Soviets, Chinese Still Split

MOSCOW (AP) — High sources said yesterday the Soviet Union has no intention of giving an inch in its bitter quarrel with Communist China.

They said the Kremlin is pressing ahead with plans for a world Communist Congress which, westerners believe, they hope will isolate the Chinese.

Soviet leaders have been greatly angered by Chinese attacks on their internal policies, and these attacks have lessened the possibility of any more direct talks between the Chinese and Russians.

The sources said the world conference will be held in an attempt to bring unity to communism but added very firmly that the Soviet Union is not going to change its stands on any point.

These range from abstruse ideological interpretations of Marx to old-fashioned border disputes between the Soviet Union and China.

Showdown Is Expected

The conference is expected to bring a showdown on which Communists support Moscow and which follow Peking's more militant brand of revolutionary communism. Some Communists, such as Romanian ones, have already tried to stake out an independent third position.

The sources high in the Soviet Communist party leadership said the new Kremlin leaders had been angered by a recent Chinese attack on former Premier Khrushchev and his policies.

The Chinese attack was made in Peking's theoretical journal Red Flag on Nov. 21. It was a sweeping assault on Kremlin policies.

Space Food Test Is No Gourmet Delight

Two Ohio State University students, John Richey and Robert Trapp, were two of the four college men who recently completed the longest experiment to date dining solely on space foods.

Their reaction: It's no gourmet's delight. But the men reported that an astronaut can eat reasonably well while confined to his spacecraft.

As In Space Craft

For 42 days they lived on food and conditions comparable to that of an astronaut in his craft.

The experiment took place at the Aerospace Medical Research Laboratories at the Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton. The men spent the first four weeks confined to a unique cylindrical space-like capsule, the last two weeks in isolation in a hospital ward-type room.

Their daily meals, which were carefully limited to 2,500 calories, included dehydrated foods. The tests were devised to determine the caloric, protein, and water requirements for a man under controlled environmental conditions.

Chosen by Tests

Minimal personal hygiene measures were also evaluated. The men were not allowed to shave, bathe, change clothing or comb their hair during the entire test.

Londoners Applaud For Churchill's 90th

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill smilingly posed for photographers in a window of his London home on the eve of his 90th birthday yesterday, as a crowd of wellwishers cheered and sang birthday greetings.

The wartime prime minister acknowledged the greetings of the crowd, which numbered several hundred, with a wave of his arms.

Lady Churchill and a nurse assisted the frail veteran statesman to the window of his Hyde Park Gate home. He stood there for about three minutes in spite of a freezing drizzle as the crowd sang "Happy Birthday."

He smiled as he exchanged waves with those outside. Then the curtains drifted back into place and everyone thought he had gone. But he returned for a curtain call and leaned out the window and got more rounds of applause.

Sir Winston and his wife stood and smiled while the crowd swung into "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and then gave three loud hurrahs to cap the birthday greetings.

Those in the crowd outside noticed his traditional cigar was missing.

The cheers of a crowd outside his London home bring a smile to the face of Sir Winston Churchill on a unique landmark in his history-making life—his 90th birthday.

Saigon Funeral Scene Erupts in Violent Riots

SAIGON, Vietnam (AP) — Vietnamese paratroopers swinging rifle butts waded into a Buddhist funeral procession yesterday after it turned into a sit-down demonstration with anti-U.S. overtones against the government of Premier Van Tran Huong.

The funeral was for 15-year-old Le Van Ngoc, whom the Buddhists claimed was shot to death by government forces during an anti-government demonstration last week. After clashing with about 2,000 demonstrators, the paratroopers seized the coffin, shoved the boy's family into a hearse, and took them to the cemetery.

The new show of force by Huong's forces is expected to trigger even more violence in Saigon's streets and widen the breach between Huong's civilian regime and the powerful Buddhist organization.

No Serious Casualties

Many of the demonstrators ran off with bloody heads, but there were no reports of any serious casualties.

The paratroops arrested 87 demonstrators, including four women. The males were expected to be drafted into the army.

The army said afterward it suspected the Viet Cong had incited the mourners to turn the funeral into another demonstration against Huong. Police said one of the arrested men had Viet Cong connections.

Paratroopers Barreled In

The paratroopers barreled in on the demonstrators as they sat in the middle of the street refusing to move. The demonstrators were protesting the seizure of a truck in the procession which the army said carried knives, clubs and grenades. The occupants were arrested.

Despite martial law regulations imposed Wednesday, the government told the Buddhists it would permit a funeral procession for Le Van Ngoc, but stipulated that the number of participants be limited to 200 and that they should follow along in vehicles on a route avoiding the center of Saigon.

The procession, however, started out with 2,000 marchers and a horse-drawn hearse carrying the body.

Congo Rescue Mission Ends; 500 Trapped

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP) — Belgian paratroopers pulled out of the Congo yesterday after rescuing 1,700 white hostages from Congolese rebels. But fears were expressed here for the safety of 500 or more foreigners still in rebel territory.

Diplomatic sources in Leopoldville said one more air drop of the Belgians had been planned at Bunia where several hundred foreigners are believed trapped. There was no explanation why the drop was not carried out.

The Belgian government, however, said at the outset of the operation that it did not expect the rescue to take but three days or so.

Reject Charges

In a note to the Soviet Union yesterday — rejecting a Soviet charge of aggression — Belgian Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak said that since paratroopers pulled out, this was evidence that Belgium had no desire to reconquer its former Congo territory, as the Russians had charged.

Reports from refugees coming out of rebel territory tell of maddened rebels, who fled the Belgians at Stanleyville and Paulis last week, being intent upon murdering all whites they could get their hands on.

1,000 Still There

At least 500 and possibly as many as 1,000 whites are still in rebel areas. They range from groups of several hundred in Bunia to single missionaries or plantation managers far from any important communities.

The death toll of white hostages now stands at 85. In Brussels, the Belgian defense ministry said the paratroopers were flown to Ascension Island in the South Atlantic for their return to Brussels tomorrow for a greeting from King Baudouin and a welcome-home parade through the capital.

Tales of Terror

The paratroopers took off from Kamina Air Base, from which they launched their rescue operation last Tuesday, in U.S. Air Force planes.

The refugees they saved

— in many cases by minutes — continued to flow out of the former rebel territory and back to their homelands bearing more nightmarish tales of atrocity, torture and death.

About 600 Belgian soldiers took part in the rescue drops on the rebel capital of Stanleyville and then Paulis, 225 miles northeast of Stanleyville.

In pulling out of Paulis, the paratroopers in effect turned the town back to the rebels. Reports circulating here said the paratroopers originally were ordered to search a 40-mile radius of the town for hostages but later were restricted to 20 miles to speed the operation and departure. About 300 refugees left the vicinity of Paulis but another 60 to 100 remain in the area.

Leaders Missing

The whereabouts of the rebel leader, Christophe Gbenye, and his lieutenants were unknown. The Middle East News Agency reported in Cairo Saturday that they had entered Equatorial Sudan, north of the Congo.

In the Sudanese capital, Khartoum, official sources denied the rebel leaders had entered that country. Diplomatic sources in Leopoldville expressed belief they may turn up in a neighboring country to set up a government in exile.

The rebel forces are reported to have moved back into such areas as Paulis and other areas from which they were driven by the Belgians. Rebels continue to harass Congolese Army contingents guarding the Stanleyville airport.

Rally, Quiet Burial Follow Congo Terror

By The Associated Press

The weekend aftermath of the Congo terror included a noisy anti-U.S. rally in Peking and a quiet burial service in the Congo.

At Communist China's demonstration expressing support for the Congolese rebels, demonstrators heard one speaker call American leaders "jackals" and "butchers."

The New China News Agency said the rally was "one of the biggest anti-imperialist demonstrations ever held in the Chinese capital."

Top Leaders Attend

The broadcast said more than 700,000 people poured into the streets just after dawn.

Party chairman Mao Tse-tung, President Liu Shao-chi and Premier Chou En-lai were among the leaders who attended the rally. Peng Chen, mayor of Peking, and Kua Mo-jo, chairman of the Communist Chinese Peace Committee, addressed the demonstrators.

"Be it Eisenhower, Kennedy or Johnson; they are all jackals from the same den, butchers slaughtering the people of various countries and archcriminals undermining world peace," Kuo said.

In Brussels, the Belgian government rejected as a "propaganda maneuver" Soviet protests over the American-Belgian rescue mission in the Congo.

"It is clear that the Soviet government version of the intervention by Belgian paratroopers is a parody of reality," said Foreign Minister Paul-Henri Spaak.

Carlson Buried

Dr. Paul Carlson, American medical missionary killed by the rebels, was buried in a simple wood coffin, beside the church he served in Karawa, friends reported. Carlson's widow and two children attended the ceremonies.

Whoopless Crane Alights In Front of Caldwell Lab

All cranes on their way south to warmer climates didn't make it this year. One landed on Neil Avenue in front of Caldwell Laboratory.

This crane is unusually high—about six stories; unusually wide—the width of Neil Avenue; and unusually heavy—about five tons.

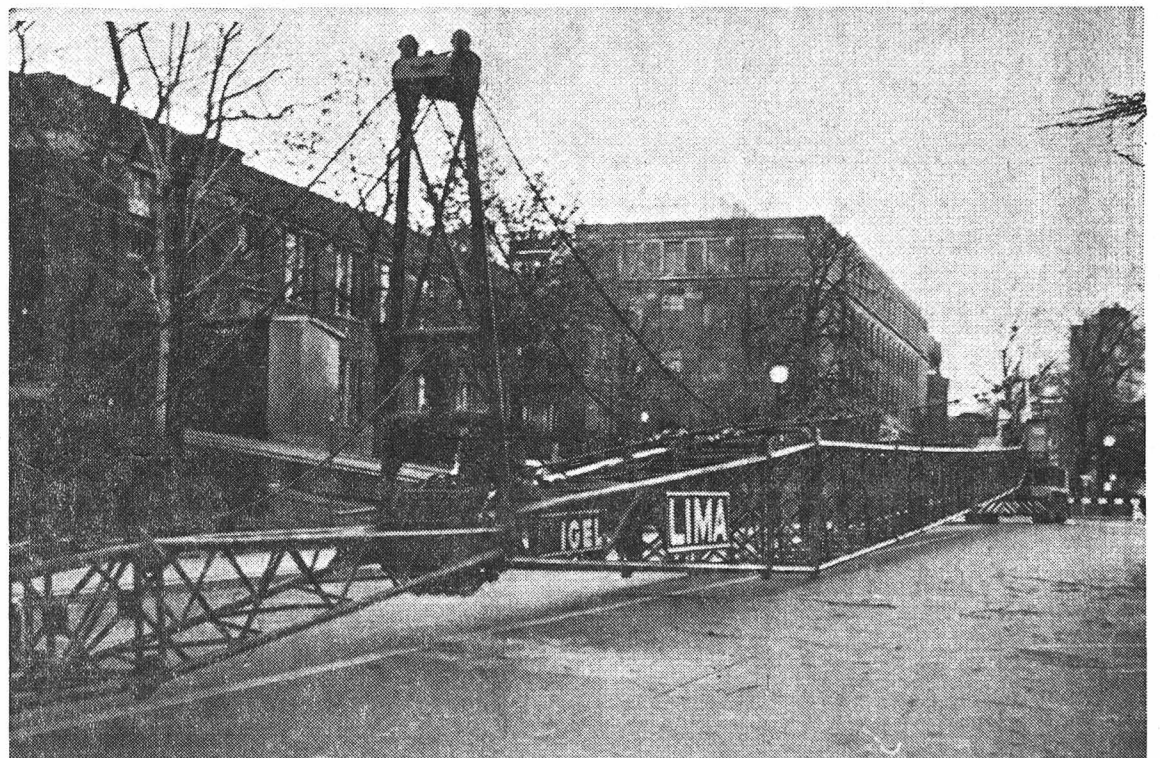

The crane is being used to lift equipment over the top of Caldwell Laboratory into the interior court, according to Richard E. Wharton, administrative assistant in the College of Engineering.

Construction started several weeks ago and is expected to be completed in about three months. When construction is completed, Caldwell Laboratory will have four floors.

The crane arrived on campus Friday and is expected to leave tomorrow. Traffic is being re-routed through the Service Building Road.

Several police officers will be at the barricade today to direct traffic, according to the campus police.

University Gets Grant for New Medical Laboratory

Ohio State has been awarded a government grant of $267,525 for the construction of a new medical laboratory.

The two-story building will be located next to Wiseman Hall and will house various research facilities of the Preventive Medicine Department. Construction is expected to begin next fall.

Dr. Frederick H. Shillito, acting departmental chairman, said the University received the grant from the U.S. Public Health Service in recognition of past research in the problems of environmental health.

"Excluding several governmental agencies, the University has the only complete set of facilities in the United States for the study of environmental health problems such as air pollution," he said. "By housing many scientific fields in one building, efficiency in the department should increase."

Other areas of research to be carried out in the new lab will be aerospace medicine, toxicology, epidemiology and industrial hygiene.

The University will match funds with the grant. Dr. William F. Ashe, who is on leave of absence, initiated the USPHS grant.

The Board of Trustees is expected to give formal approval to the grant at its Dec. 10 meeting.

2 USC Upsets Irish, 20-17, Oregon State Gets Bid

University of Southern California quarterback Craig Fertig passed for two touchdowns in the final two minutes and 10 seconds, to give the Trojans a 27-17 win over top-ranked Notre Dame Saturday.

Despite their win, the Trojans had their Rose Bowl hopes shattered as the Pacific Athletic Conference named the Beavers of Oregon State to represent the conference against Michigan on New Year's Day.

It took nearly two hours to complete the voting from the faculty representatives of the PAC member schools.

It had been felt that if the Trojans could stage the upset they would be given the nod over Oregon State, even though the Beavers have a better over-all record, with 8-2 compared to USC's 7-3.

Browns Win, Cards Keep Pace; Title Showdown Next Week

Compiled From Wire Reports

The two teams fighting for the National Football League's Eastern Division crown both won yesterday—and face each other next week. Cleveland beat Philadelphia, while St. Louis narrowly beat Pittsburgh.

Browns 38, Eagles 24

Three touchdowns produced by the Browns' defense gave them a 38-24 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles. The Browns scored touchdowns on a fumbled opening kickoff by Tim Brown and in the second quarter on a blocked punt and an intercepted pass. They also blunted the Philadelphia attack with two more pass interceptions in the second half. Cleveland's Frank Ryan also accounted for two scores with touchdown passes of 24 and 13 yards to John Brewer.

The win puts the Browns within a victory of clinching the NFL Eastern Division title. The Cleveland game with St. Louis next week may decide whether the Browns or the Cards are to have the title.

Cardinals 21, Steelers 20

While Cleveland was winning its game, the St. Louis Cardinals kept in contention with a 21-20 victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers. With less than four minutes left, Cardinal Pat Fischer recovered a fumble by John Henry Johnson and ran 47 yards for a touchdown, tying the game 20-20. A conversion kick by Jim Bakken turned the game into a win for the Cards.

The Washington Redskins' Sonny Jurgensen showed why he is the NFL's leading touchdown passer as he tossed four TD passes to spark Washington to a 36-21 victory over the New York Giants. Jurgensen tossed to Bobby Mitchell for 17 and 32 yards, to Preston Carpenter for 14 and to Rookie Charlie Taylor for 24 yards. What would have been a fifth Jurgensen TD pass was nullified by a penalty. The victory gives the Redskins a sure hold on third place of the league's eastern division.

Vikings 34, Rams 13

A pair of first-half touchdown passes by quarterback Fran Tarkenton sparked the Minnesota Vikings to a 34-13 victory over the Los Angeles Rams. The win keeps the Vikings in the running for second place in the National Football League's Western Division.

Tarkenton got the Vikings on the scoreboard first when he connected with Paul Flatley on a 15-yard scoring toss in the first period in frigid six-degree weather. Tarkenton also hit Bill Brown with a 13-yard scoring toss in the second quarter.

The Vikings' other scores came on a 32-yard return after a pass interception by rookie George Rose, a 30-yard pass from halfback Tommy Mason to Tom Hall, and a pair of field goals by Fred Cox.

Colts 14, 49-er's 3

The Western Division champion Baltimore Colts had more trouble than expected, but still managed to beat the San Francisco Forty-Niners, 14-3, for their 11th straight win of the sea-

Bills Sign Davidson

Senior tackle and tri-captain Jim Davidson has signed a contract to play for the Buffalo Bills of the American Football League.

The former Buckeye was the Bill's first draft choice in the AFL draft, Saturday. A short time after, a Bills' spokesman announced that Davidson had inked a contract.

Browns Choose Orazen, Scott In NFL Draft

Halfback Bo Scott and tackle Ed Orazen were among 22 players drafted by the Cleveland Browns in the NFL player draft in New York City.

With 22 rounds complete the NFL had signed many of the top names in college football.

The New York Giants made Auburn's Tucker Frederickson the No. 1 pick and an hour later announced that he had signed a contract.

The Detroit Lions chose Indiana fullback Tom Nowatzke and minutes later showed a contract with Nowatzke's signature.

The Baltimore Colts have signed Duke fullback Mike Curtiss, and the Los Angeles Rams, Clarence Williams, Washington State halfback.

The Chicago Bears had three picks in the first round, resulting from deals with Pittsburgh and Washington. The Steelers chose Illinois center-linebacker Dick Butkus, Gale Savers, Kansas halfback, and Steve DeLong, tackle from Tennessee.

Besides Butkus and Nowatzke, other Big Ten players drafted were: George Donnelly, Illinois, by San Francisco; Archie Sutton, Illinois, by Minnesota; Joe Cerne, Northwestern, by San Francisco; Jim Garcia, Purdue, by Cleveland; Jerry Rush, Michigan State, by Detroit; Tom Myers, Northwestern, by Detroit; Frank Marchlewski, Minnesota, by Los Angeles; John Henderson, Michigan, by Philadelphia; Ed Flannigan, Purdue, by Detroit; Arnie Simkus, Michigan, by Cleveland; Roger Jacobazzi, Wisconsin, by Green Bay; Dick Gordon, Michigan State, by Chicago; Al Paraino, Wisconsin, by Philadelphia; and Don Croftcheck, Indiana, by Washington.

Lenny Moore scored Baltimore's first touchdown in the second quarter on a two-yard run. The TD erased a 3-0 lead held by San Francisco thanks to a 19-yard field goal by Tommy Davis in the opening period.

The score remained 7-3 until the closing minutes of the game when Baltimore Quarterback John Unitas teamed up with end Raymond Berry for a 35-yard touchdown pass.

An alert defense and three touchdown passes by quarterback Bart Starr powered the Green Bay Packers to a 45-21 romp over the Dallas Cowboys.

Players in 'Queen and Rebels'

University Players are putting the final touches on their second play of the Autumn Quarter, "The Queen and the Rebels."

The play is by Ugo Betti, a man considered by some to be the most important Italian playwright since Pirandello.

"Queen" will be presented by the University Players at University Hall beginning Tomorrow at 8 p.m. and continuing through Saturday. A matinee performance is scheduled Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

"The Queen and the Rebels" is a political and psychological melodrama, set in post-war Italy. It has been performed with success in Europe and the United States.

When the play was performed in London in 1955, The Spectator magazine reported, "This is one of the most exciting plays to have been performed in London (or anywhere, for that matter) in recent years . . . (Betti's) humanity and psychological insight combine with his vigorous sense of justice to make his recapitulation of the . . . theme of ends and means memorable.

"The plot is fundamentally simple. A queen who has escaped the fate of her family at the hands of revolutionaries is being sought by them . . . The queen is terrified . . . and commits suicide after an attempt by a prostitute to help her escape has failed. The prostitute is taken for the queen and is eventually executed . . ."

The Christian Science Monitor said that the play "sends one out of the theatre with one's opinion of the courage and steadfastness of men and women increased."

Tickets for the University Theatre production are currently being sold by mail and through the box office at Derby Hall. Phone reservations may be made between noon and 5 p.m. on weekdays by phoning CY 3-2295.

Growing Pains

Population growth, like the weather, is a topic that is discussed by a lot of people, but about which little is done. Many persons, it is true, do practice birth control, but nations and governments are loath to intervene in this "private" area.

As Thomas Malthus pointed out, population increases geometrically. At present it is doubling every 37 years. It doesn't take a Thomas Malthus to see that a critical point will eventually be reached.

British physicist John H. Fremlin (in a report in Time magazine) says that man will be able to provide enough food by such extreme measures as synthesizing it from energy and waste products, and homogenizing human cadavers.

However, he says, an ultimate limit (to be reached in less than a thousand years) will result from the great quantity of heat given off by the mass of humanity and machinery. And since motion creates heat, even man's movements may be rationed.

All right, we've talked about the problem—now what can be done about it? The United States government can assist other nations (and, indeed, its own) in making birth control methods and materials available to the people who are ignorant of the solution and economically unable to seek professional help. This is no doubt an oversimplification; there are many sociological, political and ethical aspects.

The barrier to birth control put up by religion is perhaps the most formidable. Religions often condone war as necessary for survival. Might not the same religions accept birth control as necessary for survival of life as we know it? Eating a homogenized human cadaver is just as "unnatural" as artificial birth control.

Praises Librarian for Her Kindness

Anyone with the efficacy to lessen the frustration of the University's bureaucracy is a blessing to the students. I would like to thank Miss Savage, who works in the History Undergraduate Room of the Main Library, for this pleasing relief.

She causes a person to feel like a human being, showing an interest in every individual. Being gracious in the face of some bad-tempered students is no small feat. Being cheerful with us, giving us valuable advice, and helping find books are some of the extras she gives. She also informs us of rules and regulations with one purpose in mind, that of keeping us from paying large fines, and losing our privileges.

I believe that those of us most critical of University service employees, myself included, should take time out to give a special "thank you" to those who work hard to make our life here more enjoyable.

Hits Editorial

"Some can't talk about reason without failing to use it." How appropriate to state this in an editorial which serves as an illustration of it!

(1) Sydney Hook claims that "a free market in which human beings are chattels . . . is perfectly compatible with the laws of logic, physics and biology." Is it? If a human being is a chattel, then "logically" he has no rights and his life is worthless to himself, its only "value" lying in the fact that it belongs to someone else. Likewise, if he has no property rights (for example, the right to keep the food he grows) then it is "biologically" impossible for him to survive!

(2) Hook accuses Ayn Rand of "confusing the satisfaction one gets in gratifying any desire, with the object or end of the desire which gives an act its moral quality." This is exactly what she does not do. To say to a man, "Go ahead and satisfy any desire you might have and don't think of the consequences," is to espouse ethical hedonism.

Ayn Rand tells him to pursue his rational self interest, which means to do those things which, when considered in their proper context and according to their consequences, will in fact help him to maintain his survival as a thinking being.

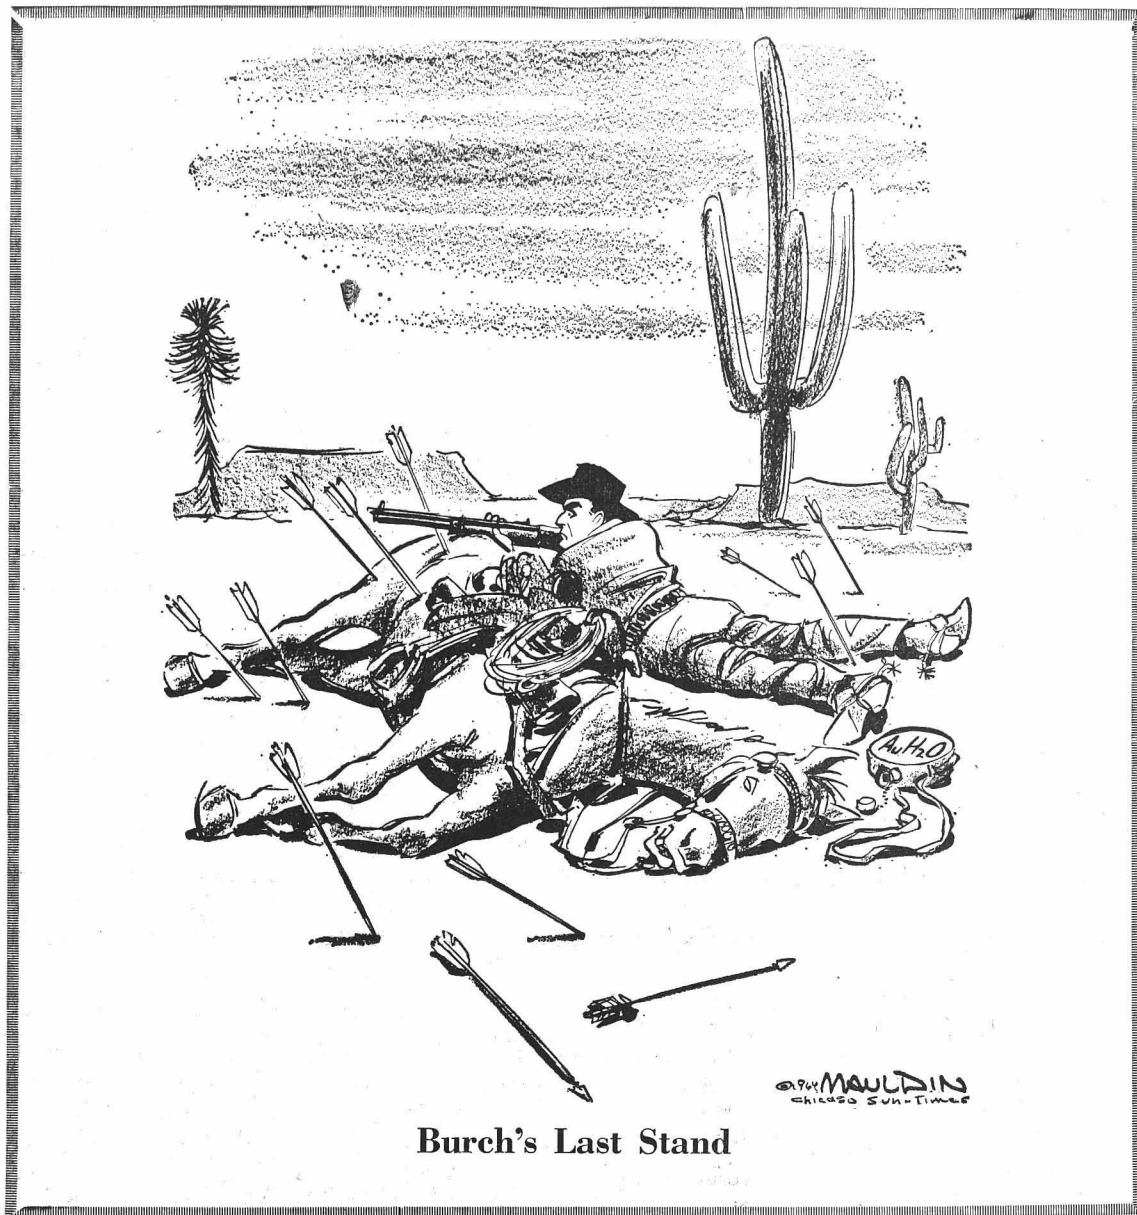

(3) Regarding the "evils" of child labor—the fact which is always ignored when someone uses this archaic argument is that during the beginnings of the industrial revolution (1750-1820) the population increased by 100 per cent. That increase was made possible solely by the revolution. If there had been no "evil" factories to give these children work, there would have been no children to "take advantage of"—they would have long since died of starvation.

Dirty War

I was appalled, as were many others, to read recently that 5,000 persons had been killed in floods in South Vietnam. Every one of these deaths, yes even the floods themselves could have been so easily prevented.

Now, since we began our dirty war in Vietnam, we have poured well over $3 billion into the fruitless effort. In 1962 we had 4,000

Burch's Last Stand

"advisers" in South Vietnam. Who knows how many we have now since the American people are being purposefully deceived "for their own good" by "their" government. If they were aware of the true picture of this fiasco, they wouldn't stand for it.

Let's consider for a minute what constructive good, not destructive evil, could have been done with a fraction of those $3 billion and many thousands of "advisers" in Vietnam for the freedom of the native people or for our own selfish reasons.

Given the facts, you know why. Do you realize that we could have bought every acre of land there and equitably distributed it for that $3 billion? That's one of the reasons (others being a desire for self-determination and a love of long overdue freedom) that the Viet Cong are fighting. By the way, the Viet Cong, as a whole are not Communist tools of Red China, as we have been told, but consider themselves, and are, national patriots.

They've been dominated for 30 years and successively by the Japanese, the French, and now the Americans. They're sick of it, and not about to be tools of any foreign power.

Last year 45,000 well armed American-trained and led South Vietnamese troops defected with equipment to the North. That brought the three year total to 89,000 such defectors. Given these facts, not the "facts" our government gives, how can we say our efforts in Viet Nam are not completely in the wrong direction?

'None Dare'

In their letter of November 24, Misses Bolz and Sandaker criticize the undefined "left" for a smear campaign against "None Dare Call It Treason." They assert that the smear campaign conducted by the "left" is based on the fear of an aroused public and they demand constructive criticism and personal evaluation of "None Dare Call It Treason" on fear. When they evoke the vision of a Communist dominated America betrayed by the "left" and apathetic citizens, they are appealing to fear, not reason. They attack the "left" for basing its criticisms on fear, but attempt to refute the "left" with a counter argument also based on fear.

They do not offer the reader any evidence to offset the criticisms of the book. Rather, they quote Lenin, choosing to ignore Stalin's "socialism in one country" and Khrushchev's report to the Twentieth Congress of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union in which he stated: "... war is not a fatalistic inevitability." They do not defend "None Dare Call It Treason" through a reasonable discussion of the issues posed by the book, but simply counter the critics of the book with an emotional appeal.

2 Questions

After reading Mr. Ken Fouty's letter which appeared in the Nov. 17 Lantern, two questions occurred to me.

1. Is it naive to assume maturity in a young adult?
2. As witness to this incident, what are Fouty's responsibilities?

Evidently some answer to the first, yes, the second, none.

Peanuts

"Peanuts" and the editorial page are in close competition for most nonsensical of the Lantern's features. Of current interest are the reactions of those who swallowed the bait and defended Ayn Rand (apparently she didn't need any criticism), and those who haven't noticed the election is over, and still contend one candidate is right and the other wrong.

Both groups tend to assume that choosing between ideals is as straightforward as a choice as between black and white. Obviously, such is not the case.

I hope existentialism is another fad among inexperienced idealists, as the beat generation was in the past. If it is not, I must denounce and renounce my contemporaries for being so taken in by the first fancy philosophy which struck them.

Notice the way individuals interpret and misinterpret ideas, particularly letter writers, such as myself, and gambit-using journalists.

Alternatives

I am writing this letter in reply to a certain group on campus which calls itself the Committee for the Study of Alternatives and a recent ad in the Lantern that they ran on the literature of the "radical" right. I will admit that there are some bigoted groups and organizations in this country, but the John Birch Society is certainly not one of them. There is certainly nothing extremist or bigoted about the society.

In support of this statement I wish to quote from a report of the Senate Fact-finding Subcommittee on Un-American Activities of the California Legislature. This committee investigated the John Birch Society for one year. Their conclusions were as follows, "We find the John Birch Society to be . . . an anti-Communist, fundamentalist organization . . . We have not found the society to be either a secret or a fascist organization, nor have we found the majority of its members to be mentally unstable, crackpots or hysterical about the threat of communist subversion. We found no evidence of anti-Semitism by the society . . ."

"Our investigation and study was requested by the society, which had been publicly charged with being a secret, fascist, subversive, un-American, anti-Semitic organization. We have not found any of these accusations to be supported by the evidence."

Let me also point out that this committee was made up of members of the Democratic Party in a state where the governor and the attorney general are bitterly opposed to the society.

Finally, in answer to the smear on the book "None Dare Call It Treason," a man named John H. Mitchell investigated the 43 "errors" found by the NCCR. His report, published as a letter to the editor in the Christian Science Monitor of October 1, 1964, showed that a majority of the references that were supposed to be wrong were found exactly where Mr. Stormer indicated they would be. And I also doubt that anyone would disagree with the fact that no book could ever be completely free of error. Remember that there were 818 references in this book. The NCCR "checked" 43, and of these 43 a majority were proved to be not errors but actually correct by Mr. Mitchell.

So I think this Committee for the Study of Alternatives should do a little checking and research before making wild unsupported charges. I suggest they stick to teaching instead of smearing.

Vituperative

I read Mr. Neely's impassioned letter on the "lunatic right" with increasing astonishment. It's the most vituperative letter in my recollection from this column, and that takes some doing. I find it somewhat amazing that any intelligent person, even far below Mr. Neely's graduate level, could seriously make the generalization that "common folk who supported Goldwater are . . . weak, ineffectual, craven nobodies," "draft-dodgers," and "too imbecilic and/or cowardly to accept the grim realities of life." Equally amazing is his converse generalization that liberals are "composed of the nation's humanitarians, intellectuals, strong working men, and the educated." Again he mentions "refusal to accept reality." Look who's talking about reality!

By some reasoning Mr. Neely also disparages Goldwater supporters because they "labored hard and long," and "went to church." How terribly 19th century-ish! People who don't go to church must have supported Johnson?

Mr. Neely says that the "lunatic right" (not defined, of course) "continues to spew its venom." This word spew characterizes his letter. His "lunatics" are supposedly spreading hate. Not the slightest evidence is offered. I described his letter as "impassioned"; it was at least that. But which passion is exercised in calling other men lunatics, imbeciles, weak, craven, etc.?

Perhaps an old 19th century saw applies here: "When you point a finger at someone else, you point three fingers at yourself."

ASGUSA - New Organization

A controversial decision on Ohio State membership in national student government organizations is getting to be a Fall Quarter tradition.

Two years ago, there was a campus-wide referendum on whether to drop out of National Students Association (NSA). The student body voted almost 2 to 1 in favor of leaving NSA, apparently convinced by the arguments that NSA was too politically oriented, did not really represent the views of American college students, and was of little value to Ohio State students and Student Senate.

The question came up again last October, but the student body decided by more than 2 to 1 to stay out of NSA. Included this time was the provision that if the students said nay, the matter would not be brought up again for two years.

New Organization

But Student Senate could not have foreseen the formation last Spring of a new national organization, Associated Student Governments of the United States of America (ASGUSA).

Although Ohio State is not a member of ASGUSA, student body vice president Samuel B. McGavran has been keeping close tabs on developments within the new organization.

He and Thomas Workman, Student Senate's student affairs commissioner, attended one of ASGUSA's first meetings last Spring at Vanderbilt University. They concluded, according to a Student Senate fact sheet, that the leaders of the new organization "did not appear to be politically motivated and that they were sincere in their desire to form a national organization for the purpose of facilitating inter-student government communication."

Another Convention

Workman and Dana Gire, public affairs commissioner for Student Senate, attended another convention in St. Louis, where they were concerned about the possibility of sectionalism in ASGUSA. The fact sheet says, "... the majority of the schools appeared to be from the South and Southwest."

McGavran said he sees a trend toward conservatism in ASGUSA's large number of southern schools and hesitation to establish a human relations committee.

The ASGUSA constitution has been ratified by 22 student governments, three of them—Purdue, Indiana, and Michigan State—in the Big Ten.

McGavran said he regrets that schools' decisions on membership in ASGUSA, at least within the Big Ten, always seem to be in terms of pro-NSA or anti-NSA.

ASGUSA's Stand

ASGUSA's stand on political activity appears to be a point of great interest. The group's interim constitution says, "The organization has no political intent or purpose. Partisan political affairs are not within the scope of ASGUSA concern and no activities of the organization, its officers, or its committees shall be devoted to participation in such affairs on behalf of ASGUSA."

Last Thursday night Student Senate appropriated $150 to send McGavran as an observer to an ASGUSA convention at Oklahoma University this weekend.

McGavran said there are two points Student Senate must consider: What were OSU students voting against when they decided to leave NSA, against NSA or all student organizations? Can ASGUSA remain apolitical?

Basic Difference

McGavran emphasized that a basic difference between NSA and ASGUSA is that NSA is an organization of students and ASGUSA is an organization of student governments. Therefore, he said, Student Senate would make the decision to join, not the student body, so that there would be no need for a referendum.

"However," McGavran continued, "with the delicacy of membership in student organizations on this campus, we can't afford to be hasty, and we can afford to make them (ASGUSA) prove to us what their organization is. The best policy is to wait and see."

U.S. Support Scares Chinese

By JOHN CANTWELL

HONG KONG (AP)—Peking appears to fear the United States in supporting the antiguerilla war in South Vietnam will attack Communist North Vietnam and fighting will spread to Red China.

And so Peking is using the possible U.S. threat to build up its home-front militia forces.

Peking reintroduced a drive to build up its militia several weeks ago. The drive had been introduced twice before when Communist China feared attack from Formosa.

Peking originally claimed a target of 200 million men and women for its mass militia forces. This claim, originally made in 1958, has been sharply reduced since and there is no present estimate of Peking's militia strength.

Latest Build-Up

The latest build-up was announced at a meeting in Peking last week. Party Leader Mao Tze-Tung, President Liu Shao-Chi, Premier Chou En-Lai and other top Chinese Communist officials attended the meeting.

Mao told the meeting that the United States and other "Imperialists" were pushing Communist China around. "They are doing this in such a way that we must deal with them seriously," Mao said. "We require in addition to mighty regular armed forces, a tremendous number of militia divisions."

"Then, when the Imperialists invade China, they will find difficulty in moving a single step."

Peking Concerned

Western observers here believe Mao's reference to "Imperialists" invading Communist China indicates Peking's concern that an attack on North Vietnam could spread to Red China.

They believe Peking is convinced that the United States will carry the war from South Vietnam into the North. This uneasiness was apparent even before the U.S. Ambassador to South Vietnam, Maxwell D. Taylor said recently that U.S. air raids on Communist bases and supply lines in North Vietnam and Laos could contribute to victory over the Red guerrillas in South Vietnam.

Peking has said that the United States is scheming to carry the war to the North "so it can get itself out of its impasse in the 'special war' in the South."

It has claimed that the carrying of the war to the North "would add to the tension in Indochina and Southeast Asia, and threatens peace and security in this part of the world."

Main Resolution

Observers here point out that one of the main resolutions taken at the militia meeting in Peking was to strengthen and build up militia forces in coastal and border areas.

The areas mentioned in particular were the border with North Vietnam and the coastal area facing Formosa.

The meeting also recommended that regular armed forces in these areas be strengthened.

FCC Revives Broadcasting Payola Probe

NEW YORK (AP)—A newly revived Federal probe of "Payola" and "Plugola" stirred a sizzling controversy in the broadcasting industry yesterday as to whether the practices are widespread.

Some unnamed sources said payoffs to broadcasters for playing records—called payola—or for mentioning or displaying products—called plugola—are being made on a large scale, despite a law passed by Congress in 1960 as an upshot of quiz show scandals.

Others close to the situation contended that the practice is minor, if there is any at all.

The new probe was disclosed Saturday in Washington by the Federal Communications Commission. It said it had "allegations from many sources" about continued payola and plugola.

The FCC drew a quick blast from Ed Sullivan, whose Sunday night CBS network variety show has been a highly popular program for years.

Sullivan termed the FCC investigation "stupid," and added:

"Some government department wants some publicity. At regular intervals, during a news lull, up come these charges of payola. What the FCC forgets is that the stations are wise to this stuff."

"It's all nonsense. Networks won't take a chance on losing their licenses. The networks watch for these things very carefully—producers watch it, too."

The CBS and ABC networks declined comment on the FCC inquiry. NBC did likewise, adding:

"We have not been asked for any information. We are not involved in any way."

Only Keys Can Open This Road

Residents of Buckeye Village are members of a "key club."

Their keys open gates that close off Fyffe Road, recently opened between Lane Avenue and the village run by the University for married students.

"The purpose of the gate," says Ronald H. Pollock, assistant business manager of the University, "is to eliminate the hazard of heavy traffic to the children of Buckeye Village."

Visitors and non-residents of village can enter by way of Ackerman Road.

Residents are not charged for "key club" privileges.
