7 "OBJECTORS" TO RETURN FEE CARDS AT ONCE

University Religious Council Sends Letter of Protest to President.

Complying with President Rightmire's order to turn in their fee cards or enroll in military science classes, those of seven conscientious objectors who had not already done so, were preparing to turn in their fee cards today, Charles B. Hart, A-3, spokesman for the group said.

The action, whatever its finality, climaxes almost two weeks of controversy that saw 15 of 31 objectors exempted who appeared before the President's committee to plead conscientious exemption.

The seven who chose to battle the decision of the committee after being refused are: Robert A. Ralph, Donald B. Leach, Paul D. Sutley, David Telfair, Douglas Dobson, Robert R. Hare, and Richard D. Baumgardner.

Groups Send Letters

The University Religious Council entered the controversy over the week-end with an open letter of protest sent to President Rightmire and signed by ministers and church workers in the University district.

Reverend W. Arthur Milne, director of the Indianola Student Center and assistant pastor of the Indianola Methodist Episcopal Church, who is president of the Council led the group in a denial that the University has the right to judge a student's religious convictions. The committee appointed by President Rightmire was termed "not properly constituted" and the exemptions denied upon "inadequate evidence," the council said in the letter sent to the president.

Three hundred and thirteen students and faculty representatives of Antioch College met at Yellow Springs Thursday night and organized to arouse public opinion and to contact groups on every college campus in the state. The Antioch students earlier in the week had signed a petition expressing sympathy with the position taken by conscientious objectors here.

Routed by fire, Gillette K. Martin, Com-3, and Ashton Ogle, Com-3, clung to the eaves (indicated by the cross) at their home at 75 Fourteenth Avenue early Sunday. They were rescued by firemen. Raymond Crawford and Reed Cory, two other students who reside in the same house and effected their escape by the stairways, are shown looking out of the third-story window near the place to which the students climbed.

America's "First Lady of the Air" Finds Prince Aviation Enthusiast

By VIRGINIA LEE TRACY

Though she looks like a curly-headed boy in her flying togs, Amelia Earhart Putnam was a gracious lady in a sweeping navy blue chiffon dress, silver sandals, and a corsage of gardenias when interviewed.

Miss Earhart was in Columbus Friday and Saturday, after flying her own plane here, to talk in the Central High Auditorium, under the auspices of the Ohio State Alumnae Association.

Her sparkling personality and charming manner soon put one at ease. She punctuates her witty, rambling talk with bright smiles which light up her face, and expressive gestures with lovely hands which can be told at a glance are active hands.

Still Uses Motor

"The First Lady of the Air" when asked what she thought of the recent Navy flight to Honolulu said simply, "I would like to have been along."

She speaks tenderly of the plane which carried her on her historic flight across the Atlantic. The plane is now in the Franklin Institute in Philadelphia, but she is using the original motor in her present ship because she "couldn't bear to give it up when it was just in its prime."

While in Europe, after her flight, Miss Earhart had many talks with the Prince of Wales, who, she says, is intensely interested in aviation.

Major Crow Tells Of Armored Cars

Major Robert W. Crow of Fort Knox, Ky., explained in detail the new armored cars which the army is putting into service in a speech on "Mechanization of the Cavalry."

The talk was made before a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers, Friday, in the Commerce Auditorium.

Major Crow had slides and a short motion picture to show and illustrate the workings of the armored cars. The motors in the cars develop 340 horsepower and are able to attain a speed of 150 miles per hour. Each car costs from $25,000 to $50,000, he said.

Weekly Parties to Start

The first weekly recreation night of the quarter sponsored by the Pomerene Advisory Committee will be held in the small lounge of Pomerene Hall Tuesday, from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

She laughingly admitted that she had never had one of the historic dances with him because she "was too tall."

Mistaken Identity

Miss Earhart says she is always being mistaken for the "girl who swam the English channel," and one child called her "Colonel Lindbergh's mother." These cases of mistaken identity must be a great source of amusement to her from the laughing way she relates them.

"I have no immediate plans for the future," Miss Earhart said. "No one realizes the amount of preparation needed for a flight. However, something is liable to turn up at any time."

And looking into the face of the aviatrix who flew the Atlantic for her "own satisfaction," marveling at the "aliveness" of it, I knew her future would not be dull.

800 Persons Have One Swell Time Friday As Sophomores Turn to Queenless Prom

By BILL BLAIR

Eight hundred persons wedged themselves into a stuffy Physical Education Building Friday evening for the Sophomore Prom.

Four hours and some odd minutes later those same 800 persons wearily dragged aching feet (encased in badly scuffed shoes) to their respective resting places.

But today 800 persons are telling their friends what a swell time they really had at the "Queenless Prom."

What, No Drinks

Artificiality gave way to a human naturalness. And that happened in spite of the fact that Bill North says there was a noticeable decrease in the number of intoxication cases at the dance.

SOCIALIST HEAD APPLAUDS MOVE TO RESIST DRILL

Norman Thomas Thinks
University Should Ward
Off Fascistic Trend.

Norman Thomas entered the controversy of the compulsory military training issue at the University Friday evening, when he deviated from a speech on "After the New Deal, What?" to praise the seven conscientious objectors, who have been suspended by President Rightmire.

Speaking in University Hall Chapel in the last of three lectures on contemporary problems, sponsored by the sophomore councils of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A., Thomas declared "It is time for the faculty and students of this University to do something to ward off the trend toward Fascism, which military training is inculcating."

"We have no need for $128,000,000 worth of new battleships," he declared. Then he shouted, "and neither do we have need for putting conscientious objectors into R.O.T.C. uniforms on the Ohio State University campus."

Drill Inculcates Militarism

"Military training inculcates a spirit of militarism which leads to Fascism. There is no need of linking up a university of arts and letters with a war department of the national government. The spirit of protest will not down."

Remarking that the question of military training is being argued nearly every time he comes to the campus, the Socialist leader said, "I wouldn't feel at home when I come here if a couple of conscientious objectors weren't protesting compulsory military training."

Then clenching his fists, he declared, "But it's time that those protests are turning to victory." It is

McLeish Will Give Talk February 19 In University Hall

Date Changed Because of Conflicting Engagement of Minneapolis Symphony.

Definite date for the campus appearance of Archibald McLeish, noted poet, has been set for February 19.

The change in dates has been made because of the conflicting appearance of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, which will play at Memorial Hall February 12, the date for which McLeish's talk was originally scheduled.

The poet's address, which is being sponsored by Chi Delta Phi, national literary sorority, will be given at 8 p. m. in University Hall Chapel. McLeish is associate editor of Fortune magazine. In 1932 he won the Pulitzer prize for his historical poem "Conquistador."

Members of the sorority will meet Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Ellen P. Chubb, A-3, president of the organization. Mrs. Elizabeth R. DeWees, Grad, who is making a study of the works of McLeish, will present the program.

PLANS FORMED TO SET UP NEW STUDENT GROUP

Organization to Aid Overseers' Board in Management of Ohio Union.

Final plans for the formation of a new student organization to aid the Ohio Union Board in the management of the Union by crystallizing student opinion were made Friday.

According to John L. Gushman, L-1, president of the board, the new body will provide an element which has been lacking in the past since there has never been any means by which students could express their opinions effectively in regard to the management of the Union.

The body is to be known as the Subsidiary Union Board and will have power only to make recommendations and suggestions to the board.

Meet Each Quarter

One representative to the organization will be appointed by the board from each of the following student organizations: Makio, Ohio Stater, Fraternity Affairs Office, Student Senate, Ohio State Engineer, Sun Dial, Strollers, Ag Student, Y. M. C. A., Student Court, and the Lantern.

In addition to these each of the 10 colleges on the campus will be given one representative on the body. These representatives will probably be the same as the Student Senate representatives.

All representatives will meet once each quarter at a dinner meeting, financed by the Union at which time student ideas will be discussed.

Edward S. Drake, manager of the Union, and the president of the board will represent the Board of Overseers at the meeting.

Director Is Chairman

The director of student activities will act as an impartial chairman at the meetings. He and Mr. Drake will have power to invite other individuals to the meetings as long as they have constructive ideas to offer.

The idea of such a student body was conceived last year by Fred Stecker, then president of the board. The board has been working on the plan all fall but has kept its work secret until plans were completed.

The board will meet some time next week to appoint representatives and to set the time and place of the first meeting.

Rubin Announces Hillel Dance Date

Martin Rubin, Dent-1, chairman of the Hillel Prom, has announced that the dance will be held February 3, at the Elks Home on East Broad Street.

A new feature introduced this year for the Hillel affair will be the selection of a queen. Co-eds may submit their pictures personally or they may be mailed to the Hillel Foundation, 96 Eighteenth Avenue, care of the Hillel Prom Committee.

Six nominees will be chosen from the entries and the victor of the contest will be named the night of the prom. A cup will be awarded to her.

New Set-Up Made By Committee For Courses in English

Revised Curriculum Effective Next Fall Quarter Includes 47 Courses, New Prerequisite Added.

A completely revised curriculum for the department of English will go into effect at the start of the 1934-1935 fall quarter.

The changes involve the dropping of some courses, the creation of new ones, and considerable change in the content of old courses.

Forty-seven courses will be listed in the new curriculum.

*Of these, 35 are either new courses or old ones in which changes have been made.

The move followed a comprehensive study of the old curriculum and an investigation of possibilities for the new by a committee composed of professors of the department.

Percival Heads Committee

Headed by Professor Milton Percival and including Professors Harlan Hatcher, James F. Fullington, Edwin L. Beck, and Harold R. Walley, the committee has conducted the study since last spring. Its recommendations were recently approved by the University Council on Instruction.

"The most striking innovation in the department's senior division," says Professor Fullington, "is the introduction of cycles. These cycles are made up of groups of three or four courses, which together give a more complete and better integrated view of some phase of English literature than has been possible under the old curriculum."

Each of the cycles covers one of the four great cultural periods of English history and the English language. They include The Middle Ages, The Renaissance, The Age of Enlightenment, and The Age of Democracy.

Purposes of Cycles

"The combined courses of a literary cycle will attempt to present the thought and ideals of the age as they expressed themselves in literature. The combined courses of the language cycle will present the history and development of the English language," explained Professor Fullington.

Students majoring in English will be required to take one cycle in their

ON THE RECORD

On today's editorial page is carried a column which recently appeared in The Daily Northwestern. The piece appears under the department head, "Off the Record."

The writer, F.L.B., states that Ohio State "has an agricultural department with one or two nice cows." He fails to mention that our University has one of the more progressive Colleges of Agriculture in the country. He makes no note of the fact that Northwestern University has no such college, which is particularly relevant of his lack of background in discussing any university's agricultural school.

F.L.B. says that Ohio State also has a Stadium in "which 90,000 persons may jam themselves..." Ohio Stadium's top capacity is 72,000. We are happy to tell the Northwestern writer, who probably needs the information because of his apparent unfamiliarity with figures, that said Stadium capacity, is just about 20,000 higher than the colossal edifice in which Ohio State defeated Northwestern two years ago. We are also pleased to announce that the Ohio Stadium is completed. How about those bleachers of yours, Northwestern?

The Northwestern editorial states: "The school (Ohio State) has a bad habit of getting unfavorable publicity for itself. Otherwise it hasn't much to offer." Any so-called "unfavorable publicity" Ohio State has suffered recently has been a result of student and administrative initiative in seeking a better educational institution. We fail to discern such ambition in the student body of Evanston, with the exception of a half-hearted attempt to merge with another school. Our "sprawling" University, we take enough equipped with educational facilities to demand no such combination.

The comment referring to President Rightmire as a "tool of the trustees" is further proof of F.L.B.'s negligence in thinking about the problem he intended to discuss. President Rightmire is a representative of the Board in administrative affairs. The Trustees represent the people of Ohio. President Rightmire is the executor of their orders. That, in general, is the Ohio State setup.

It is gratifying, of course, to know that Northwestern has such a marvelous method of handling the military situation. We go so far as to say that lots of things at Northwestern are wonderful. But that still doesn't give its students license to write unethical, unwarranted and above all unfair comments about Ohio State.

We're glad the Daily Northwestern column is entitled "Off the Record"; such editorializing should be. The statements we make here, may we add, are very definitely "on the record."

RADIO JUNIOR COLLEGE

Ohio State passes another milestone on the road of more progressive and liberal education in its sponsorship of the new junior college of radio.

With WOSU as master station, broadcasts of lessons in various courses offered at the University will be made at regular intervals. Listeners to the program, if they so desire, may use the information given them as a means of entering Ohio State with advanced credit. If they will pass examinations in courses offered over the radio, their status as upperclassmen will be recognized upon their registration.

The radio project comes as an aftermath to the emergency unemployed school which was successfully operated here last year. The new venture is to be carried on under the administration of the Emergency School. This arrangement will lend more chances of success to it in that it will be afforded the facilities of the organization established last year.

We hope the radio junior college proves a great success. It's a magnanimous gesture on the part of the University to make higher education available to those who would otherwise go without it. More movements such as this would be tremendously influential in raising America's cultural standard.

OFF THE RECORD
Ohio State's Troubles

At Columbus, Ohio, is Ohio State University. It is a sprawling school of about ten thousand students and obtains its funds for operation from the tax-payers of the state. It has an agricultural college with one or two nice cows. It also has a huge Stadium in which 90,000 persons may jam themselves on occasions when Ohio State expects to beat Michigan. The Stadium hasn't been filled for a long time now.

The school has the bad habit of getting unfavorable publicity for itself. Otherwise it hasn't much to offer. This fall it obtained its quota through its football coach, Sam Willaman, whose team didn't beat Michigan and then developed the habit of quitting on Wednesdays and coming back to play on Saturdays. Mr. Willaman has been fired every day since the season ended, but not officially.

Now Ohio State has crashed back into print in a big way. Five students, perhaps more, face expulsion from the University because they have refused to participate in compulsory military training. Claiming they are "conscientious objectors," the students declare it is impossible for them to take part in the required drills.

This means that the president of the University is required to dismiss them from classes. Obviously, he has no other course when the rules of Ohio State, a land grant university, require military training on the part of all men students. He cannot make exceptions for any student or group of students who are physically able to take part in the drills. President Rightmire, tool of the trustees though he is, cannot be condemned for the situation.

But the taxpayers of Ohio, to whom the university belongs, can and should do something about the situation. They should demand a change in the university regulations which insist on compulsory military training for all students. No student should be forced to participate in the drills if he objects to them and believes they will bring no benefit to himself.

And he should not be barred from the university for taking this stand. If he is capable of meeting the academic requirements—and they aren't high in Ohio—he should not be denied admittance to the classroom. He has a right to the educational facilities which the taxpayers have provided, regardless of his attitude on militarism.

The Ohio Staters might well take a leaf from the Northwestern textbook where the R. O. T. C. is concerned. Here, a student joins the corps if he wishes and can meet its requirements. If he wants to wear a nice blue uniform and strut around the parade ground while pretty girls pin colors on the flags, all right—as long as he does it from choice and not compulsion.

Ohio State's record is not particularly bright where liberalism is concerned. More than a year ago the trustees fired Professor Herbert A. Miller, sociologist, because he had the courage of his convictions, convictions which didn't happen to meet the approval of hard-handed and hard-headed trustees. And if it persists in firing the students who object to military drill we suggest it call Adolf Hitler over next June and give him an honorary degree.—F.L.B.

Student Writes Explaining Stand In Favor of Compulsory Drill
To the Editor:

"A good citizen must be a disciplined one, by which we mean one who can control his own passions and desires, who recognizes his obligations, who respects the flag, the laws and all consolidated authority, who is faithful to his allegiance to the United States, and who in all situations will comport himself with dignity and restraint." I think that this definition of a good citizen is the best that I have ever read. It comes directly to the point and actually says what it means. This school should and does maintain a military training not for the sole purpose of providing potential leaders for our armies in time of war (though that would justify such a course); but it seems to prepare students to become good citizens.

Military science improves the health, strength, and appearance of the students. It inculcates respect for law and constituted authority. It makes students more amenable to discipline and control. It arouses the spirit of practical patriotism, respect for and pride in our flag and our country, and a readiness to serve them in time of need. It develops self-discipline and control, self-respect, self-confidence, resourcefulness and courage, ambition and industry. It promotes courtesy and consideration for others. It inspires the spirit of cooperation or team play. It affords exercise for and develops the latent powers of leadership and executive ability.

I believe that an education or training which accomplishes these purposes prepares one to become the best type of citizen. A course in a college curricula which does this is thoroughly justified and entitled to support, even in the happy event that we shall have no more wars. I am sorry that several "objectors" had to be suspended, but I feel that a course in military training is to the student's benefit even if he is a conscientious objector.

Palmer Will Be X-Rayed To Determine Injuries

Jack Palmer, Engr-1, who recently claimed he was the victim of two kidnappings, is reported by Mrs. George Turner, his landlady, to be "in a pretty bad condition" at his home in Cleveland.

Palmer still has a pain in his head and was to have had an X-ray taken of his head this week. "I do not know if he will return to school or not this quarter," she said.

Awards for Best One-Act
Dramas Submitted.

The sixth annual play writing contest sponsored by the Hillel Players was announced as being officially opened to the public last night by Sol L. Auerbach, Com-2, publicity manager of that organization.

Awards of $20 and $10 will be given to the persons submitting the best one-act plays, suitable for future production, based upon a Jewish theme or characters. The contest will be open to any and all students enrolled at the University who wish to derive benefit from actual experience in play writing.

Participants are requested to limit their manuscripts to a thirty minute production time as this is the suitable length for this type of theatrical performance.

It has been the custom of the Hillel Players to enact the three best one-act plays of this contest during the Spring Quarter in University Chapel.

Keen competition has been induced in the past contests through the judges' request that all manuscripts be submitted anonymously, with a sealed letter of recognition attached to each work.

Last year the awards were granted to Miss Martha K. Baskin, Jour-4, for her production, "Wednesday Afternoon," and Miss Lois Ellman's play, "Simon, Apprentice." Both plays were re-enacted June 3, 1933.

Auerbach announces that the deadline for manuscripts is March 5.

THE NEGATIVE REVERBERATIONS

I am sitting and thinking this night, and thinking is quite a strain on the Skipper, if frankness may be permitted in this column, about the booing which resounded through the hollows of the Fair Grounds the Saturday night past.

The negative reverberations of the fans are most dismaying and discouraging at times. But it appears that the fans will never consider a basketball game at the Coliseum unless they exercise their vocal facilities to the utmost.

It's queer, but they exercise them usually with a hoot and plenty of jeers to go with it.

This columnist will agree with many of the noble grade seekers, who do the booing, that the officiating at the past game was not the best that has been exhibited at the Coliseum. In other words, it was not up to par.

However, we are more than shocked when the boosers resort to voicing bronx cheers for one of their own players. One player, who, in our estimation, played a whale of a good floor game but happened to have plenty of opportunities to pepper the basket from out beyond the foul line.

It so happened that most of his shots failed to find the mesh curtains; the result was booing and hooting.

If the average fan will stop and look back at the Northwestern game, he will immediately recall that the Wildcats set up a stellar defense which was almost impregnable.

There was only one solution—long shots; with plenty of prayer to go with them. That is what this particular player resorted to and yet the fans jeered because the two-pointers were not forthcoming.

We can remember a similar case earlier in the current basketball season, where the fans booed a home player. The result of that affair was that the morale of the player in question sunk to unbelievable depths and at the present writing he is practically worthless to the Ohio State basketball team.

If jeering and booing the home talent continues, it will make their task of attempting to win ball games all the more difficult. Furthermore, it aids in establishing Ohio State fans as real wolves; a reputation which is no asset to the University.

BENNY LOOKS FINE

Benny Oosterbaan, Michigan's great end when Benny Friedman was throwing the passes for the Wolverines, was among the interested spectators at the game Saturday.

Benny was jotting down a few notes here and there in the performance of scouting duties which brought him to Columbus.

He presents a striking figure of how a college end should be built. His inactivity has not caused his figure to carry around added weight, which usually happens to be nothing more than fat.

Most players after they are through with maneuverings on the gridiron or basketball floor, usually enter the coaching game or settle down to their professions, and within a year they are usually so top heavy that only their closest friends can recognize them at the first glance.

Oosterbaan has kept himself well for all these he has been away from collegiate activities. Right at the present moment he appears fit to answer the call of some wailing coach in collegiate circles to pull his team out of the mire.

NUMBER 1,000,007

Talking of Oosterbaan reminds us of Benny Friedman. Speaking of the greatest passer to grace a collegiate football field in years, reminds us that a Cleveland paper recently carried a large article where it was stated that Mr. Friedman was also in line for the coaching job at Ohio State.

We'll give Mr. Friedman number 1,000,007 as possible successor which has been named to Sam Willaman.

As far as we are concerned Willaman is still coach at the University, and all this idle gesturing as to possible successors to Sam is strictly taboo as far as most of us are concerned.

About the only person living who has not been suggested as the next football coach at Ohio State happens to be this chronicler. And that, as the boys would say, is a slam at the capabilities (unhidden) of this gentleman.

Boilermakers Now First In Big Ten Race

Purdue Given Undisputed Possession By Indiana and Iowa Defeats.

High, wide, and handsome, Purdue sits on the Conference throne—undisputed.

With three victories and no defeats, the Boilermakers, unless both forwards and the center develop sprained ankles or weak kidneys, are expected to stay exactly where they're at—on the top!

No one disagrees as to the outcome of the Big Ten race. Purdue is odds-on betting favorite as a result of the 47 to 13 defeat it decisively handed Indiana, once considered a Big Ten title contender, its first loss, Saturday.

Playing on their opponents floor, the Boilermakers were better than 35 per cent accurate as they caged 20 of 55 attempts at field goals. Seven thousand fans watched an uncanny exhibit of shooting that completely bewildered the Hoosiers.

Gophers Surprise; Nose Out Iowa

Regarded as a "set-up," Minnesota, with two losses listed, blasted Iowa's Conference hopes by nosing the Hawkeyes out, 39 to 38, giving Purdue undisputed possession of the Conference top rung, Saturday.

The Gophers tallied 19 points to the Hawkeyes' two in the first half, but during the second quarter, Iowa found its pace and the score saw-sawed back and forth until the final gun.

Illini Defeat Chicago Five

Chicago proved not-so-easy to a determined Illini five that was forced to make a brisk closing rally to nose out the Conference scape-goat, 32 to 26, Saturday.

Leaving the floor with an eight-point lead in the first half, the Illini increased the lead to ten points, but the Maroons awoke and ran up their total to 21, one marker ahead of Illinois. Two field goals by Coke Mills, and one by Hellmich in the closing period gave the Illini the game.

Wisconsin Snares Wolverines

With Poser and McDonald totaling 11 and 9 points, respectively, Wisconsin won its first Western Conference game from Michigan, 34 to 23, Saturday.

The Badgers played tight on defense and allowed the Wolverines but two field goals during the first period. Plummer led the scoring for Michigan totaling ten points on four field goals and two charity tosses.

Wrestlers Engage Cleveland Y. Case

The Varsity wrestling squad will journey to Cleveland this week for a pair of meets. On Friday evening Coach Spike Mooney's men will meet the Cleveland Y. M. C. A. in the Buckeye's inaugural, and on the following night they engage Case.

Both Cleveland squads have been laboring strenuously in preparation for this event and Coach Mooney is none too sure about the prospective outcome of the affair. In order to be entitled to the victor's laurels, it will require the entire energy of every member of his squad, he says.

Though Mike Peppe's swimming outfit will not engage in actual competition, it too, will be in the Lake Erie metropolis. Friday night it is scheduled to stage an exhibition in the pool of the Cleveland Athletic Club.

The swimmers made their debut here recently by trouncing the Columbus Athletic Club, 54 to 30. Their next competition will be furnished by the University of Pittsburgh in the Smoky City on February 3.

Kaufer, D'Amore Win All Matches

Buck Fencers Take Season Opener, 12 to 5, from University of Dayton.

Sweeping clean all of the six individual matches he participated in, Andrew Kaufer, 1933 captain of the Scarlet and Gray foilsmen, captured top honors as the Buckeye fencers won their opening meet of the season against the University of Dayton, Saturday, at the Gymnasium. The score was 12 to 5.

Captain Adanto D'Amore won five matches of the five he participated in. Zolg of Dayton won three of five matches, but lost two matches to D'Amore, one in the foils, and the other in the sabers.

Except for Kaufer and D'Amore, Boye of Ohio was the only other Buckeye man to win a match. He defeated Beekman in the foils, but lost to Zolg in the same event.

Women's Council to Meet

The Women's Recreation Council will meet Tuesday at 4 p.m. in the Pomerene Cafeteria for the first of a series of discussions on "camp" to be held throughout the winter quarter.

Wee Whitlinger intercepted passes, dribbled easily and cleverly, sunk shots from all angles, broke up plays, and was everywhere at once, much to the disgust of the Northwestern quintet, who found the sophomore forward, the smallest man on the Buckeye squad, the most difficult to watch. Whitlinger, in addition to feeding sucker shots to his teammates, sunk five field goals and two fouls. Only 5 feet 8 inches in height, he is perhaps the smallest regular player in the Conference, but little packages often contain good prizes, or words to that effect, and Warren so far has proven the David of many a Big Ten Goliath.

Hall Will Grapple Rattan for Crown

Stacy Hall, former Buckeye wrestling star, will grapple Silent Rink, of Houston, Texas, for the newly created championship of the junior middleweight division of the Mid-West Wrestling Association, Wednesday, at the Columbus Auditorium.

Hall is training with members of the Varsity wrestling team, while Silent was in St. Louis preparing for the bout. He arrived in Columbus today.

Both are to make the 150-pound limit by 3 p.m. the day of the bout or lose a forfeit posted. The match will last one fall. Time limit is two hours.

Make Reservations For Skating Party

Reservations for the co-ed skating party to be held at Smith's Skating Rink, January 23, are now being made at the Intramural Office in Pomerene Hall.

This opening affair of the women's intramural winter program begins an extensive season of basketball, indoor baseball tournaments, and club activities. All co-eds are invited to attend the skating party.

3 Twilight Meets For Buck Runners

Ohio's Team to Meet Notre Dame, Michigan, and Indiana.

Three twilight track meets scheduled for the Buckeyes this spring will not resemble the three-ring circus affair common in the past, Lawrence N. Snyder, Scarlet and Gray track coach, promises.

The Buckeyes will meet Notre Dame, May 4; Michigan, May 11; and Indiana, May 30.

Outside of the night dual meets scheduled, Ohio's mile relay team will see action soon as the quartet will run against Michigan and Cornell at the Michigan A. A. U. meet at Ann Arbor, February 3.

March 3, the Bucks will run against the Notre Dame team at South Bend in the customary daylight manner.

Twilight meets will begin at dusk and will be run off on a time schedule, each event on the program allotted so much time. Hurdle races will be run before dark.

Peppe, Glover to Conduct Swimming Clinic Tonight

Tonight, Coach Mike Peppe and Hugh Glover, swimming instructor at the Central Y. M. C. A., will conduct the first half of a swimming clinic at the "Y" pool.

The two mentors will be assisted in their demonstration of various racing and distance strokes by members of the freshman and Varsity swimming teams.

34 College Games in Ohio

Thirty-four Ohio collegiate basketball games will take place this week. Two of the scheduled tilts are Conference games, Ohio State vs. Indiana tonight, and against Minnesota, Saturday. Thirteen will be Ohio Conference games, four Buckeye Athletic Association frays, and a like number in the Northwestern Conference.

Northwestern Shows Championship Caliber

Ohio-Hoosier Battle Again At Coliseum Shoots Wild; Scarlet Squad Fails to Click

By MAURY C. KOBLANTZ
Lantern Sports Editor

Two losers, Ohio State and Indiana, who fell before Northwestern and Purdue, 32 to 25, and 47 to 13, respectively, Saturday, will meet tonight at the Coliseum, when each five will attempt to retrieve in some degree their pre-Saturday status—at the expense of the other.

Last Monday Indiana, playing on its home floor, whipped Ohio 38 to 22, and the Hoosiers, despite their poor showing against the Boilermakers, are banking on a repeat victory over the Bucks to put them back in the running.

To Be Grudge Game

But Ohio has enough scores to settle with the invaders—enough to make the game tonight resemble an old-time Kentucky feud. If determined play can bring forth a victory, the Scarlet quintet has that prerequisite.

Basketball fans last year were given a subject of conversation for stag parties and smokers, when the Hoosiers surprised everybody except those from Missouri by lacing a championship Ohio quintet in the Buck game of the season, 40 to 28, forcing the Scarlet and Gray five to share their title with Northwestern.

Hoosiers Whip Ohio

Not only did the Hoosiers fill the Scarlet and Gray cup of despair to the brim last year, but continued to pour the bitter draught of defeat this season. After the Bucks' first Conference loss, where Indiana garnered the 38 to 22 victory, the Scarlet five resembled a schooner with the top mast sagging, and the sails looking like pants worn at a depression party.

The same team that went down to defeat against Northwestern will start against the Hoosiers, it is believed. Big Ted Rosequist will remain at center, tiny Whitlinger, whose exceptional performance Saturday against Northwestern was the only saving grace of the game for the Buckeye fans, and Bob Colburn, still nursing an injured ankle, will start at the forwards, while Beitner and Conrad will guard.

Jerry Fisher, veteran guard; Padlow and Low, forwards, will be held in reserve until the Hoosier sledding begins to take on the air of a ski-jump. Conrad and Rosequist may alternate at center and guard, respectively, and various other combinations of the players mentioned may be used to break up the Hoosier attack.

Huffman at Center

Former Indiana All-State center, Vernon Huffman, plays the tip-off position for the Hoosier quintet. Two years ago his play was sensational in the state championships, when he starred for Newcastle High School. This is his first year in Conference competition. Huffman is big and has a lot of drive.

Willard Gehrt of Shelbyville, Ind., is called the sophomore find of last season. He weighs only 146 pounds but is 6 feet tall. His scoring record shows he is a dead-eye kid, and that his defensive work at the forward position is great. They call him "the typical Indiana basketball player."

Porter Back at Guard

Robert Porter of Logansport, Ind., is the guard who left the Ohio-Indiana game last week via the "four personals" route. Last year, his first, was a brilliant one. This year he is rated the best guard on the squad. Bob is big, aggressive, and a smart defensive player. Big Ten coaches consider him one of the best in the Conference at handling big opponents.

The outstanding sophomore forward for the Crimson is Lester Stout from Winamac, Ind. Possessor of a keen eye and smooth coordination, Stout rates high in Coach Dean's estimation. Two years ago Les was selected as an All-State forward.

The brains behind the team are centered mainly in Captain Woodrow Weir, an excellent floor leader and a brilliant guard. Last year he suffered from an irksome leg injury, but no such impediment exists this season.

Following the Indiana game the Ohioans will journey to Minneapolis, where they meet the University of Minnesota Saturday night.

In an exhibition of wild shooting which has not been witnessed at the Coliseum for a lengthy period of time, Ohio State's Scarlet Wave was brought into submergence by the Purple of Northwestern Saturday night. The count when the final tallies were read: Ohio, 25; Northwestern, 32.

The Buckeyes found the defense of the visitors hard to penetrate, and as a result, resorted to distance shooting, which did not aid their cause in the least, since the Scarlet-uniformed men were enjoying a bad case of "off-night inability."

Contest Started Tame

The contest started in a tame manner, but the finish was one of those wild-wooly affairs with the participants taking shots, and praying, while the wolves in the stand took verbal shots at the officiating.

Fisher, center for Northwestern, went on a spree by finding the mesh curtains for a total of 13 points. The points of the Wildcat center are significant in themselves, but the excellent floor game played by the visiting pivot man, largely accounts for the margin of Northwestern's win.

Fisher Hard to Handle

Fisher continually outplayed both Fred Conrad and Ted Rosequist, the two Ohio centers, who had their hands full attempting to cope with the clever exhibition of the Wildcat player.

After the first minute and one-half of play, the Purple quintet took the lead and safely held it until the gun scared all of the worthy taxpayers out of their seats at the termination of the contest.

Wee Warren Whitlinger started off the contest by depositing a free toss through the curtains. A moment later, Brewer, Northwestern forward, tied the count with a charity throw. Fisher of Northwestern promptly followed in with a double-decker, and the Wildcats were on the way to a victory.

Ohio Behind

Four minutes before the half was over, Ohio was far in the arrears by a 15-5 score. However, a foul by Colburn and baskets by Padlow, Whitlinger, and Jerry Fisher brought the home total to 12 at the end of the half, eight points behind the visitors.

Northwestern managed to hold the lead throughout the second half, although there were exciting moments on more than one occasion. With five minutes of the game remaining to be played, the Bucks came within four points of the Purple which called for an outburst of reverberating responses from the Columbus citizenry.

Kopacky Increases Lead

The response did not last long when Kopecky, Purple forward, looped the leather through the meshes to increase the Wildcat lead to six points. Colburn then came through with his only basket of the night, but it went for naught when Fisher of the visitors sank a basket a moment later, and followed with a foul shot which was awarded to him when he was the recipient of a shove as he was about to shoot.

In summing up the entire contest, there was one glaring fault with the home talent which some of the blindest of fans even took time to comment about. It is generally conceded that the Bucks could not offer a convincing solution of the zone defense set up by the visitors.

New Venture in Higher Education to Be Broad- cast Through March.

More than two thousand Ohioans "attended" the opening session this morning of a new venture in higher education, the Ohio emergency junior radio college.

The new college, with headquarters at the University, opened at 9:30 a. m., when Professor Robert S. Newdick broadcast a lesson in English. This was followed by instruction in French by Professor Robert Fouré.

At 1:15 p. m. Professor E. Allen Helms began the course in political science. Spanish instruction will be given later in the week by Demetrio A. Cabarga of the department of Romance languages.

These broadcasts, to continue through March, will be heard from WOSU, the University station, and possibly other radio stations. Results of this term will determine the nature of courses which will follow, according to A. Lee Henderson, superintendent of the radio college.

Plans are being worked out whereby radio college students who later enroll for residence work at Ohio State may obtain credit for their radio courses, if they are at that time successful in passing an examination, Henderson says.

University faculty members are donating their services to the radio college, as they did in the emergency school last spring. The college is the latest project of the Ohio emergency schools administration, of which Edwin S. Burdell is director. The state department of education also is cooperating.

An organization is now being perfected whereby radio college students throughout the state will be gathered into local groups under the supervision of unemployed school teachers. Examinations will be given at intervals, and the papers sent to the University for grading.

senior year; and, at its conclusion, a pro-seminar in the cycle. They will also be required to take a comprehensive examination over the field covered by the cycle and over a number of outside readings.

Students not majoring in English may take courses in the cycles as freely as the general elective courses. In the junior division, consisting of 400 courses, the chief emphasis will be placed on contemporary and recent literature. Here literature will be studied for its own sake, without reference to history, biography, philosophy, influences, and the other externalities of scholarship, according to Professor Fullington.

One of the new courses, to be known as 440, will be a follow-up on the present 430 course and will be a prerequisite to all advanced courses.

Two types of seminar have been provided for the Graduate School, one for candidates for the master's degree, and the other for candidates seeking the degree of doctor of philosophy.

In the division of dramatics, three new courses have been provided. They are designed to give the student a thorough training in stagecraft, play production, and play direction.

There have been no changes made in the division of public speaking.

His analysis of the New Deal was given in a tone of cynicism, although he praised President Roosevelt for "his notable vigor and shrewdness."

He asserted that the CWA was saving the New Deal at the present. Contending that GWA was "better than Hoover's policy of 'let 'em starve,'" Thomas said that it did not constitute substantial and important industrial improvement.

Thomas was unable to deliver his scheduled talk at the Faculty Club dinner, which preceded his address at University Hall, because he arrived in Columbus.

ter group at the Vesper services Sunday night, when he explained the attitude of President Rightmire towards "outside meddlers."

Branding the committee appointed by Dr. Rightmire as partisan, Dr. Tippet declared that he had no objection to Colonel Grosvenor Towasend as a member but did object to the absence of a member who would feel as strongly on the opposite side of the question, as a minister naturally would.

A substitute for the present body was proposed by Dr. Tippet which would take the form of a body of men such as the student's pastor, his high school principal, and athletic coach, and any others who knew the student intimately.

Dr. Tippet pointed out that the committee in its present set-up had in the majority of cases no contact with the student until he came before them for an interview and under such circumstances had very little chance to be able to judge anyone's sincerity.

CLASS CARDS REQUIRED

No student should be admitted to class without a class enrollment card for such student sent out by the Registrar's office. This has always been the rule but there is information that it is frequently violated by the teacher. It is necessary to enforce this rule and therefore no teacher is authorized to permit attendance in the class without the enrollment card. This card may show the student to be a regular student or an auditor. This has a relationship to the payment of fees which must be insisted upon stringently. The class roll which the instructor keeps should be made only in this way.

ISN'T IT REASONABLE!

That since the manufacturers producing about 95% of the automobiles (Fords not included) authorize and depend upon the nation-wide United Motors Service to properly service various units built into their cars—

and since

ours—the only one north of the Union Depot—is an authorized United Motor Service Station—

and since

this authorization is due solely to our expert workmanship and factory-approved special instruments and equipment—here you will find the best possible automotive service of every kind?

So important is the handling of Turkish tobacco in making Chesterfield cigarettes that Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., maintains this specially equipped plant right in the heart of the famous Smyrna tobacco section. It is the largest and most modern tobacco factory in the Near East.

Turkish tobacco, you know, is the best "seasoning" there is for cigarettes. At all times Chesterfield has, in storage—at this plant and in America—about 350,000 bales of the right kinds of Turkish tobacco.
