THE STUDENT VOICE OF OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY

Rep. Ryan battles costly textbooks

By Patrick Cain Lantern campus editor

Those students who feel as if textbook prices are just too expensive, are not alone - U.S. Rep. Tim Ryan, D-Ohio, has cosponsored a bill that will investigate the increase of textbooks over the last decade.

This is your issue — not mine," Ryan said as he urged for students to become active in issues such as this.

Ryan, 30, is the youngest member of Congress and remembers his book-buying experiences at Bowling Green State University.

"At BG when I was there you'd get hammered with the cost," Ryan said. "When you tried to sell them back, you'd get one-tenth of the price back."

Selling books back is only part of the problem, he said. Since 1998 the wholesale cost of textbooks have increased 32.8 percent, while other book prices have increased approximately 16 percent, Ryan said.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. -Jessica Lynch is trying to work

A year after the Army supply clerk's wounding and rescue made her the Iraq war's most famous soldier, she grapples with questions both personal (When should I go to college? When should I get married?) and philosophical (Why did I survive when others didn't?).

"I mean, obviously, there has to be a reason," the 20year-old Lynch told The Associated Press. "I don't know what it is yet, so I have to explore all these things to figure it out."

Lynch's search is in many ways typical for an American the drinking age. It is the fame that is unusual.

Lynch has made a few on March 23, 2003, when her appearances since last year's 507th Maintenance Company book tour for Rick Bragg's got lost in the Iraqi desert and was ambushed in Nasiriyah.

With her vehicle stalled and her rifle jammed, Pfc. Lynch hopped into a Humvee driven by her best friend, Pfc. Lori Piestewa. The vehicle was hit by a rocket-propelled grenade and the Golden Globes and took a crashed. The 11 American soldiers killed in the ambush included Piestewa and three others in the Humvee: 1st Sgt. Robert Dowdy, Sgt. George Buggs and Spc. Edward Anguiano.

Lynch suffered two spinal fractures, nerve damage and a shattered right arm, right foot and left leg. According to medical records cited in her biography, she was also sodomized, apparently during a three-hour

Her videotaped rescue from a Nasiriyah hospital by U.S. commandos on April 1 made Lynch a hero.

It also stirred complaints of media manipulation by the U.S. government. Early reports had the flyweight former Wirt County Miss Congeniality suffering knife and bullet wounds while fighting off attackers until running out of ammunition.

Lynch agreed to the AP interview on condition that she not be asked about her Iraq ordeal. She repeated her charge that she felt "kind of used" by officials who spread false stories about her. She declined to discuss the politics of the Iraq war.

"If the same books are being sold in other countries for less of a price, it's unfair," said Emily Meyer, junior in materials science and engineering.

One reason the increase has occurred is because publishers produce books in "bundles," or combine multiple books and CD-ROMs in one package, according to California Student Public Interest Research

Local book stores have noticed this trend and other causes that may have led to the increase in prices.

"It seems a book four or five years ago, now would be twice as much," said George Tompkins, manager of University Book Exchange. "It is actually very frustrating for (book stores). Students think we make a large profit - we don't."

The problem is that publishing companies do not profit from used book sales, so they have to create new ways to make students think they need the newest books, he

"Do the publishers need to charge $120 for books? Probably not," Tompkins said. "They're losing a focus that (the books) are for the students' education."

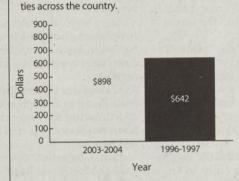

Students are finding ways to avoid paying the full price for many books.

"I know all I'll look at is what the stores sell the book at; then I'll just buy it online at a place like half.com," Meyer said. "If I have to buy it, I will. I don't have any other

College students ignore STD risks

By Jared Hopkins The Diamondback (U. Maryland)

(U-WIRE) COLLEGE PARK, Md. - One of two sexually active college-age students will contract a sexually transmitted disease by the time he or she is 25 years old, according to a recent study conducted at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill.

Students are not testing them-selves enough for diseases and have an "If I can't see it, then I don't have it" attitude, said Joan Cates, the study's director.

"If they are sexually active, they should be screened; it's as simple as that," Cates said.

Chlamydia, an STD that is one of the leading causes of infertility in the country but curable with treatment, has the highest number of new cases, according to the study. Tara Torchia, coordinator of the university's sexual health program, said the most common STD among university students is the human papillomavirus, which can cause genital warts and does not always have visual symptoms.

"Students are intelligent enough to know about these diseases and know they exist but they don't think they're at risk," said Torchia. "They understand IP! the severity of it but don't think they are susceptible.'

According to the study, nearly half of all new STD cases occur between the ages of 15-24. Also, a 10 percent reduction in youth STDs could save $650 million in medical costs.

It also reported that parents, educators and community members should speak to young people more often about the severity

Torchia said university students have increased their use of contraceptives to prevent pregnancy, but do not give the same attention to STDs.

"It's not the wrong route to take, but (STDs) should be taken just as seriously," she said.

Some students echo the belief that students are ignorant of the consequences associated with unprotected sex. 'People aren't being careful enough," said senior government and politics major Chelsea

The study's scientists gathered every known study available on STDs and then passed the data onto an advisory panel at UNC, which summarized and determined the risks and methods for prevention.

Cates said in order to stop the spread of STDs, communication between doctors and patients, as well as between parents and children, needs to improve. The education and technology industries also need to change.

"This is not an easy issue to solve," she said. "I'm the eternal optimist, but we don't know if things will get better or worse."

"I think it will get better," said sophomore theater major Nick Hitchens. "There seems to be more safe-sex advertisements, and MTV does a lot."

The project's youth panel called for continual communication between young people and educators rather than one-time conversations. Its advisory panel of experts in public health, medicine and communication recommended evidence-based solutions, especially those that have already shown the ability to reduce the risk of STDs in youth.

Senior biology major Raolat Abdulai said one possible solution, abstinence, is not stressed enough in education leading up to college.

"It's the only 100 percent guarantee you won't get an STD," she said. "You can only trust yourself. Soon a lot of people will start realizing the mistakes they made when they were younger."

U.S. must review Mexican cases

By Toby Sterling Associated Press

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — The International Court of Justice ruled yesterday that the United States violated the rights of 51 Mexicans on death row and ordered their cases be reviewed.

The United Nations' highest judiciary was considering a suit filed by Mexico claiming 52 convicted murderers were not given their right to assistance from their government.

"The U.S. should provide by means of its own choosing meaningful review of the conviction and sentence" of the Mexicans, presiding judge Shi Jiuyong said. Shi said the review could be carried out under the normal appeals process in the United States.

For three men who have already exhausted all other appeals, the court said the United States should make an exception and review their cases one ments to the Justice Department.

The court found that in the received his rights and his case did not need to be reviewed.

Mexican officials praised the ruling as "a triumph of international law" and said they were confident the United States would comply with the court's order.

'Of course we have full confidence that the United States will comply with the court's ruling," Dajer said, adding that if it does not, Mexico could ask the U.N. Security Council to issue a resolution urging it to do so.

'Mexico was not vindicated. The rule of international law was vindicated. Of course we are confident the United States will fully comply with the ruling," said Juan Gomez Robledo, Mexico's ambassador to the Netherlands.

He said Mexico "doesn't contest the United States' right as a sovereign country to impose the death penalty for the most grave crimes," but wants to make sure Mexico's citizens are not abused by a foreign legal system they do not always understand.

Washington had no immediate reaction. U.S. Ambassador Clifford Sobel referred com-

UW student found alive, injured

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A building near the marsh. missing University of Wisconsin student was found alive yesterday, less than two miles from where she vanished from her off-campus apartment with no coat or purse, police said.

Audrey Seiler, 20, had non-lifethreatening injuries and was taken to a hospital, Officer Larry Kamholz said. He refused to give further details about her condition.

Police said Seiler was found in a marsh near campus. Authorities told the Minneapolis Star-Tribune that they are looking for an armed suspect in connection with the disappearance.

Police with their weapons drawn could be seen walking the 20-year-old leaving her building early Saturday, and her door was left open, police said.

Volunteers from Seiler's hometown of Rockford, Minn., slogged through marshes around campus Tuesday, while investigators scoured phone records and searched apartments for any clue into her disappearance.

"Everybody wants you back, Audrey," said her mother, Stephanie Seiler, during a press conference yesterday morning. "We're not stopping, Audrey, and you can't stop either.'

Woolf said. James Martin was supended as part-time police chief of Fowler Township and also as a full-time police officer in nearby Howland Township pending investigations by state law-FBI. No charges have been filed.

Howland Township had disciplined him more than a decade ago after he admitted paddling juveniles. The townships are suburbs of Warren, about 70 miles southeast of Cleveland.

Woolf said Martin told her that return for 14 more sessions when her son Richard's participation in a juvenile diversion program that included paddling would make his speeding ticket "go away."

Woolf said Martin said the diversion program was the best choice for her son.

Martin could not be immediately reached for comment. A message seeking comment was left Wednesday with Fowler police.

Leftist Air America: Franken hits radio

Like Japanese automobile manufacturers making large trucks, or hockey in the South, political left-wingers are invading a potentially rewarding but historically truculent market.

Yesterday, Air America Radio — an exclusively liberal talk radio network - premiered on a half-dozen big city stations across the country. Fronted by actor-turned-rabble-rouser Al Franken — whose show is called the "O'Franken Factor" — and staffed with a rag-tag cast of comedians, intelligentsia and general dissidents, the network certainly looks the part of the scruffy underdog.

However, the popularity of television shows like The Daily Show with Jon Stewart and the satirical news of The Onion have blazed the way for the particular style of firebrand radio that Franken is interested in. So, the market exists for this concept to work. While liberal radio has sprouted up sporadically, its conservative counterparts especially the indomitable Rush Limbaugh — has taken over the market. Limbaugh's show is syndicated on more than 600 stations and has maintained its popularity through presidential tenures, wars, market fluctuations and his own struggles with drug addic-

Despite my political resistance and personal detestation, I am willing to admit that Rush Limbaugh's radio program and most of its clones — is seamlessly produced and impeccably staffed. To be successful, Air America needs to emulate what they are seeking to destroy. Recruiting comedian Janeane Garofalo and musician Chuck D, among others, should insure some short-term success for the fledgling network, but eventually content will matter and there is no guarantee that by the time the network finds its feet anybody will be listen-

Unceremoniously left out of the equation is the Reverend Jesse Jackson, who will be debuting his own liberal talk show on Sunday. Although Jackson might fit in well with the ilk of Air America, he is a famous enough personality to net his own contract with Clear Channel, and is, for now, too big for the network.

If growth goes as planned, Air America will come to swing states in time to rile up folks for the November presidential election.

This is a good thing. In the hypothetical where liberal rhetoric is available for my personal listening pleasure, I see Air America washing Rush and Sean Hannity from the consciousness of Columbus, and supplementing CD101 as listenable driving around Franken, while certainly an ultra-liberal, is also vastly intelligent and forthright. Any enemies that he has gained were through speaking his mind - a fact that inspires real respect. He has gathered — among the aforementioned celebrities - a veteran of public radio in Katherine Lanpher and a University of South Carolina professor. Intelligent and insightful commentary should be a given, at least for their shows.

Political biases aside, balance in media is important, and Air America will not encourage the middle-ground dialogue that is necessary. The network is an important piece in countering the onslaught of conservative talk show hosts, but the vastly partisan nature of it is frightening.

The recent Sept. 11 testimony was striking in its partisanship, and watching Colin Powell and Madeline Albright two people I have enormous respect for — exchange barbs was sickening. The Republican

Unlucky Larson on DL again

By Joe Kay Associated Press

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — If there's a virus going around, Brandon Larson is sure to catch it. If a foul ball whistles toward the dugout, his head is liable to be the one turned the other

The pitcher lets one slip. There is no doubt it will zero in on some part of his body.

That's just the way it is. "He's got that cloud," Cincinnati Reds manager Dave Miley marveled.

The third baseman is under it again. He will open the season on the disabled list, done in by a sprained toe that wiped out most of his spring training.

"Turf toe!" Larson said yesterday, sitting wearily — and warily — in a clubhouse folding chair. "I wouldn't wish it on anybody, I'll tell you that. Me especially. It's just another chapter to a string of spring training incidents. It's really disappointing."

This time, a toe. Last month, it was an eye infection. Before that, a rash.

And that's just the latest in a thick medical history brimming with bad moments that have derailed a promising career.

The Texan led Louisiana State to its second straight College World Series title in 1997, winning MVP honors, and was drafted by the Reds in the first round.

Before long, things started to

Only 18 games into his second season in the minors, he tore up his left knee while sliding into home plate and needed reconstructive surgery. A year later, he bruised the same knee and was forced on the disabled list.

He was just getting started. After an uneventful 2001 season that included his first promotion to the majors, his luck took a turn for the weird.

Larson had one of his proudest moments on Aug. 15, 2002, hitting a homer off Randy Johnson the first time he ever faced him. Naturally, it was not long before euphoria gave way to a jolt of pain.

One plate appearance later, one of Johnson's sliders landed squarely on Larson's right big toe, breaking it.

The toe got better. The luck

Three weeks later, Larson was in the dugout in St. Louis when Todd Walker lined a foul his way. The ball smacked him behind the right ear.

That was not the most painful part. He fell to the floor while trying to get out of the way, put his left hand down to break his fall and broke it — the hand, that is.

Last year, he strained his rib cage during spring training, then lost the starting third base job by going .083 in the first three weeks of the season. He had surgery on his left shoulder in September, finishing off another disappointing year.

Given a chance to reclaim the starting job this spring, he came down with a stomach virus, got an infected eye, then hurt his toe. He has not played since March 10, prompting the move to the disabled list.

"Just weird stuff," Larson said. And disappointing, too. At age 27, he is starting to run out of time before some younger prospect passes him by.

"I definitely need to make the most of the opportunity given me, no doubt about that," Larson said. "And I plan on doing that. I've got a lot of years left playing."

First, he has to heal. The Reds put him on the disabled list because they wanted him to get more at-bats before he plays, a move he expected and dreaded. Larson was downcast after getting the news, thinking about how he was going to miss out on the season opener against the Chicago Cubs. "It's real disappointing that I couldn't be out there on opening day," Larson said. "I've been thinking about that day forever. But you have to have at-bats. You can't just go out there cold turkey and face Kerry Wood." He also has to figure out how to escape the cloud that follows him wherever he goes. Before his first at-bat in a minor league game on Tuesday, Larson stood next to home plate in the bullpen as a Reds minor leaguer warmed up, working on his timing as he watched the pitches go by.

The young pitcher got nervous and let one slip, nailing Larson on the left wrist. It left a welt that added to the legacy.

winds were no excuse for a Buckeye team that has yet to swing the bats well, according to OSU Coach Bob Todd. "We just haven't hit a stride offensively."

With the wind blowing in all game long, both teams were forced to score runs the old fashion way: by playing smart baseball from start to finish.

"I knew they (the Eagles) were going to be a good club coming in so I knew I had to get ready and perform because that is what we are here to do," said OSU freshman pitcher Dan DeLucia.

The Eagles then scored the game-winning run in the top of the ninth on a RBI single by junior Brad Hrovat.

The Achilles heel for the Buckeyes Cold temperatures and high all year has been the fact they haven't found a replacement for Matt Davis, who shut down opponents in the late innings last year, Todd said.

OSU attempted to rally in the bottom of the ninth after sophomore Jacob Howell reached on an error and advanced to third on a single by Caravati. Eagles closer senior Ryan Vandenbussche closed the door by getting Buckeye sophomore Jedidiah Stephen to fly out to center to end the game.

'Coaches said starters for Wednesday nights usually go three or four innings so coming in I knew that," DeLucia said. "I felt I could have gone more, but we have a big weekend coming up against Illinois so all of our pitchers need to be ready for that."

DeLucia was relieved by OSU junior Mike Madsen, who gave the Buckeyes two scoreless and hitless

"Mike Madsen, I thought, did very well in relief," Todd said.

The Buckeyes' overall record in home openers at Bill Davis Stadium is now 5-3, while Coach Todd is now 12-5 overall in home openers after 17 seasons as OSU head coach. NFL rules evolve, Maurice may be left behind

By Kyle Woodley Lantern news editor

Some news from around the

The NFL made its crackdown on fun official yesterday when it voted to tack on a 15-yard penalty to already existing fines for excessive celebration. The decision was made mostly to affect pre-orchestrated group celebration, but is also intended to prevent outlandish forms of celebration, such as Joe Horn's stunt in New Orleans, where he pulled a cell phone out of the goalpost and made a call after scoring a

The penalty aspect was added after NFL owners agreed fines were not stopping the players from their hijinks — the possibility of a 15-yard loss is expected to make players think twice, as any infraction would

Quick thought: If a team prepares together for an entire week to the purpose that on Sunday, they can play as a smooth, flowing unit together ... shouldn't they be allowed to dance together when they excel? Let's face it: People love to see Spiderman. Fans want to see their players warming their hands around a football when it's cold. The amount of airtime and clips football celebrations get on sports television is proof enough that these demonstrations are viewer

Couch's future in Cleveland was cut short after the Browns signed former 49er QB Jeff Garcia to a four-year contract. After the signing, several teams were reported as wanting Couch, but most of these rumors were first to show a genuine interest in the former No. 1 draft pick.

This move should please both those hoping the former Kentucky phenom would finally get his chance to shine and those Cleveland fans who were sick of watching a brown-and-orange concrete statue getting pum-

Also, the most unheralded but potentially biggest move the Browns made was not Garcia. It was instead last month's signing of ex-Saints FB Terrelle Smith. Whether or not William Green or Lee Suggs will be starting in the backfield is insignificant — either denied — Green Bay was the would benefit greatly from the addition of a smash-mouth power blocker with real NFL experience. It also doesn't hurt that he's a true fullback, something the Browns desperately lacked last year in TE/FB Aaron Shea. options open — a dangerous 3 to keep instant replay for five prospect considering the quality of Cleveland's receiving corps.

Buckeye fans can revel in some small satisfaction, as Clarett will now have to wait until days before the draft to find out if a federal appeals court will rule him eligible to enter. The 2nd U.S. Court of Appeals set the date of the hearings for April 19. Should the court rule against Clarett, USC sophomore Mike Williams and several other underclassmen would be excluded from the draft as well.

While the replay is something purists argue is detrimental to the true nature of the sport — questionable referee calls - what percent of NFL fans appreciate the anticipation and emotional boost that come from vindication in the form of a reversed call? The challenge system completely fulfills every at-home referee's notion that they — though thousands of miles away - made a better real-I think we can safely say that time call than their officially mandated counterpart.

It also doesn't hurt that the replay system gives every player whose toe reaches the endzone Europe coaches may be more their full credit. Having no more questions about a play means less whining from sports fans
