Bill aims to curb anabolic steroid illegal sale, use

By Steve Majors
Lantern staff writer

The sale and possession of steroids could become a felony if legislation introduced Monday by a state representative becomes law.

Rep. William Schuck, R-Columbus, said his bill curbs use of the drug because it imposes stricter punishments for those who distribute large quantities of anabolic steroids.

Currently in Ohio, the unlicensed use or sale of steroids is punishable by up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

Anabolic steroids are synthetic derivatives of the male hormone testosterone. Some athletes use steroids to increase muscle size and endurance.

Physicians may legally use the drug to treat victims of cancer, anemia, burns and starvation.

Schuck said medical studies show that long-term use of steroids can cause strokes, heart attacks, kidney and liver damage and infertility. The substances are also addictive.

"Steroid abuse is rampant in our society and it's time for the state legislature to stop looking the other way," Schuck said. "This legislation will give police the laws they need to put steroid dealers out of business and behind bars."

Schuck's bill would include harsh penalties for selling and possessing bulk amounts of anabolic steroids, counterfeit steroids and substances used to mask the drug.

Bulk amounts are quantities of more than 1,600 tablets, 120 grams or 100 milliliters.

Anyone selling or possessing more than the bulk amount would serve up to 10 years in jail and pay a $5,000 fine. Repeat offenders could serve up to 15 years in jail and be fined $7,500.

Sale and possession of the drug under the bulk amount carries a fine of $2,500 and up to five years in jail.

Schuck said two years ago he proposed a similar bill that was never voted on by legislators. He said that bill was sent to the health and retirement committee and was neglected by the committee members.

"It may have been the legislature didn't perceive it as a serious problem," he said.

"If somebody has thousands of pills or hundreds of milliliters, we take that as an indication they are a drug pusher," Schuck said.

Vigil honors Holocaust victims

OSU students stood in the mist on a gray Monday and read the names of Jews killed in the Holocaust.

They read the names from a stack of papers as thick as a phone book and with print as small. The stack was tied down with string to keep it from blowing away in the wind.

It was only a partial list of the 6 million Jews who were killed by the Nazis.

Reading the names was part of the second annual memorial vigil sponsored by the Children of Holocaust Survivors.

The 24-hour vigil began Monday on the west end of the Oval and ends today at noon with a memorial prayer. Today is Yom Ha'Shoah, the day of mourning for the victims of the Holocaust.

Memorial candles were distributed throughout the campus area and lit at sundown Monday, said 21-year-old organizer Heidi Hes.

Liba Mann, Herbert Markus, Jacob Lorber...

The list of names was compiled mostly by the Simon Wiesenthal Center in New York City. Some of the names read were relatives of Jewish people in the campus community.

Local Jewish residents were mailed forms from the Children of Holocaust Survivors to fill out the names of their family members who died in the Holocaust.

Hes said someone walked up to her on Monday and asked her why she couldn't just forget the Holocaust.

She said she told him her father had to go into hiding when he was 10 years old and lost most of his childhood.

"Could you forget it?" Hes said.

Five million non-Jewish people were also killed during the Holocaust. Hes said it is because of people who think the Holocaust should be forgotten that we must remember it.

OSU senior David Bernstein said, "There are some people who deny that the Holocaust happened, and we need to keep the Holocaust alive in people's memory."

Some of the names OSU junior Daniel Rose read belonged to his relatives. He said the emotions he felt carried over as he went through the rest of the list and he got more involved as he read.

Measle outbreak plagues campus

By Jim Hill
Lantern staff writer

Ohio State has joined the statewide measles outbreak with 42 diagnosed cases this quarter.

According to the Ohio Department of Health Immunization, an estimated 600 cases of measles have been reported throughout the state compared to 109 last year.

As many as 370 measles cases have been reported at Kent State and 110 at Ohio University, said Tony Payton, health planning administrator for the Ohio Department of Health Immunization.

Most OSU students are protected from the virus by childhood vaccinations, said Dr. Forrest

Smith, assistant medical director for university health services.

Smith said four categories of people are not immune to the measles and need to get booster shots:

- Anyone vaccinated before 1968 received the killed vaccine which is no longer effective.
- Those vaccinated prior to 12 months of age regardless of the type of vaccination are probably not immune.
- The currently used live viral vaccine is known to have a 10 to 15 percent failure rate.
- Anyone who has had direct contact with an infected person

Gators rat on snakes at Florida university

By Reggie Anglen
Lantern staff writer

Would you snitch on a fellow student if you discovered him or her cheating on a test?

Students at the University of Florida at Gainesville would, and are doing just that, through a new 24-hour hotline that has been set up by the school to catch dishonest students.

The Student Honor Court Hotline was initiated by students at the university to handle academic dishonesty. The Student Honor Court is run entirely by students.

Student concern about too much dishonesty among fellow students is why the hotline was put into place said Irene Stevens, director of student judicial affairs and assistant dean of student services at the university.

"This has only been in existence for a short time and we really don't have any information about how well it's going to work," she said.

Once the hotline receives information about alleged violators, an investigator goes out and talks to the professor. If students calling in a report leave their name, the investigator will also talk them, however callers are not required to leave their names.

Upon determination if the complaint is credible, the student in question will be required to attend a hearing.

"It (the hotline) will certainly increase people's awareness and

Cartoonist to end 'Bloom County'

By Keith D. Ackerman
Lantern staff writer

Approximately 1,000 newspapers will be saying their goodbyes August 6 to Berke Breathed's "Bloom County."

According to a statement Monday from the Washington Post Writers Group, Breathed announced the discontinuation of the popular comic series and his plans for a new Sunday-only comic strip.

"Bloom County" is carried in 430 daily newspapers, 319 Sunday editions and about 250 college newspapers.

In the announcement Breathed said, "The ugly truth is that in most cases, comics age less gracefully than their creators. 'Bloom County' is retiring before the stretch marks show."

Lucy Caswell, an associate professor of journalism and curator of the Library for Communication and Graphic Arts, said the comic strip has appealed primarily to young people.

"The strip has an irreverent tone which I think (young people) like," Caswell said. "It deals with subjects they feel are funny."

When asked if "Bloom County" could be considered a classic because of its lengthy run (first syndicated on December 8, 1980), Caswell said that classicism in comic strips deals not only with time but with artwork, storylines and the accumulation of a loyal readership.

According to a 1986 article in Newsweek On Campus, Breathed's success stems partially from the reality of his characters.

"Berke's developed a really rounded set of characters," said Bill Phillips, an editor of Breathed's cartoon books and a source for the Newsweek article. "He's given them distinctive personalities. To the reader they're old and dear friends."

"When people pick up the strip, they aren't just looking for a joke," Phillips added, "they're seeing how Opus is doing and what Bill the Cat is up to."

According to a 1985 Editor & Publisher article, Breathed believed that the contemporary comic strip was pressured by three very strong trends.

The first, he said, was premerchandising, or writing a comic for the sake of selling merchandise.

Breathed, 31, graduated from the University of Texas in 1979 with a bachelor's degree in journalism. He worked as a columnist and editorial cartoonist for various university publications.

According to the Post's announcement, Breathed did not make the decision to discontinue "Bloom County" on a whim.

"This was not an impetuous decision on Berke's part," said William Dickinson, general manager and editorial director of the organization which distributes Breathed's work and a source for the Post.

"He thinks the strip may be past its peak in some way, which isn't true, but that's his decision," Dickinson said.

He added that Breathed has been considering discontinuing the popular strip for about a year.

Breathed was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for distinguished cartooning in 1987.

professors will take a more stringent look on how they organize and give exams," she said.

Michael Arnot, USG academic affairs cabinet member, said Ohio State does not have a such a system now.

"We have a student action line where students can call about problems with their professors or teaching assistants or any other policy problems," Arnot said. "Our student action line is generally for students who are having problems with the administration, not for students who are having problems with other students."

Jim Coley, a sophomore form Toledo majoring in social studies, said he believes cheating is wrong and thinks it does a student more harm than good.

"I would turn in a friend because it's dishonest to cheat," Coley said. "I think I'd be doing them a favor."

No statistics are available about the number of students using the hotline, Stevens said.

About 34,000 students attend the University of Florida at Gainesville.

The Honor Court is comprised of 50 students who serve as attorney general, prosecutors and justices. Students also comprise the jury. Justices are elected by students representing the various colleges in the university. The prosecutors, attorney general and the defense staff are selected through a nominating and interviewing process.

The chancellor of the honor court is elected by all the students on campus. All terms are for one year and students must be enrolled full time.

The court's decisions are presented as recommendations to the office for student judicial affairs, which has the power to accept or decline decisions.

The hotline was created because the Student Honor Court said its role was not only to adjudicate academic dishonesty but also to educate students and faculty.

"Students and faculty have approached this from an education perspective which will be a good method to make students aware of academic dishonesty," Stevens said.

This is the only hotline of its kind on a college campus Stevens said.

Sanctions for infractions range from receiving a failing grade in the course to performing some type of community service or suspension from school. Circumstances related to the incident and the student's past record determine which sanction will be assessed. Conduct probation is sometimes given if the student is not suspended.

Charles Corbato, associate provost for the office of academic affairs, said since Ohio State has such a diverse undergraduate population, it would be difficult to enforce a cheating hotline.

The professional schools do have their own honor codes and there is a committee on academic misconduct at Ohio State which is composed of both students and faculty, Corbato said.

should get a booster unless they received a booster after 1980.

The Wilce Health Center is providing free vaccinations only to those who have had direct contact with an infected person. Smith said the health center is giving about 130 vaccinations per day.

Smith advises students who are diagnosed with measles to go home and isolate themselves. The dormitories are providing sick trays for students who have measles and cannot go home.

Measles start like a cold with coughing, runny nose, fever and eyes that water and are sensitive to light but develop into a rash on the face by the fourth day. The red blotches continue and move down the remainder of the body, he said.

A person is infectious four days before and four days after the symptoms, Smith said.

After diagnosis all that can be done for a measles victim is supportive care such as drinking plenty of water, treating the fever and getting plenty of rest, Smith said. Measles can develop into ear aches, pneumonia or brain fever, and can lead to missing weeks of class, he said.

Potential for a major campus outbreak exists, so university health officials are working with residence halls, fraternities and sororities and the Ohio Department of Health to limit the outbreak, Smith said.

Payton said although there has been a decrease in the number of reported cases, he hopes that is not due to an incubation period that could lead to another uprise of cases across the state.

Dr. Wilburn H. Weddington, associate professor of family medicine said measles can endanger the fetus of a pregnant woman by causing infection during the first trimester of pregnancy.

Weddington said this can cause malformations in the child.

He added that recently, many adolescents have not been vaccinated, and this can expose the fetus to the virus.

Athletic officials at OSU expressed concern about the use of the drug, but suggested additional methods to discourage steroid use.

Archie Griffin, assistant athletic director at OSU, said he supports Schuck's legislation. Griffin, a recipient of two Heisman Trophies during the 1970s and a former player for the Cincinnati Bengals, said he thinks education is the best way to discourage the use of steroids.

He said the use of the drug has increased since he was a collegiate and professional athlete. Griffin said the use of steroids in athletics was unfair, false and unreal.

"Athletics are always going to be important to people," Griffin said. "They will always be looking for advantages to get bigger, stronger and better. What they should realize is there's no real easy way to do that. It takes a lot of hard work and dedication to the sport."

According to athletic department policy, drug testing for steroids and other substances is mandatory for students who are athletes, coaches, trainers, managers and equipment handlers. Drug testing is voluntary for full-time coaches, trainers and staff members.

An athlete who tests positive four times is removed from all team and athletic department functions for one year.

Richard Finn, a special assistant to the athletic director, would not give the number of random or announced tests that will be made this year. Finn supervises the athletic department's drug testing, counseling and education programs. He said he didn't know if the proposed law would slow steroid use in amateur and professional sports.

Finn said athletes have to be taught steroids are unsafe and coaches need to discourage their use by setting realistic goals for athletes. Peer pressure is the best way to solve the problem, he said.

"I don't know if a law will work or if it will chase them (users) further underground," Finn said.

Finn said steroid legislation would be similar to the prohibition of alcohol. He said laws against possession of alcoholic beverages did not decrease consumption but made people perform criminal acts to obtain the substance.

"As long as the demand is there, people will sell it," he said. Chuck Klink, the athletic department's substance abuse counselor, also compared the legislation to Prohibition. He said the declining rate of alcohol-related illness during that time proved laws could deter use.

He said he supports harsher penalties for those who are caught using steroids.

He said steroid use at Ohio State is lower than use at other large universities because of the drug testing program. However, he said the potential for abuse of alcohol, marijuana and cocaine among OSU athletes should be a greater concern.

"Student athletes are no different than run-of-the-mill students," he said. "Their alcohol use resembles that of the general population."

USG brings 'Zoo Day' to campus

By Jannette Dugan
Lantern staff writer

Students will have an opportunity to see exotic animals today on campus.

A Zoo Day sponsored by the Undergraduate Student Government will be held from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. in the Conference Theater on the second floor of the Ohio Union.

Jason Fought, coordinator of Zoo Day and USG director of cultural awareness, said the event was originally to be held at the Mirror Lake Amphitheatre but due to cold temperatures and rain, it has been moved indoors.

"Hopefully students will attend so they can find out more information about animals and also about USG," Fought said.

Jack Hanna, director of the Columbus Zoo will be present to talk with students about animal awareness and discuss animals on exhibit at the zoo.

Hanna will bring a wallaby, which is a baby kangaroo, a boa constrictor, a hawk, and other animals from the zoo.

Athena Yiamouyiannis, USG president, said, "The event will be a USG awareness day which students can get involved in and learn about animals also."

From 11 a.m. until 3 p.m., up to 15 various animal and environmental groups will have informational tables located in the hallway outside of the Conference Theater. These tables will contain information regarding animal awareness.

The Humane Society, The Sierra Club, The Nature Conservancy and Protect Our Earth Treasures will be among a few of Jack Hanna, shown here holding a cougar, will be appearing on campus and bringing several animals for students to see between 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the Ohio Union Conference Theater.

The organizations set up at the south end of the hallway.

Fought said in appreciation for Hanna speaking at the event, USG is planning to adopt a Japanese macaque, or snow monkey. The adoption will cost $170 which will be used toward the animal's care for the coming year.

Fought said this will be the first year USG has sponsored a Zoo Day and would like to see it become an annual event.

Amnesty group to create awareness of injustices

By Eric Hagely
Lantern staff writer

The OSU branch of Amnesty International will hold a 34-hour vigil today and Wednesday to create public awareness about the current abuse of human rights in various countries.

Jim Laird, OSU group coordinator, said the vigil began at 6 a.m. this morning and will continue until 4 p.m. Wednesday and is being held between the Main Library and University Hall.

Laird, a senior from Columbus majoring in genetics, said a mock prison cell will hold group members and students who are representing current prisoners of conscience who are being held by the government because of their political beliefs.

"This is a good way of informing people about political injustice," said Kevin Sweeney, a senior from Powell majoring in engineering. "It's non-political, so you don't take sides, you just work to help human rights injustice."

Tables are set up to supply information about the group," he said.

"THROUGH THE vigil, we'll be encouraging passers-by to sign letters to have prisoners released throughout the world," said Abe Bonowitz, a non-student member from Columbus. "These letters will be sent to heads of state, prison wardens or police chiefs, whatever the case may be."

Sweeney said the key to the release of political prisoners is thousands of people working together.

"This is a good way of informing people about political injustice."

— Kevin Sweeney

Bonowitz said Amnesty International works for the release of all prisoners of conscience, for fair and prompt trials for political prisoners and to end torture and executions.

"Somebody could be in prison for their political views and be considered a prisoner of conscience, as long as they haven't used violence or advocated the use of violence," Laird said. "When they fall outside that, we don't work for their release, we work for a fair and prompt trial."

Laird said the group works for all prisoners.

"ONE OF the things Amnesty works for is to try and be balanced," Laird said. "We will criticize any government including the U.S. and England if needed. Kenya and Czechoslovakia are two of the cases we are working on now, so we represent both sides of the 'iron curtain.'"

Letters are being written today to political prisoners and will be sent to the governments holding these people, Laird said.

"Amnesty is set up like a grassroots organization which has groups in more than 150 countries. Most of those are known as adoption groups, like Columbus, where their membership is stable and can work for a prisoner for years," he said. "The college group has a high turnover, so what they do is send us a newsletter with the names of three to six cases to work on for that month."

There are about 1000 college groups across the nation, Laird said.

Shuttle Atlantis repaired, ready for Thursday launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA rescheduled Monday the once-aborted launch of space shuttle Atlantis for Thursday afternoon after technicians working around the clock did a "bang-up job" in replacing two faulty fuel system parts.

The space agency said in a statement that "this plan is optimistic ... pending completion of testing and analysis to understand clearly the problems encountered during Friday's launch attempt."

But officials said they were confident enough of making a Thursday launch that they gave the signal to start a new countdown at 8 a.m. Tuesday for the first shuttle planetary launch.

The five astronauts aboard Atlantis are to propel the $550 million Magellan spacecraft toward Venus to map its cloud-veiled surface.

The launch opportunity "window" on Thursday is 64 minutes long.

The launch was scrubbed Friday, 31 seconds before the planned liftoff, because of a sudden electrical surge in a hydrogen fuel pump. NASA said Monday that tiny metal particles found in the pump may have caused a short circuit.

After the launch was postponed, engineers also discovered a pinhole leak in a 4-inch-diameter line that carries liquid hydrogen from the external fuel tank to the shuttle.

Officials had said Sunday that Friday was the earliest launch possibility. But with the replacement work going so well, they said Monday that a Thursday launch was possible.

"This is a very dedicated team here," said Warren Wiley, deputy director of engineering at the Kennedy Space Center, speaking of the repair crew. "When the chips are down they really get out and hustle. They did a bangup job."

The Ancient Forest Rescue Expedition will offer an evening of music, pictures and information about the old growth forests of the Pacific Northwest tonight at 8 p.m. in the Ohio Union Conference Theater.

The expedition is a group of people from Washington who are fighting to save the ancient forests. They will be bringing a Douglas Fir tree log, which was over 500 years old when it was cut down.

The 30-foot-long, 6-foot-diameter log travels on an 18-wheel truck. It is used to publicize the crucial issue of deforestation in the Pacific Northwest.

In an interview with the Columbus Free Press, Jack Sprout of the expedition, said people who may not have felt the issue before can see that these ancient trees are being destroyed.

Art league shows work

Artists use 'word art' to convey social message to their viewers

An OSU doctoral candidate and two other university-affiliated individuals are exhibiting work in a gallery show sponsored by the Columbus Art League from May 1 to June 16.

The show, "Words of Art," is a six-person exhibit based on the idea that art doesn't have to be strictly visual, said Terri Maloney Houston, executive director of the organization.

She said this show is part of the League's ongoing series of exhibitions. The series began in mid-1987 and each show runs for about two months.

"Our exhibits showcase Columbus Art League members with common interests," Houston said. "They give members a chance to exhibit their work and give the public the chance to see it."

SHE SAID each show exhibits quality work. Members apply for shows, and their work is judged by a panel of art professionals.

Judith Beckman, an OSU doctoral candidate in art education, is one of the six individuals participating in "Words of Art." Her contribution to the show is several mixed media pieces blending language and images.

When asked about what inspires her, Beckman explained her work in more detail.

"I don't know if inspiration is the right thing to say," she said. "My work deals with feminist and autobiographical experiences, as well as formal concerns."

Beckman said the feminist content of her work comments on the absence of female representation in art history.

SHE SAID her studies in the history of art influence both her work and teaching when she occasionally teaches a course at Ohio State on the history of women artists.

Beckman further explained her motivation by describing one of her works. The piece is a mixed media work containing pictures of female artists, images of works done by female artists and titles of art history text books.

The piece shows how women have traditionally been left out of the history of art, she said, ignoring years of important contributions.

Beckman has exhibited her work both nationally and internationally, including Los Angeles, Denver, New Orleans, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Copenhagen, Denmark; and Bologna, Italy.

John M. Bennett, a former assistant Spanish professor at OSU and the current Latin American editor and bibliographic assistant for the OSU Libraries, is also exhibiting his work in the Columbus Art League show.

BENNETT SAID his portion of the show, approximately 16 drawings, is a unique kind of work.

"It's 'word art'," he said, "a term meaning language used as art." He said the process appealed to him particularly because of his interest in poetry.

"I'm an artist and a poet, but poetry is the center of my activity," Bennett said. "I can use the visual field as other ways of promoting what I do in my writing."

Other interests like music also added to his poetry and art, he added.

Kent N. Bowser will be exhibiting examples of his photography at "Words of Art."

BOWSER RECEIVED bachelor of science and master's degrees in photography, and a bachelor of arts degree in history of art from Ohio State.

Also included in the exhibition are mixed media works by Kris Harrison and collage pieces by Jeffrey Briggs and Claire Robertson.

The exhibition is located on three floors of the First Avenue Office Center at 929 Harrison Avenue. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The public is invited to the official opening reception for the show on May 6 from 6-9 p.m. Many of the exhibiting artists will be present.

Opening day lively at Disney

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — The Disney-MGM Studios theme park opened to the public Monday with a ceremony complete with comedian Bob Hope and a shower of gifts for the first family to enter the $400 million attraction.

"It's overwhelming," said Allan Gutierrez of York, Pa., who camped outside the turnstiles with his family since 2 a.m., six hours before the gates opened. "We never expected anything like this."

Gutierrez, his wife, two teen-age daughters and father-in-law were honored by Hope and Disney Chairman Michael Eisner at an outdoor stage at the end of re-created Hollywood Boulevard and in front of the Chinese Theater.

Costumed performers sang and danced, several hundred white doves were released overhead, and fireworks lit up the cloudy skies as the Gutierrez family was introduced to opening-day visitors.

There were no official estimates of the crowd, but Disney had anticipated that by the end of the day at least 15,000 people would visit the attraction blending movie and TV production with a backstage tour and other activities for the public.

The theme of the park is the golden age of Hollywood in the 1930s and 1940s. It is Walt Disney World's third major attraction, after the original Magic Kingdom and Epcot Center nearby.

Hope quipped that this was "the largest theme park run by actors and cartoon characters — unless you want to count Washington, D.C."

The Gutierrez family received lifetime passes to Disney attractions worldwide, silver-colored Mickey Mouse ears and a 9-inch statuette called Mouse-ker, patterned after moviedom's Oscar award.

"We didn't know anything about a first family. We just wanted to be here early to be sure and see everything today before we go home," said Mrs. Gutierrez.

Eisner told the crowd that the park is "dedicated to Hollywood ... a world that never was and always will be."

HAPPENINGS

NEW YORK (AP) — The smell of marijuana wafted through the air, and plenty of iced beer was on hand as about 2,000 people lined up to buy tickets for The Who's reunion concert.

During the weekend, some of the fans huddled under small tents, braved rain and chilly temperatures outside Radio City Music Hall for a shot at the tickets, priced from $75 to $2,000.

Amy Yankowitz, a Manhattan

legal secretary, claimed the first spot in line by getting there Friday night. She slept through rain showers, chased scalpers away from her spot and then learned that the tickets were going to be issued by lottery.

Promoters allowed those in line to draw a bracelet from a box. The bracelets, numbered from one to 500, allowed the bearer to return this morning and claim a place in line according to the number drawn. Each person is limited to two tickets.

The British rock band will be performing its rock opera "Tommy" in its entirety for the first time in 17 years.

"Is it worth it? Yeah, I worship this band!" said Yankowitz, who saw The Who perform at Shea Stadium in the group's farewell tour in 1982.

Buckeye draftees evaluated

Draft's final pick has shot to make Vikes

Will any of the Buckeyes drafted last week play in the NFL? How did the Bengals do in the draft? How about the Browns?

These questions are being heard frequently throughout the campus. As far as answers, well, let's see...

The Miami Dolphins made OSU All-American center Jeff Uhlenhake their fifth round pick. The Miami center spot was held by perennial All-Pro Dwight Stephenson until he suffered a knee injury last season and was cut. Jeff Dellenbach replaced him last year, but may be needed at tackle this year. If that move is made, Uhlenhake could see a lot of playing time.

Running back Vince Workman, who led Ohio State in rushing in 1987 before being declared ineligible in '88, was taken by Green Bay in the fifth round. He faces a severe numbers problem as the Packers have their top four runners (Brent Fullwood, Paul Ott Carruth, Keith Woods and Larry Mason) back and through free agency, trades and the draft have acquired another eight backs.

Workman is among 13 guys competing for five, maybe six spots. His best chance appears to be as a kick returner.

Defensive tackle Derek MacCready, who emerged to start all 11 games in '88, was selected in the ninth round by the Detroit Lions. MacCready will pass up an offer from his native Canada to give the NFL a shot.

The Lions lost three of their six defensive linemen to free agency, but also drafted two linemen ahead of MacCready and have one starting tackle (Jerry Ball) back.

Wide receiver Everett Ross was the final player chosen in the draft, going to the Minnesota Vikings in the 12th round. The Vikings have five solid receivers, led by Anthony Carter and Hassan Jones.

Ross' best bet is to stick as a kick/punt returner since Vikings' incumbent Leo Lewis is a nine year veteran. There he can bide his time until a receiver spot opens.

Detroit, which was pleased as punch with a former OSU linebacker named Chris Spielman last year, signed outside linebacker Mike McCray late last week as a free agent. McCray, a preseason All-American candidate, was not drafted due to a pulled lower abdominal muscle that sidelined him in '88.

McCray's battle to make the roster is straight uphill as the Lions' top five linebackers (Spielman, Dennis Gibson, Mike Cofer, George Jamison and Jimmy Williams) are still wearing silver and blue.

THE BENGALS and their General Manager Paul Brown do not have to worry about signing a first round pick this year because they traded it away.

It was, however, a smart move to send Atlanta the 27th overall pick in the first round for the Falcons' early second round choice and a slew of later choices. The Bengals took UCLA running back Eric Ball with the second round choice.

Ball, 6-1, 215 pounds, rushed for 1,984 yards and averaged 4.9 yards per carry in an injury-abbreviated career. He adds depth to the Bengal backfield since Stanley Wilson got the boot and James Brooks, 31, is aging.

Arkansas guard Freddie Childress (6-3, 345) came later in the second round to bolster an offensive line hit by injuries and free agent losses. Oregon State quarterback Erik Wilhelm, the Pacific 10's all-time leading passer and practically a Boomer Esiason clone, adds depth.

The "sleeper" could be California nose tackle Natu Tuatagaloa who was a fifth round choice. Bengals incumbents Tim Krumrie (broken leg from Super Bowl) and Mike Hammerstein (knee) are wounded.

The Bengals allowed other teams to pluck nine of their unprotected free agents, while not signing any. Hence, the slew of middle round picks was necessary to rebuild depth. A problem could arise if one or two key starters are injured early (five starters are still recovering from 1988 injuries), and an inexperienced player has to play.

CLEVELAND RESTRUCTURED its team with the future in mind.

Earnest Byner, the team's main rushing and receiving threat in recent years, was dealt to Washington for kick returner Mike Oliphant. The Redskins got the better of that deal, but it cleared the way for the Browns' first round selection, Texas running back Eric Metcalf.

Metcalf, son of former Cardinals standout Terry Metcalf, brings a new aspect — quickness — to the Cleveland attack.

Cleveland sent special teams star Herman Fontenot and next year's first round pick to Green Bay for a second round pick, which became Auburn wideout Lawyer Tillman (6-4, 223). Tillman has the size to beat small defensive backs, but there is talk of shifting him to tight end to replace Ozzie Newsome.

Linebacker Mike Junkin, the '88 first round selection, never worked out and was dealt to Kansas City for a fifth rounder (wideout Vernon Joines).

The Browns' strategy was the exact opposite of Cincinnati's. Cleveland opted to stock up over the winter with 14 experienced free agents. Then, at the draft, they traded the bulk of their middle round picks this year and in the future for higher picks (Metcalf and Tillman) and perhaps an impact player now.

It will be interesting to see if either team's strategy pays off in the '89 NFL campaign.

Women's tennis team places 9th

By C.R. Barclay
Lantern sports writer

If an Ohio State team is going to finish ninth in the Big Ten, Michigan might as well finish tenth.

The OSU women's tennis team finished its season with a victory over Michigan to claim ninth-place in the Big Ten Championships, and sent Michigan to the conference basement.

Ohio State's 5-4 victory over the Wolverines not only gave the team its only win at the conference championships, but avenged a 7-2 loss to Michigan earlier this season.

Michigan, which had visited Columbus to help Ohio State open its spring schedule, was looking to duplicate its win earned in April.

Holding Michigan to just three wins in the singles portion of competition, Ohio State won with its season-long strength of doubles play.

Ohio State, behind the combinations of Kelly Story/Dana Zanville and Susan Mitchell/Amy Marzluff, brought home the victory with impressive wins.

Story/Zanville, who were named second team all-Big Ten in doubles, defeated Wendy Stross and Stacy Berg 6-2, 6-1. Both Story and Zanville were also winners in their individual matches.

Mitchell and Marzluff had a slow start in their match against Michigan's Amy Malik and Anna Schork, losing the first set 5-7, but came on strong, winning the final two sets 6-1, 6-3.

"Things were much brighter this time, Marzluff said. "The last time we played them (Michigan) we were having some problems and not playing well. This time we really played much better."

Ohio State bounced back from two previous losses on the weekend to avoid a last-place finish in the standings. It marks the fourth consecutive year the Buckeyes have finished either at or above its seeding (the Buckeyes were seeded ninth) in the tournament.

We were really motivated to win because no one wants to be last," senior Michele DeCosmo said.

Ohio State, which set a goal of fifth place at the outset of the tournament, suffered an early setback, losing its opening round match to Illinois Friday.

The 5-3 defeat to the Illini demoted Ohio State to the losers bracket battle with Michigan State. Against Illinois, Ohio State managed just one singles victory with the other wins being in doubles.

Marzluff put the close defeats in the Big Ten into some perspective.

"The bottom five teams are so evenly matched that on any given day anyone could of won," Marzluff said. "Nothing was expected from us so we surprised some people."

Zanville, who did not lose a singles match all weekend, was the lone winner against Illinois in singles, defeating Linda Gates 1-6, 6-3, 7-5. Zanville also won in doubles, teaming with Story to post a 6-2, 6-2 win over Illinois.

"I was happy with my performance but disappointed with our finish," Zanville said. "We expected to do better in the singles matches."

Ohio State played Michigan State Saturday with hopes of turning its fortune around. The Spartans were not accommodating as they held Ohio State to just one singles victory in posting a 5-1 victory.

Zanville again recorded the lone victory in singles as she easily handled Michigan State's Alexis Hilbert 6-3, 6-3.

Despite winning only one match, Ohio State challenged in all matches as senior Michele DeCosmo and freshman Amy Marzluff won sets but were unable to win their matches.

DeCosmo, a senior from Illinois, does not think the losses are a sign of failure or not being ready to play in the Big Ten.

"I think the team was confident going into the tournament," DeCosmo said. "What it comes down to is who wants to stay out there the longest to win. The girl I played raised her game to another level to beat me."

DeCosmo said the experience will help the younger players next year. She said this team is special from past teams she's been on and she will miss them.

"In the past there were some people on the team who were just teammates, but this group is so close it will be difficult to say goodbye," she said.

New Bengal quarterback just a 'baby'

Oregon State left-handed record setter looks to earn third-string status

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rookie Erik Wilhelm, who has a shot at making the Cincinnati Bengals' roster as the No. 3 quarterback, says it took him only one weekend in the team's rookie camp to realize he has a lot to learn.

At Oregon State, Wilhelm set the Pacific 10 Conference's all-time career passing record with 9,393 yards, surpassing John Elway's 9,349 yards at Stanford, set from 1979 through 1982.

"Even though I did a lot of things at Oregon State, I realize from being here now that I'm still in the baby stages," Wilhelm said.

Wilhelm set every total offense, passing game, season and career record at Oregon State, breaking or tying 33 school and conference records in his four-year career as a starter.

Of all the highly rated quarterbacks in the PAC-10 conference, Wilhelm tied UCLA's Troy Aikman, the first pick in the draft, for honorable mention on the all-PAC-10 team. Timm Rosenbach of Washington State, who hopes to be selected in the NFL's supplemental draft, was first team, and Southern California's Rodney Peete, drafted by Detroit in the sixth round, was second team.

Wilhelm and fellow rookie quarterback Bob Jean, the Bengals' 10th-round draft pick out of New Hampshire, figure to get most of the action at quarterback this weekend when the Bengals conduct their off-season mini-camp for veteran players. That is because Cincinnati starter Boomer Esiason is still nursing a sore throwing shoulder from last season, and veteran backup Turk Schonert is staying out of this weekend's physical workouts because he has not signed a 1989 contract.

"We'll go through a weekend where (Wilhelm and Jean) will get more work than anybody else. That might turn out to be good for everybody in the long run," Bengals coach Sam Wyche said. Wyche repeated his belief that he isn't overly concerned about Esiason and anticipates that Esiason will be ready for the Bengals' preseason training camp at Wilmington in July.

"I talked to Boomer last week and he said the soreness in his shoulder is down to a pinpointed spot. He'll be ready come training camp," Wyche said.

Wilhelm has a strong arm and is considered an accurate passer. Wyche likes his poise under pressure and the fact that he appears to have been trained in the pro football style of offense.

"There were 10 or 11 that fit the same mold. We took Erik because he was one of those players," Wyche said, explaining Cincinnati's decision to draft Wilhelm.

Wilhelm bears a slight resemblance to Esiason, with blond hair and a strong left-handed delivery. But, Wyche said the comparison ends there.

"The personalities are completely different, their styles are different," Wyche said. "And Erik isn't as big as Boomer. Erik's about 6-2 and Boomer's closer to 6-5."

Wilhelm was born in Dayton, Ohio, while his father, a technical sergeant, was stationed at nearby Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. His father was a medical lab research technician, whose military career ended when he decided to moonlight as a test subject for the Air Force.

"He took this assignment to test ejection seats," Wilhelm said. "I guess he needed the extra money. Anyway, he broke his back testing an ejection seat and was given a medical discharge from the Air Force."

Listerine pulled from Wal-Mart shelves

(AP) — Wal-Mart Stores Inc. pulled Listerine from shelves in 26 states because an Arkansas woman reported her mouth was burned after using the product, but initial tests showed the mouthwash was not contaminated, officials said Sunday.

The incident was believed to be isolated and the woman reported only mouth irritation, Wal-Mart spokesman Don Shinkle said from company headquarters in Bentonville, Ark.

However, "we choose not take any chances," Shinkle said. "Wal-Mart Stores has temporarily removed Listerine mouthwash from the shelves of all Wal-Mart Stores."

The suspect bottle, and others gathered from Wal-Mart Stores, were flown for testing Sunday to the Morris Plains, N.J., headquarters of Listerine's manufacturer, Warner-Lambert Co., Warner-Lambert spokesman Barry Cohen said Sunday night.

Cohen said initial analytical tests done on the bottle in the company's laboratory "show it's just Listerine."

Another test will be conducted Monday to identify the quantity of each ingredient in the mouthwash, he said.

"We're producing a lot of Listerine. It's a 125-year-old product. It's shipped around the country. If there's some problem with the product we would have received other calls, but we haven't," Cohen said.

The woman bought the mouthwash at a Wal-Mart Store in Rogers, Ark., and complained that her mouth was red and irritated after using it on Saturday, Shinkle said. She later sought treatment from a dentist.

Wal-Mart has stores in the following 26 states: Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

Men arrested in Morrill after stealing backpack

Two men from Mentor were arrested Saturday night on the third floor of Morrill Tower, OSU Police said.

Police were called to the recreation room by a female student who said two men had taken her backpack, Deputy Chief Richard Harp said.

The student found her backpack in an elevator and gave the police a description of the suspects, Harp said.

The same woman called the police about half an hour later, and said the suspects were back on the third floor, Harp said.

Police entered the room and saw two men opposite the vending machines. One of them put something in his pants, Harp said.

When police asked Leo A. Omanski, 20, what he put in his pants, he took out a bag of marijuana. Omanski, of 8356 Fairfax Drive in Mentor, was arrested on charges of drug abuse and disorderly conduct because he appeared to be under the influence of drugs or alcohol, Harp said.

Douglas Coughlan, 19, of 8311 Mentorwood, in Mentor, was taken to the lobby so police could verify his guest pass. He became unruly and began to take his clothes off, Harp said.

Coughlan was charged with public indecency and disorderly conduct, Harp said.

Couple arrested; bicycle returned

A Columbus couple was arrested

Wednesday in connection with the theft and possession of criminal tools, OSU Police said.

Steve H. Reed Jr., 38, and Betty J. Reed, 28, of 1000 E. 17th Ave., were arrested after police saw them cutting a bicycle from the racks on the north side of the Main Library, Deputy Chief Richard Harp said.

The woman was riding the bike and the man was walking beside her when police approached them, Harp said.

A search of the woman's purse revealed a bike lock chain and a cutting instrument, Harp said.

The bike was returned to the owner, Harp said.

Thatcher, Kohl divided on nuclear weapon cutbacks

DEIDESHEIM, West Germany (AP) — After discussing West Germany's demand for early talks on cuts in short-range nuclear weapons, Chancellor Helmut Kohl and Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain remained firmly divided on what has become a major NATO dispute.

Both leaders reported making little progress during an afternoon of talks Sunday on an issue that has split the alliance, describing their talks as frank and intensive.

Kohl assured Thatcher of his country's firm allegiance to NATO, whose leaders meet in Brussels at the end of the month for a summit.

The West German leader's call last week for prompt superpower negotiations on short-range nuclear weapons has placed him in a battle of wills with Thatcher and United States President George Bush.

"We still have quite a lot of work to do," Kohl told reporters during a joint news conference with Thatcher after Sunday's talks in this village west of the Rhine River city of Mannheim.

However, Kohl said he thought the issue could be worked out before the Brussels summit. Thatcher also expressed optimism, but stressed that all North Atlantic Treaty Organization nations need to agree on a common position.

The British leader said any suggestion of eliminating short-range nuclear weapons in Europe is unacceptable and dangerous. At one point, she appeared to question Kohl's position on the issue.

"I'm sure Mr. Kohl will correct me if I have misunderstood him on this issue," Thatcher said.

Kohl responded by having his interpreter read a line from his speech to Parliament last week in which he rejected the total elimination of the tactical nuclear weapons under the present balance of military forces in Europe.

Washington and London say talks on reducing short-range nuclear arsenals should not begin as long as the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact has a superiority in conventional forces. They also argue that it would be hard to stop talks from ending in the total elimination of short-range forces that Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev advocates.

The West Germans say superpower arms talks should be attempted on a broad scale in light of the current disarmament climate in Moscow. They remind their allies that most of NATO's short-range nuclear weapons are based in West Germany and would be used exclusively on German soil in the event of war.

Critics of the West German position say it divides and weakens the alliance at a time NATO must show unity on defense.

Thatcher said elimination of short-term weapons would mean the "Soviet Union will have achieved its objective of getting land-based nuclear weapons out of Europe. This I believe would be disastrous."

Throughout the 40-minute news conference, Thatcher repeatedly returned to the topic of flexible response and the necessity of upgrading NATO's aging tactical weapons arsenal.

"Flexible response is not just something you mouth," Thatcher said. "Strength must continue not only in words; strength has to be translated into weaponry."

Separate agendas keep Quayles apart in Pacific

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Marilyn Quayle is keeping an independent schedule and pursuing a separate agenda as she tours the Pacific with her husband, Vice President Dan Quayle.

In Australia, the Quayles' first stop on their 12-day trip, Mrs. Quayle frequently went her own way.

While Quayle visited a pub, she toured a children's hospital; while he met with Australian Prime Minister Bob Hawke, she went sightseeing at the national art gallery; while he dropped by a tennis clinic, she taught an elementary school class; and when he teed off for golf, she signed up for a tennis lesson.

"If you want to go out and see the country, go with Marilyn," Quayle said at the beginning of the trip. He called her schedule the "more interesting" of the two.

Since Quayle assumed office a little over three months ago, Mrs. Quayle, 39, has kept a low profile, rarely granting interviews and jealously guarding her family's privacy.

An attorney by training, Mrs. Quayle has not practiced her profession in over a decade, though she told a group of school children in Melbourne, Australia, that she wouldn't mind returning to law.

"In my original job, I was a lawyer, but since my husband became vice president, I've had a lot of duties to perform for him," she said.

"So, I'm not sure I can practice law, although I would like to."

Having apparently ruled out that career path for now, questions have arisen over how Mrs. Quayle plans to define her new role.

Barbara Bush, for instance, used the second lady's slot as a platform to promote literacy, and Nancy Reagan pushed the "Just Say No" program to fight drugs when she was first lady.

Before the Quayles left on their trip, the vice president was asked what role his wife would adopt.

Quayle made light of the question, responding, "She has a very major cause, and a very major interest. ... A very complex and consuming issue with her — and that is me."

But on this trip, Mrs. Quayle made it clear she had her own interests, interests which often kept her out of her husband's way when he dealt with substantive topics such as grain exports.

"In addition to her official duties, she will also pursue her interest in disaster relief and disaster preparedness," Mrs. Quayle's office said in a statement explaining her trip schedule.

In Canberra, Mrs. Quayle was briefed on Australia's national disasters organization, a group that responds to floods, cyclones and other such events.

In Indonesia, Mrs. Quayle will travel from the capital to learn about coping with volcanic eruptions, and in Singapore, she'll find out about cleaning up oil spills.

Gingrich says GOP too soft, calls for hard line on Wright

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newt Gingrich seems to be taking out his frustrations on the pavement as he sets off on a 6 a.m. walk down Washington's Mall.

The morning newspaper includes a poll showing that two-thirds of Americans aren't paying much attention to the ethics problems of House Speaker Jim Wright and just 37 percent know that he's a Democrat. Gingrich, the newly elected No. 2 leader of House Republicans, is annoyed.

"My party is simply not an aggressive, tough competitor compared to the Democrats," he says, in full stride in hiking boots and a sweatshirt as the sun begins to rise on the dogwoods and azaleas on the Capitol lawn.

"Given a comparable problem at any given moment, Republicans are slower and softer and vaguer. We are not in the habit of going out and being tough. We're in the habit of being a minority."

What should the Republicans be doing in the case of Jim Wright, who has been charged by the ethics committee with 69 violations of House rules?

"Here's a chance to say over and over again, 'It's sad, but you can understand after 35 consecutive years of being in power why the Democrats are having a hard time,'" Gingrich says, making his favorite link between power and corruption.

"Republicans have a chance to communicate what's wrong with the way the House is currently run. We're not using it. It's as though somebody filled up a theater for us, and our side decided not to perform."

'No grades, no parties' rule self-imposed by fraternities

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Scott Leffel straddled a motor scooter behind the Sigma Alpha Epsilon house and reflected on a future prerequisite for fraternity parties at Washington State University: good grades.

"I'm not too happy with it, actually," said Leffel, a sophomore. "It seems like the university is continually working against us rather than with us."

But the "no grades, no parties" rule that will take effect next year wasn't the brainstrom of a scheming college dean trying to rid the campus of an "Animal House."

The Greeks, often considered synonymous with parties, imposed this rule on themselves to bolster their image and academic standing.

Beginning next spring semester, a fraternity will have to forgo parties for two weeks for every 0.05 point that its grade-point average for the preceding fall semester falls below the average GPA for all male undergraduates.

The rule, believed to be the first of its kind for an entire campus fraternity system, was adopted by the Intrafraternity Council on a 22-1 vote of chapter presidents. The 16,000-student school has 25 fraternities with a total of 1,400 members.

Council vice president Tom Gallagher said his fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, would have been pinched if partying penalties had been imposed based on last fall's grades. But that hasn't dampened his enthusiasm for the rule he helped develop.

Gallagher and council president Gary Downing said the policy attracted much interest at a Western regional conference of fraternities they attended recently in Oakland, Calif.

"The IFC leadership wanted to send a message that kind of flew in the face of the stereotypical perception of Greeks, that all they're here for is to party," said Jack Burns, fraternities coordinator for the Residence Life and Housing office. He said he wasn't aware of a similar campus-wide rule anywhere else.

Some fraternity brothers question the correlation between grade point average and keggers, though.

Man who ended son's life center of law controversy

CHICAGO (AP) — The fate of a man who held hospital workers at bay as he disconnected his comatose son from a life-support machine is at the heart of a controversy over laws governing hopelessly ill children.

Rudy Linares has been released on bail after being charged with first-degree murder for removing his severely brain-damaged, 16-month-old son from a life-support system.

A tearful Linares, the father of two other children, cradled the boy in his arms Wednesday until the child died.

The boy was to be buried today in a private service at which his father was expected to attend.

Prosecutors, the hospital and the boy's doctor contend that laws prohibit anyone from disconnecting mechanical life-support, even from severely brain-damaged youngsters who are not expected to recover.

On the other side are defense lawyers, other physicians and attorneys who argue that the same laws, along with court rulings and accepted practice, protect doctors and parents from criminal liability when they decide to end futile treatment.

"It is our fervent hope that a case like this doesn't become a precedent or a landmark because the issues are so unclear. They are so murky at this point," said Richard Scholz, the public defender for Linares.

Linares, 23, a house painter from suburban Cicero, and his 21-year-old wife, Tamara, had requested months ago that life-support be withdrawn from their son, Samuel, who swallowed a balloon at a birthday party in August and almost suffocated. But hospital officials say the family did not seek the required court order.

Despite extensive medical efforts to revive him when the accident occurred, the boy was "definitely in a state of irreversible vegetative coma," said his physician, Dr. Gilbert Goldman. "My opinion was that recovery was not possible."

But there is no legal precedent for turning off the respirator that kept Samuel alive, said Goldman, director of pediatric intensive care at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center.

"It is our fervent hope that a case like this doesn't become a precedent or a landmark because the issues are so unclear. They are so murky at this point."

— Richard Scholz

Max Brown, a hospital lawyer, said Goldman and the hospital could have left themselves open to prosecution under Illinois child-abuse laws or, worse, been charged with murdering the boy.

"He was not brain-dead," Brown said. "He was not dead according to any legally or medically accepted criteria."

Such a criterion is not required under any existing laws, said Fenella Rouse, legal director of the Society for the Right to Die in New York City.

"In a case like this for a child, withdrawing ventilator support is not the least bit controversial," she said in a telephone interview Friday.

Courts in Florida, Michigan and Georgia have supported the decisions of parents to end life-support in such cases, Rouse said, and "most importantly, nobody has ruled to the contrary."

Moreover, Linares is wrongly charged with murder for disconnecting his son from the ventilator, she said.

"There's no doubt about it — it's legal. It's just as legal for the father to do it as for the hospital to do it," she said.

Rouse noted that murder charges in a 1983 California case against two physicians who withdrew life-support from an adult man were struck down.

"I think it's conceivable he could be charged with trespass, or illegal use of a handgun, or threatening behavior, but as far as I understand criminal law, he cannot be charged with something like this," she said of Linares.

Prosecutors disagree.

"Under no circumstances does any person have the right to take the life of another," said Cook County State's Attorney Cecil A. Partee, who added he could understand the emotions of a distraught parent in such a case.

The Linares family had been advised early about the possibility of obtaining an order in Cook County Circuit Court for the hospital to disconnect the ventilator, and the hospital would have been supportive, Brown said.

"Why they did not do that, I don't know," he said.
