Malibu to Los Angeles to the San Gabriel and San Bernardino mountains.

"This is a natural event, and we can't control nature," Costa Dillon, a National Park Service ranger, said as the sun vanished for the night in the Santa Monica Mountains. "This'll happen again in another 20,000 years."

Farther down the coast, the viewing was better.

On San Diego's Mission Beach, retiree Rheo Pedersen said the ring eclipse "looked like God was putting out a fire in the ocean."

The ring eclipse, which blocked 82 percent of the sun's surface and 92 percent of its diameter, happened because the moon is at the far point of its orbit around Earth and appeared too small to cause a total eclipse. The sun also appeared larger because it was closer to Earth than during a total eclipse.

From the air, the view was terrific.

"It was quite an experience. ... It was unbelievable," said Capt. Bud Lofgren, an Alaska Airlines pilot whose crew dictated a diary of the eclipse as they carried more than 130 passengers from Puerto Vallarta, Mexico, to San Francisco.

The diary says that at 4:50 p.m. PST, Saturday, "a perfect ring of light" appeared on Southern California's horizon during the annular or central eclipse.

The moon's shadow first touched Earth at sunrise Sunday west of the international date line, creating a conventional partial eclipse that made the moon look like it was taking a bite out of the sun.

The eclipse was blocked by clouds over northeastern Australia and the southern Philippines, but was briefly visible from Japan.

The lunar shadow then raced eastward across the date line and the Pacific Ocean, creating the "ring of fire" eclipse at sunset Saturday in Southern California and a partial eclipse from the Rockies westward, including Hawaii.

Without clouds, the ring spectacle would have been visible from southern Ventura County south through Los Angeles and San Diego to Ensenada, Mexico.

Clouds covered most areas of the West, but the partial eclipse was visible from Reno, Nev., and often-rainy Seattle.

Gee to host legislative roundtables

By Tracey Hubiak
Lantern staff writer

OSU President E. Gordon Gee will be making state legislators more aware of expertise the university has to offer in criminal justice policy making by hosting the first President's Quarterly Roundtable on Jan. 15 at the University Club in Columbus.

Professor C. Ronald Huff, director of the Criminal Justice Research Center at the university, will be the primary speaker discussing youth gangs and drug trafficking.

"The roundtables are held primarily for state legislators who have policy issues in the topic and hold leadership positions in relevant committees," said Astrid Merget, director of the School of Public Policy and Management. The discussions are by invitation only because the event's organizers want to encourage as much candid conversation as possible and explore policies that may help solve problems, Merget said.

The organizers' goal is to demonstrate the university's willingness to make information available to the state, Huff said.

Drafts of bills dealing with youth gangs and drug trafficking have been introduced in recent sessions of the state legislature.

"We will be discussing what kinds of bills are useful, what other states have done and other policy issues," Huff said.

More police to patrol campus

By Brett Clary
Lantern staff writer

The Columbus Police Department has assigned six more police officers to the campus area between 2 p.m. to 6 a.m. Tuesday through Sunday.

Stephen Gammill, commander of the Columbus Police Department, said the additions to the campus area patrol will include two cruisers and two foot-patrol officers.

Gammill said the Columbus Police Department has a research and development department to track crimes and calls to police so they know where police coverage is most needed.

The research department found that the campus needed more police, Gammill said.

Five cruisers, one van and 14 foot-patrol officers, along with the additional cruisers and officers, now cover the whole campus area, which comprises the area from King Avenue to Arcadia Avenue and from the Olentangy River to the Conrail railroad tracks north of Fourth Street, Gammill said.

He said undercover officers and bicycle patrols are assigned to the campus area and that the Operation ACE program occasionally operates in the area as well.

Horse patrol officers will be placed on standby as needed, Gammill said.

"The horses help provide a very visible image of the police officer and help deter crime," Gammill said.

Ron Zeller, manager of Street Scene Restaurant, 1726 N. High, and president of the University Community Business Association, said he has noticed a definite improvement in crime prevention since the police have increased patrols.

Brad Shimp, director of the University Community Business Association, agrees with Zeller.

"Any increase in police patrol is a benefit," Shimp said.

Local band strives to get signed

By Teri McIntire
Lantern staff writer

Every struggling band strives to be signed to a record label. This is the goal The Wanted is working toward now that they are recording demo tapes.

The Wanted is an up-and-coming band that has been performing in Columbus and the surrounding area for three years. The band is made up of four musicians: Steve Weatherby (lead guitar), Dave Harris (lead vocals and guitar), Rob Dougherty (bass guitar) and Jamie Aldergate (drums).

The band's music is a mix of rock and progressive. The members consider themselves, a cross between the Ramones and Cheap Trick, Weatherby said.

"Progressive people think we're rock, rock people think we're progressive," Weatherby said. This sets the band apart from other local bands, which is what the members want.

"We like the fact that no one can put a title on what we play," Aldergate said.

Harris and Weatherby generally write all the lyrics to the songs they play, but the entire band writes the music.

There is no exact method to The Wanted's writing. "I write from experiences, emotions, and things I identify with. I write for myself and the band," Harris said.

The band generally plays all of its own songs when it performs, except for one or two cover songs. The band's favorite cover songs are "Dead Flowers" by the Rolling Stones and "Lonely Boy" by the Sex Pistols. The band changes these songs somewhat to coincide with its own style.

The band's favorite original song to play is "Breaking Away," written by Harris.

"This song hits home. It is personal for everyone in the band," Harris said.

Besides regular club performances in the Columbus area, The Wanted has played at other Ohio universities and out-of-state clubs several times.

The group's most exciting performances were with Cheap Trick, Steal Heart, King of the Hill and The Toll, Harris said.

Being in the band is not all glamour; it takes a lot of hard work. All of the members have jobs outside the group, and they work hard at promoting the band's name. Although the road is long, this is the career they all want to pursue.

"All I've ever wanted to do is play, and I want to do it forever," Aldergate said.

The band is funded by promoters, various investors, friends and the members themselves.

Because the band members will be in the studio recording new demo tapes, they have no plans yet for their next performance.

COLUMBUS SYMPHONY NOTES

Conductor Christopher Keene and pianist John O'Connor will join The Columbus Symphony Orchestra Jan. 10 and 11 for the fifth Symphonic Series concert of the 1991-92 season. The concerts begin at 8 p.m. in the Ohio Theatre.

The program is Schreker's Chamber Symphony, Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 21 in C major, K. 467 and Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 3 in A minor, Op. 56 ("Scottish").

For more than 20 years, Keene has been associated with the New York City Opera, where he is now general director. He has conducted more than 50 operas at The New York City Opera. As a symphony conductor, Keene has conducted nearly every major orchestra in North America. As a leading interpreter of contemporary music, he conducted the American premiere of Glass' Satyagraha and recorded for RCA the soundtrack for Ken Russell's "Altered States."

Acclaimed for his eloquent and poetic style, Irish pianist O'Connor first gained widespread attention in 1986 with the inaugural release of his complete Beethoven sonata cycle for the Telarc label. Subsequent volumes have met with equal success, as has O'Connor's recording of Nocturnes by his countryman, John Field, which was released last season.

Single tickets to this performance are $8 — $28, not including a $1 per single ticket theater restoration charge. Call 224-3291 to order by phone, or visit the Columbus Symphony Orchestra Ticket Office at 39 E. State St. in downtown Columbus.

—The Columbus Symphony Orchestra announced Honda of America Mfg., Inc. is a first-time sponsor of the Columbus Symphony Broadcast Series aired on Classical 89.7, WOSU-FM.

—Auditions for the Columbus Symphony Chorus will take place Monday, Jan. 13 from 6 to 10 p.m. Interested singers should call 224-5281 to schedule an audition time. Singers auditioning need to prepare a classical solo selection. An accompanist will be provided.

The chorus' remaining 1991-92 season performances with orchestra include Ravel's Daphnis et Chloe Feb. 14 and 15, Berlioz's Romeo et Juliette on March 13 and 14, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony May 8, 9 and 10, and the annual Chorus Concert on April 5.

The Columbus Symphony Chorus, directed by Ronald Jenkins, is the largest adult mixed chorus in Central Ohio. It rehearses once a week in the Ohio Theatre, with additional rehearsals scheduled during concert weeks.—Compiled by Rich Maple.

Seattle band anything but silent

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Quiet, enigmatic singer Chris Cornell of the not-so-quiet but equally enigmatic quartet Soundgarden wrote a song for the band's new album after spending 10 days in a room without talking to anyone.

He said he closes himself away like that "when I have the chance."

"I got really used to being alone, even at a very young age, out of choice," Cornell said in a telephone interview. "Not seeing my friends, not answering the phone, and just living in my own world. ...

"I think I'm a little bit too sensitive to, or too vulnerable to, what someone else might be feeling when they're around, and so it tends to be work, subconsciously, to be around other people. Sometimes that can worry you, too, because you don't want to break down where you can't really function with other people."

Soundgarden's music really is suited for those times when you're alone. It's brooding, introspective.

The band's 1989 debut on A&M,

Soundgarden

Louder Than Love, helped bring the music world's attention to the Seattle scene and defined and solidified its sound. That debut was a record drenched in guitarist Kim Thayil's minor chords that snarled and droned their way around Cornell's sometimes crooning, sometimes roaring, vocals.

Its lyrics drew dispiriting pictures of the lust for power and control, revolution and environmental destruction.

The band's new album, Badmotorfinger, is no less powerful and often no less dismal, but is an altogether more mature effort.

One track, "Jesus Christ Pose," which Cornell said addresses "an individual's persecution complex," has prompted fans to write to the band's fan club, saying their parents were upset with the song's accompanying video. The clip features crucified women and skeletons.

"I think people are afraid of it just because of the title," he said. "I don't think most people who take offense to most things in art or music tend to look past the surface. It wasn't so much religious as being annoyed with the exploitation of symbols that are held sacred, especially that one (the cross).

"It's not really my responsibility to understand someone else's feelings or ideas or attitudes when it comes to being an artist or a writer. It's more their responsibility to understand what I'm doing if it bothers them," he said.

The band is no stranger to pushing the boundaries of propriety. Louder Than Love bore an "Explicit Lyrics" sticker because of the track, "Big Dumb Sex," the chorus of which contains a repeated obscenity.

Cornell writes most of the lyrics, but Thayil wrote "Room a Thousand Years Wide" and "Somewhere" came from new bassist Ben Shepherd.

"Other members of the band have contributed lyrics to Soundgarden ever since the band started," he said, "so it doesn't really seem like a new thing to me. I tend to encourage it. It isn't so much that it takes the pressure off of me — it just makes it more interesting."

Progressive music fans enjoy 'Emotion Lotion'

Progressive music fans might soon find themselves buying a new product called Emotion Lotion.

Top, an English group comprised of Paul Cavanaugh (guitar, lead vocals), Alan Willis (drums, backing vocals) and Joe Fearon (bass, backing vocals), has taken over the airwaves in the United Kingdom with its album Emotion Lotion.

Each member was a part of other popular groups in England before forming Top.

According to a press release, Willis explained that in the past, the members were "...part of other people's bands just brought in to provide a bit of guitar or whatever, so we weren't really part of the creative process."

After self-producing a three-song demo tape, Top won the interest of several labels in Britain but opted to sign with Island Records.

Two of the biggest songs on the album are "Number One Dominator" and "She's Got All the World." Both songs achieved chart success in the U.K., but "Number One Dominator" is the first of the group's songs to reach the airwaves in the United States.

Other popular titles off Emotion Lotion include "Feel Good," "Love by Demand," "Buzzing" and "Soul Magic."

All of the songs are repetitive, but they have catchy beats. Some progressive music fans will find this a bit mellow. Non-progressive music fans will find the album boring because all the songs sound the same.

Willis said in the news release that the band members "hope our music sounds real...we write about every emotion, because life is a whole spectrum."

Top will have to be more creative if it wants to make it in the United States; its songs are too simple to be considered real music.

But don't write Top off completely. The potential is there if the band chooses to use it.

NEW YORK (AP) — Spend enough time in the theater and you're bound to pick up a few superstitions, like not whistling during a performance or never saying the last line of a play before opening night.

Another little rule, Kevin Kline will tell you, involves a certain Shakespearean work which he performed in while at Indiana University; a drama he joined when he was supposed to be taking classical piano.

"They were auditioning the Scottish play," he whispered during a recent interview, raising his eyebrows and looking around his publicist's office to see if anyone else was listening. "You're not allowed to say it aloud—bad luck—but since we're not in a theater I'll say it out loud, 'Macbeth.'"

"I went to watch, and the director saw me and said, 'You haven't auditioned' and that I hadn't filled out the cards. The whole drama school was there, like 200 kids in the classroom, and I got up and read some part in the deepest voice I could muster; I had no clue to what I was saying. I read the part, and I got a little part in 'Macbeth,' and it was fun."

His voice lifts up sweetly as he finishes, as if this were a charming, casual experience, like having a drink with an old friend, and not the beginning of a long-term obsession.

Kline, 44, is unashamedly in love with acting, with expression and storytelling, with the sheer joy of pouring himself into his character. Even in this casual setting, that shows: his inflections, his concentration, the shifts in mood between playful and thoughtful, the sweeping hand movements; the way he curls and spreads his long fingers.

"I was never shy, although a lot of people told me I was shy," Kline said. "I think what they meant was I was emotionally repressed and not forthcoming."

"One of the things I didn't like about being a musician was the loneliness of it, and I liked being in this play. It's very social; you're always working with people. It's like a team sport, whereas practicing piano is a solitary sort of thing. I think I was emotionally guarded and drama demanded that I dropped it."

It was a lesson he had to learn again in films. Three years ago, Kline was in a rut. A dynamic, award-winning actor on stage—two Tonys and two Obies—he had cut himself down to size for the big screen. With "The Big Chill," "Violets are Blue" and others, he settled into a pattern of low-key performances that focused on his characters' inner lives.

He was eager to break out, and John Cleese, his co-star in the film "Silverado," was eager to let him do it. The former Monty Python performer chose him to play a bumbling, demonic jewel thief in a "A Fish Called Wanda."

For the first time since "Sophie's Choice" and "Pirates of Penzance," his first two features, Kline was holding nothing back. His character was loud, mean and out of control; a villain who jammed a pear in a man's mouth and french fries up his nose.

"It was great to break all the rules I had made for myself in the films before," said Kline, who won the Academy Award for best supporting actor. "I had been much more 'naturalistic.' I used to think I'll never be able to let go on the scale that I can on stage."

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Television weatherman Willard Scott said he's still wounded over a 1989 memo Bryant Gumbel wrote, lambasting Scott for holding the "Today" show hostage to "whims, wishes, birthdays and bad taste."

In a look back over the show's 40 years, Scott predicted in the Jan. 11 issue of TV Guide that the memo will follow him to his grave.

"I'd love to put it behind me. I'm sure in my obituary it will read, 'Mr. Scott, you may recall, was mentioned prominently in the freaking memo.'"

The private memo to their NBC bosses was taken from Gumbel's computer file and leaked to the news media.

Gumbel said he didn't think anyone was still upset about the memo. "To this day, I still contend that writing the memo was a fit and proper thing to do. But I don't think anybody who was mentioned in the memo bears any lingering feelings one way or the other."

Hah, said Scott. "It mattered. It hurt. It was a terrible thing. There's always going to be a scar," Scott said.

In fact, he says, his souring relationship with Gumbel was one of the reasons he shifted his headquarters to Washington, leaving Gumbel in New York.

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — Newlywed Jane Fonda said working on a retrospective of her late father's work had a special meaning for her because of her husband's involvement.

"I felt particular poignancy at the fact that I was in the Brentwood home in which I spent my early years, in front of the cameras for the first time in two years, to pay homage to my father, at the behest of my fiancé, Ted Turner," she wrote in the Jan. 11 issue of TV Guide.

The two were married Dec. 21. The show, "Fonda on Fonda," will appear Jan. 13 on TNT, owned by Turner.

Fonda said she regrets that her father didn't get to talk about his hobby of fishing with her new spouse.

"Sometimes, when I'm out on the creek, I imagine I see him up ahead alongside Ted, two long-legged, lanky figures in fishing vests and floppy hats jabbering away about lures and tackle as they cast for the big rainbows," she wrote.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Kathy Bates said she's glad her latest role is tamer than her past parts.

"Almost every role I've done has been of somebody off-center," she told The Tennessean in an interview published Sunday.

Bates won an Academy Award last year for her role in "Misery." She played a fan who takes her favorite writer hostage.

"That woman clearly is a psychopath," Bates said.

Her new movie is "Fried Green Tomatoes" with Jessica Tandy and Mary Stuart Masterson. Bates portrays a frustrated housewife who befriends an elderly woman in a nursing home.

"She eats too many candy bars because her life is in disarray, but she's not afflicted, and she eventually manages to straighten things out pretty well," Bates said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singer Belinda Carlisle, who is expecting a baby in June, said she has forsaken touring, her personal trainer and her daily five-mile runs.

"What the hell," she said in the Jan. 13 issue of People. "I'm letting it all go. I'm eating a lot and getting used to being a fat pig. And I'm enjoying it."

Carlisle, 33, and her husband of five years, Morgan Mason, hadn't exactly planned to have a baby, she said.

"We were sort of not trying, but then, I guess, something happened," she said.

Carlisle, who went solo after performing with the Go-Gos, was recently in Europe promoting her album Live Your Life, Be Free.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Forget Sherwood Forest and the fields of Iowa. Kevin Costner prefers to lounge by the shore.

Costner, whose movies include "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves," "Field of Dreams" and "JFK," has bought a seaside cottage in Santa Barbara County.

Costner, 36, paid about $3 million for the contemporary, wood-and-glass home enclosed in a gated community near Montecito, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

The 6,000-square-foot home has a guest suite with its own entrance, two children's bedrooms and a large master bedroom with a 40-foot deck facing the ocean.

Costner and his wife, Cindy, have three children. Their permanent home is in the Los Angeles foothills.

Trustees' Report to the Campus

Vol. XXXIV No. 5 Actions by the Board of Trustees on Dec. 6, 1991. Trustees' Report contains actions or reports presented at the recent meetings of the Board or its committees. Prepared by the staff of the Office of Communications Services, this report is an unofficial account and may not cover all agenda items. Official minutes are available through the Secretary of the Board, 210 Bricker Hall.

In Brief, the Trustees...

- Named a vice president to head Office of Legal Affairs; acted on other appointments.
- Received $19,941,392 in October research agreements.
- Approved construction contracts for neuropsychiatric building; other actions.
- Established endowed funds.

NAME HEADS OF LEGAL AFFAIRS, DEPARTMENTS

The Board named Robert M. Duncan as vice president and general counsel in the Office of Legal Affairs. Also named were Carl H. Popelar as chairperson of the Department of Engineering Mechanics and James W. Hutchens as acting chairperson of the Department of Photography and Cinema. Isaac J. Mowoe was reappointed director of the Center for African Studies.

Duncan, a former federal judge, is a partner in the Columbus law firm of Jones, Day, Reavis & Pogue. His selection was announced by President E. Gordon Gee and Attorney General Lee Fisher. Duncan will assume his duties, including that of assistant attorney general Jan. 1. He will coordinate the work of all University attorneys assigned to various offices.

Popelar, a professor of engineering mechanics, will begin his new duties Jan. 1. An internationally recognized specialist in fracture mechanics, his work involves predicting the failure of structures containing crack-like defects. Popelar is co-author of a book on the subject.

He joined the Ohio State faculty in 1966. Popelar has a bachelor's in civil engineering and master's degree in applied mechanics from Michigan State University and a doctorate in engineering mechanics from the University of Michigan, where he was an instructor for two years. His term runs through June 1993. He succeeds Sunder Advani, who will become dean of the College of Engineering at Lehigh University on Jan. 1.

Hutchens, an assistant dean of the College of the Arts and associate professor of art education, actually took on duties as acting chair of Photography and Cinema last July 1. The Board formally appointed him through June 1992. The University Senate will hear a proposal to abolish the department.

Mowoe, director since 1988, the year the Center for African Studies was founded, was reappointed for a term through September 1995. Mowoe is associate dean of the College of Humanities and an associate professor of Black studies.

Award Emeritus Titles

- Emeritus titles were given to:
- Alfred S. Golding, Department of Theatre, professor emeritus, effective Jan. 1.
  - Yehiel Hayon, Department of Judaic and Near Eastern Languages and Literatures, professor emeritus, Jan. 1.
  - Margarita Levisi, Department of Spanish and Portuguese, professor emeritus, March 1.

- Hongor Oulanoff, Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures, professor emeritus, Jan. 1.

- James P. Scanlan, Department of Philosophy, professor emeritus, Jan. 1.

- Frank R. Silbajoris, Department of Slavic and East European Languages and Literatures, professor emeritus, Jan. 1.

- Walter Warren Brim, Department of Physics (Lima Campus), associate professor emeritus, retroactive to Sept. 1.

- Marianne G. Cooper, School of Music (Mansfield Campus), associate professor, Jan. 1.

- Peter W. Gano, School of Music, associate professor emeritus, Jan. 1.

Take Other Actions

Three physicians were appointed and three others reappointed to the Arthur G. James Cancer Hospital and Research Institute.

Resolutions in memoriam were approved to be conveyed to the families of Frederick P. Dickey, professor emeritus in physics; Clifford L. James, professor emeritus in economics; Leo E. Lipetz, professor emeritus in zoology; Duncan McConnell, professor emeritus in geological sciences; Roland Vilums, assistant professor emeritus in University Libraries; and Mary Ann Williams, associate professor of Black studies.

In other matters, Trustees voted to:

- Change the name of the University Health Service to the Student Health Service, the name the department had when it was created in 1915. The department is located in the John W. Wilce Student Health Center on Milliken Road.
- Appoint Trustee Theodore S. Celeste as a director of The Ohio State University Managed Health Care Systems Inc. for a term expiring in 1992. The University-authorized company was incorporated on Nov. 25.

RESEARCHERS TARGET EDUCATION PROBLEMS

The growing numbers of adults with low mathematical skills and the shortage of trained science teachers are among problems targeted by five new grants at the University.

The grants, part of $19,941,392 in October research agreements received by the Board, are:

- $99,916 from the National Science Foundation to fund the development of a problem centered, primarily tutorial course in calculus. The project in the Department of Mathematics is aimed at countering the trend toward a dominant population of adults lacking fundamental mathematical skills and attitudes.
- $80,000 from the Ohio Board of Regents for a two-year collaboration between teachers and administrators of 10 central Ohio school systems and the Earth Systems Education Program at Ohio State. The goal is to improve teacher background in science and science teaching for grades six through eight by sharing teaching techniques and experiences of the middle school teachers and the university program's staff.

- $618,848 from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' National Center for Research Resources to expand the biological component of Ohio State's Young Scholars Program to the 11th grade. The aim is to increase college enrollment and graduation rates of African-Americans, Hispanics and other groups under-represented in higher education. The program in the College of Biological Sciences will involve students, parents, and school, business and community groups in nine cities which have over 75 percent of the minority students in Ohio public schools.

- $199,241 from the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Postsecondary Education to conduct an intensive residential six-week mathematics program next summer at the Agricultural Technical Institute Upward Bound Math-Science Center in Wooster. Some 40 minority and disadvantaged students will be selected for the summer camp with two thirds having finished ninth grade and the rest no more than tenth grade. Goals will include increasing math, science, and computer literacy, and planning to major in math, science, or engineering in college.

- $69,885 from the National Center for Research Resources to create experiments dealing with the human skeleton, nutrition, and development of the human body. The project will involve researchers in the Department of Physical Medicine and teachers from Hilliard, Grandview Heights, and Worthington school districts. The project also will complement an Ohio State study on the influence of calcium on bone mass, employing subjects from the three participating schools.

Other Major Agreements

The largest agreement received by Trustees was for $4,783,625. This and a $319,911 agreement were from the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics to continue support of "National Longitudinal Surveys of Labor Market Experience, Round 14" in the Center for Human Resource Research.

Other large agreements included:

- $1,350,000 from the Agency for International Development for a project in the Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology on "Financial Resources Management."
- $1,160,415 from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, Bethesda, Md., for "Acquired Immunodeficiency Syndrome Clinical Study Group" in the Department of Internal Medicine.
- $374,325 from the National Science Foundation for the graduate research fellowship program in the Graduate School administration.
- $300,499 from the Department of Agriculture's Science and Education Division, Washington, D.C., for a cooperative research program on "Pesticide Registration on Minor Crops" in the Department of Entomology.
- $276,914 from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, Rockville, Md., for "Total Residue Depletion and Metabolic Profile of Selected Drugs in Catfish" in the College of Pharmacy.

- $249,693 from the National Science Foundation for "Research Training Group on the Role of Cognition in Collective Political Decision Making," at the Mershon Center for Education.

- $246,664 from the Department of Agriculture's Science and Education office, Peoria, Ill., for "Planning, Conducting, and Supporting Research" at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster.

- $227,768 from the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, Bethesda, Md., for "Syncytiotrophoblast IgG Fc Receptors and HIV Infection," in the departments of Pathology and Internal Medicine.

APPROVE CONSTRUCTION, OTHER BUSINESS

The Board approved the award of contracts for construction of a five-story neuropsychiatric building for treatment, teaching and research at an estimated cost of $15,214,016.

The project will include demolition of the west wing of Upham Hall, 473 W. 12th Ave., which houses the Department of Psychiatry. Funding for the new 11,660-square-foot building is provided by University Hospitals. Completion is projected for August 1993.

Contracts were approved for five other projects, funded by state appropriation except where otherwise noted:

- Installation of a 150-ton air-cooled chilled water system to replace the worn out centrifugal chiller in Robinson Laboratory, 206 W. 18th Ave., at a project cost of $71,304.

Completion is set for June 1992.

- Structural improvements for Scott Hall, 1090 Carmack Road, to remove a portion of a canopy, install new concrete handrails, and renovate a walkway at an estimated cost of $95,000. Completion is set for this month.

- First phase improvement of the water system for the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center in Wooster at an estimated cost of $32,203. The project includes drilling a new well to replace a current dry well. Completion is expected this month.

- Renovation of runways, ramp, taxiway, and installation of surface sensors at University Airport at an estimated cost of $1,155,865, funded by Federal Aviation Administration and university funds. September 1992 is the projected completion date.

- Renovation of 15,000 square feet on the first floor of Evans Laboratory, 88 W. 18th Ave., to house the Berlinger research group. Estimated cost is $150,486, and completion is scheduled for April 1992.

Take Property Actions

In other actions, Trustees authorized the purchase of the following properties:

- Approximately 11.5 acres of improved real property at 1275 Kinnear Road from the Simmons Co. for $2.25 million. The appraised value is $2,765,000. The property will be used for office and warehouse facilities and for future academic, research, and support programs. The purchase, on condition that the company remove asbestos from the property prior to closing, is subject to approval by the Ohio Board of Regents and the State Controlling Board. Financing will be provided through auxiliary enterprise funds administered by the Property Management Division of Business and Administration.

- An improved restaurant property at 1339 Mt. Vernon Ave., Marion, from McDonald's for $250,000, in addition to granting McDonald's a $35,000 gift credit. The appraised value is $285,000. The property will be used in the development plan for the Marion Campus, which has need for a laboratory facility for the Early Childhood Certification Program and daycare facilities.

- Improved real property at 5228 Sawmill Road, Dublin, from Mrs. Walter S. Umbstaetter for $140,000 and a life tenancy on the property. The appraised value is $140,000 to $150,000. The acquisition is needed to protect the clear zone safety area and approach corridor for a runway at University Airport.

The Trustees approved the lease of improved real property at 2416 Commonwealth Park Drive North in Bexley from The Ohio State University Foundation. The property will be used for general business and promotional activities, entertaining guests and supporters of the University, with a portion used from time to time as a residence of the University president. Terms of the lease include a $1 rental, with the foundation and the University each having the right to cancel upon adequate written notice, and the University being responsible for maintenance, repairs and improvements.

Grant Easements

Also approved by Trustees were:

- A 15-year renewal of an easement to Columbia Gas of Ohio Inc., on a strip of land 10 by 373 feet on the south side of Dublin-Granville Road to supply gas service to the Ohio National Guard Armory. Columbia will pay $6,289 for the lease.

- A master lease agreement with Society Equipment Leasing Co., Cleveland, for leasing equipment with an aggregate cost of approximately $2 million for use by various departments of the University. The agreement in effect provides a tax-exempt line of credit with a financial institution.

The Trustees accepted a report of audit recommendations and responses for fiscal year 1990-91 from Coopers & Lybrand. Last April, the University, with approval of the auditor of state, entered into a five-year agreement with Coopers & Lybrand for an audit of the University for fiscal years 1990-91 through 1994-95.

ESTABLISH ENDOWED FUNDS

Trustees established the Carl Haas Fund with a $153,167 gift from the trust of Carl E. Haas (B.S. Horticulture '18) of Youngstown.

Annual income will be used to support artistic and educational programs of the Wexner Center for the Arts to benefit Ohio State students.

Other endowed funds established by the board were:

- The Donald D. Glower Merit Scholarship Fund, created with $77,701 in gifts from friends and colleagues in honor of Donald D. Glower, dean of the College of Engineering from 1976 to 1990 and vice president for university development from 1990 to 1992. Annual income will provide undergraduate merit scholarships to Ohio State freshman engineering students with preference to students from Crawford County.

- The Jack and Margaret Howell Putnam County Scholarship Fund, created with $50,000 in gifts from Jack and Margaret Howell of Ottawa. Annual income will be used for a scholarship for students enrolled at Ohio State's Lima campus who are Putnam County high school graduates or residents of the county.

- The Thomas Passmore Dickinson Endowment Fund, created with a gift of $49,815 from Thomas Passmore Dickinson. Annual income will be used primarily to support teaching and research in cerebral palsy, for scholarships and other financial assistance to students specializing in this area as medical students or care providers, and for attendance at conferences related to cerebral palsy, or a lecture series at the University on the subject of cerebral palsy.

- The Frederick Y. Billingslea, Ph.D., Scholarship Fund in Clinical Psychology, created with a $40,296 gift from the estate of Edythe V. Billingslea. Annual income will provide scholarships to undergraduate students in clinical psychology.

- The Scott Falkenthal Memorial Student Colloquium Fund, created with $20,785 in gifts from the estate of Scott Falkenthal, and from family, friends, and colleagues, in recognition of his commitment to students. Annual income will be used to support the annual Graduate Student Colloquium in the College of Biological Sciences' Department of Molecular Genetics.

- The Thomas E. and Patricia A. Robinson Athletic Scholarship Fund, created with $20,000 in gifts from Thomas E. and Patricia A. Robinson. Annual income will supplement the grant-in-aid scholarship costs of student athletes pursuing undergraduate degrees.

- The Madison County 4-H Endowment Fund, created with $17,000 in gifts from the Madison County 4-H Committee and other friends of the Madison County 4-H Program. Annual income will be used to support the Madison County 4-H Program, including funding of scholarships and awards for 4-H members.

- The Guernsey County Cooperative Extension Endowment Fund, created with $16,856 in gifts from friends of the Guernsey County Cooperative Extension Service. Annual income will support the Guernsey County Cooperative Extension programs.

- The Herman and Pearl Dolinsky Gross Scholarship Fund, created with a $15,000 gift from Ronald M. Gross (B.A. '55) in honor of his parents. Annual income will provide undergraduate scholarships of at least $1,000 each to students who are pursuing degrees from the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences.

- The Barbara Lipton Pinchuk Scholarship Fund, created with gifts of $15,000 from Barbara Lipton Pinchuk (B.S. Ed '63). Annual income will be used for scholarships for music education students planning to teach music.

High cost movies cut profits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hollywood had its best holiday week in history, but ticket sales for 1991 were down, production costs soared and some studios stood on the brink.

The hits "Terminator 2: Judgment Day" and "The Silence of the Lambs" ended the year box-office rich but studio-poor. Even 4-week-old "Hook," with $82 million in grosses, has yet to make a penny.

Due to the $70 million film's complicated contract with director Steven Spielberg and stars Dustin Hoffman and Robin Williams, the pirate epic must gross about $130 million at domestic theaters to be on track for the black, according to people familiar with the deal. It has collected around $82 million, of which TriStar Pictures has pocketed perhaps $26 million.

For the first weekend of 1992, "Hook" made $11.5 million. It was followed by "The Father of the Bride," $9 million; "Beauty and the Beast," $8.8 million; "The Prince of Tides," $8.5 million; and "The Last Boy Scout," $7.1 million.

Other top 10 films were "JFK," $6.8 million; "Bugsy," $5.4 million; "Star Trek VI: The Undiscovered Country," $4.7 million; "The Addams Family," $4.6 million; and "My Girl," $3.8 million.

Final figures were not available for the Christmas-New Year's week, but it surpassed the holiday record of $209.4 million set during the Fourth of July week in 1989.

For all of last year, North American theater owners sold an estimated $4.85 billion in tickets, down about 3 percent from the $5 billion for each of the last two years. Admissions were off more sharply, but returns were offset by higher ticket prices, as high as $7.50 in some markets. Had it not been for the Christmas showing, the year-end returns would have been much worse.

"It's been a terrible year for movies," said Jon Avnet, director of the well-received "Fried Green Tomatoes." "People are sick of the junk that's been put out there."

Several high-profile films, released late in the year to be fresh in Oscar voters' minds, performed strongly. They included "The Prince of Tides," "Bugsy," "JFK," "Cape Fear" and, in limited release, "Fried Green Tomatoes" and "Grand Canyon."

The popularity of these critically acclaimed titles suggested filmgoers were avoiding theaters not because of the recession but because there were so many lousy movies.

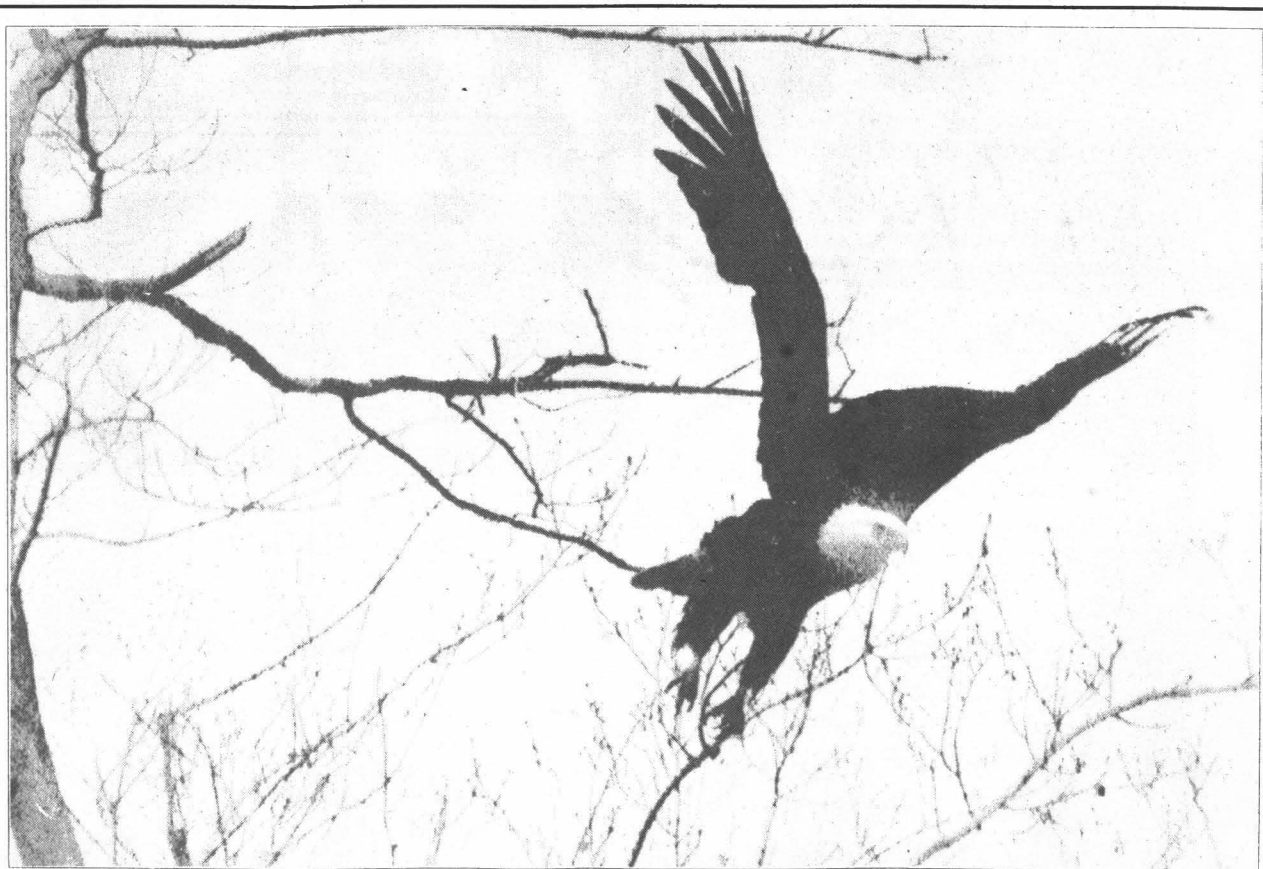

"It always comes down to product and the values an audience puts on the product," said Sid Ganis, executive vice president of Sony Pictures Entertainment, parent of TriStar and Columbia Pictures.

Where the industry is not in a good place is soaring production costs — an average of $26.7 million per movie in 1991, up $7.7 million in three years.

Carolco Pictures had the year's No. 1 hit in "Terminator 2," which grossed $204.3 million, but the film cost a staggering $95 million. Carolco is now on the verge of collapse and has laid off a fourth of its staff.

Orion Pictures stitched together $130.7 million from "The Silence of the Lambs," good for third-best of the year. The studio is now in bankruptcy proceedings.

The year's top 10 films were "Terminator 2," starring Arnold Schwarzenegger; Kevin Costner's "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves"; "The Silence of the Lambs" starring Jodie Foster; "City Slickers," "Sleeping With the Enemy," "The Addams Family," "The Naked Gun 2½: The Smell of Fear," "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II: The Secret of the Ooze," "Backdraft" and "Hotshots!"

Two explosions damage offices, shops and police station in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A large bomb blew up outside police headquarters Monday just hours after a huge explosion caused extensive damage to office buildings and shops in central Belfast.

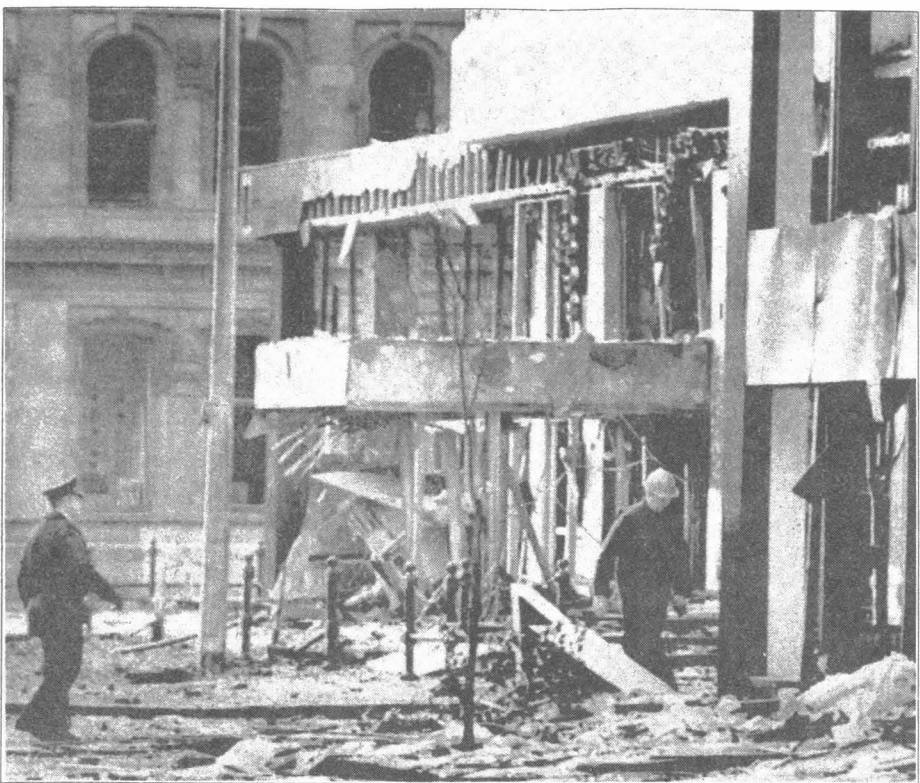

A policewoman was slightly injured by Monday's bombing, and a few soldiers and police officers suffered minor injuries in the first explosion, which occurred Sunday night and was heard 15 miles away.

Both blasts followed telephoned warnings from the Irish Republican Army, the Royal Ulster Constabulary said.

Press Association, Britain's national news agency, reported the explosion outside police headquarters was caused by an estimated 500 pounds of explosives concealed in a stolen post office van.

This explosion occurred one-half mile from the site of Sunday's explosion, which police say consisted of 600 pounds of explosives packed into a Mercedes van.

Thousands of people were unable to get to their jobs in the area Monday as police searched for clues amid the shattered glass blown out of office buildings. The blast tore a big crater in the street and broke water mains.

Barry denies sex claim; blames inmate, media

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Mayor Marion Barry says the fellow inmate that accused him of publicly engaging in sexual activity in a prison visitor's room was "just trying to bash" him and get his own sentence reduced.

In an interview Sunday with a local television station, the former Washington, D.C., mayor forcefully denied that a woman performed oral sex on him in a crowded prison visiting room.

"He's just trying to bash Marion Barry and get his sentence reduced," Barry said, calling media coverage of the allegations "vindictive and irresponsible" journalism.

Federal officials are investigating a claim by inmate Floyd Archer Robertson that a guard helped arrange the visit between Barry and the woman, who has not been identified.

"We're going to go ahead and take a look at it," Gregory Bogdan, spokesman for the U.S. Bureau of Prisons, said Sunday.

Barry, a three-term Washington mayor, began serving his sentence last Oct. 26 after exhausting appeals.

Robertson, jailed for distribution of a controlled substance, said the woman performed oral sex on Barry in front of at least 30 people in the visiting room.

"Art Robertson is a convicted felon. He has at least 5 or 10 years of time to do in the federal prison," Barry said. "He masqueraded as a physician, and they are taking this as gospel. They won't check out his word, his motivation."

Robertson said Barry confronted him after Robertson complained to prison authorities.

"He said that if I complained, there would be repercussions," Robertson said. "It sounded like a threat to me."

Two days after Robertson made the complaint at the minimum-security Petersburg prison, he was moved to a prison in Butner, N.C.

Barry said Robertson was transferred because other inmates were "resentful of his lie."

"My character is strong enough I wouldn't do it," Barry said. "My principles are strong enough I wouldn't do it. I couldn't do it."

Robertson told prison officials, the guard, with Barry's knowledge, helped have the woman admitted.

"It was quite implied that it was a hooker," Robertson told The Washington Times. "I can say with all certainty it was not someone who had been put on the visitors' list by (Barry)."

Federal officials declined to identify the guard, and spokesman Bogdan would not say whether he had been reassigned or put on administrative leave.

He said if the allegations are found to be true, Barry could face disciplinary action ranging from curtailment of visitation rights to transfer to a more secure prison.

Sexual misconduct in prison, visiting rooms "does occur, but it happens infrequently," Bogdan said.

PEOPLE IN THE NEWS

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Former Mayor Harvey Gantt collapsed from dehydration about halfway through a 10-kilometer foot race.

Gantt, who will turn 49 on Jan. 14, was held overnight Saturday at Presbyterian Hospital for observation, nursing supervisor Patti Ireland said.

"He's fine, he just got dehydrated," said Gantt's daughter, Erika. "He was just probably running too hard."

Gantt was also treated for dehydration during the 1989 running of The Charlotte Observer Open 10K race.

Democrat Gantt's last bid for office was an unsuccessful attempt in 1990 to oust Republican U.S. Sen. Jesse Helms.

LONDON (AP) — Film director Alan Parker, who made "Mississippi Burning" and "Bugsy Malone," was divorced Monday from his wife of 25 years.

The London Divorce Court granted Annie Parker, 49, an uncontested divorce on grounds of her husband's adultery. They married in 1966.

Mrs. Parker lives in England and Parker's home is in California. He is a British citizen.

"Bugsy Malone," which starred Scott Baio and Jodie Foster, was a 1976 gangster movie spoof in which all the actors were children and the guns shot ice cream. Critics called it extremely eccentric.

The 47-year-old Parker's string of hit films also includes "Fame," "Midnight Express" and "The Commitments."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Steve Allen, creator and first host of "The Tonight Show," says Jay Leno should do just fine as long as he doesn't let too much talent get in the way.

"You don't have to have any talent at all to be successful as a talk show host," Allen said Monday. "It's not the toughest job in the world."

Allen, host of "The Tonight Show" from 1953 to 1956, said a talk show host merely needs to be attentive, dress well and get a good time slot.

Leno is scheduled to replace Johnny Carson as host in May.

Allen, 70, who is recovering from pneumonia, was named Monday as recipient of the first Lifetime International Humor Award by the International Humor Institute.

The institute, founded in 1986 as a community outreach program, cited him for his "extraordinary contribution to humor throughout his highly successful career." Allen sits on the institute's board.

Bush's trade talks positive in Seoul, heads for Tokyo

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Bush, heading for a trade showdown in Tokyo, said Monday that political foes back home were trying to trip him up with unrealistic expectations.

With pressure building in both Tokyo and Washington, there were fresh signs that Japan was readying trade concessions to try to make Bush's trip a success. He has billed his visit as a bid to find jobs for Americans by tearing down Japanese trade barriers.

Japanese Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa said Monday his country must be a "friend in need" to an economically struggling United States.

Before flying to Japan, Bush concluded a visit to South Korea, where the administration revealed it had privately approached North Korea about holding talks within a week or two on the issue of Pyongyang's nuclear-weapons potential.

North Korea replied that it was interested but wanted a delay, officials said. Bush joined South Korean President Roh Tae-woo in offering to cancel an annual joint U.S.-South Korean military exercise, which North Korea views as an act of aggression, in exchange for Pyongyang's willingness to follow through on a commitment to Seoul to permit nuclear inspectors.

Bush told South Korean lawmakers that North Korea's "pursuit of nuclear arms stands as the single greatest source of danger to peace in all of Northeast Asia."

The emphasis on security issues overshadowed disputes with South Korea on economic barriers. However, the trade issue will take center stage when Bush arrives in Tokyo on Tuesday, the last stop on a 26,000-mile tour through Australia and Asia.

A group of 18 business leaders, including chiefs of the Big Three automakers, will be part of Bush's delegation, helping him try to pry open Japanese markets.

The stakes are high for Bush and Miyazawa.

Both face crucial election tests this year, and each man is suffering sagging popularity ratings. Both sides seem determined to find a formula allowing Bush to declare a victory from his visit.

"I can guarantee you, political opponents — no matter what is achieved — will be saying, 'Hey, you didn't jump quite high enough; you need to get over the bar. We've just raised it another foot.' But that's politics," the president said.

At every stop on his Asian trip, Bush has hammered Japan for what the administration considers protectionist trade policies. In Australia last week, Bush fairly skipped over issues between those two countries and demanded "fair play" from the government in Tokyo.

"I want to see us get more jobs created in the United States, eventually, by concessions made or by positions taken in Japan," Bush said.

By his methodical rhetorically build up ahead of the Japan visit, Bush has raised the political stakes. Democrats have pounced on the opening, saying his trip will be a failure unless he comes home with a commitment from Tokyo to eliminate its trade surplus within five years.

In Tokyo, Miyazawa said he would do all he could "to see to it that more American cars can come free of encumbrances."

He also said he is trying to persuade the Japanese auto industry to do more to expand imports of American cars and car parts.

Tokyo has a $41 billion trade surplus with the United States, and three-quarters of the imbalance comes from Japan's auto industry.

"I EARN MORE THAN MONEY AT UPS. I EARN RESPECT."

"When you do a good job at UPS you get noticed. I even got promoted. Now I'm a supervisor. Not bad for only working part-time and still carrying a full class load. I like being a success."

"I like going to the bank, too. When I started at UPS I made almost $10,000 a year working about four hours a day, five days a week. And then along came my promotion — and a nice raise. I've worked before, but no other company ever treated me like this. Most students work in Operations. But they do get openings in Accounting, Industrial Engineering, I.S. and Customer Service. They're all great jobs."

"At UPS the money is good, but being appreciated for what you do is even better. I like that."

Rebel victory in Tbilisi rids city of leader

TBILISI, Georgia (AP) — Rebel soldiers fired jubilantly into the air and toasted their victory over ousted President Zviad Gamsakhurdia on Monday, but many Georgians returned to their shattered capital with little to celebrate.

After 16 days of fighting, the city's main street was littered with broken glass, wrecked cars and trucks. Most buildings in central Tbilisi were damaged or destroyed, and tree limbs were sheared off by bullets and cannon shells.

"I don't think I can justify either side, or that either side has scored a victory," said Alexander Ugrelidze, a construction worker. "Everything that has been destroyed will be a burden upon the people. They could have removed the president some other way."

Black smoke hung over the city as Gamsakhurdia's abandoned headquarters — the yellow marble Parliament building of this former Soviet republic — burned into the night.

Gamsakhurdia and his supporters shot their way out of the building and sped away before dawn Monday unhindered by opposition fighters. His motorcade drove to neighboring Azerbaijan, but he later was reported in Idjevan, an Armenian border community.

Gamsakhurdia, a former dissident poet overwhelmingly elected in a popular election in May, was accused by the opposition of becoming a dictator. He had jailed many critics, closed critical newspapers and provoked the clash that toppled him by demanding that the opposition disarm.

The men who overthrew the 52-year-old president announced they would try to form a civilian coalition government and hoped to call elections as early as April. They also demanded Gamsakhurdia's extradition for a possible trial, even though they let him go.

"We said we were leaving them an exit on purpose, so that they could leave without bloodshed," said one of the leaders of the new ruling military council, playwright Dzhaba Ioseliani.

The fighting left at least 73 people dead and 400 wounded.

Ioseliani, a paramilitary leader, dismissed fears by some that Gamsakhurdia or his supporters might continue the fight from outside the capital.

"No, we are not afraid," he said.

"He has no support base. There will be no civil war."

Ioseliani said he would welcome former Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze returning to his native land to participate in a new government. Gamsakhurdia had accused Shevardnadze of being behind the move to oust him.

Shevardnadze, in an interview with The Associated Press in Moscow, said he would not rule out running for president or joining the new government.

"I have a great desire to participate in the creation of a democratic Georgia," Shevardnadze said. His specific role, however, "depends on my people."

Ioseliani said any move to join the new Commonwealth of Independent States would have to await the establishment of civilian rule. Commonwealth leaders have insisted that the fighting stop before Georgia joins the other 11 former Soviet republics in the group.

Ioseliani also raised the possibility Georgia could establish a constitutional monarchy. He said some members of the Bagrationi family, the former Georgian royalty, had expressed interest in returning.

Representative says Congress must fix the economy, or else

CLEVELAND (AP) — U.S. Rep. James Traficant Jr. said Monday that Congress must take action to correct economic problems facing the country or face harsh consequences.

"The problem in our country is in the halls of Congress and if Congress does not begin to debate the salient points of our nation's problems, that debate will take place in the streets," the Ohio Democrat told the Cleveland City Club.

Claiming there are no major differences between the Republican and Democratic parties, Traficant predicted the emergence of a major, third party by the end of the century.

Traficant said such a party would grow from a need to address problems the existing parties are afraid to tackle.

"Neither party wants to make those painful decisions, because both parties are looking more at election than at governing our nation," said Traficant.

The U.S. government must change economic policies, some of which date back to World War II, Traficant said.

He said the first change would involve cutting at least $1 billion from the defense budget.

"Second of all, you're going to have to clamp down and plug the loopholes in our tax law, and third of all, you're going to have to initiate incentives on the domestic side for the purchase of American-made goods and the production of American-made goods."

"If this president fails to act, he will be defeated. And God forbid if he is defeated by a Democrat who is not much different on trade and tax policies," said Traficant.

After his speech, Traficant called for a congressional investigation into the Justice Department's handling of the case against former Cleveland autoworker John Demjanjuk, who was convicted in Israel of Nazi war crimes.

Demjanjuk is appealing his death sentence as the guard who operated the gas chambers at Treblinka, a prison camp in Poland where 850,000 Jews died.

Demjanjuk's attorney presented documents Sunday to the Israeli Supreme Court, which he says supports claims that the U.S. and Israel framed his client.

The Israeli court will convene Jan. 15 to rule on accepting the documents as evidence.

Traficant said he has copies of U.S. State Department telegrams showing that Israeli and U.S. prosecutors knew that convicted Nazi war criminals had identified another man as "Ivan the Terrible" as early as 1961.

Tax credit proposed to buy health insurance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is considering several proposals to help people buy health insurance, including possible tax credits, but hasn't settled on one plan yet, White House Chief of Staff Sam Skinner said.

"It's fair to say that a lot of what we see in the newspaper represents ideas that have been put forth by people," said Skinner when asked about the published report during an appearance on the CBS program "Face the Nation."

He added that President Bush "wants to be able to offer some of the options that are being talked about in the newspaper." He just isn't ready to make a decision yet.

The New York Times, quoting unnamed administration sources, reported Sunday that Bush intends to propose tax credits to help individuals and businesses purchase health care insurance, while also proposing to trim Medicare benefits for the most affluent.

The idea of using tax credits to help pay for health insurance is a key feature of a health-care bill offered last November by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., and a number of other Republican senators.

Bush is expected to outline proposals to ease health-care costs as well as his strategy to revive the economy during a State of the Union address Jan. 28. He will also provide additional details when he presents his proposed fiscal 1993 budget a few days later.

Bush also is considering a number of other middle-class tax breaks, including a possible tax credit of up to $2,000 for first-time home buyers, as part of an economic recovery package, according to administration and industry sources.

The administration hopes to pay for those tax breaks in part from cuts in defense spending.

Bush is expected to ask Congress to renegotiate a 1990 budget agreement so that additional savings from defense cuts can be used on domestic programs aimed at boosting the stalled economy.

Last week, at a news conference during a visit to Singapore, the president hinted that he might call for some tax cuts as part of an economic recovery package, saying that to stimulate the economy "alterations in the tax system might be needed."

Pilot escapes Cuba; tells story of flight

MIAMI (AP) — A Cuban pilot who helped 33 others escape their homeland aboard a Soviet-made helicopter told of how he flew about 6 feet above the ocean to escape being detected by Cuban radar.

German Pompa Gonzalez, recently decorated for service to Fidel Castro's troops in Angola, awoke at dawn Friday and dressed in his national airline's uniform before creeping aboard the Soviet-made MI-8 helicopter, The New York Times reported in Monday's edition.

Pompa, 27, then picked up his fellow defectors, including his wife, at the coastal resort of Varadero, Cuba.

"We were flying barely 2 yards above the water, and there was always the danger that Castro's radar would detect us and force us down," Pompa told The Times during an interview at his sister-in-law's home in a Miami suburb.

"Nevertheless, I felt a tremendous sense of equilibrium and calm. I knew that one way or another, it would soon be over," said Pompa, who normally ferried tourists around Cuba in the helicopter.

Pompa had planned the flight for three months, and the group had to abort two previous attempts, The Miami Herald reported in Sunday's edition. "Nobody suspected anything," he said.

Pompa was cheered by relatives when U.S. immigration officials released him and 32 of the other defectors released from Krome Detention Center on Saturday, the Herald reported. One was detained because relatives couldn't be contacted.

All 34 have requested political asylum. Cubans, unlike Haitians and other groups, are routinely granted asylum and are eligible for legal residency after one year.

Ten days before the flight, Pompa had received a medal for his distinguished career during two years' duty in Angola.

Pompa and his wife, Maria de la Caridad Carrazana, will be living along with 12 other defectors with Carrazana's sister Mari Diaz in Opa-Locka.

The escape has angered the Cuban government, which is calling on the United States to return the helicopter and the defectors to Cuba.

One of the exiles said economic conditions in Cuba are deteriorating in the wake of aid cutoffs by former Cuban allies in the Soviet bloc.

"Every day it's worse in Cuba," said co-pilot Raul Reyes. "I pity the people who are still back there."

Country newsletter helping farmers find lifetime mates

SUPERIOR, Neb. (AP) — Jim collects oil lamps and Bibles. Annie says she's "tired of going out with guys who don't know which side is upon a cow."

They're among those trying to find companionship through Country Connections, a dating newsletter geared to those living in isolated farming communities.

Bill Blauvelt said he founded Country Connections six years ago after reading about the plight of single farmers who had a tough time finding spouses.

The newsletter's circulation has grown to more than 1,500, and Blauvelt says an inch-thick file of letters shows that people are finding love through the publication.

Blauvelt, who also publishes the local newspaper in this southern Nebraska town of 2,500, said the newsletter primarily attempts to pair bachelors with city women who grew up in the country and want to return.

"Long about 30, the women start realizing that the city life isn't all it's cracked up to be and they want to get out of the city," Blauvelt said.

Most subscribers are from Nebraska and the Midwest, but some live as far away as California and New York, he said.

Country Connections subscriber Joe Cockson, 39, lives in Bellwood, a small town about 60 miles west of Omaha. He said he wants to meet women, but not necessarily find a spouse.

"I'm not desperately seeking a wife," Cockson said. "I joined it to meet more people than I might usually meet."

"Living in a small community like I do, there is not nearly the opportunity to meet people on a daily basis," he said. "In my hometown, there is a lot of bachelors and not a lot of single women."

Mollie Sampson, 36, who lives north of Wichita, Kan., said she received about 60 letters after Country Connections ran her profile and picture.

Funderburke to make Ohio State debut

By Todd Harrell
Lantern staff writer

The wait is over. Today is the day that every Ohio State Buckeye basketball fan has been waiting for.

Today is the day when Lawrence Funderburke puts away his black suede shoes and purple and black suits and breaks out a scarlet and gray uniform as he takes the court for the first time as an OSU basketball player.

For Funderburke it is sure to be a day to remember. The 6-9 sophomore forward will play in his first collegiate basketball game in St. John Arena tonight, as the seventh-ranked Buckeyes take on the 10-0 and ninth-ranked Michigan State Spartans at 7:30 p.m.

"I just want to come in and play some solid and hard basketball and whatever happens, happens," Funderburke said.

Funderburke first gained local attention when he led Columbus Wehrle high school to the state championship in the Division IV basketball playoffs in 1988.

After that, Funderburke's personal conflicts have made more news than any jumper he has taken on the court. In his senior year Funderburke was kicked off his high school team for disciplinary trouble.

In 1989 Funderburke's troubles continued as a freshman at Indiana when after just six games he quit the team citing conflict of interest with Coach Bobby Knight.

Funderburke transferred to Ohio State in the winter of 1991. NCAA transfer rules prohibited Funderburke from playing until the beginning of Ohio State's 1992 winter quarter.

"I have played in game-type situations in practice and I think I will feel comfortable in (tonight's) game," Funderburke said. Funderburke mentioned the fact that even though he has not played in a sanctioned basketball game in two years he still has been getting a good workout in area gyms.

"You know it's not like I have taken off and gone to a faith mission, I have been out running, lifting weights and practicing on my basketball fundamentals the whole time I have not been playing," Funderburke said.

Funderburke played in the tough Worthington Summer League five months ago. "I feel like I am in good shape," Funderburke said.

The Buckeyes are looking for some offensive scoring punch in the front court, particularly at the post position. Although Funderburke is used to playing more of a "finesse" forward position on the floor, OSU Coach Randy Ayers may look for him to play at the more physically tough post position.

"Whatever position coach Ayers wants me to play I'll play it," Funderburke said.

"I do not know where I am going to put him in yet...he will be coming off the bench against Michigan State, he will not start," Ayers said.

Senior forward Chris Jent mentions the assets that Funderburke will bring to the court. "He's very quick, he gets up and down the court very fast, he has incredible jumping ability, and anytime you have a threat like that down underneath it sometimes takes two people to box him out and that opens up other areas of the court for other people," Jent said.

Senior's Bill Robinson and Steve Hall have been playing at the center spot and although both have shown consistency on the defensive end of the court, they have had trouble putting points on the board at the offensive end.

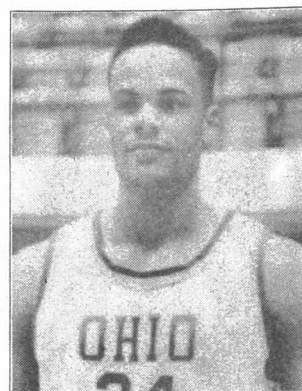

Hall realizes that his role at least remains on the defensive side of the ball. "I am asked to go in and play defense and get rebounds, I'm not asked to score too much. As long as I keep accepting my role and Lawrence comes in and accepts his role then their will be no problem," Hall said.

The eagerness of the fans to see Funderburke play was displayed near the end of the Penn State game. One OSU fan stood up and yelled, "Lace up your shoes Lawrence!"

And tonight, finally—he will.

Buckeyes open Big Ten season against Michigan State tonight

By Scott Kendrick
Lantern sports writer

The Ohio State men's basketball season will shift into high gear tonight as the seventh-ranked Buckeyes (8-1) open Big Ten conference play against perennial conference power Michigan State (10-0) at St. John Arena.

The Spartans, ranked ninth in the country by the Associated Press, have gotten off to their best start ever with their non-conference schedule producing impressive wins over Arkansas (ranked 18th by the AP) and Stanford.

Michigan State returns with four starters from last year's team that tied for third-place in the Big Ten, and five players from the team that won the Big Ten title two years ago.

"They have some veterans who have been around and know how to win," OSU Coach Randy Ayers said. Jud Heathcote's Spartans are one of the few teams the Buckeyes have had trouble beating under Ayers, losing three in a row before beating the Spartans 65-64 last March at St. John Arena.

Michigan State was also the last team to defeat Ohio State at St. John Arena, achieving that 25 games ago, on Feb. 10, 1990. They beat the Buckeyes 84-75.

One of the strengths of the Spartans is their veteran frontcourt, led by 6-foot, 10-inch, 270-pound junior center Mike Peplowski. Peplowski, a teammate of Ohio State's Jim Jackson during the Pan-American Games, is tied for second on the team in scoring, averaging 13.7 points per game, and leads Michigan State in rebounding with 9 per game.

Another important player for the Spartans in the frontcourt is co-captain Matt Steigenga, a 6-foot, 7-inch, 225-pound senior forward, who averages 13.7 points and 5.3 rebounds per game. Steigenga averaged 12.6 points per game last year, placing him 17th in the Big Ten for scoring.

The other starting forward for Michigan State is 6-foot, 7-inch, 220-pound junior Dwayne Stephens, the Spartans' defensive stopper, who averages 10.7 points and 5.5 rebounds per game.

Coming off the bench in the frontcourt for Michigan State is Anthony Miller, a 6-foot, 9-inch, 255-pound sophomore who is averaging 9.8 points and 6 rebounds per game, and Jon Zulauf, a 6-foot, 6-inch, 200-pound junior, who is averaging 5.1 points and 2.3 rebounds per game.

One of the Buckeyes' weaknesses this season has been defense in the middle. This could give the Buckeyes some trouble when they meet the Spartans.

"We're going to have to be solid and improve inside with our interior defense and rebounding," Ayers said. "We can't afford to give up second and third (rebounding) opportunities."

The Buckeyes hope to bolster their own front-line attack with the addition of highly awaited transfer Lawrence Funderburke, who will see his first action as a Buckeye tonight.

In Michigan State's backcourt, picking up the slack for graduated All-American Steve Smith, is 6-foot, 3-inch redshirt freshman guard Shawn Respert, who leads the Spartans in scoring, averaging 16.6 points per game. Respert is one of the best three-point shooters on the team, shooting a respectable 37 percent from beyond the three-point line.

Senior co-captain Mark Montgomery, a 6-foot, 2-inch point guard, is Michigan State's most experienced backcourt player and one of the best point guards in the Big Ten. He averages 6.6 points per game and 6.5 assists. Montgomery led the Big Ten in assists last year and is 4th all-time in career assists in Michigan State history, trailing NBA stars Steve Smith, Scott Skiles, and "Magic" Johnson.

Coming off the bench for Michigan State in the backcourt is Kris Weshinsky, a 6-foot, 3-inch guard and the Spartans' best three-point shooter, averaging 38 percent.

Cooperstown waits for Seaver, 'Rose'?

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver's election to the Hall of Fame is certain. What's in doubt is how many votes the Pete Rose factor will cost him.

When they retired following the 1986 season, it promised to be one of the biggest days at Cooperstown, with Seaver and Rose walking in together. They even talked about the prospect as teammates with the Cincinnati Reds.

But all that was dashed when Rose was banned from baseball by then-commissioner Bart Giamatti on Aug. 24, 1989 for gambling. The board of directors of the Hall of Fame then decided to erase Rose's name from their ballot even though his uniform and bats still hang in their hall.

When the official results of the 1992 balloting are released Tuesday night at 10 p.m. EST, it doesn't mean that Rose won't get some votes, though.

The Hall of Fame voting is conducted by 10-year members of the Baseball Writers Association of America and several members were upset that Rose's name was taken off the ballot without their consent. They wanted the choice of whether he deserved to be in Cooperstown or not.

As a result of Rose's name being taken off the ballot by the board, some writers said they would make him a write-in vote or send in a blank ballot. According to Hall of Fame rules, however, write-in votes don't count. His vote total will be announced, however.

If there are several blank ballots, that could hurt Seaver's chances of reaching a record percentage of the vote. It could also hurt the chances of Rollie Fingers and Tony Perez, who figure to be close to the 75 percent needed for election.

Last year, Rose asked the voters not to attempt any kind of protest because he didn't want to hurt the chances of the other candidates. Rose's plan is to eventually ask commissioner Fay Vincent to be reinstated and he would then be eligible to be placed back on the Hall of Fame ballot.

Rose declined comment Monday on his timetable for reinstatement or his reaction of some media members making him a write-in vote.

It is not expected there will be an abundance of blank ballots or write-ins, so it's likely that Seaver, 311-205 lifetime, will come close to a record percentage of the vote. The all-time leader is Ty Cobb with 98.2 percent, followed by Hank Aaron (97.8) and Johnny Bench (96.4).

At one time, Rose was considered to be the first player who would get 100 percent of the vote. He is the career leader in hits (4,256), singles (3,215), at-bats (14,053) and games played (3,562).

Seaver won three Cy Young Awards for the New York Mets, pitched 61 shutouts and struck out 3,640. From 1967 to 1977, he won 25 percent of the Mets' games and was called "The Franchise."

His greatest single-game feat came April 22, 1970, when the right-hander set a major-league record with 10 consecutive strikeouts against the San Diego Padres. Some of his greatest moments, however, didn't come in a Mets uniform.

He pitched his only no-hitter June 16, 1978, against St. Louis while pitching for Cincinnati. On April 18, 1981, he became the fifth pitcher in major league history to strike out 3,000 batters, again while pitching for the Reds, and on Aug. 4, 1985, while pitching for the Chicago White Sox, he won his 300th game at Yankee Stadium.

But Seaver's best night on the mound might have been in July 1969 when he came close to perfection.

"If I had to pick one game where everything came together as perfectly as I could have wanted, it was the near-perfect game against the Cubs that Jimmy Qualls broke up with one out in the ninth inning," Seaver said recently.

Now, he has to worry about Rose breaking up his bid for perfection.

Fingers missed the 75 percent by 41 votes last year and figures to get a little closer this time. He is the all-time leader in saves with 341 and his 114-118 lifetime record shouldn't be held against him.

"It would be a nice recognition of the importance of relief pitching," said Fingers, who helped the Oakland A's win three straight World Series titles (1972-74).

Perez, a major contributor to the Big Red Machine, played in 2,777 games, with 379 homers and 1,867 RBIs. His career .279 batting average may keep him from getting in on the first try, though.

Others who figure to come up short again include Orlando Cepeda, Bill Mazeroski, Thurman Munson, Ron Santo, Tony Oliva, Luis Tiant and Vada Pinson.

Flores replaces Knox as Seahawks head coach

KIRKLAND, Wash. (AP) — Tom Flores, who coached the Oakland and Los Angeles Raiders to two Super Bowl championships during the 1980s, was named today to replace Chuck Knox as coach of the Seattle Seahawks.

The announcement had been expected since Friday, when Flores revealed that University of Miami coach Dennis Erickson had told him he was not interested in moving to the NFL now. Flores, the Seahawks' president and general manager, had listed Erickson as a strong candidate to succeed Knox.

Knox resigned Dec. 27 after nine seasons as coach of the Seahawks, who were 7-9 this season. Knox may be named coach of the Los Angeles Rams, a team he coached during the 1970s, this week.

Flores, 54, stepped down as coach of the after nine seasons following the 1987 season. With Flores as coach, the Oakland Raiders beat Philadelphia 27-10 in Super Bowl XV in the 1981 season and the Los Angeles Raiders defeated Washington 38-9 in Super Bowl XVIII in the 1984 season.

As the Raiders' coach, Flores compiled a 83-53 record.

OSU Hockey team goes 4-2 over break

By Aaron Buckles
Lantern sports writer

For the first time since the 1986-87 season, the OSU ice hockey team won four straight games, including a big upset of fourth-ranked Clarkson. However, this streak came to an end with two losses to the third-ranked Lake Superior Lakers, 14-4-1.

The Lakers punished the Buckeyes 9-1 and 6-0 on Friday and Saturday.

Despite the two losses, the Buckeyes' record is improving. Before winter break Ohio State was 2-8-2, but they have since raised this mark to 6-10-2.

"I think our offensive potential has been realized, because we are scoring a good amount of goals. Our team player production is where we thought it would be," OSU coach Jerry Welsh said.

This season the Buckeyes are averaging 4.9 goals per game, compared to last season's 3.4 goals per game.

One reason Welsh said he thinks the Buckeyes have scored more is they're keeping the puck out of their own end.

The Buckeyes started the four-game winning streak with two victories at home against the University of Illinois at Chicago. On Dec. 13, Ohio State beat the Flames 4-2 and then topped them the following night 10-7.

After Christmas, the Buckeyes went on the road to New York and continued their victory streak by capturing the championship at the Syracuse Hockey Invitational.

On Dec. 27 Ohio State beat Colgate 6-5 during overtime in the first round of the tournament. Two goals by sophomore Ron White, and another by senior David Smith, gave the Buckeyes a 3-0 lead. In the third period Brian Loney scored two goals, giving Ohio State a 5-3 lead, but the Red Raiders came back to tie the game with just over four minutes left in regulation play. This sent the game into overtime.

Ohio State quickly sealed the victory when senior captain and tournament MVP Rob Schriner scored on Colgate goalie Ken Baker just 19 seconds into overtime for the Buckeyes' first overtime win of the season.

In the championship game the following night, Ohio State pulled off a big 4-3 upset against Clarkson when OSU junior goalie Mike Bales stopped 32 of 35 shots from the Golden Knights.

The Buckeyes, who were outshot 35-25 in the game, started the scoring when junior Eddie Choi scored an unassisted goal in the first period. Later in the period, Schriner added his 13th goal of the year, giving Ohio State a 2-0 lead.

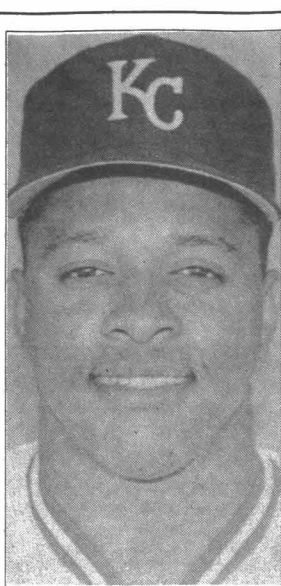

Clarkson scored next. But power play goals by Loney and White raised the lead to 4-1, and the Buckeyes held on to win the game and the tournament title.

Riding high on this big win against Clarkson, the Buckeyes traveled to Sault Saint Marie, Mich., to face Central Collegiate Hockey Association leader Lake Superior Friday night.

The only Buckeye goal came when Smith scored in the third period. That goal was the first goal scored in eight periods against Lake Superior's All-American goalie Darrin Madeley. Madeley leads the nation with a 1.67 goals-against average and a .930 saves percentage.

Both teams saw a lot of time in the penalty box. The Buckeyes spent the most time in the sin bin, having 23 penalties for a total of 63 minutes while the Lakers had 21 for 58 minutes.

Saturday night Ohio State was shut out and started the 14 hour bus trip back to Columbus, where they will next face Michigan State January 10th and 11th, at 7:30 p.m. both nights.

Tartabull signs with Yankees for $25.5 million

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees, who hadn't shown any interest in Danny Tartabull until last week, today reached agreement with him on a five-year free-agent contract believed to be worth $25.5 million.

The Yankees said they had agreed in principle with the outfielder, who last year batted .316 with 31 homers and 100 RBI for the Kansas City Royals.

"We got it done in a hurry," Yankees general manager Gene Michael said. "We pressured them a bit. I stayed at it for four solid days."

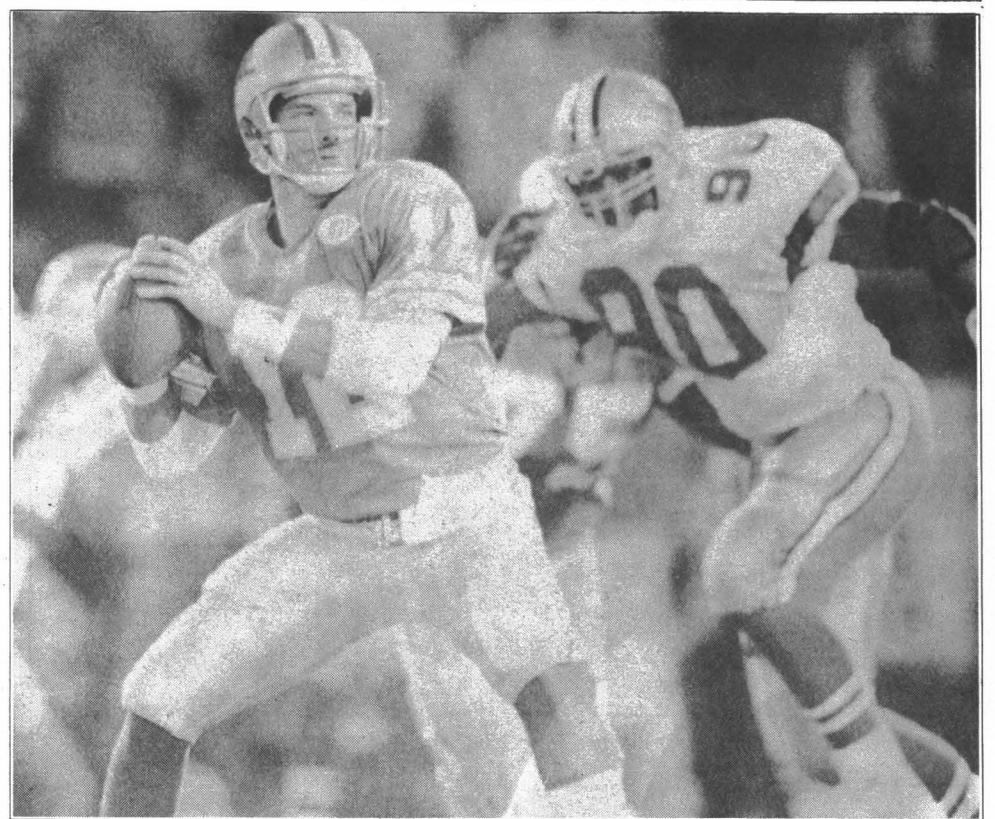

Michael, prevented by Yankees ownership from pursuing other big-name free agents such as Bobby Bonilla, said he was "surprised and happy I could go after him. The finances were not there before. I like spending money."

The Los Angeles Times reported that the deal includes a $1.5 million signing bonus and a clause guaranteeing he will earn an additional $1.5 million in endorsements. In 1992, he will make $5 million.

Incentives reportedly include an extra $150,000 for being the league's most valuable player, $50,000 for making the All-Star team and $50,000 for being the MVP in a postseason series.

Tartabull, 29, had a major league-leading .593 slugging percentage last season. He has a career average of .287 with 152 homers and 535 RBIs in six full major league seasons, the last five with the Royals.

Tartabull apparently agreed to the deal Sunday. He had been scheduled to meet with the Texas Rangers today, but Texas general manager Tom Grieve said the meeting was called off.

Detroit Lions quarterback Erik Kramer (12) prepares to pass for part of his 341 yards as Dallas Cowboys' defensive end Tony Hill moves in Sunday in Pontiac, Mich., during the NFC divisional playoffs. Kramer completed 29 of 38 passes and three touchdowns in leading the Lions to a 38-6 victory.

Kramer leads Lions to NFC title game

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) — Suddenly it's fun to be Erik Kramer. And why not? All he's done is deliver the Detroit Lions from nowhere to the doorstep of NFL respectability.

It wasn't always easy. It wasn't always pretty. But, like Tobin Rote 34 years ago, Kramer was all the Lions had.

Kramer delighted 78,290 delirious fans in the deafening din of the Silverdome by playing the game of his life. He completed 29 of 38 passes for 341 yards and three touchdowns to lead the Lions to a 38-6 victory over the Dallas Cowboys on Sunday in an NFC semifinal playoff game.

It was the first postseason game since 1983 for the Lions, who finished 6-10 last season, and their first playoff game at home since 1957, the last time they won the NFL championship.

The win sends the Lions back to Washington, where they started the season more than four months ago with a humiliating 45-0 defeat. But if they can turn the tables in the NFC title game next Sunday, the Lions will advance to their first Super Bowl.

If they do, it will be with Kramer at the controls.

"I really have to thank the coaches for staying with me," said Kramer, who took over Oct. 27 when Rodney Peete injured his Achilles tendon in a 34-10 win over the Cowboys.

Several of the Cowboys had said they couldn't remember Kramer's first name. Others recalled that his first NFL experience came as a strike player for the Atlanta Falcons. They called Kramer a scab and wondered how fans in a blue-collar town like Detroit could support him.

The Cowboys believed in their hearts that Detroit's win during the regular season was a fluke. In that game, Dallas outgained Detroit 415-208. But 174 of those yards came in the fourth quarter, with the Lions holding a 27-10 lead.

In the playoff game, Detroit outgained Dallas 421-276. But there were other significant similarities — like the fact that Dallas turned the ball over four times in each game, and that Detroit's defense had an interception return for a touchdown in each.

"Well, it wasn't the way we wanted to finish," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "But I told the players this doesn't take away from our having an outstanding season."

But some of the blame had to be laid on the coach. Dallas' game plan, as it was in the first meeting, was to stop running back Barry Sanders. The Cowboys clung stubbornly to that defense even after Kramer began picking them apart with his passes.

"It was really a good call by them to stick with the pass," defensive tackle Tony Casillas said.

It didn't help that neither Steve Beuerlein or Troy Aikman could get Dallas' offense untracked.

Beuerlein completed 7 of 13 for 91 yards with one interception before getting the hook with 21 seconds remaining in the first half. Aikman, who hadn't played since being injured Nov. 24 in the third quarter at Washington, was 11-for-16 for 114 yards with one interception.

NFL rushing leader Emmitt Smith gained only 80 yards on 15 carries for Dallas.

"Defensively, what can I say about our guys?" Detroit coach Wayne Fontes asked rhetorically. "They're just playing super right now."

Willie Green caught 8 of Kramer's passes for 115 yards, including TD grabs of 33 and 9 yards. Melvin Jenkins returned an interception 31 yards for a score. Herman Moore had a 7-yard TD catch and Sanders — held to 69 yards on 12 carries — broke off a 47-yard touchdown run to finish the scoring for Detroit.

Ken Willis kicked two 28-yard field goals to account for the Cowboys' points.

Chill sweep Rebels in weekend series

By Michael Malo
Lantern sports writer

The Columbus Chill's two game encounter with the Roanoke Valley Rebels turned into a scoring frenzy that netted 16 goals for the Chill and sent the Rebels home with two more losses.

Thursday night the Chill pummeled the Rebels 9-4, which set a team record for most goals in one game. Sunday afternoon brought a 7-4 victory for the Chill.

In Sunday's game, Chill forwards Don Granato and Jim Ballantine led the offensive attack with two goals apiece, including Ballantine's leading the 20th and 21st goals of the season.

Chill players Alain Deeks, Kurt Semandel and Kevin Alexander also contributed to the offensive outburst with one goal each.

Although the Chill's offense was able to put up the points, only one goal was scored on a power play.

Chill coach Terry Ruskowski was concerned about the team's inability to score power-play goals.

"Our power plays just weren't clicking today," agreed Chill captain Jason "Smurf" Christie.

Ruskowski and Christie both said in order for the team to win close games and road games, it will have to be more aggressive in attacking the goal during these times in the game.

The Chill's defense also contributed to the victory. The defense played tough early in the game, which allowed the team to get a 4-1 first-period lead.

A defensive letdown in the second period allowed Roanoke (11-17-3) to make the game a little closer when Brett Stewart scored to cut the Chill's lead to 4-2. The Chill (13-16-6) scored three minutes later making it 5-2, and the Rebels played catch-up the rest of the game.

Ruskowski's decision to start Alain Harvey at goalie might have been the spark the defense needed. Harvey, who hadn't started since Dec. 29 because of a sore hand, had 28 saves.

"I have a lot of confidence in him as a goalie," Ruskowski said.

Ruskowski said Harvey has the ability to become a future player in the National Hockey League.

The Chill will be on the road for 10 of its final 19 games. This week it will travel to Nashville, Tenn., for two games and then to Louisville, Ky., for a game. The Chill is 11-6-5 at home and 2-10-1 on the road.

The Chill is in fifth place of the Western Division of the East Coast Hockey League. Louisville and Nashville bring up the bottom of the division at seventh and eighth.

Sunday was "Meet the Chill" day and brought the team's 10th sell-out crowd of the season to the Fairgrounds Coliseum with an attendance of 5,708.

Gift from the Kremlin

A Russian mother and her two children examine the contents of a plastic replica of the Kremlin's Spassky Tower after hundreds of children were given the Christmas gift in the Kremlin Monday. The Orthodox Christmas is celebrated on Jan. 7 in Russia, according to the old religious calendar.

Label law sent to legislature

(AP) — Secretary of State Bob Taft sent to the Legislature Monday a proposed law sought by a consumer group to require warning labels on products that contain chemicals that cause cancer or birth defects.

Taft certified that Ohio Citizen Action obtained the minimum 104,330 valid signatures needed on initiative petitions to submit the measure to the House and Senate.

Taft spokeswoman Maureen Brown said checks by county election boards showed there were 120,736 valid signatures on petitions from 67 of the state's 88 counties.

Citizen Action submitted petitions last month with 155,052 names. The group needed signatures from at least 44 counties.

Taft sent letters to House Speaker Vern Riffe Jr., D-Wheelersburg, and Senate President Stanley Aronoff, R-Cincinnati, certifying the petitions and including copies of the text, Brown said.

The action came hours after a business-labor coalition asked the Ohio Supreme Court to delay the proposal.

A complaint filed by the Ohio Consumer Information and Safety Council asked justices to prohibit Taft from sending the proposed law to the Legislature until at least January 1993.

Leaders of the council, whose members include the Ohio AFL-CIO, the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants and the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, also asked the court to order Taft to re-submit petitions to county election boards for a second verification.

Older employees benefit company

(AP)—Days Inns of America Inc. never intended to become an advocate for hiring the elderly or, for that matter, anything else.

The hotel chain began hiring older people during a mid-80s labor shortage, and has found itself cited regularly as a leading example of corporate America's evolving attitudes toward the elderly in the workforce.

But hiring older workers was a necessity, said Richard Smith, Days senior vice president.

"It was not because we were doing something that elevated us in the social strata. We did it because it made good business sense," he said.

The company's experience with older workers dates to 1985 when the economy was booming and Days Inns, a relatively small chain that underwent an expansive franchising program, was emerging as one of the nation's largest hotel chains.

Quite simply, the growing company was having trouble finding and keeping workers, especially in its reservations department.

In desperation, company officials attended a job fair in Atlanta for older people. Smith said the company was shocked by the large number of people there looking for jobs.

The company also was pleasantly surprised, Smith said, that the few older people hired then turned out to be good workers. They tended to be more conscientious than the average younger worker, adapted well to changes and had low absenteeism.

Six years later, about 25 percent of the 600 employees at Days Inns' two national reservations centers are seniors. Company officials estimate that hundreds more are employed at the chain's franchised hotels.

"It's a wonderful environment. They bend over backward to treat seniors equally," said Dan Young, 74, of Atlanta, a reservations agent since 1986.

Economists discuss deficit

NEW YORK (AP) — The $41 billion trade deficit with Japan has been blamed for a range of afflictions in the United States, from joblessness to indebtedness to the death of industries unable to compete.

Many economists challenge the reasoning behind this emotion-charged argument.

They say President Bush's visit to Japan this week has tended to distort the dangers of buying more from the Japanese than they buy from us.

"Human nature leans toward conspiracy theories, simple explanations, looking for bogeymen," said William Sterling, an international economist at Merrill Lynch & Co., the big Wall Street brokerage. "With the Soviet threat gone, the Japanese have become the bogeymen."

Sterling and others argue that $41 billion is the lowest U.S. deficit with Japan in years because the Japanese are buying more American goods and selling less in the United States.

The figure doesn't include service industries such as tourism, law and finance, in which the Japanese are net buyers from the United States.

Some economists also contend that $41 billion pales in size and significance to some other important measurements of the American economy that give a more accurate assessment of the total picture.

The value of all U.S. goods and services produced in 1991 totaled nearly $6 trillion. Against that, $41 billion represents about two days' worth of output.

True, Toyotas and Hondas crisscross our highways and Sonys and Hitachis jam the department store shelves, the most highly visible symbols of Japan's export dynamo in areas the United States once monopolized.

Many of these cars and electronic products are now assembled in the United States, providing thousands of jobs in this country.

Many Americans also don't realize the Japanese are key buyers of U.S. commercial aircraft, computer chips, medical diagnostic equipment, electronic instruments and agricultural goods ranging from tobacco to Florida grapefruit.

So why are Bush and his accompanying troop of American business executives, including the Big Three automakers, making such an issue over the trade question?

For decades, a trade deficit was thought to be a sign of economic weakness, an indication that a country consumed more than it produced and was borrowing against the future to live for today.

The price would be exacted in high debts, unemployment and declining standards of living. A frequently quoted government calculation asserts that for every $1 billion in additional net imports, 20,000 jobs are lost.

Many economists now argue that in the global trade picture, a deficit with one country is meaningless if there's a surplus with other countries that make up for it.

A large number of foreign nations now are net buyers of U.S. goods, which has pushed the 1991 trade deficit below $100 billion for the first time in eight years. The European Economic Community is running a $25 billion deficit with the United States, vs. a surplus a few years ago.

Israelis arrive at peace talks; Arabs protest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israeli negotiators arrived Monday for a new round of Mideast peace talks, but the Arabs delayed coming to protest the planned expulsion of 12 Palestinian Arabs from Israeli-held territories.

At the United Nations, the United States joined the other 14 Security Council members on Monday in strongly condemning Israel's planned deportation of the Palestinians. France's U.N. ambassador, Jean-Bernard Merimee, said the 15-0 vote might encourage the Palestinians to return to the negotiating table.

Arab and Western diplomats had said the expulsion orders were undermining the peace process and tainting the atmosphere of the talks, which are scheduled to resume Tuesday in Washington.

Eliakim Rubinstein, a senior Israeli negotiator, expressed hope that the Arab negotiators would arrive on time for talks Tuesday.

"Agreements have to be honored," Rubinstein said.

Before the negotiations recessed three weeks ago, Israeli, Palestinian and Jordanian negotiators informally agreed to resume on Tuesday.

They are discussing an Israeli proposal to give limited self-government to Palestinians who live on the West Bank and in the Gaza Strip.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The Lantern cannot accept advertising that advocates sedition or other illegal actions, violates normal standards of morality and taste, or attacks an individual race, nationality, ethnic group, religion or sex. In cases of doubt, the proffered copy, illustrations and layout will be submitted by the Lantern Business Manager to the School of Journalism Publications Committee and judged by a majority vote of the members. Decisions of this committee are final.

Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required; this information is for our records only and not available to the public.

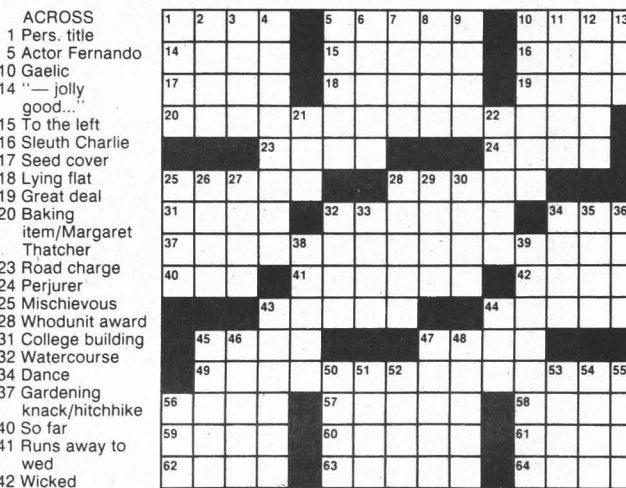

The Ohio State Lantern does not restrict advertisers beyond the limits of responsible journalism and the rules imposed by the Ohio State University on all student publications.

- Copy will be furnished by noon three business days before publication, except for published special early deadlines.
- All advertisements are required to occupy at least as many inches in height as they do columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in height will be considered full column (21 inches) and charged accordingly.
- The Lantern reserves the right to reject any advertisement that promotes illegal activity or activity detrimental or damaging to the university and its educational mission. It further reserves the right to revise any advertisement which is deemed objectionable for any reason.
- Make-good/adjustments will be considered only for those advertisements where errors occur in the following: business/group name, address, or phone number; item price; date, time, or place of event. The error must be solely the fault of the Lantern. Adjustments will not exceed the cost of the advertisement, and will be based on the portion of the advertisement nullified by the error. Minor spelling errors will not qualify for adjustment. Complaints must be registered to the Business Manager within 45 days of publication to qualify, otherwise the advertiser accepts full responsibility.
- Guaranteed position is sold at the Business Manager's discretion.
- A composition charge may apply to any changes, revisions or cancellations made after deadline.
- No proof will be furnished on any advertisement received after deadline, or for ads smaller than seven (7) column inches.
- If the Lantern finds it necessary to stop contracted advertising because of nonpayment, the advertising agreement will be violated and subject to a rebill fee.
- Advertisers are encouraged to avoid making misleading claims or using art or words that impugn or degrade sex, race, age, national origin, creed or color.
- The Lantern reserves the right to require prepayment for advertising, or to reject advertising, if the advertiser is delinquent in payment, or if advertiser's credit is impaired. Advertisers must prepay all advertising until credit rating with the Lantern is established. CERTIFIED check or money order is required for out-of-town advertisers.
- Contract advertisers will furnish the Lantern with a rate-holder ad meeting contract minimums, for use in any contract period for which the advertiser does not provide an ad.
- A tearsheet will be furnished for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tearsheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser notifies the Lantern office prior to publication.
- Advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Ohio State University, its Board of Trustees, and its officers, agents and employees from and against any and all loss, cost and expense, including reasonable attorney fees, resulting from the publication by the Lantern of advertiser's advertisement.
- Advertisers in the Ohio State Lantern agree that they will not represent themselves in any way as being endorsed by the Ohio State University.
- All mail-order advertisers are required to submit sample/proof-of-product prior to publication.

Please note that advertisers must request the return of their original ad materials; the Lantern will dispose of such materials 60 days after their first publication.

Opposition celebrates

Opposition gunmen shoot in the air as they celebrate taking over the Parliament building in Tbilisi, Georgia, Monday. Georgian President Zviad Gamsakhurdia fled the building early Monday where he had been hiding since Dec. 22 when fighting began.

City schools to use metal detectors

YOUNGSTOWN (AP) — City school officials have decided to begin random use of metal detectors in an attempt to cut down on the number of weapons being brought to school. "During the next month or so, we're planning on going into the schools at random, unannounced," Superintendent Emanuel Catsoules said. "We've been concerned about the number of weapons we've confiscated. It hasn't been an extraordinary number, but it's enough for concern."

Catsoules said a dozen weapons, ranging from sharpened screwdrivers to handguns, have been confiscated from students since September. Many students say they carry the weapons for protection, Catsoules said.

Youngstown police Sgt. Ted Terlesky, who will help set up the metal detector program, said the Youngstown schools are lucky that "something traumatic hasn't happened."

The district will use both hand-held and walk-through metal detectors similar to those in airports. The detectors will also be moved from school to school on a random basis.

Dayton schools are believed to be the only Ohio school district currently using metal detectors to screen students. Detectors were used there after an outbreak of juvenile violence in the city that school officials feared might spill into the schools, spokeswoman Jill Moberley said.

So far, principals at high schools and junior high schools have used the detectors at functions, such as dances and sporting events. No weapons have been found, she said.

Coast Guard searches for lost arsenic drums

(AP) - The Coast Guard searched for more than 500 drums of arsenic that were lost off the Northeast coast in a fierce weekend storm that toppled beach houses and splintered boardwalks.

Officials determined there was no immediate health threat, said Michael Sullivan, a spokesman for the Maryland Department of Environment.

The chemical is a danger to aquatic life but when released in the ocean would be quickly diluted below toxic levels, the Coast Guard said.

A Coast Guard plane was to continue its search from Delaware Bay to New York City Monday for drums that may have floated to the surface. Exactly where and when during the storm the containers slid overboard wasn't known, the Coast Guard said. The ship had been as far as 40 miles off shore.

"If the drums were airtight, they might float. If they're not airtight, they're going to go down," Sullivan said.

The storm struck the Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and New York coasts early Saturday with winds of up to 70 mph.

Six-foot waves smashed mobile homes together in Ocean City, Md., and boats sat in the woods. Three homes in South Bethany, Del., were toppled from their pilings and fell into the ocean.

Winds on New York's Long Island knocked a tree onto a car, seriously injuring the 21-year-old driver, the only reported injury blamed on the storm, police said.

The Santa Clara, a 492-foot cargo ship that was carrying the arsenic, left New York on Friday and arrived Saturday in Baltimore without 21 of the containers, said the Coast Guard.

Some containers held arsenic trioxide, a powdered chemical compound used as a pesticide and rat poison. Others were empty or held non-hazardous materials like cotton fiber, said Coast Guard Lt. Cmdr. Michael Kearney.

When the vessel docked in Baltimore, some drums still on board were damaged and arsenic had spilled on deck.

Past KGB agent denies seeing Vietnam POWs

NEW YORK (AP) — A former KGB agent denied today that he questioned American prisoners of war in Vietnam several years after the Vietnam War ended.

The former agent, Oleg Nechiporenko, said in an interview on NBC's "Today" show, he only interviewed a single American in 1973, the year the North Vietnamese released American POWs.

Nechiporenko was interviewed sitting next to Oleg Kalugin, a former KGB major general who said last week that at least three American prisoners were questioned by Soviet agents in Vietnam in 1978. Kalugin said Nechiporenko was the source for his information.

There have been persistent reports that some of the 2,273 Americans missing in the Vietnam War were kept as prisoners after the war. U.S. officials say no one has produced proof that any Americans were not released when the North Vietnamese sent 591 POWs home in 1973.

Kalugin's claim that two CIA agents and an Air Force officer were interrogated by the KGB after the war was disputed by the Russian foreign intelligence service and the CIA last week.

The CIA said Friday that one of its agents captured in Vietnam might have been questioned by a KGB officer, but the agent was released with other Americans in 1973. A second CIA agent captured in April 1975 and released the following October was not interrogated by the KGB, the agency said.

U.S. military involvement in the war ended in 1973, but the South Vietnamese continued to fight the communists until Saigon fell in April 1975.

The news agency Tass quoted a spokeswoman for the Russian foreign intelligence service as saying Friday that KGB files indicated an American POW suspected of being a CIA agent was contacted once in Vietnam in 1973. There are no other indications in the files of Americans being questioned by Soviet officials in Vietnam, the spokeswoman said.

Asked today if he spoke to any Americans in Vietnam, Nechiporenko said: "Yes. Not Americans, but one American. One American only, in '73."

When asked if he spoke to any Americans after that, he said, "No."

Kalugin said when he met with Nechiporenko two or three months ago, the former agent said he had met with American prisoners.

"And when I said, 'One,'" he said, "No, there were several," Kalugin said. He said Nechiporenko would not say how many but he "mentioned an Air Force pilot."

Turning to Nechiporenko, Kalugin asked, "Right?" Nechiporenko shook his head no.

Asked by NBC if he told Kalugin about talking to several Americans, Nechiporenko said: "I couldn't tell it. I couldn't tell it because I only had contact with one American only."
