Ex-Minority Affairs vice provost sues university for lost wages, benefits

By Chanda Neely
Lantern staff writer

In an attempt to gain financial compensation, Timothy Knowles, former vice provost for the Office of Minority Affairs, filed a complaint against Ohio State in the Franklin County Court of Common Pleas Monday.

Knowles is seeking compensation for lost wages, fringe benefits, insurance proceeds and other benefits in excess of $25,000.

Knowles served as vice provost from Aug. 1, 1999 until he was terminated on July 31, 2000.

In a statement released in August, Executive Vice President and Provost Ed Ray said, "A recent review of Dr. Knowles' performance in the supervision of the Office of Minority Affairs led me to the conclusion that a change of leadership was necessary."

"He was afforded an opportunity to resign; he chose not to. This left me no alternative than to terminate his association with the university," Ray said.

Knowles claims in his lawsuit that he was fired over his efforts to improve diversity throughout the university, bring parity between the graduation rates of white and non-white students and raise the academic achievement scores of African-American students and athletes.

"This is a breach of contract lawsuit on behalf of Timothy Knowles as a result of wrongful termination," said Knowles' attorney Reginald Cooke. "We are filing this lawsuit to make very clear that Knowles was not fired because he was ineffective, but because he attempted to remove ineffective people."

The lawsuit states that in negotiations pertaining to Knowles' potential appointment to the vice provost position, Ray admitted that there were personnel problems in the Office of Minority Affairs, but promised the university would handle the problems prior to Knowles' arrival on campus.

"The Office of Minority Affairs was in disarray," Cooke said. "When Knowles realized that the problems had not been resolved, Ray approached him, apologized and charged him with handling the problems."

Knowles said he believed that he was fired because insiders disagreed with the changes he was making. In his attempt to get the office through its problems, he had to transfer some people and relieve others of their duties because they were simply not qualified, he said.

"My professional expertise is in minority education; my job at OSU was a challenge. Among other problems, I found that the people in

No future campus jobs for Josephson

By Jamie Krause
Lantern staff writer

After being fired as president of the local CWA 4501 chapter in August, Gary Josephson was recently told by Ohio State officials he has been barred from having any employment within the university.

Josephson said he is not bitter toward OSU as an establishment, but has disgust for the university's decision to fire him and for what he calls false accusations brought against him.

"I think it expresses a mean and lowlife attitude from someone at the university," he said.

Josephson said he feels the decision to bar him from OSU employment was in response to OSU's disapproval of his leadership in last spring's strike and for his union activities over the last 15 years.

"I think it is not just rigid bureaucracy, but just plain retaliation because of the strike," Josephson said.

Last spring's strike was the first major strike at OSU in 30 years. It began May 1 and lasted for three weeks. The strike was held primarily for union members to obtain better wages and educational opportunities.

Josephson said his barring came as quite a surprise. When he was called into the August meeting, he thought it was going to be an interview, but instead, Larry Lewellen, assistant vice president for human resources, and Cathy Cooper, director of labor relations for the university, delivered the message he would not be rehired.

Cooper declined to comment on the details of the meeting with Josephson because of a confidentiality agreement she feels she has with

JOSEPHSON

Josephson.

Josephson said there is no such agreement.

"It was a university decision not to rehire Gary," Cooper said. "We've had a good working relationship with Gary."

Robert "B.J." Schuerger, president of USG, worked closely with Josephson during the strike and feels the situation is unfortunate.

"I think Gary was a good president. He delivered every time I needed something from him," Schuerger said. "I hope he comes back to OSU or stays active in the Columbus community."

Josephson began his career with the university in 1975. He worked for 10 years as a maintenance repair worker at the OSU Medical Center. He was employed as a union staff representative for 15 years, four of which he was the union president.

Josephson said he has been trying to appeal the decision.

In July, there were allegations accusing Josephson of mismanagement of union funds and poor accounting practices, according to Jeff Rechenbach, vice president of CWA's District 4, in a Sept. 20 article by the Lantern.

After union officials requested an outside audit and it was determined Josephson had failed to keep proper records of money spent during the strike, he was relieved of his position.

Josephson denies any mismanagement of funds and said his handling of any union money was completely legitimate.

"They (the allegations) were made to justify blatant political moves against me under the cover of an accusation," Josephson said. "It is a bold, brash lie."

Josephson still holds the title of CWA president, but is unable to carry out the duties of the position because he is no longer a union employee.

His first appeal to the local CWA 4501 was turned down by Rechenbach. Josephson is now appealing to the national president of CWA, Morton Bahr.

Until CWA 4501 has a replacement for Josephson, all duties and decisions will be executed by Henley Johns, an administrative receiver appointed by the national union.

If his appeal is turned down there, Josephson must appeal to the National Executive Board of CWA and then will have the right to appeal to the CWA Convention, which will be held this summer.

With the appeal process possibly lasting for months, Josephson could be unemployed for quite some time.

According to Josephson, this is his first rest in 25 years. He is collecting unemployment and is seeking suitable employment.

Josephson said OSU's decision against him was wrong.

"I'm a good worker and proud of my work with the university," he said. "I had a fair amount of opposition, but I think the majority of union members backed me and even do now, even those who disagreed with me, because little to nothing has happened since I left."

The Spot Bar, located at 1560 N. High St., may soon close its doors.

City wants to see Spot lose license

• Columbus Council recommends eight bars be closed by Liquor Control Division

By Tom Reinmann
Lantern staff writer

A popular campus-area bar will be forced to close if the Ohio Division of Liquor Control follows the recommendation of the Columbus City Council and revokes the bar's liquor license.

The Spot Bar, 1560 N. High St., is one of eight businesses scattered throughout Columbus that the council recommended should lose their liquor license, said Kate McSweeney, legislative aide to Councilman Mike Mentel.

The council approved the list on Dec. 11, its last meeting of 2000, and forwarded it to the Division of Liquor Control.

Every year the council sends out letters to civic associations and area commissions and talks with the Columbus Division of Police in an effort to find liquor permit holders that are causing problems in their community, McSweeney said.

Campus Partners might be one of those area commissions, said Gem Ray, manager of the Spot Bar. "This is the campus's last hurrah," Ray said.

The Spot Bar was specifically targeted because of the high number of violations inside the bar for underage drinking, said police Sgt. Jim Barnes.

"I can say, for sure, that Campus Partners was not a consideration," McSweeney said.

Municipalities can object to the renewal of liquor licenses for any reason listed in Ohio Revised Code, Title 43, Section A, said Jeff Porter, assistant city attorney of Columbus.

The code says a permit can be revoked if the holder acts with disregard for laws, regulations and ordinances or without peace, sobriety and good order to the surrounding area, Porter said.

"A liquor permit is a very regulated piece of paper for a purpose," Porter said. "You have to insure that public health and safety requirements are met."

Bar owners may not be encouraging bad behavior; however, the Eddie Smith of Utica, Ky., believes that he would die if he didn't smoke marijuana. Smith's medical prescription costs would total over $7,000 if he used Marinol instead of marijuana.

Marijuana use for pain debated

By Adam Reiss
Lantern staff writer

If members of For a Better Ohio had their way, the state legislature would pass a law allowing Ohioans with illnesses to smoke marijuana to alleviate pain.

The organization is sending Ohio legislatures a bill proposal because it believes it is a patient's right to use marijuana if a physician deems it will be helpful in alleviating the patient's illness.

"Thousands of research studies have stated marijuana has many medical values," said Al Byrne, the co-founder of For a Better Ohio. "A 1999 research study funded by the Clinton government, which questioned the medical aspects of marijuana, contradicted every claim the DEA (Drug Enforcement Agency) previously stated, by classifying marijuana as a schedule-one drug."

"The first claim being that marijuana has no medical value, which it does, the second claim being marijuana is highly addictive, which it is not, and the third claim stating marijuana is abused readily and is a gateway drug, which was also proved to be an inaccurate statement," he said.

Byrne is also co-director of Patients Out of Time, a national medical rights organization, which is involving six of the eight patients who have received medical marijuana for the past 20 years. These patients believe they would die if they did not use marijuana for medication.

Eddie Smith, who has had AIDS for 12 years and cancer for 10, said he would not be able to take his other medication without marijuana.

"Some of my medication makes me nauseous and I would throw up if I didn't use marijuana," Smith said. "Todd McCormick, an AIDS patient, died choking on his own vomit because he could not keep his medication down and he couldn't stop vomiting. This happened one week after a judge ordered him to stop smoking and the only reason he did it was because his mother's mortgage was used for bail. I feel the judge who sentenced Todd, sentenced him to death."

By pushing for such a law, For a Better Ohio wants to accomplish two key points, said Brian Horstman, president of the organization.

First and most important this law is to protect the grower of the medica-

New head coach may carry a hefty price tag

By Jamie Krause and Chris McMillen
Lantern sports writers

With the firing of head football coach John Cooper, finding a replacement isn't the only worry for Ohio State's Department of Athletics. If the salaries of other coaches in the Big Ten are any guide, the department will have to shell out a large amount of cash to lure a new coach to Columbus.

While Cooper's replacement likely won't receive the $10 million offered to Dick Vermeil to coach the NFL's Kansas City Chiefs, he will probably demand a salary exceeding that of most would-be masters of the sport.

Big Ten football earns big money, and the eventual head coach will want to be paid accordingly. With athletics already giving Cooper $1.8 million to buy him out, affordability will probably remain one of the key factors determining who the new head coach will be.

As head coach of the Buckeyes, John Cooper made a base salary of $200,000 and collected a total of $1.1 million per year, including media appearances, camps and endorsements. His five-year contract also included team and academic performance bonuses.

Cooper's deal was re-worked in 1999 after he had been head coach at OSU for more than years. His replacement's first contract will most likely be for less money.

The status of the head coaching position at OSU closely mirrors that of the Buckeye's rival from Ann Arbor.

At the University of Michigan, head football coach Lloyd Carr has a seven-year contract, signed in 1998, with a base salary of $280,000. He also receives an additional $465,000 "as compensation for his television, radio, Internet, and other services," according to his contract.

Barry Alvarez, head coach at the University of Wisconsin, earns a base of $400,000 in addition to around $490,000 from media appearances and endorsements.

"All together he makes about $1 million," said Kip Marvin of UW's personnel department.

In addition, Alvarez can make bonuses of 5 percent for winning the conference, 10 percent for going to a Big Ten bowl and 5 percent for making it to a Bowl Championship Series game.

With Penn State's Joe Paterno having legendary status and Michigan's top-ten rankings almost annually, Wisconsin is arguably the closest school for comparison. Hiring a prominent Division One head coach could call for a similar package.

The Badgers have had success on the field, winning three Rose Bowls in the 90s, but have also had off-the-field problems, most notably when players were suspended this past season for receiving improper discounts from an athletic shoe store.

On Dec. 5, 1999, Bobby Williams, head coach at Michigan State, was promoted from within the program, replacing Nick Saban, who left for the same position at Louisiana State University. According to the Lansing State Journal, Williams agreed to a five-year, $485,000 contract, with bonuses for player's grade point averages and for bowl appearances. This was significantly less than the near $700,000 that Saban made. Williams salary was much more than the $85,285 he made as running back coach. If OSU hires an assistant from another team, or promotes assistant head coach Fred Pagac from within, they could get a similar deal.

Glen Mason at the University of Minnesota, another candidate for the OSU position, signed a seven-year contract this past June. A university spokesperson said Mason earns a salary of $635,000, along with $325,000 in media fees.

It can be argued that Mason would receive a raise if he came to the Buckeyes, or that he would take a pay cut to coach his alma mater. Regardless of speculation, arrangements would have to be made regarding his existing contract, which runs through 2007.

OSU looks West for housing needs

By Heather Fill
Lantern staff writer

As enrollment numbers continue to climb at Ohio State, the university has once again found itself in need of more student housing.

Last year OSU officials announced they would build 300 to 400 student units at the corner of West 10th and Neil avenues. Bill Hall, interim vice president for Student Affairs, said the facility should be open by autumn quarter 2002.

One of the buildings under consideration by the university is the J. Leonard Camera Rehabilitation Center, located near West Campus on Kenny Road. The Camera Center, owned by the Bureau of Workers' Compensation, was built in 1986 and provides rehabilitation services for injured workers.

In November 2000, the state's Management Improvement Commission recommended the facility be closed as a result of under-use.

According to the commission, the center is currently operating at 36 percent capacity, with a staff of 63 people working with an average of 54 injured workers.

If the university were to purchase the building, the 11-story residential tower could be converted into student housing, Hall said.

No assessments have been made as of yet to decide if the building would house undergraduate or graduate students. According to Richard Hollingsworth, special assistant for Housing, Food Services and Event Centers, there is also an abundance of space in the buildings for administrative offices.

The fate of the center is not yet known, and it is currently not for sale. Nothing official has been approved or signed to purchase the buildings at this time, but the university has taken them under consideration as they continue to look for ways to make housing available to students.

Pardon Clinton, Sen. Hatch says

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect Bush should pardon President Clinton, whether indicted or not, to put the scandals of the last eight years behind the nation, says the Republican head of the Senate committee that oversees the federal criminal justice system.

The independent counsel investigating Clinton's conduct in the Monica Lewinsky matter has said a decision about whether to pursue the case against Clinton will come "very shortly" after he leaves office Jan. 20.

"I would pardon him," Sen. Orrin Hatch, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, replied when asked on "Fox News Sunday" if he would do so whether Clinton was indicted or not.

"I think it's time to put this to bed. It's time to let President Clinton fade into whatever he's going to fade into, and I just don't see keeping it alive any longer and I don't think there's a jury in America that is going to convict President Clinton," Hatch said.

Based on a report submitted by Independent Counsel Robert Ray's predecessor, Kenneth Starr, the president was impeached by the House for alleged perjury and obstruction. The Senate acquitted him of obstruction on a 50-50 vote and voted 55-45 against convicting him of perjury. A two-thirds majority was necessary for conviction.

King's daughter to speak at Ohio Union

By Fatima Winbush
Lantern staff writer

The Rev. Bernice King, youngest daughter of the late Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., will address students, faculty and staff at the 29th Annual Martin Luther King Jr. Holiday Celebration at 7 p.m. tomorrow at the Ohio Union Ballrooms.

This year's event will be the first joint celebration of Ohio State and Columbus in an effort to increase student volunteerism as well as student activity within city government.

"This event will be an introduction to other events of this nature," said Larry Williamson, director of the Hale Black Cultural Center. "We would like to increase collaborative efforts between the city and the university since we're both working toward increasing diversity within our programs."

According to Williamson, the event will take place before the actual holiday to reduce any conflicts that may occur with other events that are taking place in the city.

The theme for this year's celebration is "Community or Chaos: Where Do We Go From Here," emphasizing the importance of community and the impact of increased student involvement.

King is the assistant pastor at Greater Rising Star Baptist Church in Atlanta and has become an advocate for at-risk youth. She is the author of "Hard Questions, Heart Answers" and has been recognized as "one of the 50 leaders of tomorrow" by Ebony magazine.

Among those in attendance will be OSU President, William "Brit" Kirwan, Mac Stewart, interim vice provost for Minority Affairs and James Stowe, executive director for the Columbus Community Relations Commission.

"James Stowe will be here to encourage and show support for our youth here at Ohio State on behalf of the city," said Wanda White, Department Business administrator.

"He will address the need for increased involvement of students within city government," she said. "He will also present the calendar for other activities that will take place in observance of the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday."

The mistress of ceremonies for the evening will be Daphne Bell from WCKX, a local radio station. The program will include a presentation to the Martin Luther King Jr. scholarship recipients and a musical selection by African American Voices at OSU. A book signing, as well as a question and answer session with King, will follow the program.

Babbitt blasts his Bush cabinet replacement

By Matt Kelley
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — Overturning environmental protections imposed by the Clinton administration would cost Republicans a lot of public support, Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt said.

President-elect Bush has criticized actions by President Clinton that restrict timber cutting, oil drilling and mining on federal land, and some Western Republicans are urging him to reverse several of those decisions.

Babbitt, in an interview with The Associated Press, said, "I think that attempts to undo the gains of the last eight years are going to be very costly, because there's an enormous amount of public support."

Rep. Jim Hansen, the Utah Republican who now chairs the House Resources Committee, wrote Bush an eight-page letter last month outlining ways to reverse several Clinton environmental regulations. Gale Norton, Bush's choice to replace Babbitt, once worked for the Mountain States Legal Foundation, which has sued Babbitt repeatedly to try to do the same.

Babbitt declined to criticize Norton, but did denounce an idea Norton and Hansen have supported: compensating property owners when environmental regulations stop them from developing their land.

"The radical property rights crowd are anarchists at heart, and I don't believe the American people will buy into that," Babbitt said in the interview last week.

Hansen and other Republicans have blocked many Clinton administration environmental initiatives, such as raising grazing fees and royalties for minerals dug from federal land. Babbitt said he is proud that the administration, through regulations, has accomplished many of the goals blocked by Congress, something that enraged Republicans.

"Here we are, having achieved 80 percent of what was sought in legislation, by administrative rule," said Babbitt, who has been Interior secretary since the start of the Clinton administration.

Tribe examines Gonzalez

By Tom Withers
AP Sports Writer

CLEVELAND — Free agent outfielder Juan Gonzalez is close to signing a one-year contract with the Cleveland Indians and could finalize the deal today if he passes a physical.

Gonzalez was scheduled to arrive in Cleveland last night and be examined by Indians doctors today, according to a baseball management source, speaking on the condition of anonymity.

The 31-year-old Gonzalez, a two-time American League MVP, would likely play right field and bat cleanup as a replacement for Manny Ramirez, who signed with the Boston Red Sox last month. The contract is expected to be worth about $12 million and would include a mutual option for the 2002 season.

Gonzalez's questionable back is the only thing holding up the deal. Gonzalez has had back problems in the past and was diagnosed with a herniated disk following last season, his first with the Detroit Tigers.

More troubling for the Tigers was that Gonzalez twice skipped medical exams, leading to speculation his back trouble was more serious.

Gonzalez reportedly passed a physical with the Tigers, but the Indians want to take a look themselves.

"There are still a couple of hurdles left to get over," Indians assistant general manager Mark Shapiro said yesterday. "We're making progress. It's not a foregone conclusion, but we're getting a lot closer."

Shapiro would not confirm if Gonzalez was en route to Cleveland. However, he said the Indians would need assurances Gonzalez's back was OK before terms of a contract could be finalized.

"We have to have additional medical info in place," he said.

Last week, Gonzalez told a newspaper in his native Puerto Rico that he chose to play in Cleveland because he likes to hit at Jacobs Field and because he's close friends with Indians All-Star second baseman Roberto Alomar and outfielder Wil Cordero.

Detroit Tigers Juan Gonzalez is close to signing a one-year contract with the Cleveland Indians and could finalize the deal today if he passes a physical.

Gonzalez has destroyed Indians' pitching as a visitor to the Jake.

His 12 homers and 36 RBIs are the most by an opposing player at the hitting-friendly ballpark and he has hit .344 (45-for-131) in 30 games at Cleveland.

In the past five years, Gonzalez has 627 RBIs to Ramirez's 632. Since the 1991 season, only three players — Albert Belle, Frank Thomas and Ken Griffey Jr. — have driven in more runs than Gonzalez.

He would fit perfectly into the Indians' cleanup spot vacated by Ramirez and bat behind Kenny Lofton, Omar Vizquel and Alomar.

Luck runs out for Pitino in Boston

By Jimmy Gollen
AP sports writer

BOSTON — In college and the pros, from Hawaii to the Big East, Rick Pitino always won.

Until he came to Boston. The master motivator with the magic touch resigned as coach and president of the Boston Celtics yesterday, 3 1/2 seasons after he was brought in to revive a franchise that once had been the NBA's proudest. He forfeited some $20 million left in his contract.

Pitino's legacy: a 102-146 record and a history of roster churning that left the team strapped under the salary cap and unable to find its groove.

"It has been a great privilege to coach the greatest basketball tradition in sports," Pitino said in a statement released by the team. "I wish we could have accomplished more between the lines, but I am proud with the efforts of my staff and players."

Jim O'Brien, Pitino's longtime assistant, was appointed interim coach, starting with last night's game against the Portland Trail Blazers, the top team in the Western Conference.

O'Brien was coach at Wheeling Jesuit College from 1982-87 and at Dayton from 1989-94, leading the Flyers to a 22-10 record and an NCAA berth in his first season. He had been a Pitino assistant at Kentucky and with the New York Knicks.

"He's a guy I have been with a long time," O'Brien said after yesterday's shootaround. "It did not end the way we had come into the franchise hoping it would."

Pitino had hinted since the end of last season that he would leave if the team did not improve in his fourth season. But the tone of his comments became more immediate as the Celtics stumbled to a 12-22 record, losing 11 of their last 14 games.

On Saturday night, it became clear he had decided to leave. He hugged Paul Pierce as he came out of the game, and spoke afterward as if his mind were made up.

Pitino skipped practice Sunday and asked his wife to join him in Miami to discuss his next move. Although he has been quoted as saying he would like to stay in the NBA, he already has been rumored for college jobs from UNLV to UCLA.

Pitino played at Massachusetts, served as assistant at Hawaii and Syracuse and coached at Boston University and Providence, two programs he took from mediocrity to the NCAA tournament. He spent two seasons with the Knicks, taking them to the playoffs in 1989 for the first time in four years.

Then he took over a Kentucky team that had been on probation, leading it to the Final Four three times in eight seasons and winning the NCAA title in 1996. Before joining the Celtics, he had just two losing seasons in 17 years.

Unable to restore the NBA's most successful franchise to its former glory, Boston Celtics head coach Rick Pitino resigned as coach and president of the Boston Celtics yesterday.

Special teams, bad decisions doom Phillips

By Connor Ennis
Associated Press writer

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Exactly a year later, the "Music City Miracle" is still wreaking havoc on the Buffalo Bills.

Wade Phillips was fired for refusing to give up on the special teams coach he hired in the wake of the Jan. 8, 2000, loss to Tennessee that eliminated the Bills from last year's playoffs.

Bills owner Ralph Wilson said yesterday he considered the firing of Ronnie Jones, in his first year as special teams coach, "imperative for the improvement of our team."

"Buffalo special teams' record was among the worst in the NFL last season," Wilson said. "I felt we needed a change and that my request was reasonable. ... I did not want to release Wade, but his refusal left me with no option."

Jones was hired during the off-season to replace Bruce DeHaven in the wake of the playoff loss, decided by a wild and controversial special teams touchdown. With three seconds left in the game, Tennessee's Frank Wycheck threw an overhand lateral across the field to Kevin Dyson on a kickoff return, and Dyson scampered 75 yards for a 22-16 Titans win. The Bills argued that Wycheck's throw was an illegal forward pass.

This season, the Bills finished 8-8 and, for the first time since the 1997 season, missed the playoffs.

Phillips' dismissal Sunday night followed the firing of general manager John Butler last month.

Phillips reportedly was in San Francisco yesterday and unavailable for immediate comment.

The Bills were 29-19 in three seasons under Phillips. Buffalo was knocked out of the playoffs in the first round two seasons ago by Miami before the loss to Tennessee.

Although not firing Jones was given as the main reason for Phillips' dismissal and Buffalo defensive end Marcellus Wiley said Jones was no longer on the staff, the team has not yet confirmed that Jones has been fired.

Jones, who is a close friend of Phillips, was hired despite no experience coaching special teams. The Bills finished at or near the bottom of the league in nearly every major special teams category.

During the season, Phillips was criticized for his handling of the quarterback controversy between Rob Johnson and Doug Flutie. He also drew criticism for remarks he made leading up to Buffalo's Dec. 11 Monday night matchup with Indianapolis, when he declared that neither team had a legitimate playoff shot. The Colts defeated the Bills 44-20 and won their next two games to reach the postseason. It was the third straight loss for Buffalo, who dropped four of its last five.

The security of the rest of the Bills' staff is very much in limbo, depending on whether the new general manager wants to bring in his own people or not. Former Pittsburgh Steelers executive Tom Donahoe is considered the favorite for Buffalo's vacant GM position.

Foreign Language and Area Studies (FLAS) Fellowships

Ohio State University annually offers FLAS Fellowships to graduate students and professional school students who enroll in foreign language instruction at OSU or abroad. The purpose of these fellowships is to promote the creation of world area specialists. Students for whom international area specialization is an integral part of their course of study and career objectives are especially encouraged to apply. FLAS Fellowships are available both for the academic year and the summer quarter. SUMMER FLAS Fellows study a foreign language in a full-time intensive summer course (receiving the equivalent of a full year's instruction), typically for 6 to 8 weeks. Instruction can be at OSU, at another US university, or abroad (preferably in a country where foreign language is spoken). Summer FLAS fellowships carry a tuition and fee authorization (waiver) and a stipend of $2,400 (usually distributed in two monthly installments of $1,200). ACADEMIC YEAR FLAS Fellows enroll in one foreign language class each quarter in addition to their degree-related courses. The academic year FLAS fellowships provide a three-quarter tuition and fee authorization (waiver) along with a stipend of $1,100 paid monthly for ten months (September - June).

Applicants must be full-time graduate or professional students and US citizens or permanent residents. Other restrictions may apply. For further information please contact the area studies center supporting the respective language(s) in which you are interested.

Officials search for identity of remains

RAY, Ohio (AP) — Authorities will use dental records to determine whether remains discovered near the body of a college student are those of a man who disappeared almost eight months ago.

Greg L. Julious, 20, was last seen alive with Gregory B. McKnight, who is being investigated in the shooting death of Kenyon College student Emily Murray, The Columbus Dispatch reported.

Julious' girlfriend, Dana Bostic, 22, said she last spoke to him by paging McKnight on May 12.

Julious told her he was in Columbus and planned to go to an Ohio State block party, Bostic told the newspaper. She said that two days later, McKnight went to her house in Chillicothe looking for Julious. McKnight said they had not gone to the block party but instead drove around, ending up in Cincinnati with some of Julious' friends.

"I don't know what to think," Bostic said. "It's kind of scary."

"I've been wondering all this time what happened to him."

Vinton County Prosecutor Tim Gleason said authorities are investigating the possible acquaintance between Julious and McKnight.

Authorities found the body of Murray, 20, of Shaker Heights, a Cleveland suburb, wrapped in a carpet after seeing her car outside the McKnight's trailer Dec. 9.

McKnight and Murray worked at a pizza restaurant near Kenyon in Gambier, about 80 miles north of Ray. Murray was last seen Nov. 3 after working her last scheduled shift at the Pirate's Cove.

The second set of remains could be those of Julious, but it's also possible that "he could be alive someplace," Captain Charles Boyer of the Vinton County sheriff's office, said Monday.

Dr. Carl Greever, acting Vinton County coroner, told the Dispatch that the timing of Julious' disappearance is consistent with the state of the remains found on the McKnight property.

Fate of death-row inmate on the line

COLUMBUS (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court yesterday rejected the last remaining appeal for a Cincinnati killer on death row since 1983, meaning that inmate John W. Byrd Jr.'s execution could occur within months, an Ohio attorney general's spokesman said.

Byrd, 37, was sentenced to die for the 1983 stabbing of Monte Tewksbury, 40, a clerk at a suburban Cincinnati convenience store. Police said that Byrd, 20 at the time, killed Tewksbury even though the clerk surrendered $133.97, his credit cards and his wedding ring without resisting.

Byrd would be the second killer executed in Ohio since 1963. Wilford Berry Jr. was put to death Feb. 19, 1999, after he dropped his appeals and requested execution.

Once the U.S. Supreme Court certifies its ruling, Hamilton County Prosecutor Michael Allen can ask the Ohio Supreme Court to set Byrd's execution date. Usually, the state court sets execution dates 90 days in advance.

Barring a court-issued stay or clemency from Ohio Gov. Bob Taft, Byrd could be executed as early as late April or May.

Ohio's executions, by injection or electrocution, are carried out at the Southern Ohio Correctional Facility near Lucasville.

The U.S. Supreme Court refused, without comment, to review Byrd's sentence and conviction for aggravated murder.

Ohio public defender David Bodiker, whose office represents Byrd, said: "It would appear we are near our second execution."

Bodiker said his staff is working to determine whether other appeals could be filed. Bodiker contends that Byrd was convicted principally on the testimony of a jailhouse snitch and was not Tewksbury's killer.

"Mr. Byrd has exhausted his appeals. We are doing research, preparing for possible contingencies, and will be ready to move into action if necessary," said Joe Case, a spokesman for Ohio Attorney General Betty Montgomery.

When Tewksbury was killed, he had been moonlighting at the convenience store from his regular job at Procter & Gamble Co. to earn extra money for his daughter's education.

Byrd came within 45 minutes of being executed in March 1994 — his head had been shaved and he had eaten his "last meal" — until the U.S. Supreme Court stopped the process. The administration of then-Gov. George Voinovich had pushed to carry out the sentence. A few hours before the scheduled execution, the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and then the U.S. Supreme Court stopped it.

Passion, drive define Ensemble Actors' Theatre Group

By Karen Altenbach
Lantern arts writer

A dynamic group of young actors from Ohio State has successfully produced one show and is back to do it again.

The Ensemble Actors' Theatre company made its first appearance in November with the play "and...and...and..." which was written and directed by company co-founder, Chris Dickmen. Its next production, "Welcome to the Moon and Other Plays" by John Patrick Shanley, presents a unique opportunity for the performers: They all have parts, and each directs a different scene in the play.

EAT was co-founded by three OSU seniors, Laura Gale, Greg Maier and Dickmen, along with one alumnus, Creighton James. The company is a dedicated group that aspires to create, "high quality theatre art through a positive, creative exploratory process," said Gale, a senior in theatre.

Gale is a press representative for the company and is completing her BA in theatre. Her training also includes an intensive program at New York's Circle in the Square Theatre School. Locally, Gale has appeared in "Closer" for the Reality Theatre and "The Love of the Nightingale" and "The Misanthrope," both of which appeared at OSU.

Dickmen is in his fourth year as a theatre student. He has most recently appeared as a company member of The Huron Playhouse. Locally, he has appeared in numerous OSU theatre productions and plans to graduate this spring.

Maier, a senior theatre major, has spent his time studying acting, mime, movement theatre, directing and play writing.

These highly motivated, talented actors use shared acting techniques, trust and patience to make their company successful. Having an interest in all areas of theatre, including writing, directing and acting, the founders wanted to create an environment where they could explore their talents fearlessly and without any preconceived notions, according to Dickmen.

In doing so, members of EAT plan to use this philosophy as a springboard to move in a creative direction, exploring innovative ways to become more developed actors.

"This theatre company is a stepping-stone for all of us; it is about coming together and progressing forward," Gale said. "We are exploratory and improvisational."

Their desire to produce works that haven't been seen around Columbus sparked the idea and development of EAT, and their first production.

"There was a certain type of theatre that we had in mind; you don't see enough playwrights like Sam Shepard and John Patrick Shanley done around here," James said.

It is clear that there is a passion and commitment that excels this group. Each juggles work, school and other plays, and still finds time to fit in long days and late nights of play rehearsal, thanks to a pure desire to seek out their potential and live their dreams.

They have been in search of an environment where they could act with reckless abandon. Instead of continuing their search, they have created it themselves in "Welcome to the Moon and Other Plays."

"It has been a good challenge for each of us, having to switch roles like that," Gale said. "It has been difficult and exciting to going back and forth between an authoritative position to being the follower."

This group plans to continue their company for as long as possible. With the exception of James, who has graduated, each of the other EAT members are close to graduating but plan to stay together for as long as they can. Having worked together for almost three years, the formation of this company has been a dream come true.

"Everything just happened to come together for us and work out," James said. "Our first show was received so well, we wanted to do it again."

Madlab Theatre to be the scene for OSU actors' sophomore effort

By Karen Altenbach
Lantern arts writer

The Ensemble Actors' Theatre is debuting its second production, "Welcome to the Moon and Other Plays" by John Patrick Shanley. It is a wistful, imaginative comedy that keeps the viewer laughing and wondering what's next.

"Welcome to the Moon and Other Plays" stars the four founding members of The Ensemble Actors' Theatre: Creighton James, Greg Maier, Laura Gale and Chris Dickmen. Two other Ohio State theatre majors, sophomore Heather Burley and senior Chester Harding complete the group. The stage manager, Katy Hite, senior theatre major, is the sound and light technician.

The play is a series of short, thematically varied vignettes, each lasting between five and 14 minutes. Each cast member plays characters and directs one of the scenes. Most scenes take place in New York, but the setting and time for each scene is different.

With a touching and personal undertone, this masterful play is a comical mixture of reality and absurdity. The play deals with life, love and relationships that are portrayed by using bizarre fantasy situations.

"The dialogue is grounded in realism, while exploring the fantasy worlds that we create in order to deal with reality," Dickmen said.

Each main character in the play seems to be trying to figure out how to live out his dreams and desires.

"Each of the plays has a male character that feels a deep need for a female companion, and deals with a male/female relationship," James said.

The play uses a minimal amount of props and is lit in a way that encourages audience members to use their imaginations. The sequences of short plays are abrupt, but the carefully chosen music selections and similarities between each allow for smooth transitions.

"There is a theme that ties them together; in each one someone is searching for some risk to take that will allow them to live more fully," Gale said.

rately and symbolically brings to life a romantic comedy about living, loving and fantasy.

This warm and funny play will be performed for one night only on Thursday at 8 p.m. at Madlab, located at 105 N. Grant Ave., downtown Columbus. Directions can be found at www.madlab.net. For further information and reservations, call Laura Gale at 299-2602. All tickets cost $5.

Celebrity volleyball sells sporting goods to masses

CHICAGO, Ill. (AP) — Eat your heart out, Spalding.

Wilson Sporting Goods has had hit products and celebrity endorsers before — Michael Jordan, Pete Sampras, the National Football League. So has rival Spalding Sports Worldwide.

But there's never been a star quite like "Wilson," the volleyball that's become a Hollywood hero since Tom Hanks befriended it on a deserted island in the movie "Cast Away."

"We're in disbelief at the amount of attention it's getting," said Chris Considine, general manager of the company's team sports division.

Just as it did to Hanks' character, the famous ball washed up at the Chicago firm's feet by chance. It was an idea that originated with the film's makers.

The sporting goods manufacturer hopes the publicity can help its bottom line. Its executives think the movie's plugs could boost business for volleyball and other Wilson goods, and expect to market a ball with a face like Hanks' buddy.

"This won't translate into anywhere near the sales that Michael Jordan or Vince Carter or Venus and Serena Williams generate for us," Considine said. "But from a sheer exposure standpoint, nothing we've ever done can match 'Cast Away.'"

Even without a speaking line, "Wilson" gets plenty of screen time as Hanks' only companion on the South Pacific island where his character, FedEx executive Chuck Noland, spends four years otherwise alone after surviving a plane crash.

The ball is shown inside a FedEx package that washes up on the island with him. Noland paints a face on it using his own blood and names the ball Wilson, for its manufacturer — although the real-life inspiration may have come from Hanks' wife, Rita Wilson.

On Wednesday, one of the three original "Wilson" used in the movie was sold in an online auction for $18,400.

Fame for the volleyball comes at a time when Wilson Sporting Goods is riding the momentum of a turnaround after years of struggles.

The 88-year-old company, once known largely for tennis rackets and balls, ended a string of seven money-losing years in 1998 and has since seen big sales and profit increases. It recorded sales of $587 million in 1999, about half in the United States, and increasing sales in Japan and the Asian-Pacific market.

Considine said the company's annual marketing budget is equal to about 10 percent of annual sales.

But a bloodstained volleyball may make a bigger splash than anything funded by a multimillion-dollar ad budget.

"Sometimes you get lucky," Considine said.

Gallup goes ga-ga over Garth, Gibson and 'Green Mile'

By Stephanie Smith
Lantern arts reporter

The season is upon us where every major entertainment genre bestows one award after another upon deserving (or not?) artists.

To begin the season, The 27th Annual People's Choice Awards were held Sunday night at the Pasadena Civic Auditorium. The winners, chosen by a Gallup Organization Poll, highlighted the public's choices in music, television and movies.

The television winners were dominated by established hits in "Friends" and "ER." Jennifer Aniston walked away with the Female Television Performer category, while Drew Carey took the male version of that category.

Honors also went out to the best of the new television season, with "Ed" winning the New Television Comedy Series and "Dark Angel" taking the New Television Dramatic Series. Individual honors went to Bette Midler and John Goodman in their respective Performers in a New Television Series categories.

Film honors highlighted the box office giants this year, with

"The Patriot," "Remember the Titans" and "The Green Mile" leading the nominations in the film categories. "The Green Mile" prevailed in both the Motion Picture and Dramatic Motion Picture categories. Michael Clarke Duncan gave a hilarious, yet emotional acceptance speech on behalf of "The Green Mile" cast and crew.

Mel Gibson had a double win as both Motion Picture Actor and Motion Picture Star in a Drama for his epic drama "The Patriot."

The Motion Picture Star in a Comedy award went to an absent Jim Carrey for his performance in "Dr. Seuss' How

The Grinch Stole Christmas." Julia Roberts affirmed her superstar status with a Motion Picture Actress win for "Erin Brockovich."

Music winners ranged from country stars to pop sensations. Country music giant Garth Brooks was awarded the Male Musical Performer honor. Brooks also served as the sole musical performer in the show, performing an emotionally charged version of "When You Come Back To Me Again," a song he co-wrote for the film "Frequency." Faith Hill was on hand to accept the award for Female Musical Performer. 'N Sync grabbed the Musical Group or Band category.

The winners in the New Television Comedy Series, New Television Dramatic Series and Reality-Based Television Program were chosen by internet voting. "Survivor" won the Reality-Based Program category.

Brooks retires, sets sights on movies

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Although country singer Garth Brooks has announced his retirement, he's not going to be idle.

The 38-year-old Brooks told reporters backstage at the People's Choice Awards Sunday night that his movie production company will make a statement about its first project in about 10 days.

He said despite expectations, it won't be "The Lamb," his film about his fictional rock-star alter ego, Chris Gaines.

"The Lamb" is still Paramount's baby, and if Paramount says we're going forward with this ... and if they're crazy enough to let me do the soundtrack, I'll go back in and do it, even though it was the hardest thing I've ever done... the Chris Gaines project," he said.

Brooks won the male musical performer award at the People's Choice Awards.
