OHIO STATE DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED BY PRAISE SERVICES

President Thompson Addresses Meeting in Chapel Which Replaces Usual Ceremonies.

LAUDS SPIRIT OF COLLEGE MEN

Latest Figures Show That Thousands of Alumni and Former Students Are in Army or Navy.

"No set of men were proved to be more courageous and loyal in the World War than university men," said President W. O. Thompson in his address last evening in the Chapel, at the first University Thanksgiving service ever held on the campus. This service replaced the usual Ohio State Day celebration.

A choir composed of Mrs. Henry C. Lord, Mrs. Clarence D. Laylin, Mrs. Robert Earhart, Mrs. Joseph W. Madden, Mrs. Verle C. Smith, Robert D. Williams, Verle C. Smith, Harry L. Doud and Prof. Alfred R. Barrington sang the anthem, "America Triumphant," and led in the singing of the three hymns, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," "The New Day" and "Our Country." The Thanksgiving proclamations of President Wilson and Governor Cox were read by President Thompson. Amid a setting of red carnations, the University flower, palms and flags of the Allies, Dr. Thompson paid tribute to the students of Ohio State University who were represented by the immense service flag hanging at the west side of the auditorium.

"The object in founding such an institution as this University," said Dr. Thompson, "was to make the nation stronger, and therefore, when the United States entered the war the board of trustees voted to offer all the facilities of the school to the Government. Now that right has won over might, it is appropriate that we gather here in thanksgiving."

Require New Service Flag
"Let me direct attention," the speaker continued, "to the badge of honor on the wall. Each star there represents a recorded name, but now a flag as large as that is needed to represent the additional names. But aside from these men in particular service, members of the faculty and employes have given their services, although they are not in uniform. The University has supported these by continuing to pay their salaries while they are in Government work."

"Since the service flag with its nearly 3000 stars has been made, many more students entered service, so that another flag of nearly the same size will be required to do honor to the men of the University. It is known that more than 40 have made the supreme sacrifice and will be represented. To these we render highest honor and to their families the University expresses its gratitude and sympathy. Nothing the University has done brings more honor than the deeds of these boys. We are here to recognize the goodness of God for the way the army and navy has been spared. Therefore, the institution has a part in this thanksgiving."

College Men Responded

"I was considered radical a year ago when I said, 'God forbid that any boy be denied the privilege of spending one or two years in service,' but any boy who was denied that privilege has my sympathy. Some people say the colleges did not support war propaganda as such; they did not and never shall. We resent such statements as have appeared in the press, but no set of men proved themselves more courageous and loyal than university men. They completely justified their education and training. College men were not lacking in war spirit that makes men free."

Nothing is more supreme than truth, in the opinion of Dr. Thompson. German professors were lacking in love of truth, they are slaves of law rather than truth.

Defines Ideals of Victories
Ideals of victories as defined by President Thompson are: science, which is the orderly classification of truth as it is discovered; history is the interpretation of the movements of men; philosophy he defined as the causes and the effects of these movements; and literature pictures the life

SOME BIG GUNS ON WHOSE EFFECTIVE ACTION BUCKEYE FANS ARE BANKING

When Ohio State takes the field against Michigan in the final game of the 1918 football season tomorrow, seven of the Scarlet and Gray jerseyed gridders who will probably take a hand are products of the Columbus high schools. Captain Clarence E. MacDonald, the rangy end, is a North High grad, as are Quarterback Harold Wiper, Guard Addison and Halfback Roy Rife. MacDonald, utility end on Ohio State's first Western Conference champs two years ago, was serving in the navy during the last football season, but was recently returned to school. He was elected to succeed "Chic" Harley as captain when the 1918 football season found the famous "Chic" wearing khaki at a Texas aviation field. MacDonald is the only veteran on the Buckeye squad.

Rife and Wiper have been playing a prominent part. Wiper has an educated dropkicking toe. Rife was held back until the important Western Conference games and let loose as a surprise. He has been all of that, for the speedy little back has shown the way in both conference battles for Ohio State.

Guard Pixley comes from East and fills a big hole in the line with his 225 pounds of "Bob" Karch beef. Pixley won a regular berth when eligibility rules were cast into the discard for the season and freshmen were permitted to play. "Butch" does the kicking off for Varsity.

Fullback Matheny and utility Quarterback Haines formerly played on West. Matheny is proving a mainstay in the backfield and is developing into a more powerful plunger with each succeeding game. He is a junior and should be a big star next season. Haines has not been through a whole game, but he has handled the team in good style when relieving Wiper.

Michigan comes here to play football tomorrow. Then the curtain will drop on the 1918 season. For just six years Ohio State fans have waited for this occasion. Not since 1912 have the long-time rivals engaged in gridiron combat. Over a year ago Michigan, after having been out of the Western Conference since its break with Chicago following a football game in 1906, came back into the fold. With the reinstatement of the Wolverines, Buckeye followers have been counting the days until Michigan should again appear in football togs on Ohio Field.

Although Ohio State has been dethroned and definitely counted out of the conference running during the last two weeks, the Michigan-Ohio State contest tomorrow is assuming championship proportions as interest goes, on the eve of the battle. With definite announcement that a post-season Michigan-Illinois tilt cannot be arranged to determine which of the two undefeated teams of the Western Conference has the more solid claims to the "Big Ten" title for the season, Michigan is set on rolling up a more decisive score than that of 13 to 0 by which Illinois defeated Ohio State, as an evidence of its superior strength.

"Get Michigan," Team's Cry
That Michigan will run into local storms on Ohio Field is the confident belief of the squad of Buckeyes who will line up against the Yostmen tomorrow at 2 p. m. Far from being broken-spirited over the consecutive defeats suffered against Illinois and Wisconsin, the Wilcemen have been driving with only one thought in mind—"Get Michigan." And the team is not nervous. The men think they can turn the trick. They have learned a lot of football in the last two weeks and additional daylight practice the last two days has helped.

Daylight practice was made possible Wednesday when football men spent their weekly S. A. T. C. recreation period on Ohio Field. For three hours yesterday morning the Buckeyes were given a grilling by Coach Wilce. In the afternoon the men reported to the Coliseum, and under the huge roof which protected the ground from the morning rains, worked for two hours more. This afternoon a final short session will finish the practice season.

At Ann Arbor "Hurry Up" Yost was not passing up the Thanksgiving opportunity for long practice. The veteran coach had his team out all morning and lined the men up in front of a blackboard during the afternoon. The Wolverine squad was scheduled to leave Ann Arbor today at 10:45 a. m., arriving in Columbus at 4 p. m. The visitors are planning on having 200 rooters at the game.

Seat Sale Eclipses Homecoming
Judging from the advance seat sale, attendance at tomorrow's event will easily eclipse that at the homecoming game with Wisconsin. More tickets were sold at Michigan and to Ohio State and Michigan alumni in Ohio. General sale of seats began at the Athletic House, Hennick's, Lazarus' store and the Chittenden Hotel Wednesday. Students may obtain $1.50 seats for 50 cents up until 4:30 p. m. today by presenting their fee cards at the Athletic House.

The S. A. T. C. companies will be admitted free, marching in company formation. The impromptu band, re-

STUDY WORKING CONDITIONS

Girl Elevator Operators Questioned by Economics Students.

Elevator girls employed in the various department stores and office buildings have been interviewed this last week by the students in Miss Mary Louise Mark's economics class. Questions were asked them concerning their working conditions, the hours they are required to work, wages which they receive and the nature of the work which they do. Besides, the home conditions of the girls were investigated. All this was done in an effort to compare the work done by the women in these positions which were formerly occupied by men.

Most of the students report that they have found little difficulty in their work and investigations, as the girls seemed willing and eager to give any information which they could regarding their positions and themselves. The investigations are still going on this week, and after having gathered all the material for the comparison which they are able to get, the students will be required to hand in their reports.

MRS. GERALD P. LAWRENCE DIES

Margaret Steube Lawrence '10, wife of Gerald Pierce Lawrence '08, died at the home of her parents, 170 Jefferson Avenue, yesterday morning of influenza, after an illness of eight days. The couple were married a short time before Captain Lawrence, who is serving in the Medical Corps of the army, left for France, where he now is. Mrs. Lawrence is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Steube; a brother, John Steube, and a sister, Mrs. J. Stanley Evans, both of Columbus. Funeral services will be held at the Steube home tomorrow at 3 p. m.

DEDICATES NEW TABERNACLE

King Avenue M. E. Church will hold the first services in its new tabernacle, Tenth and Neil Avenues, next Sunday morning. Rev. T. H. Campbell will preach a dedication sermon and there will be a special program.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION IN FAVOR OF MEMORIAL

American University Union in Paris Will Receive $250 Annually from Ohio State.

PLAN APPROVED BY PRESIDENT

The first official action looking to a large memorial on the campus to the men who have been in service was taken last evening by a meeting of alumni held after the Thanksgiving services in the Chapel. The meeting was called to order by Lowry F. Sater '95, who said that the suggestion had been made that the memorial be erected in connection with the gateways proposed by the Patriarchs a few years ago, a project for which some money had already been collected and more subscribed.

Prof. Wilbur H. Siebert '88 made a statement regarding the work that had been done by the committee and added that Dr. G. Glenn Atkins '88 had suggested that the gateways might be of a memorial character. The meeting voted in favor of combining the old gateway committee with the memorial committee appointed by the Ohio State University Association at last commencement, with instructions to make a report at the next annual meeting.

President Thompson spoke of the splendid work that had been done by the American University Union in Paris, where thousands of college men have been entertained since the war began. Last year the alumni association paid annual dues of $250 to this institution, and in addition, faculty, alumni and others had subscribed $1000. He hoped that similar action would be taken this year.

ANNOUNCE ROOM CHANGES

The following changes in the schedule for classes in economics and sociology are announced: Elementary Economics, S. A. T. C., M., W., F., 9 a. m., T. 200; Economics 101, M., W., F., 9 a. m., U. 200; Sociology 101, M., W., F., 8 a. m., L. 410; Sociology 127, M., W., F., 10 a. m., L. 305.

MENORAH TO MEET SUNDAY

Dr. Robert D. Williams of the department of philosophy will address the Menorah Society at an open meeting to be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in Ohio Union. A special musical program has been arranged.

NOTICE TO S. A. T. C.

S. A. T. C. students are hereby notified that in case the S. A. T. C. is demobilized before the close of the first semester, existing courses will be continued or new courses will be provided for the remnant of the semester in order to meet the needs of those who desire to continue in the University. Arrangements will be made by which credit toward a degree may be obtained for a part of the special work that is being carried by the S. A. T. C. students.

Special classes will be formed to assist students in meeting degree requirements or in preparing for second semester courses. In the second semester a number of courses usually given only in the first semester will be repeated. The opportunities of the summer session of 1919 will be increased to meet the losses incurred by the student body during the current semester.

Students in the S. A. T. C. who intend to remain in the University after demobilization should consult the dean or secretary of their college at their earliest convenience.

By authority of the Administrative Council.
J. V. DENNEY,
Secretary.

HOLD ANNUAL SUPPER TONIGHT

Women's Council Entertains University Girls.

Turkey Thanksgiving day; chicken the day after!

A chicken supper will be given by Women's Council today at 6 p. m. in Orton Hall. The girls from Oxley, Baker and St. Hilda's Halls will put on stunts and music and dancing will be a part of the entertainment. Minnette Y. Fritts will speak on "Organization of War Work."

All University girls and faculty women are invited. Mrs. William Oxley Thompson, Mrs. George L. Converse, acting dean of women, and the class advisers—Miss Mary Herrick, secretary of the Y. W. C. A.; Miss Olive Jones, librarian, and Miss Alice Robinson of the department of art—will be the special guests.

FOOTBALL RALLY CALLED OFF

There will be no rally this evening, but all enthusiasm can be expended at the game tomorrow, when the Buckeyes clash with Michigan for the first time since 1912.

RESTORE THE TRADITIONS

Women's Council will give its annual supper tonight for the first time in two years. After a brief lapse the custom of getting the women of the University together for a supper and program has been revived. Upperclassmen can recall how nearly all the women attended this event when it was held in the Armory and the large gymnasium space enabled the committee to accommodate a large crowd. The program tonight, which includes besides a self-serve supper, music, talks and stunts, will be held in Orton Hall in the rooms which were part of the Woman's Union before the war. Consequently, only a limited number of tickets can be sold. They may be obtained today from members of Women's Council.

As many woman students as can get tickets should attend this annual supper. The event has become traditional, just as the Woman's and Men's Panhellenic banquets, the junior prom, the co-ed prom, the May Fete, Mortar Board, Bucket and Dipper and Sphinx initiation ceremonies have become University traditions.

One by one these traditional events, particularly those involving banquets or the expenditure of large sums of money for dancing, have been dropped for the period of the war. The students have discarded them as part of their war-winning program of economy. Now the war is over. That does not mean of course that we should immediately plunge into reckless spending, but it does mean that some of these traditions which were temporarily abandoned should be renewed. We welcome the return of the Women's Council supper. Just such modest beginnings will assure perpetuation and gradual restoration to normal proportions.

THE MEDICAL STUDENT

In years before the medical student has felt himself apart from the general student body of the University, due to the long hours which he must carry and, more directly, the distance which he is from the campus.

The yearbook of Ohio State is now being compiled and the medical student has been asked to have his part in the publication, the same as students in other courses at Ohio State. We have not been able to come in direct contact with the men from the Medical and Dental Colleges, but we want them to feel and know that we consider them an important factor in the running of the University.

If there has been any seeming overlooking of those ties which should exist between the campus proper and that at the medical school, it should be understood that conditions on the campus are not in the smoothly running condition which have formerly been maintained and those men farther south are asked to co-operate with us in whatever plans are being made for the University, both in the spirit which should be manifested and in the work which they may be called upon from time to time to do.

SINGING "CARMEN OHIO"

Singing "Carmen Ohio" between the halves at the football games has become one of the most sacred and impressive of the traditions of Ohio State. Older men and women tell us that one of the most treasured memories of their Alma Mater is of the times on Ohio Field, when, no matter if the team was winning or losing, every member of the vast audience came to his feet at the first strains of "Come, let's sing Ohio's praise," and every man stands with bared head during the singing of that grand old college hymn.

Surely, this is a time for quiet and attention on the part of everyone present, even if they are not participating in the ceremony. This is one of the most inspiring and impressive of the college customs. Last Saturday at the homecoming game the attention was distracted by the game that was being played between halves by two companies of the S. A. T. C. With half the crowd in the bleachers either laughing at or yelling with the team on the field, the impression of solemnity which should have accompanied the singing of the college anthem was entirely lost. Seated in the east bleachers it was impossible to hear more than a few words of the singing in the west bleachers, and evidently the people in the east bleachers were not expected to sing.

"Carmen Ohio" is known to every member of the student body and to all the alumni; it is as much their song as that of the undergraduate.

Plenty of time could be given for the college song either before the special features begin, or, better yet, after they are over, while the team is coming on the field. Then every member of the audience could join in the singing, we would not be deprived of the game between the S. A. T. C. companies, and the two features would not resemble a three-ring circus. Tomorrow let the words of the college anthem come from every corner of Ohio Field, not only from the section reserved for the S. A. T. C.

Did you do it too—awaken this morning to hear a roaring wind tugging at the windows and slamming doors, roll up again in a moment of shuddering hesitation, then bound into your clothes, only to find upon starting for your 8-o'clock that winter had not arrived, but pranking fall was merely masquerading in winter's blustering disguise?

Reports from Ann Arbor have it that those Michigan Wolverines are coming here tomorrow hungry for victory, but the square-jawed Wilcemen are banking heavily on playing them foxy and sending them back howling over their defeat.

Our more or less semi-occasional reminder: pronouncing didascalophus aloud probably caused two or more people to become afflicted with didascalophus.

ADVICE

Sergeant Gaul (with much emotion)—Darling, something has been trembling on my lips for the last two nights.

She (coldly)—So I see. Why don't you shave it off.—Great Lakes Bulletin.

With a burst of laughter and the bang of a slammed door she danced into the room. She was 8 years old, with bobbed brown hair and wide-open blue eyes, the eyes of a child, which look upon the world with wonder and miss no detail of what they see. Her cheeks were rosy warm and her face was brimming over with smiles at the sheer joy of the fun of life.

When she saw her sister, she stopped short in her noisy rush through the room. The older girl was sitting close by the window, looking out into the dim distances with eyes which did not see the little girl's sunshine.

Slowly the child walked to her sister's side and laid her warm, pulsating little hand on the older girl's arm.

"Don't you wish you were gay and happy again?" she asked suddenly. The eyes of the girl, so recently become a woman, looked into those of the child and saw there the light of a vague understanding.

"Yes," she answered quietly.

"You're awful lonesome, aren't you? I'm glad I'm not grown up." Then with the lightning flashes of a child's moods, the little girl forgot her momentary seriousness. "I'm gay and happy." And she danced out of the room. Somewhere in the distance a door banged.

"Children are queer little people, aren't they?" From the other side of the room came the mother's voice. "Don't you ever wish that you were a child again, utterly carefree, without a thought of worry or anxiety?"

"No," the girl answered slowly, "I don't, especially in these times. They don't realize that they are living through the greatest period of all the ages, that now, while they are playing away the days, the most momentous chapter in the history of the world is being written. Some day they will read in their histories the things which are happening today and they will be sorry that they weren't 'grown-up' and able to appreciate them."

"Yes, but they are spared all the suffering and heartache that this time brings," the older woman argued.

"And they are missing everything in being spared. With all my loneliness and the torture of anxiety, I am glad that I am privileged to live and have my love in this time, glad and proud that I can play my tiny, little part in this greatest of all dramas by waiting and praying for a man who is in the center of the stage. This has been my war. It has been a part of my life, not a war which I shall merely read about in the years to come.

"I couldn't go across the sea and fight, but I feel as if I have a little, obscure part in it all. My love and my suffering have made it mine. I have lived through every battle, and now I am living through the glorious days of peace. And I am serving as well as I can, by fitting myself for the time of happiness is coming."

"I feel sorry for the children with all their carefree gaiety and fun. I feel sorry for everyone who does not call this war his own, who has not suffered and, in suffering, lived in this supreme time."

"The people who have lived through this war will never again be the same. While the world is being remade their souls are being born again. Life has taken on new and deeper meanings. We aren't really living here in this country of peace and sunshine. Our souls are with the men we love in that land so far, far away. And we should thank God that we have been given this privilege."

The little sister charged into the room, breathless with haste and exuberance.

"We're playing war," she cried, "and I want something for a gun."

IN OHIO'S BACKFIELD

HALFBACK DAVIES

This fleet little halfback, a sophomore, made a big hit with Ohio State fans this fall. Davies and Rife, both speedy and good in an open field, provide the Buckeyes with a pony pair of halves. Davies was a veritable "Chic" Harley in the season's early games, and although not the same sensation against the classier opposition of Western Conference ends, the little Ironton back has played stellar ball in both "Big Ten" encounters. Rival coaches have feared his speed enough to make him a marked man.

HUFFMAN

This big lad is proving a bulwark on the line. Huffman never played football until he reported for the freshman squad last year. This fall the giant linesman has been seeing regular service at tackle and is improving with every time out. Not only did he knife through for some good tackles against Wisconsin, but he also grabbed off several long passes.

MICHIGAN COMES FOR FINAL GAME HERE TOMORROW

cruited from the S. A. T. C. for the homecoming game, will again be on the job. Russel G. Means, senior medicine, has been appointed cheer leader by Student Council. Means jumped into the breach last Saturday and kept the crowd going, even after all hopes of victory had been lost.

The probable starting lineup:

Ohio State	Michigan
MacDonald (C.)	L. E. Dunne
Huffman	L. T. Lindstrom
Pixley	L. G. Goetz
Gilliam	C. Usher
Freeman	R. G. Wilson
McCune	R. T. Barnes
Slyker	Q. B. Knobe
Davies	L. H. Cohn (C.)
McHenry	F. B. Steketee
Rife	R. H. Usher

Referee, (not selected); umpire, Schommer, Chicago; head linesman, Thurber, Colgate; field judge, Prugh, Ohio Wesleyan.

OHIO STATE DAY FITTINGLY OBSERVED BY PRAISE SERVICES

of man with reference to the human passions and emotions. He explained that American scholars went to Germany to study science and they did not see the intrigues of the German mind. In the future science must be more human, philosophy more rational, history will be applied to the welfare of men, and literature must show thought and feeling of the best minds and not the wickedness and meanness of the worst.

"We rejoice," said Dr. Thompson, "that the Allies never appealed to mere physical force. They who take the sword must perish by it. The Allies took it in defense, while the Germans took it in offense and perished. America is the defender of order and progressive living. When we have grown boys who have never seen a saloon, we shall be the greatest race the world has ever known. The United States' part in the Council of the World shall be to see that the fruits of the past shall not be wasted.

The league of nations is only a program, but out of the World War must come responsible government. Germany was told that no treaty of peace would be signed until a government is established with character. No other will be tolerated in the Council of the World where truth and honor are respected and honor recognized. We believe also in a government that responds and meets the needs of the people. Responsible citizenship, character and intelligence must be the requisites of the new governments."

COACH "JACK" WILCE

By turning out a championship team in 1916 and a repeater in 1917, "Jack" Wilce has taken rank with the big coaching guns in a conference that boasts of its famous coaches. Michigan has its "Hurry Up" Yost, Minnesota still talks of Dr. Williams, and Chicago of Alonzo Stagg, while Illinois fans idolize the crafty little strategist, "Bob" Zuppke, but Ohio State wouldn't take any of them for Wilce. Far from condemning Wilce for the two defeats his team suffered at the hands of Illinois and Wisconsin, Buckeye fans are wondering what the results might have been had a less able man had that green material to develop this fall and 90 minutes of practice in the dark allotted the players each day.
