News, Academics Considered

3 Speakers Discuss Problems At Teach-In Attended by 150

Three speakers discussed the problems of the conscientious objector, the campus news media and the professional academician at a May Day teach-in sponsored by the Free Student Federation yesterday afternoon. About 150 persons attended.

Stan Robinson Jr., a Columbus attorney, discussed the draft and the college student. Thomas G. Eynon, associate professor of sociology and anthropology, spoke on the importance of news media on campus.

John R. Champlin, political science instructor, discussed the role of the professional academician.

Champlin's topic was, "On Being Academic." He said the worth of the professional academician is measured by the products of those he teaches.

Faculty Power Low

The power of the faculty is not very great, he said. "Our primary tactic is to educate people. It is the only way the university can make contributions to society."

"Some formality should be maintained between the students and the faculty," Champlin said.

"If they (faculty) become too involved with student problems, they will encroach upon student independence."

Robinson, who spoke on the conscientious objector, said he was not opposing the war in Vietnam or draft dodging.

He listed the legal steps the conscientious objector should follow.

Eynon spoke on "The Role of Communication in a University in a Democratic Society."

Provides Exchange of Ideas

"The function of the media is to provide a place for the exchange of ideas," he said. "The media must be free from control if there is to be a truthful and complete exchange of communications."

Eynon said effective communications cannot exist without interaction between groups.

"On a campus there must be mutual respect between the faculty, students and the administration even though it is sometimes undeserved," he said.

Eynon said he does not support the FSF stand on the communications problem and would "not be one of a party to call for the resignation of a man not yet on campus."

Colleges Urged to Instill 'Sense of Involvement'

Stimulating an "attitude of involvement in the world around us" is the duty of higher education, according to Donald C. Power, a New York corporation executive.

Power was one of four speakers yesterday at a symposium sponsored by alumni in celebration of the Commerce College's 50th anniversary. He is chairman of General Telephone and Electronics Corp.

"Creating an attitude of involvement is a joint responsibility of the student and the educator," Power said. Power said a constructive attitude toward the future stimulates involvement. He said involvement must be accompanied by an intense thirst for knowledge.

"The over-riding challenge to education and industry is to know and to understand more about the complex world of today, so that we can better prepare for the great opportunities of tomorrow," he said.

Desire to Understand

Power said the mark of a truly educated man is his desire to get at the root of things and broaden his understanding.

"Another challenge is to avoid being so involved in determining how to do something that we lose sight of why we are doing it," he said. "We must place more emphasis on selecting the goals we want to reach before we decide how we want to reach them."

Power stressed the importance of communication in business.

"In any business, no matter how large or how small, even the most experienced and skilled manager will fail to reach his goals unless he communicates those goals to his organization," he said.

Lovenstein Going to O.U., Praises Leadership There

Meno Lovenstein, professor of economics at Ohio State, has accepted a distinguished professorship at Ohio University in Athens. Vernon R. Alden, president of Ohio University, announced the appointment of Lovenstein to the Charles G. O'Brien chair in economics yesterday.

Lovenstein said he will submit a written resignation soon. He has taught here for 20 years. Lovenstein said he is leaving Ohio State because he wants the distinguished professorship and because he wants to work under Alden.

"It is sad to part with dear friends," he said. "But I am honored to be associated with Vernon R. Alden and the definition and leadership which he offers. I am not dissatisfied with anybody here. I am not disgruntled. I am not unhappy."

He said he has known Alden for three years, and that he decided he would work for him after being offered a job several weeks ago.

In announcing the appointment, Alden said, "Lovenstein is a first-rate classroom teacher . . . In his former position Lovenstein served as a magnet attracting outstanding faculty and quality students as well as financial resources . . . Prof. Lovenstein, outstanding in all characteristics, perhaps is best known as an outstanding teacher. "This is evidenced by his selection as a Distinguished Teacher and his appointment as the chairman of Ohio State's committee concerned with teaching excellence."

Ohio State President Novice G. Fawcett said Lovenstein "has rendered remarkable service to the University. I am sorry to see him go."

Lovenstein is president of the Ohio Association of Economists and Political Scientists and vice president of the Ohio Academy of Science. He is also on the executive committee of the Ohio Council on Economic Education and a board member of the Association for the Advancement of Higher Education. He is listed in Who's Who in American Education, Men of Science and the Directory of American Scholars.

FSF Asks Questions of Empty Chair

By JOHN SWITZER

Lantern Staff Writer

Thirty-one questions directed to President Novice G. Fawcett were taped to the door of the Administration Building by members of the Free Student Federation Wednesday afternoon.

The questions came from students who attended a rally on the Oval.

In the absence of President Fawcett, the questions were directed to an empty chair labeled "President Fawcett."

Fawcett had been invited by FSF to attend the rally to answer questions from students on the role of the administration, faculty and students at Ohio State.

Fawcett sent a letter to FSF in which he said he would not conduct the business of his office on the Oval. He said he would be glad to meet with officers of FSF at 9 a.m. May 18.

Members of FSF agreed to meet with Fawcett and said they will ask for answers to questions which are troubling students at Ohio State.

The 31 questions asked at the rally were written on a 20-foot strip of paper. A campus policeman tore it off the Administration Building door. Presented to President

Copies of the questions were kept to be presented to Fawcett May 18.

The questions included: Why are (Continued on Page 8)

Games, Weather Add to May Day

Pickets, uniforms, pie-throwing, bed races, games and water balloons turned Ohio State into a three-ring circus during May Week Wednesday and yesterday.

Thousands of people stood in line Wednesday night for the "Buckeye Big Top" at French Field House which offered more than 50 ways to clown around.

For a dime you could throw a pie in a pretty girl's face, if your aim was good. You could throw rings, darts, basketballs or ping pong balls, and fits when you missed.

The noise was deafening. Students and faculty members alike wandered around eating cotton candy and "bananas," chocolate-covered bananas.

Roulette Wins Prize

The best way to clown around was with old-fashioned roulette. The May Week Committee thought so, at any rate, and awarded the best booth prize to Rho Colony and Alpha Zeta fraternity for a gambling game.

A duck hunt operated by Phi Gamma Delta fraternity took second place The "hunters" threw water balloons at "Fiji" ducks.

At the booth which won third prize, plastic rings could be tossed at the tails of tigers. The "tigers" were members of Kappa Delta sorority, which operated the game along with Omega Phi Epsilon fraternity.

Other amusements included a movie, "Bonner's Boners," dancing and "near beer."

Dartboards Sold

The sale of dartboards picturing President Novice G. Fawcett, Dean John T. Bonner Jr., and new journalism school director-appointee William E. Hall Jr. was stopped by the chairman of the May Week Carnival.

Bette L. Daily, chairman, said she stopped the sale of the photos by Stadium Scholarship Dormitory because they had not been previously approved.

"Detailed plans for each booth must be turned in for approval some time in advance, she said. "Stadium Dorm claimed that they were going to sell Sno-Cones."

Over 400 dartboards remain. Stadium plans to try to interest area bookstores in selling them.

You could buy a balloon—and

State Okays $500,000 for OSU Print Shop

The State Controlling Board authorized release of $500,000 yesterday to buy new printing equipment for Ohio State.

The board released funds with the provision that the University construct a new building to house the new equipment.

On April 14 the Board of Trustees approved $475,000 to build a print shop for the University on Kenny Road north of Lane Avenue.

watch it rise to the top of French Field House if you accidentally let go. Alan Melamed did, and waited about it all night.

More clowning occurred at the President's Preview on the Oval yesterday. Two Ohio State students were apprehended by campus police for throwing water-filled balloons at marching ROTC cadets.

Top Students Recognized At Dinner

Mabel A. Gilbert, a student in the College of Education, and Dan E. Moore, an Agricultural student, were presented with the "outstanding senior" awards at the President's Student Leadership Recognition Dinner, Wednesday night at the Ohio Union.

Chase Award

The Chase award, presented to the outstanding senior sorority woman, went to Kathryn L. Felty, a student in the College of Education and a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority.

Outstanding sorority pledge recognition went to Judith Miller, an Arts and Sciences freshman and a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority.

James M. Vaughan, a senior in Arts and Sciences and president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, received the Gainer Award for the most significant contribution to his fraternity, the fraternity system and to Ohio State.

The outstanding fraternity pledge award went to Ronald A. Meier, a sophomore in the College of Agriculture and Home Economics and a member of Alpha Zeta fraternity.

Senior Awards

Two Residence Hall Senior Awards were presented to Kathrine A. Lien, a student in Nursing, and Victor L. Frost, a student in the College of Arts and Sciences.

Mortar Board, the senior women's honorary, and Sphinx, the senior men's honorary, tapped new members at the dinner.

Among the 22 women tapped by Mortar Board were Mary J. Chittenden, Crystal A. Petty, Connie C. Schlegel, Paula M. Krupko, Linda J. Woodrow, Susan C. Sporel, Mary J. Campbell and Mara Velme from the Arts College.

Baseballers Face Badgers, Wildcats in Weekend Play

Ohio State, tied for first place in the Big Ten with Michigan, takes on two of the conference's cellar dwellers, Wisconsin and Northwestern, this weekend at the new baseball diamond west of the Olentangy River.

The Bucks meet Wisconsin at 3:30 p.m. today and Northwestern in a doubleheader tomorrow starting at 1 p.m.

Rain has washed out two doubleheaders since the Buckeyes have started defending their Big Ten title. This weekend, the weatherman has forecast sunny skies and perfect baseball weather.

something Ohio State has not had since returning from its Florida spring training trip. The Bucks should break their "never on Saturday" jinx this weekend.

Both the Badgers and the Wildcats have identical 1-5 Big Ten records, but Coach Marty Karow is still wary of them. "Every game is a championship for us. If we lose one game we're cooked," Karow said.

"You can't take either of the two lightly. Wisconsin has got to be better than its record indicates. They led Michigan in two games up until the ninth inning before losing to them," Karow said.

"Let down on Northwestern and they'll beat you," Karow continued. "Michigan State beat them last week in the first game of a doubleheader 20-4. In the second game, Northwestern came back to beat them. We can't let that happen to us and I told the boys we better watch them."

Karow will pitch Steve Arlin in today's single game with Wisconsin.

Right handers Dennis Sweeney or Lance Reich will probably pitch for Wisconsin. That means that Rickey Copp will start at second base for Ohio State. Against lefthanders, Karow plays Bruce Heine at second; another strategy maneuver to improve the Buckeye hitting attack.

The rest of the Ohio State team will remain the same. Ray Shoup, Bob Baker and Bo Rein are in the outfield gardens. Jim Graham at third base, Russ Nagelson at first base, Roger Sexton at shortstop and Chuck Brinkman catching, are the infield starters.

Northwestern Coach George McKinnon will probably pitch Jim Bland, Glenn Cermak or Tom Leffler against Ohio State in tomorrow's doubleheader, the first game starting at 1 p.m. Karow will counteract with Dick Boggs and Mike Swain as his pitching choices.

Stickmen at Oberlin for 12 Straight

The Ohio State lacrosse team will play at Oberlin Saturday in a Midwest Lacrosse Association game. The Bucks will be after their twelfth straight victory. Ohio State beat Bowling Green 19-2 Tuesday and is 11-0 for the season.

Brian Driscoll, Cliff Murray and Jim Stafford will start on the attack team for the Bucks, with Bill Polasky, Charles Kellar and Rick Whiteman in the first mid-field.

On defense for the Buckeyes will be Fred Bergman, Glen Rudy and George Ropp. Chuck Eastlake will play in the goal for Ohio State.

Driscoll and Murray will be out to better their goals and assists records set last week against Bowling Green. Driscoll now has 65 goals while Murray has 35 assists. Midfielder Polasky also set a midfield scoring record with 26 goals.

Track Team Faces Champion Spartans

Ohio State's track team will get to the business at hand Saturday as the Bucks meet head on competition for the first time in three weeks. After a series of relay meets at Kentucky, Drake, Indiana and Columbus, Ohio State squares off against Michigan State, the defending Big Ten indoor and outdoor champion. Ohio State journeys to the Spartans' home grounds at East Lansing where Michigan State will throw eight Big Ten individual champions at

Red-White Grid Clash Ends Spring Practice

Coach Woody Hayes will get his final "live" look at the Ohio State football team tomorrow at the annual spring game.

Close to 1000 high school football coaches who are attending a two day clinic that starts today, will view the game along with students and public.

With the 20 days of practice allowed by the NCAA coming to a close tomorrow, Woody and his staff will have all summer to review the films and make plans for next fall.

Tomorrow's annual red-white battle will take place at 2 p.m. in the Stadium. There is no charge for admission.

The quarterback job vacated by Don Unverferth, will probably be shared by freshmen Bill Long and Gerry Ersham. Rounding out the starting backfield will be Wes Meinderding at right half-back, Rudy Hubbard at left half and Paul Hudson at full-back.

Hudson has developed into a strong, bull-like, crushing fullback, the type which has characterized the Ohio State offense for so many seasons.

Tennis Team Plays Final Home Match

Michigan State and Illinois will be here for a triangular tennis match today and tomorrow. It will be the last home appearance of the season for Ohio State.

Playing the singles matches for the Bucks, in order, are: Dave Lamon, Dan Spies, Dave Green, Bill Johnston, Tom Gavin and Bob Harrison.

The doubles pairings have Lamon coupled with Gavin, Spies with Kip Whitlinger and Harrison with Johnston.

The Spartans beat Ohio State by a 9-0 score last year and the Illini also took the Buckeyes, 6-3. Ohio State's record is 8-8 overall and 2-3 in the Big Ten.

OS Table Tennis Club Sponsors Tournament

The Ohio State Table Tennis Club will sponsor a tournament this weekend starting at 1 p.m. tomorrow in Room 213 of Pomerene Hall.

There will be eight different divisions and events.

Finals in all events will be played Monday at 8 p.m.

The tournament is open to all OSU students, faculty and staff members and alumni.

Letters To The Lantern

Crowded Libraries

In regard to the restriction, as of Winter Quarter, 1966, of undergraduate students from the stacks, the history, English, and foreign language libraries of the Main Library:

The restriction of these areas was balanced, we have been told, by the creation of two large study rooms on the second and third floors. However, as studying under such mass conditions proved unbearable to many students, the fine Arts library has been obliged to admit the overflow. Fine arts graduate and undergraduate students who need the facilities of this particular library for reference books for fine arts courses and research papers have been displaced and distracted by a horde of students seeking refuge from the horrors of the two new "gifts." The fine arts library has become crowded and inefficient. While the three other libraries, as well as the stacks, are virtually empty at the busiest hours.

This system should be re-evaluated and a better method put into effect.

Select Carefully

Recently the AA (highest rated) rooming house I live in was inspected by the Columbus Board of Health and Housing Inspector. The result is that I am living in generally unsanitary conditions, and because of the uniqueness of the electrical wiring the house is a complete fire hazard.

For the girls who are selecting rooming houses next year—be careful and look closely at the living quarters you are choosing. It is my suggestion that the University require greater safety regulations, more frequent inspections, accurate ratings of these houses, and quarterly contracts.

Role Defined

I am writing in response to the letter from several members of the political science department concerning the role of the ROTC on this campus. The following points should be made about the objections these gentlemen raised:

1) To date no objections have been raised by the parents of the boy scouts who saw the hand-to-hand combat demonstrations. 2) What qualifications do these gentlemen have to decide what these children will or will not see. 3) The scouts were under the supervision of their scoutmaster and he did not object to the demonstrations. 4) Granted that a blow to the temple may be an unpleasant way to die, but is it any worse than the explosion of a 155mm round? No objection was raised to the artillery piece that was on display. 5) Was the demonstration any worse than the many television shows that are produced for children?

The gentlemen also questioned whether there was justification for continuing the ROTC curriculum on campus. Whatever happened to the principle of free inquiry at a university? Do these instructors mean to deny to others the rights that they claim for themselves?

ROTC is no longer compulsory. The men taking these courses are doing so of their own volition. Are they to be denied the right to choose their own course of study? The armed forces get 80% of their officers from ROTC. Without the ROTC, where will the officers come from to protect the rights of those who advocate the abolition of the corps?

Dark Ages' Rules

I feel that the hours of return regarding senior women and women over 21 should be changed. We are not living in the dark ages, but a bright 20th century. These hours are out dated and are unrealistic. Universities are the institutions that attempt to develop independence, insight, intellect, and other related qualities and capabilities of students. The outdated rules and regulations are merely stifling this attempt, postponing the accomplishment of this goal, as well as making it harder to reach. Senior women and women over 21 are no longer babies—and there is no reason why they should be treated as such.

It is true that changing the hours will cause numerous problems that create many drawbacks. But why should girls be forced to leave the dorm and their friends just to have a liberation of hours? And why should women living in apartments have any more privileges than those that prefer to live in the dorms? Because they clean house, cook, and wash dishes? If this is so, it is ridiculous. Other universities as large as Ohio State have ironed out the problems and have taken the initiative. Now it is Ohio State's turn.

Andrea F. Pearl
Education-4

A Decline in Apathy

Associate Dean of Women Ruth H. Weimer has blamed the current women's hours on apathy among women students. But such apathy appears to be dwindling.

Just recently WSGA passed a resolution for senior women students over 21. And now an independent group of undergraduate women is circulating a petition which asks that the no-hour rule apply to sophomore and junior women as well as senior women and that the freshman apartment rule be relaxed.

This generation of college students has been called the brightest yet by such people as a Columbia University dean. Many students who have been involved in civil rights movements where civil disobedience has brought equitable adjustments of unfair laws have developed an antipathy to respecting rules for rules' sake.

As a result such universities as Cornell, Columbia, Princeton, Fordham, Yale and New York University have demonstrated a growing reluctance to acting in "loco parentis." Officials at these universities have come to understand that hours restrictions cannot enforce morality among college students. And students feel that university officials have no right to dictate a moral code. One professor said, "Some undergraduate behavior may not seem moral to me. But in many cases, it is much more honest in terms of their own morality."

These universities not only have relaxed the hours restriction in dormitories but permit women to visit men's dormitory rooms. Officials of these universities have found the liberalized rules satisfactory.

Deans at "quality" schools are giving heed to the ideas that students present which are solidly backed by reason and logic. Maybe that's how "quality" schools get that way.

Go Away Problem

Once upon a time there was a large university with many students. Maybe it wasn't the greatest university around, but it had some promise (it was located in an all-American city).

It had some good administrators (easily identifiable because they left to go to other universities), some bad administrators (they were usually quoted in newspapers as saying "no comment") and many mediocre administrators (hard to identify because they were seen in public only at an occasional prayer breakfast).

The university also had some good professors, some bad professors and many mediocre professors. But good bad or indifferent they all had tenure and couldn't be fired (God save the American Association of University Professors).

Naturally the university had some good students (God save the Honors program), some bad students (God save those extra-curricula activities) and many mediocre students (God love 'em, they keep the class curve down).

The university also had a Board of Trustees. It was hard to tell what it was because its members always made decisions in secret and were famous for their solidarity.

One fine day the university had a problem. It started with some picketing by the good students. The mediocre students stopped occasionally to watch and then walked on. The bad students threw water balloons.

The good professors were concerned and said so (but not for publication). The mediocre professors occasionally stopped to watch the pickets and then to the Faculty Club for lunch or whatever they do at the Faculty Club. The bad professors wrote anonymous letters to the local newspaper and threw water balloons.

The good administrators shook their heads sadly (discretion is the better part of valor). The mediocre administrators never knew about the problem because the pickets thought demonstrating at a prayer breakfast was in bad taste. The bad administrators took pictures of the good students and filled water balloons.

Finally the trustees met and voted on what to do about the problem but since it was not a public meeting their decision was never known.

So the good students continued to picket (albeit soggly). The good professors began looking for jobs as good administrators so they could leave the university and the good administrators got cricks in their necks. And the problem. Well if it didn't like the way it was solved, it could leave.

INTERLANDI'S 1966, LOS ANGELES TIMES

"I've given up causes. I mean, who wants to demonstrate with clergymen, housewives and clean-cut college kids?"

To The Point

Outspending the President

By RUSSELL KIRK

Mr. Lyndon Johnson is seriously worried about inflation—as well he may be; and it is to his credit that he has been trying to eliminate unnecessary governmental expenditure on obsolete projects and boondoggles. For the federal government is the chief promoter of inflation, through unbalanced budgets and consequent sale of more government bonds.

But Mr. Johnson's Congress, previously almost servile to him in most things, seems to be in no mood for economy. Pressures from special interests and well-organized constituents back home persuade many senators and representatives to defy the president and vote for big appropriations for dubious schemes.

A few days ago, for instance, the House Appropriations Committee voted that the appropriation for the Department of Agriculture should be as big as it was last year, despite Mr.

Johnson's budget specifying sizable economies. It appears that Congress will insist upon spending some $500 million more than the President desires for educational and health proposals and for "impacted" school districts.

With some courage, President Johnson asked the House to reduce appropriations for the school lunch program and for free milk for school children. He would have cut the lunch program in the amount of $19 million, and the milk program from its present total of $103 million to a mere $21 million. But the House Appropriations Committee insisted on keeping these expenditures at their present level.

Mr. Johnson clearly was in the right. The school lunch and milk programs were adopted as emergency measures during the Second World War, allegedly to enable mothers to take jobs in war production. Today there is no state unable to bear the full cost of such programs in its public schools; indeed, only a handful of school districts are so poor as to be unable to pay for their own lunch programs, if they want them. It is ridiculous and fiscally illogical for Washington to subsidize school lunches for some of the richest school districts in America. Why should Washington be in the cafeteria business, which clearly is a function of local government, if a governmental function at all?

Pressure from state and local school administrators, however, induced congressmen to deny the President this reduction of approximately $100 million. That money could have been spent upon our struggle in Vietnam, or on any one of a hundred activities that are clearly the duty of the federal government. Instead, the perpetuation of these and other items of expenditure will help to unbalance the budget, accelerate inflation, and raise prices for everyone. Worse still, unbalanced budgets imperil the position of the dollar in international exchange. Catastrophic depressions can be caused by inflation, as well as by deflation, of the currency.

Far too many citizens and local officials seem to think that the federal treasury possesses mysterious, illimitable sources of money, somehow unrelated to the level of taxes and prices. (Copyright Gen. Fea. Corp.)

State Lawmakers Build New Prestige Image

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "The day is past when legislators may keep a fifth in their lockers and be soused by noon each day," Rep. Harry B. Colay of Magnolia, Ark., said recently in an address to the Board of Directors of the fledgling National Society of State Legislators.

In a country where almost every interest has incorporated a national organization, state legislators went their 50 separate ways until mid-1965, when the society was set up by 22 of them. They had been discussing what they saw as the decline of state government and the low opinion in which legislators were held.

The society now claims a membership of something over 300, out of a potential of some 8,000 members of legislatures. It has a headquarters in Glenview, Ill., and an ambitious program to build up both the prestige and the effectiveness of state lawmakers.

Democrat Colay is President-elect of the society, named to succeed its first president, Republican Rep. William L. Blaser of Park Forest, Ill.

"No legislature in this day and age ever convenes without the ever present press, with its news services, the TV cameras and the radio mikes," Colay said at the directors' meeting.

"It is much more important that we conduct ourselves with proper decorum and decent appearance, than it was in the days when news did not travel so swiftly . . ."

Along with "public understanding and acceptance of the legislator and the legislative process," the society lists as objectives: exchange of information to make lawmaking more efficient, and defining and supporting responsibilities and professional standards—as well as "adequate legislator compensation, staffing and working facilities."

Blaser told his colleagues at a recent seminar on practical politics here that he would not seek reelection to the Illinois House because "I had to choose between serving in the legislature or continuing my position in private industry." He suggested it is time for the country to add to its concern over school dropouts some attention to what he called "a large crop of legislative dropouts — people who would like to render public service but cannot afford to participate."

According to the society's researchers, 36 states pay their legislators $3,000 or less a year and only six pay more than $5,000, while 11 pay less than $900. This condition exists despite the fact that state legislatures all together handle budgets aggregating $70 billion a year.

Colay told a reporter he thinks state government is in a decline and that "the growing use of federal grants in aid has been a very deciding factor in this decline."

"However," he said, "I do not feel that such a decline is irreversible, but that it can and must be halted . . . And I do feel that much of it has been the fault of the states in allowing such needs to exist that many of such aids became necessary."

Nevertheless, he blamed the federal government for "slowly but surely usurping every avenue of taxation," and called for a retreat that would give the states control of more revenue sources.

State government, Colay said, has a big opportunity in the fields of local and statewide law enforcement, to bring the crime rate down, and in education, especially in devising continuing education for young people who do not go to college.

In its long-term goals, the society specifically disavows any design to reorganize state government generally. However, Executive Director Harold Gordon listed among specific goals, not only better physical and staff facilities for legislators and "adequate compensation," but also re-appraisal of time devoted to sessions and support of bureaus to work on regional problems. The society plans ultimately a Washington office. It hopes to attract financial support from foundations for some of its study programs. Meanwhile, it lives on voluntary dues.

United Campus Ministry

The Religious Community

By DAVID O. McCOY

Assistant Minister

St. Stephen's Church

It used to be, in days gone by, that each small village had its church and its school (or perhaps two or three of each). In those bygone days, the responsibility of the village for both its religious activity and educational training was immediate. Likewise, the religious group(s) and schools were directly concerned with the welfare of the village and its inhabitants. The web of relationships, acquaintances, and responsibility was very tight indeed.

In an urbanized society, the situation is now radically different. It is unusual to find more than a few members of a congregation living within walking distance of their church or synagogue. (The Roman Catholic Church is a notable exception here.) In most instances, a city which houses a large university often finds a sense of alienation between the two: both are large and complex, with a sizable amount of administrative structure keeping them apart.

The congregation, because it is not automatically involved with those who do live in its vicinity (unless they are "members"), tends to neglect that community. This is similarly true in the case of many universities. The administration, properly concerned with the development of the institution, frequently overlooks active, constructive concern for the community which surrounds it. The collapse of a community can be occasioned by the institutions within that community, whether they actively produce it, or, more frequently, passively permit it to take place.

This kind of situation calls for a re-thinking of the role or function of Church and University within a given community — be that community the metropolitan area in toto or the immediate neighborhood surrounding it. It seems apparent that a wider and more comprehensive understanding of "Church" and "University" leads to a conclusion that a responsible exercise of their presence and potential would lead to a fairly full involvement in the life of their immediate community.

● May Day, 1966 = People + Prizes + Food = Fun

Wet faces and rows of seeds were the remnants of the watermelon eating contest.

Big Top Games Varied

A three-ring circus, a ringmaster on a motorbike, a busy rally wagon and good weather kept students on the move yesterday at May Week '66.

Following the "Buckeye Big Top" theme, the contests were run simultaneously in three circus rings on the oval.

The tug-o-war contest started things off as the members of Kappa Sigma Delta team in the finals.

In the women's division, the team from Mack Hall out-pulled the coeds from Houck House.

Onlookers lined the sidewalks around the oval to see the bed race, which had 47 entries.

All types of beds, from three-wheelers to triple-deckers, were timed as they raced from the Faculty Club around to the Administration Building.

The fastest 18 beds then were pushed the distance again in the finals.

Beta Theta Pi fraternity won for the fourth consecutive year with a record time of 1:37.8.

Finishing second and third were the Evans Scholars and the runners from Smith Hall.

All of the specially constructed beds had a female occupant, except for a Bradley Hall team of six coed runners—which carried a male student as cargo.

Minor mishaps from faulty wheels and construction were numerous. The Alpha Epsilon Pi team crossed the finish line carrying only a mattress and their coed passenger.

Jason Kappanadze, a senior in Arts, who was supposed to act as ringmaster and announce events from his stand in the middle of the oval, could not be found when the dance contest, and the faculty-student volleyball and faculty-student softball games began in the circus "rings."

Kappanadze was later discovered, complete with ringmaster's outfit, riding a motorbike around the oval, telling students about the games.

Gayla Vitt, freshman in Education, and Richard Kertz won first place in the dance contest in ring one.

In ring two, faculty members from the Dean of Women's office won two out of three volleyball games, defeating the team from Mortar Board, senior women's honorary.

Dean Jane E. McCormick and Dean Ruth H. Weimer were two of the players on the faculty squad, while Dean Christine Y. Conway acted as coach and "water girl."

Kay Senften, a sophomore in Education, chairman for the volleyball game said: "We had a good clean game, with no fights or injuries."

Things were not quite that calm in ring three, where a team of varsity athletes defeated the faculty softball team, 12-9.

Faculty outfielders collided with spectators as they chased deep fly balls. The defeat was their first in several years.

Faculty stalwarts like, Dean John T. Bonner Jr., Dean Richard C. Weaver, Dean Richard J. Wrigley and Dean Alexander Thomson took their team into the last inning with a 9-7 lead.

But a home run by Douglas Van Horn, a senior in Commerce, tied the score at 9-9. Jerry Strauss, a freshman in Arts, a member of the basketball team, then hit a home run to give the student team a 12-9 victory.

The Ohio Stater's rally wagon was driving through the crowds on the oval, directing attention to ring one where the best-looking legs contest was being held.

Members of the 1966 Goldigger's Court judged Ann Hardin's legs the best-looking. She's a senior in Commerce.

Clifford Truelson, a junior in Commerce, won first place in the new men's division.

While the male contestants were showing their legs, John Rinaldi, a junior in Commerce, scrambled down the long walk on the Oval to ring two to win the boy's tricycle race with the fastest time.

Meanwhile, Frank Shearer, a junior in Arts, rolled to first place in the barrel-rolling contest in ring three. After all the contestants in the watermelon eating contest were covered with a plastic drycleaning bag, with their hands behind them, James Eyster, fifth year in Engineering, emerged as winner back in ring one.

Betty Kolar, a sophomore in Nursing, won the women's division.

Meanwhile, tumbles and spills highlighted the couples sack race in ring two. Paul Jacobs, freshman in Engineering, and Camilla Schmidt, a freshman in Education, won first place, while Douglas Van Horn, a senior in Commerce, and Connie Wilson, a senior in Education, took second place.

The Sigma Pi pie eating contest started off the last round of games in ring one.

Sylvia Smith, a junior in Arts, took home a first place trophy to Kappa Alpha Theta in the sorority competition.

Miss Smith, nicknamed the "In-haler" by her sorority sisters, said, "I've been in training for weeks."

Miss Smith's winning time of 2:25 was evenly matched by the winner in the dorm competition.

Susan Young, a senior in Education, also turned in a 2:25 to win a trophy for Westminster Hall.

Second place winners in each division were awarded another eight-inch blueberry pie.

To finish up the day's activities, Linda Rudisill, a sophomore in Education, won the girl's pogo stick race in ring two, and Kathy Frailek, a freshman in Arts, and Michael Lavigno, a freshman in Arts, won the couples' wheelbarrow race in ring three.

The Brother An' Sisters/representing Phi Delta Theta and Kappa Alpha Theta, were one of the ten acts at the May Week Talent Show.

"She's for sale, boys, along with a delicious box lunch." The girls and goodies sale on the Oval was sponsored by the Freshman Senate.

Students take to the trees for a better look at May Week events.

Alpha Kappa Lambda fraternity men pull bed and passenger around the Oval during the bed races.

Holiday Mood Infects Students

The water probably felt good to the cadets, who stood in the 75-degree heat for quite a while. Two were overcome by the heat, or the length of ceremony, and were taken to waiting ambulances to recover.

Eleven cadets received special recognition and awards at the ceremony.

More than 6,200 cadets marched before University President Novice G. Fawcett and an honorary reviewing group which included Lt. Governor John W. Brown.

Fifteen pickets were also present at the review, carrying signs protesting the war in Vietnam.

The group sat on the Oval sidewalk leading to the library. Max Roessler, a teaching assistant in philosophy and one of the picketers, said the demonstrators were not trying to get in anyone's way but only wanted to be seen.

"Some of us feel that military training has no place on the college campus," he said.

But the crowd watching the review did not feel the same way. They clapped enthusiastically for the cadets.

Military hands and marching gave way to students yelling for their favorite beds as they lined the sidewalks around the Oval in the afternoon.

Motorcycle police and students in the Ohio Staters Rally Wagon attempted to keep the crowd out of the way of the weary bed-pullers.

One group of athletic fraternity men pulled a triple-decked bed around while the girls riding poured water on them to keep them cool.

Students and faculty members took advantage of the sunny weather to challenge each other to games on the Oval, while others danced and played tug-of-war.

Thousands of students stood in lines extending from the Field House to Tuttle Park Place and around the block to eat WSGA fried chicken.

The diners sat at long rows of tables and spilled over onto the bleachers in the field house.

The Pi Beta Phi pledge class was auctioned off for $47.50 following the dinner. A counselor in Drackett Tower bought the girls and said he plans to invite them to a dance with the Drackett men.

The Delta Upsilon fire truck was sold for $4.25 to the Delta Tau Delta fraternity.

A reserved seat in the library was sold for 75 cents. A guided tour of University Hall went for $4. Sherry Philian, OSU homecoming queen, will be the guide.

Building plans are being made by two students who bought a square foot of the Oval. They will be presented with a deed to the land.

The use of the Ohio Staters Rally Wagon for a day was sold for $3.50. A beer sign also went for the same price.

All the proceeds netted by May Week events will be donated to charity.

The troops stand at ease before yesterday's review.

FSF Directs 31 Questions To 'Fawcett's' Empty Chair

Did the University ask the ROTC students forbidden to participate in demonstrations? Are administrative officials authorized to tape-record interviews with students without the students' knowledge? Why was Paul Barton not qualified for the directorship of the School of Journalism?

Did the University ask the Columbus Police Department to screen potential School of Journalism candidates as a security check? Does Dean John T. Bonner Jr. have access to student psychiatric files in the Health Center? Michael Andes, senior in Arts, spoke for FSF at the rally. He said that FSF wants the administration to: (1) guarantee that the Lantern will be independent of the administration financially, managerially, and editorially; (2) that the Lantern be set up under an independent publications board composed of teaching faculty and students chosen hopefully by an independent student government. (3) that Fawcett and all other members of the administration disassociate themselves from Lantern policy.

Andes promised that FSF will be on the lookout for administration attempts to tamper with the Lantern. This would include the withholding of ads and letters from students, faculty, or other members of the University community.

Students read the list of 31 questions taped to the door of the Administration Building after an FSF rally Wednesday.

Homecoming Queen Wins May Week Talent Show

By JOHN C. VARGO
Lantern Staff Writer

A responsive audience of about 2,000 watched "The Greatest Show on Earth" last night in the stadium. The talent show, part of the May Week activities, was entertaining and well-planned.

The first-place trophy was awarded to Sharon Phillian, 1965 Homecoming Queen, for her song and comedy act. What started out to be a serious song, turned into a refreshing change of pace comedy routine involving her accompanists.

"We Three" took second place. The folk trio of Carol Cameron, Thomas Riley and Richard Smith was well-received by the audience.

Nancy Dickson, singing two Barbra Streisand songs from "Funny Girl," took third place.

The "Brother An' Sisters," representing Phi Delta Theta & Kappa Alpha Theta, and a trumpet trio of Tom Brawner, Bob Burkeimer and John Grashel received an extra hardy round of applause.

David Kieffer, master of ceremonies, kept the show moving and the audience amused between acts. His "Happiness at OSU" routine went over well with the crowd.

The only thing missing from the show was the theme of May Week, "Buckeye Big Top." A placard and half a tent were the only hints.

Engineering Students To Be Honored at Luncheon

Six alumni and 46 honor students of the College of Engineering will be honored at the Ohio Union today.

Robert L. Bates, president of Chemineer, Inc. of Dayton, and a 1948 graduate, will receive the Technikon Outstanding Alumnus Award during the luncheon of the 13th Alumni Day of the College of Engineering.

Technikon, an undergraduate engineering honor society, presents the award annually in recognition of outstanding professional and leadership ability.

The other five alumni will receive "Distinguished Alumnus" awards from Dean Harold A. Bolz as a part of the luncheon session.

J. W. Schaefer, one of the alumni, will speak at the luncheon on "Doorways for Digits," an explanation of the latest techniques in information processing.

He is a winner of the Outstanding Civilian Service medal, the U. S. Army's highest civilian award, and developer of a missile system which became the Nike family of air defense weapons.

The honor students, chosen for scholastic achievements and leadership, will be seniors ranking in the top 10 per cent of their class.

Charles H. Drummond III, Maumee, Ohio, will receive special recognition as the senior with the highest grade average.

Other alumni to be honored are: J. Parker Garwich, a 1930 graduate, Columbus; George Sinclair, 1935, Hamilton, Alberta, Canada; Raymond Birch, 1941, Pittsburgh; William H. Jacques, 1941, Cincinnati, and J. W. Schaefer, 1941, Holmdel, N. J.

Peace Corps Talk

A seminar will be held Saturday to answer questions of several hundred Columbus-area students who have been invited to enter Peace Corps training this summer. It will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Ohio Union, Suite A-E with a film, "The Not-So-Ugly Americans."

Fly half-fare on Eastern via Florida.

Florida swings in the spring—but it really swings in the summer.

Lower off-season room rates are in effect. And Eastern will take you to Daytona or Ft. Lauderdale or even Miami for half-fare.

So take a detour and enjoy it on your way home. Or go home first and down to Florida later.

Just use your Eastern Youth ID card, or similar card from another airline. If you don't have such a card, it's a snap to get one—provided you're under 22 and can prove it. For the specifics, stop by a Travel Agent or any Eastern ticket office.

Once you have your card, you can get an Eastern Jet Coach seat for half-fare. You can't make an advance reservation. But if there's a seat available at departure time, you can fly to any Eastern destination within the continental U.S. Including Florida.
