

Sphinx Speakers Urge Leadership

Hamilton, Park, Troutman Address Annual Banquet of Senior Honorary

More than 130 students were honored by Sphinx, senior men's honorary, at the second annual recognition banquet held Tuesday night in Pomerene Refectory.

Dean of Men Joseph A. Park, a member of Sphinx, served as toastmaster and introduced the principal speaker of the evening, Howard L. Hamilton, secretary of the College of Arts and Sciences, also a member of Sphinx.

Leaders Needed

Mr. Hamilton spoke on the value of extra-curricular activities and the need of leaders in life. "We do need leaders and you fellows have that opportunity as no other group has," he said. "Know yourself, your weaknesses and faults, and then work to the limit of your capacity."

Following Mr. Hamilton's speech, George (Red) Troutman, president of the American Association Baseball League, talked briefly on what students should try to get out of college. He said that students should try to get diversified activities in their college life.

Hull Jests

After Mr. Troutman had finished Richard T. Baker, Com-4, president of Sphinx, introduced James R. Hull, A-4, captain of the basketball team, who spoke briefly on spirit—just as Baker had prophesied he would. Hull taunted Richard Boughner, Com-3, to such an extent that Boughner had to get up and say a few words to retaliate.

Members of Sphinx sat at a special table in the front of the room and wore tuxedos. During the early part of the evening the formal attire of the Sphinx members was the object of many jokes as well as one quickly improvised song.

Hull Honored By Ohio Senate

A resolution commending Jimmy Hull's basketball prowess was adopted by the Ohio Senate Tuesday afternoon.

Introduced and adopted on April 5 in the House, the resolution was adopted by the Senate in the following form:

"To recognize James Robin Hull, Jr., a senior of Ohio State University who, through his athletic ability has brought honor to Ohio State, to the state of Ohio, to Greenfield and Highland County, O., and whose scholastic achievements have established within the state a goal which will lend impetus to those following for many years to come."

Faculty to Report On Campus Needs

Bibber Declares Early Report on Committee Findings Necessary

"This is the first opportunity the faculty has had in recent years to express its opinion on the University's general program," Professor H. W. Bibber, department of electrical engineering, said today in reference to the report of the Faculty Committee on Urgent Needs of the University, which will be given orally at a meeting of the faculty Thursday afternoon.

"Since it is a report on urgent needs, I feel it is best that it be made as soon as possible," Professor Bibber said. The committee of six is the result of an earlier committee, appointed by former President George W. Rightmire, which made its report in June, 1938.

Explains Functions

Professor Bibber, chairman of the present committee, explained its functions as selection of the most important needs on which there was faculty agreement from the original report, additions and elaborations of this material, and establishment of principles of procedure for determining continuously the needs of the University in the future.

This work was accomplished with the aid or suggestions from faculty members made in letters and conversations with the committee.

The committee, which worked as a unit at all times, consisted of Professors N. P. Hudson, H. B. Alberty, H. R. Spencer, C. W. Gay, G. W. Eckelberry and Bibber, chairman.

Stecker Urges Fraternities To Put End to Water Fights

MORE ROWS TO RESULT IN SOCIAL PROBATION

Matter to Come Before Each Group; Four Boys Injured in Monday's Fight

Water may be the universal solvent, and a decidedly convenient thing, but it won't serve to dissolve the blot that may fall on the good name of the fraternities if water fights similar to the one held Monday night continue to occur, Administration officials believe.

Spring NYA Quota Increased by 25

Enrollment 115 Less Than Winter Quarter Due to Lower Budget

A balance of $750 from the NYA budget for the winter quarter made it possible to add 25 students to the spring quota of 1028, according to Dean Bland L. Stradley, chairman of the NYA selections committee.

At the end of the winter quarter, 87 students were dropped from the NYA list, 30 were reinstated and 37 new approvals were made. The total spring enrollment on NYA is 115 less than it was during the winter quarter because the spring budget is lower.

Students Leave Rolls

Dean Stradley said that 26 students were taken from the NYA rolls because they withdrew from the University, became over the age limit of 25 years, or were graduated at the end of the winter quarter.

Ninety-four students on NYA had a point-hour ratio less than the required 1.8 and so were dropped. Thirty resigned due to other employment or the fact that they no longer needed this source of income.

Twenty-three resigned or were cancelled due to schedule difficulties and 14 others were cancelled for miscellaneous reasons.

Vacancies Filled

The few vacancies that did exist at the end of the winter quarter were immediately filled from the waiting list.

Attention of students is called to the fact that the federal government requires NYA students to carry at least three-fourths of a normal schedule while working. This means that Ohio State students on NYA must receive academic credit for at least 12 hours' work each quarter.

If a student falls below the minimum of 12 academic hours, he automatically becomes ineligible for NYA work during the subsequent quarter.

Ohio Union Saves $200 To Students Each Month

By JACK YOUNGER

More than $200 is saved monthly by students who cash their checks at the Ohio Union, Francis O. Tresemer, bookkeeper of the Ohio Union, estimated today.

More than 2000 checks are cashed each month in the Ohio Union and, at a cost of 10 cents per check (the usual price for cashing checks), this amounts to a saving of more than $200. During the month of March the Ohio Union converted a total of 2097 checks into $21,614.42.

Union Membership

More than 3000 students belong to the Union and take at least partial advantage of the facilities that are offered to them. Daily an estimated 300 or 400 students play pool on the seven tables, while the two ping-pong tables are in continual use, according to Union officials.

Students must write home frequently. At any rate, they use 10,000 sheets and envelopes each quarter, all furnished free by the Union.

Each male student pays a student activities fee of $4 of which 70

* That it might, however, wash away their privileges and put them on social probation was pointed out to the Council of Fraternity Presidents by Assistant Dean of Men J. Frederick Stecker at a special meeting of that group held Tuesday night.

Displeased Officials

Dean Stecker pointed out to the gathered presidents that the water fight of Monday night, in which four fraternity boys were injured, had evoked displeasure in the Administration Building. Social probation, preventing spring formals and other activities, was suggested there as a means of putting a stop to future battles.

Jack E. Zimmerman, Engr-3, president of Theta Tau fraternity, today denied that any of the men in Theta Tau, either pledges or actives, participated in Monday night's spring water fight.

The possibility that such fights may also have a decided effect on the new fraternity housing program proposed by Harry S. Drackett of Cincinnati, who made the new dormitories possible, was also pointed out. Dean Stecker urged that some means of prevention be adopted immediately to prevent such incidents in the future.

Up to Each Chapter

The Council decided that each president would take the matter before his own chapter, and impress

New 'Red' Probe Appears Unlikely

Reluctance of Senate leaders to consider the question any further appeared today to have killed the latest attempt to instigate a legislative "red hunt" in state supported schools.

Senate majority leader Frank D. Whittemore, who favored the Pollock resolution calling for a similar investigation, said Tuesday that Senate leaders showed no disposition to consider the resolution which Senator H. T. Phillips, Athens County Republican, had planned to introduce today.

The Pollock resolution, a similar measure, was killed in the Senate last week.

FOREIGN . . .

Italy Attempts Conciliation

Italy held her fleet ready today for any emergency but at the same time made a strong conciliatory gesture towards Great Britain by reassuring Greece of her friendly intentions. An official announcement said Premier Benito Mussolini had assured the Greek government that Italy has no territorial or maritime aspirations in Greece.

In view of Britain's supposed intention of pledging armed aid to Greece and Turkey in case of attack, today's announcement was regarded as one of the assurances which Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain wants from Italy to assure tranquility in the Mediterranean.

Greeks Still Anxious

The friendly declaration by the Italian government failed to stem the Greeks' anxiety today over Italian troop concentrations in the Dodecanese Islands and the rushing of new Italian fortifications in the Adriatic.

It was understood today that 25,000 soldiers had been moved to the Albanian frontier, north of Janina. Another report was that Greece and Great Britain had reached a specific understanding whereby British warships would be given free use of Greek harbors in case of war in the Mediterranean, and Britain would supply Greece with 300 airplanes, a number of anti-aircraft guns and a million gas masks.

French Fleet Moves

The French cabinet, acting under its emergency powers, approved new defensive military measures today as the powerful French Mediterranean fleet steamed out of the Toulon naval base under secret orders.

Details of the military measures taken were not disclosed, but it was understood that the government had prepared an important program designed to place the country's land, air and sea forces ready for any emergency.

British Join French

Great Britain's war fleet had joined the French in the Mediterranean today to back up diplomatic demands for an end to Italian expansion in the Balkans and the withdrawal of Italian soldiers in Spain.

Under secret orders to dominate strategic points in the Mediterranean, the warships of the democratic powers were reported massing off the entrance to the Adriatic Sea.

Russian Aid Uncertain

Four Soviet warships were in the Mediterranean but Russia remains an undecided factor in the anti-aggression lineup. Lord Halifax, British Foreign Secretary, has been attempting to bring Russia definitely into the so-called peace front, and British sources expressed confidence of Soviet support in the event of an emergency.

Prose and Cons

By George Sattler

The other evening we journeyed downtown to take in the current movie, "Cafe Society." We went principally because we had read some reviews of the movie and were under the impression that it was a slightly, if not wholly, accurate picture of what goes on when the upper income brackets get together.

But we found that the general attitude and philosophy of the characters depicted in the show was distinctly old stuff. In fact, there was really more than a strong hint in the movie of what goes on in Ohio State's own salon group. Indeed, we found ourselves identifying some of our own playmates with certain characters which darted in and out of the plot from time to time.

Of course we don't like to give the impression that we are a member of Ohio State's famous salon group. But there have been times when we have been able to dig up a clean shirt and a couple of bucks, for the purpose of seeing how the screwballs were getting along.

Most of the time, we must admit, we were a little more than disappointed with their antics, and many's the time we thought we were cured of this weakness of ours. But the lure of the screwballs, we have found, is much stronger than our early teachings of thrift—much to our regret.

In fact, after a night out with Ohio State's notables we are invariably forced to go without a press in our pants for a month, to make up for the spending abilities of the modern co-ed. Indeed, we think the feminine ability, especially in this particular group, to spend other people's money sometimes reaches the peak of genius.

For some strange reason, quite beyond our comprehension and pocketbook, the co-eds refuse to soil their dainty lips with any potion which does not retail at 50 cents or fill their costly stomachs with anything so proletarian as the common hamburger. For them, the depression is on only when they don't have a date for the evening.

We have been deliberating for some time on this particular phase of Columbus night life, and we think we have a solution to the problem. We think it would be much more practical if the boys, instead of kissing the girls goodnight, would just lean over and say sweetly, "Kick me, darling—and hard."

Student Graders

Are students justified in asking that essay type examinations be graded by the professor who teaches the course?

Is it impossible to find sufficient work for student employees without giving them the work of a professor to do?

It may be true that the average professor on the campus is overworked, but if such circumstances prevent his taking the time to grade a set of papers, why should he give a quiz? It certainly doesn't give the student a very high regard for the professor nor his technique. The professor doesn't get a fair estimate of the student's ability under this system; he merely gets the grader's opinion of the student. Since student graders, like professors, have their personal likes and dislikes it tends to vary the scholastic standing of a student in direct proportion to the scale of friendship.

It seems that the only way to beat them at their own game is to memorize the book, "How to Win Friends and Influence People," by Dale Carnegie. Even though Irvin Tressler's "How to Lose Friends and Alienate People" is vastly more intriguing, it will be best not to display the suggested tactics on the student graders and above all, children, do not let it be known to the professor that you object to his methods, or it will be necessary to "blue-card" the course.—The Oklahoma Daily.

Ohio Statia

By Will O. Trucksis

Apropos of Jim

...I'm sure that Jim would be pleased to know I am spending a column on him. Jim was that way. He liked attention... any kind or variety and, as Jim so often said, "Cuss me out, boss. Cuss me out, but don't ignore me."

...All of which was sort of a moot point. You couldn't ignore Jim. You had to be deaf and blind in both eyes to ignore Jim. He was without exception the longest man I had ever seen. Long he was, with that pull in at the waist and broad flare at the shoulders. Huge. Absolutely huge.

...Then he had a smile. Something would please him and his great black face would lighten. A quick, winning smile to preface his words. Words—Jim had a million. Picked them up bartending in Boston. He picked up other things in Boston, too—but that's ahead of my story.

...Jim was head groom for a relative of mine. He could polish off a horse and set a saddle straighter than most of them. And show times were Jim's happy days. He was never quite as happy as during fair season and he would line up at the railing and say, "See that sorrel mare... over there with the gentleman atop... that's my hoss." And no one would deny it. Even my uncle used to come down to the stables of a morning and say, "Well, Jim, how are your hosses this morning?"

Jim would come right back, "My hosses are fine, suh."
 ...But then showing horses is a summer and fall task and the winters dragged heavy on Jim. Jim had to have folks around him. "Lord," he'd say, "a man's got to have something to talk to," so he'd bed down the horses and drive off to town to Daisy Belle's.

...Now, Daisy Belle's was a sort of free for all beer palace where folks who weren't looking for trouble stayed away from. But Jim liked it—not because Jim drank—Jim didn't—but because there was always a crap game in the back room. That was Jim's second love. Craps.

...Beyond that, Jim was good. Jim would pack the little ivory into his hand—murmur some inarticulate nonsense over them and, closing his eyes, he'd roll them away from himself in that slow, sweeping way he had. And you could take odds on his coming out all right. He made a habit of cleaning out the house whenever he came. And then he'd grin and say, "Why, boys... over in Boston way they rolls a mean sugar lump. I mean mean." And then Jim would go on out into the big room and set everybody up to Daisy Belle's beer until he'd spent all his money. Then he'd go on home.

...Well, that went on for most of my growing-up years and one night one of the stable hands stopped at the house to say that Jim was at the morgue. That Jim wasn't anymore. Just wasn't. And from what we could get out of the stable hand and a little picked up in town—this was how it happened.

...Jim had gone to Daisy Belle's and taken over the usual gang and was starting to treat the crowd when three or four strangers came stomping in and said, "Where's this Boston boy who can swing the craps?" And Jim grins and says, "I'm right here. Right here."

Well, these fellows have heard about Jim and want to shoot a couple of games with him since they've heard he's so good. Jim, who is easily flattered, says, "Why, sure. Sure enough."

...Things went well for Jim. Everyone crowded into the little room to see how things would turn out. They threw in for high stakes but Jim stayed right with them. He dropped a couple of throws but after that he hit a hole-in-one every time. He had them pretty well cleaned and was throwing for the last bucket when one of the strangers grabs up the dice and looks them over very carefully. He held one up to the light and bounced it up and down in his hand. Then he yells at Jim. He throws the dice across the room and all three of them jump on Jim. "Loaded!" one of them yells. "Loaded!"

...It was a free for all with Jim underneath all three of them. Finally things settled down. The strangers were gone and Jim was laying on the floor like he was out cold. He was more than that, though. Somebody used a knife on him. That's what we heard from the stable hand and Daisy Belle.

...So we took care of Jim. Got him buried and that night one of the detectives stopped in to ask a couple of questions and just as he left he dropped a couple of dice into my uncle's hand. "Here," he said. "Picked them up over at Daisy Belle's."

And my uncle looked them over and then said to the detective, "Say, Sarge, were they really loaded?"
 "Loaded?" said the detective.
 "Loaded? Hell no they wasn't loaded."

upon members the gravity of the situation and the necessity of refraining from such fights in the future.

Stecker, in speaking of the fraternities, said today:

"They realize they are partly at fault for some of the fights, but they do feel it is unfair to place the entire blame upon them. We learned that in Monday night's fight a large number were high school students who live in rooming houses in the University district."

Richard M. Green, Ed-1, most seriously hurt of the four injured fraternity boys, explained his part in the fight:

"All I remember is some fellows started our way and some one tackled me. I got up and some fellow hit me on the nose. I'm not sure what he hit me with."

Whatever it was, Green's nose was broken in 13 places.

Press Clippings Mount In Political Science File

By JOHN MURRAY

Approximately 5000 clippings, relating either directly or indirectly to government organization and policies throughout the world now comprise the file of newspaper clippings which the department of political science has set up for students' use in the department's library in University Hall.

The file was begun December 1* and is being kept up to date by NYA help. Its purpose is to provide a means for keeping up with the rapid changes occurring in the world today.

Up-to-date information of every government in the world and the League of Nations is included in the file. Clippings are arranged under, roughly, 70 main headings and many more sub-heads, filed and cross-indexed.

File Is Inclusive
 Every policy and opinion of direct and indirect influence on government is included from complete texts of recent Supreme Court decisions to press reports from Iraq.

Clippings are made from the New York Times (in full), the New York Herald Tribune, the Manchester Guardian, and, less frequently, from other papers. No magazines are clipped, but an index of the Times and the Herald Tribune Sunday Magazine sections is kept.

Every year the file will be reorganized, and those clippings felt to be of lasting importance will be retained. Other clippings will be given to research workers in a particular field or discarded.

Never a dull moment for you gals. First a swell spring vacation, then Easter and now comes the Military Ball with King-of-Swing Benny Goodman to make jitterbugs swoon with ecstasy.

If there's a more opportune time to initiate a new formal than a Military Ball with Benny Goodman I don't know what it is. How about black net, yards and yards of it, with narrow bands of old-fashioned bias binding in multi-colors completely covering the bolero and repeated a foot deep around the edge of the skirt. It's a honey and only 13.95. And, by all means, see the adventurous gypsy formals—for instance, a blithe and swirling striped skirt with a blouse of chartreuse. 16.95. Another dress prints white dots the size of a silver dollar on its black marquisette skirt then reverses the idea and prints black dots on a white blouse. Very striking, indeed. 19.95.

Don't forget about our Year-Round Tish-U-Knits if your spring quota of sweaters isn't complete. Only 2.00, and we have a grand array of colors. Also, those popular knit sweatshirt cardigans in such colors as coral, fuchsia, white, yellow, navy and others. 1.50.

All of which brings me to another fond farewell.

Upon whose shoulders will fall the responsible task of directing the Buckeye eleven next year? At this early date the number of suitors for the Napoleonic role are many, but after all is said and done there can be only one.

It takes something besides left to play quarterback and since Conference rules prohibit coaching from the sideline, this is the position that might be called the most important on a football team.

The quarterback's job is not an easy one. The pressure is terrific. Tens of thousands stare and criticize as a youthful mind attempts to cope with a situation. It is a thankless task. Many previous moves that gave evidence of intelligence are quickly forgotten, if in a moment of natural human forgetfulness, the quarterback calls an off-tackle play when "it was just as plain as day that their guards and center were asleep and he should have called the play in that direction."

Co-Captain Mike Kabealo will be sorely missed, for in Kabealo Coach Schmidt had an experienced kicker who knew how to run and make himself useful on defense. Jimmy Sexton, at present dodging the rain-drops with the baseball team, will be back for his second fling at the position. It was Sexton's pass to Don Scott that won the Indiana game last year for the Bucks, but Sexton is not only known as a good passer but as a good field general.

Scott Shifted . . .

In an effort to relieve the quarterback problem, Coach Schmidt has decided to move Scott from his left half post to the signal-calling assignment. Scaling 210 pounds, Scott is the best blocker of the present crop of candidates. He chops them down in a manner similar to Northwestern's Fred Vanzo. Not only can Scott block with the best of them but is harder to stop than a steam roller when he gets up steam. He also rates as a good passer, especially for his ability to get the ball off on the dead run. It is not second guessing to say that Scott will probably draw the starting nod.

Undoubtedly the best passer on the squad is John Simone who has been used almost wholly as a spot player. When the Bucks get a hurry-up call for a bullet-eye pass in a crucial stage of the game, it is Simone who trots onto the field. Simone is also regarded as a crafty signal-caller and a good blocker.

In Jack Graf and Dick Fisher, the Bucks have two of the most promising freshman prospects on the squad. One of the greatest all-around athletes to graduate from Upper Arlington, Graf is built along ideal lines. He scales 200 pounds, possesses plenty of speed, and can pass and kick with the best of them. On the opening kickoff of the first spring practice scrimmage, he suffered a recurrence of an old knee injury and has not been active since. His knee has just been removed from a cast but there will be no more hard work for Graf till next fall.

Fisher, like Graf, is speedy and a good passer and lacks only experience to become a real threat for the position.

In a short scrimmage game Tuesday afternoon, the Red squad was upset by the White team, 7-6. After a pass from Fisher to Eino Sarkinen had advanced the ball to the 20-yard line, the sharp-shooting Fisher again managet the guns and fired a beautiful pass to Chuck Anderson, who took it on the run in the end zone untouched. Fisher's kick for the extra point failed.

Scott sparked the rebuttal fight of the White team and climaxed its drive by skirting right end on a solo dash for 25 yards and six points. With John Halibrun holding, Scott kicked the extra point to give his team the one point advantage.

I-M SCHEDULE TO GET UNDER WAY TODAY

Unsatisfactory weather conditions and muddy diamonds postponed the opening day's activities of I-M softball and baseball Tuesday afternoon. Horseshoe pitching which was to have begun Monday had to be postponed for a second time also.

All games which have been postponed so far have been rescheduled and will be played off on some future date.

If weather conditions permit, the I-M spring schedules will attempt to get under way today.

Leighton Speaks On Egyptian Scene

"Egyptians prefer English occupation of their country to that of Mussolini or Hitler," said Dr. Joseph A. Leighton, professor of philosophy, speaking on the subject, "Egypt, Old and New," before the first Philosophy Club meeting of the quarter in Derby Hall Tuesday night.

"Mussolini has ruined the tourist trade of the country," Dr. Leighton continued. "They are content to remain under the protection of the British."

Speaking from personal observations drawn from travel in Egypt, Dr. Leighton portrayed the life and customs of the country, both past and present.

Buck football fans will see Don Scott in a new role next fall. Shifted from left half, Scott is being groomed for the quarterback assignment where his all-around ability can be best used to strengthen the Scarlet attack.

Swimmers Compete in Exhibitions This Week

The competitive swimming season may be over but the swimmers of Mike Peppe's national champion aquatic crew have yet to start after that much needed rest. Those boys just don't feel at home unless they are in the water.

Added reason why the Bucks never "break" training is the fact that they are continually being called upon for exhibitions between seasons. Much has been said of the trips Johnny Higgins has made, two to Japan and one to Berlin, and of Al Patrik's triumphant 1938 tour of Europe.

This week end the boys will again travel, but they will not cover quite as much mileage in doing so. Al and Johnny will exhibit their wares Saturday at Dayton and Sunday they will give a swimming and diving show in Cleveland.

Meanwhile Bill Quayle and Earl Clerk will participate in a water carnival at the Detroit Athletic Club, which will be acting as host to national indoor championships for women. Quayle and Clark will merely exhibit.

Other team members have been taking workouts in Ohio Natatorium since their April Fool's Day victory in the national AAU swimming and diving championships. The Peppe-men have their eyes on victory in the outdoor championships as well and will need to keep their present trim to turn the trick.

Last year the Bucks won the outdoor meet and so they will be defending outdoor champions this summer. With Johnny Higgins at his best on the longer outdoor course and the rest of the team in shape they can hope for a grand slam in the national AAU division.

Ballyhoo Under Way

The annual build-up of Rice University's football team is already getting under way, with several of the experts predicting it will have one of the hottest teams in the country next season. Last season, after a similar build-up, Rice failed to live up to the nice things said about it.

The College of the City of New York library last year loaned out 1,113,635 volumes.

Linksmen Prepare for Wolverines

Undaunted by the postponement of the Alumni match scheduled for last Saturday because of unsatisfactory weather, the golf squad started on its first of several qualifying rounds Tuesday afternoon, which will determine what players will represent the Scarlet in next Monday's match against the Michigan Wolverines.

The Alumni match, which was considered to be an adequate warm-up for the Michigan affair, may be played off on some future open date. The match would have undoubtedly helped give Coach Bob Kepler a preview of his 1939 squad and also aid the players with a test of some real competition.

Charlie Carl, who recently made the University course's first hole in one, and Chick Evans, Jr., have already been selected to play against Michigan; however, the rest of the team must still be chosen. With several qualifying round totals and the use of his own judgment, Kepler will choose the remaining players.

As a result of today's qualifying play the leading candidates for the remaining positions are: Sam Bartschy, whose 75 was low for the day; Frank Bellino, who shot a 78; Tony Montenegro, with a 79, and Don Hauser, with an 81. Charlie Carl, who also played around, shot a 75 to tie Bartschy for the low of the day.

The qualifying scores which were made last week prior to the Alumni match to select the meet's players, will also be added into the final totals. The players who made the best scores in last week's test were Frank Bellino, Don Hauser and John Gardner.

If weather conditions permit, the team will be out on the University course the rest of the week sharpening its eye for the Michigan squad which Kepler hopes to make victim number one of the Bucks. This will not only be the first match of the season for the Bucks, but it will mean the renewal of another sports series with a Michigan team. If rivalry means anything we can be assured that the Bucks will give all they have to beat a Michigan team and bring another victory to Ohio's side of the ledger.

Buckeye Nine Still Trying to Open Northern Activity

By RAY RICKLES

It's gotten to be a habit over these last few days to write that the Buck baseball team departed for someplace or other only to have the weather do tricks and keep Coach Fritz Mackey's charges right here in Columbus. Since last Thursday this exasperating experience has been with the nine three times.

Twice the boys tried to entrain for Morgantown, W. Va., but both times news from the Mountaineers told us that their diamond was fit only for the swimming team. Tuesday afternoon the game with Ohio U. was called off on account of inclement weather and according to an announcement from authority the Bucks will attempt the trek again Wednesday afternoon.

There doesn't seem to be much sense in saying that they left or anything else—for by the time this gets to the presses it might be raining again and one of those little black bulletins be adorning the top of this column. So, be things as they may, the Bucks are scheduled to meet the Bobcats down in Athens, O., at 3 p. m., weather permitting.

Dagenhard? . . .

As expected for Tuesday's encounter Big Johnny Dagenhard will most likely get the starting assignment, but since the date of the game is one day nearer the Scarlet home inaugural Coach Mackey might let either Andy Tobik, Gene Dornbrook, Clay Blanke or Jimmy Sexton do the twirling. They will all be available and Mackey is sure to want to use the Big Moose for the inaugural home tilt Friday vs. Michigan State.

But first of the primary function of the Ohio State aggregation is to get off on the right foot after a long layoff that has stretched out since March 27 when the spring jaunt terminated. The boys haven't had time, under the weather's inconsistency, to have a really good practice session for quite a while and the drawback is bound to pop up somewhere in these early spring quarter games.

Although gunning for every game Coach Mackey and the boys hope that they can get back into top shape at least by the time the Big Ten inaugural opponent gets to Columbus on April 21-22. And since that rival is Michigan, which unit just smashed over Washington and Lee 9 to 3 on its latest spring venture, it ought to be a worth-while attraction.

Captain Dick Wulforst will do the receiving with Bill Laybourne, Captain Gene Myers, Ralph Waldo and Bobby Lynch stationed in order from the first base side going around. Starting on the same side in the outfield it will more than likely be Tony Jesko, Paul Washburn and a question mark. Frank Smith owns the regular spot here, or did, but Bill Coyer, for one, has been making a terrific bid for the spot. He didn't go down south so Coach Mackey may give him a chance.

Others who will be along are Ralph Leopard, an infielder; John McVey, both inner and out circle utility man; Cliff Morgan, second-string catcher, and Jay Ingram, another outer gardener.

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt has accepted the honorary chairmanship of the Intercollegiate Committee to Aid Student Refugees.

Horticultural Specialists Protect Ohio's Orchards

"Watch dogs" for this year's bumper Ohio fruit crop are C. C. Allison and T. H. Parks, horticultural specialists in the Agricultural Extension Service at Ohio State University.

Heading an elaborate state-wide organization, which functions as smoothly as the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Parks and Allison are in charge of* protecting Ohio fruit trees from frost and disease.

From all parts of Ohio orchardmen send in sample leaves and reports of bud development. From Washington each morning come special long-distance weather predictions. The specialists examine the leaves for progress of scab; they note the bud development; they check the weather reports. Correlating all this information they immediately send out the word as to proper spraying procedure for the various parts of the state.

This information for which thousands of orchardmen are waiting goes out over state radio stations and is wired to county agents who relay it to their orchard men as a "double check."

Sleuth Can Find Missing Loot, But Not Owner

A slide rule and a book still wait to be claimed by one individual named Thomas, as yet unidentified as to which Thomas, or Thomas which, and it's giving Officer North a headache.

It began when one of the downtown sleuths, making the rounds of the hock shops found a culprit attempting to pawn a slide rule and book belonging to someone named Thomas. The sleuth decided it must be an Ohio State student, and sent the loot to Officer North.

George H. Thomas, Engr-1, was called and requested to come after his property. A check-up showed Mr. Thomas' personal belongings quite intact, however, and now Officer North is wondering to whom the articles really belong.

Any information on the subject will be appreciated, especially by Mr. North.

Warmer Days Help to Banish Ills of Winter

How's your health? Feeling low? If so, cheer up. It can't last.

We have the authoritative assurance of Dr. J. W. Wilce of the Student Health Service, that past records show increasing student resistance to illness during the spring and summer months and vice-versa during the winter months.

This encouraging information should give you some incentive to hang on just a little bit longer, for statistics show that warm weather is just around the corner.

House Association, City, Draft Code

The Columbus building inspector and the city law department are aiding the Columbus Rooming House Association in the drafting of a new code to affect rooming houses and sorority and fraternity houses. Each will submit a plan, and from these a code suitable for the entire city will be formed. H. E. Stinson, association president, said today.

The association is to have a dinner meeting at the Chittenden Hotel on April 30, after which a meeting will be held for those not wishing to attend the dinner. Among the speakers who have been invited is Lowell A. Wrigley, director of men's housing.

Dr. Robert Pollard Dies Today in Seattle

Dr. Robert T. Pollard '22 and '23, head of the department of oriental studies, University of Washington, died early today in Seattle. He had been ill a month but his death was unexpected.

Following his graduation here, Dr. Pollard taught at St. John's University in Shanghai, China, for three years. For two years he was an instructor in political science here, going then to the University of Minnesota, where he received his Ph.D. in 1930. Since then he had been at the University of Washington. He was the author of "China's Foreign Relations," and had written extensively on the politics of the Far East.

Dr. Pollard was a visiting member of the political science faculty here last summer. He was a brother of Professor James E. Pollard, School of Journalism.

Way Back When

By JOHN MURRAY

NOV. 22, 1920—Revenge for "those last eight seconds of 1919" came Saturday, when Ohio State in the last play of the game turned a seemingly tie score with Illinois into a Buckeye victory and stalked off Urbana field with the 1920 Big Ten championship.

With four seconds to play, Pete Stinchcomb called for the play that sent Myers across the Zuppke goal line as the whistle closed the game. Stinchcomb closed his football career by adding the point after touchdown.

JAN. 20, 1921—The Ohio Stadium is a reality. The million dollar mark in the campaign was reached today after three months of actual solicitation. This campaign with its astonishing record, made in the face of financial and business depression, is the first among collegiate drives to reach its goal. A greater part of this success is due to Columbus, which subscribed more in proportion to its population than any other city in the United States.

FOR THE FIRST TIME! The Amazing Story of STALIN'S SECRET OPERATIONS IN SPAIN

A revealing document by the only general to escape the Red Army purge

Russia was in Spain—deeper than anyone knew. Why did Stalin intervene? How? Who were his secret agents? What did Stalin get out of it? In the Post this week, General W. G. Krivitsky, former head of Stalin's secret service in Europe, unmasks the major mystery of the Spanish war, reveals a reign of terror never before suspected. First of several articles.

Stalin's Hand in Spain

The Author W. G. KRIVITSKY

This former general in the Red Army, after two attempts on his life, is now hiding in the U. S. As Chief of the Soviet Military Intelligence in Western Europe, he was on the inside of every major international step taken by the Kremlin. He is the only man now alive and free to tell this story.
