A Pack of Pack Pickers

KING SIZE — Posed behind this mountain of cigarette packs are members of Delta Chi fraternity. Nope, the accumulation is not the result of finals week cramming nor does it represent cigarettes consumed by pledges and actives for one quarter. Actually the collection was turned in for a $700 stereophonic Hi-Fi, as first prize in a contest sponsored by a well known cigarette company. The cool music should more than atone for the curious stares and comments directed toward Delta Chi's as they toured Columbus highways and byways for used cigarette packs.

Meckstroth Joins Staff

Kenneth W. Meckstroth has joined the staff of the Ohio State University News and Information Service as assistant editor.

He was an Ohio State Journal writer, for 21 years serving in various capacities including those of state house and legislative reporter, special writer, columnist and political editor.

From 1955-59 he was on the Washington staff of former U. S. Sen. John W. Bricker.

STUDENTS URGED TO PAY FEES EARLY:

To prevent assessment of penalties for late payment, students must have fees paid by March 26th. Payment made after this date will be assessed a penalty of $5.00 for the first day and $1.00 per day thereafter to a maximum of $10.00.

Students who will not be in Columbus must have their fee cards and fees in the mail and postmarked on or before March 25th or penalties will be assessed.

Opera Star Here Friday

Roberta Peters, Metropolitan Opera soprano, will appear at the Veterans Auditorium Friday evening, March 13, under the auspices of Hast-Amend.

Miss Peters recorded "Lucia di Lammermoor," "Rigoletto," and "Orfea" in Rome, and "The Marriage of Figaro" in Vienna for RCA Victor.

Recently she scored in an important role in "Tonight We Sing," a film biography of impressario S. Hurok.

Jerry Lucas of Swimming . . .

18-Year-Old Eyes World Mark

By William R. Teague

When Indiana University's splash-flash Frank McKinney set his intercollegiate 200-yard back stroke record of 2:02.6 seconds at Ohio State, fans here figured they had seen the world's best back stroke swimmer.

They doubt it already.

The reason is Lewis B. Schaefer III, a crewcut 18-year-old high school boy from Berea, Ohio who has done the 100-yd. back stroke four times this year in less than 56 seconds.

LAST WEEK Schaefer did the 100 in 56.4 seconds to break his own national scholastic record, then led off a 200-yard medley team that finished in 1:48.6 seconds for another record in the state meet at Ohio State.

Next day the kid turned in a :55.3 for another national record in the 100 and led the relay team as it trimmed a second off its scholastic record.

"Pretty good," spat his coach, "but L.B. can do better. Got an applied-for 55-point-two."

THAT, FOR your information, is half a second better than the official world record set in 1954 by Yoshi Oyakawa of Ohio State. And it's nearly three seconds better than the time that won the NCAA crown last year for Jim Dolbey of Yale.

His torrid times of the past two months have made Schaefer the most sought after swimmer in history. He has become the Jerry Lucas of swimming, with college coaches running over each other in their attempts to snag Schaefer. But he's harder to sign than Mickey Mantle.

"No doubt about it," says Mike Peppe of Ohio State. "Schaefer is the greatest back stroker in scholastic history."

L.B. says he has plenty other worries before graduation this June. His only comment is that he will go to a Big Ten school, maybe Ohio State, but maybe not.

RIGHT NOW he has his hands full with the daily newspaper route he has delivered since he was 11. Profits from it have brought new responsibilities: a Volkswagen, a sailboat and two jut-jawed boxers bigger than he is.

Then too he has to practice to beat McKinney. He beat him in the AAU last year with a 56.5 in the prelims. McKinney beat Schaefer in the finals but failed to better his time.

And, incidentally, there's a little problem in Rome in 1960. The Olympics. L.B. figures he can win it. After seeing him swim, nobody has nerve enough to tell him he can't do it.

Khrushchev Wants 'Equal' Berlin Rights

By Associated Press

Soviet Premier Khrushchev said in Berlin last night Soviet troops would have to be part of any military force kept in West Berlin if the Western Allies agree to his plan to get out and make West Berlin a so-called "free city." He spoke to newsmen after meeting with East German red leaders, ostensibly about a peace treaty.

Khrushchev had said Monday he'd agree to a minimum number of troops from the U.S., Britain, France and Russia—or from neutral countries—remaining in the city. Replying to a question in East Berlin, Khrushchev made it plain troops from the Western Big Three alone would not be agreeable to him.

Acting Secretary of State Christian Herter was quoted as saying the U.S. is hopeful, but not confident that the Berlin crisis can be settled through negotiations. Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman William Fulbright of Arkansas said Herter expressed himself that way before the committee.

Fulbright also said that Herter and Assistant Secretary of State Livingston Merchant said that U.S. defense plans are adequate to meet any eventuality.

Khrushchev said, "We also belong to the victors. During the war we didn't drink coffee—we were shedding our blood."

The Soviet leader was asked if he would be agreeable to having India's Prime Minister Nehru act as mediator on the Berlin issue. Khrushchev replied: "Nehru is a very sensible man and he never says a word without weighing it carefully. I respect him but I cannot say what Nehru should do."

The Soviet premier commented on West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's rejection of an invitation to meet with him. Khrushchev said Brandt had accepted the invitation when outside Germany, but apparently changed his mind when he returned to Berlin. Khrushchev added, "Apparently it was made clear to him he should not accept such an invitation."

Brandt said he never agreed to meet the Soviet premier anywhere, inside or outside Germany. He also had a description for Khrushchev's proposal for a four-power police force to take the place of Western occupation troops in West Berlin.

OSU Figure Gets Visiting Scholar Post

Headquarters of Phi Beta Kappa in Washington, D.C., has announced appointment of Prof. Foster Rhea Dulles of Ohio State University as a visiting scholar for 1959-60.

The Ohio State author-historian will be one of nine university faculty members throughout the country who will participate in the visiting scholar program, which includes lectures, discussions and informal meetings with faculty and students in Phi Beta Kappa chapters.

A member of Ohio State's history faculty since 1941, Dr. Dulles is the author of "The Road to Teheran," "Labor in America," "The Imperial Years," "China and America," and several other books. His latest volume, "The United States since 1865," will be issued next summer in the University of Michigan series, "History of the Modern World."

Dulles was chosen by the U. S. Department of State as one of two Ohio State professors to visit the Soviet Union last summer as members of the first group of 12 U. S. educators to participate in the new cultural exchange program with Russia.

Ohio Staters Give Awards

Ohio Staters, Inc. will award a plaque and a $50 check to each of five outstanding students at its annual Public Relations Luncheon on Thursday. The recipients are outstanding Junior scholars of the five University undergraduate colleges.

The luncheon will be held in the Ohio Staters' regular meeting room in the Ohio Union at 12 noon. The purpose of the luncheon is to give members of the faculty and administration and recently elected student leaders an opportunity to observe Ohio Staters, Inc. in one of its weekly meetings.

The new Ohio Staters officers will be installed at this luncheon and guests will also have a chance to meet the men who will guide the organization during the next three quarters.

New Pan-hel Heads Feted

Panhellenic officers for 1959 were honored last night at a banquet in the Ohio Union. Dr. Meno Lovenstein of the Econ. Dept. was guest speaker.

He said the pressure in America today is not from the Russians but from the realization that activity without reason is without depth.

Officers installed at the annual fete were: Marcia Thone, Kappa Alpha Theta, president; Bev Beiderman, Alpha Epsilon Phi, first vice president; Bobbie Litz, Delta Phi Epsilon, second vice president; Babs Doaster, Phi Mu, secretary; Peggy Pees, Delta Zeta, treasurer; Anne Carey, Kappa Alpha Theta, rush chairman; Carolyn Grub, Delta Gamma, chief justice.

AFROTC Commandant Views Compulsory ROTC

In-Bred . . .

To the Editor:

Last week a contributor to your letters to the editor column criticized the faculty of this university as being "in-bred," i.e., too many Ohio State graduates employed.

SUNDAY AFTERNOON George W. Dickson, Agr-4, took time out to check the accuracy of this statement. The source of information was the University bulletin, Catalog number, 1957-58 edition, which lists the members of the faculty. It gives their undergraduate degrees as well as the advanced degrees earned, and the institutions at which they were earned.

Mr. Dickson and I checked only the undergraduate institutions, assuming that "in-breeding" might ordinarily refer to persons who earned their undergraduate degree at Ohio State and stayed on here to join the faculty; or possibly went elsewhere to earn advanced degree after getting their first degree here, then returned here to teach. A small number of "administrators" are included. We did not check departments.

WE FOUND THAT indeed the percentage of in-breeding here does not seem to be nearly as high as "Name Withheld" indicated. Universities from throughout the U. S., and foreign nations, are represented on the faculty.

For example, there are: Punjab University; Vienna; Toulouse; Szeged; Muenchen; Basel; Bombay; Prague; Hong Kong; Florence; Zurich; Tübingen; others from England and Canada, to add to international cross-fertilization. Also, there is a respectable sprinkling of ivy from Harvard, Yale, Princeton, etc.

REGARDING THE undergraduate alma maters of this University's faculty members, Mr. Dickson and I found that, of those listed in the 1957-58 Bulletin (2170), a total of 1,512, or approximately 70 per cent, received their undergraduate degrees elsewhere than Ohio State. A total of 658, or about 30 per cent, earned their degrees here.

The matter of in-breeding, and the dividing line at which it becomes harmful in its effect upon a faculty, is in itself a subject of much discussion and debate among educators.

THIS APPEARS certain, however: in these days of competition to secure able teachers and researchers, every department is alert to search for and try to retain capable students who show promise in that particular area. Also, if the present teaching staff in a department contains faculty members from various universities and backgrounds, which appears to be true, then is not the student who majors in such a department the product of cross-breeding, rather than in-breeding?

Perhaps "Name Withheld" would like to carry this further and check all the graduate degrees earned by our faculty members; or maybe someone on the LANTERN staff will do so. It will be quite a task, but should result in some interesting findings.

J. H. McElhaney.

Ellison's Charges Valid . . .

To the Editor:

As a member of the faculty of Ohio State I have watched the reaction to Mr. Ellison's article with considerable interest. Certainly, the status quo at Ohio State does not lack supporters. The President, the deans, and the leaders of student organizations express only shock at the charges.

FORTUNATELY for them, the article contains a sufficient number of inaccuracies to give a semblance of justification to their righteous indignation. It does, however, seem odd that none of these people find any of Mr. Ellison's charges valid. How can his main charge be denied, i.e., that this university is only partially concerned with its primary functions—training in intellectual discipline and the pursuit of knowledge?

It would be plain to the most casual observer that this is not a university whose main orientation is intellectual. This is, of course, a charge which may be brought against most of the state universities in America. Academic standards at Ohio State are far below the potential level of attainment by the faculty and students and there seems little desire on the part of the administration to raise them.

FOR EXAMPLE, a bill was introduced in this session of the legislature which would give the Board of Trustees the power to set entrance standards at any level they thought proper. Did the administration give active support to the measure? Not at all. On the contrary, President

Fawcett stated that he agreed in principle with the measure but would give it no positive support.

These are times which should try men's souls but there is little evidence that many people at Ohio State would agree. Our statesmen and our responsible press inform us each day that this is a time of crisis for America and that our only ultimate salvation lies in our educational system. If Ohio State is to meet the challenge this presents, it will require the best we have to offer and that can only be achieved by demanding the highest standards from everyone: administrators, faculty and students. This can never happen without leadership almost totally within the upper echelons of the administration.

THE QUESTION Mr. Ellison has raised gives us an opportunity to examine and discuss at least one aspect of university life and to determine whether or not it accords with the needs of the present. Do the fraternities and sororities perform a proper role within an intellectual community? Do they demand adequate scholarly achievement from their members?

If they do not, what reforms can be instituted within the system which will allow these organizations to perform a role consonant with the needs of this community?

I believe that a policy statement on this issue is due and only the administration can give it.

John Sperling,
Department of History.

Statement on ROTC . . .

To the Editor:

It appears advisable that, as Commandant of the nationwide Air Force ROTC program, I provide you with a first-hand statement of my attitude toward the required feature of basic ROTC, in order that any possibility of misunderstanding or confusion may be avoided.

IN 1957, IN reply to a query from the American Association of Land-Grant Colleges and Universities, the Secretary of Defense announced the Air Force position with respect to the question of compulsory ROTC. Although the Air Force is aware of the benefits derived from the compulsory feature, it recognizes that the decision in this matter is a prerogative of each college or university participating in the program.

The primary mission of the Air Force ROTC is to select young college men of high-growth potential and prepare them for duty as officers in the United States Air Force. Fortunately, many colleges and universities throughout our country have recognized and accepted a responsibility to assist in the task of providing competent leadership for our Armed Forces. In return, we feel that we are providing a course of instruction on the campus that will prove of lasting benefit to the student who pursues the course in whole or in part. The process of making a good officer necessarily involves the making of a good citizen.

MY CONCERN with the compulsory versus elective features of ROTC is the degree that our productive capability is affected. Recent studies by my staff indicate that should all 95 schools that currently require Air Force ROTC go elective, we could not meet our production goals without lowering our standards of selection.

In my talk with Mr. John Peck, who recently visited my headquarters as a representative of the Student Council of the University, we discussed the feasibility of a one-year compulsory program.

THIS DISCUSSION was related to the large college enrollments forecast for the period 1965-70. Should the increased enrollments materialize, extensive problems will be created for both the Air Force and the institutions concerned. The colleges and universities will face the problem of additional facilities to provide for an enlarged cadet corps; and, the Air Force will have the problem of increased demand for manpower on the campus.

These problems, I am convinced, can be solved to the mutual satisfaction of both parties through the consultative process. The one-year compulsory program presents only one of many possible solutions to the problem. Although I favor the two-year basic course, I would certainly rather have one year than none at all. However, this does not mean that the Armed Services are considering this type of program or that any institutions are being urged to try it.

I am proud of our Air Force ROTC at Ohio State. It is one of the largest units in the program and has consistently produced highly competent officers who are serving their country throughout the world.

T. C. Rogers,
Major General, USAF
Commandant.

GERALD A. PARSONS received his B.A. in 1950 and his M.B.A. one year later, both from Cornell University. He joined General Electric in 1954 and is presently Specialist-Marketing Administration in the company's Large Steam Turbine-Generator Department.

"The biggest challenge a man has to face is himself"

"Men and businesses are alike in one respect," says Gerald A. Parsons, 30-year-old marketing and personnel development specialist. "Their success depends to a great extent on how well they respond to challenge. And I've found that the biggest challenge a man has to face on his job is not the competition of others — but the far more important one of developing himself to his fullest capabilities."

"During my four years with General Electric, I've had plenty of opportunity for self-development. Challenging training assignments at five different locations within the company have given me a broader understanding of my career area. In my present job I have the benefit of working with experts, both in establishing long-range goals and in helping to achieve them. I've found that working toward future potential is vital in the development of successful businesses — and successful men."

Young men such as Gerry Parsons are important to the future of companies like General Electric and to the growth of America's dynamic, competitive-enterprise economy. Our nation's progress will depend more and more upon those forward-looking individuals who continue to develop to their fullest capabilities during their lifetime.

That is why General Electric provides a climate for individual progress — with opportunity for increasing knowledge and skills — for all of its employees, including 30,000 college graduates. For it is only as individuals meet the challenge of self-development that there continues to be progress for a business, an industry, or a nation.

Progress Is Our Most Important Product

GENERAL ELECTRIC

A Success Story—Fred Taylor and Bucks

By Jack Wittenmeier

The referee blew his whistle and stopped suddenly, pointing an accusing finger at the red-faced coach, seated uneasily between a player and the team trainer during the recent Michigan game.

"That's enough," the official shouted, "you've been yelling all night." The figure on the bench jumped up with a quick retort, "Well—you've been missing them all night."

THE PRESSURE packed statement came from Buckeye basketball coach Fred Taylor, experiencing his first technical foul as head coach at a major university.

The verbal explosion showed a valuable quality in Fred Taylor—his burning determination and desire to win.

Now that basketball at Ohio State is finished for another season, we might take a backward look at Fred Taylor and his achievements.

IN HIS FIRST go at big league coaching, Taylor saw his team finish with a 7-7 Conference record, good enough for a first division berth. Their overall record was 11-11 or .500 per cent.

Fred Taylor was named head basketball coach last June, replacing Floyd S. Stahl. He has been a full-time member of the Buckeye staff since 1953, serving as freshman basketball and baseball coach and scout.

Taylor is the sixth basketball coach at Ohio State since the Buckeye school entered the Western Conference in 1913.

A NATIVE OF Zanesville, Taylor graduated from high school in 1942. That fall, he entered Ohio State but had to leave school for the Air Corps the following spring.

During his 36 month tour of duty, Taylor developed into a standout basketball and baseball player.

Taylor returned to Ohio State in the fall of 1946 and continued his athletic career. He played center on the varsity basketball teams of 1948, '49 and '50. The Bucks won the Big Ten championship in 1950, compiling a 22-4 record.

IN BASEBALL, Fred was a first baseman, winning All-American honors in 1950.

Following his graduation from Ohio State in June, 1950, Taylor signed a professional baseball contract with the Washington Senators.

He spent the 1950-51 seasons with Chattanooga of the Southern Association, batting .296 and knocking in 103 runs in '51.

THE 1952 season was divided between the Washington Senators and their American Association farm club, Charleston.

In the fall of 1953, Taylor accepted a position with the Ohio State athletic department.

Fred Taylor was a popular choice for the position as head varsity coach following Stahl's resignation. His personal warmth, determination and thoroughness, demonstrated during the five years as freshman coach, ideally suited him for the job.

ONE OF THE youngest Buckeye head coaches at 34, Taylor is married and has three daughters, Janna, Krista and Nicola.

Although making no promises, Taylor firmly believes in Ohio State's basketball future and in the high quality of talent developed in the state's high schools.

Fred Taylor should be well paid for his faith in the future when it moves around to the present next season.

FRED TAYLOR—A burning desire to win.

His resignation was announced yesterday by the University Board of Regents. Foster was closing out 25 years as head football coach at Wisconsin.

Recruiting Tightened . . .

Big Ten Committee Offers New Policy

(By The Associated Press)

A special committee recommended yesterday that Big Ten regulations governing recruiting be buttoned up tighter with particular attention to choking off so-called outside funds.

An 11-page revision submitted by the special committee provides for just one university-paid campus visit by a prospective athlete and sets up machinery outlawing recruiting funds not deposited with and controlled by the university.

THE JOINT GROUP rejected a recommendation to permit off-campus personal contact of a prospect by coaches.

The committee hopes to dry up funds other than those under direct control of member universities with this proviso:

"Any person (other than an employee of a conference member who is acting as a representative of its athletic interests) may pay from his own personal resources directly to a prospective athlete the costs of visiting the campus of a Conference member."

Nashua won $752,550 as a three-year-old in 1955.

Grants Total $385,500 for Health Probe

Ohio State will receive two health research grants totaling $385,000, the National Institutes of Health announced recently.

Largest of the two grants, $300,000, will be matched to approximately $1,800,000 in state capital improvements funds to provide additional research facilities for the clinical unit building of the College of Veterinary Medicine. Final plans are now being drawn for the building.

A second NIH grant for $85,000 will be applied to a Water Resources Research Laboratory, plans for which were approved by the university's Board of Trustees at their March meeting. The laboratory's cost estimate is approximately $150,000, to be financed in part from the capital improvements bond issue.

The Water Resources Laboratory will devote its attention to the improvement of Ohio's water supply, its reuse of water and the maintenance of safe drinking water in the heavily populated areas of the state.

This Bulletin will be the official medium for all authorized announcements. Faculty and students—especially officials of all organizations—are requested to look to the Bulletin for information. University officials and executives will be guided by the Bulletin in preparing for meetings. In the interest of efficiency and to avoid conflicts, the following announcement is made: No meetings or functions of any sort will be permitted or provided for either on the campus or in the University buildings unless authorized and announced in the Daily Bulletin. The University assumes no responsibility for unauthorized or unannounced meetings. Notices should be at the office of the Executive Dean, Special Services, not later than three days, excluding Saturday and Sunday, before the date of publication. Notices of Monday's Bulletin must be received Wednesday morning.

Some reports said the rebels were fighting their way toward the Syria border of the United Arab Republic. The rebels are described as anti-Communist and in favor of Gamal Nasser, the president of the UAR.

A group of UAR diplomats expelled from Iraq arrived in Cairo, saying that the Iraqi government of Premier Abdel Karim Kassem appears to be in a desperate position and the capital is digging in against rebellion. A UAR source in Damascus said Iraqi planes shot up a Syrian village Tuesday. Iraqi-UAR relations are very tense.

INFORMED SOURCES in Paris said the West has lined up solidly behind a proposal for a foreign ministers' meeting with the Russians in Geneva, probably in May, to take up the German question. The solid front on a not to the Soviet Union was announced as British Prime Minister Macmillan wound up two days of talks with French leaders. Later this week, Macmillan will go to West Germany and after that to Canada and the United States.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles underwent his 12th X-ray treatment from Walter Reed Army Hospital's million-volt radiation machine. Doctors still have not given any indication of whether Dulles will be able to resume his full duties at the State Department.

THE NEW ROCKET ship X-15 successfully completed its first captive flight test and returned to Edwards Air Force Base in California. It was carried up 38,000 feet under the wing of a B-52 bomber.
