

Prof. Lasher Outlines Fraternity Goals

"The two fundamental purposes of the social fraternity are: (1) socializing its members, and (2) building lifetime friendships," Prof. George Starr Lasher, director of the School of Journalism at Ohio University and editor of the Fraternity Monthly, declared at a mass meeting of active fraternity members in the Commerce Building auditorium Monday evening.

Of the purpose of the meeting, which was a forum for the discussion of initiations and pledge training, Prof. Lasher went on to say, "There is no finer word for the fraternity system than the one it is based on, 'brotherhood.' Today we need this idea of brotherhood more than we have ever needed it before, not only to make them (freshmen) better brothers, better citizens, better friends, but also to make them better for themselves."

Before the largest group of fraternity men assembled since 1941, this discussion of the problem that has been faced by similar groups all over the country brought out the fact that pledges must be trained to co-operate through socialized living and by this atmosphere to recognize the rights of other individuals.

Those taking part in the forum in addition to Professor Lasher were: Paul Beam, national executive secretary of Phi Delta Theta fraternity; Dr. A. Beaumont Johnson, former activities man at Ohio State, and Dean of Men Joseph A. Park, who acted as moderator.

The meeting sponsored by the Council of Fraternity Presidents, was in charge of William E. Arnold, Com-3. Also assisting were Lewis W. Meacham, Com-4, and Marvin L. Whitman, A-3.

The lecture, at 8 p. m., in room 100, Chemistry Building, is free and open to the public. A dinner for Dr. Kerst will be held at the Faculty Club prior to his lecture.

Claude Vigee, French Poet On Faculty, Listed On Staff Of Literary Magazine

By Olive Deemer

Although it is not generally known, Claude Vigee, one of the promising younger poets of France, is on the University faculty. Because of his modesty and desire to remain unnoticed, it is only through the professors in the department of romance languages, that students in French classes are learning of the significance of Claude Vigee's contribution in the field of poetry.

France, herself, acclaims him as a capable young artist, and his name is listed on the staff of Variete, leading literary magazine, the staff of which includes such writers as Paul Valery.

Mrs. Thelma S. Glick, manager of the association, requested today that each member organization file the name of its representative and that of an alternate prior to the meeting.

The section of the constitution on eligibility will be revised to read as follows: "Any fraternity chapter, (men's or women's) organized non-profit boarding club or housing unit, represented at the University and registered by the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women, shall be eligible to membership in the Association."

Edward L. Pray, Soc-Ad-3, will act as master of ceremonies Saturday night.

Council's Statement Tells Reasons

The Romans organization voted Monday night not to accept the invitation of the Ohio Students Party Associated to participate in the proposed Spring election rally.

Romans' election council issued the following statement:

"In view of plans we have previously made with regard to approaching elections, we, the Romans' Election Council, are forced to decline the invitation to a joint pre-election rally with OSPA. Looking to the future, we sincerely hope that similar invitations will be exchanged by the two political parties."

Because of lack of time, the proposal to hold a joint May Week Mardi Gras with OSPA was tabled until the next meeting.

WSGA To Fill Scarlet Fever Advisory Job

The appointment of an independent woman to the Scarlet Fever advisory board will be made at a board meeting of the Women's Self Government Association in Pomereene Hall today, Marjorie H. Miller, A-3, president, said.

The position was left open by the resignation of Leah R. Jacoby, A-3.

talent. A translation of some of Elliott's poetry into French by Vigee will be published soon.

Vigee is also recognized for his literary criticisms in the realm of aesthetic and creative principles in poetry.

Came Here in '43

Vigee came to Ohio State in 1943 from France, where he was a student in medicine, first at the University of Paris and later at the University of Toulouse. He obtained his M.A. here in June, 1945. He is now working on his doctor's degree.

Further proof of his dislike of publicity—Claude Vigee is the nom de plume of Claude A. Strauss.

Vets Reject Proposals

Did Not Have Council Approval, Wise Says

Dean Wise, Com-3, president of the Veterans' Association, declared today that the two proposals scheduled to be brought before the Wednesday meeting of the association by Richard Weakly, chairman of the publicity committee, will not be considered by the group. Weakly previously announced he would propose:

1. That the payroll of all University employees be increased 20 per cent.

2. That the group promote and back Paul Brown as athletic director at Ohio State.

Wise said, "While the first purpose may be a fine gesture and would no doubt be appreciated by University employees, the second is questionable and open to much criticism. The whole matter was one of individual action and did not have the sanction of the Executive Council. We feel it is completely outside our purpose and scope, since we wish to deal only with problems and issues directly concerning the student veterans."

"A resolution will be introduced requesting our congressmen to support the Wagner-Ellender-Taft Bill, and the Patman Bill in its original form," he explained.

Musical Lenten Program Planned By YWCA Group

A Lenten program is being planned by the YWCA to be presented at 4 p. m., Good Friday, in the Drama Theater in Derby Hall.

It will be in the form of a dramatic-musical worship service, and will feature a speaking choir, soloists, and a double quartet.

Those on the committee are Dorothy L. Keller, Margaret M. Collins, G. Elizabeth Tener, Emma Lou Burgoon, Martha N. Stratton, Edith B. Gardner, Dorothy A. Dunbar, and M. Elizabeth Peckinpaugh.

FALS Unit To Reunite

Former Students Of Italian In ASTP
Planning Visit To 'Alma Mater' In May

Plans are being made for a reunion here of a group of students who were never graduated and who do not call Ohio State their "alma mater."

They attended Ohio State in 1943 and 1944 under the Foreign Area and Language Studies (FALS) in the ASTP. The 53 men were quartered in Neil* Hall.

When the group was disbanded in March, 1944, Dr. Arnold G. Reichenberger, department of romance languages, one of their instructors in Italian, felt that such good friends should not lose contact with each other. The men, too, wanted some way to hear about their comrades, instructors, and the University.

Thus was born a newsletter, "Il Corriere Falsaccio," which Dr. Reichenberger translates as "The Lying Messenger." "Falsaccio" is a combination of "falsa" meaning false, and "accio," a suffix meaning bad. That FALS is also in the word is a coincidence.

The newsletter will be continued until the reunion, which will probably be at the end of May. "It was a strictly wartime enterprise, to keep boys up with themselves and the University," Dr. Reichenberger said.

The newsletter is published every six weeks and contains from 10 to 20 closely-typed pages of news, gossip and opinion. "I try to give them the atmosphere of the University," Dr. Reichenberger explained. Most of the paper is filled with long quotations from the many letters he receives from "his boys." Of the 53 students, 13 were of Italian descent and were in the advanced language class taught by Dr. Olin M. Moore. The remaining 40 students were in two beginning sections.

The former students exchanged war experiences from almost everywhere from Korea to Germany. Everywhere, that is, except Italy. None of the 53 ever fought or was stationed in that country, although

Organization To Meet

George W. Hoffman, Engr-3, said today that a meeting of the Christian Science Organization will be held at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, in room 10, Ohio Union.

several were guards of Italian prisoners of war and others employed the language in various capacities.

None of the men was wounded or killed, but two were accident victims. Most are now out of the service and back at their jobs.

The reunion will be a great event; not only for the men and their teachers but for their wives and families who joined in the spirit of the "Falsaccio." In the thirteenth issue, published last October, Dr. Reichenberger wrote: "When I wrote that evil number 13, I thought that it was indeed a curious number for our first peace issue. For a moment I considered changing it into Vol. II, Number 1. But that sounded too pompous, and the life of this newspaper is drawing to a close anyway, since it will have to say 'mission accomplished' when all the boys have been reunited in that much dreamed-about postwar reunion."

Date For WRA Camp Week End Set For May 4

The week end of May 4 was approved by the Women's Recreation Association for its Camp Week End at a meeting Monday afternoon. Jane Owen, Ed-1, and Margaret Hageman, Ed-3, were appointed co-chairmen of the event.

Funscapades will not be held for the next two weeks because of the Junior-Senior Prom and Good Friday, it was announced. The Tennis Club will be in charge of the next Funscapades, Friday, April 26.

The revised constitution of the association was approved by members.

It is a greater distance from the northwest corner of Montana to the southeast corner than from Chicago to Washington, D. C.

Television Study Is Contemplated

The University is investigating the possibility of offering television as a field of study, Dr. I. Keith Tyler, head of radio education, said today.

The present prohibitively high cost and impossibility of obtaining equipment makes it impossible for the University to offer a course at present, Dr. Tyler said. Because of its importance, television will eventually be added to the curriculum, he added.

Faculty Members To Attend Annual Health Meeting

Eick, speaking for the section on College and University Physical Education, will explain the phases on rehabilitation in connection with the program at Ohio State. Dr. Oberbauer will attend all of the meetings and will summarize the convention on April 13.

'Attack Teacher,' Reproduction Of Anti-Sub Craft, Aids NROTC

NROTC students are now using one of the first two anti-submarine "attack teachers" to be installed in 52 institutions. An "attack teacher" is a small-scale reproduction of the bridge, C.I.C., and sonar gear found on anti-submarine craft. The interior of the Armory was rebuilt during the Winter Quarter to resemble the deck of a ship.

Students in turn act as members of the four-man sonar crew or as plotters in the C.I.C. mock-up. Information is given to a conning officer who directs the helmsman on his course.

The "attack teacher" features a screen upon which is projected the submarine and attacking vessel. By viewing the screen the progress of the problem, mistakes, and correct methods of handling are more clearly understood.

An article and a picture of the "attack teacher" appeared in the March edition of the Bureau of Naval Personnel Training Bulletin.

Personal and Partisan . . .

By Pat R. Harris

A subject the United Nations, now meeting in Brooklyn, might consider when it gets around to it is the old and troublesome question of Palestine. Public opinion regarding the "Palestine problem" ranges, like most public opinion, from apathy to an almost fanatic interest.

Although innumerable statistics* in Palestine's peoples, politics, production, and so on are easily available, few people seem quite sure of what the whole thing is about. Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, spent some time over there recently as an observer. He wrote seven articles telling about what he saw. In the last article, published in Saturday's Cleveland Plain Dealer, among other papers, he stated his conclusions.

There is, McGill believes, enough land to house all the refugee Jews from Europe without crowding any wandering Arabs even a trifle. Only the ruling Arabs are hostile to this immigration, he says, as the average Arab has profited from Jewish industry and land reclamation. Too, McGill adds, the Arabs were either neutral during the war, or actively pro-Axis. He sees no reason for our gloved-hand attitude toward them now.

The solution, he says, is for Palestine to be immediately opened to immigration and then mandated to the United Nations as a Jewish national home within which the Arab shall have every right and privilege accorded others.

"Britain," says McGill, "holds her mandate under definite legal shadow. The League of Nations which granted it no longer exists. It is one of the tragedies of the postwar world that Britain, which has so fine a record of defending liberty and freedom and human rights, generally, should have travelled the road of appeasement, fear and moral wrong in Palestine."

"That Britain should be in the process of granting to this loosely held state (Transjordan) full independence and official recognition, while withholding adequate immigration from Palestine, is one of the fantastic contradictions and more bitter ironies of the present situation."

As We See It...

Will A Rider Kill The Minimum Wage Bill?

A badly-bruised minimum wage bill has been forwarded to the House from the Senate. The principal author of the bill, Claude Pepper of Florida, says the amended bill is "worse than the present law."

President Truman has said he will veto the bill because of a rider to revise the farm parity formula to include the cost of farm labor, including the farmer and his family. This provision, Senator Pepper has asserted, "would be an affront to the workers who might be affected to add a few cents to their wages and take more away from them in higher living costs."

Betty Miller Whitney

Sixty-five per cent of the American people favor raising the minimum wage level from the 40 cents specified in the 1938 Fair Labor Standards Act to 65 cents, a recent Gallup poll found. Still, Chester Bowles, stabilization administrator, estimates that the rider to increase farm prices would raise the nation's food bill by over $4,000,000,000. Obviously, the rider fights the objective of the bill.

We need an upward revision of our minimum wage law. The 40-cent minimum yields only $800 a year based on 50 weeks. Even the 65-cent minimum would yield only $26 a week or $1300 a year.

Acting Commissioner of Labor Statistics A. F. Hinrichs told the Senate committee concerning the bill, "I state categorically as a matter of expert opinion that a family cannot attain a reasonably adequate minimum standard of living with $1500 at the present." The present law, keep in mind, provides a minimum of $800, and the amended law only $1300.

Lower prices will be the eventual over-all effect of the bill in the opinion of Chester Bowles, for higher wages mean increased productivity.

LESS than 65 cents an hour was being earned by 2,380,000 workers last Summer in all manufacturing industries according to a Bureau of Labor Statistics study. The present Fair Labor Standards Act covers 27,710,000 workers in industry, transportation, mining, trade, and services.

The main opposition to the minimum wage bill has come from the low-wage areas, principally the South. Senator Ellender of Louisiana charged that passage of the bill would force many Southern companies out of business. However, to keep the original purpose of the wage floor, the minimum must be raised to compensate for a 33 per cent increase in the cost of living since the act was passed in 1938.

Three amendments were introduced in the Senate committee to lower the 65 per cent minimum wage. One of these, to lower the minimum from 65 cents to 55 cents was introduced by Ohio's Senator Taft. It, like the others, was defeated. Other opposition to the bill was presented by Ira Mosher, president of the National Association of Manufacturers, who declared that the proposed revision in the wage rates would be a "reckless jolt" to private enterprise.

Yet, the American people favor it. President Truman favors the bill. Yet his hands are tied by the rider. In our national government, as in some of our state governments, the chief executive should be permitted to veto the part or parts of a bill to which he objects rather than having to accept or reject the entire bill.

Regular Army Personnel Differs From OCS Grads

Editor, the LANTERN:

Many people have failed to consider one factor which to me is the most important one in the discussion of the officer caste system. In asking many of the veterans on the campus just who they considered the better leaders, those men who have attended West Point or Annapolis, or those who received their commissions through our Officer Candidate Schools, they have without fail stated that it is those men attending our military and naval academies. Upon asking them why, the answer is that these graduates know what it feels like to be the underdog and are more considerate because of this. They are not as impressed with their newly-earned rank as the men who have had to learn to be leaders in 90 days.

These men spend four years learning what it takes to be a good leader, learning what it feels like to have an upper classman haze them during their plebe (first) year, and taking orders when they are not to your liking. All these factors and many more combined teach men the respect for the other fellow.

During the years to come our peacetime officer corps is not going to be composed of the OCS men but those men who have gone through West Point and Annapolis plus those few persons who have come up through the

A-Bomb Tests Arouse Questions Of Bomb's Use

Editor's Note: The following editorial was written by one of the five candidates for the 1946-47 editorship of the Lantern. Today's editorial was written by Helen L. Barrett.

President Truman's recent postponement of the atomic bomb tests has made many people think that the tests would be postponed indefinitely. The question of whether the tests should be abandoned has become even more imminent with the President's Army Day warning of the danger of war.

* Why should tests of the power of the atomic bomb be made unless the United States expects to use atomic bombs? There is no reason for finding out what atomic power can do destructively unless it is that there is the possibility of using it destructively.

Does the United States dare to consider using atomic bombs again? The military leaders certainly do consider using them. General Henry H. Arnold reported to the Secretary of War that the United States "must recognize that real security against atomic weapons in the visible future will rest on our ability to take immediate offensive action with overwhelming force. It must be apparent to a potential aggressor that an attack on the United States would be immediately followed by an immensely devastating air-atomic attack on him."

In describing an atomic war, General Arnold conceives that within 36 hours after its beginning, 40,000 people would be killed and cities of more than 50,000 population would be leveled.

An alternative to offensive armament has not been considered by General Arnold, but he has made one point clear. Either we must arm to the teeth to enable us to fight an all-out atomic war at the drop of a hat or we must do something to prevent the occasion of any need for arming from ever arising. The first alternative can only be rejected as utter madness.

Time and Change...

By Harry R. O'Brien

Isn't it wonderful, what the government is doing for the veterans? Permitting them to buy surplus war materials. Helping them to get started into some kind of business. For example, consider photographers.

Last week the War Assets Administration advertised a sale of surplus photographic goods* at Baltimore, Md. It was the greatest sale of its kind ever held. Some reports put the value of the cameras, lenses, printers, projectors, flash bulbs and so on at $2,000,000. Others said $1,000,000.

First priority went to educational institutions and to federal and state agencies. After that, veterans came next. They could buy all they wanted or needed. Only after that could general public business do any buying.

Word of this sale reached one of our students who had been a Signal Corps photographer. He is now back in the University and has plans for doing photo work as a side line to help out on the finances. He needs a lot of equipment.

First, he made a trip to Cincinnati to get certain documents and information. Next, it was necessary to go to an office in Columbus and get further documents. These two places were helpful and glad to co-operate.

On Monday of last week, after his morning classes, he went to the bank and drew out $650 from his savings. With this in certified checks, he set out in his car for Baltimore.

Next morning he showed up at the place of sale. He found several hundred other photographers, all veterans—men who had taken the stills and the movies during the war. They are now eager to establish themselves as photographers in a postwar world.

It was a great re-union. These chaps had come from all over the United States. Many drove, some came by train, one had come by plane from California and a few had hitch-hiked.

It was a great re-union—seeing their pals of Army days again. Some hadn't seen each other since on Okinawa or some other far corner of the world.

But when they went crowding into the sales room—what a terrible sight met them. Almost everything of the million—or maybe it was two—had been sold already to the government and school agencies.

All of those precious 200 Speed Graphic cameras were gone. All the motion picture cameras gone. No flash bulbs, no films left.

There were a few old, obsolete cameras left over from World War I days. Some odd pieces of equipment that would be useless in themselves. Some odd bits of repair parts.

The first alternative can only be rejected as utter madness.

In the face of the prospects of what will happen if world peace is not achieved, the possibility of achieving it cannot be scoffed at as pure idealism. Achieving world peace is the only practical solution to the problems created by the development of atomic energy.

How it is to be achieved is, admittedly, not a simple matter. But once the people of the United States and her leaders realize that it must be done, a great step forward will have been taken.

There are many, however, who argue that world peace cannot be achieved. They say that "it's only human nature to have wars" and that "we have always had wars and always will." Much of human nature is not war-like. It is peace-loving. Can we not discipline ourselves so that it dominates our baser nature? Then, simply because others before us have not been successful in finding the answer to keeping peace does not mean that we cannot find the answer.

At least, it is no reason for giving up the search for it. There are always those who say that this or that can't be done. We hope that man will not be taken in by this obsolete foreboding. We hope that man will remember that the "impossible" has been done!

Rita Bresnahan Marries H. C. Hoornstra On April 6

Rita Ann Bresnahan became the bride of Hans Conrad Hoornstra on April 6 at the home of her mother, Mrs. William P. Bresnahan, Columbus. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Horton S. Boggis, Cleveland, and the late John J. Hoornstra.

For the wedding, the bride wore a lime and green floral print afternoon dress, with a low neckline edged with flowers. A large halo hat of the same material, and a diamond pendant completed the costume. She wore a corsage of green orchids.

Myra Bresnahan acted as maid of honor for her sister, and the bride's brother-in-law, Lawrence Burns, Jr., of Coshocton, was the best man.

The former Miss Bresnahan attended St. Joseph Academy and is a graduate of St. Mary of the Springs Academy. She was graduated from the College of Arts, and received her master's degree in psychology from Ohio State. She has completed a year here as a research fellow in the department of psychology, sponsored by the George Davis Biven Research Foundation for Mental Hygiene.

The bride is active in the St. Mary's Alumnae Association, Strollers Dramatic Society, Columbus Players Club, Junior Division of the Columbus Symphony Club, Pi Beta Phi sorority, and Phi Delta Gamma, national graduate honorary fraternity.

Mr. Hoornstra was graduated from West Technical High School in Cleveland and received his bachelor of arts and master's degree in psychology from Western Reserve University, where he was a research fellow in the psychology department.

He was formerly the head of the psychometric department of the state welfare department in Cleveland, and also served on the industrial service division of the War Manpower Commission. He is, at present, regional head of the occupational analysis division of the U. S. Employment Service throughout Michigan, Ohio and Kentucky, in the U. S. Department of Labor.

The Beauty Parade . . .

Beautiful Hands Call For Careful Attention

Lovely-to-look-at hands for lovely-to-look-at ladies should be and can be the motto for today's coeds. Nothing cancels the effect of a perfectly made up face more than contrasting imperfectly made up "paws," sporting rough and reddened skin, hangnails and callouses, brittle and broken fingernails, and chipped and frayed polish. Not even a gorilla could get romantic over such. What to do? Listen.

For those rough and reddened hands, massage with your favorite hand cream every night, draw on a pair of cotton gloves, and sleep in 'em! This should do the trick in no time flat. For added care, rub in cream or lotion after every soap and water scrubbing.

Cuticle cream will help those pesky hangnails and unattractive callouses. Massage into the skin and remove any excess dry skin after it is softened with warm water, mild soap, and a brush.

Broken and brittle nails probably need a little oiling. Also, don't forget that an emery board is much easier on your nails than a metal file. Clean under nails with an orange stick and cotton, or a nail brush. Digging under the nails with a file or hard object roughens the under surface and allows dirt to be caught and held more easily. When filing, always stroke from sides of nails. For a more graceful effect for stubby fingers, allow the nails to grow fairly long and file into an oval shape.

Fingernail polish adds allure and glamor to hands, but if you haven't the time to keep the polish absolutely flawless, then skip it entirely. Chipped polish is far worse than no polish.

If you are the type who can't keep still long enough to apply two coats of polish and allow it to dry

Bixler Pares Squad As Practice Continues

By Tom Pastorius

Just a week and a day ago Coach Paul Bixler brought about 200 football candidates on the practice field for the start of the six-weeks' Spring drills. No one could tell from that session just how good the prospects were.

But this week they are beginning to take form. More than a fourth of them have voluntarily turned in their uniforms. Each day Bix gives his charges two or more plays. And each day he learns a little more about his ball team.

Those overweight ex-GIs, Tommy James and Joe Whisler, are losing some of those extra pounds. Red-headed Tommy has run off five pounds to date and "Joltin'" Joe, 12 pounds.

Slight Tom Phillips has his pitching arm working like a charm. Jerry Krall has been working the right halfback spot. Halfback Rodney Swinehart looks good hauling down passes.

Other backs who have figured prominently in the workouts are: Dick Palmer, Bill Doolittle, and Johnny Stungis, at quarter; Russ Wolfe, Clyde Marshall, Alex Verdova (who may be called into the service shortly), and Mike Cannavino, at the halfbacks; Chuck Gandee, at full.

A look at the forward well shows Steve O'Dea, Howard Duncan, and Tony Adamlee, at center; Bob Gaudio, Cal Wible, Bob Jabbusch, and Wib Snyder, at the guards; Warren Amling (All-American guard moved back to his former position), Chuck Fazio, and Dave Templeton, at the tackles, and Jim Crane, Dick Jackson, Herby Gorby, and Bud Kessler, at the ends.

Each team will play one game against the teams in its league. Then league winners will meet in an elimination playoff to determine the University championships. All games will be played on the six diamonds south of the dike.

Murder Inc., '45 champion, is back this year to defend its laurels. The Nu Sigma Nus, who lost out in the finals last year, are also entered.

Sports Shots . .

By Tom Pastorius

Before the bickering begins at the intramural softball games this season, a few special rules adopted by the department should be noted.

One base advancement is permitted up to third base on an overthrow (a ball that goes into foul territory at first, third, or home in making a play* on a runner). In this rule the base runner advances at his own risk.

A runner cannot score on a passed ball (a pitched ball that gets past the catcher).

Spikes are prohibited, because of danger of injuries and because those without spikes would be at a disadvantage in wet weather.

These rules differ from the official ones, but were adopted because, as Leo G. Staley, director of intramural athletics, said, "The players like it better. It tends to keep the games from being track meets."

Sidelights—Here are some points to be remembered in trying to hit softball pitching, from Leo Fischer's "How to Play Winning Softball": Keep your eye on the ball; don't try to outguess the pitcher; don't go after bad balls; develop confidence and good form at the plate; don't lunge at the ball; and be loose at the plate.

Guidance Association To Demonstrate Skill Tests

Would you like to be an engineer, a salesman, a high-powered newspaperman, or perhaps a dignified judge?

One of the ways modern educators can tell the vocations for which some persons are best fitted is through many different kinds of standardized tests.

Some of these tests and the ways they are used to steer young people—and often older ones, too—into the right kinds of jobs and careers will be demonstrated by the Occupational Opportunities Service at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, in Derby Hall at the Spring meeting of the Central Ohio Guidance Association. The Occupational Opportunities Service, which recently published a 185-page digest of occupational opportunities for persons with varied educational qualifications, administers hundreds of tests a week and is currently working its staff in shifts to serve veterans and others needing such help, Dr. Harold A. Edgerton, director, reported. Several hundred are expected for the session.

1900 Oration Expresses Prevailing Views On Russia

It appeared in the LANTERN 46 years ago, but it might well have been today's editorial.

There is impressive similarity between the views of Clayton A. McCleary, senior class orator in 1900, and prevailing ideas about Russia today.

The text of the speech was printed in the June 15 issue of the LANTERN and said in part, "Russian rulers have been so imbued with the ideas of conquest and annexation that national advancement by these means has come to be the hope and inspiration of the great Slavic race."

"Apparently, the only obstacle in its path to universal dominion is the Anglo-Saxon. As these two races expand and come into contact with each other—races whose ideals and aspirations are so antagonistic—conflict of some kind must follow."

"This is not a plea for an alliance between England and the United States, or at least such an alliance as would compel us to fight England's battles, just or unjust. But where the destiny of half the human race is concerned it is certainly our duty to aid that nation which will give them the best government."

"The goal of history lies in the fulfillment of the highest political ideal. Anglo-Saxonism, as we have shown, represents that ideal."

Code Class To Be Held

Radio code classes will be held beginning at 7 p. m., Wednesday. Students interested may come to room 101, Communications Laboratory.

Late Registrants Cause Headaches At Pomerene Hall

The short walk to Pomerene Hall for women students seems to be a big headache for the dean of women's office. The headache comes at the beginning of every quarter when many women fail to register on time.

Mrs. Elsie D. Kimberly, of the dean of women's office, reported that only about 4,000 women have registered so far this quarter and commented that most women do not seem to understand the purpose of the registration. Some of the information on the registration card goes on the student's permanent record card. Other information is on file in the dean of women's office. When a student has been graduated, the record is kept and is often referred to by prospective employers.

Mrs. Kimberly pointed out that students may register even if they do not have their final grades.

stood around awhile. Visited with his old friends. Then sadder and wiser, he climbed into his car and drove the 400 miles back to Columbus. So too the others went away. It had been a great re-union.

Wednesday morning after his eight o'clock class, he went to the bank and put his $650 back into the savings account. He had not spent a cent of it.

Isn't it wonderful, what the government is doing to help veterans get established into some work or business once again?

Janey's keeping the wires humming these days what with that marine from Texas and the sailor from Kansas. Long distance conversation is getting to be a habit with her. And she's not alone.

Long distance calls in Ohio have doubled and are still zooming. That's why there may be delays on your calls. But we're putting in new circuits at twice our pre-war rate to catch up with you and with our high pre-war service standards.
