Outdoor couches may fall under ban

Fires, rodent infestation concerns area residents

Many students living in the University District might lose a place to relax outside if a new rule is instituted to ban stuffed furniture from porches.

Porches and decks on the front of houses or apartments have been the subject of numerous problems in the University District. Among these issues are instances of stuffed, interior furniture being placed on porches and incorrect placement of grills.

The University District includes the area between the Olentangy River and the railroad tracks adjacent to Interstate 71 and the area from Fifth Avenue to the Glen Echo Ravine. According to the 2000 U.S. census, the University District had 43,664 residents in more than 17,000 housing units.

According to University District Code Enforcement, stuffed furniture was observed on 10.9 percent of properties, while grills were found on the front porches of 8.8 percent of properties.

Stuffed furniture located on porches can be a source for harboring pests such as insects and rodents. They have also become safety hazards, as evidenced during the OSU riots, when they were targeted for burning.

The Code Enforcement Task Force has been in contact with the Columbus Fire Department and the Department of Neighborhood Services to raise awareness of these problems. They also are looking to amend the law to ban stuffed couches on porches in the University Area.

We feel that stuffed furniture is a health risk to everyone in the community," said Jennifer Cowley, an assistant professor in city and regional planning and member of the Code Enforcement Task Force. "We've had too many incidents with fires and rodent infestation because the students don't realize how hazardous those couches can be.

While Code Enforcement is trying to deal with these problems, they do not want students to think they are trying to ban all out-

According to Cost Effectiveness of Supported the National Coalition for the Homeless, an appropriate measure of homelessness is the number of people who experience homelessness over time, not the number of "homeless people." Most studies to determine the number of homeless involve counting people in shelters or in the streets. But according to the NCH, this approach can underestimate the number of homeless.

"We don't want to get rid of all furniture on porches because we feel that it's a good way for students to congregate outside and enjoy the nicer weather in spring quarter," Cowley said. "We just want to get rid of stuffed furniture because it provides so many possible health risks.'

Several students were glad to hear that the ban would only deal with stuffed couches and would not include all exterior furniture.

HIGHER ED BRIEFS Hurricanes do not renew TV contract

The Post — The University of Miami has decided not to renew its contract with the former College Television Network. Televisions across the campus will no longer be obligated to show the network, now called MTVU, at all times

The decision came after the university's five-year contract with the broadcasting station ended. The agreement between the two was designed to have the network broadcast in various common areas across campus: dining halls in particular were targeted by the network. The chief reason for not renewing the contract stemmed from the desire to have more viewing options within those dining halls

Managers of the dining halls will have the option of showing nearly any of the 77 channels offered on the campus network, including MTVU. The lone exception is HBO, which is contracted solely for viewing in residence hall rooms.

UM to cut budget or lose funding

The Michigan Daily - The proposed budget for the state of Michigan could severely hamper funding for the University of Michigan, as well as other schools in the state. If the public universities within the state do not keep their tuition increases for next year below the rate of inflation, they could receive six percent less funding than last vear

University of Michigan President Mary Sue Coleman said that in order for the university to keep its increase below the inflation line, it would have to face a budget cut of $43 million. If the increase rises above the inflation line, the university would face a cut of $62.5 million. The inflation line remains at 2.4 percent.

The university is getting used to budget cuts. Last year, the budget was cut by 10 percent, and in December, it suffered a budget reduction of $16.4 million.

'MyDoom' mutant strikes Wisconsin

The Daily Cardinal - The University of Wisconsin has received a new strain of the "MyDoom" virus that is slowing computer labs and filling e-mail boxes across campus.

The mutated version is spreading more quickly than the previous one, hindering attempts to contain and destroy it. According to the Division for Information Technology, four systems have already been infected. The virus is contained in e-mails with generic titles such as "error," "hi" or "hello," inviting the user to open them. To acquire the virus, a user must download the file attached to the e-mail.

Students whose computers are infected with the new virus will be taken off the campus' computer network until the virus is cleaned from their system. The university offers free virus-scanning software for stu-dents that is available via download or from the Division of Information Technology Store.

Test links anger to smoking

By Lauren Neergaard Associated Press

WASHINGTON — If you are easy to anger, you might have a brain especially susceptible to nicotine.

Scientists, using powerful scanners, have documented nicotine triggering dramatic bursts of activity in certain brain areas.

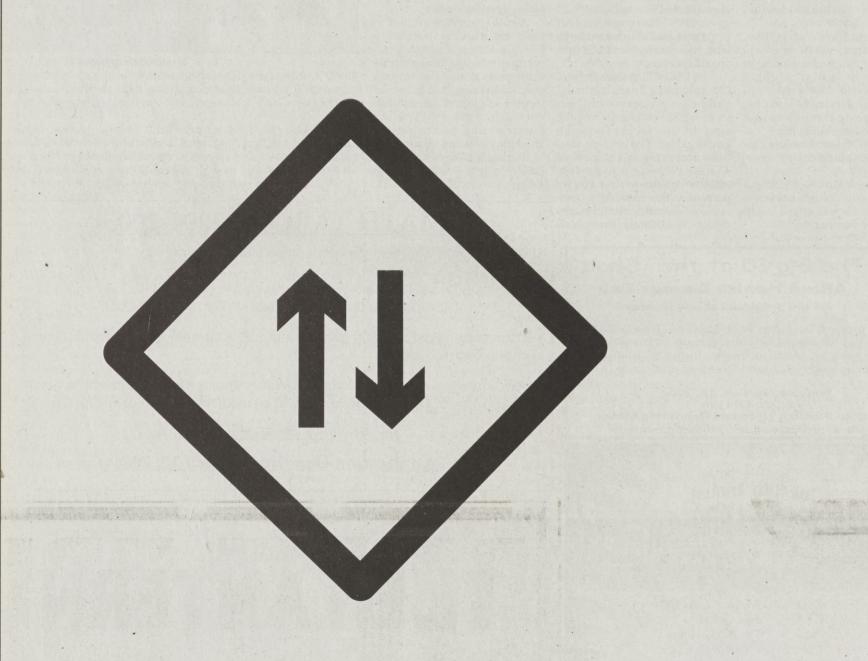

Researchers made the discovery when studying people wearing nicotine patches. Intriguingly, the nicotine jazzed up the brains of not just smokers who are aggressive, but of nonsmokers, too.

It is the first biological evidence that people with certain personality traits are more likely to get hooked on smoking if they ever experiment with cigarettes.

It may also help explain why it's so much easier for some people to kick the addiction than others, said psychiatrist Steven Potkin of the University of California, Irvine, who led the study.

It's almost, he said, as if some people are born to smoke.

Other scientists will not make that leap, noting that it's not clear how much of a person's personality is genetic and how much stems from childhood environments. Smoking habits can depend greatly on whether people grew up surrounded by and the social and cu tural conditions under which they try to quit.

"We're looking for the variety of things that could make people likely to smoke, and this could be one of them," said William O Corrigall of the National Institute on Drug Abuse.

It also has important implications for teenagers. Adolescents are prone to periods of aggression before parts of the brain that control impulse and behavior finish forming.

If doctors could predict who is most at risk of getting hooked after their first few cigarettes, perhaps they could better target those people with smoking prevention programs.

Previous surveys had suggested that Type A personalities are more likely to be big smokers, especially when nervous or 🌔 irritated. Also, some scientists have put smokers into brain scanners while infusing them with nicotine to see what brain areas the drug targets.

'Potkin's study took the crucial step of adding nonsmokers to the mix. He asked 86 people to do various tests while a Positron Emission Tomography monitored their brain activity before and after receiving lowor high-dose nicotine patches or a sham patch.

"No one has looked at nicotine in this way," said Kenneth Perkins, a psychiatry professor at the University of Pittsburgh who also is studying predictive traits of smoking.

The PET scans showed no brain effects of nicotine on people whose personalities were more relaxed and cheerful.

In people rated as having more hostile tendencies, nicotine triggered dramatic changes in activity in brain regions important for controlling emotion and social response.

For some people, nicotine increased energy metabolism; for others, it decreased, depending on dose.

Despite the common assumption that nicotine can be calming, actually "nicotine made them even more aggressive," Potkin said. "They may smoke to feel better, but they don't feel 🕐 better."

Victims of Turkish genocide seek monetary benefits

"It's a Band-Aid

By Greg Risling Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - Martin Marootian displayed a grainy, black-and-white photograph taken in 1905 that shows 10 family members and friends.

He pointed out that eight were killed a decade later in what Armenians contend was an act of genocide by the Turkish Ottoman Empire.

Among them was his uncle, Setrak Cheytanian, and ever since then the family has been trying to collect death benefits from the uncle's policy with New York Life Insurance Co.

Their ordeal may finally be over. Last month, Marootian was among 12 plaintiffs in a class action lawsuit who reached a tentative $20 million settlement with New York Life. On Thursday, a federal judge is expected to decide whether to approve the agreement.

Marootian, 88, had hoped the agreement would bring more recognition to a catastrophe that has not been acknowledged by the United States.

"If we hadn't done this, many Armenians would have been left out in the cold," he said. "At least this way they are getting some money.

Some Armenian-Americans believe the agreement shortchanges the entire community.

"It's a Band-Aid on a bullet wound," said Ardy Kassakhian, executive director of the western

"The parties are confident that this is a fair, reasonable and adequate settlement that the judge should feel comfortable approving," he said. The settlement would set aside about $11 million to pay claims by heirs of some 2,400 policyholders. About $3 million would go to Armenian charitable organizations, with the remainder to be used for legal fees and costs.

Turkey rejects the genocide claim, insisting Armenians were killed in civil unrest during the collapse of the Ottoman Empire.

among 15 countries, along with a United Nations human rights panel, that have recognized the genocide. The United States has not made such a declaration.

Marootian's mother and oldest sister were the only two people in the family photo who survived. They left for New York a year before the killing began, and Marootian's uncle sent the policy with them.

The policy named no beneficiaries. Marootian's mother, however, who died in 1982, often wrote to New York Life trying to collect the benefits. Each time, a different agent promised to resolve the claim.

They could have given her a couple of hundred dollars during the Depression and it wouldn't have come to this class-action today," Marootian said. "It was

Even the highly nominated final installment of the "Lord of the Rings" trilogy had a deserving part left off the ballot. Playing "stupid, far hobbit" Sam, Sean Astin — best known as the title character in the inspiration garbage known as "Rudy" served as the backbone of the Fellowship, "Return of the King" and the trilogy as a whole.

As an animated feature, "Finding Nemo" isn't the stuff that best pictures are made of, but as the voice of Dory, Ellen DeGeneres rose above her trite lines that seemed like castoffs from the comedic underwater version of 'Memento." DeGeneres gave Dory a life of her own and helped propel the film into the secondhighest grossing film of 2003. Sean Penn was also a victim of his role. In "Mystic River," Penn was explosive, emotional and turned in one of the best performances of his career. The problem is, it wasn't his best performance of the year. Along with nominees Naomi Watts and Benicio Del Toro, Penn took Alejandro González Iñárritu's second feature, the emotionally charged "21 Grams," to new heights as the recipient of a new heart, thanks to a car accident that for better or worse permanently joined the three characters. The final film denied its due by the Academy was my choice for the best film of the year. Some have described "Thirteen" as an extreme version of an after-school special. That cheapens the film's deep and frightening look at teenage rebellion gone too far. "Once and Again's" Evan Rachel Wood — another overlooked actress - stars as Tracy, a seventh grader on the cusp of puberty who indulges in petty theft, sex and drugs to take her out of her humdrum existence. "Thirteen" director Catherine Hardwicke took the story straight out of the mouth of Wood co-star Nikki Reed, basing much of the story on Reed's diaries when she was 13. The film is beautifully shot on digital footage that adds a realistic depth to this picture that has almost been universally ignored by the award groups. Truth be told, this list could go longer, as many of the top nominees did little to merit their space on the ballot, while many other films and performances were overlooked time and again. I can guarantee you one thing though; if Renee Zellweger wins the best supporting actress award this year, I may have to finally give in to the hate side of my relationship with the Oscars.

Students come to Ohio State from a variety of backgrounds and almost naturally seek out others like themselves; thus the hope of student groupings finding diversity ends before it gets a chance to develop. To combat this cycle, the Schottenstein Chabad House is hosting their fourth annual "Herb Schiff Afro-Judaic Concert and Ribfest," a celebration of jazz and food.

The event, open to all, was founded by Schiff's grandson David Hershorn to honor Schiff's devotion to bringing people together, and is scheduled to take place 7 p.m. tomorrow at 207 E. 15th Ave.

"The inspiration was basically my grandfather's emphasis (on diversity) and initiating it as part of my life to look at people of different kinds and from different areas and say 'what can you teach me, and what do you want to learn from me?"" Hershorn said.

"It is easy for me to find people who enjoy going to other cultures because that's what people from that area do. Around the world they plug in the poignant heritage of that Louisiana region, and it's just such a great thing to watch people from around the world, especially Americans, see the origination of culture from an area," Hershorn said. Hershorn sees a connection between cultures brought to the Chabad House in the past.

"He's come down with a very diverse group of musicians, and it's always a good time. We also have a little jam session where different students who bring along their different musical instruments show their thing. It's very positive," Deitsch said.

Melissa Rosenfield, a senior in personalized studies, attended last year's Ribfest and said she remembers an amazing time.

"It was a really nice mesh of people from everywhere hanging out and having a good time together. In Columbus, we're so used to our little worlds, living in our little bubbles, and it's really nice when everybody is so enthusiastic to come together over music and food which transcends any culture," Rosenfield said.

Coming together is an important concept to grasp because as Hershorn points out, the population may grow, but the size of the earth will not. How people deal with that dilemma will be their decision.

You either want to discover new culture, embody and enhance Hershorn's former New Orleans surroundings helped make that culture by championing culture and the differences of those cultures, or you allow the homogenization of those cultures which is what is happening now in a lot of Western and American settings. I prefer the former," Hershorn said.

This year Hershorn is bringing guitarists Phil DeGrey and Carl LeBlanc to fill the jazz slot. To fulfill its end of the deal, the Chabad is having kosher ribs flown in from Brooklyn. Both components will feed unity within diversity.

'As soon as we understand having differences doesn't make us bad or good I think there will be peace on earth," Deitsch said.

Ohio State sophomore Ronald Ferris would win the pommel horse event Friday as one of the silver linings to the No. 1 OSU men's gymnasts' loss to No. 2 California and No. 4 Oklahoma at St. John Arena.

Gymnasts lose three in rare weekend slide

By Melanie Watkins Lantern sports editor

Things appeared to "snowball" out of control for the No. 1 Ohio State men's gymnastics 'team this weekend.

The Buckeyes followed a disappointing Friday showing at St. John Arena with an expected low score at Nebraska Sunday.

Hosting No. 2 California and No. 4 Oklahoma, OSU coach Miles Avery said he hoped for a high score out of his team's top gymnasts. What he got was a third-place score of 217.40 Friday. While resting the top men, Avery settled for another loss when the team traveled to No. 8 Nebraska Sunday.

"I am very disappointed that I didn't have these guys ready to compete with two of the best teams in the country," Avery said Friday night. "We were already prepared to not have a full team in (the Nebraska match) because the guys should have had a lot of injuries (Friday), which they did not.

OSU did not use much of Randy Monahan, Cody Trobaugh, Willie Ito or Jamey Houle Sunday.

Troubles started early for the Buckeyes Friday. They were sitting in first place after the first rotation but quickly fell to third horse.

Freshman Willie Ito did not

Buckeye to score over a 9.0 in the event, placing first with a 9.5.

"It seemed like when we got a little bit of pressure on us like when certain guys missed - it just snowballed from there," Monahan said. "We've got to focus on when someone messes up (saying) 'Hey, forget about it, move on and do your own gymnastics.'

Avery agreed this was a problem.

"We talk a lot about when one guy does not do well, then the next guys steps in and does a great job," Avery said. "None of that happened today. It just snowballed in terms of having the worst meet in a lot of years that I can remember at Ohio State.

Oklahoma finished first in the tri-meet with a score of 219.60, extending its win streak to 45. During the entire competition, the Sooners vocalized their support for one another, as they cheered for a fellow gymnast whether he scored high or low.

The worst event for OSU was the parallel bars Friday. Trobaugh grabbed the lowest score in any event by any gymnast with a 6.0 as he fell off his routine twice and finished on his rear instead of his feet. The highest score by a Buckeye was an 8.8 by Kerry Alderly, who folwhen they took on the pommel lowed Friday's performance with a first-place finish in the parallel bars Sunday "We had been marking this strong performance is kind of stress because we had put so much pressure on this meet, but we have to figure out how to handle that by the end of the season." In the final home meet of the season, the Buckeyes will face No. 5 Penn State at 7 p.m.

Freshman leads team in victories

By Melanie Watkins Lantern sports editor

Ty Tucker got something he never had before on Friday.

Entering the competition against No. 8 Vanderbilt, the Ohio State men's tennis coach had never led his Buckeye players to a victory over a Top 10 team. That all changed as No. 16 OSU started the match strong, clinching the doubles point, and carried that momentum into the six singles courts. In the end the Buckeyes prevailed 4-3, with singles court No. 5 being the deciding victory.

"Winning the doubles point got us pumped up," freshman Joey Atas said. "Everyone was fired up to play, and I think that is why we beat them.'

Friday was the start to a successful weekend for OSU as it continued its winning ways Saturday against No. 17 Alaba-ma, dominating the Crimson Tide 6-1.

Atas highlighted the weekend by kicking things off in the singles courts both days as he played the No. 2 spot and was one of the first to finish his matches. His 8-0 record makes him the only undefeated Buckeye, who has played every match, in singles competition. The freshman put in efforts in doubles as well when he combined with senior Jeremy Wurtzman for an 8-6 victory Friday.

While Atas and Dennis Mertens were able to start a comeback after falling behind 7-3, they were unable to hold on as they fell 8-6 Saturday. It was the first defeat Atas had in a doubles court this season.

'(Mertens) and I probably didn't play as well as we could've, but they played really well," Atas said. "Losing that match, it just motivated me more to win (my singles match)."

By defeating Vanderbilt's Matthew Lockin 6-1, 6-3, Atas became the first Buckeye in two years to beat him. Lockin was ranked No. 27 and was Atas' second win over a ranked opponent.

"Atas is going to get a well-deserved ranking here shortly," Tucker said. "Not only has he won the matches, but he has been the first guy winning a set against tough teams, and that helps other guys relax."

The OSU tandem of Scott Green and Ross

MELANIE WATKINS/THE LANTERN Senior Jeremy Wurtzman helped the Buckeyes earn four points over the weekend with Stephen Mitchell and Chris Gostek. Playing in court No. 1, Green and Wilson fell behind when they were broken on Green's serve in the 11th game. Facing match game, the Buckeyes were able to break Alabama's serve and get the game back. In the end, Green and Wilson held on to win the match in a tiebreaker.

doubles and singles victories.

"In the beginning of the match we weren't making that many returns, but that picked up as the match went on. We got used to their serve and got a better feel for the game they were trying to play, so we were able to adjust our game," Wilson said. 'We stayed with it, and we fought and got the break back. I think that momentum really carried into the tiebreaker.'

Having lost in the No. 2 court the day before, the No. 38 doubles team used Saturday's victory as a positive follow-up.

"It's just good to get some good wins," Green said. "(Friday) was a tough loss to a good Vanderbilt team. (Saturday) we got down, and then we came back and won, so it was a big momentum switch.'

against the No. 13 doubles team of Alabama's relaxed as he downed both his opponents in straight sets. On Friday he easily defeated No. 55 Chad Harris 6-2, 6-2. It was Alabama's Stephen Mitchell and some controversial line calls which were able to frustrate Wurtzman.

After falling behind 3-1 on a break in the second set, Wurtzman fought back to take the match in a tiebreaker. In the first set he and Mitchell had traded breaks early, but in the end Wurtzman took the victory 7-5, 7-6.

Also winning singles matches for the Buckeyes over the weekend were freshmen Chris Klingemann and Devin Mullings, and sophomores Mertens and Wilson. Senior Brenton Contini played doubles in court No. 3 Friday and court No. 2 Saturday. Both times he was in the court that was the deciding factor for the doubles point, and both times his tandem won.

Mertens' match in the No. 5 court Friday was the final point OSU needed to upset Vanderbilt.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The Lantern will not publish illegal advertising or the advertising of illegal products or services. The Lantern reserves the right to reject advertising that denigrates individuals, groups or organizations based on race, gender, nationality, ethnicity, religion, mental or physical capacity, veteran's status, age or sexual orientation. The Lantern Business Manager will refer guestionable advertising to the Publications Committee of the School of Journalism and Communication. The committee will recommend a decision on whether to publish the advertising to the Director of the school.

- 1. Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required.
- Copy must be furnished by noon three days before publication, except for special publications whose 2. deadlines will be announced.
- An advertisement is required to occupy at least as many inches in height as columns in width. Any 3. advertisement exceeding 18 inches in height will be considered a "full column" (21 inches) adver tisement and charged accordingly.
- Make-goods and adjustments will be considered for those advertisements only where errors occur in (a) business or group name, address, or phone number, (b) item price or (c) date, time or place of event The error must be solely the fault of the Lantern. Adjustments will not exceed the cost of the advertisement and will be based on the portion of the advertisement nullified by the error. Minor spelling errors will not qualify for adjustment. Complaints must be registered with the Business Manager within 45 days of publication to qualify; otherwise the advertiser accepts full responsibility.
- Guaranteed position is sold at the Business Manager's discretion
- 6. A composition charge may apply to any changes, revisions or cancellations made after deadline.
- No proof will be furnished for any advertisement received after deadline or for an ad smaller than seven column inches.
- If the Lantern finds it necessary to stop contracted advertising because of nonpayment, the adver tising agreement will be violated and the advertiser subject to a "re-bill" fee.
- The Lantern reserves the right to require prepayment for advertising, or to reject advertising, if the 9. advertiser is delinquent in payment, or if the advertiser's credit is impaired. Advertisers must prepay all advertising until a satisfactory credit rating with the Lantern is established. A certified check or money order is required for out-of-town advertisers.
- 10. Contract advertisers will furnish the Lantern with a "rate-holder" ad meeting contract minimums for use in any contract period for which the advertiser does not provide an ad.
- 11. A tearsheet will be furnished for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tearsheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser requests them from the Lantern office prior to publication
- 12. The advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Ohio State University, its Board of Trustees and its officers, agents and employees from and against any and all loss, cost and expense, including reasonable attorney fees, resulting from the publication by the Lantern of the advertiser's advertise ment.
- 13. Advertisers in the Lantern agree that they will not represent themselves in any way as being endorsed by the Ohio State University.
- A mail-order advertiser is required to submit a sample "proof-of-product" prior to publication.
- 15. Advertisers must request the return of their original ad materials; the Lantern will dispose of such materials 60 days after their first publication.
