Sheriffs search for I-270 shooter

Only one other shooting linked to Tuesday's death

By Amy McCullough Lantern campus editor

A series of shootings along Interstate 270 have received national attention after the fatal shooting of Gail Knisley, 62, on Tuesday.

Knisley was shot around 10 a.m. on I-270 near state Route 23. Tuesday's shooting on Columbus' south side is the first to result in death or serious injury, according to a statement released from the Franklin County Sheriff's office yesterday.

Only one other shooting has been linked to the fatal shooting Tuesday, but the sheriff's office continues to work in collaboration with local state and federal agencies in the investigation. The first shooting occurred in May, and the rest occurred over the last seven weeks but were not linked because reports were filed with different agencies in the area.

According to local media, the shots were fired at different times of the day, and the shooter does not seem to be targeting a specific type of vehicle.

Officials refuse to comment on the possible motive of the shooter or speculate on the person's background, according to the statement. Investigators are hesitant to call the shooter a "sniper," until more information is gathered.

There is not enough information available at this time to form an opinion, and to speculate would be irresponsible. We do know that anyone that is willing to shoot at a moving vehicle, occupied by people, most likely traveling at the

Internet addiction an epidemic

Prolonged usage may lead to changes in mood, behavior patterns

By Adam Crawford Lantern staff writer

Spending endless hours on the Internet chatting to friends, exploring Web pages and neglecting life's obligations may be warning signs of Internet addiction.

With the rapid growth of the Internet in recent years, researchers are discovering Internet abuse may affect the quality of people's lives.

.Student has motorsports on the brain

By Sarah Aldrich Lantern staff writer

The smell of exhaust fumes fills the air and the roar of modified engines and four-wheel drive trucks are lined up as far as the eye can see.

For one Ohio State student,

this is heaven.

Brandon Kinzer, a senior in agricultural construction systems management, has been fascinated with motorsports his entire life.

In fourth grade, a time when most children are still mastering the complexities of a seat belt, this Greenfield, Ohio, native built his first model engine for a science fair project.

Fourteen years have passed since his science fair days, but Kinzer's interest in all things mechanical has continued to

When his uncle Bobby's tractor pulls ignited Kinzer's curiosity of engines and their capabilities, his father, Dan Kinzer, was there to teach his son everything

Brandon Kinzer said his curiosity was not easily satisfied. "Anything a vehicle entails, I had to do," Kinzer said.

When Kinzer was 14, his uncle died in a truck accident. His uncle's devotion to pulling left an impression on Kinzer that fueled his desire to leave his own tread marks on the pulling track.

"Around that time, I started to get a serious itch. Before, I always loved it (motor sports), but was too young to do anything with it," Kinzer said.

Using his uncle's leftover tractor parts, Kinzer dreamed of building his own seven-engine unlimited modified pulling tractor. As a teenager with a limited cash flow, however, he turned his focus to the more affordable truck world and began to get his hands dirty.

After purchasing a $450, 1969 flatbed, Kinzer said, "It was all downhill from there. I wanted to make it better, more powerful, stronger, faster.

As Kinzer researched and learned more about performance competition, his mind raced with the endless possibilities.

'If he sets his mind to doing "He has a very keen mechani- something, he will get it done,"

Then his gears really started turning.

Kinzer's latest undertaking began last year with the modification of his 1978 Ford F350. In two-and-a-half weeks he turned it from a $500 junkyard find into a serious pulling competitor, earning second place out of 28 trucks at the 2002 Highland County Fair.

Success came with minimal sleep as he rebuilt the engine and suspension, installed a new rear axle, custom built a new hitch and rebuilt the entire inside of

"If I needed something engineered for a truck or (help) to figure out why it does this or does that, he'd be there to help," said Ronnie Hall, Kinzer's long-time friend. "He's full of ideas."

"He's there to win and I'm there to win. We're friendly faceto-face, but we're at each other's throats," Hall said.

The thrill of competition is clearly visible through the determined look in Kinzer's eyes.

"He doesn't like to lose. Brandon will do whatever he has to do to beat everybody," said Evan Davis, a junior in agricultural construction systems management.

Kinzer's determination has paid off, though, because success frequently comes his way. In the past two seasons, tractor pull competitions throughout southern Ohio have regularly awarded him top honors.

Despite the strong competition between Kinzer, Hall and Davis, in 2000 they started a club out of Highland County called Finishing Touch's 4x4 Club. Members of the club regularly compete with their fourwheel drive trucks and are known throughout the commudrive off-road shop and tailoring his business to truck pulling.

"My passion for motorsports every day gets bigger," Kinzer said. "I eat, breathe and sleep figuring out how to make trucks pull better. AIDS awareness

Number infected at new high

With an estimated 40 million people living with HIV and AIDS, today's World AIDS Day serves as a national reminder of a growing epidemic. "Live and let live" is the slogan of the two-year campaign that began in 2002, focusing on eliminating stigma and discrimination against people with HIV and AIDS.

According to the World AIDS Day campaign, "people with or suspected of having HIV may be turned away from health care services, denied housing and employment, shunned by their friends and colleagues, turned down for insurance coverage or refused entry into foreign countries." As a result people are less inclined to publicly admit they are sick and prevention awareness becomes more difficult.

When HIV entered the public sphere in the early to mid-1980s, all attention was drawn to demystifying the virus that led to the fatal illness AIDS. Now that 20 years has passed, HIV and AIDS has become another persistent problem many have become immune to except for those living with it.

Organizations such as the World Health Organization, the world AIDS campaign and the Columbus AIDS Taskforce have fought to serve as advocates, reminding people the devastating statistics are real and the medical treatments, while there, aren't enough. Meanwhile, much of American society has turned deaf ears, more preoccupied by the economy or the situation in Iraq.

But in the United States, about 900,000 people are HIV positive, more than at any other time, and the numbers are growing. According to the Center for Disease Control and Prevention about 40,000 new HIV cases are reported a year. In Africa, 26.6 million people Southern Africa is the worst containing less than two percent of the global population, but home to 30 percent of people living with HIV/AIDS. Poverty, lack of medical treatment and awareness are all factors leading to AIDS being the No.1 cause of death in Africa.

The numbers prove HIV / AIDS effects everyone.

Locally, 172 HIV cases were reported in Franklin County, contributing to the 799 in Ohio. Of those people, many live hidden lives, rejected by the ignorance of others. With the focus on stigma and discrimination, World AIDS day should encourage people to speak out and break the "barriers to effective HIV/AIDS prevention and care." Only as a whole society can the AIDS epidemic be defeated.

Morale booster

Bush's Iraq trip not PR move

President Bush made a surprise visit to see the troops in Iraq on Thanksgiving Day. The top secret visit made Bush the first ever U.S. president to visit Critics are calling the visit a pre-election public relations stunt. Claims are being made that the visit to Iraq in which the president gave a speech and served food to the troops was simply a campaign stop for the presidential election which is less than 12 months away.

The visit might have aided in Bush's re-election campaign, but people need to look at the visit as more than a PR move. Bush said to the soldiers, "We thank you for your service, we're proud of you and America stands solidly behind you." The visit and the remarks to soldiers from the president will help aid the morale of the troops in Iraq.

People who look at the visit as a PR stunt have pre-conceived notions that anything President Bush does to try to be thoughtful or caring is simply a campaign strategy. He made the trip for reasons much more important than his re-election

Thanksgiving is a day Americans are accustomed to spending with family. The troops in Iraq were not afforded such a luxury. Instead they must depend on each other amid growing resistance in Iraq. The combination of these two factors called for a morale booster, which the president provided.

On Air Force One on the way home from Iraq, Bush told reporters why he made the visit and how he felt about visiting the troops. 'It's got to be a lonely moment for them," Bush said. "I thought it was important to send the message that we care for them and we support them strongly, that we erase any doubts in their minds as to whether or not the people stand with them ... Having seen the reaction of those troops, you know it was the right thing to do."

The American media and the American people are entitled to their own opinion on the president's visit to Iraq and his commentary about the visit. But even those against the war in Iraq should realize this was a good thing to do for the troops in

Smokers get the shaft

7hen I heard a smoking ban in Toledo was passed this August, I knew the day would come when the city of Columbus would have to undergo the trendy new debate of whether to go smokeless.

In Columbus, the pressure has come from the SmokeFree Columbus Coalition, a group reportedly composed of "business, health and community leaders" who want to sound the death knell for public smoking in Columbus and eventually the state of Ohio.

Their proposals aim to put any smoker who leaves his house and any bar that wants his business in a very dangerous

Even for many who insist that businesses need a conscience regulated by the government, letting the state or county make logistical decisions such as the legality of smoking — that should be left to small-business owners themselves seems somewhat bizarre, almost Orwellian. There are other legal issues as well, especially those concerning the Constitutionality of majority and minority concerns for smokers and non-smokers.

But if and when the tricky legal philosophizing about the above issues is contained, the question on most people's minds remains: How will local businesses fare if a ban is enacted?

"Leaders" like Shelly Kiser, spokeswoman for Tobacco-Free Ohio, insist, "The tobacco industry has perpetuated the myth that clean indoor air laws hurt business for one reason: Clean indoor air laws hurt the tobacco industry's

While most understand that Big Tobacco has its hand well into the cookie jar of the American political economy, let's face it: Smokers in Columbus will not go to bars where they can't smoke, and bars that go smoke free will lose a large portion of their clientele.

If the SFCC doesn't agree — and want to be stubborn in their ungrounded optimism — why don't they answer the tough questions. I would ask Rob Crane, the founder of the Preventing Tobacco Addiction Foundation, this: If smoke-free legislation won't hurt local bars, why haven't any made the jump already?

To his comrades, I would ask simply: If there is such a public desire for bars that are smoke free, why haven't bars identified this niche market and made the decision themselves?

The answers may not be as optimistic as the SFCC wants them to be. When the ban went into effect in Toledo, many tavern owners saw drastic drops in profits. According to The Akron Beacon-Journal, Eric Trychel, a local bar owner, lost over $200 on the first night of the ban.

"(the ban) is going to put this town out of business," he said. "We're done."

That may be an overstatement. But bars owners are hurt more deeply than any other business owners in a smoke-free city. Smoking, drinking and socializing have gone hand in hand for centuries and in many major U.S. cities. The local bar has remained the Alamo for a smoking community that has endured disappearing smoking sections in restaurants, school buildings, stadiums and other public places.

It is in bars that a demonized smoking community has the strongest case to their rights. Unlike restaurants and stores, bars are not places for the two main groups that anti-smoking campaigns love to overrepresent as victims: young children and pregnant women. Bars are places for the legal intake of much more harmful substances ... you know, the consumption of mass amounts of alcohol.

smoking campaigns reaches in whenever it likes, and what coalitions like these are never able to do is something that smokers have been willing to do for the last two decades: compromise.

And in a world without compromise,

But even in bars, the long arm of anti-bring joy into people's lives. I can imagine the first comedians surfaced around the time fire was discovered. The first joke probably happened when four cavemen were sitting around the fire talking about women and one of them said how much better his wife looked naked before he could see her.

Good humor lets us escape our daily routines. No matter how bad your day was, you can always sit down and watch "Seinfeld" or "The Simpsons," and for a half hour forget about your problems and just laugh.

Laughter allows us to get our minds away from anything. Why do you think comedians are always gong overseas to entertain our military? Because next to looking at Marilyn Monroe, laughing is the best way to lift up your mood.

Humor itself is the act of being laughable. A people's sense of humor allows them the opportunity to pick and choose what they think is funny. Not all people have the same sense of humor, and that is why we see some of the things we do today.

Shows like "South Park," "Saturday Night Live," "Punk'd" and "Friends" are all made for different audiences.

Some people like crude humor, some like witty humor, some like humor at the expense of others, and some people like good-hearted humor.

It's the same with movies. For everyone who enjoys "Old School" or "Animal House," there's someone who enjoys the "Beverly Hills Cop" trilogy or "Loaded Weapon."

People have different tastes in comedians and actors too. For each Richard Pryor or George Carlin fan, there's a Jeff Foxworthy or Mike Myers fan. And for each person who watches medicine, and it doesn't cost a dime.

People can say they don't think one thing is funny or how can someone possibly laugh at that, but this is what makes humor unique. It's different for

While it is true that people can have similar senses of humor, just like snow flakes, no two are alike. And this is why we have such a large variety of humor to surround ourselves.

Humor at the most basic level is nothing more than friends sitting around telling stories and being themselves.

Humor doesn't care about where you've been or where you're going. All humor cares about is helping you get there with a smile.

Humor is a constant reminder that things can be OK. That it's alright to not be serious and focused all the time and that it's alright to let loose and cut up a bit. Humor lets us know we shouldn't get embarrassed if we say or do something "stupid." Humor lets us

Because nothing people do with their sense of humor should make them look stupid to anyone. Even if no one else thinks its funny, one person does. And that's all that really matters

One of the keys to having a good life is having a good sense of humor. Being able to laugh at a joke, appreciate a funny movie and being able to laugh at yourself will do wonders for the body.

Why do you think George Burns lived to be 100 years old? Not because he took great care of his body, but because he was a comedian and had spent his whole life laughing.

After all, laughter is the best

Malvo's lawyers subpoena convicted sniper as witness

CHESAPEAKE, Va. — Convict- stand in Malvo's case is "zero." ed sniper mastermind John Allen Muhammad could find himself in another courtroom this week, this time as a witness in the trial of his alleged partner in crime, an 18year-old who sees Muhammad as a father figure

Lee Boyd Malvo's lawyers have subpoenaed Muhammad and plan to call him to the stand this week.

Whether he will be willing to testify remains to be seen, however. Muhammad, whose trial ended last week with a Virginia Beach jury recommending the death sentence, still faces prosecution in several other states.

Any testimony by Muhammad in Malvo's trial could provide fodder for those prosecutions. His attorneys also hope to get the death sentence overturned on appeal or reduced by the trial judge when Muhammad is formally sentenced in February.

Foreign support targeted in Iraq

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Insurgents killed two South Korean electricians yesterday, a day after seven Spaniards, two Japanese diplomats and a Colombian contractor were slain in roadside ambushes aimed at undermining international support for the U.S.-led occupation of Iraq.

Rebels also killed two U.S. soldiers and wounded a third, as U.S. and allied officials vowed that multinational forces would not be cowed in their mission to rebuild Iraq after the ouster of Saddam Hussein.

"They clearly are targeting coalition members in an effort to intimidate all allies in Iraq and discourage their participation in the reconstruction of Iraq," said coalition spokesman Dan Senor. "The enemies of freedom ... are trying to break the coalition's will."

Spanish and Japanese officials said the deaths wouldn't change their commitments to Iraq, and Senor said the alliance wouldn't be weakened.

"Our freedom is threatened by all terrorists," Spain's Prime Minister Jose Marie Aznar said yesterday in a speech broadcast in Spain. "We know that a withdrawal would be the worst route we could take."

In Baghdad, Senor, the spokesman for the top U.S. official in Iraq, L. Paul Bremer, said of U.S. allies: "They intend to stay the course. Their will is stiffened and the reconstruction goes on.'

But the chairman of the U.S. Senate's foreign relations committee, Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said yesterday that the attacks risk driving U.S. allies out of Iraq. He said the insurgents appear to understand that their attacks put pressure on international forces to stay away

PITTSBURGH — The Cincinnati Bengals aren't supposed to win like this. Not against this team or against these odds. Not at this time of the season or in so big a

Somehow they did, and the franchise that could barely win a game of any kind for 12 seasons now has the kind of season-defining victory that can lead to championships.

Jon Kitna's third touchdown pass, an 18-yarder in the rear of the end zone to Matt Schobel with 13 seconds left, finished a lastminute drive that carried the Bengals past the rival Pittsburgh Steelers 24-20 yesterday.

The Bengals (7-5) not only won heir fourth in a row and sixth in seven games to set up a first-place showdown next week in Baltimore, they all but eliminated the Steelers (4-8). Pittsburgh won six of the last nine titles in the AFC North or Central. The Steelers are one loss away from their third losing season in the last five.

"In years past, we didn't win the tough games," running back Corey Dillon said. "Now we're winning them. As long as I've been here, December was just December, it doesn't mean too much. This is different."

OSU goalie Dave Caruso takes a breather during practice Tuesday.

Senior goalie Mike Betz has enjoyed an impressive career at Ohio State. Betz has earned Central Collegiate Hockey Association Defensive Player of the Week honors, three times this season alone and is last season's defensive MVP How can a team graduate its all-time leader in wins and hope to move on without losing a step?

Dave Caruso, the spotlight is ready. The first Division I hockey player from the Atlanta area is biding his time this season, knowing that next season the reins will be his.

'He's our goalie of the future, no question about it," coach John Markell said.

Caruso is using this season to prepare for next year. With the type of season Betz is having, it has been difficult for Caruso to get playing time. In limited duty, he is 2-1 with a .905 save percentage. Betz is the second-ranked goalie in the league. Despite the split playing time, there is no animosity between the two.

"We're really good friends," Caruso said. "We're roommates

The road to playing Buckeye

hockey began when Caruso was little. His uncle, Lou Schwig, played for Connecticut College in the 1980s, and his mom recalls taking him to his uncle's games.

"He started walking around with a hockey stick when he was nine or 10 months old," Linda Caruso said. "He used to play hockey with (the boy) across the street for hours at a time."

The Caruso family moved from Long Island, N.Y., to Roswell, Ga., when Caruso was 7

"I had to get up at 6 a.m. and drive to wherever to play hockey," Caruso said. "We didn'thave many rinks in Georgia."

But what separates Caruso from other goalies, goes far beyond the ice. Beneath the gruff exterior of a goalie beats the heart of a friendly, funny young man. Caruso is the kind of player one would want coaching their children one day. He has coached a 12-year-old-and-under rollerhockey team to a national championship.

It's no surprise some of his teammates said they think he should go into coaching.

"I could see him working with someone and having a lot of patience with them," sophomore forward Rod Pelley said.

"He's our goalie of the future, no question about it."

> John Markell OSU men's hockey

Markell agreed with Pelley. "Ithinkhe's good with kids and understands the game very well," Markell said. "However, I think he has a long time to play yet."

Junior captain JB Bittner said he sees something else.

"I can't see him coaching because I can't see him yelling at anyone," Bittner said.

On the ice he is a fierce competitor, but off the ice is an entirev different story.

"It sounds really corny coming from his mom, but he's really just a nice guy," Linda Caruso said. "You don't find a lot of young men like him."

Network TV, give us what we want

's there really any better holiday than LThanksgiving?

For three days, I spent my time back home in Illinois eating and, best of all, watching seemingly every televised football games. After the two NFL games on Thursday, Friday was spent watching a good Nebraska-Colorado game, followed by a less-than-thrilling Texas-Texas A&M game. Throw in some of LSU's blowout of Arkansas, and it made for a pretty exciting day.

If that was not enough, this weekend was the Illinois high school football state finals, and thankfully, the local cable system decided to televise all eight championship games, with the four most exciting games coming on Friday. A game that ended in double overtime with a missed extra point, followed by an underdog accumulating nearly 400 yards passing in a win over one of Illinois' small-school powerhouses was just the highlight of the high school football action.

Saturday began much the same with me laying in a prone position with the TV remote in hand, switching between the Missouri-Iowa State, Ohio-Marshall and Bowling Green-Toledo games. Those proved to be just an appetizer to perhaps one of the greatest games of this year with Florida and Florida State battling it out to the very end. While the Gators got hosed by horrible ACC officiating (and I thought the Big Ten was bad), the little Mel Kiper in me couldn't help but begin to project where Florida freshman quarterback Chris Leak will go in the 2006 or 2007 draft.

But after that game is when I became disgruntled with network television. While I had hoped to see Pittsburgh try and win a Big East title over Miami, I got Notre Dame-Stanford on the local ABC affiliate. If it wasn't for Hawaii-Alabama on ESPN, I might have broken my TV.

hat's the problem I've a had with network television and its "regional coverage" of college sports. What made the Chicago affiliate honestly believe I would rather watch a matchup of two 4-7 teams instead of a game that had huge BCS implications? Sure, Notre Dame is mere hours away from Chicago, but that doesn't mean I want to watch bad football. And even when the Irish jumped out to a 30-point lead, I only got occasional updates from the Big East matchup.

But this problem isn't isolated in Chicago; it has always happened. Ever since beginning my time at Ohio State, I've missed the annual Red River Shootout between Texas and Oklahoma in favor of typically bad Big Ten games. For that matter, it seems every week I've been shutout from big national games in favor of the same 11 teams I've seen for the better part of 15 years.

This is a problem that can easily be fixed by ABC. While I know it's impossible to please all the viewers, ABC executives should take a page from its counterparts at CBS. During the NCAA men's basketball tournament, CBS generally lets its viewers vote on the games it would like to see in the opening rounds of the tournament. While I've noticed most times the regional games are voted in, there have been some exceptions for exciting No. 8-No. 9 seed matchups that would usually be considered "out of market."

Diehard college football fans have grown tired of having to watch the same bad Big Ten matchups year after year. While ESPN's College Gameday On Demand package has alleviated some of those pains, it's time for the networks to give its viewers a voice. It's not as if legions of Midwesterners are going to become diehard SEC and PAC 10 fans; it'll just give them a chance to see good, exciting football week in and week out.

Bumbling Browns lose again

By Tim Korte Associated Press

SEATTLE — The Seattle Seahawks remained perfect at home. Credit Matt Hasselbeck and a highflying offense, but don't overlook a defense that didn't allow any points for the second time this season.

Hasselbeck threw for 328 yards and three touchdowns, while Shaun Alexander rushed for 127 yards and another TD, leading Seattle to a 34-7 victory over the reeling Cleveland Browns yesterday.

Darrell Jackson, whose troublescatchingtheballearlierthisfall were well documented, had eight receptions for 102 yards and two touchdowns, while Koren Robinson caught six passes for 122 yards.

It was the first game in franchise history where the Seahawks (8-4) had a 300-yard passer, a 100-yard rusher and two 100-yard receivers.

Seattle improved to 7-0 at home for the first time since 1984, matching a club home-field record that year en route to a 12-4 mark. Going back to last season, Seattle has won eight straight homegames and nine of its last 10.

The Seahawks were a remarkable 11-of-15 on third-down conversions before Hasselbeck turned the offense over to Trent Dilfer in the fourth quarter.

Seattle remained one game behind St. Louis in the NFC West while sending the Browns (4-8) to their fifth loss in six games. It was Cleveland's most lopsided loss in three seasons under coach Butch Davis, eclipsing a 23-point loss at Green Bay on Dec. 23, 2001. The only blemish on a solid Cleveland came in with the No. 2 pass defense in the NFL, holding opponents to 167.2 yards passing a game.

As impressive as the Seahawks' offense was, Seattle's defense was equally strong. The Seahawks allowed only 47 yards

JOHN FROSCHAUER/AP

The Browns got inside Seattle's 20 only once, and the Seahawks quickly turned them back. Ken Lucas intercepted a pass by Kelly Holcomb, highlighting Seattle's best defensive effort since a 38-0 win at Arizona in Week 2. In a loss last week to Pittsburgh, the Browns committed five turnovers and failed to reach the end zone on four drives inside the 20-yard line. This week, they turned the ball over three times.

Holcomb completed 22 of 31 passes for 186 yards with one interception. He was 13-of-17 for 102 yards in the first half, but fumbled once, leading to Josh rushing, and Cleveland finished Brown's 36-yard field goal.

Tommy Maddox, 28-of-42 for 313 yards, gave Pittsburgh its first lead at 20-17 with a 16yard touchdown pass to Hines Ward with 1:05 remaining. The Steelers rallied from a 14-3 deficit behind Jerome Bettis' 1yard touchdown run on a 75play drive and Jeff Reed's 39-yard field goal. But after Reed's short kickoffinto a strong wind and Brandon Bennett's 27-yard return () gave Cincinnati the ball at its 48, Kitna—who has 18 touchdown passes and only one interception in Cincinnati's seven victories-gotthe Bengals in the end zone in four plays.

Asked the Bengals' mindset with half the field to cover in barely a minute, coach Marvin Lewis said, "Let's gowin the game."

Darned if they didn't. Kitna hit Peter Warrick for 18 yards and Bennett ran 16 yards. After an incompletion, Kitna found Schobel for the Bengals' biggest touchdown since they last won a division in 1990.

Back then, the Bengals used an early December 16-12 win in Pittsburgh as a springboard to that title.

"I said the division had to go through Pittsburgh," said Ward, who made 13 catches for 149 yards. "They came into Pittsburgh and stole a big victory."

Lewis intends to do the same thing next week in Baltimore, even if he wouldn't guarantee it like Chad Johnson did before the Bengals upset Kansas City

"We're going to win three in a row on the road," said Lewis, () whose team was coming off a victory at San Diego. "That's not a prediction, that's our

His teammates call Caruso "Buddy," in reference to Will Ferrell's character in the movie "Elf." In the movie, Ferrell plays Buddy the Elf, who leaves his home in the North Pole to meet his dad in New York. Through his kindness and good cheer, Buddy wins over his cold-hearted dad and spreads joy to everyone he meets.

"I think they followed Caruso around for a few years, filmed his life and based the character off of him," sophomore Nate Guenin said

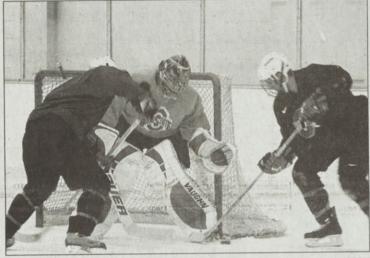

While he always greets his friends and family with a big smile, everything changes when the puck drops.

"He's always focused — even when he's not playing," Bittner said. Rather than be upset that he isn't playing much this season, Caruso is biding his time and takties that come his way. "He's the type of guy who acknowledges what has to be done in practice to get himself prepared," Markell said. "He also understands that he has to practice a little bit different than a guy

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The Lantern will not publish illegal advertising or the advertising of illegal products or services. The Lantern reserves the right to reject advertising that denigrates individuals, groups or organizations based on race, gender, nationality, ethnicity, religion, mental or physical capacity, veteran's status, age or sexual orientation. The Lantern Business Manager will refer questionable advertising to the Publications Committee of the School of Journalism and Communication. The committee will recommend a decision on whether to publish the advertising to the Director of the school.

1. Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required. 2. Copy must be furnished by noon three days before publication, except for special publications whose deadlines will be announced. An advertisement is required to occupy at least as many inches in height as columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in height will be considered a "full column" (21 inches) advertisement and charged accordingly. Make-goods and adjustments will be considered for those advertisements only where errors occur in (a) business or group name, address, or phone number, (b) item price or (c) date, time or place of event. The error must be solely the fault of the Lantern. Adjustments will not exceed the cost of the advertisement and will be based on the portion of the advertisement nullified by the error. Minor spelling errors will not qualify for adjustment. Complaints must be registered with the Business Manager with in 45 days of publication to qualify; otherwise the advertiser accepts full responsibility.

Guaranteed position is sold at the Business Manager's discretion

A composition charge may apply to any changes, revisions or cancellations made after deadline.

If the Lantern finds it necessary to stop contracted advertising because of nonpayment, the advertising agreement will be violated and the advertiser subject to a "re-bill" fee The Lantern reserves the right to require prepayment for advertising, or to reject advertising, if the

No proof will be furnished for any advertisement received after deadline or for an ad smaller than advertiser is delinquent in payment, or if the advertiser's credit is impaired. Advertisers must prepay all advertising until a satisfactory credit rating with the Lantern is established. A certified check or money order is required for out-of-town advertisers. 10. Contract advertisers will furnish the Lantern with a "rate-holder" ad meeting contract minimums for use in any contract period for which the advertiser does not provide an ad. 11. A tearsheet will be furnished for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tearsheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser requests them from the Lantern office prior to publication. 12. The advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Ohio State University, its Board of Trustees and its officers, agents and employees from and against any and all loss, cost and expense, including reasonable attorney fees, resulting from the publication by the Lantern of the advertiser's advertise-

13. Advertisers in the Lantern agree that they will not represent themselves in any way as being endorsed

14. A mail-order advertiser is required to submit a sample "proof-of-product" prior to publication.

15. Advertisers must request the return of their original ad materials; the Lantern will dispose of such materials 60 days after their first publication

OSU seeking movie makers

By Jeff Polesovsky Lantern staff writer

The vision of an independent starts in Columbus.

Buckeye Searchlight — a screen-writing competition hosted by the Ohio State Film and Video Society - is providers to see their work come to life on the silver screen.

"The idea is based off Ben Affleck and Matt Damon's Project Greenlight," said Nate Hahn, cocreator of the OSU version. "Nothing like this has ever been done here — it could be very successful for a first time project.'

Students looking for a way to jump-start their dreams will have two months to submit a 65-page script, with the winner receiving an invitation to join the production crew in transforming his or her work from paper to the big screen.

Hahn and co-creator Mark announced the first week of Laivins see the contest as a huge step spring quarter." in re-establishing film and video production as a major at OSU.

Laivins, a freshman pursuing film project will soon ensure a personalized study major in that the road to Hollywood film and video direction and production, said Buckeye Searchlight is a big deal for the school and a gateway to where he wants to go with his future.

"We have experienced a lot of ing the chance for aspiring writ- interest," he said. "Everybody we have consulted about the project has been very excited

Hahn and Laivins anticipate 20 scripts to be entered into the competition, with the final three to be reviewed by English and theater professors, as well as the production team of Buckeye Searchlight.

"The informational meeting tomorrow at the Drake Center is the first step in this process," Hahn said. "After that, writers will have until Feb. 2 to submit their script with the winner to be tomorrow in 2066 Drake Center.

The winning writer will work closely with the production team through the long process of story boarding, script revisions and location scouting — but seeing their work premiered at the Wexner Center of the Arts next fall will make it all worthwhile, Hahn said.

While writers are encouraged to compose their script assuming there is no budget, the creators are hoping to fund the entire project based on grants from various companies with ties to the film industry.

Outside interest in film and video at OSU is expected to generate when the winning feature is entered into film festivals around the country — another aspect of the production that will be controlled by the ambitious members of the OSU Film and Video Production Society.

"This project is a positive and run by students."

step in the right direction in try-The meeting will be at 7 p.m. ing to create something new," said Daniel Boord, associate professor of film and video in the theater department.

> Boord is acting as an adviser to Buckeye Searchlight, but is only providing advice and moral support to production members working on bringing the script to life over the course of 12-15 days

'The students really are leading the way," he said.

By being entirely involved in the production of an independent film from start to finish, Hahn and Laivinshope to give OSU students a chance to get the valuable hands-on experience needed for the entertainment industry.

"We want to bring the production aspect of film and video back to the university," Hahn said. "What better way to do this than by getting Columbus and OSU involved with the making of independent films, created
