Council passes $30,000 in funds for new shelter

By Mark Janselewitz
Lantern city reporter

Columbus City Council voted Monday night to enact an ordinance giving the Community Shelter Board $30,000 to operate an emergency shelter when the current shelters are filled to capacity.

"Every winter we have an emergency," said Councilman Thomas Kaplin, who introduced the legislation. "The shelters are full now."

Every year the homeless population in Columbus grows 25 percent, Kaplin said.

"This is an attempt to address the problem before there is an emergency," he said.

Council also passed an ordinance to create new sewer service rates which will save consumers 75 cents per quarter.

Monday's ordinance replaces a previous ordinance which council vetoed at the recommendation of the sewer division.

"It's not appropriate that all residents should have to pay a slight increase," said Councilman Ben Espy.

Council made numerous amendments to their application for the Department of Housing and Urban Development funds for this year in order to provide funds for more low income housing in Columbus and to make more efficient use of funds, said council spokeswoman Lisa Griffin.

"We don't have enough low-income housing," said Kaplin. "In the inner city there are thousands of substandard units."

However, Councilman M.D. Portman said a lack of economic vitality in a community causes housing problems, and that more funds should be distributed there.

"I would like to see what these balances are to support these cuts," he said.

Espy disagreed with the proposal of the amendment to withhold funds from St. Mark's Church until it secured its lease.

Board of Regents names chancellor

(AP) — Elaine Hairston, vice chancellor for academic and special programs for the past five years, was named Monday as acting chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents.

The appointment, at the board's monthly meeting, is effective Jan. 1 with the previously announced retirement of Chancellor William Coulter.

Hairston will serve until a permanent chancellor is named in a special search that Alva Bonda of Cleveland, regents' chairman, said is taking longer than expected.

In a related development, the state Controlling Board gave the regents authority to enter into a $23,200 contract with a Worthington firm, Organizational Resources Group, to assist in the search for a chancellor.

Hairston, 46, has been on the regents' staff since 1979. As vice chancellor the past five years, she directed development and administration of Ohio's selective excellence program, which is credited by some as having strengthened quality of higher education.

Coulter said Hairston is "one of the brightest and most able administrators on the scene today. Her work is known in higher education circles across the country."

Coulter, chancellor for the past six years, announced his retirement last summer. He was on the staff of the board since it was created more than 25 years ago.

Hairston could apply for the permanent post but the deliberations of a special search committee, headed by Regents Vice Chairwoman Anita Ward of Columbus, are expected to remain confidential until the committee recommends a chancellor, officials said.

The board, in other business, re-elected its own officers: Bonda as chairman, along with Ward and Lloyd Brown of Shaker Heights as secretary. Appointment of Matthew Filipic of Columbus as vice chancellor for administration also was approved, to succeed Duane Rogers, who retires Dec. 31.

Filipic, a one-time deputy budget director for the state, has been on the regents' staff the past four years and associate vice chancellor for budgets for the past year.

Candidate for governor joins drug war

By Aria Ala-U-Dini
Lantern city reporter

Republican gubernatorial candidate Robert Taft joined the caravan of politicians who have plans to battle drugs by introducing his strategy for waging war on Ohio's growing drug problem Monday.

His plan calls for $25 million in annual expenditures that would place a strong emphasis on enforcement, education, prevention and treatment of people who are dependent on drugs, he said.

"Drugs are the single most important threat to the future of our society. As governor, I will face no greater challenge than the drug crisis," he said.

Taft said his first avenue of attack would be to stiffen the drug penalties and speed up the punishment process for offenders.

"Drug dealers who commit murder should be subject to the death penalty. There is no penalty too harsh for them," he said.

He also advocated tougher penalties for possession of drugs and called for making the possession of any amount of marijuana a felony.

"Marijuana is a gateway to drugs like cocaine and crack," Taft said. By allowing the possession of small amounts of pot to remain a misdemeanor, officials are sending the wrong message to the state's youth, he said.

According to Dan Schnur, a spokesman for Taft's campaign, a bulk of the $25 million would be spent on educating the youth about the dangers of drugs.

"Sixteen million dollars of the money will go toward things like requiring every school district to designate substance abuse counselors," Schnur said.

Another part of the $16 million would be spent on expenses such as creating safe houses and organizing volunteer groups to mobilize communities against drugs, Schnur said.

Taft said the main emphasis will be placed on spending the money on education by expanding existing programs and creating additional projects.

"This is an investment in our future and a down payment in a healthy drug-free Ohio," he said.

Schnur said under Taft's proposal, all the drug money confiscated at county and local levels would stay there to fund local anti-drug programs, since they are best equipped to handle that sort of thing.

Six-legged pizza topping bugs students

By Stacey Donovan
Lantern campus reporter

Two Ohio State students lost their appetites last Thursday after finding an insect in the box of pizza they had ordered from Domino's Pizza.

Gabriel Artis, a freshman from Youngstown, said he ordered a pizza from the Domino's store at 1660 Neil Ave. and that he and Tim Jumper, a freshman from Fairborn, both ate one piece before they found what appeared to be a dead cockroach between the crust and the cardboard box.

Jay Rienbaugh, regional marketing director for Domino's, said they always offer a 100 percent guarantee on their products. "We will either give any unsatisfied customer a new pizza or their money back," he said.

Artis said he immediately called Domino's and told them what he had found and that he wanted his money back.

He said after 45 minutes of waiting in the lobby of his dorm at Lincoln Tower for Domino's to show up, he finally called them again to see what was taking them so long.

"Domino's reply was that they had sent a driver to Lincoln Tower with the money, but I did not receive it," Artis said.

Lee Whisner, supervisor of Domino's Pizza, said, "the pizza was delivered to Morrill Tower by accident and when the deliverer finally got to the right address, he would not take the money or a new pizza."

Artis said he told Domino's he was going to call the Columbus Health Department and that Domino's had a "so what" attitude.

Whisner said Artis told the deliverer he did not want the pizza or money, all he wanted to do was shut that Domino's down.

"He would not even show the pizza to the deliverer," he said.

Artis said he told Domino's he was going to call the Columbus Health Department and that Domino's had a "so what" attitude.

"They really did not seem that concerned," he said.

Rienbaugh said they were not sure that the insect had come from their store. "There is no proof the bug was on the pizza. Who's to say (Artis') house doesn't have bugs?" Rienbaugh said.

Mark McDonnell, food program supervisor at the Health Department, said Artis called Friday afternoon with his complaint about the insect.

McDonnell said the Health Department will investigate the complaint to see if there are insects at that particular Domino's.

"If we find cockroaches we will order them to exterminate immediately," McDonnell said.

He said it is up to Artis if he wants to sue Domino's, all the Health Department will do is send him a postcard telling him of the results of its findings.

"We did all we could do," he said.

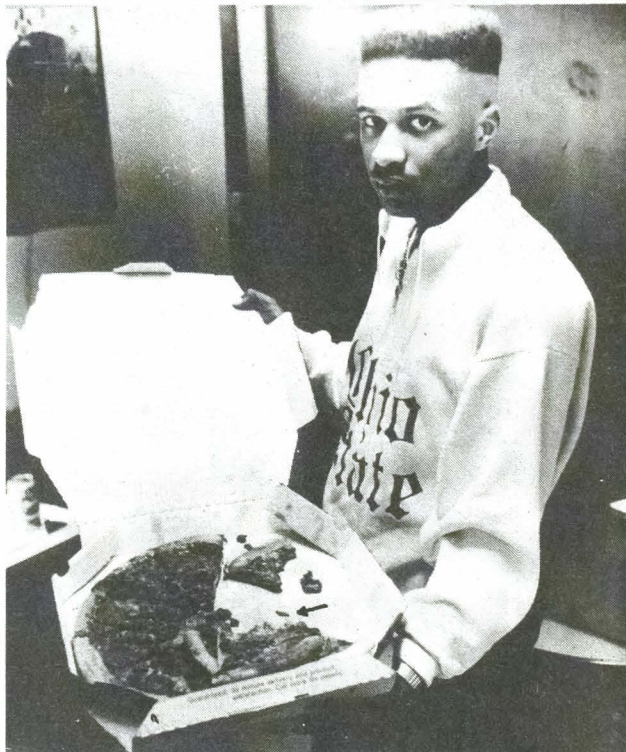

Rienbaugh said that this was just an isolated incident, and it is not a common occurrence.

Artis said he will sue Domino's if he gets back any definite information from the Health Department.

He said he would sue because Domino's handled the situation in an unprofessional way and that they are a reputable business chain and should not have insects in their food.

"That is a big health hazard," Artis said.

Whisner said Domino's is prepared if Artis decides to sue them. He said he can not recall being sued before.

Foot patrols increased in Oval area

By Terry Swaiger
Lantern campus reporter

OSU Police have increased foot patrols in and around the Oval in response to a reported rape of a female OSU student near Derby Hall on Oct. 24.

Richard Harp, deputy chief of the university police, said following the report, foot patrols were increased in the area.

He said the police are trying to increase uniform presence in the area to prevent further crimes.

According to police reports, on Oct. 24, as the student was leaving the Main Library at 12 a.m., she was grabbed from behind, thrown to the ground and sexually assaulted near the southwest corner of Derby Hall, 154 N. Oval Mall.

Mark Chisman, assistant vice president of public safety, said the university police use their resources to react to situations that occur.

"Generally, the university police deploy their officers in the best way they can in the situations that are happening," Chisman said. "They use their men in areas according to what is going on."

The patrols are sometimes interrupted by service calls, he said. These calls could be for thefts or minor disturbances, but all of them have to be answered.

Chisman also applauded the work of students who publicize the problems and try to help other people on campus.

Sue Green, coordinator for Ohio State's rape education and prevention program, said although the patrols are extremely helpful in preventing rapes, other steps must also be taken.

"I think it's important that we approach personal safety from a number of perspectives," she said.

Green said people must be aware of the problem to help prevent rape. "My recommendation is that people get the help needed," she said.

Green said women should take self-defense courses for their own safety.

The police department also encourages students to get involved in programs that prevent rape. These programs include Crimewatch and the escort service.

Green said a well-trained police force, such as Ohio State's, is helpful in rape prevention.

"I'm very pleased with the fine work the university police are doing. They really care about the faculty, the staff, and the students," Chisman said.

Harp said the university police will continue to take steps to protect people on campus. They are also currently running a crimewatchers segment on television to help get clues about the rape.

OSU winning traditional blood battle

By Susan Westbrook
Lantern campus reporter

This year's Ohio State-Michigan Blood Battle has ended — possibly bringing an end to Ohio State's three-year losing streak.

As of Thursday, Ohio State had collected 81 percent of their total goal, with Michigan close behind at 79 percent. Ohio State has maintained a small but steady lead in the final three days of the drive.

Final blood donations were taken Friday, but tradition demands that the winner not be announced until halftime of the Ohio State-Michigan game.

"Normally the blood battle runs the two weeks prior to the game," Fran Compton, director of donor resources development for Central Ohio American Red Cross Blood Services, said.

However, this year's game is after Thanksgiving, making it implausible for the blood drive to run until the day before the game.

The blood battle is in its eighth year of competition in an effort to supply Central Ohio and Michigan patients with blood and blood products.

It is sponsored by the American Red Cross and 19 campus groups, with Alpha Phi Omega, a service organization coordinating campus publicity and locations for the mobile units.

John Stacy, a junior from Columbus and president of the OSU chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, looked at the broader scope of the blood battle results.

"People were very enthusiastic about giving blood. Many of them were repeat donors from years past," Stacy, who worked at the Ohio Union mobile unit on Thursday said.

"This is one of the larger blood drives in the country," he said. "No matter who wins, Ohio State will have collected almost 2,000 units in a two-week period. Between Ohio State and Michigan, 4,000 to 5,000 units will have been collected in two weeks."

Should Ohio State be the blood-drive winners, the trophy will be received by Caroline Smart, a senior from Marion, and Dave Estepp, coordinator of the university area Red Cross, Stacy said.

Man stands trial for church bus accident

CARROLLTON, Ky. (AP) — The man accused of driving drunk on the wrong side of a highway and causing the deaths of 27 people in a church bus went on trial Monday under the watchful eyes of many of the victims' families.

A man whose wife and two daughters died when Larry Mahoney's pickup rammed the bus causing an explosion, said the 36-year-old factory worker deserved nothing less than "life in prison forever."

"To me, (the trial) is a waste of time," said Army 1st Sgt. Lee Williams. "The man is guilty, in my opinion, and life in prison is the minimum that he should get."

Jury selection was completed Monday for Mahoney's murder trial. Jurors were then taken to see the wreckage of the bus and Mahoney's pickup, locked in a warehouse as evidence in the case, plus the crash site on Interstate 71, about five miles south of Carrollton.

Police said Mahoney was driving north in the southbound lanes when his pickup collided with the bus on May 14, 1988. Sixty-seven members of the Radcliff First Assembly of God church's youth group were returning from an outing at the King's Island amusement park, north of Cincinnati.

Radcliff is the post office town for Fort Knox, where Williams was chief enlisted man of a medical company at Ireland Army Hospital.

Sixty-nine people, representing 29 victims' families, jammed the Carroll County Courthouse for the opening of Mahoney's trial on 82 criminal charges, including 27 counts of murder.

"Seeing Mr. Mahoney in person, I think it's going to be a stressful event for all of us," said William Nichols, whose only child, 17-year-old William Jr., died aboard the bus.

"Mr. Mahoney has his whole family" at the courthouse, Nichols said. "My wife and I are representing my son."

Mahoney waived his right to be present on the jury's trip.

At the warehouse, jurors milled around both wrecked vehicles, some stopping to peer inside. Several seemed interested in the space that held the bus' fuel tank, which exploded upon impact. Federal investigators concluded that the tank was punctured by one of the bus' leaf springs, causing the explosion.

All the victims — 24 children and teen-agers, and three adults — died of smoke inhalation, not crash injuries. Forty others escaped through windows or the bus' rear door, but many were severely injured.

tem, said Councilwoman Arlene Shoemaker.

"No, it's our problem," Espy said.

The length of the lease should not make a difference, he said.

City council voted in an ordinance to state their new policy regarding the affirmative action requirements of the AmeriFlora project.

Recently, the city has been involved in a lawsuit with the General Contractors Association regarding their policy of hiring 21 percent blacks and women for the AmeriFlora project, Griffin said.

The judge ruled that the city could not have such hiring practices unless they were based on a history of discrimination, Griffin said.

Therefore, the city council changed the policy to no longer include hiring goals, she said.

The city has had a similar policy regarding hiring for city jobs, Griffin said. The General Contracting Association filed another lawsuit against the city over this policy and the judge ruled as in the AmeriFlora lawsuit, she said.

The city has someone researching the employment records to find if there is a history of discrimination to support city policy, Griffin said.

Council also passed an ordinance to name the section of route 315 between I-70 and Bethel Road the Moody-Jackson Parkway and an ordinance to purchase a $10,028 DNA laboratory for the Columbus Division of Police.

Schnur said that another $7.5 million would be spent on providing counselors and facilities to treat drug dependence, but none would be used to build additional prisons to house the criminals.

"We will be addressing that issue later in the course of our campaign," he said.

Taft was joined by his wife, Hope, who told reporters that she too would play a major role in the fight against drugs by getting different communities involved in the battle.

"I have seen the positive results of what can happen when everyone in a community becomes involved in the war on drugs," she said, referring to her success in establishing a citizens' coalition in Hamilton County.

She pledged to travel across Ohio and establish similar grass-roots volunteer organizations against drugs.

"We the people must get involved or we're never going to make an impact," she said.

OSU black student leader addresses concerns

By Crystal Sadler
Lantern campus reporter

Many people have described him as radical, militant, racist.

Greg Carr, a law student from Nashville, Tenn., and president of the Black Law Students Association, entered the spotlight last spring as a spokesman for Just Us.

Just Us is a black student organization that submitted a list of demands to President Edward H. Jennings last spring to address the concerns of blacks on campus.

"I would describe myself as a soldier, a soldier in the war for the liberation of the minds of African people. That's exactly what I am," Carr said.

"I almost said a 'cultural na-

Non-traditional STUDENT LEADERS

...tionalist,' but a Klansman is a cultural nationalist, too," said Carr, also the vice president of the Graduate and Professional Black Student Caucus.

"THE KLAN is all right. I have no gripes with the Klan," he said. "As a matter of fact, most white people believe in what the Klan is saying. They just don't say so. The Klan stands for the survival of the white race, saving the virtue of white women, believing the Bible verbatim.

"In the ensuing years, you'll see more and more whites gravitate toward the Klan mentality as they realize that their race is in danger of extinction," he said.

The Ku Klux Klan is truly the invisible empire simply because most of the people in the Klan aren't official members, Carr said.

During many Just Us rallies, Carr has been known to criticize the media, the NAACP, African-Americans and white Americans, whom he calls Europeans.

He said the problems Just Us encountered were caused by ignorance.

"The Lantern was the cause of the problems, once you got past the general cause why any progressive African group has problems — the ignorance of the masses," Carr said.

CARR HAS ALSO been outspoken on the NAACP, a black organization which he has said is run by Jews.

"The NAACP's board of directors and the people who do the majority of fundraising for the organization are Jewish," Carr said.

"The former executive director of the NAACP legal defense fund was a Jewish man named Jack Greenberg. The visible people, like Benjamin Hooks, are black," he said. Hooks is the president of the NAACP.

"Most things that people of African descent do in America they don't do by choice; they do by necessity. I worked (at the NAACP) because I wanted to find out what was going on," he said.

Carr said the complacency of blacks in Columbus is symptomatic of the national population of blacks. He said Columbus blacks are taught to be complacent.

"They've been bred, by breeding I mean socialization, to be complacent," Carr said. "Western civilization has done a fantastic job of making the non-white people of the world complacent."

THE MAIN PROBLEM is that the blacks in Columbus do not read books by authors concerned with Afrocentricity, nor do they question what they are taught, Carr said.

"They run from anything that Europeans label militant," Carr said. "They stay with very comfortable, demeaning symbols such as Arsenio Hall, Eddie Murphy and Benjamin Hooks. If it's non-threatening to Europeans, blacks here embrace it."

It has become a trend for blacks to claim they are African-Americans with an Afrocentric mind set, Carr said. They wear dashikis and African medallions, listen to pro-black rap groups like Public Enemy and Boogie Down Productions and read books by Anthony Browder and Molefi Asante, an author and professor at Temple University.

Carr said that for most people the resurgence of this black power-type movement is a fad.

"Those who view it as a fad should be allowed to push it long enough for those who see it as a cultural liberation to get their message across," Carr said.

"Once the message has gotten across," he said, "it will cease to be a fad. Automobiles and televisions were a fad. Now they are necessities. Afrocentricity is a fad, but it's a fad that, once people realize the importance of it, will cease being a fad."

IN HIS SPEECHES Carr often quotes Malcolm X, a controversial 60s leader feared because of his connection with the Black Muslim movement in America.

"Malcolm was assassinated in February 1965. I was born in April 1965," Carr said. "I like to think that the ancestors, when his spirit went, allowed part of it to come back and to guide me. I live with that philosophy. I feel a special bond with Malcolm."

Deda Kimathi, the commander of the Kenya Land Freedom Army, and Hatchepsut, queen of Egypt for three decades, are also Carr's role models, he said.

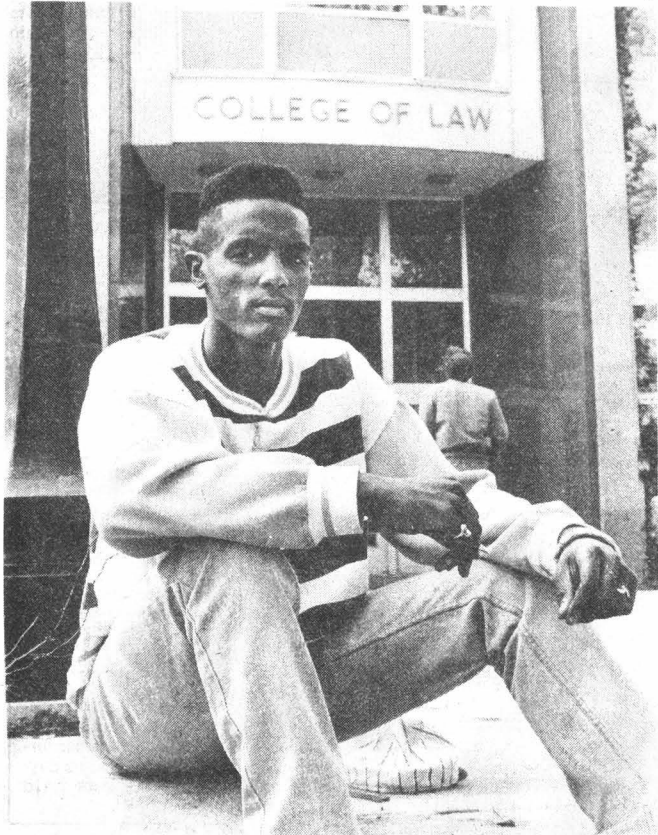

"Deda because of his ability to inspire and get the most out of the masses, and Hatchepsut because she was a genius at making a civilization function together."

he said. "That's what I want to do. They were geniuses in getting everybody to work together."

Carr's African name is also Deda. It was given to him at a celebration a year ago. He said the name given to him at birth belongs to a slave master, but he continues to use it out of respect for his parents.

As for the future of African-Americans, Carr said the most important thing for blacks to do in the 1990s is to re-educate themselves and to take economic control of their communities.

"I would like to see black students treat their educational experiences as a training ground for a war," he said. "Read everything you can get your hands on by Afrocentric authors. Go to all the seminars and ask a million questions, and don't believe one thing anybody tells you, especially Europeans, without double checking. You'll find out that 80 percent of what you learn is trash."

Greg Carr sits in front of the College of Law.

'Mermaid' captivates children of all ages

"The Little Mermaid," adapted from the Hans Christian Andersen fairy tale, is not only for children to enjoy.

This film is Disney's 28th full-length animated feature and the first Disney animated feature based on a fairy tale since "Sleeping Beauty" in 1958.

"The Little Mermaid" is the story of a beautiful mermaid, Ariel, who longs to join the human world despite the wishes of her father, Triton, the sea king.

Ariel falls in love with a handsome prince who is fascinated by her lovely singing voice. Ariel seeks help from Ursula, the evil sea witch, who promises to give Ariel a human appearance in exchange for her voice.

However, the promise is a trick. Even though Ariel is able to join the human world, she no longer possesses the trait that won the prince's love for her.

Triton gets mad at Ariel every time she goes up to the surface. He thinks Ariel needs constant supervision and hires Sebastian, a crafty little crab, to do the job.

Sebastian sings about the pleasures of living below the surface. The music during this scene has a wide range of calypso and reggae styles. This adds energy and spice to the scene.

Sebastian is cleverly backed up by a crustacean band and a chorus line of brightly colored marine life. The color scheme in this scene is unreal, with intense shades of aqua, magenta, teal, yellow and purple.

The combination of beautiful color and lively upbeat music makes this a very spirited scene.

The audience seemed to become attached to Ariel right away. Her big blue eyes are filled with curiosity and fascination with the human world.

Ariel sings a solo about how she wants to be where the people are; how she wants feet so she can walk on a street, wander free under the sun, and spend a warm day on the sand.

What Ariel wants is impossible, but the audience empathizes with her because they want her dream to come true.

It is very interesting to see how the bright spectrum of color changes to a different color scheme when the sea witch is present. The colors suddenly change to gray, black and deep purple. This gives the scenes with the sea witch a very foggy and hazy effect.

The thousands of underwater bubbles offer another interesting effect. They make the whole ocean atmosphere entrancing.

With the exception of Buddy

Hackett's voice, the other voice talents are generally unknown actors who allow the audience to keep an open mind without letting familiar voices interfere with the characters.

Anyone would enjoy "The Little Mermaid" for its cleverness, and especially the film's extensive use of lively music and captivating colors.

This Disney animated feature is exciting. Go see it!

Graham Dance Company receives ovation

ELIZABETH FLORENCE

stark. It molded modern dance and ancient images together in an interesting manner.

The set, designed by sculptor Isamu Noguchi, became the centerpiece as one dancer danced on it. Incredible lighting effects made the image of an Indian sky. The music was contemporary with the emphasis of a piccolo and drum beat.

The program continued with "El Penitente," a classic Graham piece that was first performed in 1940. This simple piece, which showed a purification ritual, had a Southwestern influence. It had a playful theatrical quality, in addition to serious and religious qualities.

"El Penitente" consisted of three dancers enacting traveling performers of other times. The props used were portable and self-contained, as the three dancers would pack up and travel to another town to perform.

The Saturday performance concluded with "American Document," a reworking of the monumental 1938 ballet with the same title. This piece featured an updated text from a variety of sources reflecting the American spirit and experience.

An on stage narrator delivered the spoken element of this dance-poem. "This piece is Martha's imagination of America," said narrator Cecilia Peck. "It is abstract but it comes together. There are thoughts about America everyone can relate to."

The three principal dancers in this piece wore vibrant costumes, one in red, one in white, and the third in blue, which set them apart.

The Sunday performance opened with "Embattled Garden," a retelling of the story of Adam and Eve. This piece contained bright colored sets by Noguchi. The garden of Eden was beautifully constructed. The dramatic movements fit every piece of the music.

The program continued with "Night Journey," which was based on the story of Oedipus, and told from the point of view of Jocasta. This piece was the most dramatic. The music was melancholy and emotional.

"Night Journey" resembled a Greek tragedy. There was a protagonist, antagonist, a seer and Greek chorus. The chorus was very dramatic in the way they commented and reacted to the "journey."

Peggy Lyman, the rehearsal director of the company, said that Graham strongly believes in the body because it evokes emotion. Lyman said the dancers put their bodies in certain positions so the audience can feel the anguish. This technique was evident in "Night Journey."

The Sunday performance concluded with "Acts of Light." The dancers executed perfect balance and discipline. The movement was fantastic and exhibited energy and strength. The dancers showed incredible precision and stayed in perfect synchronicity.

At a reception following the Saturday evening performance Robert Sterns, director of the Wexner Center, introduced Martha Graham to those in attendance.

Graham has an influence on the dance world, and still continues to have influence on her dancers.

What is even more remarkable about the 95-year-old Graham, says Mario Camacho, who has danced with the company for four years, is that she comes to their studio rehearsals everyday.

"She's wonderful," Camacho said.

Injuries mount as Buckeyes prepare for Michigan game

By Scott Campbell
Lantern sports reporter

The Ohio State Buckeyes, heavily wounded by enemy gunfire, emerged from Saturday's 42-22 win over Wisconsin looking more like a M.A.S.H. unit than a football team.

Among the more notable of the incoming casualties were tailback Carlos Snow, linebacker Orlando Craig and flanker Jeff Graham.

Snow, OSU's leading rusher with 948 yards and 10 touchdowns this season, did not play in the second half Saturday after reaggravating a knee injury. The 5-foot-9, 200-pound junior finished the game with just 20 yards on six carries.

His chances of playing in the Buckeyes' season-ending battle with Michigan appear unlikely.

"It's very, very doubtful that Carlos will play this week," OSU coach John Cooper said Monday at his weekly press luncheon. "We are planning on not having him for the Michigan game. If he does play we'll consider that a bonus."

Cooper said freshman running back Dante Lee, a 5-foot-11, 175-pounder from Dayton, will replace Snow as the Buckeyes' starting tailback.

Lee filled in for Snow Saturday and ran for 98 yards on 22 carries before exiting late in the game with a slight ankle sprain.

For the season, Lee has rushed for 449 yards on 70 attempts for a 6.4 yards-per-carry average.

Cooper said fullback Scottie Graham, who has rambled for 791 yards and eight touchdowns this year, will be called on to relieve Lee at tailback.

"We'll play Scottie Graham at both tailback and fullback which will mean that (backup fullback) Ty Harrison will play some this week," Cooper said. "Scottie has not practiced a single snap at the tailback spot this fall but we'll practice him some back there this week."

Graham, a 5-foot-10, 225-pound sophomore, carried the ball five times from the tailback position Saturday and gained 35 yards.

Cooper said freshman linebacker Steve Tovar will probably replace senior strong-side linebacker Orlando Craig who suffered a fractured ankle against the Badgers Saturday to end his college career.

Tovar, who will be moving over from his customary weak-side linebacking position, has seen action in all 10 of the Buckeyes' games this season and has recorded 39 tackles.

Cooper said the adjustment from weak-side to strong-side linebacker is minimal.

"It's not that big of a change," Cooper said. "The biggest change you have is in the pass drops. Tovar is as smart as any of them. He'll pick it up."

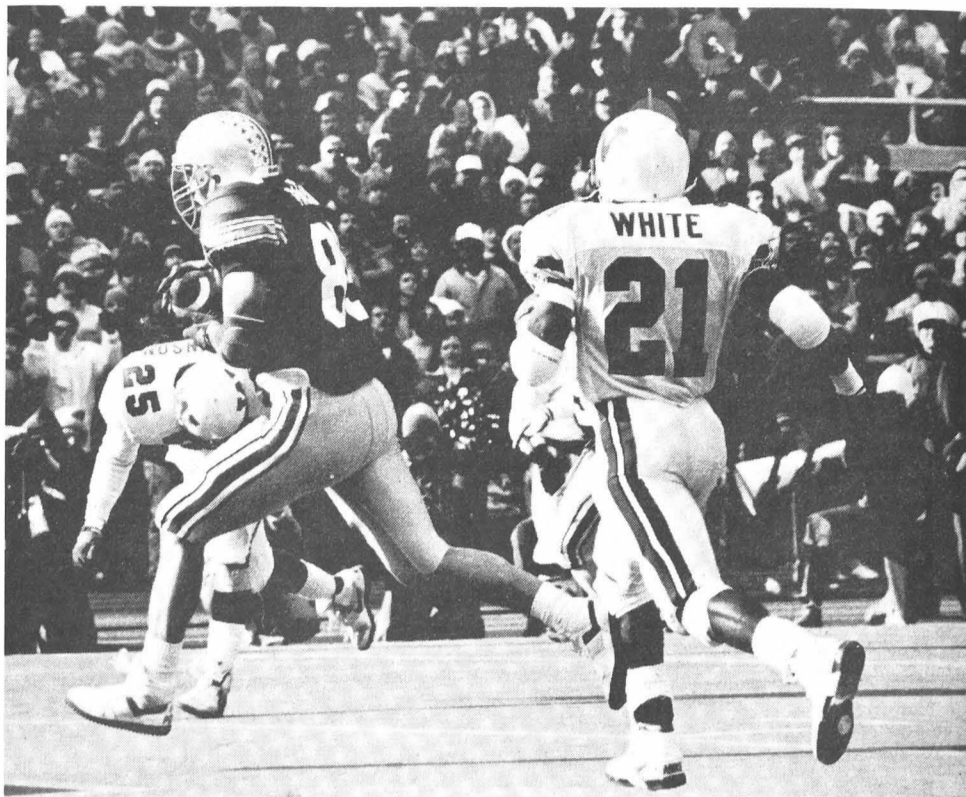

Starting flanker Jeff Graham, who suffered a groin pull against Wisconsin, is expected to play against the Wolverines.

"Jeff Graham is listed as 'no activity' for Monday's practice," Cooper said. "He played very little in the ballgame Saturday. But we expect to get him back (for the Michigan game)."

Graham is the Buckeyes' leading receiver with 24 catches for 452 yards and three touchdowns. He has also returned 16 punts for 188 yards including a 66-yarder against Illinois for a touchdown.

Cooper said despite his team's rash of injuries he is looking forward to his first trip to Ann Arbor to take on Bo Schembechler and his Michigan ballclub.

"The injury situation concerns me but we'll just have to go with the guys we've got," he said. "Anything can happen in this ballgame. 'It's a classic. They don't call it 'the game' for nothing."

John E. Garwig/the Lantern

OSU tight end Jim Palmer catches a pass over the middle and heads for the endzone during the second quarter of OSU's 42-22 win over Wisconsin Saturday. Palmer's score gave OSU a 14-13 lead.

King dances behind OSU squad at stadium

By Shawn McAllister
Lantern sports reporter

Ohio State quarterback Greg Frey opened his locker door Saturday morning and knew his day was about to begin.

At 7:45 a.m. Saturday, Orlas King pulled his 1977 Southwind motorhome into the first spot along the fence in the ROTC Building parking lot.

OSU linebacker Alonzo Spellman pulled his jersey, bearing the number 99, over the butterflies in his stomach — butterflies he has on game day.

King, after setting up his tailgate, pulled his Beth Salanger original 100-percent wool sweater with "Orlas" weaved into the sleeve of the left arm over the butterflies in his stomach — butterflies he has on game day.

OSU co-captain David Brown lined up in his right cornerback spot knowing it was the last game he would ever play in the horseshoe as a Buckeye.

Meanwhile, King took his seat in section 11B, the same seat he has had for the last 12 years. He knew this would be his last game in the horseshoe until next September.

At the end of the first quarter, the members of "The Best Damn Band In The World," as King put it, turned around one by one and began playing "Neutron Dance."

Heads turned. Entire bodies turned. Literally thousands of fingers pointed at a little guy doing some erratic, inconsistent, plain-old awkward dance.

It was "Captain Neutron." It was "the King." It was "some drunk in a scarlet and gray cabby hat wearing a necklace of buckeye nuts."

It was Orlas King, Mr. Buckeye.

"I've been doing this shuffle for about 22 years," King said as he wiggled his behind to the tune of the Pointer Sisters' "Neutron Dance."

"Different songs," he said, "same steps."

King, 47, of Blacklick, is the district-area manager for Ponderosa Restaurants. From 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, he is in charge of the six restaurants in the Columbus area.

At night, he goes home to his third wife, Debbie DeVictor King, and rests in his home that sits on a five-and-one-half acre plot of land.

But on football Saturdays, King is a different man.

"He eats, lives and breathes Ohio State football," said longtime friend Tracy Beckman.

"As far as I'm concerned, I'm playing," King said. "I love the kids, and I think they love me. But the fans just don't cheer enough."

"I take it upon myself to bring the fans up."

And that he does.

He starts his day with a tailgate party. Invited are all those who bleed scarlet and gray.

First, he'll have a beer. Then, a Bloody Mary. Then, two or more of both. The cold was slowly going away.

"This looks like a stag party," he yelled. "Where are all the women?"

And then they came.

The OSU cheerleaders came by to check up on their favorite fan.

"I love what you do," Mitch Price, a junior from Lancaster, told King. "You bring the people into the game. We need all the help we can get!"

The cheerleaders, after a brief stay, moved on to the stadium for the game.

John Bobb has been a friend of King for years.

"Ohio State is in my blood," Bobb said from under an OSU scarlet beach hat. "My mom was May Queen in 1925 and I was runner-up homecoming king in 1962. Orlas is Ohio State."

At the game, Mr. Buckeye wasn't in his seat for more than 45 seconds at a time.

After Wisconsin kicked a field goal on their first drive, King showed his disappointment.

"Damn it!" he said. "That's the way Wisconsin does it. Not cool. Not cool ... C'mon Bucks!"

Early in the first half, Ohio State's Scottie Graham burst up the middle for a considerable gain.

King took a drag from his Merit cigarette. Then another. Then another.

"Big hole! Big hole! Awwright!" King yelled.

Mr. Buckeye fell nearly three rows in all the excitement.

"The highlight of my life was when band director Dr. Woods asked me to be a part of the halftime show last year during the LSU game," King said.

"I thought someone was playing a prank until he called me to practice the Thursday before."

Although King is no doubt one of the biggest supporters of Buckeye football, he attended the school for a little more than a year and never graduated.

"Even though I didn't (graduate), I recommend that everyone graduate. It makes things a lot easier out there," King said.

King used to go to all the OSU games, but he has restricted his travel schedule in recent years.

"I used to go up for every Michigan game. Then, four years ago, I got beat up in a bathroom. The next time we played up there I got all four of my tires slashed," King said. "I will never go up there again."

After half a pack of cigarettes, four quarters of a football game and a 42-22 OSU victory, King invited two rows of fans back to his tailgate party.

"Once a Buckeye, always a Buckeye," King said. "You either have it or you don't."

After his tailgate party, King probably drove home and stood in his 30 foot by 20 foot dance room he dedicated entirely to Buckeye football.

He might have said, looking at years and years of photos. "Another one for the ole' Buckeyes."

Prop 48 tag sticks with students

Advisers, athletes agree stigma hurts

By John Kampf
Lantern sports reporter

Athletes should not be identified as being Proposition 48's after sitting out a year, said Larry Romanoff, Athletic Academic Counselor.

Proposition 48, also known as NCAA bylaw 14.3, forbids athletes to participate in their respective sports if they do not reach the minimum standards (2.0 GPA plus either an 18 on the ACT or a 700 on the SAT.) If those requirements are not met, the athletes are not allowed to participate in any practices or games for a year. They also lose a year of eligibility.

Romanoff said the problem arises after they have served their time.

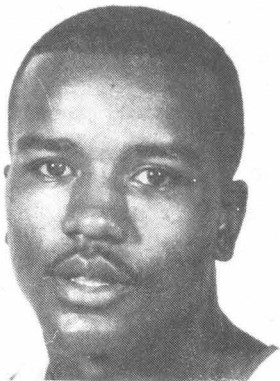

"Instead of saying 'Mark Baker who has done a heckuva job,' they refer to him as 'Mark Baker Prop 48,'" Romanoff said. "They paid their price. They didn't get the job done in high school and had to get it done here."

Baker, a sophomore from Dayton, said that he noticed the tag that was been put on him also.

"Everyone treats us like we committed a crime," he said. "Whether or not I do good, I'll be known as a Prop 48."

Baker said even though he sat out a year, he gained something from the experience. He said it helped him learn that there was more to life than basketball and that he had to get an education.

Erica Floyd, a sophomore with the women's basketball team, agreed with Baker that a lesson was learned. She also said that if it were not for her teammates,

Mark Baker

she would not have made it through the year.

"The year off showed me that I would have to strive to be better in the classroom," she said. "All I could do was get my grades up and look forward to the next season."

Romanoff said it was difficult to tell the athletes that they would not be participating.

"Here's a person who was a star in high school and the one thing they had going for them was their sports," he said. "Now that is taken away 100 percent. It's tough to keep them happy when that happens."

He said the athletes have to realize that it will be tough for them in that first year. All they can do is go to class and study table.

Floyd said it was a difficult period and she often felt depressed.

"I felt left out, like I wasn't part of the team," she said. "I wanted to come home tired like everyone else."

Floyd, along with Baker, said that changes should be made to make Proposition 48 a better rule. She said that determining eligibility on the basis of ACT and SAT scores is wrong because no one can sum up 12 years of school with a three-hour test.

Baker said that if the players were able to practice with the team during the suspension, the penalty would still serve its purpose.

They also said no matter how the rule reads, they should not be associated with it after they serve their year of ineligibility.

"That is all in the past," Floyd said. "Everyone knows that I was a Prop 48 but I don't think they need to repeat it over and over again."

Romanoff found an instance where it would be acceptable to say that they were Prop 48 victims.

"Mention it at graduation," he said. "The NCAA said they were 'at risk' students when they got here and they still graduated. That's a hell of an accomplishment."

Michigan prepares to defend title

DETROIT (AP) — Flash back to April 3. The Michigan Wolverines had just won the national title and Steve Fisher had just made history. He was hugging his players and assistant coaches on the floor of the Kingdome in Seattle.

He had become the first interim coach to win the NCAA championship, and he did it with a perfect record. Six games, six victories.

Nothing, he says, will ever top that.

"If we won every game this season and the national championship again, it still wouldn't be the same ..." Fisher said.

Fisher took over when Bill Frieder accepted the job at Arizona State just prior to the NCAA tournament. Fisher, a long-time assistant, stepped in and the Wolverines tore through the tournament, capping it with an 80-79 victory over Seton Hall.

Having Glen Rice score more points than any player in tournament history made Fisher's job easier. Rice now is in the NBA, but the Wolverines still are loaded and are considered the team to beat in the Big Ten Conference.

A principal reason is point guard Rumeal Robinson, a member of The Associated Press' preseason All-America team. Robinson averaged 15 points and 6 assists per game while directing the offense last season.

"As long as we've got Rumeal, I know we've got a good team," Fisher said.

Illinois coach Lou Henson believes as many as six teams will be in the running for the conference title, and the Fighting Illini should be one of them. They also reached the Final Four and have several players back.

"We don't have nearly the quickness, but we have size and physical strength," Henson said. "I don't think we'll be as good a fullcourt team as we were, but we still want to run."

Illinois will miss its frontcourt of Kenny Battle, Lowell Hamilton and Nick Anderson. But senior guard Kendall Gill, a 15-point scorer, is back, along with Stephen Bardo and Marcus Liberty.

Minnesota, 19-12 last season, has all its starters back. Michigan State has four of its first-line players back and should be improved. Indiana lost everyone from its conference championship team, but Bobby Knight answered by signing eight freshmen who make up his deepest and best recruiting class.

The Big Eight race also should be interesting. Missouri is favored to win the title, although Oklahoma should be strong again, Oklahoma State has nine of its top 10 players back, and Kansas and Iowa State should be better.

Missouri, 29-8 last season, lost center Gary Leonard, guard Byron Irvin, and forwards Greg Church and Mike Sandbothe. But the Tigers still have 6-10 junior center Doug Smith, and guards Lee Coward and Anthony Peeler.

Oklahoma lost two first-round NBA draft picks in center Stacy King and point guard Mookie Blaylock. The five departed seniors made up 67 percent of the Sooners' scoring.

Coach Billy Tubbs brought in two highly regarded junior college players in forward Jackie Jones and point guard Smokey McCovery, plus the state's most sought-after high school player, forward Jeff Webster.

BUCKEYE BRIEFS

THE OSU WOMEN'S SWIMMING and diving team beat the University of Cincinnati in their season opener Friday 73-67.

The win was the first OSU win over Cincinnati since 1985 and the swim team's first dual-meet victory in two seasons.

The swimming Buckeyes were 0-6 last year.

OSU head coach Jim Montrella said he was pleased with the performance and spirit of his swimmers, and said they excelled in the freestyle events.

Susan Gottlieb, an All-American last year, set the pool record in the 200-meter butterfly with a time of 2:02.97. Gottlieb and Joyce Lightfoot both finished less than one second from the 500 freestyle pool record.

Finishing in first for the Buckeyes were Gottlieb in the 500 freestyle, 200 butterfly, and 1650 freestyle; Kim Wines in the 100 and 200 breaststroke; and Suzi Burt in 200 freestyle and 200 backstroke.

Laura Profumo took firsts in the one-meter and three-meter diving events for the Buckeyes, and Laurie Gaudes took second and third, respectively.

THE OSU MEN'S and women's fencing teams each left the six-team Cornell Team Meet Sunday with undefeated records.

"This is the first time both the men and women have had a clean sweep of everything," OSU fencing coach Charlotte Remenyik said.

Besides OSU and Brown, Cornell, Brandeis, Rutgers, Johns Hopkins (men) and William Patterson (women) also competed.

Scott Haegel had a 14-1 record in leading Ohio State to an undefeated record in the saber event, while Rutgers finished second.

OSU's Shawn Stevenson was 11-3 in the epee, where the Buckeyes finished 5-0 and Cornell placed second.

David Leviton was 11-4 for OSU in the foil, but the Buckeyes finished fourth overall in that event.

Kristi Hovanyi and Patti Haas each were 20-0 for the Buckeyes in the women's competition. The Lady Buckeyes finished 5-0 overall, ahead of second place Brown (4-1).

"This year there has been an NCAA rules change and there is only one at-large bid available (for the NCAA meet). We are the only team from the Midwest to travel to the East Coast and fence. Hopefully, the results of this meet will help us when the bid is awarded," Remenyik said.

GED tests offered for free

By Aria Ala-U-Dini
Lantern city reporter

High school dropouts who do not have a General Educational Development (GED) test certificate will soon have to come up with an excuse other than not having the money to take the test.

Beginning December 1, the Ohio Department of Education will be offering the GED to first time applicants for free.

The GED test, which can cost anywhere from $25 to $30, depending on the test location, is equivalent to getting a high school diploma.

"I'm extremely excited with the new prospects with the GED testing," said Roger Street, chief GED examiner in Columbus. "Hopefully, this will give those people who wouldn't have considered taking the GED another option."

There are currently an estimated 2.2 million Ohioans who have neither a high school degree nor its equivalent, but with the new process, education officials hope that number will decrease.

Earlier this year, state legislators approved a bill which provides $1.65 million over the next two years to defer the cost of taking the GED test.

"This is our way of encouraging people to take their GED," said Lorita Myles, a spokesperson for the Ohio Department of Education. "It's a part of the state's push for a higher literacy rate."

She said more and more employers want at least a high school degree or its equivalent from potential employees.

According to Franklin B. Walters, superintendent of public instruction for Ohio, in order to be eligible to have the fees waived, applicants must:

- Take an official practice test, which is administered through his office.

- Obtain a minimum of 35 out of a possible 76 points on each of the five sections and score an average of 45 for all sections (applicants must receive 45 points on each section to receive their GED).

- Have the score certified by an official administering the GED.

The five areas which the GED tests are math, writing, social studies, science, and interpreting literature and the arts.

In 1988 an essay question was also added to the writing skills part of the test.

Street said last year, over 1,000 Columbus applicants received their GED.

NAACP, Education Fund Inc. probe discrimination cases

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal judges dismissed at least 96 discrimination claims since last June's Supreme Court decision narrowing the application of an 1866 civil rights law, according to a report released Sunday.

The NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund Inc. surveyed lower federal court decisions since the Supreme Court held that employees could not sue under the Civil Rights Act of 1866 to press claims of racial harassment on the job.

The report concluded that the June 15 ruling has sown confusion among judges and lawyers, discouraged new litigation and hampered efforts to settle pending cases out of court.

The decision "has had very serious and regrettable consequences for the men and women who live with the intractable realities of racial discrimination," the group said.

The 5-4 ruling by the Supreme Court said the 1866 law, known as section 1981 of the federal code, was enacted by Congress to allow newly freed slaves to negotiate and enforce contracts.

The high court held that it prohibited discrimination in hiring but not racial harassment once a person was employed, the court held.

The Supreme Court upheld the dismissal of a suit filed under the law by Brenda Patterson, a credit-union teller who claimed she was subjected to racial slurs and denied wage increases by her white employers because she is black.

Only 22 of the claims dismissed between June 15 and Nov. 1 involved racial or ethnic harassment but they "illustrate the egregious nature of the forms of harassment" no longer covered by the law, the report said.

In one case, the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals summarily dismissed a racial harassment suit involving a black woman who claimed her supervisor made repeated sexual and racial remarks, showing her pictures of interracial couples performing sexual acts.

Courts dismissed claims of racial discrimination in 31 firings and 16 claims over failure to grant promotions or transfers because of race.

Elementary school promotes nature study

By Mark Janslewitz
Lantern city reporter

Oakmont Elementary School is probably one of the few Columbus schools that encourages students to bring insects into the classroom.

"Every bug out there comes in the building," said Grace Schillinger, science teacher at Oakmont. "They take care of them."

The science teachers at Oakmont have been encouraging students to become involved with nature and with wildlife by using a garden to teach children science, Schillinger said.

However, in the 1990-91 and 1991-92 school years, all the teachers will be using the garden to teach children about science and other subjects as well because of a new science curriculum called Project Life Lab, Schillinger said.

Oakmont was one of four elementary schools in the country selected in 1988 to try out the lab, said Principal Robert Kimball. The lab uses gardening to teach children about science and other subjects, he said.

"This is something unique, using the garden as a focal point,"

Kimball said.

Project Life Lab is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to spread the Life Lab curriculum, said Kim Knorr, who trains teachers to use the lab.

The children don't have a textbook or workbooks, Knorr said.

"It's a hands-on approach," she said.

Project Life Lab teaches children about problem solving, the scientific method, food production, cycles and change, nutrition, digestion, animals, weather, insects, pollination, and flowers, Schillinger said.

Many other courses can be integrated into the gardening, she said. Math, measurements, and writing are taught through a journal, in which the students keep records of the plants, she said.

Also, the children make art, music, and read books about the garden, Schillinger said.

"Everything can be integrated," she said.

Schillinger said students learn better from gardening because they learn to appreciate life in general.

"The entire staff is behind it (Life Lab)," Schillinger said. "The parents are very enthusiastic about this program."

Children come to work on the gardens even in the summer, and the parents help, she said.

The Addison/Wesley publishing company has bought the rights to the lab, and will sell the Life Lab textbook for teachers to schools in 1992, Knorr said.

Project Life Lab selected the four schools in order to conduct a test of their curriculum and their laboratory and gardening materials, Kimball said.

More than 50 schools in the country sent in applications for the lab, he said.

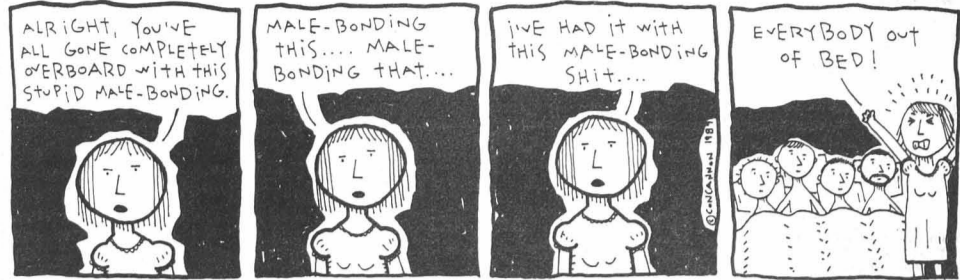

The National Science Foundation and Addison/Wesley donated $20,000 worth of Project Life Lab's gardening and laboratory materials to Oakmont to try out the lab, Kimball said.

Project Life Lab began with two Santa Cruz, Calif. teachers who were not satisfied with their science curriculum, Knorr said.

"There is a big push to improve science education in the country right now," she said.

Knorr taught the Oakmont teachers a session of the Life Lab called "Kill'em Dead" in a presen-

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The Lantern cannot accept advertising that advocates sedition or other illegal actions, violates normal standards of morality and taste, or attacks an individual race, nationality, ethnic group, religion or sex. In cases of doubt, the proffered copy, illustrations and layout will be submitted by the Lantern Business Manager to the School of Journalism Publications Committee and judged by a majority vote of the members. Decisions of this committee are final.

Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required; this information is for our records only and not available to the public.

The Ohio State Lantern does not restrict advertisers beyond the limits of responsible journalism and the rules imposed by the Ohio State University on all student publications.

- Copy will be furnished by noon three business days before publication, except for published special early deadlines.
- All advertisements are required to occupy at least as many inches in height as they do columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in height will be considered full column (21 inches) and charged accordingly.
- The Lantern reserves the right to reject any advertisement that promotes illegal activity or activity detrimental or damaging to the university and its educational mission. It further reserves the right to revise any advertisement which is deemed objectional for any reason.
- Make-good/adjustments will be considered only for those advertisements where errors occur in the following: business/group name, address, or phone number; item prices; date, time, or place of event. The error must be solely the fault of the Lantern. Adjustments will not exceed the cost of the advertisement, and will be based on the portion of the advertisement nullified by the error. Minor spelling errors will not qualify for adjustment. Complaints must be registered to the Business Manager within 45 days of publication to qualify, otherwise the advertiser accepts full responsibility. Guaranteed position is sold at the Business Manager's discretion.
- A composition charge may apply to any changes, revisions or cancellations made after deadline.
- No proof will be furnished on any advertisement received after deadline, or for ads smaller than seven (7) column inches.
- If the Lantern finds it necessary to stop contracted advertising because of nonpayment, the advertising agreement will be violated and subject to a rebill fee.
- Advertisers are encouraged to avoid making misleading claims or using art or words that impugn or degrade sex, race, age, national origin, creed or color.
- The Lantern reserves the right to require prepayment for advertising, or to reject advertising if the advertiser is delinquent in payment, or if advertiser's credit is impaired. Advertisers must prepay all advertising until credit rating with the Lantern is established. CERTIFIED check or money order is required for out-of-town advertisers.
- Contract advertisers will furnish the Lantern with a rate-holder ad meeting contract minimums, for use in any contract period for which the advertiser does not provide an ad.
- A tearsheet will be furnished for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tearsheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser notifies the Lantern office prior to publication.
- Advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Ohio State University, its Board of Trustees, and its officers, agents and employees from and against any and all loss, cost and expense, including reasonable attorney fees, resulting from the publication by the Lantern of advertiser's advertisement.
- Advertisers in the Ohio State Lantern agree that they will not represent themselves in any way as being endorsed by the Ohio State University.
- All mail-order advertisers are required to submit sample/proof-of-product prior to publication.

Please note that advertisers must request the return of their original ad materials; the Lantern will dispose of such materials 60 days after their first publication.

OSU women's swim team training to capture Big Ten championship

The training is strenuous and tiresome, but the OSU Women's Swim Team is determined to challenge themselves, hoping to become Big Ten champions again.

Last year's 0-6 dual meet record was discouraging for the swimmers and coaches, but after a win against the University of Cincinnati Friday, things are looking up for the team. Cincinnati's team has defeated Ohio State for the past three years.

"There's no doubt in my mind we're going to be a lot better than last year," said Coach Jim Montrella. The team placed fifth in the Big Ten last year.

Montrella and his wife, Bev, who is assistant coach, have coached the women's team for 10 years. The team won the Big Ten Championship from 1981-86.

Both coaches are challenging their swimmers to demand the most from themselves.

Montrella said the team's attitude has improved tremendously. They communicate more than many other teams he has coached.

Five upperclassmen are on the swim team, but the balance is freshmen and sophomores. Although this is a relatively young team, Montrella said their age is not important.

"The important thing is how you place, not how old you are," he said. "They don't give you points for your age. The points are given to whoever touches the wall first."

Montrella said the team members love to swim competitively and they have to in order to swim for a Major Division I institution such as Ohio State.

"I expect to have the best dual meet season we've had in a long time," Montrella said. "I expect to improve our position in the conference and I expect a minimum of seven people to qualify for NCAA's, and would like to think five other girls have a chance."

The collegiate season ends with NCAA's in March. Swimmers must meet time standards to enter. Ohio State has consistently placed in the top 20 of the NCAA.

Montella said winning is rewarding but it is not the most rewarding aspect of being a coach. Helping a swimmer overcome difficulties and accomplish goals they once believed were impossible is how Montrella finds job satisfaction.

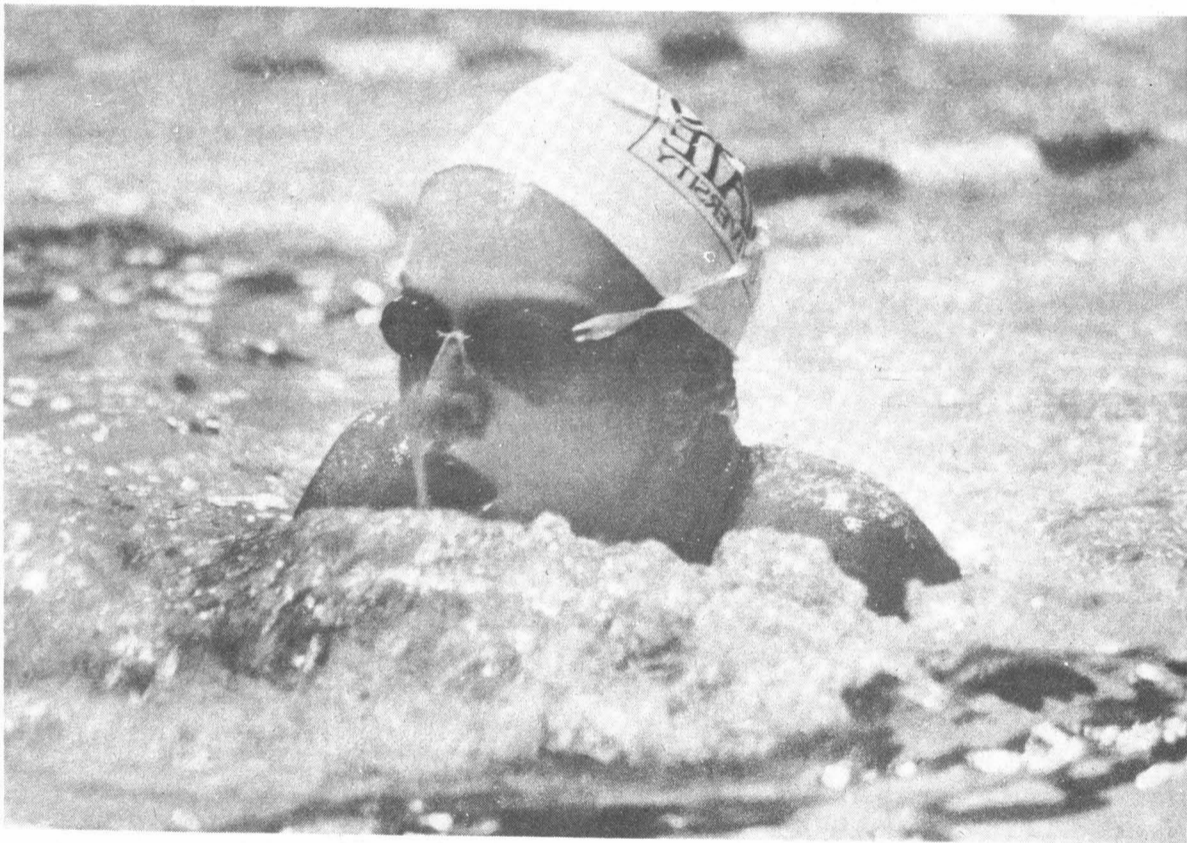

Coach Jim Montrella talks to the swimmers before practice. He and his wife, Bev, have been coaching swimming for 31 years.

Michelle vonDressler, 18, a freshman from Boynton, Fla., composes herself before she dives into the 50-meter pool at 7 a.m. in Larkins Hall. The swimmers attend weight training three mornings a week, from 6 a.m. to 7 a.m. before swimming.

Rachel Ward, an 18-year-old freshman from Cincinnati, swims breaststroke early in the morning. The team swims three mornings from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m. and every afternoon. Ward specializes in sprint freestyle and breaststroke.

The women of the Ohio State Swim Team, run three times a week. From left are Christie Woodruff, 18, and Julie Knight, 18, both freshmen from Westerville; Rachel Ward, 18, a freshman from Cincinnati; and Joyce Lightfoot, 18, a freshman from Fullerton, Calif.
