Intelligence budget soars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the demise of the Soviet Union, the Bush Administration is proposing a secret intelligence budget near Cold War levels, according to sources inside and outside the government.

Spending is estimated at $30 billion for next year — about where it stood when Soviet communism was considered a major threat.

Some members of Congress, which will eventually vote on the intelligence budget without revealing its contents, think the spies and analysts ought to be taking cuts along the lines of those faced by the military. But the White House counters that intelligence activities will be all the more vital after the armed forces are cut.

Officials won't comment publicly on the intelligence budget. But when Defense Secretary Dick Cheney was asked recently whether intelligence cuts would equal those in defense, he responded:

"Let's just say (CIA Director) Bob Gates is a happy man."

The administration's proposed budget for next year does take a bite from intelligence spending. But it is nowhere near as much as the 7 percent cut in the defense budget of which it is a part, according to indications from official and private sources. That's not sitting well with some lawmakers.

"The intelligence budget has got to reflect developments in the world," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. "There's a general consensus that there should be some cuts," added Metzenbaum, a member of the Senate Intelligence Committee.

Democrats believe the intelligence budget, which doubled during the 1980s, should be shaved at least another 2 or 3 percent, bringing it closer to the defense cuts. Spending on spy satellites is a likely target, now that the former Soviet Union is dismantling many of its nuclear weapons and consolidating the rest.

Last year, Congress cut about 1 percent from the administration's requested spending. For fiscal 1993, which begins Oct. 1, lawmakers say they'll be less generous.

But the administration contends, in the words of one official, that "intelligence is a force multiplier," meaning that it makes up for the smaller number of U.S. troops and weapons. To feel confident that the United States can afford to close bases and take many troops and systems off alert, the administration must be able to rely on timely intelligence, he added, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Lawmakers believe early warning can be provided with less money.

The target areas for U.S. intelligence — such as the spread of nuclear weapons in the Third World, terrorist activity and the political fortunes of the former Soviet Union — "are important but not that expensive," he said.

John Pike, an official of the non-government Federation of American Scientists, who tracks intelligence spending based in part on unclassified budget items, figures an intelligence analyst costs the government about $100,000 a year. Even hiring 1,000 new analysts would only come to about one-tenth the cost of a $1 billion satellite.

Indeed, the intelligence committees of Congress believe spending on spy satellites — estimated to number nine — can be cut now that they no longer have to track Soviet missile and troop movements.

Yet the proposed budget for the National Reconnaissance Office, the secret Pentagon agency that deploys spy satellites, is the same as last year, Pike said.

Ryne Sandberg and his wife, Cindy, meet the press Monday after he became the highest-paid player in baseball history. The Chicago Cubs infielder agreed to a four-year contract extension Monday in which Sandberg will be paid $28.4 million.

Sandberg gets $28.4 million

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Ryne Sandberg took baseball salaries to unprecedented heights Monday when he agreed with the Chicago Cubs on a four-year contract extension with an option worth a total of $28.4 million.

The 32-year-old second baseman, an All-Star for eight consecutive seasons, becomes the first $7 million-a-year-player in a sport where the previous high was Bobby Bonilla's $5.8 million average.

"I'm very happy; it's a big relief," Sandberg said at a news conference called to announce the deal. "I think a lot of time and work went into this on both sides; it was handled very professionally."

Sandberg, who already was signed for 1992 at $2.1 million, gets a $3.5 million signing bonus to be paid in December, $5.1 million over each of the next four seasons and a guaranteed payment of $2 million for personal services. In addition, the Cubs have an option for 1997 at $5.9 million with a $2.5 million buyout.

"I couldn't be happier with the fact that we're going to have Ryne Sandberg playing second base for a long time with the Chicago Cubs," Cubs general manager Larry Himes said. "His career is going to be a Chicago career."

Sandberg, a nine-time Gold Glove winner, batted .291 last season with 26 homers and 100 RBI, becoming the first second baseman to drive in 100 runs in consecutive seasons since Bobby Doerr of the Boston Red Sox in 1949 and 1950. Sandberg's 200 homers as a second baseman are the fifth-highest total for that position in major league history.

Sandberg, eligible for free-agency after this season, had given the Cubs a deadline of March 1 for an extension, then pushed back the deadline by a day. The sides negotiated late Sunday night at a Phoenix hotel, but talks broke down at 11:30 p.m., partly because the Cubs wanted a longer deal for less money.

"The deal was dead. It was flat-out dead," said Sandberg's agent, Jim Turner.

About 15 minutes later, Turner called and asked that Sandberg meet one-on-one with Stanton Cook, the Cubs president and the former chief executive officer of the Chicago Tribune Co., which owns the team. Sandberg, who lives in Phoenix, met with Cook for about 45 minutes. Turner then spoke briefly with Cook at 2:15 a.m. and agreed to talk again in the morning.

"When I woke up this morning at six, I called Ryne and it was busy because he was calling me," Turner said. "I called back; and I told him I had a creative idea and he liked it. It was a way to add money to the program."

Turner presented the proposal at 8 a.m. during a meeting that included Cook, Himes, Tribune Co. lawyer Dennis Homerin, Sandberg and his wife Cindy. The Cubs responded an hour later, and it was at that point Turner finally thought the deal could get done. The sides went back and forth for about three hours wrapping it up.

"The whole idea with the deadline was that I didn't want to be interfered with in baseball season," Sandberg said. "To me, spring training is very important. That's when you begin to concentrate on baseball and focus on the season ahead."

Sandberg might get to sign a new contract when this one expires.

More disabled students using Handivan transport services

By Kevin Corvo
Lantern staff writer

The termination of the daytime Scarlet and Gray bus service has created an approximate 50 percent increase in the number of students using the Handivan service provided by the OSU Transportation Department.

Handivans are responsible for the transportation of permanently or temporarily disabled students to and from classes. Students eligible to receive Handivan service must register and provide medical proof to the Office for Disability Services before Handivans will transport them.

"We can only assume it (the increase) is attributed to (the termination of) the Scarlet and Gray," said Beth Bame, assistant director for the transportation department.

Ed Jackson, a Handivan driver and evening shift coordinator of the Handivans said, "In my opinion, I think there is a definite increase in the student load on the Handivans because of the discontinuation of the Scarlet and Gray."

Jackson drives Handivans from 3 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. and still sees students waiting for buses at the old Scarlet and Gray stops, he said.

"I saw 13 ladies in front of the Union on College Avenue (last) Friday night," Jackson said. "I directed the students to High Street. It seems many students still don't know how to adjust."

Jackson said the increase in student load sometimes prevents drivers from completing their schedules efficiently.

"We get behind and a few students get angry. I think additional staffing during certain hours would help," Jackson said.

Gary Daniels, another Handivan driver and daytime coordinator of the program, agreed that there were more students riding the vans as a result of the bus cuts. He said he also has to turn away students who are not handicapped and try to get rides.

"I've always got some students flagging me down and saying 'are you going here or there' and I have to turn them down, of course, because of our policy," Daniels said. "It (the overload) seems to be more consistent this quarter."

Five Handivans operate during the day and one or two operate at night. The names of students eligible for the service appear on a schedule. The transportation department also responds to eligible students who call and need to be transported.

"Between 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. we sometimes can't take calls because we are booked solid," Daniels said. He estimated his increase to be between five and seven students per day.

Jackson estimates a 40 percent increase in student load.

"Getting a student to back-to-back classes can be difficult," Daniels said. "Construction, traffic and especially bad weather makes

PC present at Ohio State, questions labels

Political correctness attacks stereotypes

By Jo Crawford
Lantern staff writer

Part two in a five-part series

Not only is it illegal to park in a handicap zone, but it is not politically correct. Just when you figured out what to call all of your friends, you have to get to know them again. They're now Asians, African-Americans and Euro-American. And your dog Foo-Foo is actually your animal companion.

Political correctness has infiltrated and influenced the language and labels that students use everyday. To be P.C. is to avoid stereotypes and offensive language by creating a whole new set of labels.

"I think that they (stereotypes) may come from a competitive human condition, whereby we seek to elevate ourselves by demeaning others," said Tom Rumora, coordinator for the A World of Difference program.

The politically correct terms that are used tend to be general and inclusive, avoiding stereotypes.

Rumora said some common stereotypes are those of the straight-A, violin-playing Asian-American; the slower, less-motivated Hispanic; and the sexist, racist, oppressive white male.

Stereotyping is a process by which we evaluate and come to conclusions quickly from a visual image, Rumora said. Generally when stereotypes are developed, negatives are assigned to whole groups, he said.

Joyce Vaughan, director of African-American Student Services, said stereotypes come from people not being educated about people from other cultures.

"We become victims of our own ignorance," Vaughan said.

Vaughn said the portrayal of ethnic groups in television and movies contributes to stereotypes.

"The educational system is as much a part of our stereotyping and labeling because there is not a curriculum of inclusion," she said.

Vaughn said the acceptable labels are now either African-American or Black.

"It just depends on who you talk to," Vaughan said. She said that African-American seems to be the preferable label because it provides a parallel to those persons who come from other parts of the world.

Marc Conte, president of the Bisexual, Gay And Lesbian Alliance, said the common stereotypes associated with his organization are those of gays as feminine, limp-wristed hairdressers; lesbians as bull dyke woman who wear suits; and bisexuals as people who are confused sex maniacs.

Conte said the correct label is sexual orientation and not sexual preference because preference implies choice, and there is no proven information that being gay is a choice.

While P.C. labels try to give a multicultural view of things they also tend to place some very different groups together.

People who are overweight, short, tall or thin are all simply differently sized; there is no distinguishing of any differences.

Another P.C. term is 'person of color,' which encompasses a larger group than just African-Americans.

Political correctness a campus issue

By Holly O'Connor
Lantern staff writer

The rise of political correctness on college campuses across the country has not affected Ohio State as much as it has some other colleges and universities.

However, the political-correctness movement, which is not easily defined but is used to address issues in racism, sexism and other forms of discrimination, is definitely present here, said Sandra Schuster, assistant dean of Student Life.

The university is sending conflicting messages to the students because the university has not taken a specific stand, Schuster said.

"There is no institutional policy governing speech and referring to races here at the present time," said Malcolm Baroway, executive director of University Communications. Baroway said the reason for not having a distinct policy is that language is constantly in transition.

"Our language (way of speaking) changes as to the times we live in," Baroway said. "As part of that change, we need to capitalize on those changes in referring to specific groups of people." In general, the university tries to acknowledge the requests of groups, races or religions in referring to them, Baroway said.

For example, there is a historical basis for referring to Blacks with a capital "B" in written material. "It was the desire of the group itself. We, the university as a whole, need to use our best judgment," Baroway said.

Other institutions have taken more formal action in dealing with political correctness.

The University of South Carolina has adopted an alternative speech code called The Carolinian Creed. This creed was adopted in the fall of 1989 and stemmed from no particular incident, said Jerry Cratty, associate dean of students at the University of South Carolina.

"The code was adopted because of a growing concern over the physical changes occurring on campus and of new rules that were being introduced. There was a lot of impatience in the general climate," Cratty said.

A group of faculty, staff and students wrote the creed and borrowed most of the language from the "Shared Commitment" code of Eckerd College in Florida, Cratty said.

"The Carolinian Creed is a non-traditional honor code that our community is expected to uphold. It is a statement of value that is enforced by members of the community," Cratty said. "There are no formal sanctions if someone breaks the code," he noted.

The creed is distributed to all students after they have been accepted by the university and is also included in the student policy manual, all athletic programs and graduation programs. It is also posted in some campus buildings.

The creed has raised awareness in the community and is used as a guideline in considering administrative resolutions. It plays a major role in considering student rules. It also helps to explain why we have certain rules, Cratty said. "Because we share a common belief, we have a common commitment," he said.

Some have suggested that such a code might work at Ohio State.

The Carolinian Creed
The community of scholars at The University of South Carolina is dedicated to personal and academic excellence.

Choosing to join the community obligates each member to a code of civilized behavior.
As a Carolinian...

I will practice
personal and academic integrity;

I will respect
the dignity of all persons;

I will respect
the rights and property of others;

I will discourage bigotry, while striving to learn from differences in people, ideas and opinions;

I will demonstrate concerns for others, their feelings, and their need for conditions which support their work and development.

Allegiance to these ideals requires each Carolinian to refrain from and discourage behaviors which threaten the freedom and respect every individual deserves.

Undergraduate Government Representative Garrett Schwartz says that "USG hasn't discussed the issue of having a speech code here at Ohio State. If something comes up such as the suggesting of a speech code, we'll definitely address it."

Schwartz voiced his objection to a speech code. "There are university rules against verbal assaults and harassing people," Schwartz said. "An actual speech code is not appropriate to restrict the statements of students and faculty."

Sen. Adams resigns

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Democrats scrambled to save Sen. Brock Adams' seat Monday after he dropped his re-election bid amid allegations he sexually harassed eight women. Popular Democratic Gov. Booth Gardner said he wouldn't decide whether to run for more than a week.

Adams resisted continued calls for his resignation from Democrats and Republicans alike.

Gardner told a news conference he wouldn't decide whether to seek Adams' seat until after the state Legislature adjourns March 12.

Gardner also declined to immediately call for Adams' resignation.

"I think ... he can make the judgment as to whether he is, in fact, serving effectively and if he is not, I think he'll be the first to know," Gardner said. "But on speculation that he doesn't see that and others of us do, then I would talk with him by private phone before making a public statement."

Asked if he believed the allegations against Adams, Gardner replied, "I'm not going to make any judgment."

Adams dropped his bid for a second term Sunday, hours after The Seattle Times published accounts from unidentified former employees and associates. One woman said Adams drugged and raped her.

Adams, 65, told reporters: "I have a job to do and I'm not resigning this office."

He didn't return a telephone call Monday. Tom Keefe, his legal aide, said the senator was standing firm.

Adams was transportation secretary in the Carter administration and earlier spent 12 years in the U.S. House representing Seattle. Previous allegations of sexual misconduct made him one of the most vulnerable Democrats in the Senate.

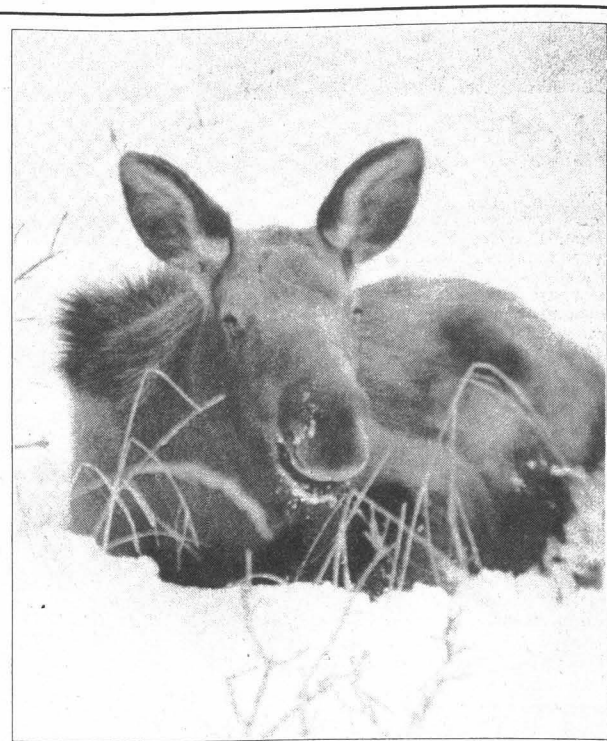

Former U.S. Rep. Mike Lowry and state Sen. Patty Murray, both Democrats, were already running against Adams, citing his low standing in polls. Other potential candidates were former U.S. Reps. Don Bonker and Al Swift.

"I think people are getting a full dose of sex in the workplace and abuse of power," Murray said Monday. "There is a different feeling of power among the old boys' network."

State Democratic Chairwoman Karen Marchioro said his resignation "has to be considered now." The allegations make "a very, very serious hit on a person who was not in that strong a position anyway," she said.

The governor said 18 months ago that Adams should withdraw from the Senate race.

"The governor had said he himself wouldn't run for Senate this year (against Adams) but the world is different now," said spokeswoman Sheryl Hutchison.

it worse. Probably one (more van) would normalize the increase."

Bame said the transportation department is working with the Office for Disability Services to alleviate the problem.

"We're in the process of implementing several factors that should facilitate the Handivan services," Bame said. "First we need to strictly enforce our no-show policy."

A no-show occurs when a student fails to appear at a scheduled pick up.

"After two no-shows we will warn the student. If a third no-show occurs the student will be denied services for the day and will need to call (Disability Services) to be reinstated," Bame said.

"Our second goal is to better educate the riders, especially the temporary riders," Bame said. "We need to make the instructions more friendly. We're reducing the instruction book from four to two pages to make it more readable."

Bame said the university administration has made Handivan services their number one priority in the transportation department. "At this point, Handivan services has not and will not be reduced because people depend on it."

Warren King, director of the Office for Disability Services, said "Students who violate the no-show policy will need to explain to us why it happened and ensure us it won't happen again."

Bame hopes the adjustments make a significant improvement to the program. "It's a good system. It's good to know we're relied upon to accommodate the students who need us," Bame said. "We have a busy system and we're always doing the best we can."

GOD'S WORD

Matthew 24:3-14 As Jesus was sitting on the Mount of Olives, the disciples came to him privately. "Tell us," they said, "when will this happen, and what will be the sign of your coming and of the end of the age?" Jesus answered: "Watch out that no one deceives you. For many will come in my name, claiming, 'I am the Christ,' and will deceive many. You will hear of wars and rumors of wars, but see to it that you are not alarmed. Such things must happen, but the end is still to come. Nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. There will be famines and earthquakes in various places. All these are the beginning of birth pains. 'Then you will be handed over to be persecuted and put to death, and you will be hated by all nations because of me. At that time many will turn away from the faith and will betray and hate each other, and many false prophets will appear and deceive many people. Because of the increase of wickedness, the love of most will grow cold, but he who stands firm to the end will be saved. And this gospel of the kingdom will be preached in the whole world as a testimony to all nations, and then the end will come. (NIV)

Mobster testifies against Gotti Offices to review women's calendar

NEW YORK (AP) — A former friend, confidant and heir apparent of John Gotti testified Monday that they carefully plotted the assassination of the man Gotti succeeded as mob boss and were just around the corner during the killing.

Salvatore "Sammy Bull" Gravano's testimony came as he calmly revealed a life of loan-sharking, armed robbery and murder.

Gravano is the government's star witness against Gotti in his federal murder and racketeering trial and prosecutors' most promising chance for a conviction in six years.

Gotti is charged with orchestrating the 1985 killings of Paul Castellano and his bodyguard to seize control of the Gambino crime family, believed to be the nation's most powerful Mafia organization.

Gravano, 46, told the jury he had worked in organized crime before and after a stint in the Army, engaging in armed robbery, burglary, gambling, loan sharking and murder.

U.S. Attorney John Gleeson asked him how many murders he was admitting.

"Nineteen," Gravano said.

He said he and Gotti helped plot the Castellano killing.

"At the time there were a lot of conversations about Paul, nobody was too happy with him ... we decided to act," Gravano said. "He was selling out the family for his own basic businesses."

Castellano and his driver and bodyguard, Thomas Bilotti, were gunned down outside a Manhattan restaurant on Dec. 16, 1985. The night before, Gravano said, he met with Gotti and other mobsters.

"We discussed where we were going to go on the piece of work the next day," Gravano said. "We discussed who the shooters would be, what positions they would take."

While four shooters and four backups took their posts outside Sparks Steak

House, Gravano and Gotti waited in a car parked around the corner, Gravano said.

"Me and John Gotti in the car, we went on the other side (of the restaurant) ... and we were taking that position," Gravano said.

Gotti, 51, paid close attention from the defendants' table, sometimes smiling and seldom taking his eyes off his former friend.

Gravano recounted his formal initiation as a "made member" of the Gambino family in 1976 and his rise to the No. 2 spot.

"John was the boss. I was the underboss," Gravano said.

Federal marshals and FBI agents lined the courtroom, filled to capacity with Gotti friends, law enforcers, spectators and reporters. Stricter than usual searches were conducted at entranceways, and police were posted at the back door, where Gravano slipped inside.

OSU President E. Gordon Gee has asked representatives from the offices of Student Affairs, Human Resources, and Student Life to review Student's for Life's allegation of discrimination, said Russell J. Spillman, vice president of the Office of Student Affairs.

Their ruling could overturn or solidify the Jan. 31 decision of Richard Hollingsworth, dean of the Office of Student Life, and Cynthia Harris, director of Student Life Services, to officially exclude anti-abortion activities and services from university-funded women's publications.

Spillman said he has been meeting with Hollingsworth, Robert Duncan, vice president for Legal Affairs, and Linda Tom, vice president of Human Resources, in an attempt to find a fair and equitable solution to the discrimination charge as quickly as possible.

Hollingsworth said he had a "fact-gathering meeting" last Thursday with OSU's legal counsel.

"The ball is now in his (Duncan's) court," Hollingsworth said. "If we need to make some changes in rules and procedures, we'll do it."

"Their legal research will not focus on any particular viewpoint with respect to abortion," a staff member from Duncan's office said.

The staff member said they will focus on the First Amendment and any legal issues that might have been violated.

Hollingsworth and Spillman are looking into the use of university funds allocated to Women Student Services.

"We submitted a prenatal care and development program, a pro-life rally and an 'In Remembrance' candlelight ceremony."

Angela Tucker, Students for Life chairperson.

Mary Barnett, administrative secretary in the Office of Student Life, said Women Student Services has a budget of about $98,000 annually. Of that amount, $13,943 has been allocated to events and the publication of periodicals, and $7,100 has been allocated to telephone and office expenses.

The remaining $77,000 is for the salary budget. Of it, $58,000 pays the salaries of two full-time staff members, Barnett said.

The remaining $19,000 comes from the graduate school to pay the wages of two part-time graduate students, she said.

Hollingsworth said until legal counsel reaches a ruling, it is premature to project what, if any, budgetary changes would be made at Women Student Services.

Spillman said the investigation started after Students for Life's attorney, Alice Robinson, notified Gee that she would file a lawsuit against the university.

Robinson said the suit would be "based on the violation of my client's freedom of speech and equal protection rights."

Friday was the deadline to submit requests for a service or activity to be considered for next quarter's issue of the Women's Calendar, according to Kelley Spragan, the calendar's editor.

Angela Tucker, Students for Life chairperson, said her organization submitted three requests to Women Student Services on Friday.

"We submitted a prenatal care and development program, a pro-life rally and an 'In Remembrance' candlelight ceremony," Tucker said.

Spillman said, "Hypothetically, if the deadline is today and we make a ruling a week from now ... we could move the deadline back if it was ruled in their (Students for Life) favor."

Spragan said if a ruling is made in their favor and anti-abortion activities are allowed in the calendar, she would probably not print the calendar at all.

Hollingsworth disagreed with Spragan and said the calendar would be published.

"I know this is a very passionate issue on both sides," Spillman said. "There is

Jury still out in fertility doctor case

ALEXANDRIA, Va. (AP) — A federal jury completed a second day of deliberations Monday without reaching a verdict in the fraud and perjury trial of an infertility doctor accused of lying while using his own sperm to artificially inseminate patients.

The jury, which met for a total of 11 hours on Friday and Monday, was to resume deliberations on Tuesday.

Dr. Cecil Jacobson, who faces 52 counts of fraud and perjury, also is accused of using hormone injections to trick women into believing they were pregnant when they were not.

Prosecutor Randy Bellows complained to U.S. District Judge James Cacheris on Monday that Jacobson had been talking to the media on Friday. But Bellows said he would not immediately seek a gag order.

Jacobson admitted on the witness stand that he occasionally used his own sperm for artificial insemination when other donors were not available. But his attorney, James Tate, insisted there is no law against a doctor donating sperm to his patients.

Prosecution witnesses said Jacobson promised them the donor would be a medical or seminary student and would match their husbands' physical characteristics and sometimes even religion. The prosecution contends Jacobson broke his promises and thus is liable for fraud.

Judge refuses to investigate deposition leak

CLEVELAND (AP) — A judge on Monday refused to investigate the leak of a deposition in which state Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson reportedly admitted having an affair with an employee.

Ferguson's lawyers had asked Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Lillian J. Greene to find out who leaked the document to The Plain Dealer. The newspaper reported details of the deposition in stories published Feb. 25 and Feb. 26.

Greene said after a closed-door meeting with lawyers for both sides that she rejected the request.

"It's done. It's over. It can't be retracted," Greene said. "There's no way for me to find out. I said to just get on with the case."

The deposition was given last November as evidence in a $1.25 million lawsuit filed against Ferguson by Elisabeth Tschantz, a former administrator in Ferguson's Canton office.

The suit, filed in 1987 in Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Court, claims Ferguson coerced Tschantz into a sexual relationship and forced her to pressure employees for political contributions.

Buckeyes face Wolverines tonight at St. John Arena

By Scott Kendrick
Lantern sports writer

When the OSU men's basketball team last played at St. John Arena, its 30-game home winning streak ended and things looked pretty dark and gray.

But when the Buckeyes play Michigan tonight, they will be trying to start a new home winning streak in a different kind of gray—gray uniforms and shoes.

"Jamaal's (Brown) been after me all year to do it," said OSU Head Coach Randy Ayers. "Since we had been winning at home in our whites, why change it?"

This is not the first time that Ohio State has worn gray uniforms. The team wore them last year against Michigan, and a few years ago they wore gray full-time.

But it probably doesn't matter what uniforms the Buckeyes wear tonight, as the 18th-ranked Wolverines are one of the most talent-rich teams in the country.

In the first meeting between the two teams in Ann Arbor, Ohio State used good defense to hold Michigan to only shoot 35.4 percent from the field and force 18 first-half turnovers to defeat the Wolverines, 68-58.

Michigan is coming off of an embarrassing road loss to Wisconsin last Wednesday, 96-78, and they should be hungry to get revenge on the Buckeyes.

"They're going to be pumped up to play us no matter if they won by 20 against Wisconsin or lost by 20," said OSU senior forward Chris Jent.

Since the first meeting between the two teams, Michigan has changed its starting lineup to its now famous "Fab Five" freshmen.

The forwards are 6-foot-9 Chris Webber (15.7 points, 9.9 rebounds), who is last year's National High School Player of the Year and leads the Big Ten in rebounds, and 6-foot-6 Ray Jackson (4.8 points, 3.0 rebounds).

Starting guards are 6-foot-9 Jalen Rose (17.9 points, 3.6 assists) and 6-foot-5 Jimmy King (8.8 points, 2.3 assists). The starting center is 6-foot-9 Juwan Howard (10.7 points, 6.5 rebounds).

"This game really concerns me from the standpoint of their talent," Ayers said. "If they come in here and are solid for 40 minutes, they could give us a lot of trouble."

Men's track team places second in meet

By Todd Harrell
Lantern sports writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Some good things happened to the OSU men's track team last weekend at the Big Ten Indoor Track Championships, but the best thing of all, a first place finish, slipped through its fingers.

The Buckeyes suffered two critical disqualifications and a couple of unexpected losses, finishing second with 83 points. Indiana, the defending indoor champions, won the meet with 106 points.

The defeat was hard to take for sprinter Aaron Payne.

"This (meet) has been pretty disappointing, because a lot of people who were supposed to score points were either disqualified or just had bad races. Like myself, I got disqualified in the 200 (meter race), so right there it took a lot of points from the team," Payne said.

Payne was disqualified in the 200-meter race and Robert Smith was disqualified in the 400 for making lane violations.

"I am not disappointed (in the meet); it's just that when we had (Smith and Payne) get disqualified that was a 14-point swing," OSU Head Coach Russ Rogers said.

Rogers said that the small track in Jenison Field House, where the meet was held, was a factor in the disqualifications. "We have some real big, fast guys and these lanes are just too small for them. Not only us but (other) schools were disqualified also."

If they had competed, Rogers said he thinks that Payne would not have finished below second in the 200, and Smith would not have finished below third in the 400.

The disqualification was harder on Payne since he had won the 200 in 1990 and '91.

"Things just didn't go our way ... Indiana didn't really beat us on points, they beat us on men," Payne said.

Other disappointments came in the high jump and the 400-meter dash, events the Buckeyes were expected to win. In the high jump, Ohio State's Mark Cannon could not defend his crown as he jumped three-fourths of an inch short of Minnesota's Chris Murrell, who jumped seven feet and a quarter of an inch.

In the 400, Ohio State's Chris Nelloms suffered a defeat to Scott Turner of Illinois. Both Turner's time (47.14 seconds) and Nelloms' (47.39) made them NCAA provisional qualifiers for the NCAA Championships to be held March 13 and 14 in Indianapolis.

"In my opinion, I really felt that the time that they gave me wasn't what I really ran. Hand time they had me at 47.16 and they then gave me 47.39. But in the second heat (Turner) had 47.23, but they gave him 47.14," Nelloms said.

Nellom did not disappoint in his specialty, however, the 200-meter dash. He ran the distance in 21.26, a time that set a Big Ten meet record.

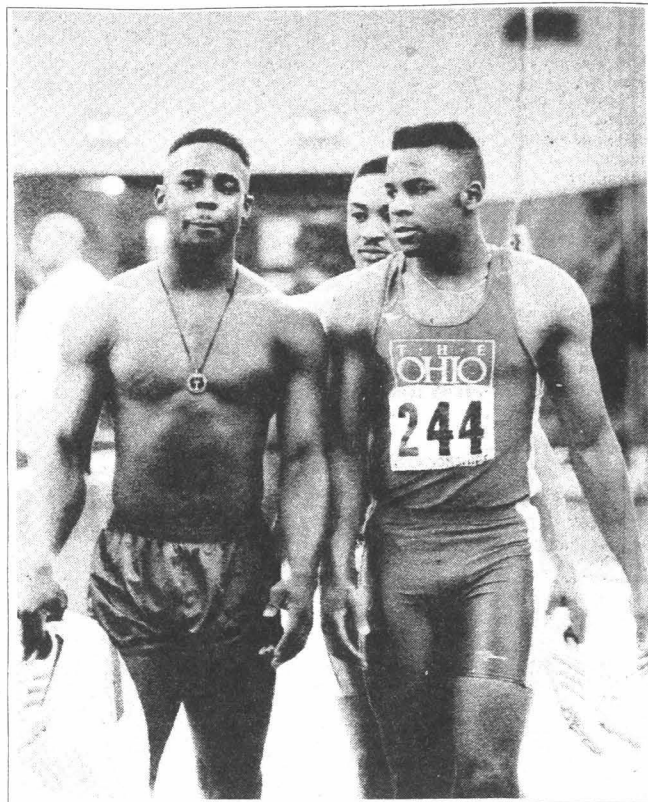

On another positive note, OSU pole vaulter Paul Huzyak vaulted 17 feet, 7 1/2 inches to capture the first indoor championship in the event for a Buckeye since Jim Green turned the trick in 1974.

In the long jump, Chris Sanders, a tight end on the Buckeye football team, finished second with a jump of 25 feet, 8 inches.

In the triple jump competition, Ohio State's Ron Hatter finished a strong third with a total jumping distance of 6 feet, 9 inches.

The marquee matchup of the weekend wasn't a final race but rather a "dream heat" in the 55-meter dash. In the first qualifying heat on Friday, three men better known for wearing football jerseys than track uniforms competed against each other.

OSU running back Butler By'not'e, Michigan State running back Tico Duckett and Michigan's Heisman Trophy winner Desmond Howard competed, with By'not'e setting a Big Ten meet record with a time of 6.23. Howard was third and Duckett finished fourth.

Katie Ankerman/the Lantern

OSU sprinter Butler By'not'e walks back to the bench with Michigan Heisman Trophy winner Desmond Howard after they ran the 55-meter dash in the Big Ten Men's Indoor Championships Saturday in East Lansing, Mich. By'not'e broke the Big Ten record during trials on Friday, but placed second in the finals. Howard placed fifth.

"I got out like I wanted to and I finished the race pretty strong," By'not'e said. "I just wanted to stay relaxed and run a pretty good time."

In the finals By'not'e could not catch up with Indiana's Martin Hill, who captured the title with a time of 6.29, while By'not'e finished second with a time of 6.32. Payne finished third with a time of 6.34.

The meet finished with the Buckeyes dominating the 4 x 400 relay. The squad of Jordan Gray, Smith, Payne, and Nelloms easily won the race with a time of 3:13.31.

Baseball Buckeyes strike out in tournament

By Mike Stepanski
Lantern sports writer

It was a rough weekend for the 15th-ranked OSU baseball team as it dropped all four games in the McNeese State Lake Area Classic.

After almost a three week layoff, the Buckeyes headed to Lake Charles, La., where they faced Louisiana Tech, 16th-ranked Creighton, and tournament host McNeese State.

On Friday, the Buckeyes fell to McNeese State 7-4. Left fielder Mike Mulligan and right fielder Scott Kaczmar led the Buckeye offensive attack, both going two for four. OSU starting pitcher Scott Klingenberg suffered the loss, giving up seven runs in 6 1/3 innings.

After the loss to McNeese, the Buckeyes were never able to get back on track. "After we lost the first game, a lot of the guys started pressing real hard and it just snowballed," Mulligan said.

OSU took the field on Saturday afternoon for a seven-inning non-tournament game against Creighton where they lost 5-4. OSU third baseman, Gary Jones, went two for four, scoring two runs to lead the Buckeyes. OSU pitcher Chris Granata took the loss, giving up five runs in six innings.

On Saturday evening, the Buckeyes took on Louisiana Tech, where they were defeated 6-5. Once again Mulligan led the Buckeyes, hitting two for five and scoring two runs. OSU pitcher, Matt Beaumont, took the loss, giving up four runs in five innings.

In their final game of the tournament on Sunday, the Buckeyes suffered their worst loss of the season losing to Creighton 13-2. In the losing effort, six Buckeyes recorded hits with pitcher Andy Noffke taking the loss, after giving up seven runs in four innings pitched. Relief pitcher Bob Worley gave up six runs in the loss.

Klingenberg said it is hard to put a finger on what the team's problem was.

"We didn't hit well when we needed to, we didn't pitch well when we needed to, we just didn't play well," Klingenberg said.

Mulligan said over the course of a long season you have to expect that things like this will happen. Some players played better than others, but the team just never found its niche, Mulligan said.

OSU Head Coach Bob Todd could not be reached for comments.

The Buckeyes' return to Columbus for their home opener at Trautman Field against Ashland College on March 4, at 2 p.m.

Roger Clemens starts season with huge contract

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) — The red carpet was waiting and So were his teammates and Boston Red Sox officials.

And now, arriving at spring training ... Roger Clemens!

"The reason I was at home for two weeks ... doing what I needed to get ready to pitch down here, is so I didn't have to do what I'm doing with you all right now," he said to the awaiting Boston reporters, with whom he's feuded on and off over the past few years.

Teammates had decorated the clubhouse with a welcome home balloon, a missing persons milk carton with Clemens as the subject and a Where's Waldo search book. A carpet of red fabric lined the way to his stall, too.

"I think it's funny," Clemens said unenthusiastically.

Clemens decided to ignore the Feb. 23 voluntary reporting date for pitchers and catchers. The mandatory date for all players is Wednesday.

Well, why didn't Clemens at least give new manager Butch Hobson a call? Clemens said it wasn't an issue and wouldn't discuss it.

"You can beat that to death all you want," the three-time Cy Young Award winner said.

Hobson encountered Clemens early in the morning before practice and then jogged with him.

"He apologized," Hobson said. "That's all I wanted to hear. It's over."

Hobson had said all along he was disappointed Clemens had not called and wouldn't give the context of Clemens' apology.

"Roger and I got the situation taken care of," Hobson said. "The only thing I told him ... was that I was disappointed he couldn't be a part of that first meeting because I thought it was a good one."

When Clemens entered the clubhouse after his pre-practice workout, catcher Tony Pena loudly hummed a few strains of the traditional wedding march.

"Wrong song," said Clemens, who this year begins a four-year contract worth $21,521,000.

Clemens said he arrived feeling sad about the recent death of Red Sox majority owner Jean Yawkey, and sorry the team did not win a championship before she died. He said he would not speak again until after he pitched an exhibition game. Clemens faced several hitters during batting practice, throwing at about 85 mph. Afterwards, he asked Mike Greenwell to stand at the plate and let loose with about 10 pitches at about 95 mph.

Players looked at one another with raised eyes as the ball hit the catcher's mitt with resounding force.

"Just be thankful you don't have to try to hit the damn thing," Pena called to Greenwell.

Men's basketball team still in title race

By Scott Kendrick
Lantern sports writer

EAST LANSING, Mich. — It looked like the Buckeyes would have to settle for second place in the Big Ten after losing to Indiana, but after two road wins at Purdue and Michigan State, Ohio State is still very much in the race.

"It's tough to come back after a loss to Indiana like that and I think we just showed our composure in the last two games," Chris Jent, OSU senior forward, said.

"It's been a tough week for our ballclub," said OSU Head Coach Randy Ayers. "We haven't had a lot of success in these two cities. I'm just happy to come out ... with a win."

Ohio State beat Purdue last Wednesday, 71-64, for their first win in West Lafayette since 1985. Then they came right back on Sunday to defeat Michigan State 78-65 in the Breslin Center, where the Spartans are 37-6 in the arena's three-year history.

"It's a place where I haven't won and the seniors haven't won," Jim Jackson, OSU junior guard, said. "It's a great feeling to (win at) a place where you haven't won."

"I'm really happy for our seniors, that they were able to come in here and win their final year," Ayers said.

"It's a good win for us because it's a road win in this conference, and we still have thoughts of winning this thing."

• Last season at this time, the Buckeyes were in what seemed like a commanding lead, but the Buckeyes faltered down the stretch and had to settle for a co-championship with Indiana.

This year, the roles are reversed. "We were in the same position Indiana was in at this time last year," Ayers said. "Anything can happen."

The Buckeyes (19-5, 11-3) still sit a game behind Indiana in the standings, but Indiana (21-4, 12-2) has three more tough road games at Iowa (Wednesday night), at Michigan (March 8), and at Purdue (March 14 or 15).

"This conference is so competitive, you go on the road and you've got to pull together and stay tough," Ayers said.

After the past two road victories, the Buckeyes may be beginning to hit their stride and peaking at the right time, unlike last season.

"We know we still have a lot of improving to do," Jent said. "Last year, it seemed like things we were doing earlier we weren't doing in the end. And it feels great now that we're doing more things, both offensively and defensively."

Michigan State Head Coach Jud Heathcote, a veteran of NCAA Tournaments who has won a national championship, thinks both Indiana and Ohio State have what it takes to compete for the national championship.

"I think you have to get lucky, and you have to be playing your best ball at tournament time, and I think that Indiana and Ohio State have the ability to be Final Four teams," Heathcote said.

• All year, Jent has been saying that Michigan State's arena is his least favorite in the Big Ten because of its bright shooting background. But after a 19-point performance on seven for 10 shooting, you never would have known it.

"It's as though there isn't a backboard back there," Jent said. "It's like there's a rim on a little tree or something."

"Sometimes in arenas like this, when it's such a tough background, you lose your concentration a little bit when you get close to the hoop."

"Even though he (Jent) didn't like it, he had a point to prove to himself," Jackson said. "I think he put all that behind him."

Michigan State had a hard time keeping up with both Jent and Jackson because of the loss of senior forward Matt Steigenga, one of the Spartans' best defenders, who is recovering from a foot injury.

"My assistants said all week that (Spartan forward) Anthony Miller was going to have a tough time checking Jent, and he did," Heathcote said. "We just hoped Jent wouldn't be as effective as he was."

Shawn McAllister/the Lantern

OSU guard Mark Baker hangs in the air for a shot against Michigan State's Mark Montgomery in the second half of the Buckeyes 78-65 victory Saturday.

Jent is no longer just Ohio State's floor-burn and hustle leader. He is also becoming one of the Buckeyes' best scorers. After being shut out in the game against Minnesota on January 22, Jent has been averaging 14.8 points per game.

"You're supposed to improve yourself every year.... I think I've improved myself in every part of the game this year," Jent said.

"I think Chris has really benefited from Lawrence (Funderburke) being in our lineup," Ayers said. "It gives us two inside scoring threats."

• For his efforts against Purdue and Michigan State last week, Jackson secured the award for Big Ten Player of the Week for the third time this season.

Jackson scored 35 points and grabbed 12 rebounds in those two contests.

"It feels pretty good," Jackson said. "But I think that comes from us getting two big wins (last) week."

• The OSU Athletic Department has announced that this Saturday's game against Northwestern at St. John Arena will tip-off at 3 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. as was originally scheduled.

Men's gymnastics team captures home victory

By Jennifer Smith
Lantern sports writer

The second-ranked OSU men's gymnastics team captured a victory last weekend at home against Kent State University and the University of Pittsburgh.

Ohio State placed first with a score of 281.10 followed by Kent State with 272.20 and Pittsburgh with 266.10.

"This is the best team I've ever had since I've been coaching, and it's very exciting," OSU Head Coach Peter Kormann said.

Leading the Buckeyes were gymnasts, Kevin Crumley, Peter Bastien and Kip Simons. Crumley finished as gymnast of the meet and placed first on the still rings with a school record score of 9.85. Crumley also placed first in the all-around event with a 56.70.

"This is the first time in my career that I've hit all six routines in one night, and I feel very fortunate," Crumley said.

Bastien placed first on the floor exercise with a 9.50 and also in the vault event with a 9.55. Simons placed first on the parallel bars with score of 9.65.

"Each week we show improvement in all areas which is what we need to do to prepare for the Big Ten Championships and the NCAA Championships," Simons said.

Gymnasts from Kent State took first place in the remaining two events. Matt Landress of Kent State placed first on the pommel horse with a score of 9.80, and teammate Dave Arlequeun placed first on the high bar with a score of 9.75.

The meet also gave the Buckeyes an opportunity to use their line-up to their advantage.

"We went with a younger line-up which gave some of the older guys a rest to get ready for the end of the season and the championships," Crumley said. "It also gave the younger guys experience."

The men's squad will go on to face Big Ten rival Michigan in its last home meet of the season this Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Larkins Hall.

"The guys are primed, and we are hoping to have a great home meet," Kormann said. "We are second in the country, and we have a good chance to do well in the Big Ten and the NCAA Championships."

OSU fencers second in Midwest contest

By Scott Kendrick
Lantern sports writer

The OSU fencing squads placed second overall at the Midwest Intercollegiate Championships this weekend in competition in South Bend, Ind.

"Overall, I was pleased with the performance," OSU Head Coach Charlotte Remenyik said.

Perennial fencing powerhouse Notre Dame won the meet.

Ohio State boasted one individual champion in the competition. Sophomore Gellert Toth took first place out of 47 entries in the men's sabre competition. Toth took third place last year and was 11th in the NCAA championships last year.

"I always knew he was a good fencer," Remenyik said. "I was hoping, but I wasn't taking it for granted."

Other Ohio State fencers who placed in the men's sabre competition were Brian Kimberlin (third place) and Kevin May (fifth place). Keith Freeze finished 16th.

Freeze's finish was very good because he is only a beginner, Remenyik said.

In women's foil, Rita Bobely took third place out of 47 entries, and Beth Eggleston finished 12th.

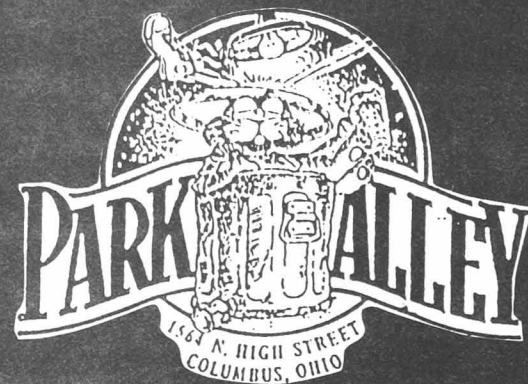

In the men's foil competition, James Wolan took sixth place out of 51 entries. Other Buckeyes placing were Greg Ross (14th) and Jason Davidson (19th).

Brett Briley placed 10th in the men's epee competition out of 49 entries. Geoff Page (16th) and Tim Gacek (17th) also placed for Ohio State.

OSU men's and women's teams have kept up the tradition of success in fencing this season. The men's fencing team finished 17-2 this season, and the women's went 15-3. In the last four seasons, the teams have combined for a 151-17 record.

"Basically, I think it was a good year," Remenyik said.

This weekend, the Buckeyes will be competing in the Midwest Regionals in East Lansing, Mich.

Protecting personal safety is a universal need and right. Everyone is painfully aware of how the rate of personal assaults has increased so dramatically. Unfortunately, there have been virtually no legal means of adequately protecting oneself. And it has been virtually impossible to identify and prosecute offenders.

Until now. Until DYE Witness.

DYEWitness travels conveniently with you wherever you go. Its deceptively small size fights back with a 70 lb. blast of foaming green dye. Firing up to seven feet, DYEWitness empties in just seven seconds. Upon contact, it foams over the attacker's face, obscuring vision and assisting in your ability to escape. The green foam leaves a trail from the scene and an unmistakable seven day green stain on the attacker. This person will be easily identified and be unable to go among others without raising suspicion. Regulators seek money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Regulators said Monday they are seeking $275 million in compensation from a New York law firm that represented Charles Keating Jr.'s Lincoln Savings and Loan.

The Office of Thrift Supervision charges that the firm — Kaye, Scholer, Fierman, Hayes and Handler — “knowingly aided and abetted regulatory violations by Lincoln.”

It appears to be the largest judgment ever sought against a law firm involved in a thrift failure. Last April, the Resolution Trust Corp. sued another of Lincoln's law firms — Jones, Day, Reavis & Pogue — for $50 million.

The compensation demanded is a “conservative estimate” of Lincoln losses that could have been avoided if Kaye Scholer had complied with government regulations, the agency said.

In a separate order, the agency froze the assets of the firm and of former managing partner Peter M. Fishbein and partners Karen E. Katzman and Lynn Toby Fisher.

Congress cuts back loan proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — What began in Congress as a grandiose plan to help millions of middle-income students get college loans is being cut drastically, a victim of skepticism and heavy lobbying by banks.

The idea was simple: Colleges and universities would act as lender, bypassing banks and other financial institutions. The student's pay-back schedule would be based on income, with the Internal Revenue Service collecting the payments.

Banks and other players in the $4.8 billion student loan game stand to lose significantly, despite the rising default rates on college loans. Also, some college administrators are wary of excessive governmental intrusion, even if IRS involvement would be peripheral.

And, in this election year, members of Congress are showing little patience for time-consuming debate over an unproven program — even if it is an alternative to a student loan system that's been described as bureaucratic and frustrating.

The Senate refused to consider the idea during debate on reauthorization of the Higher Education Act. Still, the main proponents of the plan — Sens. Paul Simon, D-Ill., and Dave Durenberger, R-Minn. — remain optimistic that “something will get passed” this year.

The original plan has been scaled down to a test by 300 colleges and universities. Proponents want to offer the new version to the Senate Finance Committee when it begins a review of a tax bill.

“I want to make sure that this thing becomes a reality,” Simon said. “The basic idea is we should be giving people alternatives to what we have now and to help middle-income students and families.”

Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., has been reluctant to support the original direct loan idea but joined Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., to endorse the scaled-down plan.

The pilot program would operate parallel to the Pell Grants and Guaranteed Student Loans. Any students attending the selected 300 schools could borrow up to $5,000 a year, with a total limit of $30,000. The interest rate would equal the 52-week rate on Treasury bills plus 2 percentage points. The loans would be repaid by increased IRS withholding.

The Pell Grant program, created 20 years ago, is the government's largest higher education aid program, serving 3.8 million low-income students this year. About 4.7 million students received low-interest bank loans guaranteed by the government this year.

Simon says direct student loans will reduce defaults, which have cost taxpayers $11.5 billion since 1987.

The American Bankers Association vehemently opposes the plan, calling it “inefficient and expensive.” It contends that students and taxpayers would end up paying more interest because the repayment term would be 25 years rather than 10 years.

The nearly 20-year-old Student Loan Marketing Association also is opposed. Sallie Mae is a federally chartered, profit-making, stockholder-owned company whose main business is buying student loans from banks, thrifts, schools and state agencies. The government guarantees the payment of principal and interest.

5- 6:48 p.m.				M/T/W/R/F 4

Students should confirm examination periods for individual classes with each instructor prior to making other commitments during finals week. Instructors shall announce any approved deviation to the published final examination schedule during the first week of classes and make appropriate arrangements for students with exam conflicts created by such deviation.

- Classes which meet for two hours on a daily basis, a Monday/Wednesday/Friday or a Tuesday/Thursday schedule must use the first hour of the class meeting to determine their final examination time.
- Classes meeting on Monday or on Tuesday or on a combination of days including Monday or Tuesday should use the first hour of the class period in determining the exam hour. For example, a Mon/Tue/Wed class meeting from 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. should use 1 p.m. instead of 2 p.m. when determining the time for the final exam.
- Classes meeting on Wednesday only or on Thursday only should use the second hour of the class period in determining the exam hour. This will prevent conflicts with courses meeting only on Monday or Tuesday during those hours.
- Instructors of classes meeting only on Friday or Saturday should ask their department scheduling contact to contact the Scheduling Office to arrange a time and a room for final examinations.

Classes starting later than the beginning of the hour are assumed to have started at the beginning of the hour containing the first portion of the class. For example, a 10:30 a.m. class is treated like a 10 a.m. class in determining the examination hour. Classes which begin at 7:30 a.m. will be assumed to have a starting time of 8 a.m..

COMMON EVENING FINAL EXAMINATIONS

Common final examinations will be given as an exception to the listed schedule when approved by department chairpersons, deans, and the Scheduling Office, and an announcement is made to the class during the first week of classes that a common final exam will be given.

All requests for Common Finals should have College and Departmental approval and be submitted in writing to the Scheduling Office by December 2, 1991.

Common final examinations will be restricted to evening hours of 6:00-7:48 p.m. and 8:00-9:48 p.m. during the first three days of the examination period.

Conflicts generated by Common Final examinations must be resolved by the departments concerned.

EVENING CLASSES

Classes which start at 5 p.m. or after are scheduled for a two hour final examination beginning at the same hour as the regular class time.

Classes which meet more than one day a week are scheduled for their final examinations on the first meeting day which falls within the final examination period.

Instructors Please Note: If the regular class meeting time of evening classes is less than two hours, and starts at 5 p.m. or after, but before 7 p.m., survey your students for a possible conflict with another class. Should a problem exist, reach an acceptable alternate time with the entire class and contact your department chairperson to initiate a request to the Scheduling Office (292-1616) for a change of final examination time.

WEEKEND UNIVERSITY EXAMINATIONS

Weekend University courses should have their final examinations on the last class meeting date in the regularly scheduled classroom.

OSU LIMA, MANSFIELD, MARION, NEWARK, AND ATI EXAMINATIONS

The final examination schedule for OSU Lima, Mansfield, Marion, Newark, and ATI will be published separately by each campus office.

Decisions of this committee are final.

Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required; this information is for our records only and not available to the public.

- The Lantern reserves the right to reject any advertisement that promotes illegal activity or activity detrimental or damaging to the university and its educational mission. It further reserves the right to revise any advertisement which is deemed objectionable for any reason.
- Make-good adjustments will be considered only for those advertisements where errors occur in the following: business group name, address, or phone number; item price; date, time, or place of event. The error must be solely the fault of the Lantern. Adjustments will not exceed the cost of the advertisement, and will be based on the portion of the advertisement nullified by the error. Minor spelling errors will not qualify for adjustment. Complaints must be registered to the Business Manager within 45 days of publication to qualify, otherwise the advertiser accepts full responsibility.
- Guaranteed position is sold at the Business Manager's discretion.
- A composition charge may apply to any changes, revisions or cancellations made after deadline.

Advertisers must prepay all advertising until credit rating with the Lantern is established. CERTIFIED check or money order is required for out-of-town advertisers.
- Contract advertisers will furnish the Lantern with a rate-holder ad meeting contract minimums, for use in any contract period for which the advertiser does not provide an ad.

ARTS &amp; ENTERTAINMENT

Good golly, it's the 'Buddy Holly Story'

By Amy Hoffer
Lantern arts writer

The story and music of one of rock's greatest legends comes to the Palace Theatre tonight directly from a six-month Tony-nominated Broadway engagement.

"Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story" is a full-scale production presented by the Broadway Series. The play recreates Buddy Holly's life from his amateur days in his home of Lubbock, Texas to the last concert of his career, which has been called, "the night the music died."

Music for the show includes live renditions of his hits including, "Peggy Sue," "That'll Be the Day," and "Maybe Baby." Legendary singers Ritchie Valens and the Big Bopper join Buddy for the songs, "La Bamba" and "Chantilly Lace."

Although Buddy Holly was only in the public eye for 18 months and died at age 22, his recordings broke all early records and made his career memorable and timeless.

Joe Warren Davis, who is featured in the title role, has received critical acclaim for his performance in both the London and Sydney, Australia, productions of the show.

Davis, a graduate of Syracuse University Drama School, was living in New York when he landed the role of Buddy. He has been with the show for two years and will continue with the tour until its completion in October.

The show is very demanding because throughout the show he acts, sings and plays the guitar, but Davis said he enjoys it.

Davis said that before doing the show he had not heard a lot of Buddy Holly songs, but he knew a lot of the music because of other artists, such as The Rolling Stones, The Beatles and The Grateful Dead, who all recorded Holly's music.

Because of the age gap, Davis did a lot of research on the singer's life and still continues to learn about the character he plays.

"I try not to think of it as not portraying a legend, but rather as creating the character of a young guy from Lubbock who is trying to make it as a rock'n'roll star," Davis said.

Although the show lasts two hours and 45 minutes, kids are coming to see the show and having a lot of fun with it, Davis said.

"Everyone from age eight to 80 comes to see us," Davis said. "A lot of our fans missed rock'n'roll the first time around so they want to catch it now."

Davis said there is still quite a bit of interest in Buddy Holly even though he has been gone for 33 years.

"A lot of people didn't know that much about him other than his music," Davis said. "Still, many people cite him as an influence. Plus, he's got a great catalog of songs."

"I'm having a love affair with being back on the stage," Davis said. "It is different every night, and that is more rewarding. But I am headed back to TV and films."

Davis' television credits include: "Riptide," "Helltown," and "Simon and Simon." He appeared in the films, "Star Trek III: The Search for Spock," and "Better Off Dead."

Joe Warren Davis (standing on bass) and Bobby Prochaska in "Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story."

"Buddy: The Buddy Holly Story" night performances, and the Saturday matinee for $13.50 with a valid student I.D. Tickets are available at all TicketMaster locations, the Palace or Ohio Theatre box offices, or charge by phone at 431-3600.

Profane and profound shown at Hopkins Hall

An art show presented by the Ohio State College of the Arts last week, "7 FMG Sculptors," proved to be a learning experience.

The art show was the fourth of five two-day exhibits in the Hopkins Hall Gallery's "48 Hour Turnover" exhibition.

The sculpture exhibit was created by students from the College of the Arts and presented many different forms of sculpture.

Viewers of the exhibit were presented with some very odd forms of art. The most noticeable exhibit in the room was a platform that was about one foot off the ground with 27 penises on top of it.

The work attracted attention because from the doorway of the exhibit it looked like piles of feces sitting on a platform. The exhibit, done by Amy Barnitz, was titled, "Ya seen one, ya seen 'em all." The phalluses were all arranged differently and were made out of wax.

Another exhibit, done by Kari Murphy, presented pieces of steel that were draped over wooden hangers. The hangers were hung from the ceiling by ropes. The work was named after five women: "Alice, Betty, Candy, Darla and Elizabeth."

An interesting work by Angely Arnold called "Untitled" presented three iron figures that looked like clothing on bodies, but without bodies.

This was the best exhibit in the show — it was creative and showed a figure beginning to stand, walk and then drop the covering and disappear.

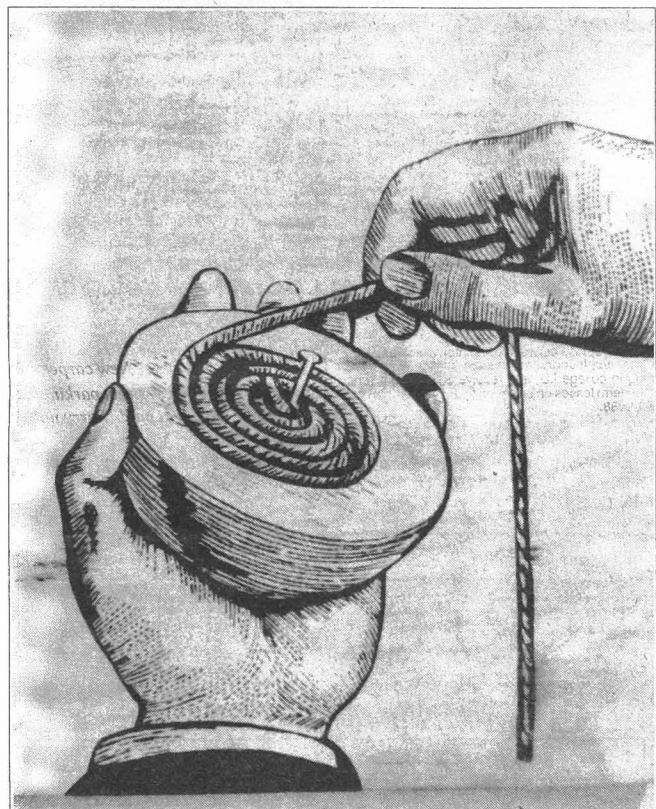

Presented along with the "7 FMG Sculptors," was "Paintings and Prints," an exhibit also done by students in the College of Arts.

"Paintings and Prints," displayed some impressive art by Todd DeVries, Deborah Griffing and Jo-Ann Mulroy.

Mulroy exhibited drawings on wood that had great precision and detail. "Untitled," was a drawing of a hand holding a tool, but it was done so perfectly that it looked like more than a hand.

A very strange painting, "Untitled," was done by Griffing. The painting was done with oil on wood and showed a woman with crossed fingers and a fish draped over her head.

The entire exhibit showed common items presented in ways unimaginable to many people.

Movie fails as comedy; maintains mediocrity

"This Is My Life" is a story about what happens when dreams come true. Unfortunately, the movie should have picked a more interesting life.

If you liked "Mermaids," then you will probably enjoy "This Is My Life." Both movies are similar in plot and character development, and both movies take a female perspective.

Julie Kavner plays Dottie Ingels, a mother of two, pursuing her dream of becoming a stand-up comedian. In the meantime, her two daughters, Erica (Samantha Mathis) and Opal (Gaby Hoffmann), must learn to cope with their mother's sudden claim to fame.

Dan Aykroyd and Carrie Fisher also have minor roles in the movie. Aykroyd's name was used as a promotional tool for the movie but he is only in the production for about 10 minutes. However, Aykroyd fans will not be disappointed. In the short time he is in the movie, he manages to get the audience laughing — in this case by developing a habit of eating napkins.

"This Is My Life" had a lot of potential, but did not use it. The movie moves along well, but as a comedy, there could have been more humor. The movie is not bad, but it is not good either. It is just sort of there. The occasional comic relief makes the movie bearable.

Kavner is also known for her appearance in "Awakenings," and as the voice of Marge Simpson.

Brenda Baker
FILM REVIEW

Mathis was in "Pump Up The Volume" and Hoffmann co-starred in "Field of Dreams" and "Uncle Buck."

The performances by the three actresses were great; they seemed to work well together. It is too bad that the script did not give them more to work with.

The movie touches on such topics as money, adolescence, success, separated parents and sex. With such a wide range of issues, the humor could have been greatly expanded.

"This Is My Life" could have been more entertaining. The movie offers nothing outstanding to its audience, nor does it put them to sleep. The movie appeals to an older crowd, or one that can relate to supporting two children while trying to pursue a career.

The movie is disappointing if you consider it a comedy. If you think of it as just another movie, you will not be disappointed. However, you will not be completely satisfied.

Politically correct book offers self-evaluation

Are you PC or not PC? That is the question.

And whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer the slings and arrows of outrageous pomposity from those who consider themselves PC or to be perfectly content with yourself as you are, even if it means you are a "knee-jerk conservative." Those are the questions the authors of Are You PC? (Ten Speed Press) would have you ask yourself.

Being, or not being, politically correct has become, for whatever reason, an issue of and for the 90's. But the term "PC" is so vague that it has become a parody of itself.

The supposed author(s) of Are You PC?, the PC Committee, is a group whose make up is as vague as the name implies.

The book lists among the adjuncts to the PC Committee such unlikely names as Groucho Marx,

If someone set the flag on fire and you had no way to put it out other than to urinate on it, what would you do?

Mother Teresa, Zippy the Pinhead, Axl Rose and Mahatma Gandhi. Mahatma Gandhi? Talk about PC.

The list also includes the much more likely name of P.J. O'Rourke, the long-time National Lampoon yuckster; a good indication of the spirit of the book.

Are You PC? is nothing more than a test consisting of 101 questions designed to "determine if you are politically correct." Each question is multiple choice, and each answer has its own point value.

The questions are listed under different headings, such as Nationalism, where you'll find:

If someone set the flag on fire and you had no way to put it out other than to urinate on it, what would you do?

(3) The question is sexist since it ignores the fact that women can't urinate in public as freely as men.

(2) The Bill of Rights guarantees free speech. Burning the flag is the ultimate test of that freedom, so I would not interfere.

(1) People have died defending the flag and we should respect it; therefore, we should neither burn it nor urinate on it.

Political Correctness

Is it for you?

Michael Alwood
BOOK REVIEW

(0) First, I would urinate on it. Then I would turn around and make sure to urinate all over the creep who set it on fire.

After answering all the questions, adding the points together determines one's PC quotient.

That total can be matched against a PC scale in the back of the book. The scale rates PCness from 0-to-250 points with corresponding descriptions of people who achieve those point values. A zero rating, if possible, would garner an admonishment of: "Get a life - and please don't breed." While a perfect score, just as improbable, would be rewarded by: "Congratulations — it's not easy being perfect in an imperfect world, but you have done it. Write your own book (using recycled paper from naturally fallen trees) under the name of God, because you are now officially holier-than-thou."

Between the opposite ends of the PC spectrum are varying degrees of "politically incorrect" and "politically correct" descriptions of test-takers with different point totals. You could find yourself described as either a "knee-jerk (yes, knee-jerk) conservative" or a "knee-jerk (yes, knee-jerk) PC person who probably doesn't see the humor in being called knee-jerk."

Getting to your own personal point total is what Are You PC? is all about. At times you may have to refer to the PC Speak Glossary. For example, in the PC Attitudes section, you may find yourself feeling hopelessly politically incorrect when faced with such questions as:

Do you refer to "non-physically challenged" people as "temporarily able-bodied?"

Huh? The glossary will help. There, you'll also find out, "temporarily young" is a term to describe "the not-yet-old."

So, are you PC or not PC? Are You PC? may not go very far in answering that question. Unless you accept an answer of "Who cares," which is what the PC Committee seems to be saying.

Serbs open fire in rejection of independence

SARAJEVO, Yugoslavia (AP) — Ethnic Serbs opened fire with machine guns Monday on about 1,000 demonstrators in Bosnia-Herzegovina's capital, one day after the republic's Muslims and Croats voted to quit the Yugoslav federation. At least three people were wounded.

The Serbs want to stay with Yugoslavia, and a Serbian leader said independence would mean war.

When Serb militants who had been manning a barricade on the capital's main boulevard began firing on the crowd from a distance of about 100 yards, demonstrators threw themselves to the pavement or fled in panic.

It was not clear whether the shots were aimed over the heads of the crowd. Some witnesses and police at the scene said gunfire came from a nearby army barracks as well.

Heavy shooting could be heard throughout the city Monday night. At least four people were reported killed earlier Monday as extremists sealed off Sarajevo. All land and air routes into the city were cut off, and the radio warned residents to stay home.

High-ranking Bosnian government officials had said earlier they had reached agreement with the Serbs to remove the barricades, but there was no immediate confirmation of that or any sign that the barricades were coming down.

In the shooting on Sarajevo's main boulevard, one young woman was wounded in the ankle. At least two other people were hurt, but none of the injuries appeared serious.

"These people are fascists," shouted one protester, Ivana Radic, to an armed police officer. "Why don't you do something? A bunch of bandits is intimidating us, and you are doing nothing!"

Snipers could be seen in some buildings and at barricades, wearing black stockings over their faces. Young gun-toting Serbs manned many barricades.

"We are not going to accept an independent Bosnia-Herzegovina," Radovan Karadzic, head of Bosnia's Serbs, told Sarajevo TV from Belgrade, the Serbian capital.

If Bosnia is recognized as independent, "I am afraid that we could not avoid an interethnic war," he said. "Let this be a warning."

Russia will be lifting price controls on oil

MOSCOW (AP) — Russia said Monday that domestic price controls will be lifted on oil and oil products and a 50 percent tax imposed on them as the nation moves closer to full membership in the International Monetary Fund.

The measures, which will sharply add to the soaring cost of living since economic reforms were enacted here two months ago, are to go into effect April 15, said the Tass news agency, quoting unidentified sources.

Russia needs to carry out such measures to become a full member of the IMF, making it eligible for international loans and investment.

The reforms also are intended to increase government revenues and help lower Russia's budget deficit, said Konstantin Kagalovsky, a government adviser on international financial organizations.

Tass predicted crude oil prices would rise 500 percent to 700 percent. Prices for most other goods and services have risen an average of 300 percent since January, when the Russian government started lifting price controls in the first steps toward creating a free-market economy.

Kagalovsky gave no estimates of how high gasoline or home heating bills would rise. He estimated higher prices could cause a 10 percent to 15 percent drop in Russia's energy consumption.

Kagalovsky said price controls would remain on natural gas and electricity.

The IMF had urged Russia to raise oil prices by up to 1,500 percent. Kagalovsky said the IMF has received a memorandum outlining Russia's efforts to halt inflation and balance its budget through price reforms.

Meanwhile, the British Treasury announced Monday that Britain will be Russia's representative at an IMF committee that will set conditions for Russian membership.

The former Soviet Union was granted associate status in the IMF in October, giving it access to technical expertise but no loans.

Kagalovsky said domestic oil prices will be comparable to export prices by the end of 1993, and until then domestic prices for oil and oil products will be lower than prices on the world market.

Tass said a ton of crude oil that sold for 350 rubles at the beginning of the year would rise to 2,000 to 2,500 rubles, excluding tax, when prices were freed. One dollar is worth about 75 rubles at the current exchange rate.

Gasoline now sells for 1.20 rubles a liter, 300 percent higher than in January. Gasoline is among the essential products the government continues to subsidize, however.

Gasoline supplies already are erratic. Long lines of cars and trucks are usually parked outside gas stations, with drivers waiting hours to fill their tanks.

The announcements came a day after President Boris Yeltsin's top economic adviser said economic reforms are beginning to work. Deputy Prime Yegor Gaidar said, however, that the situation was fragile and could be wrecked "by a few clumsy actions."

Gaidar told Russian television Sunday that the government is turning its attention to corrupt officials who he said are taking advantage of Yeltsin's privatization program by selling state property to themselves.

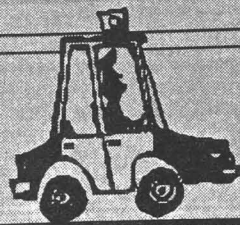

Dorm noise provokes resident

A 22-year-old OSU student was arrested and charged with menacing after an incident in Stradley Hall at about 2:40 a.m. on Feb. 23, according to an OSU police report.

OSU Deputy Chief Ronald Michalec said Matthew Richardson was waving a pellet gun around in the fifth-floor hallway and complaining about loud music and excessive noise.

When OSU police arrived, they assumed that Richardson's gun was a real handgun, Michalec said. Police discovered later that the gun was a pellet gun, he added.

Richardson was taken to the Franklin County Jail, the report said.

Police Beat

Stolen bank credit card used

An unknown person made a $150 bank withdrawal using an OSU staff member's credit card after stealing it from her purse in Doan Hall on Feb. 24, according to an OSU police report.

The staff member had placed her purse in her desk drawer and left it unattended throughout the day, the report stated.

The staff member told the Lantern that by the time she discovered her wallet and credit cards were gone, it was too late to notify her bank. She said when she notified BancOhio the next morning, there had already been a withdrawal using one of her credit cards.

BancOhio is investigating how the withdrawal was made and will replace the amount taken, the staff member added.

fire had already burned itself out, the report stated. Paper fliers had been taped to the wall in the hallway and set on fire, Michalec said.

Damage was limited to the fliers and the brick wall, the report stated. OSU police have no witnesses or suspects, Michalec said.

Student maces intruder

An 18-year-old OSU student allegedly Maced her ex-boyfriend and another man when they reportedly entered her dorm room about 10 p.m. on Feb. 28, according to an OSU police report.

The ex-boyfriend, who is not an OSU student, and another man obtained a key to the Baker Hall room, entered the room and began to argue with the student about another man who was in the room at the time, the report stated.

The ex-boyfriend knocked over a television set before being Maced by the woman, Michalec said. The two men fled with the key to the room, the report said.

Fliers in dorm set on fire

A fire was set on the tenth floor of Morrill Tower at about 2 a.m. on Feb. 28, according to an OSU police report.

By the time OSU medics responded to the alarm, the
