The sun has set on Harding Hospital in Worthington. Ohio State has consolidated all its medical services to OSU Medical Center

Division elimination leaves northern Franklin County with no local mental clinic

By Brian Augustine antem staff writer

In November 1999, the Ohio State Medical Center united with one of the most respected names of psychiatric care in Ohio — Harding Hospital.

By November 2000, Harding Hospital, 445 E. Dublin-Granville Rd. in Worthington, primarily remained in "All clinical operations were consolidated centrally to OSU main campus by Nov. 22," said Timothy Moore, administrative director for OSU and Harding behavioral health care and

The consolidation has resulted in major changes in the community for the treatment of mental illnesses

In addition, the closing of Harding Hospital left a hole in the community of Worthington.

Paul Feldman, assistant city manager of Worthington, said, "Harding has been with us a long time. It is an emotional loss for the whole communi-

Moore said the year before the consolidation (1998-1999) both OSU and Harding were operating at a loss, Harding's being at around $5 million.

He said by winter and spring of 2000 after the OSU/Harding merger, it became evident that OSU/Harding was going to lose more than the $5 million from the previous year.

OSU and Harding agreed five and a half years ago to develop a joint operating agreement to see if they wanted to develop a closer relationship. Although the two entities remained separate until Nov. 1, 1999, both the Harding and OSU boards determined they would merge and OSU would assume ownership.

Harding Hospital accepted a loan from OSU and the equity acquired from the loan made OSU a partner; there was no money exchanged in the

The move was complicated, Moore said, but by November 1999, all Harding employees became OSU employees and Harding-based systems, such as accounts receivable and payroll, were transferred to OSU.

"We then started to make determinations as to where we needed to consolidate operations to avoid duplication," Moore said.

An example of duplication, he said, was adult care on the Harding campus and at OSU main campus in the neuroscience's department.

"We consolidated the adult care unit to the main campus," Moore said. The unit at Harding dwindled down in a period of 5-6 days and everyone was admitted to OSU that needed to

With the rather quick realization that OSU/Harding together was going to lose more money than each lost as separate facilities the year before, the Currently, any facility in use at the Harding location is on short term lease from Ohio State to private practices.

OSU/Harding board had to make further decisions as to what needed to be consolidated or eliminated.

One of the changes made was the consolidation of emergency psychiatric services. Moore said that emergency psychiatric services are no longer at the Harding campus but they are now intact at OSU main campus.

Moore said that the differences between the Harding facility for emergency psychiatric care and what OSU main campus has is that the models are slightly different.

"Fundamentally the services are the same," Moore said. "The difference is in the environment. Harding had an actual psychiatric services emergency room. All psychiatric emergencies are now addressed at OSU's main campus general emergency room." In a general emergency room, the assessment of who would receive care first depends on who is the sickest, said Dr. David Bahner, assistant professor of emergency medicine. Bahner explained that if someone

Kirwan OK with Taft's budget

By Tom Reinmann Lantern staff writer

Gov. Bob Taft proposed a budget to the legislature yesterday allowing Ohio State to raise tuition by 9 percent a year, exempting the university from the state cap of 6 percent.

Speaking to the media from his office, OSU President William "Brit" Kirwan said the governor's proposal is an endorsement of the university's Academic Plan.

"All funds generated through these means will go directly back into quality improvements in the undergraduate program," Kirwan said.

According to Kirwan, the additional funds will reduce class size, add course sections, improve advising and career counseling and increase availability of technology in the class-

The 9 percent increase will mean a raise of about $407 for the 2001-2002 academic year, or $136 per quarter; the exemption will cost each student an extra $48 per quarter next year. The 6 percent increase would have raised tuition for in-state, undergraduate students about $263 next year, or about $88 per quarter.

"I'd pay an extra 50 bucks if the classes are smaller," said Brian Csora, a sophomore in OSU tuition and fees rank eighth among Ohio's 13 public universities; with the planned increase, OSU will rank seventh next year. Miami University, University of Cincinnati and Kent State University rank one, two and three.

If the cap exemption continues through the next five or six years, as Kirwan wants, OSU will rank fourth among Ohio schools in 2006-2007. The governor's proposal, which needs the approval by the state legislature, exempts the cap for two years.

"This is not a proposal that will put tuition at Ohio State out of reach for students in Ohio, nor out of line with tuition charged at other (Ohio) institutions," Kirwan said. "The additional tuition increase is necessary to give undergraduate students a quality education commensurate with the nation's best public universities." "That's not a lot of money in relation to the kinds of quality improvements that we can make at the university," Kirwan said. "The university looked to a tuition increase to fund its Academic Plan because Ohio's share for OSU support, which used to be about 60 percent or 70 percent, now represents 22 percent of the overall university budget; Ohio ranks 42nd in the nation in terms of per capita funding for higher education."

OSU is the only state university exempt from the cap in Taft's budget.

"Students with need-based financial aid will not feel the impact of the tuition hike. Funds from the increase are required by the proposal to go directly to financial aid to accommodate these students," Kirwan said. "We will not prevent a student with financial need from attending Ohio State.

OSU regional campuses are not affected by the cap exemption. Kirwan said he will address the student's biggest issues, like offering more sections of courses that students need to graduate. He will listen to students and student leaders before he makes specific plans for the additional tuition revenues.

Students are encouraged to attend scheduled town hall style meetings around campus to voice how they want the money spent. USG will sponsor the first meeting today from 5 to 6:30 p.m. at the Frank Hale Black Cultural USG President Robert "BJ" Schuerger will moderate.

"I hope they give straight answers and really take student input to heart," said Chris Osborn, a senior in computer information systems.

Kirwan is confident his Academic Plan and this tuition hike is good for undergraduate

We think these investments are going to enable students to progress to degrees at Ohio State a lot faster," Kirwan said, "and, in the end, save them money.'

Mother of Diallo to speak at OSU

Will discuss son's death and race issues

By Fatima Winbush Lantern staff writer

As a part of the kickoff celebration for this year's United Black World Month, Kadiatou Diallo, mother of shooting victim Amadou Diallo, will address the campus community on Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Ohio Union ballrooms. She will discuss issues such as racial profiling and police brutality as well as her own frustrations with the American justice system.

In February 1999, Amadou Diallo was hit 19 times by four New York City police officers as he stood in his Bronx apartment complex. The officers said they fired 41 gunshots at Diallo because he fit the description of a . rape suspect they were looking for, and the police officers were later acquitted of the charges.

This year's United Black World Month theme, "Where Do We Go from Here?... Taking Control of our Destiny," was selected in the group's effort to energize younger generations and to purport their belief that there is a need for continuous action to visibly change our society.

"African-American students become apathetic because of the accomplishments of great leaders like Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X," said Terina Matthews, interim coordinator of African-American Student Services. "We think we've come so far, but we really haven't. There is so much more to be done.'

According to Matthews, Diallo's first university sponsored appearance will be an excellent contribution to this theme.

In addition to the keynote address, several cultural performances will commemorate the African-American heritage, including a performance by African American Voices. This event is free of charge and open to the public.

DNA test positive, murderer executed

By Michael Graczyk Associated Press writer

HUNTSVILLE, Texas man who raped and strangled a woman he abducted after a staged traffic accident in 1981 was executed by injection yester-

Caruthers Alexander, 52, was the third condemned killer to be executed this month in Texas, where a record 40 executions were carried out last year.

Alexander was set to die last year, but the execution was halted so more sophisticated DNA testing could be performed on evidence. Test results, received last month, confirmed his guilt.

Nineteen-year-old Lori Bruch, the mother of a 2-year-old, was driving home when her car was hit from behind by a van authorities said was driven by Alexan-

Prosecutors said Alexander lured Bruch from the car, tied her up, and raped and strangled her.

'It's every woman's worst nightmare to be driving on the street and be abducted and it's every husband's nightmare that your wife would be out and not come home," said Lyndee Bordini, a former assistant district attorney who prosecuted Alexander.

Bruch's body was left in a rainflooded gutter near an elementary school, where it was found by children walking to classes.

A priest had seen the van in the area and reported it to police. When they tracked it down they found one of Bruch's earrings and her belt inside. Paint scrapes on the van matched the paint of Bruch's car.

In a death row interview earlier this month, Alexander maintained his innocence.

"There's a lot of stuff in the conviction that was bunk," Alexander said, "I'll say that straight off the bat, Bunk!" "The test shouldn't have come back positive," he said. "If anything, this last test should have come back inconclusive or (indicated the DNA was) not mine.

came in with a stab wound to the chest, they would be among the highest priority and be treated immediately. Someone who was threatening to harm himself or herself would be taken to a psychiatric room and evaluated by the staff, and if he or she were suicidal they would be treated by a psychiatrist.

Moore said the combination of psychiatric emergencies in the general emergency room is a good thing because someone who presents both psychiatric and medical problems can be taken care of at the same place.

"There is no situation dealt with at Harding that we can't deal with here," Moore said.

However, Laurie Zinn, director of public relations at NetCare Corp., said that NetCare's two crisis sites located at 199 S. Central Ave. and 741 E.

Broad St. are the only crisis sites in Franklin County, leaving no crisis site in northern Franklin County since Harding was shut down.

NetCare is a crisis intervention service that provides 24-hour, face-to-face assistance for Franklin County residents experiencing a mental health or substance abuse crisis. Those in need can walk in anytime to receive help.

The psychiatric emergency room at Harding was staffed with psychiatric nursing personnel, licensed behavioral health professionals, psychologists, psychiatrists and psychiatric care technicians.

Harding, however, did not have a physician on-site after 5 p.m. and on weekends, Moore said.

"The neuroscience's building has nursing personnel, intake clinician staff, intake area and a physician psychiatric resident on-site at all times,'

Dr. Craig T. Pratt, medical director of NetCare, Corp., said in The Colum-

Tuition talk will

echo in town hall

Announcing the tuition increase yesterday, Kirwan said he will use information gathered from town meetings as well as input from student leaders to find out where students would like to see the money spent.

Schuerger said he thinks students need to understand the fundamental changes the university wants to make. He said the students' biggest misconceived notion is that the plan does not affect them because the changes will mostly take place after they are gone.

A fellow member of the USG agreed. "Students should know that once the plan is implemented and carried out effectively we will all see definite changes at OSU," said Eddie Pauline, off-campus USG senator.

"The point of a candid conversation is to respond to questions, have a genuine exchange of ideas and make sure that misunderstandings are identified and addressed," Ray said.

"I hope that students will come away from the meeting with a sense that they got direct and satisfactory responses to any questions they may have," Ray said.

Kirwan said he hopes the town meeting will allow students to raise concerns to the administration and enable students to have their questions answered in a clear and direct manner.

STILLWATER, Okla. - Flowers were placed at the school's Spirit Rider statue and Oklahoma State students pinned small orange ribbons to their chests yesterday as they returned to class for the first time since a plane crash killed two basketball players.

"It's like you've lost 10 members of your family," said Lori Peck, a 19-yearold freshman who stopped in the Student Union to sign a poster board tribute to the 10 victims.

Eddie Sutton, the school's 64-yearold basketball coach, has not spoken publicly about the crash, which killed two reserve players, six staff members and broadcasters and the pilot and copilot. The crash happened in snowy weather on Saturday night, 40 miles east of Denver. As he left campus yesterday, Sutton said he was finally going to be able to do something joyful. "Tve got to go and see my new grandbaby be born - something pleasant," he said softly, with his head down, heading into a morning mist in a long trench coat.

Sutton's son, Scott, coach of Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, became the father of a girl late yesterday after-

Dan Lawson, 21, junior guard from Detroit, Mich., and Nate Fleming, 21, a freshman from Edmond, Okla., were killed in the crash.

At the Oklahoma State campus, 10 orange-and-white silk bouquets - the team colors - had been tied to a fence outside Gallagher-Iba Arena.

"Thank you and God be with you," read a small sign hanging over a bright orange rally towel also posted there. "We won't forget."

University officials spent much of the day preparing for a today memorial for the crash victims.

They also spoke about the university's use of private, propeller-driven aircraft. They defended the safety records of both the Beechcraft King Air 200 that crashed and the pilot, Denver

"I've flown in that plane, flown with that pilot," athletic director Terry Don Phillips said. "He was an excellent pilot and it was a very good aircraft. Obviously, something very terrible happened."

Electric race team leaves rivals in dust

By Jeff Vari Lantern staff writer

After a slow start, Ohio State's Formula Lightning Electric Race Team has become the clear-cut leader in this young sport. The team's car, the "Smokin' Buckeye," did not even make it to the starting line of the first race of the sport in Cleveland in July Giorgio Rizzoni, professor of mechanical engineering and founder of the team, recalls the experience.

The last few weeks (before the first race) were mad," Rizzoni said. "People were not sleeping because they were trying to get this car ready for the competition. The excitement of the race kind of died out because we didn't go more than 50 yards before a shaft broke.'

Following the first race, Rizzoni said the team began to look a bit dejected but had hopes of returning to the track at another race in Indianapolis in five weeks. As if not being able to compete in the first race was not discouraging enough, the team had to overcome another obstacle. Its driver, Indy car racer Bryan Herta, broke his pelvis while competing in Toronto.

"I got involved from a call out of the clear blue," said current driver Craig Taylor, who has led the team to victory in all three University Spec Series points championships, the "national championship" of the sport.

Taylor, who resides in Plano, Texas, owns and operates Taylor Race Engineering with his wife, Marcie. He received a call from OSU graduate and original team member Keith Grider, who was working on his master's project. Grider's project consisted of combining a transmission with the electric motor, something that had never been done before.

"One of the things that was clearly obvious to us was that a transmission was necessary in order to get the acceleration, and the top speed needed to have a competitive car," Grider said.

"Craig showed up and taught us a lot of things in one short day when we sat there in Indianapolis getting the car ready for that race," Rizzoni said. "We won that race, and it's been fun since."

The Electric Race Team originated in 1993 when the Department of Mechanical Engineering against the clock," Layman said.

received a letter from the Cleveland Illuminating Company encouraging universities across Ohio to participate in the new competition series.

"I had joined the department three years earlier, and I was the only electrical engineer in the department so my department chair came to my office and said, 'Look at this. What do you think? Should we do it?" "Rizzoni said.

After posting numerous fliers all over the College of Engineering and across campus, a meeting was held in November 1993. About 40 students attended.

"By the end a lot of the students said, 'Sure we'll sign on. Let's do it.' In the beginning, you know, who had ever built a race car before, certainly not with an electric motor," Rizonni said. "So we went through this cycle of designing and building."

Since the perfection of Grider's combination of the transmission and electric motor, OSU's team has set the trend for other schools to follow.

Ever since that race we won in Indianapolis, we've always been the leader," Rizzoni said. "We've always had the leading technology and basically have been showing the way for everyone else. Other schools have literally copied us and still haven't been able to catch up to us."

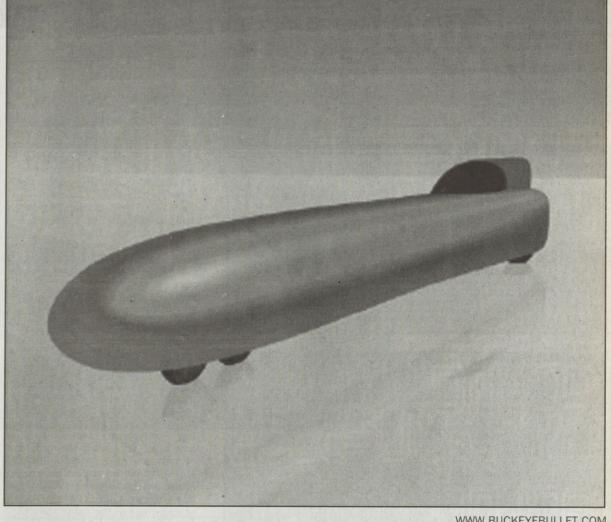

The "Smokin' Buckeye," which accelerates from zero to 60 mph in 5 seconds, set the official speed record for the lightning series at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Utah with 144 mph. The car has a 180 pound motor valued at $40,000, which was supplied by the team's largest sponsor, Shoemaker Industrial Solutions of Colum-

The team is now working on its newest project, the "Buckeye Bullet," which Layman expects will break the speed record at Utah's Bonneville Salt Flats during Speedweek in August, with a top speed of 300 mph.

Grider said the appeal of the electric race car, compared to a fuel run vehicle, has limitless possibilities.

"What really makes it exciting is the open-endedness of the engineering questions that are still being resolved," Grider said. "NASCAR is a well-watched, very popular racing venue, but they're using 1950s technology. Whereas in the electric car arena there's a lot of technology that hasn't been developed yet or is in the process of being developed."

The team's next race with the "Smokin' Buckeye" will be at Winchester, Ind., May 5 and 6 on the world's fastest one-half mile oval. The last time the team raced there in July, Taylor lapped every team and swept the entire event.

OSU prof works on monkey film

By Tom Over For the Lantern

An Ohio State professor will spend the next three weeks in West Africa, making a film about a species of the Red Colobus monkey, in the hopes of raising awareness on global conservation

Dan Mogulof, a producer from New York Times TV, contacted W. Scott McGraw of the Mansfield campus of Ohio State, asking him to help with the film.

McGraw said one of the reasons he was picked was because of his ten years of research experience in the areas of Africa that the film producers want to focus on. McGraw also said that the film will show a conservation success story of the Tai Forest in the western part of the Ivory Coast and will compare it with the conservation failures in the eastern part of the Ivory Coast and the western part of Ghana.

In the Tai Forest wildlife, a subspecies of Red Colobus mon-(procolobus badius badius) has been protected through conservation of the environment. The stories of conservation failure are found in the eastern Ivory Coast and western Ghana, where another sub-class of the same species — commonly called Miss Waldron's Red Colobus — is deemed by scientists to be either extinct or on the verge of extinction.

"If whatever measures are working in the western Ivory Coast had been put in place in eastern Ivory Coast or western Ghana, it may be possible that Miss Waldron's would still be leaping through the trees,' McGraw said.

McGraw is one of five scientists who conducted a six-year search for Miss Waldron's Red Colobus. They first published their findings in the October issue of Conservation Biology. This article, which found that Miss Waldron's Red Colobus is likely extinct, set off a wave of interest in the subject.

Globally, both nonsustainable hunting and the loss of habitat are causing various species of animals to face extinction. The disappearance of Miss Waldron's Red Colobus is attributed to the former cause.

This nonsustainable hunting of forest animals in western and central Africa and other parts of the world have come to be called the "bushmeat crisis.

McGraw said that he agreed to help with the film because he thinks that it will help raise awareness about such issues

"The ultimate is to actually be there," McGraw said. "There is no better reminder of how urgent these issues are. It is not feasible to bring everyone there, so the next best thing is to make a

Faculty promote student service-learning

By Essence Kenyea Lantern staff writer

The Ohio State Service-Learning Roundtable faculty are calling for proposals from other university faculty that will allow them to implement or improve service-oriented classes for OSU students. Funding for the seed grants are available in amounts up to $5,000.

The Service-Learning Roundtable is a group of faculty members who meet once a month to discuss possible and existing community service opportunities for OSU students. The main goal of the roundtable is to improve the quality of the undergraduate student experience by engaging faculty, students and community members in community-based teaching and learning. The group began meeting two years ago and started with 10 members. It has since grown to a membership of 28 OSU faculty members and plans to add 10 more faculty members this year.

Susan R. Jones is one of two coordinators of the Service-Learning Roundtable and is also an assistant professor in the School of Education Policy and

"We want to increase the partnership between the university faculty, students and community organizations," Jones said. "I think that servicelearning is consistent with the goals that President Kirwan identifies the university with."

She said service-learning programs increase the academic knowledge and understanding of students.

"Service-learning introduces students to complex social issues," Jones said. "Students will engage in important and needed work that is communitybased. The courses really benefit the community.

Although not all departments offer such classes, each department that does, offers a different variety. Mindy Wright, director of Writing Works and Outreach for the Center for the Study and Teaching of Writing, teaches service-learning courses in the English Department.

Students who take my service-learning class can look forward to doing hands on work with individual children," Wright said. "Students really enjoy working with the individual children. It is a good motiva-

WOSU hopes to attract volunteers

By Jackie Leatherman Lantern staff writer

WOSU stations are seeking volunteer recruitment to assist in one of their biggest on air fund-raising efforts.

Nearly 60 percent of funding for these stations comes from private donations and there has been a tremendous response from campus, said Gay Taylor, the volunteer coordinator for WOSU stations. The four fund-raisers held throughout the year, along with individual donation drives, help support the programming and operating funds for the station, he said.

Volunteers will work in four-and-ahalf hour shifts and will answer the pledge lines. The volunteer is expected to take the pledge, verify correct information and relay viewer comments. Often the volunteers are the first rep resentative of the stations, and WOSU trusts the image that the volunteers will portray to the public, Taylor said.

The fund-raiser will be held from March 3 to March 21, running weekday evenings and all weekend hours on

The fund-raising program will consist of the regularly scheduled programming to a great extent, which will range from classical music shows to Lawrence Welk to a travel series. During these selected times, a phone number will be provided for the public to call

The donations will allow WOSU to bring specialized programming that does not regularly run on the channels. During the pledge drives WOSU also offers "thank you gifts" for certain pledge levels, which are normally not offered during other fund-raising efforts, said Keri Allen, director of development at WOSU.

"Public broadcasting and fund-raising provides the public with the opportunity to cast their vote in favor of the station through financial support, and WOSU prides itself in listening to the community," Taylor said.

Besides answering pledge lines, volunteers, such as communication and broadcasting students, may have the opportunity to work with the production of the fund-raising or in the office.

WOSU provides many opportunities for someone to give something back to the community, Taylor said.

"WOSU will benefit greatly by the fund-raising since they don't receive great amounts from the government, and those that enjoy the programming should support it," said Carol Hall, the chairman of volunteers for WOSU from the University's Women's Club.

"The goal is to make this the best fund-raising year in the history of WOSU stations. This is the longest fund-raising campaign in this fiscal year and it will really have an impact on what we can provide," said Phyllis Madry, manager of individual giving.

Taft wants Medicaid to get bulk of budget increases

Associated Press writer

COLUMBUS — The cost of the Medicaid program for low-income families continues to increase, but more predictably than it did last year, state officials said yesterday as they rolled out Gov. Bob Taft's $45 billion budget for the next two years.

Taft in November ordered agency cuts of 2 percent to 4 percent for the rest of the budget year that ends June 30 to pay for a $249 billion bailout of the federal-state health care program. Budget writers said yesterday that a bailout should not occur in the next two fiscal years.

Under Taft's budget, the state will spend $14.5 billion on Medicaid in the two years beginning July 1. The state's share of the health-care plan is $5.98 billion.

The federal government pays the rest. About 1.1 million Ohioans take part in the program.

Taft cited Medicaid as a primary reason he has given most state agencies an average 0.8 percent increase in the next budget year, and 3.4 percent in the year after that. Budgets for those agencies don't reflect spending on Medicaid, education, prisons or the cost of Ohio's debt.

Medicaid spending is projected to increase 7.7 percent in the budget year beginning July 1, and 7.2 percent the year after

State officials blamed the bailout, which also included $398 million in federal money, on inflation in the health care industry, the high cost of care for the elderly and the disabled, and the improperly had been removed minimal impact on essential serfrom the rolls.

Tim Keen, assistant state budget director, said the patient rolls should stabilize and budget forecasters have a better idea this year of what costs will be.

"At this point, we feel that we've taken that into account," Keen said. "I believe that we won't need to go for additional appropriations. Agencies still are preparing plans to implement the lowgrowth budget. For example, some state unemployment offices may close, Taft said. He hopes that agencies can reduce staffing levels through attrition and without lavoffs

"The budget will present our departments and agencies with challenging management decisions," the governor said. "Our re-registration of patients who goal is to tighten our belt with state budget. Instead, the office

The Department of Job and Family Services would get an increase of 0.5 percent in fiscal 2002 and 6.5 percent in the following year, not including Medicaid costs. Some unemployment offices could close and the department's 3,900-member work force could be trimmed, but officials don't yet have a final plan, spokesman Jon Allen said.

"Those are all things that we are looking at right now. We have not made any final decisions," Allen said. "We haven't ruled anything out."

Some agencies have found different sources of funding. Secretary of State Kenneth Blackwell's office, which oversees elections and corporate filings, will lose 76 percent of its funding from the will keep money from corporate filing fees that it currently turns over to the state, as a review of the office's management suggest-

"The better we perform our job, the more funds we will have available," Blackwell spokesman Carlo LoParo said.

Taft and budget officials didn't hold out much hope for a big income tax cut for next year. The budget reserve from which the cuts are drawn is currently $27 million. This year, the fund returned $610 million to taxpayers. The total surplus won't be known until July. Taft, and Keen would not predict how much would be in it.

"There's great uncertainty about what's going to happen to revenue the rest of the fiscal year. We're good, but I don't know that we're that good," Keen said.

Fed to discuss ways to avoid recession at meeting

By Martin Crutsinger AP Economics writer

WASHINGTON Alan Greenspan's stark assessment that economic growth is probably "very close to zero" has many analysts convinced the Federal Reserve will follow its surprise Jan. 3 rate cut with another halfpoint reduction at this week's meeting.

The big question, the analysts said yesterday, is whether the Fed's aggressive easing will be enough to avert a full-blown reces-

"The economic numbers that have been coming in are very weak and I think they are particularly scared by the consumer confidence numbers," said David Wyss, chief economist at Standard & Poor's Corp. "If people get scared and stop spending, then you have a recession.

Wyss said he believed the economy will advance at an annual rate of just 0.7 percent in the current January-March quarter, a growth rate so weak that a severe winter storm or other bad luck could tip the economy into negative territory. A recession is often defined as two consecutive quarters of declines in the gross domestic product.

"Greenspan wanted to tell people, 'We know things are bad and we are moving as fast as we can and you can expect more," Wyss

Wyss predicted the Fed will announce a half-point cut tomorrow, at the end of their two-day meeting, and would cut again at the next two meetings, on March 20 and May 15.

Bush aides discover D.C. prices

By Ron Kampeas Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON - From rent to groceries to galoshes, the new president's men and women are discovering what Bill Clinton's Arkansans and other presidents' aides learned before them: Washington is one expensive town.

Faced with sticker shock at almost every turn, the transplanted Texans are having to make Lone Star State-size adjustments.

"I came here with a budget, but my first day here, I realized my budget doesn't exist in this city," said Adam Goldman, a political aide to George W. Bush when he was governor and now associate director of the White House Office of Public Liaison.

In all, 200 to 300 Texans who worked in the Bush campaign have moved to Washington.

Austin, where most of them lived, is at 100 on a Money magazine cost-of-living index ranking 328 cities from cheapest to most expensive. Washington is at 300, not too far behind cost leader New York City. For comparison, Miami is at 248, Chicago 267, Los Angeles 307.

Reed Dickens, a staff member in the White House press office, says he heads to a local grocery with his roommate just to get a kick out of the prices. "Everything you touch there is $6.99, at least twice what it's

New White House staffers say they adjusted their rent expectations upward by $200 to $300 — only to realize they needed to double that adjustment.

"I came up here with the naive assumption you could find a nice place to live for $500-$600 a month," said Dickens. Now he's paying $950 across the Potomac River in the Crystal City area of Arlington, Va., and that's half of a $1,900 rent he shares with his Part of his problem was that he started in mid-December, after the Supreme Court decision settling the election for Bush. "Landlords kept on saying You waited too late.' What could we do?'

There are sticker shocks in wardrobe expenses as

"Two years on the campaign, my uniform was khaki pants and Nikes," said Amanda Moore, Bush's deputy director of scheduling. "Before coming here, I bought a bunch of suits.'

Dressier wear alone doesn't cut it - there's the consideration of an average annual 16 inches of snow, instead of just one inch in Austin.

"Walking back from the inauguration in my dress shoes with leather soles, I realized why friends advised me to get galoshes," Goldman said. "I had to leave them out drying two days.' He bought the galoshes, and is planning to get a heavy winter coat to replace the rain slicker he brought with him. Then there's eating out, the principal sustenance of people adjusting to 12-hour workdays. "I consider myself lucky if I find a restaurant with a $15 entree," Goldman said, and that's $5 more than he was used to paying in Austin.

DaimlerChrysler loses money, eliminates jobs

By Jim Suhr Associated Press Writer

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — DaimlerChrysler is eliminating 26,000 jobs at its money-losing Chrysler division in the most dramatic sign yet that the 1998 merger of the German and American automakers is not living up to its promise.

Under the plan announced yesterday, Chrysler will cut one-fifth of its global work force over the next three years and idle six plants.

Dieter Zetsche, a German who was named Chrysler's president and chief executive in November to stem the losses, called the moves painful but necessary in the face of "brutal" competition and slack U.S. sales

Chrysler posted a third-quarter loss of $512 million and warned that its fourth-quarter loss could be more than $1 billion.

The job cuts involve 19,000 hourly workers and 6,800 on salary. Zetsche said he expects a large part of the job-cutting to be done through retirement programs, with others phased out through layoffs and attrition.

"Part of this process may be painful for many people," he said. "However, to be truly competitive in today's auto industry environment, we need to be a more nimble company, more closely aligned with current and future market conditions."

Laid-off members of the United Auto Workers union will get 95 percent of their take-home pay for their duration of their contract, which ends in 2003. Employees belonging to the Canadian Auto Workers will get 65 percent of their salary under a contract that expires in 2002.

The announcement comes 23 years after Lee Iacocca saved Chrysler from bankruptcy by negotiating a $1.5 billion federal bailout package, closing plants and laying off workers.

Chrysler Corp. not only was restored to health but became the industry leader in per-vehicle profit — something that appealed to Daimler-Benz, the maker of Mercedes. In 1998, Daimler-Benz and Chrysler merged in a $32.8 billion deal

Chrysler's performance since then has not met Daimler-Chrysler's expectations: Sales incentives have erased profits, and production of the hot-selling PT Cruiser has fallen short of demand. Daimler and Chrysler also have been reluctant to share parts to cut DaimlerChrysler's stock price has fallen steadily since reaching a high of $108 in January 1999. It is now at about $47.

Last year, DaimlerChrysler chairman Juergen Schrempp sacked Chrysler's top American management and installed Zetsche.

While the combination of the two automakers was touted at the time as a "merger of equals," most of Daimler-Chrysler's stock is held in Germany and a majority of top management comes from Daimler-Benz

Bush aids religious charities

By Sandra Sobieraj

Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — President Bush, challenging traditional notions about separation of church and state, opened the door yesterday for religious groups to receive government money for their work aiding addicts, prisoners, the homeless and more.

"We will not fund the religious activities of any group, but when people of faith provide social services, we will not discriminate against them," the president said.

By his signature on a pair of executive orders, Bush created a White House Office of Faith-Based and Community Initiatives — with counterpart offices in five Cabinet-level departments — that will facilitate competition by religious groups and charities for a share of the billions of dollars that the government pays out for social services.

Today, during a visit to northeast Washington's Fishing School, a spiritual youth center, Bush plans to unveil the legislation he will submit to Congress opening all federal grant programs to participation by religious groups. His proposals will also include tax incentives and liability protection to encourage more charitable giving, aides said.

"Problems like addiction and abandonment and gang violence, domestic violence, mental illness and homelessness — we are called by conscience to respond," Bush said during yesterday's signing ceremony

"As long as there are secular alternatives, faithbased charities should be able to compete for funding on an equal basis and in a manner that does not cause them to sacrifice their mission."

Religious leaders of varied faiths and political backgrounds — a Catholic nun in her blue habit, a Muslim imam in his turban, an Orthodox Jew in his yarmulke — surrounded Bush for a smiling photo. Among them were ministers Walter Fauntroy and Floyd Flake, both of them prominent black Democrats.

In a private meeting beforehand, Bush, who was opposed by nine of every 10 black voters in November, assessed the group and, according to several participants, joked: "If this was about politics, this room would be kind of empty, if you know what I mean."

At the Washington-based Americans United for Separation of Church and State, the Rev. Barry Lynn called Bush's planned expansion an assault on constitutional principle that will only lead to more litigation.

"The First Amendment was intended to create a separation between religion and government, not a massive new bureaucracy that unites the two," said Lynn, an attorney and United Church of Christ minister.

Miami coach Butch Davis signals to his offense to run the two-point conversion play during the second quarter of the Kickoff Classic against Ohio State at Giants Stadium in East Rutherford, N.J., in this Aug. 29, 1999 photo.

By Tim Withers AP sports writer

BEREA, Ohio — Butch Davis, who brought Miami's football program back from ruin to national title contention, resigned yester-day to coach the Cleveland

Davis, who led the Hurricanes to a No. 2 ranking last season, will be introduced at 10 a.m. news conference today at the Browns' training facility, team president Carmen Policy said.

"The Browns organization is extremely pleased to have Butch Davis as our next coach," Policy said in a statement.

Davis had been rumored to be atop Cleveland's wish list since the team fired Palmer on Jan. 11. WKYC-TV and WTAM-AM in Cleveland first reported that Davis would take the Browns job.

His agent, Marvin Demoff, said, after arriving in Cleveland, Davis had not yet signed a contract with the Browns, but the sides were in serious discussions.

"It's pretty close," he said. For weeks, Davis has been denying he would leave Miami, where he had been working on a contract extension with the university. The Browns also refuted having had a secret meeting with Davis in Florida.

Davis told the Hurricanes' players of his decision Monday morning and was headed to Cleveland. His departure comes one week before the end of the college signing period.

'Î'm disappointed," Miami athletic director Paul Dee said, "I think coach Davis had a lot to give UM and I'm pleased at the success we had.

Dee said offensive coordinator Larry Coker has been named Miami's interim head coach.

Just last week, the Browns said they were focusing their search on NFL assistants, all but ruling out the possibility of hiring Davis, Oklahoma coach Bob Stoops or Washington coach Rick Neuheisel.

Browns owner Al Lerner shot down reports Davis was coming to Cleveland, saying, "There is no

Butch Davis."
Davis, 49, was in the fourth year of a seven-year contract at Miami and had nearly agreed to a five-year extension at the university. Davis met with Dee last weekend and said the sides only had to work out a few details on the con-

Davis, who interviewed for the expansion Houston Texans' head coaching job, had reportedly lost interest in pursuing a job with the Browns because he would not have full control of football operations in Cleveland.

Dwight Clark is in charge of personnel decisions with the Browns, but Davis' hiring could indicate a reshuffling in the Browns' front office. The Browns' coaching search is ending just when it seemed to be picking up steam. The club had asked for permission to speak with Super Bowl defensive coordinators Marvin Lewis of Baltimore and John Fox of the New York Giants this week. Both coaches were scheduled to visit Cleveland in the next few days. The Browns interviewed three assistants last week, including defensive coordinator Romeo Crennel, but were thought to be leaning toward Lewis, who guided the Ravens' record-setting defense and the front-runner to replace Wade Phillips in Buffalo. Davis has coached the Hurricanes since 1995. He turned around Miami's troubled program after it was hit with numerous NCAA violations.

This season, he led the Hurricanes to an 11-1 record and 37-20 rout of Florida in the Sugar Bowl on Jan. 2.

Davis, known as a strict disciplinarian, also served as a defensive assistant coach, then coordinator for Dallas under Jimmy Johnson from 1989-94, when the Cowboys won two Super Bowls.

Davis will have his work cut out for him with the Browns, who are coming off a 3-13 season and have gone 5-27 in their first two years back in the league.

The Browns ranked near the bottom of the league in most statistical categories in 1999 and 2000. They were shut out four times last season in losing 12 of their last 13 games.

'Mile High Stadium' falls prey to coporate America

By Tiffany Meredith

DENVER - Denver's new football stadium sold its name for a pile of cash that's a mile high.

Disregarding the wishes of the mayor and many fans to preserve the name simply as "Mile High Stadium," the new home of the Broncos will be "Invesco Field at Mile High."

the stadium. The Metropolitan Football Stadium District Board accepted the offer Monday in a 7-1 vote.

Taxpayers are responsible for 75 percent of the burden to finance the $400 million facility, which is being built next door to the old stadium. The Broncos begin play at their new home this fall.

Mayor Wellington Webb led oppo sition to the renaming, saying Mile High was a marketing asset for the area. Webb and many fans also said the rich history associated with the name was more important than cutting the stadium's cost.

"People have been calling from around the country, even public radio listeners," Webb spokesman Andrew Hudson said. "We hit a national nerve. People are tired of everything being named after a corporate entity.

Invesco, and other prospective buyers, had insisted that the corporate designation be placed at the beginning of the stadium name,

"Once it's gone, it's gone for good," he said. "Invesco is hoping that over the years the Mile High will be dropped." Denver joins other cities that have sold naming rights for millions, leading to venues with such names as 3-Com Park in San Francisco, the Staples Center in Los Angeles, Safeco Field in Seattle and Cinergy Field in Cincinnati.

Analysts had predicted the naming rights would sell between $52 million and $89 million, despite polls

ady Bucks take home Ohio Cup

By Megan Cowley Lantern sports writer

The Ohio State women's hockey team overpowered Findlay 5-4 in the first ever Ohio Cup, on Super Bowl Sunday at the Clauss Ice Arena in Findlay, Ohio.

The Buckeyes gained possession of the Ohio Cup trophy, which they will keep until next season's battle against Findlay at the OSU Ice Arena.

"We are happy to have won the first Ohio Cup," said Jackie Barto, women's hockey coach. "We worked hard and it was a good effort, although not our best. We stuck with it and beared down to the end."

The Buckeye's defeat of the Oilers,

OSU's only in-state competition, brings the Bucks to 9-12-3 overall and 6-7-3 in the WCHA. The Oilers have a record of 10-11-1 overall and 4-0-1 in the WCHA.

OSU's Kelli Halcisak, an undecided freshman, shot the game-winning goal in the second period, preventing overtime or a tied game. Halcisak added to her outstanding playing by posting three assists for OSU.

"I think I came out with a different mentality," Halcisak said. "All of the games mean the same and I try to come out with the same attitude."

Finland-native Emma Laaksonen, a freshman in business, had her ninth power-play goal of the season and added two assists.

"We played hard and gave it all we had," Laaksonen said. "It's maybe not the best game we played, but we wanted to win.

Erin O'Grady, an undecided freshman, responded early in the first period when she collected the puck from Laaksonen and stuck it in the net for the first Buckeye goal of the game.

"It was fun getting our in-state rivalry going," O'Grady said. "We worked the offensive team well by taking it to the net." The special teams were a big part

Ravens can't stop ratings from falling

By Howard Fendrich AP sports writer

NEW YORK - A lopsided game with little offense from either team dragged the TV rating down to one of the Super Bowl's lowest in 30 years. CBS Sports' telecast of the Baltimore Ravens' 34-7 victory over the New York Giants registered a national rating of 40.3 with a record-low 60 share from 6:30 to 9:53 p.m. EST Sunday. That means an average of 40.3 percent of the country's TV homes were watching at any given moment, while 60 percent of in-use televisions were tuned to the game. The lowest previous share for any which had the advantage of a team from the country's biggest market, New York, and the disadvantage of two East Coast teams — was down about 7 percent from last year's Super Bowl on ABC.

That's not surprising given the natures of the games. The outcome of Sunday's contest was decided by the third quarter; the St. Louis Rams' 23-16 victory over the Tennessee Titans in 2000 came down to the final play.

And while last year's game featured the Rams' big-play offense, neither Baltimore nor New York was particularly efficient when it had the ball Sunday. The teams combined for a record-low 393 yards of offense, and the game's 21 punts shattered the old Super Bowl record of 15. This year's rating was slightly higher than the 40.2 for the 1999 game, when the Denver Broncos beat the Atlanta Falcons

The only other Super Bowls since 1971 with a lower rating was the 1990 game, which drew a 39.0 on CBS as the San Francisco 49ers topped the Denver Bron-

Weekend design arts opening at Wexner a success

By Karen Altenbach Lantern arts writer

"Suite Fantastique," the Wexner Center's newest art exhibition, opened last Friday with an exhibition preview, special screenings of "The Predator" and a late-night student party with live music by DJ Spooky. The exhibit will run until April 15.

This design arts extravaganza features "Perfect Acts of Architecture," an exhibition of drawings created between 1977 and 1987 by internationally renowned architects. Each set of drawings explores this slow economic era when new building was curtailed by addressing the key debates of the time, from the loss of meaning to the radical reorganization of social life. The five architects - Daniel Libeskind, Peter Eisenman, Thom Mayne, Rem Koolhaas, and Bernard Tschumi fueled the intellectual scene with debates involving philosophy, ment of social criticism and social thought.

Daniel Libeskind, born in Poland and living in Berlin, has his works "Micromegas" and "Chamber Works" on display. "Micromegas" was inspired by the history of modern drawing, but is a product of originality. "Chamber Works" struggles with the question of how ideas become universal — timeless and placeless. These drawings are a haphazard mixture of signs, symbols and scratches from Libeskind's life.

Peter Eisenman's "House VI Transformation Collage" is the most famous in a series of 11 houses. He generated hundreds of drawings for the project and many are displayed at this exhibition. Eisenman wanted to develop a type of architecture tion. These houses demonstrate his esoteric theories. Eisenman is also the designer of the Columbus Convention Center.

Thom Mayne, whose ideas are often imitated by architects and students, shapes his architectural vision through his fascination with machines and mechanisms and with the part over the whole. On display are his works "Morphosis," drawings for a house he imagined, and the "Kate Mantilini Drodel," a drawing-model consisting of a series of etched glass blocks stacked together to create a virtual model of the design in space. Rem Kool-haas' solution to revitalize architecture as an instrupolitical change was to explore its revolutionary role in the city. The "Exodus" project, or "The Voluntary Prisoners of Architecture," is a series of collages that portray the social and political upheavals of the 1960s, mixing freedom with irony into architecture.

Bernard Tschumi's four "Manhattan Transcripts" — "The Park," "The Street," "The Tower" and "The Block" - tell murder mysteries and other stories using traditional architectural techniques such as drawing, blended with collage, storyboarding, diagramming and strip films. These illustrative narratives are created to resemble buildings.

"The drawings in the middle that was not based solely on func- section of the exhibit displayed here have a critical commentary that I feel is important to mention," said artist Don Bates, the fill-in moderator at Saturday's symposium.

In the back of the exhibit rests "The Predator," a creation by painter Fabian Marcaccio and architect Gregg Lynn. The two are the co-recipients of the 2000-01 Wexner Center Residency Award. "The Predator" is a plastic creature, a mixture of > painting and architecture. This large form, thirty feet wide and 10 feet high, is large enough at certain points that visitors can walk into it, and are encouraged to do so. The Predator was created by animation software and manufactured with computer assistance.

Scattered throughout the exhibit are the 21 latemodern and post-modern works of the late Scott Burton. The Scott Burton furniture on display includes chairs and tables that employ a vast array of forms and techniques. The chairs are made out of stone, granite, lava and steel and are highly acclaimed by critics.

"The Burton furniture was my favorite part of the exhibit," said Lauren Warner, a junior in speech and hearing. "I think it is an excellent example of post-modern artwork." Warner found out the hard way that the visitors could not actually use the chairs

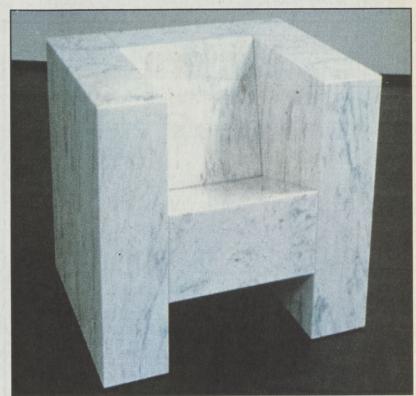

The opening party kicked off the art exhibit, but the events for "Suite Fantastique" went into weekend-long festivities. Friday night's opening party wrapped up with the late-night student party with DJ Spooky, and Saturday ended with the symposium.

The symposium "Technologies of World Making" included a panel of respected speakers, some of whom are exhibition participants. The symposium discussed how the world of art, which was previously immersed in drawing methods, is shifting in this hightech world to that of digital methods. The discussion was in two parts. The morning session discussed drawing, and the afternoon discussed digital methods.

The symposium mixed discussion with visual and audible examples of the artists work and their opinions and critiques of the debate. The panels expanded generations of perspectives, giving light to some interesting views on each issue.

"I felt that the symposium was a crucial part in understanding the exhibition and the thought processes that go into these artists' work," said Joe McMann of Boston, Mass.

These festivities are just the beginning of the art extravaganza. "Suite Fantastique" also includes workshops, Family Day, screenings, guided tours and a lecture series. All lectures are free and will host many provocative architects and innovative designers. The first of the series is Feb. 8 at 7 p.m. with Rem Koolhaas in the Mershon Auditorium. Future lecture times and speakers as well as any other additional information can be found at www.wexarts.org.

tions. Although the shows will be hitting most of the same cities and venues, Columbus will only host the Icicle Ball.

Though the Icicle Ball is the smaller of the two shows, it is likely to be the most interesting. The Rock tour will be the standard hard rock show, with nearly all of the performers well known in popular music.

Co-founder of ARTISTdirect, Inc., Don Muller, said in a press release that his company is trying to reach more fans of varying musical taste, using the two show format.

"The whole point of ARTISTdirect is to put the artist and the fan directly in touch with each other," he said. "While we help expand the SnoCore concept, well also broaden its reach by attracting to very different audiences to the shows."

In the past SnoCore projects have featured big names, such as Blink-182, but this is the first time in the show's six year history that they will promote two different tours.

Lake Trout's music sounds fresh

By Jessica Faller Lantern arts writer

When Baltimore, Md., is mentioned, thoughts of delicious seafood and Super Bowl champions, the Ravens, are brought to mind. For some music fans, Lake Trout is also a thought, but not the deep-fried fish.

Lake Trout is a sophisticated band of talented musicians who like to call their sound, "organica," that is, a dance-floor groove rooted in the traditional live music presentation. It is not limited in concept or structure and it disregards preconceived notions of musical boundaries.

The five-piece band combines live break beats and drum and bass elements with jazz, rock and pop experimentation to create improvisational urban grooves based on their recorded material. In other words, think of Lake Trout as producing music along the same veins as Fatboy Slim with the expanding fan base of Phish or even Dave Matthews Band.

With a heavy tour schedule, Lake Trout has ited live performances and they are one of the East Coast's most in-demand live acts at clubs and raves around the country.

Three of the five members of Lake Trout met in high school and formed an improvisational jazz ensemble. They met the other two members in college as they continued their musical journeys and grew reliant on each other's influences and musical styles.

The members of the band are: Mike Lowry on drums; Ed Harris on guitar; Woody Ranere on guitar and vocals: James Griffith on bass guitar and Matt Pierce on saxophone, flute and Fender Rhodes organ. On their most recent release, "Alone at Last," they have captured their live, spontaneous presentation at Trax in Charlottesville, Va., with help from industry friend and renowned turntable wizard, DJ

Memorable and noteworthy moments that stand out on the live recording include; Lowry's machine-gun speed on the drums, Harris' loop-machine guitar precision and technique and Ranere's rock-influenced vocals.

Harris said the band's focus on turning developed a growing reputation for their spir- sampled guitar riffs, vocals or drum beats into a live experience is what makes them stand out among DJs and other bands. "For example, some DJs will take actual samples of prerecorded material, like an Aerosmith guitar riff or James Brown vocal track, and turn those samples into a great new song. We, on the other hand, take the same influences and perform live music based on the inspiration those songs or elements have given us to create a fresh, new type of music," Harris said.

Listening to bands ranging from Led Zeppelin and Dr. Octagon to Radiohead and Johnny Cash, Lake Trout brings musical influences from all corners of genre-classification to establish the band's music as truly unclassifi-

The Baltimore quintet have played shows with a variety of bands and musicians including: The Disco Biscuits; 2 Skinnee J's; Medeski Martin and Wood; John Scofield and Pharcyde. Lake Trout will be at the Newport Music Hall this Saturday as part of the SnoCore Icicle Ball. They will be supporting New Orleans jazz-funksters Galactic, and Primus frontman Les Claypool's side project, Frog Brigade.

Aries (March 21-April 19). The emphasis is on you Monday and Tuesday. You're the star of the show, so put on a great performance. Gather information on your next big technical purchase Wednesday. Think about it Thursday, before you buy. A slight financial setback Friday could change your plans and help you make up your mind. You're in a pensive mood Saturday, and you'll want to stay close to home Sunday. A favorite meal with family puts everything right.

Taurus (April 20-May 20). You may feel like you're getting pushed around at work on Monday or Tuesday. By Wednesday you'll be on your feet again, and on Thursday you could be the eloquent spokesperson for your side. The positive impression you're making could lead to more responsibility, and more pay, on Friday. Don't take on the former without the latter. Saturday is also good for making money and finding new ways to save it. You're apt to be late for a date on Sunday, so set a flexible time. Gemini (May 21-June 21). The plans you make with friends on Monday and Tuesday seem more like fantasy than fact, but that's fine. On Wednesday and Thursday you'll be applying the final touches and really getting serious. By Friday you can have a proposal to sell that makes sense, both in terms of vision and profitability. Travel looks good on Saturday, but it's best to reach your destination by early Sunday. It's not a mechanical breakdown but an emotional one that could disrupt an otherwise pleasant evening. Be compassionate but firm. Cancer (June 22-July 22). Keep most of your comments to yourself on Monday and Tuesday. It'll be difficult to get a word in anyway; your boss or teacher wants to do most of the talking. Your opinion will be more highly revered on Wednesday, so save it for then. Help your team find a way around a barrier on Thursday. You could take a wrong turn on Friday, so give yourself plenty of time to get where you're going. Saturday is good for visiting a favorite spot with your sweetheart, and Sunday is best for sorting and filing your paperwork.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22). Financial worries fade on Monday as the day progresses. Instead of buying a gift you can't afford, take your sweetheart on an outing Tuesday. Take care of business on Wednesday, because a strong reprimand from the boss awaits you on Thursday if you don't. Pay attention to what you're doing on Friday, too, because the person who signs your paycheck is definitely doing that. You're so popular this weekend, you may have trouble keeping all your commitments. Save the end of Sunday for personal contemplation Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The better you keep somebody else's money in order on Monday and Tuesday, the better you look. Don't get too playful Wednesday, or you'll forget to do something important. That could lead to trouble on Thursday, when work interferes with your playtime. Don't let your mate's

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Your mate is very directive on Monday and Tuesday. It'll be fun, provided you can go along with your partner's suggestions. However, don't let your mate spend all of your money on Wednesday or Thursday. You might be enticed into making a commitment Friday around dinnertime. Travel and games both go well over the weekend, but be careful. If you hurry, the job may have to be done over again.

remark upset you on Friday. Something your mate believes is too hard will actually be easy for you. Help an older person over the weekend. This won't bring money or even recognition, but it's good for Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). A co-worker's snide remark could get you agitated on Monday or Tuesday, but don't despair - it's going to motivate you. Get a partner to help you solve a tough problem at home on Wednesday or Thursday. This is too complicated for you to deal with all by yourself. If shopping is required, go Friday. With your partner's help, you can get the very thing you need. Do some of the work yourself this weekend, then go out to dinner to spend what you saved. Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'd rather stay home and play with your sweetheart on Monday and Tuesday. Do that as much as you can. The work starts pouring in around Wednesday. There will be complications on Wednesday and Thursday. Misunderstandings and haste makes waste on Friday. Your partner may be in an argumentative mood over the weekend. He or she is so cute, it won't be hard to acquiesce. And if you do, he or she will think you're pretty cute, too.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). A home-based enterprise could be quite profitable Monday and Tuesday. Devote more time to your sweetheart Wednesday and Thursday. Playtime is important to staying healthy, and it's also important to keep your priorities straight. Love always takes precedence, as you well know. More work comes in late Friday, and that assignment could last through the weekend. But it might be best not to work on Sunday, when a breakdown could make the job take even longer.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb 18). Dig for the information you need on Monday and Tuesday - you'll find it. Slow down Wednesday and Thursday, taking the time to look for errors. The more you find then, the better off you'll be on Friday, when your work is put to the test. By Friday afternoon the worst is over, so set up a date for that night. Spend time with your sweetheart rather than with a colleague on Saturday. Chores may disrupt your play schedule on Sunday. Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20). You may be worried about money Monday and Tuesday, but it's not that you don't have enough. More likely, you've found too many ways to spend it. You'll make it go a lot further by shopping wisely on Wednesday and Thursday. An item you've been seeking for your home becomes available Friday. Fixing up your home is the perfect project for this weekend. Don't wait for another to

If You're Having a Birthday This Week: Jan. 29: Your energy level is high this year, so use it. You're extremely smart, so don't hold back. Jan. 30: Others marvel at your prowess this year. Strut your stuff and don't hold back. You didn't get this good by accident; you worked at it. Jan. 31: You're putting down roots, and it's about time. A goal you've been after for ages can finally be yours. Feb. 1: Something you've been putting up with at home could become intolerable. Make the changes you've been thinking about for so long. Feb. 2: There's a conflict between career and family. Look at other options in February, then make up your mind in March. Feb. 3: Your romantic fantasies can come true. It's not quite by accident, even though the way things turn out might be rather surprising. Feb. 4: You're looking good, and you attract very interesting people. An argument in March narrows the field.
