Campus Planner Says OSU May Have to Get New Face

By Myron Belkind

"Let's face it. We have a great University, to be sure, but not a great campus."

So spoke William Caudill, of the campus planning firm of Caudill, Rowlett and Scott, to some 500 members of the faculty at a meeting in Mershon Auditorium yesterday afternoon. It is his aim, he said, to see that Ohio State does develop a great campus.

THE PLANNING consultants have been working with the Office of Campus Planning, headed by Dr. John H. Herrick, for the past two years.

Caudill said he was appalled that the tall dorms on 11th Ave. had no adjacent recreation areas.

He also spoke out against the war that exists here between the automobile and the pedestrian. "At Ohio State, the pedestrian lives dangerously," Caudill declared.

THE CAMPUS planner from Houston, Tex., mentioned the importance of having a campus spirit which can be compared to the "hills of Cornell, the picturesque buildings of Oxford and the yards of Harvard."

At Ohio State, Caudill said much sentiment is attached to the Oval and Mirror Lake, and added that the Olentangy River can be made another symbol of the campus.

A possible relocation of Olentangy River Road, he noted, would permit various buildings, especially dormitories, to be built along the river banks, thus bringing the campus to the river."

WILLIM PENA, project director for Caudill, Rowlett and Scott, urged faculty members to be concerned with the present deterioration of the adjacent neighborhoods. Pena also stressed that members of the University community must answer four questions before the final master plan is developed.

- Is a great campus really wanted at Ohio State and are the people concerned willing to make the necessary sacrifices (such as the possibility of relocating some of the colleges)?

- SHOULD plans be based on the present educational situation?

- Should the future campus be of a centralized or decentralized nature?

- Should the planners cater to the pedestrian or the automobile?

Earlier in the day, the planning consultants and Dr. Herrick met with Columbus and Franklin County officials to discuss the various basic schemes for future campus development.

Conference Begins Here

Students who want to find out more about the ideas that have made the world the way it is can do so at a conference on "Intellectual Revolution and Counter-Revolution 1859-1959" on the campus this weekend.

The conference will consist of a discussion of the work of Charles Darwin, Karl Marx and Richard Wagner. (See page 2 for a discussion of the meaning of the conference.)

IT WILL consist of four free sessions in the Ohio State Museum auditorium.

The conference will begin at 10 a.m. today with a welcome by President Novice G. Fawcett. This will be followed by a lecture on "Man and His Destiny: The Great Debate," by Dr. Andreas Dorpalen of the University's history department.

Darwinism will be the first of the three schools of thought to be discussed. The speakers are Dr. Bentley Glass of Johns Hopkins University and Dr. Richard Hofstadter, of Columbia, who will speak on "Darwinism in Modern Biology" and "Darwinism and Western Thought," respectively.

THIS SESSION will begin at 2 p.m. today.

It will be followed by a banquet in the Ohio Union at 6:30 tonight. The main speaker will be

Senate Hears Speech About Discrimination

By Don Bandy

An American Negro told Student Senate last night what it's like to be a student at Ohio State and "have a permanent suntan."

Senate Drafts Resolution for Federal Aid

By Vern Frame

Fifteen different senators took the floor last night during a 75-minute meeting and partially molded into acceptable form a two-page federal aid-to-education resolution.

The resolution, on which discussion was postponed until next week, is aimed at mandating the Senate president to ask OSU's U.S. Congressmen to consider the Senate-backed bill.

THE RESOLUTION is aimed at expanding federal aid to higher education through scholarships and lower taxes on families with college students.

Most of the time was taken up with discussion of an amendment by Bob Weiland. The amendment, which was concerned with the scholarship issue, proposed that the scholarship amounts would not differ with the College the receiving individual chose to attend. The amendment was defeated.

The resolution in original form stated that these amounts should differ according to the college. Senator Jim Turner said that the amendment would put even more strain on state universities which are already bulging at the seams.

SOME DISCUSSION also was aimed at defining what the resolution meant by the phrase, "no person shall be denied the opportunity to take these examinations (for individual scholarships) because of race, religion, creed, color, national origin, political beliefs or sex."

Marv Pliskin, Senior Senator, said that the political beliefs phrase was in direct contradiction to Section 101f of the National Defense Education Act, which deals with loyalty oaths.

Bob Young, chairman of Senate's Educational Affairs Commission, said the bill needed airing because Ohio was 44th in state grants to higher education last year.

Harlan Randolph spoke to the Senate on race relations.

HAVANA — (UPI) — A drunken Cuban tried to kill Premier Fidel Castro with a knife yesterday, on a crowded street corner, but an alert Cuban soldier prevented the assassination, according to Cuban authorities.

The attack took place when Castro appeared at a demonstration in support of his regime, in its latest political crisis.

*get a cup of coffee in a restaurant."
"I KNOW WHAT it's like to live in a place you (Senate members) would never think of living," Randolph, a graduate student in the department of speech, said.

He stated that the administration and students want to get rid of discriminatory practices at Ohio State. "These people want to do something, but they just don't know what," he said.

"How does it feel to be a Negro?" Randolph asked the Senate. "We don't have a scratch on our throat, but a cut jugular vein; nor, merely a mole, but cancer."

"DISCRIMINATION at Ohio State is a problem of practice, not of intent," said Randolph, who was president of the 1955 graduating class of Ohio State.

Randolph said white students say that student organization meetings are open to everyone. But, they charge, no Negroes ever come to the "open meetings."

Randolph said the Negro thinks of what would happen if he did come to an "open meeting." Negroes, according to Randolph, are so accustomed to living in a society where they are denied privileges that they think "the whites would probably faint if we did come."

RANDOLPH FRANKLY stated that the only way to solve problems of misunderstanding and discrimination is for people to get to know each other on an individual basis.

"We must think of each person as a single individual and accept him on the basis of his qualifications whether he is black or white."

1859 to 1959

The names of Darwin, Marx, and Wagner are household words today. They stand for natural selection, class struggle, leitmotiv, for species, class, and race. They are associated with the relationship between science and society, economics and society, and art and society. They have inspired brutality and cynicism, dedication and self-sacrifice, unbounded enthusiasm and bitter hatred. They represent challenges to religious beliefs and ethical values, to art and to scholarship. Darwin provided the moral underpinning for an anarchic individualism while Marx and Wagner led the way toward totalitarian dictatorships. Even where their doctrines were rejected, they left their imprint on the march of events. In one way or another all three men are symbols of radical changes in our time.

Early in World War II Jacques Barzun wrote an evaluation of this trinity, for, as he stated, "the twentieth century, however it may distort the original inspiration, seemingly belongs to Darwin, Marx, and Wagner. Now, almost twenty years later, the time has come to reappraise them from the perspective of the postwar world. The moment seems especially appropriate—just a hundred years ago, in 1859, all three laid down their particular theory in one of their major works. Darwin's Origin of Species, Marx's Critique of Political Economy, and Wagner's Tristan and Isolde all were completed in that year.

The three works made their appearance against a background of growing political unrest, astounding scientific and technological advances, and an unparalleled economic expansion. The stage thus was set for revolutionary changes, and the doctrines of Darwin, Marx, and Wagner were instrumental in touching them off.

Bulging Mailbag

Our mailbag is beginning to bulge with letters to the editor." And this couldn't make us happier.

The letters to the editor column is one of the most read items in any newspaper. The letters are the life of a paper.

The editors of the LANTERN encourage letters from readers. We want to know your opinions. Tell us why you are happy or why you are mad.

To be more specific, we want to know what especially doesn't please you. Maybe others have the same gripe and by bringing it to light, it can be solved.

The mind and thinking of just one person shouldn't be taken for granted. Letters to the editor can challenge and give new and different views.

Letters can also help to bring about the truth. John Milton wrote, in an article about freedom of the press, "it is a privilege to write and speak what may help to the further discussion of matters in agitation."

As readers of the LANTERN, it is indeed your privilege to write letters. So, to reiterate, let us hear from you. Whether you want to complain about something or give a compliment, we want your opinions.

Discrimination . . . Student Senate . . .

To the Editor:

Richard Hursey in his letter printed last Tuesday (Oct. 20) raised a fundamental question regarding the kind of action which should be taken in removing the blight of off-campus housing discrimination.

Mr. Hursey, though he fails to offer a solution, is correct in asserting that regulations should not offer an acceptable answer in a democratic society. Does that mean we must stand patiently by while prejudice and discrimination are slowly removed by the process of educational osmosis?

We students who live off campus can bring about reform; we can refuse to live in homes where our brothers are not welcome. This would encourage timid landlords to open their doors to all, and force the recalcitrant ones to rethink their positions.

It might be added that this technique can be applied to other areas of prejudice existing on our campus.

Lloyd E. Lee, A-2.

Prejudice . . .

To the Editor:

In a recent letter to the LANTERN, Richard Hursey said that prejudice is not in the American tradition. That is not true. The prejudice shown yesterday by Americans is our tradition today, since American tradition means what Americans have done, and will continue to do.

But Mr. Hursey meant something else; he meant that some Americans have got it into their heads that the usual treatment of Negroes in this country is unjust. Yet even many of these people discriminate, because discrimination is traditional.

It may seem strange that tradition can contain such a contradiction of thought and action, but the veil of silence resulting from the feelings of guilt and uneasiness which this contradiction produces has enabled the contradiction to survive.

I simply mean that one doesn't discuss a matter in which he feels he is "in the wrong," for being in the wrong is much easier if no one ever discusses the question. The only other defense for such feelings is to either say that we have no problem or say that nothing can be done. I have heard both. Mr. Hursey chooses the latter.

He points out that the state can do nothing legally. It is just for this reason that the University has an obligation, since, presumably, it is not a legal force so much as a spiritual one. As such, it can encourage the spiritual side of our tradition instead of the practical. If the University does not actively discourage discrimination by the landlords who surround the University, it might reasonably have pangs of conscience.

John A. Seaton, Grad.

Antibiotics were first made available for clinical use in the United States in 1940 when penicillin was produced commercially.

To the Editor:

First of all, I would like to thank the LANTERN for its greater and more extensive coverage and interest in Student Senate. However, I must say that I am sick and tired of being called an apathetic senator. Certainly there are a very few members "who attend because otherwise they will be kicked off" but this is true in any organization, not just Student Senate. Furthermore, it seems to me that an attack on Senate is an attack on its president as well yet you call our president the "best Senate President in years."

According to the editorial of Oct. 20, we in Senate have been "wasting valuable time." Since our commissions and subcommissions were only organized for this term less than two weeks ago (both with new members and two new commissioners, I might add), it is a little difficult to produce any earth-shaking motions so soon. However, in each Commission there are projects being worked on which are of interest and import to the student body. I would like to reiterate just a few.

EDUCATIONAL Affairs is working on a bill concerning Federal Aid to Education. There is an athletic subcommission set up to investigate special academic privileges, if any, given to athletes. The Human Relations Subcommission is studying discriminatory clauses in fraternity and sorority charters. Investigation was done as to the feasibility of a Student Book Co-operative and is now being handled through Scarlet 'n' Gray. (This would enable students to obtain books at lower prices than those presently existing.)

A study is being done on the University Faculty-Advisor Program—is it effective? Academic misconduct is also being considered. Again, these are just a few of our present projects. I sincerely feel that things like the above-mentioned projects are not a waste of time!

WE ARE accused of squabbling in our commission meetings—this is not true! We do, however, thoroughly discuss each motion that will be brought from the commission to the Senate floor. This is done so that each member of the commission will be familiar with the motion and will be able to capably explain it to the senators who are not on that particular commission. Now what is wrong with this? To do otherwise would be to ask the Senate to vote blindly on issues which they know nothing about! Would that be "informed" student government? I certainly do not think so.

In conclusion, I would like to urge any and all students who feel that they are as interested as or more interested than our senators to attend our commission and Senate meetings.

Pat Anderson, Junior Senator

Instructor . . .

To the Editor:

The student sociology instructor:

Plusses:

1. Is able to keep class from becoming prejudiced toward material being studied. Method: Speaks in monotone so as not to mislead with inflection and intonation.

2. Is able to give beautifully inspired lectures. Method: Reads same material assigned to class for previous evening. (Spices course often by giving brief quizzes on material he is about to cover.)

Minuses:

1. Keeps room closed tightly and allows heat from furnace to permeate same.

2. Worries class about his state of health by continually remaining hunched over and motionless. Also: barely moves lips—this often creates great consternation.

Background on instructor: none known. Is perhaps writing thesis on teaching methods.

Microtext Material Saves 'All the News'

By David Young

If you want to know who said what in the Boston Evening Post in August, 1785, go to the Special Materials room in the basement of the Main Library.

This division of the Circulation Department has within its walls government documents, Ohio State theses and dissertations, U. S. Patents and newspapers.

MOST OF these are on microtext materials which are blown up for readability by any one of four machines located in the same room.

The main contribution of microtext materials is that they enable out-of-print newspapers, titles, etc., which are not in sufficient demand to warrant reprinting, to be reproduced.

Mrs. J. L. Robinson, library assistant in charge of the division, stressed that current materials are available as well as those from the past.

ALL MATERIALS are at the disposal of students, faculty members and other persons connected with the University. Off-campus individuals may use the facilities although they are not allowed to take out any of the material.

Among the 33 American daily newspapers on hand, there are copies from Maryland, Iowa, Ohio and Washington, D. C. The most popular is the New York Times which is represented as far back as 1851.

There are 30 foreign newspapers in the division which come from such diverse countries as England, Germany, China, U.S.S.R. and Cyprus. Among these is the airmail edition of the London Times, which takes two or three days to reach the library. Its editions date back to 1877.

ALL MATERIAL on U. S. Government Patents is available as far back as 1861.

There is other material on Congressional Hearings, British Sessional Papers, Russian historical documents and the Evans' Collection of Early American Imprints.

If one desires to make a duplication of any of the microtext materials, he can do so with the Thermofax. This machine reproduces the material in 20-30 seconds. There is a charge of ten cents for each page duplicated.

Sophs Get Big Chance Saturday

Will Get Big Test Against Badgers

By Phil Rohr

If Woody Hayes' group of "green" sophomores are ever to come into their own, Saturday's class with the Wisconsin Badgers will be a most opportune time.

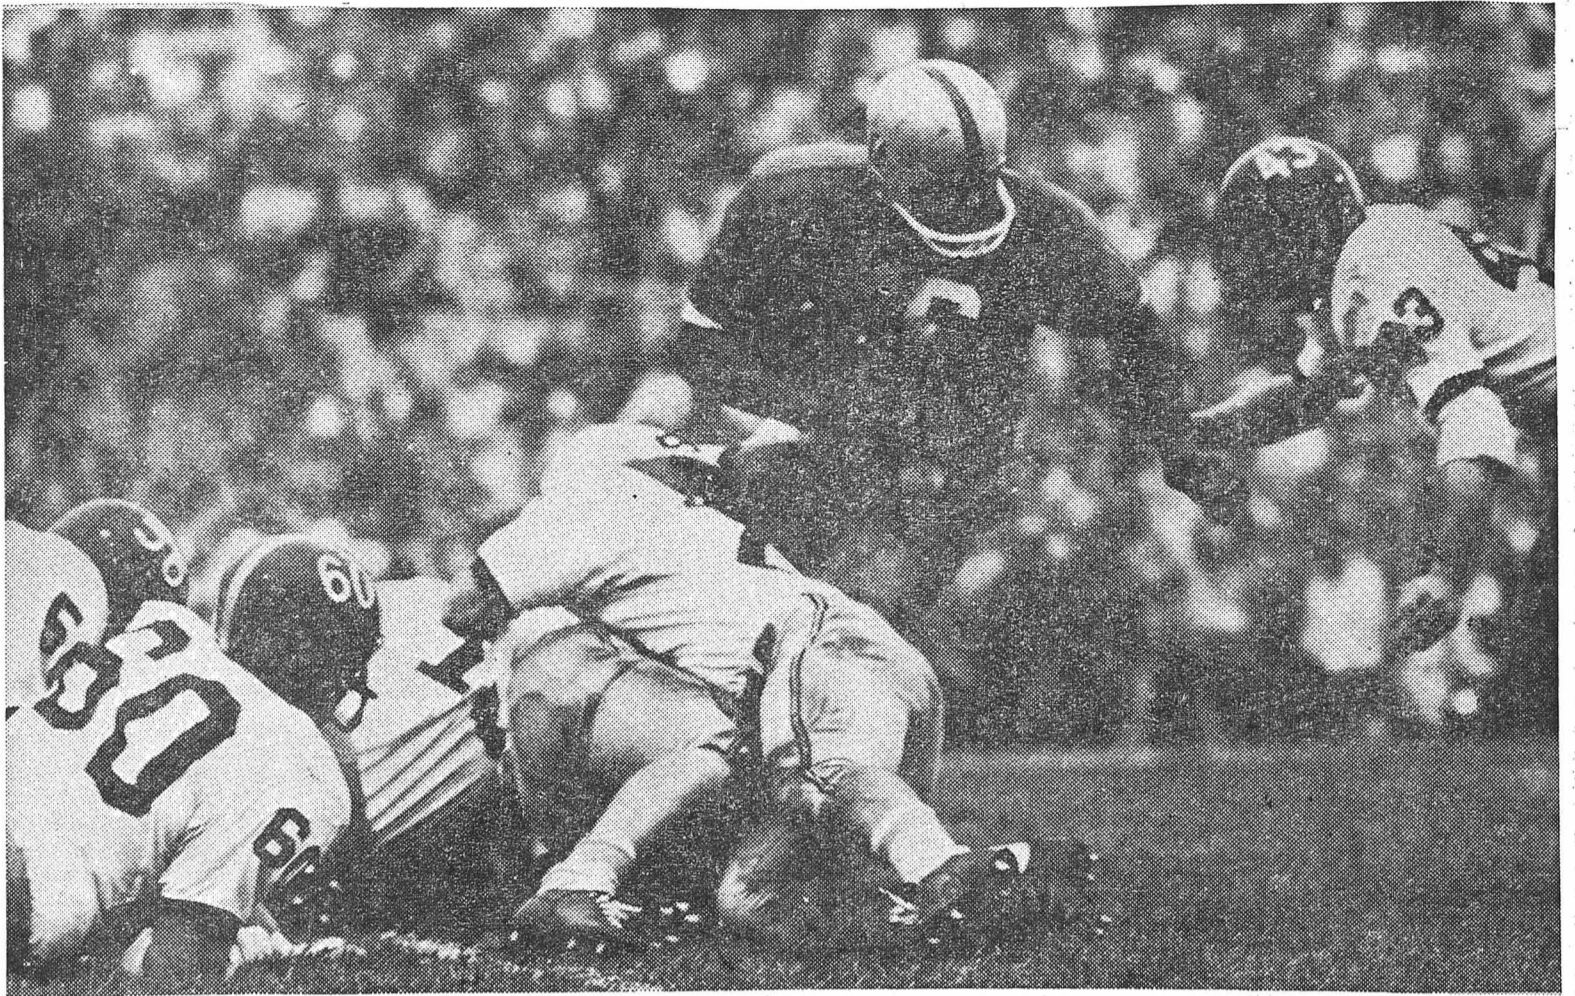

The Badger invasion will be a good opportunity for the sophs to display their wares because (1) the Bucks want to extend their "jinx" over the Badgers that has lasted since 1944; (2) a loss would eliminate them from Rose Bowl consideration; and (3) they want to prove that last week's win over Purdue was no fluke.

LEADING THE SOPHS will be blockbuster Bob Ferguson who, after only four games, has established himself as a capable Big Ten back. Ferguson is the second leading ground gainer on the Buckeye squad behind fullback Bob White. In 27 carries the Troy flash has gained 129 yards while losing only three for a net gain of 126 yards. His average gain per carry has been 4.6 yards, tops on the squad.

Ferguson was rated as the top player on last year's freshman team and was a unanimous choice as All-Ohio for two years while attending Troy High School. Bob was a fullback in high school, but Hayes shifted him to left half during spring drills this year when a shortage of halfbacks cropped up. Ferguson is considered the hardest running back on the squad.

Another top sophomore "find" graded four passes good for 41 yards.

PERDUE, ONE of the most versatile members of Hayes' squad, twice won All-West Virginia hon-

FERGUSON RUNS WILD—Bob Ferguson, one of the hardest running backs in the Big Ten, will be one of the sophomores to watch this Saturday as Ohio State takes on the Badgers of Wisconsin at Madison, Wis. This will be a "make or break" game for the Bucks if they plan on going very far in the Big Ten race, and Woody Hayes is counting heavily on Ferguson and some of the other sophs to provide the spark that will be necessary.

ors as a fullback. He also won eight other letters in high school, including three in basketball and four in baseball.

Hayes moved Perdue to end in spring drills and the Huntington flash responded by catching two touchdown passes in the annual spring intra-squad game. His pass catching ability was the main reason for his move from fullback to end.

Chuck Bryant, a 6 ft. 1 in. 209 pounder from Zanesville, plays both this season has been Tom Perdue of Huntington, W. Va. Perdue has hind Perdue at left end and may get his chance to start this Saturday. If Bryant starts he will be used mainly on offense while Perdue will stick to defense.

BRYANT STARTED the season with a handicap because he missed his entire freshman season due to a knee injury. An All-Ohio as halfback during his high school days, Bryant was converted to end and is considered a fine prospect by Hayes and his staff.

Bryant's father, Clay, was a pitcher in the Chicago Cubs organization and is now manager for one of Los Angeles' farm clubs. Chuck would like to follow his started all four games this season and is the second leading pass-father's footsteps with a career in pro baseball. He was also a fine basketball player in high school.

Bryant holds the distinction of being the only Buckeye having caught a TD pass this season. He scored the winning touchdown in the Duke game when he grabbed one of Tom Matte's passes with only two minutes remaining in the game.

BRYANT IS THE leading pass catcher for the Bucks this season as he has caught eight passes, good for 106 yards.

Perhaps the top soph on the squad is bruising Mike Ingram. Ingram, a terror on defense, was catcher on the team. He has snagged "lineman of the week" for his heroics against Purdue last Saturday.

Other top sophomore prospects who may see action against Wisconsin tomorrow afternoon are Roger Detrick, Ron Houck, Paul Martin, Lynn Strait, and Jack Wallace, and Bill German.

GERMAN, WHO was not even listed on the pre-season roster, came along fast at the beginning of fall practice and was rated as a fine defensive player. An injury has prevented him from playing in the last two games and his status for tomorrow's game is also uncertain.

'There's No Tomorrow'—For The Loser

By Bernie Karsko

In its 63-year existence, a Big Ten team has never won or tied for the Western Conference crown after losing more than one game.

With history having the funny way it does of repeating itself, the loser Saturday will have gulped the fatal potion as far as their title hopes are concerned.

WISCONSIN has not beaten the Bucks since 1946. Esco Sarkinen has warned that the Badgers want this one so badly that they can taste it. And it's now or never, since 9 of their starters and 14 of the first 22 men are seniors.

Coach Milt Bruhn has called this year's squad the best in Badger history and you won't find much argument to the contrary in coaching circles in spite of their 21-0 loss to Purdue.

Dale Hackbart is back handling the Wisconsin offense for the last time this season. For those who may have forgotten, he is the boy who proved the back breaker in last year's 7-7 tie when he covered 64 rain-soaked yards on a punt return to give Wisconsin a lead in the third period.

ON HIS performance Saturday may well hang the outcome of the game, for the statistics prove that "as Hackbart goes, so goes Wisconsin."

With 114 yards in 32 attempts, he is touted as the Badgers' best running back this year. Add to this the 324 yards he has racked up through the air, with 22 completions in 41 attempts, and you come up with what is probably the most talented field general the Bucks have faced to date.

While the Bucks will be seeing the same Hackbart this year and quite a few other familiar faces, the offense they will have to counter will be unlike anything they have been up against this year.

WISCONSIN USES Hackbart in the normal "T" quarterback slot but from there on the similarity to a straight "T" ends. The two halfbacks line up directly behind and in line with Hackbart. Flanked to either side will be a wingback.

Although the oddsmakers have given Wisconsin a seven-point edge, the scouting reports from Sark make the two teams look like identical twins with only the color of their uniform distinguishing them.

The overall team size and speed is similar. Karl Holzwarth, sporting three field goals to his credit, is Madison Land's answer to Dave Kilgore.

THE BADGERS also boast a one-two quarterback punch in Dale Hackbart and Jim Baaken closely akin to the style and capabilities of the Bucks' QB duo.

Kicking has always played a vital role in the outcome of Ohio State-Wisconsin clashes; and here too it is even steven with the Badgers averaging 38.2 per try and the Bucks an even 38 yards.

Two weeks ago while Illinois took the measure of the Scarlet and Gray, 9-0, Purdue was shutting out the Badgers, 21-0.

AGAIN LAST WEEK with the Bucks pulling an upset over the Boilermakers, Wisconsin followed suit and surprised Iowa with a 25-16 win.

Both Bruhn and Hayes will be platooning. Only Hayes will use his second unit at will while Bruhn uses his second squad in the last 3-5 minutes of each quarter.

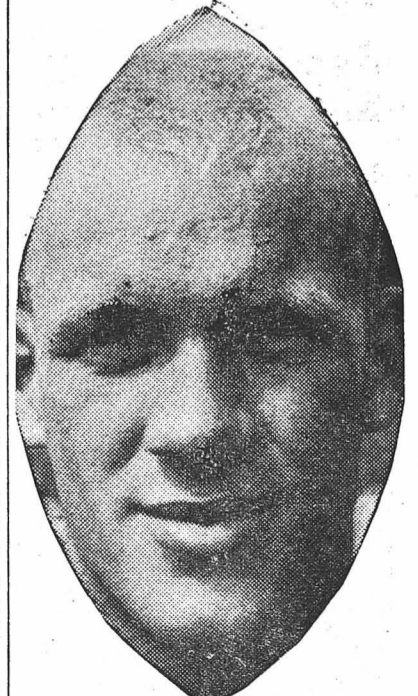

About the only place where the Badgers really hold an edge is in the size of their linemen. And this is one of the factors that poses the question—will Woody stick to the three yards, etc., etc.

THE BADGERS have been as vulnerable as a gooney bird in the air. In four games, opponents Badgers who have been unable to knock down 65 of them. To put it a little simpler, 60 per cent of the passes thrown against them have been completed. They have yielded 797 yards net passing for a near 200 per game. Seven of the eight touchdowns scored have been on pass plays. Purdue scored all of their TD's via this method.

Weigh this with a Wisconsin line that averages 220 pounds and has only given 483 yards on the ground, less than 120 per game, then answer the question—will Hayes try to be the first to open the Badger wall or will he resort to the methods which have worked for other Badger foes?

Only Woody knows the answer and the decision may be the biggest he has made this year.

OSU Athletic Council OK's Reprimand

"The Council is assured that there will be no reoccurrence of such incidents."

This is part of the statement dispatched to Elmer F. Baumer, chairman of the faculty group, requesting action on the much discussed Hayes-hitting-sportswriter incident.

THE COUNCIL, acting Wednesday night at the request of the Conference committee of the teaching staff, a faculty group, said in a statement it "supports the action of the athletic director in reprimanding Coach Hayes for his part in this regrettable incident, whatever the provocation."

The incident followed Ohio State's loss to Southern California Oct. 2, when Hayes was accused by two sportswriters of "swinging" at them. Hayes, denying he took a punch at the writers, admitted he "pushed" one.

ASSISTANT athletic director Ed Weaver represented the athletic department in place of Director Dick Larkins who was ill all day with the flu.

Larkins, reached at his home, said he "consider(ed) the matter closed," adding, "I handled it administratively and don't want to hear anything more about it."

Track Team Holds Meet

The track team's third intra-squad cross-country meet today at the golf course, will be over a distance of one and one-half miles. The varsity won the first race, a one mile, 25-31, and the frosh won the second, 28-29, in a one and one-half mile go.

Fifteen to 30 men run every night as the thinclads get into shape for the coming indoor season, said Charlie Beetham, assistant coach.

Varsity standouts include Jim Massey, Allan Stevens, Dale McCormack, Jack Knoll and Bill Fry.

Jim Davis, Class AA one-mile champion last year, Frank Parks, Class A one, and one and one-half mile champion, and Alex Fultz, cross-country champion in 1957, lead the freshman runners along with Don Bailey and Larry White.

Beetham will run the squad in a one and one-half mile race next week and a two-mile race in two weeks.

Dave Camaione: Wrestler, Leader, Student 130-Pounder In Second Year As Buck Captain

By Ken Koblit

It is high praise when a coach says of one of his men. "I'd like my son to have him as a coach."

This is what wrestling Coach Casey Frederick says of Dave

Camaione now serving his second year as Buckeye wrestling captain.

THE SENIOR physical education major will be trying to win the Big Ten 130-pound title this year, after finishing as runner-up last March. He was beaten 6-5 in the finals by Norm Young of Michigan State, after decisioning Young 3-1 during the regular season.

His record last season was 11-1 in dual meet competition and 13-3 over all. In the NCAA meet he finished fifth and would like to improve on that this year.

DAVE WON NINE varsity letters at Watertown, N. Y. high school, including three each in cross-country, wrestling and track. He was three times sectional champion in cross-country and twice sectional and intersectional champion in wrestling.

"My greatest thrill was being named Outstanding Athlete at Watertown in my senior year," he said.

Dave is a leader off the mat as well as in competition. He serves as president of the Men's Physical Education Association and carries a 2.8 point-hour. Aside from these activities, Dave works from 6-9 each night for the Department of Taxation.

"I have no special hobby," said Dave, "but I love to participate in sports of all kinds, especially tennis."

AFTER GRADUATION, Dave would like to do graduate work in physical education and assist Coach Frederick with the wrestling team.

Says Casey, "Dave has been a tremendous captain and I certainly hope he will be back next year. I know he will do a fine job as a coach. The boys really respect him."

Dave is optimistic about the prospects for this year. "The team looks terrific and the boys reported in good shape and are working hard. This team has a wonderful spirit and it's a real privilege to be captain."

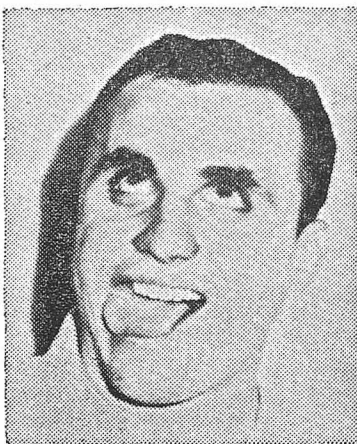

DAVE CAMAIONE—Captain of the Buck wrestling squad.

"THE WORM TURNS"

Shakespeare said it this way:
"The smallest worm will turn, being trodden on."
But Miguel de Cervantes beat him to it in "Don Quixote", Part II, Book 3:
"Even a worm when trod upon, will turn again."

"MUSIC HAS CHARMS"

The 17th Century playwright, William Congreve, was the first to set down this classic metaphor concerning the powers of sound and rhythm. You'll find the whole quote in "The Mourning Bride", Act I, Sc. 1:

"Music hath charms to soothe the savage breast,
To soften rocks, or bend a knotted oak."

"RHYME OR REASON"

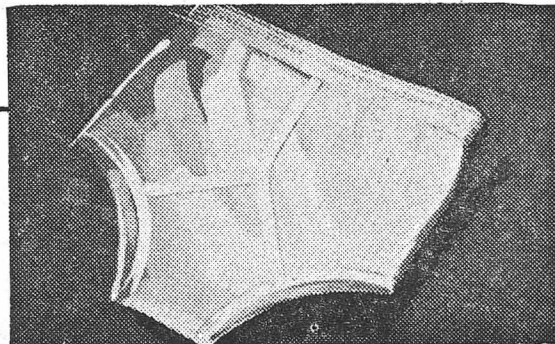

Edmund Spenser, 16th Century poet, expected a pension. He didn't get it. So he wrote this rhyme:
"I was promised on a time/To have reason for my rhyme;/From that time unto this season,/I received nor rhyme nor reason."

WOMEN WIN

HAMILTON, Ga. — (UPI) — State Highway Board member Robert Jordan has uncovered statistics showing women are safer drivers than men.

"I hesitate to release these figures," he told the Hamilton Chamber of Commerce in an address last night, "because they disprove everything the men have been saying." The figures:

There were 67,386 male drivers involved in accidents last year, while only 14,406 women drivers were involved in accidents.

Jordan said he dug up the statistics when he learned a number of women would be in his audience.

OSU School of Music Plans Varied Program This Fall

Have you ever been to a graduating recital? If not, there are seven scheduled for this quarter in Hughes Hall Auditorium.

Graduating seniors of the school of music must appear before a faculty jury before scheduling a recital. This comprises a music major's professional debut. Dr. Harry Bruinsma, director of the school of music, says that the public is invited to attend these events.

THE SCHOOL is presenting a wide program of events this quarter. The University Concert Band and the Symphony Orchestra will present programs in Mershon Auditorium on Nov. 8 and 22, respectively.

On Dec. 2, the Brass Choir will appear in Hughes Hall Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

THERE WILL also be a Christmas Festival of Choral Music, which will be presented Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m. in Mershon. Both this program and the Messiah are directed by Professor Louis Diercks.

Various groups connected with the school of music will present off-campus performances this quarter. Dr. Bruinsma said that the school attempts to present a varied program each quarter both on and off campus.

NEWS IN REVIEW

Compiled by Alton Brown

The nation's 101-day-old steel strike overshadowed the many news events this past week. A Federal order invoking the Taft-Hartley injunction was held off by the Administration, until the last possible avenue of settlement had been investigated, by a three-member fact-finding board. Monday morning, the Board handed their report to President Eisenhower, and in effect, the report stated that no substantial progress had been made.

The actual injunction was signed by a Federal judge in Pittsburgh on Wednesday afternoon. Only 74 minutes after the order was signed, which would have sent some 500,000 steelworkers back to work for an 80-day cooling-off period, Union lawyers filed an appeal in Philadelphia to counter the injunction.

To this writing, a panel of three Federal judges are ruling on the appeal . . . allowing the striking workers to remain on strike.

Arthur H. Goldberg, Union General Counsel, said that the court should toss out the Taft-Hartley Injunction on grounds that it was Unconstitutional and unneeded because the nation was not—in contradiction to a statement by President Eisenhower—imperiled by the walkout.

Assistant U.S. Attorney General George C. Doub, who argued for the government, said the union gave no argument on which the Court could base its decision.

Many observers felt that undoubtedly the government would win its case and the injunction will be issued, sometime soon. They viewed this appeal by the union as a "last-ditch stand" to prevent the issuance of the injunction order.

'Surprise'

In a surprise move on Tuesday, President Eisenhower summoned his top military and science advisers to a White House Conference to discuss the nation's much-criticized Missile and Space Exploration programs.

The Conference was called on the heels of the resignation of Major General John Medaris, an Ohio State graduate, as head of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency. It also followed a blast by Dr. Wernher Von Braun at official decision on what this country wants to do in space.

On Wednesday, the White House announced the impending transfer of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency to the National Aeronautic and Space Agency, a civilian government function. President Eisenhower's proposed transfer cannot become effective until Congress creates the needed legislation.

Get Out!

Russell Langelie, ousted from Russia by the Soviet government last week, arrived back in the U.S. and denied that he had used his job as Security Officer at the U.S. Embassy in Moscow as a front for espionage activities as charged by the Russians.

The 37-year-old diplomatic official also denied Soviet charges that he had been carrying a little black book, in which information had been jotted in invisible ink. Langelie asserted that the book had been planted on him while he was riding a bus or when he was being searched by the NKVD.

Langelie added that he believed that the Secret Police had picked him up because of his job in Moscow. At the U.S. Embassy he was responsible for the full security of the Embassy, including physical property, classified documents, codes and all personal matters.

Thumbs Down

Last week, French President Charles De Gaulle turned "thumbs down" on President Eisenhower's suggestion that an East-West Summit Conference be held as early as December. A French government spokesman said that it should be held next spring.

Washington officials said that they had no objection to the delay. Their reaction reflected a note of flexibility as they added that the conference could be held as late as February or even March.

De Gaulle's move stirred speculation that he wanted to delay any meeting at the Summit until he had a chance to talk personally to Premier Khrushchev.

The U.S. and Britain were known to favor an East-West Summit conference in the first week in December. Officials in London welcomed the announcement, but added that they still wanted a Summit meeting as "soon as possible."

... Taps ...

On Tuesday, General George Catlett Marshall was given a final resting place, on a quiet slope in Arlington Cemetery, overlooking the Capital of the nation he served so long as a soldier and statesman.

In keeping with his last wishes, only members of his family were present at the graveside ceremony, just below the tombs of America's Unknown Soldiers.

Marshall died last Friday at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington after suffering a series of strokes and from kidney complications.

Two Presidents and comrades in war and peace—President Eisenhower and former President Truman—were among the 200 mourners paying final tribute to the General of the Army at a private chapel service in nearby Ft. Meyer, Va., just preceding the simple military burial.

The Nobel Peace Prize winner, who authored the famous European Recovery Plan (better known as the Marshall Plan), had among his pallbearers two cadets from the Virginia Military Institute. He was one of the few top military commanders who did not attend West Point. Marshall was 78 years old.

Senate Hears Racial Speech

"We must think of each Negro as a person without immediately categorizing him with the 17,000,000 Negroes in this country," he said.

"FOR COLOR becomes a decisive issue in world problems. Freedom must exist for individuals regardless of color. We cut ourselves out of maximum development in the world today if we continue discriminatory practices in our democracy."

"Remember, my problem is not like a cavity—it is like a throbbing toothache. You can do all the thinking you want to do about my toothache—but remember, this tooth is killing me."

At the close of his talk, Randolph was greeted with a standing ovation. He was invited to speak at Senate as a result of his work at a National Human Relations Seminar at the University of Illinois this summer.

He is now working closely with the Ohio State Senate Human Relations Committee on discrimination problems.
