McCain gives OSU a taste of his politics

By Kristen Kapustar Lantern staff writer

About 2,000 people attended a town meeting Saturday afternoon featuring presidential candidate Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., in St. John Arena.

The crowd, representing a wide variety of interests including students, veterans, human rights advocates and union representatives, showed mostly enthusiastic support for McCain, whom Ohio voters will see on the March 7 primary ballot.

McCain was greeted by overwhelming applause as Sen. Mike DeWine, R-Ohio, introduced his friend and fellow senator as the candidate who will "give (the people) back the presidency by taking the power out of the hands of special interest groups and big business.

McCain took the first half hour of the meeting to discuss his platform on issues, such as increasing health care benefits for veterans and reevaluating foreign policy. McCain criticized President Bill Clinton, calling his idea of foreign policy "social work."

The budget surplus also was an issue on which McCain elaborated, calling himself a "fiscal conservative" who favors a middle-class tax cut, eliminating the marriage tax penalty, cutting corporate tax loopholes and estab-lishing a Social Security trust fund in which young people can choose where to invest their Social Security money. All of these would help pay down the national debt, he said. The floor was then opened up to audience questions for the remainder of the meeting.

While there was a noticeable lack of questions from students about higher education, McCain did respond to a wide variety of questions ranging from veterans' affairs to foreign policy to human rights from about 15 audience members.

McCain discussed potential Chinese military aggression toward Taiwan if the island does not elect a president willing to consider negotiating a reunifica-tion. It is a complex issue in which Clinton has "mishandled relations with China," he said. McCain said he would consider moving into international waters should China violate the one-China policy that calls for the peaceful reunification of China and Taiwan.

Youth cynicism about government and how to get young people to regain interest in public service also was a point of discussion.

"Young Americans need a president they can respect and look up to. They are not being represented which is why we need to

"You might be more convincing if you brought a Native American with you," he added, prompting the audience to break into cheers.

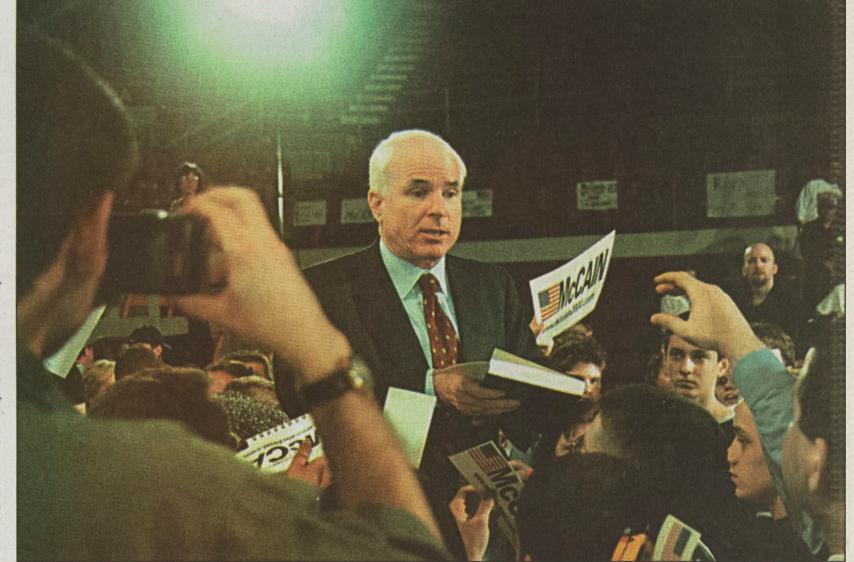

Arizona Sen. John McCain greets the crowd after his presidential campaign visit to Ohio State in St. John Arena on Saturday.

McCain also discussed gun control, saying he wants to hold fast to the Second Amendment. McCain promptly rebutted by Safety can be enforced through existing law, implementing instant background checks on gun purchasers, promoting safety locks and investing in fingerprint technology that would allow only the owner to fire the weapon, he said.

"Getting rid of guns doesn't solve the problem. The solution starts with the family," McCain said.

In reference to a question on marijuana legislation, McCain said he didn't plan on surrendering in the war on drugs, but it needs to be reevaluated. One initiative he proposed was to allow first-time drug offenders to complete an education and rehabilitation program instead of automatically going to prison.

Staunch John McCain supporters and protesters alike turned out to see the Republican presidential candidate address the Ohio State community on Saturday. Those as-yet undecided of their choice for Ohio's March 7 Republican primary came hoping the senator would clarify his stands on issues

McCain's straightforward, no-nonsense persona struck many in the audience favorably.

"I believe he's a man of character and can bring respect back to the office," said Jim Westlake, a senior mechanical engineering major and event volunteer. McCain seems like less of a politician than his opponent, said Mike Hanks, a junior history major.

"I just think (McCain) speaks what's on his mind," he said. "I don't think Bush is a genuine person.

Dave Keller, a senior music and psychology major, said he wanted to see what McCain thought on issues such as education and abortion

The meeting was briefly interrupted when several protesters called for the retention of Navajo

American Indian land. They displayed a banner and chanted,

"Let the Navajos keep their nation.

"I think it'll help me make a decision when the primaries come," he said.

McCain's straight talk appeals to OSU students

Holly Anderson, a senior business administration major, said she was impressed by McCain's victory in last week's Michigan GOP primary. Record numbers of voters turned out to cast their ballots, prompting many to call McCain's campaign run a "phenomenon."

'Our generation's candidate is John McCain, because he's the only one talking about the national debt. Our generation has not had any inspirational leadership in the White House for a long time. John McCain embodies the spirit of what we're looking for," said Pete Lupiba, chairman of the College Republicans and a senior communication major.

Ryan Holdren, president of Students for McCain, agreed.

"He really inspires the younger generation," he said. Holdren was in the U.S. Marine Corps for four years and said he was won over by McCain's bravery and sacrifices as a Vietnam war hero.

"I can't think of a politician better to represent the military," said Holdren, a junior communication and public relations major.

But Republicans were not the only ones who attended.

The senator has such mass appeal that it doesn't matter that he's a Republican, said Aly Ryan, a senior geography major and member of Students for McCain. Ryan is a registered Democrat, but said she thinks McCain's ideas are not too conservative for her.

"I believe he has more honesty and integrity than any person running in this presidential election," she said. "It's about time."

DIALLO TRIAL Verdict was clear, juror says

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A member of the jury that acquitted four white police officers in the killing of Amadou Diallo said Sunday that the outcome was "not happy, but clear.

Diplomacy focus of China visit

BEIJING (AP) — The commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific will discuss the sensitive issue of Taiwan and work on repairing ties with the Chinese military during a visit to China that began Sunday.

Adm. Dennis Blair's five-day visit comes amid rising tensions over Taiwan following Beijing's threat to use force against the island if it continues to put off negotiations about reunification.

China issued the threat in a government policy paper on Feb: 21 and created a stir in Taiwan, which has resisted communist rule since the two sides split amid civil war 51 years ago.

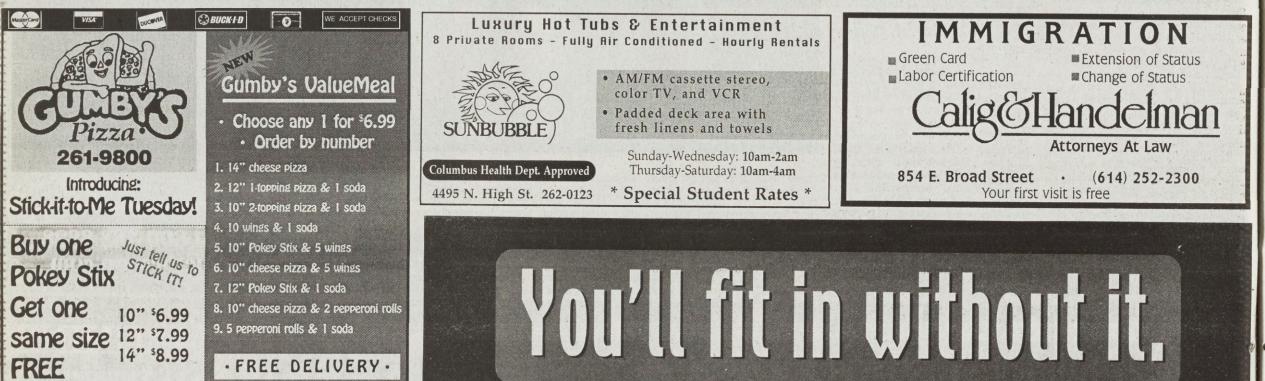

Blair's trip, which includes three days of meetings with Chinese officials, also is part of efforts to restore military ties that China severed in May, after U.S. warplanes hit the Chinese Embassy in Yugoslavia during the war over Kosovo.

Lt. Gen. Xiong Guangkai, a deputy chief of the general staff of the People's Liberation Army, will be among the Chinese officials that Blair will meet in Beijing on Monday and Tuesday. He then travels south to meet Wednesday with Chinese military officials in the central city of Nanjing and visit a military facility.

A spokesman for Blair, Navy Capt. T. McCreary of the Pacific Command, said Taiwan would come up during the visit, but that it was only one issue of several to be discussed.

"The ability to engage China's military and to have an opportunity to interact with them is important on several fronts," McCreary said.

Bush apologizes for visit to university

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) - In a letter to the leader of New York's Catholics, Gov. George W. Bush says his campaign appearance at a South Carolina school with anti-Catholic views was a "missed opportunity causing needless offense, which I deeply regret."

Bush has come under steady criticism for his Feb. 2 visit to Bob Jones University, a Christian school whose leaders have criticized the Pope and labeled the Catholic church a "Satanic cult."

Opponents have assailed Bush for not using the appearance to denounce those views and the school's ban on interracial dating. Bush spoke about his conservatism.

In a letter to Cardinal John O'Connor of New York on Friday, leader of the archdiocese's 2.4 million Roman Catholics, Bush stated his "profound respect" for. the Catholic Church and said the criticism of him is unfair and unfounded.

"On reflection, I should have been more clear in disassociating myself from anti-Catholic sentiments and racial prejudice," Bush said in the letter, which his campaign released Sunday. "It was a missed opportunity causing needless offense, which I deeply regret." The letter marked an abrunt reversal for Bush, who only last week said: "I don't make any apologies for what I do in the campaign.'

At a news conference before departing for Seattle, Bush said he had a change of heart after thinking about impressions of himself as an anti-Catholic "that just are not true."

"I regret not using the opportunity to speak out against the policies," he said. "My job is to lead the nation. My job is to convince people to follow me. This was a missed opportunity and I regret it."

Bush faced questions about the speech almost as soon as he finished it. In response, he has repeatedly stated his opposition to the ban on interracial dating and the comments of the school's leaders. Bush also has noted that a brother and sister-in-law are Catholic.

Bush's appearance also was the subject of telephone calls that GOP presidential rival Sen. John McCain now acknowledges his campaign placed to Michigan voters before the primary there last Tuesday. But McCain stood by past assertions that the calls did not say Bush was a bigot.

By Karen Senecal Lantern staff writer

While many students were out enjoying last Friday's warm afternoon; a group of about 50 students from all academic backgrounds gathered in Schoenbaum Hall for an informational meeting on a new student organization, the Red Khakis, Inc.

This is no ordinary student organization, it is more like a company, said Christopher Pan, founder and CEO, and also a 1999 graduate of OSU. It is a consulting business made up of students with faculty and professionals serving as advisers

"Red Khakis' mission is to be a not for profit company, which will provide an opportunity for students to develop real hands-on leadership experience, experiment with advanced business models and obtain cutting-edge technical expertise," Pan said.

One of its first projects is an interactive portal for the OSU community providing services and products to serve its needs and desires, Pan said

"It will have everything under the sun that students will need and want to help them make the most of their college experience," he said. "Our success will be determined by if we actually help a student get involved, thus making OSU feel more like a home."

"Our goal here is to make information easily accessible to students who want to get involved, and answer any and all question's they may have," said Edward Feldkamp, a senior business finance and accounting major, and also a leader in Red Khakis.

The entrepreneurial spirit behind Red Khakis, Inc. is driven by students such as sophomore Matt Provenzano who started his own business last year in his free time, and in nine months has made more than $25,000. He is shutting down his business to join Red Khakis.

"Whatever profits I was making with my company will be outweighed by the experience I will gain from Red Khakis," Provenzano said. Red Khakis is a good representation of what OSU students are capable of, he said.

Kevin Burke, a brand manager for Procter & Gamble and also one of Red Khakis' advisers, got involved because the people that participate are going to learn something and achieve something, he said.

BETH DAVIDZ/THE LANTERN

Also, the concept of Red Khakis is full of potential, Burke said. It should be a magnet for OSU's best and brightest leaders.

"Procter & Gamble has deep ties to OSU, and we are always interested in ways to partner with top tier student leaders," he said.

There may be some opportunities to work with Red Khakis on some marketing or research projects, he said. This is a smart, capable, high energy group of students.

Students from all grade levels and academic backgrounds can be a part of Red Khakis.

We do not care if you are a freshman and have no background," Pan said. "We can teach you whatever you need to know."

Kalyani Rammohan, a senior marketing and international business major said, she looks at this organization as part of her education.

Red Khakis, Inc. is going to be a launch pad for highly successful careers, and will provide the ideal college experience, Pan said. The portal will be open by Fall Quarter, he mentioned. For more information e-mail them at redkhakis@yahoo.com.

U.S. may still need affirmative action

OUR VIEW

The practice of affirmative action has once again come under attack, and its future in this country is again uncertain. It is close to being repealed in Michigan, and many believe the case will be heard by the U.S. Supreme Court, possibly leading to nationwide cuts in affirmative action programs.

However, not everyone agrees that race specific programming should be ended in the United States. In response to the events in Michigan, a group of OSU students and faculty organized a meeting last week to protect and improve affirmative action.

The debate over affirmative action is indeed a difficult issue. Affirmative action began back in the 1960s in order to give minorities better chances of finding jobs in a society that viewed them as unqualified. Now, however, almost 40 years later, many Americans have begun to question whether or not affirmative action is fair or needed In this country.

Opponents of affirmative action believe it is an unfair, discriminatory practice. They say it allows minorities to get special treatment. In addition, it often eliminates people from job consideration because they lack a certain minority status. Some even believe that affirmative action further restricts minorities, taking away their opportunity to be free and independent.

However, proponents of affirmative action feel it is fair and necessary to close the gap between minority groups in this country. It is a fact that several groups in this country have been discriminated against for a very long time. They say America owes it to these oppressed groups to assist them in receiving unbiased consideration and opportunity.

Regardless of which position you take, it is sad that affirmative action even exists in this country. We have discriminated against our fellow Americans for so long and with such terrible consistency that we must now help them recover.

Is affirmative action still needed? Affirmative action was created in the 1960s because it was needed. Due to the state of the country at that time, minorities needed a way to receive equal treatment. Pehaps we should be happy that we have reached the point where the question of whether or not affirmative action is needed in this country is being considered.

Yet has this country come so far since then? Is America free of racism, sexism and classism? Do we live in a society in which a persons can be given equal consideration for a job despite their race, sex or ethnicity? Most people don't think so.

While affirmative action might be unfair, it might be needed to ensure equal opportunity as long as discrimination is prevalent in our society.

N.Y. police officers receive unfair ruling

Murder is a serious crime in this country. But is it less of a crime if the accused are wearing a badge? Many people think that the answer is "yes," especially after a verdict in a recent New York murder trial.

Four New York police officers were acquitted Friday in the killing of West African immigrant Amandou Diallo on Feb. 4. The case gained national recognition as being racially charged, as the four officers who shot Diallo were white. The jury ruled that the officers acted in self-ear Amartano,

We are very disappointed in you. Yes, we know you were drunk, but we are still very disappointed in you. Thank goodness we found you. Who knows what suicidal, sexual predator might have violated you in that alley? You must recognize that John Roszkowski and Leo Festag are not good role models. They have begun to lead you down that broad and easy way that leads to destruction

It was a bad idea for you to hang out with those communists at Woody's Place on Friday. It was an even worse idea to drink from the same pitcher of Old Milwaukee. You realize you drank from the same pitcher as OTHER MEN? Amartano, there was a communicable disease in that pitcher. Ah, a horrible disease. The disease of LIBERALISM.

Amartano, we thought you were a good kid, but we must now disown you. We must banish all record of you from the world, though we shall weep for you on long winter nights. We believed in you, and you let us down. Can you not remember those happy days reading the Observer and musing over the wisdom of David Overeem? Do not the spring afternoons when we cheered Brother Jed and beat up some atheists mean anything anymore? Surely, you must remember our recruitment campaign for the John Birch Society as fondly as Big Al and Harmon K. do. And the nightly vigils where we prayed for the ghost of Barry Goldwater? You were beautiful then, Amartano. So patriotic you said the pledge of allegiance at the drop of a hat. So religious you tacked up the 10 commandments in every classroom in Dreese Labs. You cut a noble figure driving your SUV: The white hat with the perfectly curved brim, the sweater with that horizontal stripe. You were a fool to leave that life, Amartano: But it is not too late to repent.

Where did the slippery slope to liberalism begin? Perhaps it was that time when you took the wrong off-ramp and wound up in Weinland Park. You should have rolled up the windows and locked the doors, but instead you began to notice the poverty around you, the homeless men and schoolyard littered with trash and needles. Even worse, you began to wish that something could be done to improve the school and the neighborhood — blatantly ignoring our mantra of using tax money to fund "vouchers" and strip the worthless school bare. That was the beginning. You were at the hospital, and you saw a woman and child turned away for not having insurance. Why did you not mock Hillary Clinton's scheme and celebrate this as capitalism in action, like we used to? Then you went skiing in Colorado, but, on the way, you couldn't help but notice that you couldn't see the mountains through the Denver smog, and couldn't reach the mountains because of the traffic-jam through Denver suburban sprawl. You should have celebrated the Reagan dream of "jobs" and "growth" instead of becoming aware of the threat sprawl, pollution and global warming poses to our world. Get your head back in the sand. You gave in to temptation, Amartano. You have also become a Commie-pinko hippie. "Peace and Love"? That's nothing more than Soviet-era propaganda, totally irrelevant to our booming economy, soaring stock market and enrichment of the top 10 percent of society. John Roszkowski has not only corrupted your politics, but also your morality. Once, you would have threatened girls who wore skirts above their ankles with damnation; now you enjoy their voluptuous figures. Maybe women have even made you feel good. Once, you would have tried to convert gay men away from the "dark side" of homosexuality.

Once, you would have quoted some obscure Leviticus text out of context to them. Now you feel presumptuous enough to allow people # to make their own choices about how they want to live and what kind of people they are. Once, you knew what was good for people better than they did.

This is your last warning, Amartano. You must repent of your liberalism and renounce your false gods of liberty and choice. You must reject those false gurus Bill Clinton and Al Gore. You must turn back to the good side. It is possible to turn free-thinking, rational people back into fold of the Republican Party, where they never need to care about their fellow human beings again. John McCain is doing that right now. The Brothers Vred care about you and your soul, Amartano. And we have some medicine to cure you of your liberalism. Take a spoonful of intolerance and a dollop of stupidity, and call us in the morning.

Your friends, The Brothers Vred.

Diallo was approached on the street outside his home because it was said that he looked suspicious. When he went to pull out his wallet, the officers thought it was a gun and unloaded 41 shots in his direction. Diallo was hit by 19 bullets.

Whether or not the officers felt threatened by Diallo, their action of shooting him was obviously unwarranted. Diallo was stopped because he looked suspicious. However, he was not apprehended like a normal pedestrian. The officers came at him shouting with their guns drawn.

While Diallo obviously shouldn't have reached in his pocket, who can blame him? The man was an immigrant, which leaves to question his English comprehension skills. He probably couldn't understand four men yelling at him for no reason with their guns drawn. In a state of panic, even an English professor might not have made out everything that was being said.

And then there are the 19 shots. Couldn't the officers have shot him in the leg or something? Just to stop him, to make sure that he might not be pulling out a gun? But no, they shot at Diallo 41 times because he pulled out his wallet. Forty-one bullets sounds an awful lot like intent, doesn't Possibly more alarming, though, is the belief that Diallo's murder was motivated by racism. According to the trial's jurors, there was no evidence to show that Diallo's killing was racially charged. However, his encounter with the officers appears to be the consequence of racial profiling. Had the officers seen, say, a white woman walking suspiciously on the street, would they have apprehended her using the same methods and force?

Now we realize that we don't know everything, and something probably happened in the courtroom that influenced the jurors to acquit the four officers. However, what unknown circumstances could lead to an unarmed man being shot 19 times?

The death of Amandou Diallo might have been an accident, but someone has to take the blame. The officers who killed him had no good reason to apprehend or shoot him. Even if they are not punished, the men should not retain their jobs as police officers. Their actions were criminal, whether within the scope of their jobs or not, and it would be dangerous to keep these officers on the streets.

I have a proposal for you: two COLUMNIST columns each to see if we can reach an agreement on something. Here we go. My guess, and it is only a guess, but I think you to grow corn, okra or whatever other crops they choose in their will quickly confirm it, is that gardens — enough to feed them-you and I come from quite divergent viewpoints. My wife is an artist and art teacher, a member of the National Education Association and a two-time Clinton voter. My father-in-law, also an artist, is a professor living in southern Illinois with a beautifully-modified campaign poster on his wall, "Southern Illinois for McGovern." My wife has forbidden he and I to talk about politics. Myself, my heroes are Clarence Thomas and Ronald Reagan, whose faces I would carve on Mt. Rushmore tomorrow. While I suspect you and I agree that Newt Gingrich is intolerable, my reason is that he was too accommodating and timid.

Here is my proposal, our challenge to each other, if you care to accept. Resolved: Martha Knox and Mike Maurer have the right at least have the choice of growing our own beans, corn, flowers and trees. It's an idyllic image that everyone shares, from Reagan at Rancho del Cielo to the Clintons at Whitewater (a little cheap-shot but true nonetheless).

But here's the problem: We don't have that right. In Wickard vs. Filburn, the U.S. Supreme Court upheld Congress' power to prohibit the growing of crops for personal use. The decision itself had to do with farm policy, which most of us don't really care about, but what the Court did was allow Congress to prohibit a man from growing a crop to feed his own animals. The basis of the decision was the "commerce clause" of the U.S. Constitution. Now, as far as I know, Congress has no plans to prevent me from growing my petunias (though I'd be less confident if I were interested in growing tobacco). But that's not the point. Assuming Congress was filled with 535 Newt Gingrich clones or 535 Hillary Clinton clones, as you like, I say they shouldn't have Wickard says I'm wrong.

What do you say? Should Mike and Martha have the right to grow their okra, even if 535 Newt's and Hillary's and the Supreme Court say no?

(You might be tempted to argue that I'm wrong about Wickard, but before you do, know that, for 60 years, no judge ever argued successfully against its principle until — drum roll — Clarence Thomas in 1992. Even he didn't try to get the votes or even argue to overrule it. So, rather than put yourself in a position of agreeing with Clarence, I'd ask that you stick to the principle — should we be allowed to grow as much corn as we want? Heck, if you're feeling really brave, you could take me one further and say that we. should even be allowed to sell or barter the stuff.)

What do you say?

READERS' FORUM

OSU intersections require more safety

In Friday's issue of the Lantern, you ran a short story about a bicyclist that was hit on High Street. It was odd, no unusual details, no apparent resolution, no obvious relevance to Ohio State and no suggestion of any implications.

I want to take it as a prompt, however, to point out that drivers in Columbus and around the OSU campus seem completely oblivious to the possibility that there might be anyone on the street NOT in a motor vehicle. Furthermore, I suggest that OSU is not only failing to respond to this problem but, indeed, exacerbating or even creating it in certain areas. That we don't have many such stories is attributable to luck and not to virtue.

Like many in the OSU community, I walk or ride a bicycle to campus. I cannot count the number of times I have seen motorists nearly hit pedestrians and bicyclists on the corner of Woodruff Avenue and High Street. Drivers on Woodruff turning right to go south on High rarely, if ever, check for pedestrians. Standing on the corner I look at them, and they are looking the other way for oncoming south bound traffic. And when they see an opening, they accelerate into the intersection without ever turning their heads to see whether the crosswalks, the one directly in front of them and the one on High, are clear. They manage to avoid tragedy by stomping on the brakes and coming to a violent stop or, sometimes, by swerving wildly into the left hand lane while pedestrians jump out of the way (The same thing happens on Lane Avenue and High Street). Now, OSU cannot single-handedly educate Columbus drivers. But OSU can do certain things to help. Such as putting up signs to remind drivers that there are pedestrians on the street and that, when they have a "walk" signal, they have the right of way. Perhaps OSU should enforce the law common in the area prohibiting right turns at a red light, since most motorists seem incapable of doing this safely.

Furthermore, OSU can redesign some of its intersections to make them safer for pedestrians, bicyclists and motorists. Take, for example, the corner of John Herrick and Cannon drives. Many people walk or ride to the Lennox center by route of Cannon to John Herrick to Olentangy River Road. But as the intersection of Cannon and John Herrick is now, they certainly shouldn't (And I won't even discuss the problems at Olentangy and Kinnear).

I am advocating more than just the redesign of a couple of intersections. OSU needs to make a systematic effort to make the streets of campus safer for non-motorists. Columbus drivers (U.S. drivers as a whole) are not only untrained and uneducated, but also unaware of and unwilling to admit to their want of knowledge and skill behind the wheel means that OSU must take proactive steps to prevent accidents. You'd think that all motorists know that you shouldn't hit pedestrians who are in the crosswalk. But if you stand on a corner at OSU and watch the drivers, you wouldn't be so sure.

No one's time is so important that they cannot come to a full stop at every campus intersection. The foremost issue OSU should consider in the design of its roads should be safety. But just look at some of OSU's intersections and tell me if you think that anyone had safety

Many aspects of the USG election are bothersome, many of whi ch were eloquently highlighted by Troy Doucet on Friday. I wanted to highlight the blanketing of f liers and suggest a solution. Last spring, I participated in the AIDS walk, hosting the Sectional Ultimate Frisbee tournament, engineering week and more. The 100 percent coverage of fliers from on e of the teams was a great hindrance in promoting these events, since any fliers put up were just covered by fliers of the aforementioned campaign. My idea is to se t aside a few kiosks and bulletin boards, or maybe part of eve ry kiosk or bulletin board, to be s pared from the ravages of the US G campaign. Though the election is important, there are tons o f other events happening every sp ring that deserve a share of the p ublic posting area.

College honors 3 Huber Fellows

By Emmy Chang Lantern staff writer

Three professors have been named Huber Faculty Fellows at Ohio State for their outstanding scholarly achievements that continue the tradition of scholarship in the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences

The awarded professors are Mari Riess Jones, psychology; Ellen Mosley-Thompson, geography; and Catherine

E. Ross, sociology. "They are excellent teachers and serve the university and their discipline in multiple ways," said Randall B. Ripmultiple ways." ley, dean of the College of Social and Behavioral Sciences. "They are a vital part of what allows Ohio State to contribute so much to the people of Ohio, the nation and the world."

The Huber Faculty Fellow is named in honor of Joan N. Huber, a distinguished sociologist who served as the former dean of the college from 1984 to 1992 and the senior vice president for academic affairs and provost from 1992 until her retirement in 1993. The fellowship is set to recognize high quality research by professors in social sciences. "Huber Fellows have done terrific jobs in their own fields that meet the scholar spirit exemplified by Joan Huber," Ripley said.

After receiving her doctorate from University of Massachusetts, Jones joined OSU in 1968 and has been recognized for her contributions on the theory and research on auditory attentions, perception and memory.

uban diplomat deported to Canada

HAVANA (AP) - Shouting, "Down with the lie!" scores of teenagers held a pro-government rally Sunday outside the family home of a Cuban diplomat expelled from the United States after he ignored a State Department demand to leave the country.

Jose Imperatori, 46, was taken into custody by U.S. authorities ment plane to Montreal on Saturday night. He was expected to leave Canada for Havana on Sunday, but his plans were not clear. Even Imperatori's family said they weren't sure when he would arrive. Watching the small demonstra-and flown aboard a U.S. govern-tion of teen-agers waving Cuban flags outside her white, two-story home in Havana's Vedado neighborhood, Imperatori's mother, Matilde Garcia, said she looked forward to her son's arrival.

"We are absolutely fine and we are confident that everything will turn out well," she said.

A statement read on government television Sunday indicated Imperatori would be staying - at least for now - in Canada.

The Foreign Ministry late Saturday issued instructions to its diplomats in the Canadian capital of Ottawa to seek a visa for Imperatori "for the time needed to find an honorable solution to the problem that has been created," the statement said. In the meantime, Imperatori will continue a hunger strike in Ottawa, which he traveled to shortly after arriving in Montre-

Imperatori's wife, Raquel Fundora, and the couple's 3-year-old son had returned to Havana on Friday night before their diplomatic immunity expired.

"It is incredible that a person who wants to demonstrate (his innocence) ... is not allowed 'to,' Fundora said, referring to her husband's attempts to prove he had done nothing wrong.

Imperatori, accompanied by his lawyer, was escorted away from his suburban Maryland apartment by FBI officials who turned up shortly after 8:30 p.m. Saturday. The State Department said he was expelled for not voluntarily leaving by the appointed time.

Late Saturday morning, Imperatori announced his plan to defy the State Department expulsion order so he could contest allega-tions linking him with U.S. immigration official Mariano Faget, who has been charged with spying for Cuba.

Madonna remakes 'American Pie'

NEW YORK (AP) — Madonna wasn't sure if she could do justice to Don McLean's 1971 classic "American Pie."

She told the New York Daily News for Sunday's editions she recorded her own version of McLean's homage to Buddy Holly, Ritchie Valens and the Big Bopper for her new movie "The Next Best Thing" at the urging of co-star Rupert Everett.

"I thought, 'Who am I to do a cover of a pop classic?" But I was working in the studio on other music, and it was like, 'OK, let's just try it.' And it kind of worked, to my surprise."

Everett also lends his voice to the song in distant background vocals.

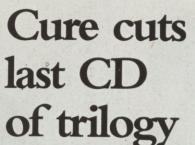

"To me, it's a real millennium song," Madonna said. "We're going through a big change in terms of the way we view pop culture, because of the Internet. In a way, it's like saying goodbye to music as we know it and to pop culture as we know it."

Oasis loses bad boy image with album

NEW YORK (AP) — Members of Oasis say they've abandoned their bad behavion to concentrate on making music.

The group's fourth album "Standing on the Shoulder of Giants" is scheduled to hit record stores Tuesday, and its world tour kicks off this week in Japan.

Singer-songwriter Noel Gallagher says the band has outgrown the excesses that fueled its wild ways in recent years. The group was banned from Cathay Pacific Airways in 1998 after getting rowdy on a flight from

By Joshua King Lantern arts writer

After saving the world from a Barbara Streisand monster on "South Park," Robert Smith, the lead singer of The Cure returned to the band to release their 13th studio album and 20th album overall.

The Cure's latest album, "Bloodflowers," is the final part of a trilogy of albums released by The Cure beginning with "Pornography" in 1982 and "Disintegration" in 1989. The album, released on February 15 in the United States is rumored to be the final album for The Cure.

The Cure's first attempt at a band began in 1976 with a slightly different name The Easy Cure. After little success with this band, the name was shortened by dropping "Easy" and The Cure began their roller coaster ride of change.

Band members were constantly leaving and returning, forced out by the rigorous touring schedule or conflicts within the band. The only aspect to remain constant with The Cure is the presence of Robert Smith and the band's association with the record label Fiction.

Usually dark and brooding, The Cure's music creates distressing and even frightening imagery at times. Although taking occasional walks through pop and light alternative music, the band remains very constant with their rather bleak and distinctive sound.

Robert Smith's haunting, almost floating vocals are the same as ever. One of the songs featured on the album, "Out of This World," seems more reflective and not as abrasive as some of The Cure's more recognized music. Interesting piano accompaniment and a light acoustic guitar alleviate some of the darkness of the other tracks on the CD.

The second track on the CD, "Watching Me Fall" has a sound very similar to The Cure's contribution to the soundtrack of "The Crow." The song from "The Crow" is "Burn." The track "Watching Me Fall" is interesting but gets a little monotonous, lasting more than 11 minutes. Again, The Cure returns to slightly disturbing imagery with this song.

Like any other of The Cure's music this album is a strange sound. The sound of Smith's voice changes the way the lyrics and instruments would sound with the usual pop/alternative singer. Smith's voice is completely unique and lends that same quality to all of his music.

"Bloodflowers" is not necessarily the kind of music people would want to listen to at a party or a bar. It is more of a relaxing and contemplative type of album. It's worth buying, but isn't the sort of CD that everyone wants to listen to. Sooner or later it's going to be at the back of the CD sleeve.

Singer chastises fans during Primus show By Eric Harrelson Lantern arts writer Such as Black Sabbath and Pin Floyd, giving their songs a fe Primus played up to par Thursday at the Newport, but it was the crowd that ruined the show.

Bassist and lead singer Les Claypool put on a great show, despite an unruly and violent crowd. Midway through the show, he actually had to stop and ask the audience to refrain from throwing objects on stage. When they persisted, he had to threaten to end the performance to get them to behave.

The mosh pit is not a gang land rumble out of S.E. Hinton's "The Outsiders." There are unwritten rules of etiquette that are integral to everyones enjoyment of the show. Basically, don't do anything to someone you wouldn't want done to yourself. Small courtesies can make the show better for everyone, including the band.

For those concert goers that remained off the floor and out of the pit, however, the show was impressive.

During the bridge of nearly every song, the band went totally off base, playing riffs from groups such as Black Sabbath and Pine Floyd, giving their songs a fee that can only be experienced live Drummer Brian "Brain" Manta and guitarist Larry LaLonde had their work cut out for them, trying to keep up with Claypool.

Seeing Primus live is the best way to experience the band, as they change and improvise every song. Although this show was short, musically it was tremendous. It was most likely the fault of the crowd, with their lack of respect for Primus and other members of the audience, that caused the band to play for barely an hour.

Highlights include "Sg Baker," "Jerry was a Race Can Driver," and "Tommy the Cat," all three off their 1991 release "Sailing the Seas of Cheese." "My Name is Mud," another crowd favorite, comes off their 1993 release "Pork Soda."

With the Newport charging stadium size prices for club size shows, the increasingly violent and disrespectful crowds, and the brevity of the shows themselves the ticket was just not worth the money.

Actress Halle Berry involved in crash

WEST HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies are investigating a hit-and-run car accident that involved actress Halle Berry, a sheriff's spokeswoman said.

Berry was in a rented Chevrolet Blazer involved in a crash with another car early Wednesday, Deputy Elisabeth Sachs said Saturday.

A woman in the other car had a broken arm and was treated at a hospital. The 31-year-old Berry sought medical treatment for undisclosed injuries.

Sachs said it was not clear if Berry was driving or was a passenger. She said no arrests had been made.

No listing was available for Berry's spokesman.

In January, Berry won for a Golden Globe for best actress in a TV miniseries for "Introducing Dorothy Dandridge," about the first black woman to be nominated for a best actress Academy Award.

Swarms of women were swooned by the music of The Bacon Brothers on Thursday night at the Southern Theatre in downtown Columbus.

Bacon Brothers' music sizzles

By Elizabeth Clay Lantern arts writer

As soon as The Bacon Brothers took the stage Thursday night at the Southern Theatre, all you could hear was the sound of middle-aged women batting their eyelashes.

The Bacon Brothers consists of Michael and Kevin Bacon, two brothers who quit their jobs to become rock stars. Michael, an Emmy-award winning composer, has written scores for "The Kennedy's" and "The Century." Kevin quit his job as an actor. He has performed in movies such as "Footloose" and "Murder in the First," but is perhaps best known as the star of the fun party game "Six Degrees of Kevin Bacon."

When The Bacon Brothers finally took the stage, women were screaming. They opened their show with the title track off their new album "Getting There." Their sound is a mix of everything from country to rock and roll to folk.

The two mixed their performance with story telling, and seemed very natural on stage. You can tell that Kevin Bacon has always wanted to be a rock star, by his dancing around the stage, yelling into the microphone and constant jams with the band. He just looks so happy to be on stage and have women throwing themselves at him. The Bacon Brothers definitely have a strict demographic of middle-aged women. There were maybe a dozen men in the audience. Michael Bacon is the musician of the family. He even played the cello during a few of the songs, and opened the second act with a cover of "Unchained Melody" with only cello accompaniment.

The best song in the show was "Don't Lose Me," Boy," a song Michael Bacon wrote when his son told him he was going to climb Mt. Everest. It was probably the only song in the show that the audience could really relate to, whether as a parent or as a child who wants to do something of which his parents would disapprove.

Toward the end of the show, women were rushing to the front of the Southern Theatre to dance by the stage. When security could no longer keep people in their seats, everyone rushed to the front. That's when the Bacon Brothers broke out into the song "Footloose," the first of two encores.

When the show was over, women were bothering stage hands for anything that the Bacon Brothers' may have touched, whether it was a plastic cup, a set list, or a guitar pick, proving once again that you're never to old to be a groupie.

The brothers took the stage at about 8:30 p.m., after opening act Jeffrey Gaines. Gaines was extremely flat during his performance. He constantly insisted on the demoralizing of America, saying things like "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's wife. That's a commandment I never did understand," as though the audience cared what he had to say. Everyone was waiting for The Bacon Brothers.

Polish up your act.

Defense paves way for 64-51 win over Illini

By Betsy Shuller Lantern sports writer

The No. 6-ranked Ohio State's men's basketball team improved its record to 20-5 and moved into a tie with No. 5 Michigan State and No. 21 Purdue for top honors in the conference with a 64-51 win over Illinois (19-6, 10-4).

The win snapped Illinois' the conference.

The Buckeyes, who trailed by five at the half (30-25), stepped up the defensive pressure and tied the game at 38 with 13:49 to go in the game on lay-up by Brian Brown off Michael Redd's steal. From there they never looked back, going on a 30-10 run during the remainder of the game.

Redd, who finished with a game-high 21 points and 12 rebounds, said the Bucks came out inspired in the second half. "We were determined to not let this one slip away. We want that (Big Ten championship) ring so bad, so we'll do anything it takes for us to win."

... Guard Scoonie Penn had a complete game, finishing with 14 points, seven rebounds, five steals and three assists. He credits the Bucks' increased intensity and defensive pressure in the second half to the crowd's enthusiasm."

"The crowd was really into it. They gave us that boost in the second half when we made our run to get the lead. They kept State on Wednesday and at us going because at that point Minnesota on Saturday.

in time you get really tired. Illinois was tired, but we had the crowd to push us. When the crowd is yelling and screaming it helps us."

OSU coach Jim O'Brien said overall and 11-3 in the Big Ten Brown played strong defense against Illinois' star and threepoint specialist Cory Bradford. Brown held him to 14 points, including just three points in the second half.

"I think that Brian worked seven-game winning streak in very, very hard. Bradford is one of the more difficult guys in standing defensive performance, O'Brien said the entire team played well defensively.

"Our guys really deserve a lot of credit for the way they guarded. I think that for the most part this year we have been pretty good defensively, but the second half might have been our best effort of the season." In the second half, the Buckeyes held Illinois to 24.1 percent shooing from the field and 18.2 percent from beyond the arc.

O'Brien is pleased with his team's position in the league going into the final week of regular season play.

'We put ourselves in the position to at least share the conference championship, but if we don't we have no one to blame but ourselves," he said.

MEN'S HOCKEY Playoffs are out for OSU

By Brian Clark Lantern sports writer

Ohio State's men's hockey team split its final weekend series of the 1999-2000 campaign against Bowling Green, winning on Friday night and falling on Saturday.

Saturday's loss eliminated the Buckeyes from the CCHA playoffs for the first time since the 1981-82 season.

Bowling Green opened up an offensive attack Saturday, outscoring the Bucks 7-1.

The Buckeyes cut the lead to 2-1 at halfway through the second period, but after a breakaway shot by senior Eric Meloche missed just over the crossbar, the Falcons' Ryan Fultz took control of the game, scoring three of the five final Falcon goals.

"We didn't play well. This wasn't reminiscent of the team since December, the team that fights back," coach John Markell said.

OSU's Ray Aho stopped 23 Falcon shots, but the Falcons controlled the puck, scoring on two of their six power plays and adding a short-handed goal.

The Buckeyes' lone goal came at 9:07 in the second period when Meloche scored his 13th power play goal of the season. The goal made the senior the nation's leader in power play goals. Rob Gubala and Jean-Francois Dufour assisted on the goal.

"I'm disappointed, but we'll try to finish the season properly with a couple wins," said Markell, speaking of this week's series against Miami of Ohio. "I've got to get the point through to the young guys that it's not acceptable to not make the playoffs."

Sunday's game for the Ohio State men's basketball team marked not only a decisive 64-51 win over Illinois, but a fond farewell for some of its players.

Seniors Scoonie Penn, Ken Johnson, George Reese, Kwadjo Steele and Devon Smith walked away with a victory in their last game at Value City Arena.

It doesn't get much better than that," said coach Jim O'Brien. "Our crowd was fantastic. I got the chills when they acknowledged the seniors. It was a nice tribute for all those guys and we're going to miss all of them."

Scoonie's against the Illini gives him more than 1,000 career points, a feat accomplished in only two years with the Buckeyes.

O'Brien was thankful for the opportunity to coach Penn.

"We have a very nice relationship and I'm going to miss him beyond basketball," he said. "It saddens me that I'm not going to be coaching him in the next couple of weeks. He was a pleasant person to be around."

Johnson, OSU's 6-foot-11 center and Guard Penn expressed gratitude for single-season block leader, expressed his years at OSU. "This was an experi- disbelief over the end of his college

Reese, OSU forward, expressed satisfaction with his final home performance. "I'm glad I'll always be able to say my last game here was a win."

"We realized that this was an important game for the seniors," said Redd, OSU's junior guard. "We buckled down and played great defense and tried to cut down on their three-point shooting as much as we could."

Redd said he enjoyed playing with the Bordner also was recognized with the seniors before the game, this being his final year in a 33-year career as team trainer.

Redd's 21-point outing gives him 1,787 career points as well as fifth place among OSU's scoring leaders. He said he was unsure whether this would also be his final home game.

"I'm not even thinking about it right now. I'm just going out there and having fun. After the season is over I'll sit down with my parents and think about it and we'll make that decision.'

drops fourth in a row

By Alex Ryan Lantern sports writer

Behind the deafening roar of the near 9,000 fans in attendance, Ohio State's women's basketball team could not overcome the strength of Penn State as it fell to the visiting Lady Lions, 55-50. It was OSU's fourth-straight defeat, and its sixth in their last seven games.

"I thought defensively we did great," said coach Beth Burns after her team slipped to 12-14 overall, and 5-11 in the Big Ten. "They average about 78 points a game and holding them to 55 points is great. I am proud of our team. We have been getting better each and every game."

OSU played an aggressive first half and went into the locker room with a 25-22 lead. It was only the third time all year that PSU (24-3, 15-1) trailed at the half, with the Lady Lions losing the previous two games they trailed.

"I think our pressing in the second half really helped us play better," said PSU coach Rene Portland. "I think our change-ups (in zones) really caused them a little confusion and helped us create turnovers and force them to shoot outside.

PSU was led in the scoring column by senior Andrea Garner's 15 points and 12 rebounds. Juniors Maren Walseth and Lisa Shepherd recorded 13 and 12 points, respectively. Senior Helen Darling, a Columbus native and graduate of Brookhaven High School, recorded eight points and four assists.

Leading the way on offense from the outside for OSU was sophomore Lauren Shenk. Shenk scored a team-high 21 points, with 12 off those points falling from behind the three-point line. Shenk also picked up three assists and two rebounds. Junior Jamie Lewis added 14 points, with 12 coming from beyond the three-point line as well. Freshman Courtney Coleman added three points, 10 rebounds and intense play off the bench.

'Courtney Coleman was huge off the bench for us," Burns said. "She was an emotional lift and really got our team going with the way she was all over the floor going for the ball.'

With the conference tournament starting on Thursday, OSU hoped to go into Bloomington, Ind. last Thursday and defeat the Hoosiers. Indiana used the 27point performance from sophomore Jill Chapman to best the Buckeyes and hand them their third straight defeat, 65-58. Junior Rainey Alting and sophomore Heather Cassady recorded 17 and 13 points, respectively, as Indiana improved to 10-16 and 5-10 in the Big Ten.

Shenk again led the way with 25 points, while freshman LaToya Turner and senior Michaela "Mixu" Moua each scored 10 points.

"Lauren played a terrific game Thursday," Burns said. "She was the only reason that we were in the game offensively and defensively.

OSU, the No. 9 seed in the Big Ten tournament, will now prepare for their first-round matchup with No. 8 seed Indiana. OSU has never lost in its openinground game in the five year existence of the tournament and look to defeat the Hoosiers for the second time this season. Tip is set for 4 p.m. at Conseco Fieldhouse in Indianapolis.

On Friday night, the Buckeyes defeated Bowling Green, handing the Falcons a 4-3 loss. The Bucks scored three power play goals and one short-handed goal in the win.

Meloche scored two goals in the first period, both power plays, against Bowling Green's Shawn Timm. Bowling Green's Tyler Knight also scored a goal in the first period.

At the 4:59 mark of the second period, the Buckeyes' Jason Crain rushed in on a loose rebound and put OSU up 3-1. Eight minutes later, Luke Pavlas added his first shorthanded goal in his collegiate career, for what would prove to be the game-winner.

Following Pavlas' shot, the Falcons pulled Timm from goal and put in freshman Tyler Masters. Masters controlled the Buckeyes for the rest of the game, but Aho allowed only two more goals past him to seal the win.

The Buckeyes can still finish in 10th place in the CCHA and by tying with Western Michigan, but the Broncos own the tie-breaker with the Buckeyes from a series sweep in October.

OSU will look to finish the season with a sweep of Miami (OH) and a chance to claim the Ohio Cup this week. The Redhawks visit Value City Arena on Tuesday night at 7:05 for the Buckeyes' final home game of the season. The two will then travel to Oxford, Ohio, to play at Miami on Saturday at 7:05 p.m. second to homas.

Helicopters save about 1,500 from Mozambique river floods

SAVE RIVER VALLEY, Mozamhique (AP) — Helicopters plucked more than 1,500 people to safety Sunday as swollen rivers swept away almost everything in their paths in flood-ravaged Mozambique.

A new storm system began building off the coast Sunday.

Many more people gripped whatever high ground they could find as waters continued to rise in the Save and Limpopo rivers of this southeast African country, one of the poorest in the world. They have been stranded for a week and desperately need food.

Without warning, the level of the Limpopo River rose rapidly early Sunday morning, submergng the town of Chokwe and lozens of surrounding villages in Mozambique's already flooded Gaza province in a matter of ours

"These people went to bed last ight with no sign of water," Aichele Quintaglie of the World ood Program said of Chokwe resdents. "At 5 a.m., they woke up by hysterical screams telling them to get out. By early morning, the city was engulfed by water. By lunch, it was completely submerged.

Groups of people huddled on tiny patches of land stretched out their arms to plead for help from one of only two rescue helicopters in the Save area. A lone man on the roof of a straw hut pointed his fingers to his mouth and rubbed his stomach.

Officials refused to speculate how many people already have been swept away in the vast area along the banks of the Save (pronounced sah-VEY) in central Mozambique.

"There's massive destruction along the Save River. It's taking everything in its path. Homes, villages. There are people stranded in trees and on homes. A lot of people are getting killed," said David Schaad, a World Food Program spokesman.

UNICEF's Ian Macleod estimated between 5,000 and 10,000 people were stranded in the area.

About 3,000 more were marooned in southern Mozambique after the Limpopo burst its banks.

The known death toll in Mozambique and neighboring South Africa and Zimbabwe reached 200 from flooding in the last week. Police said Sunday that at least 33 people died and 20 were missing after a bus was swept off a flooded bridge two days earlier in northeastern Zimbabwe. Twenty passengers had survived.

Torrential rains began drench-ing southern Africa three weeks ago, and then Cyclone Eline roared through last week. As the remnants of the cyclone raced back to the Indian Ocean, a new storm system was developing off the coast of Mozambique and was expected to hit Monday.

In the Save valley, South African helicopters hoisted people aboard and dropped them a short distance away on slightly bigger raised patches of earth. With the nearest refueling point 125 miles away, rescues were going painfully slowly
