Reporter Watches Campus Yield to Season's Warmth

By MARGARET E. TUTTLE

Sunday was definitely spring, tra-la, and no place were there to be found more heart-warming examples of spring laziness or ambition than on the rolling green campus. Your reporter wanted to be a heart-warming example of laziness, but her news-editor was disgustingly full of enthusiasm and insisted spring was big news. Hence this rambling travelogue.

In the springtime one thinks of the flowers, the birds and the bees, so my first stop was the veterinary clinic. But this was a mistake, because all I saw was a lot of poor little dogs who were recuperating in cages and didn't know it was spring outside. All I could smell was the pungent odor of horse wafted on the moist air, and all I learned was that maternity cases increased at this season.

Returning to the outside air I gazed at the gay yellow forsythia blossoms by the Library for some time to recapture my romantic mood. Also enamored of the blossoms were three charming co-eds who approached, gazed admiringly, and then two of the girls sprawled on the damp ground in front of the bushes, while the other girl snapped a picture.

Romantic Boulevard

Neil Avenue was however as romantic a boulevard as a sensitive soul could hope for. There were sounds of bicycling, roller skating, a creaking baby carriage and the steady drone of passing cars. The sidewalks were a fairland of pretty girls in bright blues and lavenders and here I spied Agnes Ondrak in a golden-brown dress to match her golden-brown hair strolling along between two handsome boys.

From here I found my way to a distant tennis court by the Stadium and an archery range, both full of laughing healthy people. Then before I knew it I was at Mirror Lake.

Here I was happy for the hillside was crowded with people listening to the strains of the radio symphony from Pomerene Hall, people smoking pipes or writing letters, or strumming guitars, people watching the players practicing in the theater, and loads of young couples doing nothing at all but looking at each other.

Kruger to Speak At Social Congress

Wittenberg Professor, 'Threatened' in Autumn, Agrees to Visit Campus

Dr. Frederick K. Kruger of the department of political science, Wittenberg College, will be guest speaker at the final meeting of the Congress on Social Problems at 7:30 Wednesday night, in Commerce Auditorium, it was announced today.

Dr. Kruger, who sent his acceptance to the Congress late Sunday night, is making his first appearance at Ohio State since his sudden cancellation of a scheduled lecture November 21 before the Foreign Policy Association. Announced as a "pro-Hitler" speaker, Dr. Kruger received threatening letters and cancelled his talk "to avoid embarrassment for the University as well as for himself," he told the LANTERN at that time.

The topic for Wednesday's Congress will be "Should the United States Aid the Democracies?" Dr. E. Allen Helms, department of political science, will be the faculty speaker, and Sam Seifter, A-4, will be the student speaker.

Dr. Kruger, educated in Germany, was offered the order of merit of the German Eagle, first class, by Adolf Hitler last year.

WSGA Extends Membership to Three Groups

IWA, YWCA, WRC Invited as Non-Voters

In what Jean A. Waid, president of WSGA, termed "an experiment," the YWCA, IWA and Women's Recreational Council have been invited to accept seats on the WSGA executive board, as non-voting members.

In the past none of these organizations has had any direct affiliation with WSGA, but if this attempt to widen WSGA's direct campus contacts works out successfully, its constitution will be amended next autumn quarter to grant the representatives full voting privileges, Miss Waid said.

Since the board determines the policy of WSGA, this would imply a voice in the government of every woman student on the campus. WSGA is an autonomous organization with supervisory powers over co-ed living conditions and activities.

Hope to Increase Influence

With the addition of IWA, YWCA and WRC, officials hope to make it more democratic in its control and to reach a greater number of students immediately.

Although executives of the associations invited have been notified of the offer, final decision will be made only after the proposal has been passed upon in group meetings. IWA will settle the matter Tuesday night, president Helen T. Bower, Ag-3, announced. According to Rachel A. Good, A-3, YWCA may discuss the question at its executive committee session also scheduled for Tuesday.

Scholaris, freshman women's honorary, formerly a subcommittee without standing on the WSGA Board, was granted representation and voting privileges last last quarter.

Fuller, alumni secretary; Ellena Dunbar, Seattle, Wash., national treasurer of Phi Mu, and Jane Pinaire, district president of Phi Mu.

Initiation of seven members, round-table discussions, a formal reception for the faculty and representative students are also included in the convention program. Fraternities Seek Exemption from Compensation Law

Brown Heads Committee to Draft Petition, UCC Legal Department Aide Approached

Reasons why fraternities should be exempted from payment of unemployment compensation are being accumulated by a committee headed by William R. Brown, Phar-3, for presentation to the contributions determination section of the Ohio Unemployment Commission.

The committee has approached R. G. Williams, head of the section, and has been informed that a formal petition for exemption should be drawn up by the committee and would be considered by his office.

Requests for exemption will be based on the fact that "all fraternity employment is designed to help fraternity brothers and fellow students complete their education," according to Brown.

Rapid Turnover

Brown further cites the commission ruling which maintains a graduated scale of contributions on the basis of employment turnover. Because the fraternity employment turnover is so rapid, the committee finds that most houses hiring student help are compelled to pay the maximum demand at all times.

Brown also pointed out that the seasonal nature of this type of work would make application of the act impracticable. Employees would be eligible for compensation once every year on the strength of summer layoffs.

Further reasons for exemption are being considered by the committee for incorporation in the petition. Theses should be completed by the middle of the week.

Williams preferred to withhold any opinion on the likelihood of any favorable consideration being granted the petition, but he claims the act itself does not concern minors whose occupation is attending school.

Dargusch to Address Ohio Staters' Banquet

Carlton S. Dargusch, member of the University Board of Trustees, will address the student-faculty dinner sponsored by Ohio Staters, Inc., at 6 p. m. Tuesday, in the Ohio Union.

Each member of Ohio Staters will be accompanied by a guest chosen by him from the faculty. Approximately 50 faculty members and students are expected to attend the dinner, according to George L. Packer, A-3, chairman of the faculty relations committee of the sponsoring group.

* The damaged property included all the furniture on the floor and practically the entire personal belongings of two of the residents. Damages probably will require rewiring of the house.

The fire was first detected by Horace Harding, Denver, visiting from the grand lodge. Harding said, "I had just returned from breakfast about 10 o'clock when I smelled smoke. I started looking for the cause of it, and I discovered the flames and turned in the alarm."

Cause of the fire was attributed to an overheated gas burner which the members had neglected to turn off when they went to classes. The house was empty when Harding returned from breakfast.

Three Companies Called

Columbus pump companies seven and 18 and truck company three were called up put out the fire. It took the three of them 30 minutes to accomplish this.

The four rooms which were destroyed furnished sleeping quarters for six members but only two had their belongings on the floor when the fire broke out.

Students whose property was destroyed are George DeFrieze, Ag-1, who regularly occupies the room which held the heater, and Richard D. Jordan, Com-2. The latter reported the loss of a new gladstone bag which contained some suits and other articles of apparel.

New Painting Marred

Other portions of the house did not escape damage. First and second floors had just been repainted and decorated. The fire marred much of the new work.

Fire department officials substantiated the statement by residents of the house that the fire was caused by the heater.

The damage is covered by insurance.

Hell Week Publicity

College students, as a group, insist that they are individuals who have sufficient common sense to stand on their own feet and are mature enough to know where their feet are standing.

They insist that they know what the sociological score is:

But students can hardly blame their elders for being eyebrow lifters on the subject of collegiate maturity. The lion's share of the publicity given to college students' activities concerns such fads as guppie gulping or similar nonsense, so it's not surprising that people sometimes wonder if we aren't merely the exhibitionist fringe of the younger generation, instead of the future leaders of that generation as after-dinner speakers insist.

Certainly the publicity given to Hell Week activities about this time of year does little to help convince observers that colleges and universities really are institutions of higher learning. It's hard to convince a prospective employer, for instance, that college "men" and "women" are more than overgrown high school kids when news of mass duckings, paddlings and organized tomfoolery plays so large a part in the collegiate news of the day.

It would, we suppose, be useless to expect fraternities and sororities at Ohio State to abolish the traditional hazings that seem to loom so large among their activities. But if the Hell Week proceedings in the years to come could be kept strictly within doors and unpublished, not only the organizations directly concerned but the University as well would benefit greatly in reputation.

Then, perhaps, a student could say, "I go to college—" without feeling it necessary to add: "I'm afraid..."

Ohio State Democracy

One of the most interesting and articulate "letters to the editor" we've seen for some time appeared on this page a few days ago. It was signed by Henry Parks, Koadia Council president, who has been taking some hefty swings recently at the prejudice against his race which exists on this campus, just as it does elsewhere.

It seems to us that the organizations at Ohio State that are interested in social betterment would do well to give Parks a helping hand in his attempts to lessen the inequalities between the Negroes and the Whites here.

Democracy begins at home. The fact that a considerable portion of our student body can't buy a coke or a meal in the University district except in the Union or Pomerene Hall presents a practical problem in sociology that should be a challenge to every socially minded individual at Ohio State.

Let's take a few days off from solving the world's problems and see what we can do about one or two of our own...

Have You Noticed...

...that Mondays are usually the nicest days in the week because they're the days when you get a chance to rest up from the week end before.

...that the fraternity boys voted to abolish corsages Tuesday and that a favorite topic of conversation among campus co-eds since then has been—"What are we going to do with the money the boys'll save?"

...that about the only difference between college boys and the high school boys who visited here Friday and Saturday was that you could tell whether the latter's hair was combed or not.

...that the Socialist Club's peace demonstration was really peaceful. No bombs, no policemen—and no spectators.

...that the much publicized production difficulties encountered in filming "Gone with the Wind" pale to insignificance beside those for "Cheer as You Go." After all, the movie tycoons didn't have to worry about finding a gown for Carl Kaplanoff...

Right Turn...

It All Depends
On the "Ism"...

By JAMES O'BOYLE BURKE

If the head of some nationwide organization whose purpose it was to lobby for bigger and better relief appropriations were to be invited to Nuremberg for a Nazi congress, even though he was not a Nazi, there would be such a howl raised that the echo would disturb the radio waves in the stratosphere.

If this same gentleman were to appear before a Congressional committee investigating the relief situation and condemn the committee for presuming to look into Nazi affairs as they affect relief he would be roundly denounced as a traitor and a Fascist, to use a few of the printable terms that would be applied to him.

If the secretary-treasurer of this bigger and better relief organization were to tell the committee that he had been a member of the National Socialist Party for 18 years and that two of the remaining directors were Bund members certain liberal organizations who like to call themselves "American" would be staging protest parades.

If the President of the United States were to use the head of this relief group as his messenger to Congress in urging that body to appropriate more money for the WPA, both the organization and the President would be discredited and the chances of getting additional WPA funds would be nil.

Yet this same thing happened in reverse the other day. David Lasser, head of the Workers' Alliance, who visited Moscow to help the Bolsheviks celebrate the twentieth anniversary of the Communist Revolution, and the man the President used to inform Congress of his desire for additional relief funds lashed out at a Congressional committee for presuming to delve into Communist activities in relief groups.

Herbert Benjamin, secretary-treasurer of the Alliance, admits being a long time member of the Communist party and says that two of the directors of the Alliance are Communists.

Where is the voice of liberal groups raised in protest against this type of "ism" activity? If the disclosure had been made that these men were affiliated with the Bund, these same liberals would have been hoarse long since from denouncing them.

Their silence here is a reflection upon their integrity. Their interest is not so much in keeping "isms" out as it is in promoting their own brand of "ism."

Some Birthdays
Are Happy...

By IRVING M. LICHTENSTEIN

News Flash: Adolph Hitler celebrated his fiftieth birthday with Berlin's mightiest military display, Thursday, April 20... the German people celebrated.

There once was a mining town in Pennsylvania where everybody who worked for a living worked for one man. They didn't like this person but tipped their caps to him when he promenaded on Coal Street. At home they cursed him in short words under their breath.

However, they still fawned in public. This man controlled their supply of groceries, newspapers, clothing and even when a circus came he paid off the performers. He also doled out wages to his people, half in script and half in food credit cards, at a rate which he thought was enough to keep them going from day to day.

Each year this man had a birthday and threw a party in the company ballroom. Every man, woman and child came to the parties, danced and ate, watched him blow out the candles and heard him make a long speech.

On Thursday, April 20, 19—, the man had a special party. He was 50 years old and it was time to celebrate. All the Boy Scout bands from the surrounding counties joined together and played music all day. Everybody listened because the mines declared a local holiday and nobody had to work. Wages were suspended, but it was still a holiday.

In the company houses everybody scrubbed their pale faces with company imitation soap until a false ruddiness showed in their cheeks. They had to look happy. Fireworks popped in the park after dusk and the children strained their necks to see the manufactured stars and pinwheels.

Late at night the lights went on in the company ballroom and everybody went to the party and stared at the big cake with the 50 lighted candles. They stared because the cake came once a year—on the man's birthday—and this cake was so big.

After everybody finally jammed into the hall and settled down the man blew out the candles and made a long speech. He pounded his chest and talked and talked. He was 50 years old. They all clapped their hands as one.

Then the cake was passed around—one measured piece to a person. Something was wrong, though. Although the cake looked good it tasted goopy and plopped into their standardized stomachs. They ate it and smiled at the man.

The doors opened at a signal and they all went home—and cursed in short words under their breath.

Footsteps of Time

I touched a crumbled mossy status,
Ancient as the breath of time.
There were secrets there
Caught in that hair—
Hard ringlets worn away; no clue
Of thief or of the vandal time
That lay on eyes once filled with jasper.

Footsteps... back to distant ages,
Days when man was hair and skull.
Shallow toe-prints in the steppes—
No hoofs of iron, no coats of wool:

Footsteps... burned and slow and trembling,
Writhing from a pharaoh's clutch.
Footsteps seeking and assembling
Visions of the master touch:

Footsteps... silent hours of grinding
Hard-earned grist from mills of age;
Pictures of worried Homer
Writing down a deathless page:

Footsteps... tired feet faintly
walking;
Fingers pulling bells of time.
Feudal chieftains—warring, hawking—

Striking off a sombre chime:
Footsteps... hollow in their peal,
Measured now with muffled clatter;
Foolish feet, closebound in steel,
Footsteps... halting for the sun to shatter.

—Robert Snook.

Song for a Second Spring

Ah, forewarned heart, how well you have withstood
The silent autumn and the poignancy
Of the long, lovely winter.
Now the swift green, the sudden flowering
Of a new spring lays claim upon your beat.

But autumn is an easy time—
Here lies no proof of strength.
And winter's beauty is sufficient to itself;
It holds no gift, no promise.

Spring is the testing time! The heart
That can be stoic in this season
May rightly name itself both strong —and wise.

Oh, forewarned heart, show me your wisdom now!

The One Before

If this is to be the end,
And the bud is to wither and die:
And we are supposed to turn
To new and greener fields,
This one last word say I:
'Remember when I closed my eyes
And you asked why I looked wistful
When last we kissed?
'Twas the one before left such a hurt.'

—John R. Culbert.

Awakening

This morning when I woke
I found the sun
Poking its shiny nose in my window
And making fun of me
For being such a sleepy-head.
He'd been up a long time, he said,
Dusting away the dew
And polishing this golden day for me,
But now he thought I ought to be Doing something about it.
I didn't want it all to go to waste,
did I?

He's been chasing clouds
And trying to call the young buds out,
And now he was asking me to help him

With his tasks; to run and shout
And dance and sing across
The slumbering earth and toss her
From her beauty rest that she might wake

And dress her child of spring
Who for days had been tagging naked

On the apron strings
Of weary Mother Winter.

Now that the sun is shining again we are in hopes that more pin planting et cetera will be in vogue. The past few weeks would have dampened even the most ardent love affair but we predict that from now on out the mergings will be fast and furious. At least there are some 300 more frat pins floating around than there were before the week end.

We understand that Fred Balls is* the biggest nuisance that the Thetas have had around their house for some time. Betty Ann Beal is his girl friend and it is rumored that she gets plenty sick of having him there all the time... We wonder if Jerry Brunner has had the unrequited love affair she has always wanted. At least our predictions about Bill Moritz came true...

Vernon Gilmore and Jane Brumbaugh are reported to enjoy having large audiences around when he goes to see her... Lee Byerly, the DU flash, received a pair of crystal candlesticks from Sally Richman for his birthday. They plan to get married soon... We beg to apologize to Alice Chambers. She is not seeing Harry Valley but is going with the Phi Delt prexy quite frequently... The most improbable event is seeing George Brookover with anyone but Virginia Mollard. They read Good Goodhousekeeping together...

Henry Gornall is reported to receive daily letters plus numerous telegrams from one Della Clark in Carey, O. Must have been some summer romance... Bill Bretzius is dying to date Emily Ward... Toby Deibel is curious to know why a red head in his 413 chemistry class keeps giving him the eye... Al Theado lists 10 or 12 girls' names as possible dates, telephones them and then hangs up before they can answer. We thought Caspar Milquetoast was timid... Dottie Stott went to Washington over the week end to see her one and only Keith Maloney. It is rumored that she saved dimes to make the trip... Janet Pressler is also saving dimes these days.

Could it be that she and Frank Leonard are planning a merging?... Did you ever notice George Sattler's private rooting section on Wednesday at parade... We saw Larry Hall and wife at the ball game Saturday. She is the former Jane Bringman, Chi O. "We don't have much, Larry said, but we are happy..." Tally Ho until Wednesday...

Library Contest
Judges Announced

Committee of Three Will Make First Fraternity
Book Ratings May 11

Judging in the annual fraternity library contest will begin May 11, William H. Allen, Com-2, secretary of fraternity affairs, announced today. The three judges will be Wilson R. Dumble, department of English; Earl N. Manchester, University librarian, and Frank E. Long Columbus book merchant.

Allen explained that a special effort is being made this year to encourage chapters which are just starting to build libraries, and therefore, the judges will base their decision on the quality of the collections rather than the quantity.

Beta Theta Pi fraternity is the present holder of the 250 books awarded to the winner by the State Library, and a huge trophy cup. The fraternity which wins the cup for three successive years becomes its permanent possessor. The books will continue to be part of the prize until the cup is won permanently, then they will be returned to the State Library.

The fraternities competing are expected to have at least 75 books in their libraries, including texts, encyclopedias, dictionaries and other books which reflect the tastes of the group.

Social life on the Syracuse University campus has doubled in the last five years.

Way Back When

By JOHN MURRAY

APRIL 18, 1923.—What is the meaning of that pile of dirt behind the Observatory? A new swimming pool? An addition to the Observatory?

"All wrong," says Professor Joseph N. Bradford, University architect. "It is the beginning of the natural amphitheater which is being built by the Browning Dramatic Society. The side of the hill is to be terraced. The sod will be held in place by concrete curbing. On these grassy steps chairs will be placed when needed. The stage will be among the trees by the lake, and a background of shrubbery will be planted there also."

APRIL 20, 1923.—As the first step in changing the present system of finals, the faculty has passed a resolution requesting the Administrative Council to present a method whereby two-hour examination periods would be possible.

This action comes as a result of the growing dissatisfaction among the student body to the present system of giving final examinations.

Speakers Praise
YWCA Discussion

Convention Features Geneva
Conference, Considers Technique Problems

Ending the two-day convention of the Southern Ohio Conference of the YWCA in the Ohio Union Sunday, speakers emphasized the value of constructive concepts which are worked out in group discussion.

More than 100 students from Ohio colleges registered for the conference which opened Saturday afternoon at Pomerene Hall with a speech by Frances H. Mains, a chairman and YWCA secretary of Cincinnati.

The purpose of the convention was to answer problems of YWCA technique and to focus attention on the Geneva Conference to be held June 20 in Wisconsin, Miss Mains said.

In the individual meetings Saturday afternoon the question of leadership, either of the club or its committees, was presented.

Treasure Hunt Held

A treasure hunt in which four groups headed by Mary W. Forman, Ed-3, followed clues laid on the campus found as the prize a bunch of lollipops. The Geneva dinner in Pomerene Refectory that evening featured recollections of last year's Geneva convention by members who had attended it. Frances Mains spoke on "Religion and Democracy," asserting that most of the world's problems are really religious and that democracy, like religion, must be lived to be preserved.

Sunday morning sessions outlined methods of dealing with minority groups, economics, international affairs and community service through YWCA action. Each student spoke on activities at her own college on the various subjects.

Peace Demonstration
Costs Committee $27

Peace Mobilization Committee's demonstration Thursday cost approximately $27, George Armour, A-4, treasurer of the organization, reported today. Contributions of individuals and organizations were sufficient to cover expenses.

The funds were spent on posters and signs, including the large "Mobilize for Peace" banner which hung in front of the Library during the demonstration, a sound truck and float used for advertising purposes. The three speakers donated their services.

Bucks Snap Wolve Jinx; Then Lose to Finish Series Even

By RAY RICKLES

Although neither team had much time for much more than shortened workouts sandwiched in between intermittent showers last week both Ohio State and Michigan showed some real baseball Friday and Saturday in the home opener for the Bucks, both in Big Ten circles and for the season.

The opener brought an end to the Wolverine diamond jinx brought on by crafty Herm Fishman (graduated—thanks be) who helped mow the Bucks down three straight times in the last three years. The score was 3 to 1 with Johnny Dagenhard's brilliant mound performance taking the day's best nod.

Saturday afternoon it was Danny Smick, erstwhile footballer, who put on the pitching pressure and the Wolves went to a 4 to 2 victory and an even split in the series.

OHIO STATE, 3; MICHIGAN, 1 (FRIDAY)

By HERB LEV

Michigan Daily Sports Writer

The Wolverines were held to four hits by big John Dagenhard, the Buckeyes' right-handed ace, who had met defeat in each of his last three starts against Michigan. But Dagenhard tired in the eighth and his wildness put the Wolverines in scoring position in each of the last two innings.

The big Ohio right-hander opened the eighth by walking pinch hitter Steppon and Charley Pink, and then Mike Sofak beat out an infield single to fill the bases with none out. But Captain Walt Peckinpaugh then ended the rally by hitting into a double play Steppon scoring, but Fred Trasko then popped up to take Dagenhard out of his hole.

In the ninth Danny Smick reached first on a wild throw by third sacker Lynch of the Buckeyes and took second on a wild pitch. Pete Lisagor then sent a sharp single to right, Michigan's only clean blow of the game, but Smick was held at third. After Leo Beebe sacrificed Lisagor to second, Dagenhard braced up to fan pinch hitter Forest Evashevski and Charley Pink and it was all over.

Jack Barry, who worked the first seven innings for Michigan pitched good ball except for two fatal lapses in the third and fifth innings, which accounted for the first two Buckeye markers. The third Ohio tally was a gift of Umpire Bailey who failed to call Ralph Waldo out after he had run out of baseline in the seventh to avoid being tagged by Mike Sofak.

MICHIGAN, 4; OHIO STATE, 2 (SATURDAY)

Five hits in the first three innings off of big right-handed Smick gave the Buckeyes no better than one run when with a little more of the breaks it might have meant a lot more.

After two were down in the first Jesko got a bingle and then Billy Laybourne slammed one to center pushing Tony over the plate. Francis Smith got a life on Walt Peckinpaugh's error but Paul Washburn hit into a force play to end the inning.

In the third canto Coach Fritz Mackey's boys started off with one out, then Captain Geney Myers singled. Jesko went out and then once again with two down the slugging came. Laybourne punched out a single to right and then Smitty dropped a double to left getting Myers in but leaving Laybourne on third to perish when Washburn went out.

On the mound for the Bucks, Jimmy Sexton seemed not himself and never did really settle down. He let the Wolves get to him time and time again and only such catches as Smith made (twice in deep left) and Washburn's magnificent heave home to catch Leo Beebe at the plate in the second, kept the score down.

Michigan, a free swinging unit, seemed to be hitting the ball solidly and they couldn't be denied as they swept two runs across in the first inning and then with the score tie put on the pressure in the seventh to go ahead and win.

Another factor which brought victory to the Ann Arbor representatives was Bill Steppon's hitting. After not getting into the Friday encounter Steppon made up for it by wafting a long homer to left in the seventh inning uprising and also helping in the run in the second frame with a single.

Scarlet Tennis Team Romps to Easy Victory

Ohio State's tennis team got its belated season under way with a surprisingly easy 8-1 win over Ohio University. The Bucks swept all its matches except the doubles combination, where a substitute team of Harbrecht-Lewis dropped a 3-6, 3-6 battle.

Jerry Rosenthal, Buckeye sophomore star, was the only member of the squad who was forced to an extra set as he came from behind with a 1-6, 6-3, 6-4 decision over Bill Rose.

Captain George Mechir of the Ohio State aggregation started the fireworks with a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Tracy Hartman. The first set found George's game a trifle off as he occasionally missed his down the line drives. He soon recovered his erratic tendencies and, playing in mid-season form, polished off his opponent without losing a game.

Pinky Steinman, playing in the number two slot, had an easy time knocking off Lee Steinhauer. Pinky was never behind as he opened the first set by taking three consecutive games. Steinhauer took the next two games and then Pinky, coming to net behind his forehand drives, ran off the last three games with little difficulty. Continuing these winning tactics, Pinky took the last set at love.

Playing number three for the Bucks was Irv Drooyan. Irv seemed to be toying with his opponent, Bill Laskin, as he dropped a total of five games in the two sets to cop a 6-3, 6-2 decision.

Steady and heady play did the trick for Johnny Lewis playing in the number five slot. Johnny's repeated drop shots and lobs earned him a 6-2, 6-1 win over Glen Engelke, who found himself unable to return Lewis' lobs when he was at the net, and unable to keep from going to the net in the face of Lewis' drop shots.

Pounding out a 6-4, 6-1 victory over Jerry Belden, Phil Harbrecht rounded out Ohio's six consecutive singles wins. Phil hit his shots from the baseline most of the time, only charging the net when he needed to kill to gain a point.

Buck Coach Herman Wirthwein

took advantage of the lop-sided score to insert most of his substitutes into the doubles matches.

Harbrecht and Lewis teamed up to form the first doubles combination, but found the going a bit too difficult as they dropped a 6-3, 6-3 decision to Steinhauer and Rose for Ohio State's only loss. Despite the fact that the boys regularly play in the third doubles position, they put up a game fight before finally succumbing.

Johnny James and Vic Filimon had a troublesome time eking out a 6-4, 6-4 victory over Tracy Hartman and Bill Laskin. Their net games stood them in good stead, however, as they came through in the pinches.

Coming from behind a 5-3 count in the first set, the third doubles combination of Bill Chaikin and Howard Dredge were never headed as they rode to a 7-5, 6-3 win over Jerry Belden and Glen Engelke to score Ohio's eighth win.

Tracksters Upset By Hoosier Team At Bloomington

Coach Larry Snyder's tracksters received their first setback of the current cinder campaign when Indiana's Hoosiers monopolized first place honors to score a 76 to 55 win over the Bucks at Bloomington Saturday.

Although Coach Billy Hayes' boys walked off with eight first places and a tie for another, the outstanding performance of the meet was turned in by the Bucks' Co-Captain Bob Lewis who breezed the 100 in 9.6 seconds and came back later to take the 220 in 21.3 seconds. Lewis' mark in the century ties the Stadium record set in 1931 by Clave of Indiana.

It was on this same track that Lewis was clocked in 9.5 last year. However, he was aided by a brisk wind. Saturday also, he received the benefit of a slight wind but not enough to disallow his claim for the Stadium record.

The other half of the captaincy, Harley Howells, was upset by the Hoosiers' sophomore star, Roy Cochran who ran a beautiful race in the time of 48.7. Howell's defeat was somewhat expected for he is still recuperating from a recent operation and has not yet regained his former strength. Jack Sulzman was challenging Cochran as the runners hit the last curve but his stride was broken by Howells as Howells' spikes caught Sulzman's heel when the Big Ten champion attempted to pass Sulzman. The accident cost Sulzman five yards and possibly the race as he finished only a stride behind Cochran.

Jim Whittaker led the two-milers all the way as he won his race in 9 minutes 38 seconds. Les Eisenhart lost to the Hoosiers' great distance star, Mel Trutt, in a thrilling home stretch sprint in the mile run.

Ohio's weakness in the hurdles and broad jump proved costly as Indiana swept the broad jump and snared the first two places in both hurdle events.

Footballer John Rabb, performing in his first meet, looked good as he took second place behind the Negro star, Archie Williams.

The tracksters will leave for Des Moines, Iowa, Wednesday evening where they will compete in the Drake Relays Friday and Saturday.

LINKSMEN COP INITIAL WIN OF SEASON

Ohio State's linksmen copped their initial golf victory of the season Saturday, when they defeated an Alumni team, 22 1/2 to 13 1/2. The Scarlet now possesses a .500 per cent won and lost average, having previously dropped the season's opening match to Michigan.

There were eight single and four doubles matches played Saturday afternoon at the University course. The results were:

After the match, Coach Bob Kepler commented, "The team looked better than ever and will continue to look better as the weather gets nicer."

With the Alumni match out of the way, the Bucks will now prepare for next Saturday's match against Carnegie Tech, to be played on the University course.

Cage Team To Play in New Orleans

Ohio State's Big Ten basketball champions will journey to New Orleans next December 27, where they will meet the University of Kentucky, one of the Southeastern Conference top teams, in the annual Mid-Winter Sports Carnival.

This was announced Saturday, after Coach Harold G. Olsen had conferred with Athletic Director L. W. St. John and several members of the board of athletic control.

The Mid-Winter Sports Carnival which reaches its climax with the Sugar Bowl football game, is one of the largest sports events in the country. Many sports go to make up a full week of activity, which is held annually between Christmas and New Year's Day.

This will be the first time an Ohio basketball team will be sent to the Carnival and also the first southern trip taken. Last Christmas the Buckeyes traveled to the Pacific Coast where they played some of the leading teams.

Appearance of Ohio will mark the second consecutive year that a Big Ten champion has been selected. Purdue, the 1938 champion, defeated Arkansas, the Southwestern Conference champion, last December.

The Bucks will have three members of this year's championship squad back and available for duty at the Carnival. A promising batch of freshmen plus the three returning veterans should help to give Coach Olsen another imposing squad with which to work.

Mile relay—Won by Ohio State (Cooper, rider, Howells, Sulzman and Lewis.) Time—3:23.7.

White Team Edges Red Squad, 7-6, As Maag, Scott Stand Out

By DON SMITH

The Buck gridders terminated their fourth week of spring practice in a scrimmage game Friday that saw a White team edge the Red squad 7-6 but of more significance proved that Charley Maag is a tackle.

Playing a fierce smashing game, Big Charley turned out to be the proverbial fifth man in the backfield of the Red team. Accompanying his hard efficient play was an apparent joyfulness in his new task. It seems that Maag has found his right position.

Neither team could be termed the "Varsity" nor the "Reserves" for Head Coach Francis A. Schmidt had the talent divided somewhat evenly over the two squads.

The Red team was made up of: Esco Sarkkinen and Anderson, ends; Dixon and Piccinini, tackles; Madro and Nosker, guards; Captain Steve Andracko, center; Zadworney and Eino Sarkkinen, halfbacks; Fisher, quarterback, and Langhurst, fullback.

Starting for the White team were: Clare and Fox, ends; Maag and Bennet, tackles; Howard and Bruchner, guards; Bell, center; Kincaid and Terry, halfbacks; and Wellbaum, fullback.

Reds Stopped . . .

Meeting stubborn resistance from the White's line, the Red team was unable to make any progress until Dick Fisher tossed a wobbly pass that was snared on a spectacular catch by Esco Sarkkinen midst a flock of the White defensive men. This put the ball on the eight-yard line but three thrusts of the line and a sweep failed to score by one yard.

With Don Scott at the helm, the Whites broke the deadlock just before the half. Scott rifled a 30-yard pass to Tom Kincaid who eluded the Red safety man and went 40 yards for a touchdown. It was a beautifully executed play. What proved to be the winning point was added when Scott made good the extra point.

Retaliating after the intermission, the Reds employed a consistent line-smashing attack that finally paid dividends when Fisher skipped over for the six points. Fisher failed to make the extra point.

In addition to the pleasing play of Maag, the quarterbacking of Don Scott was a standout. Not only did Scott prove to be a crafty general but displayed an ability to get off high booming punts that allowed his ends to get down and introduce themselves before nailing the catcher. He resembled the Rock of Gibraltar on defense and his passing was above par.

2 Weeks Left For Ping-Pong Tourney Play

Only two weeks remain in which to play off the Interfraternity Pledge Ping-Pong Tournament declared Philip G. Patch, Engr-1, chairman of Interfraternity Pledge Council's ping-pong committee, Saturday.

Patch urged fraternity presidents to choose representatives and send their names, with the 25-cent entrance fee, to Fraternity Affairs Office by Tuesday, April 25.

Names will then be bracketed and semifinals played off during the next week and a half. This will eliminate all but the final two who will play their match by Saturday, May 6.

Entrance fees collected will be used to provide for a trophy, to be awarded the winner on May 8.

All students will report to room 220, Campbell Hall. This includes transfer students who are in their junior year and who have 24 hours or more credit in home economics.

These students, however, must secure permission from the Guidance Office, room 106, Campbell Hall, and register with that office at least one week before the scheduled time for the examination.
