

Amy's owner to fight eviction despite agreement to vacate

By Valerie Lynn Quillen
Lantern staff writer

Amy's Homemade Ice Creamery may soon be closing its doors at the Ohio Union.

In Franklin County Municipal Court Jan. 10, Amy's agreed to vacate the premises on or before Feb. 20.

But Jeff Morris, owner of the ice cream and sandwich shop, says he will continue fighting to keep his restaurant open after that date.

"We have every intention of resolving the situation to prevent the eviction from taking place," he said.

Richard D. Jackson, OSU vice president for business and finance, wrote to Amy's Nov. 29 telling the firm to leave the premises on the grounds that it had breached its rental agreement and had failed to obtain a valid performance bond.

A performance bond is a document that insures a party's obligation to perform under a contract.

The court agreement, signed by lawyers for both OSU and Amy's, says the university is entitled to possess the premises if Amy's violates any more obligations under its lease.

Amy's must continue to pay rent and perform all terms and conditions of the lease until Feb. 20, according to the agreement.

The situation began when Jackson wrote Amy's Oct. 10 informing the store it had 10 days to pay $949 in rent — overdue since Sept. 20 — and to deliver a performance bond for $6,500. Otherwise its lease would be terminated.

Jackson wrote again Oct. 31 telling Amy's its lease had been terminated Oct. 28 for failure to provide a performance bond. The letter informed Amy's it had three days to leave the union or OSU would start eviction proceedings.

In the Nov. 29 letter, Jackson said Amy's had failed to vacate the premises voluntarily and to follow the university's demands. Therefore, legal proceedings to repossess the premises and to obtain anything else belonging to the university were started.

Amy's lease is a five-year contract that began July 1, 1979.

Barney Greenbaum, owner of the Juice Factory, Scarlata and Gray Subs and other Ohio Union restaurants, said, "If Morris has sour grapes, he has sour grapes."

Basically, Amy's was not following the rules, he said.

"The conflict I have had with Amy's is that they cut in to our sales by selling some of the same products we did," he said.

Greenbaum said despite the fact that any menu changes have to be approved through the university, Amy's menu and prices would change every other week.

"I feel what the university wanted in Amy's space didn't work," he said. "Amy's didn't hold up its part of the bargain."

If people want to find some reason to get rid of you, they will find it, Greenbaum said.

"I give Morris a lot of credit — to fight for his business. I would do the same thing."

"But personally, I think it is impossible to maintain an ice cream business in the winter," he said.

Greenbaum said he has heard talk that the university wants a bakery to replace Amy's.

David T. Mucci, associate director for the Ohio Union, said since the case is still pending, no plans have been made concerning the space.

The university can follow one of two paths when space becomes available, he said.

The union may decide to put in an operation it would own and manage, or it may choose another to fill the space through a bidding system, Mucci said.

Generally, the union chooses vendors to fill vacancies, he said.

"Like any retail operation, we want to balance what is offered to the public. Therefore, we try to mix things up as much as possible," Mucci said.

The union looks at the market to see what is needed, he said. Then it finds out what the students, faculty and staff want at the union.

System may be used for space

OSU robots prepped for vision

By David Adams
Lantern staff writer

A vision system that will enable welding robots to "see" what they are doing is being developed by OSU's Department of Welding Engineering.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has contracted with the department for $133,000 to develop a system that could be used in space to weld girders together.

"Hopefully, the system will be used on a future space shuttle," said Dick Richardson, associate professor of welding engineering.

Richardson said the system should be ready by June. Then it will go to the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., for further testing and refinement.

The vision system would be the "eyes" in areas where people would be unable to guide the welding robots.

The system consists of a TV camera and a small but advanced computer that analyzes what the camera sees.

The camera views the working area and converts light intensity into a corresponding group of numbers. These numbers, which would be a numerical representation of the area being worked on, would then be fed into the robot by the computer, Richardson said.

The robot to be guided by the vision system is being developed by the Columbus-based Advanced Robotics Division and will be ready to link with the vision system in March, said Peter Rogers, the division's director of engineering.

"A state-of-the-art vision system combined with a state-of-the-art welding robot makes the whole thing remarkable," Rogers said.

Creating the communication link between the camera and the robot has been one of the project's biggest challenges, said Dave Farson, a graduate student from Lowell who has worked on the project since its beginning three years ago.

"The computer and camera have to be able to instruct the robot what to do, when and where," he said. "It is a very precise instrument."

The prototype vision system has cost about $500,000, Richardson said.

"If the same system was developed further and was produced in greater numbers, the price could drop to $20,000 or $30,000 very quickly," Richardson said.

The system is being developed by two welding engineering graduates, two undergraduates, a laboratory supervisor and an electrical engineer and is run by Richardson, Farson said.

What does science prove?: evolution, creationism clash

By Judith P. Hampton-James
Lantern staff writer

Evidently the cosmic chicken laid the cosmic egg, said Duane Gish, a member of the Institute for Creation Research.

In a heated debate Thursday night, Gish and Steven Shore, a professor of astronomy at Case Western Reserve University explained evolution and creation scientifically.

According to Gish, scientific evidence supports creation and debunks evolution.

Shore, outraged by this comment, said, "We are not debating science here." He said creation is speculative and not scientific.

When Gish addressed the question, "Were we created or did we just evolve?" he answered, "The universe could not have created itself, so therefore it must have been created."

Gish said, "No scientist could logically dispute the proposition that man, without having been involved in the divine creation, actually evolved from some ape-like creature in a very short space of time."

Gish said that without a God, everything in the universe would die. He said that this could not be true according to evolution.

Gish peered out into the audience and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, if evolution is true, then what has actually happened is the brain is made up of tiny trillions of DNA mistakes."

There is supporting evidence that animals and plants which are fully formed do not undergo a transitional form.

"The fossil record of plants is in favor of creation," Gish said.

Evolution shows there is an absence of transitional form, Gish said, and evolution requires intermediate forms between species. The fossil record does not provide for them.

However, Shore said everything in the world is changing by the minute.

When Shore explained the process of a cloud of gas changing into the form of a star, Gish asked Shore how many he actually thought would wait around that long looking for it.

Life as it has always been seen is an indication of the end of a process, Shore said, not the beginning.

Gish ended the debate by saying science that supports creation should be taught in the schools.

Academic freedom should be put back into schools, he said.

Shore nodded in agreement.

Boy scout leader sues OSU for stadium injury

By Patrick Jackson
Lantern staff writer

A Boy Scout leader who tripped and fell down the steps at Ohio Stadium is suing OSU for $850,000.

The suit was filed Tuesday in the Ohio Court of Claims by William R. Heacock of Galion. Heacock alleges that during the OSU-Minnesota football game Oct. 1, OSU was negligent in overcrowding the stadium and violating state building codes.

Heacock was walking down steps within the stadium to check on his scouts, who were acting as ushers during the game.

According to the suit, Heacock tripped while trying to avoid fans seated in folding wooden chairs — placed in the aisles to accommodate overflow crowds. Heacock broke all three major bones in both arms as a result of the fall.

According to his doctors, one of Heacock's arms will be partially disabled, and the doctors have been unable to determine whether the other arm will function properly, said Terry Van Horn, Heacock's attorney.

Van Horn also claims the university was negligent by failing to install handrails at the stadium.

The law states that public buildings and facilities must have handrails on all staircases, Van Horn said. If not, the owner of the building is liable for any injuries sustained, he said.

Assistant State Attorney General Robert Holder, the attorney general's representative at OSU, said it is too early to comment on the suit.

GOV. RICHARD F. CELESTE and Secretary of State Sherrod Brown plan to ask U.S. District Court next week for permission to hold the 1984 elections in Ohio's current congressional districts and then realign the boundaries for 1986.

Celeste and Brown said changing districts at this late date would create an undue administrative hardship on Ohio's election machinery, which is already in place for the May 8 primary.

U.S. DISTRICT JUDGE ALVIN KRENZLER Thursday sentenced reputed Youngstown Mafia underboss Joey Naples to six months in prison for a federal firearms violation.

Naples, who faced a maximum of two years in prison and a $10,000 fine, was placed on probation for another 18 months and was fined $5,000.

Naples, who federal officials say has a long history of involvement in organized crime, must report to go to prison within 10 days.

HOUSE DEMOCRATS, HOPING TO DEFUSE CHARGES they are playing politics with foreign affairs, Thursday moved to tone down a resolution calling for the prompt removal of U.S. Marines from Lebanon.

Rep. Steven Solarz, D-N.Y., said Democrats on the Foreign Affairs Committee planned to rewrite the resolution to take out "gratuitous" partisan criticism of the administration and make it clear that U.S. air and naval forces should remain in the area to support the Beirut government.

But he said the "bottom line" would still be a call for President Reagan to promptly withdraw the Marines "from the soil of Lebanon."

A 2-YEAR-OLD GIRL with a spine tumor underwent more than six hours of delicate, life-saving surgery Thursday that her doctors in Iowa refused to perform because it may have left her paralyzed.

The rare operation, called an astrocytoma, was performed on Kandis Gerlach, 2, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, at

New York University Medical Center.

The child's condition was described as "satisfactory" by her NYU Medical Center neurosurgeon, Dr. Fred Epstein.

The doctor, who had noted the operation carried a 5 percent chance of leaving the girl paralyzed, said after the operation it was too early to tell whether she will be able to walk again.

There were no reports of American casualties and U.S. Marines were not involved in the clashes, although

Ag college to get new chairmen

By Valerie Lynn Quillen
Lantern staff writer

Two nationally-known committee chairmen will bring innovative ideas and experience to OSU's College of Agriculture. Charles R. Curtis of the University of Delaware and Joseph Havlicek Jr. of the University of Maryland, will become the new chairmen of two agriculture departments.

Curtis will replace Ira W. Deep July 1 as the chairman of the Department of Plant Pathology and Havlicek will replace David H. Boyne April 1 as the chairman of the Department of Agriculture Economics and Rural Sociology, said Max Lennon, OSU vice president for agriculture.

Lennon said Deep will be returning to the agriculture faculty while Boyne's position needed to be filled after he became the associate provost with Academic Affairs this year.

"We are extremely pleased to be able to attract committee chairs of this caliber," Lennon said.

In addition to his extensive science background, Curtis has valuable international experience in his field, Lennon said.

On the other hand, Havlicek is viewed as a national leader, Lennon said. "He is full of ideas regarding the department of agricultural economics."

"Havlicek's target areas are teaching, extending the education program and research," Lennon said.

"The chairmen's goals are to be the best departments of plant pathology and economics in the nation by 1990," he said. Lennon said "There's nothing magic about 1990, but it is a reasonable time period for us to reach our goals."

Curtis said "I'm leaving Delaware with great misgivings because Delaware has been very good to me, but there are so many more options available at a large school like OSU."

Ohio State's capabilities for research are wonderful, Curtis said. "Plus, the faculty is top-flight."

Curtis said both Delaware and Ohio agriculture are highly corn and dairy oriented.

"We plan to aggressively pursue and strengthen the basic science program and science research," he said.

Havlicek said "I'm enthusiastic about my new post. There seems to be great potential in developing the economic research program and the graduate program."

Bell rate hike means higher costs for all

By Janis Worklan
Lantern staff writer

Not even OSU can escape the phone company. The Ohio Bell Telephone Co.'s rate hikes won't dip into the pocketbooks of only residential and business phone users. The university will also have its rates increased.

Tuesday's rate increase, granted by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio, allows the company to collect $113 million more a year from customers. That translates into a 17 percent rate hike.

Ohio State has more than 12,000 phones, said Dino Pezzutti, associate director of the university computer center. The figure does not include University Hospitals, which pays for its own system.

The university is served by the Centrex system, which charges an average $11.50 for each line and an additional $1.50 for the telephone instrument, Pezzutti said. The rates vary according to the number of lines. There is a charge of 7 cents for each local call to numbers outside the system.

The university has two Centrex systems, one for the administration (422 numbers) and one for dormitories (424 numbers).

Pezzutti said he does not know what OSU's share of the rate increase will be.

Adding 17 percent to the average $11.50 rate would raise the cost of each line to $13.45. Based on 12,000 phones, OSU would pay an additional $23,000 a month.

Ohio Bell's basic home phone service, which allows unlimited local calls, now costs $12.95 a month. A 17 percent increase would raise the cost to $15.15. The company had proposed a basic service costing $18.80 a month.

Message service would increase in price from $8.50 to $9.65. This service allows 30 free calls a month, with additional calls costing 7 cents each.

Measured service would increase in cost by $1 to $6.80. Users of this service pay time and distance charges on every call, local or long distance.

The rate increase will not affect long distance rates.

The company had also asked for a $4-a-month access charge for the use of intrastate long distance lines. The PUCO will address this in April. The federal government has postponed interstate long distance access charges until next year.

Ohio Bell had proposed a package increase totaling $179 million, which would have nearly doubled customers' rates when long distance intrastate and interstate access charges were added.

The rate increase is needed to cover the company's higher costs because of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. breakup, which took effect in January. Previously, long distance revenues helped subsidize local phone companies.

The increase is 63 percent of the company's request. Steve Ostrander, spokesman for the Ohio Consumers' Council, said the PUCO granted increases of about 40 percent in 1983.

"We hope the 63 percent does not set a trend for 1984. That would be terrible," Ostrander said.

The increase is probably the largest in the company's history, he said.

The commission also ordered Ohio Bell to redevelop its lifeline rate, which is designed for low-income consumers, within 60 days. The commission rejected an earlier Ohio Bell lifeline proposal.

Judges taken to court over escrow by tenants

By Patrick Jackson
Lantern staff writer

Anyone can be taken to court — even court judges.

A case pending before the Franklin County Court of Appeals accuses 13 Municipal Court judges and Court Clerk Ted Hysell of violating the Tenants' Rights Act by requiring a hearing before a tenant may place rent in escrow with the clerk of courts.

According to the law, tenants can place rent payments in escrow with the clerk of courts if the tenants have a problem with their residence that has not been fixed. The tenants must be up-to-date with their rent payments and must give their landlords 30 days or a reasonable amount of time to fix the problem.

The courts can then settle the dispute between parties. When the rent is placed in escrow, the court notifies the landlord. The landlord may either file suit to get the rent or fix the problem, in which case the rent is given to the landlord.

In Franklin County, however, the law is interpreted differently. As a result of a 1977 ruling by Municipal Court Judge James Macklin, a hearing is required before the rent can be placed in escrow, said Sue Livensparger, attorney for the plaintiffs.

The Columbus Tenants Union and Joseph Taynor, of 136 Woodrow Ave., are seeking a court order to prohibit the escrow hearings.

Taynor asked the court in December to put his rent in escrow after his landlord refused to repair faulty wiring and plumbing in his apartment, Livensparger said.

The clerk's office refused to take Taynor's money without a hearing, and Municipal Court Judge James O'Grady upheld the clerk's decision, she said.

Macklin's ruling stated that placing the rent in escrow without a hearing denies the landlord property and due process rights guaranteed by the U.S. Constitution, Livensparger said.

In October, Municipal Court Judge Marvin Romanoff reversed the decision, but the judges decided Romanoff's decision was limited to one case. The previous decision by Macklin was to be used as a precedent in future cases, said William Dawson, deputy clerk of courts.

Livensparger said the law is not unconstitutional because rent money is a contractual obligation, not a property right.

Carryout employs 75-pound 'Hercules' for protection

By Nancy McCloud
Lantern staff writer

The next person who decides to rob University 10th & High carryout will have to contend with its new security system.

The new system is a 75-pound snarling mass of Doberman pinscher named Hercules.

Tom Bishop, owner of the carryout, bought the 2-year-old dog from a security dog service in Akron to serve as a deterrent.

University 10th & High has lost more than $650 in five armed robberies since the beginning of autumn quarter.

Carryout employee Mike Paton, a junior from Kent, said he thinks the dog is a good investment.

"If you compare the investment with what we've lost in robberies, it comes out even," he said.

Paton said he feels more secure with Hercules in the store. "(Hercules) is nice as hell unless something's up," he said.

Paton was the last employee to be held up. He simply handed over the money.

"Hercules never entered the picture," he said.

The dog is trained to recognize weapons and protect the people with whom he is familiar, Paton said.

Hercules can also sense when someone is afraid of him. If a customer comes in and is afraid, the dog will bark, he said.

To prevent Hercules from getting too close to the customers, he is chained to a 15-foot cable behind the cash register. He prowls the store after closing time.

Tammy Elmhurst, a freshman at Columbus Technical Institute, is not offended by the dog.

"It's a good idea for people who are afraid of (Dobermans)," she said.

None of the robbers has been caught and Paton thinks it has a lot to do with the recurring robberies.

"Word of mouth gets around that we have been robbed successfully," he said.

Old writings scientific

In an editorial paradoxically titled "Evolution, creation impossible to debate," Michael Nicholas and M.G. Sriram presented their own contribution to the debate between evolutionary theorists and proponents of scientific creationism.

While many of their points are well taken, some of their remarks suggest a degree of intolerance and dogmatism hardly exceeded by the most rabid Fundamentalists.

Consider the following: "... any theory which has its genesis in the literal interpretation of a written work of two millennia or more ago, or in the mythology of a society, cannot claim to be scientific by any means."

This is intellectually outrageous. Applied consistently, this principle would rule out the atomic theory (originated by Democritus in the fifth century B.C.), the heliocentric theory (Aristarchus of Samos, third century B.C.), and a host of others. If the history of science teaches us anything, it is that the origin of a hypothesis is irrelevant to its rational evaluation.

Scientific creationists claim to have provided solid empirical evidence for the creationist theory. While there are many, many, good reasons to doubt this claim, intellectual honesty and academic courtesy require that the creationists be given a chance to state their case.

Wygle: keep rockin' boat

I would like to tell Eric D. Wygle that his column is the only reason I pick up a Lantern other than for 'Oval' coupons or OSU Hockey scores.

Wygle couldn't have picked a more appropriate quote from a better songwriter (or musical artist — in my opinion) to exemplify his topic. The quote both parallels his column and gives MSB fans an idea of what kind of albums they should be listening to.

Speaking as a Cleveland, I know of many who would welcome an 'anti-Michael Stanley Band' person into that musically deprived city. Although I must admit I have never listened to the album 'You Can't Fight Fashion,' I regret to say that I have mistakenly turned on the radio (which, to say the least, 'sucks') to hear the same ol' MSB — once again!

Through years of experience at being pounded to death with 'MSB this,' 'MSB that,' I feel competent enough to say 'You Can't Fight Fashion' perfectly states Michael Stanley's goal as a so-called musician: his albums are put out for the sole purpose of appealing to eight- to 15-year-old females and to those poor bastards who aren't the least bit musically oriented. This is unfortunately the mass of those who buy albums in America.

I have not disagreed with an article that Wygle has written yet, though if I did, I doubt it would change the respect I have for him as a 'controversial' columnist.

Eric: please keep writing about those controversial issues, no matter how many threats you get. I would not mind seeing an article depicting Columbus' radio selection as poor.

Kevin Johnson

Reagan's deeds ignored

The Lantern's Jan. 27 lead editorial, which high-handedly castigated President Reagan for his State of the Union Address, reveals an unfortunate mindset against the true substance of the President's programs and ideas.

Perhaps the Lantern's editorial board should review Article II, Section 3 of the U.S. Constitution, which says: "He (the President) shall from time to time give the Congress Information of the State of the Union, and recommend to their Consideration such Measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient."

And that's exactly what the President did Wednesday night. He presented to the Congress and to the American people the State of the Union. The President told the nation the inflation rate is the lowest in more than a decade; that two million new jobs have been added to the economy since the first of the year; and that interest rates are down a third since Reagan took office. The Lantern ignored these facts in its editorial.

At times, it seems the Lantern almost wishes the State of the Union was somewhat less well-off than, in fact, it is.

The latest polls show Reagan is the most popular chief executive since Dwight D. Eisenhower. Other polls indicate Reagan will defeat any of the announced Democratic candidates decisively, leading us to believe the public doesn't need any of the alternatives the Democrats suggest. This is despite strident urgings of newspapers like the Lantern.

Reagan has given us his version of the State of the Union and the Lantern has given us its interpretation. November's general election will show which the public believes accurate. We believe it will support the President.

Drugs can't stop rape

Karen Roebuck

"Chemical castration" is a ridiculous guise for a solution to rape.

To accompany or replace short prison sentences, judges in several states can order rapists and other sex offenders to receive Depo-Provera, a birth control drug used in several countries, but still in experimental stages in the U.S. One side effect of the drug is that it lowers (not eliminates) sexual drive.

Ohio judges do not order Depo-Provera treatments now, but it is a possibility for the future. Ohio legislation regarding the use of Depo-Provera does not exist.

Since rape is an act of violence and women have been raped with various objects, a decreased sex drive will not be a solution — and neither will surgical castration.

Even if, for the sake of argument, rape was considered a sexual crime, a lowered sexual drive would, at best, mean that the crime would be committed less often.

It is outrageous that a judge or jury would consider "punishing" a rapist with such an easy sentence.

The unwilling rape victim suffers much more than that. She suffers during the crime, and often psychologically (and sometimes physically) for the rest of her life. Her torment can only be made worse by the knowledge that her attacker is free to live a normal life.

Upjohn heir Roger Gauntlett was ordered by a Michigan judge Monday to submit to chemical castration and sentenced to five years probation after he pleaded "no contest" to charges that he repeatedly raped his step-daughter, 14, in 1981. His first year of probation is to be spent in the county jail.

Gauntlett's attorney plans to appeal the sentence. What does Gauntlett want, a trip to Disneyland? He couldn't have gotten a much easier sentence, especially since he did not deny raping his step-daughter.

One year in jail and a decreased sex drive is nothing compared to the possible damages done to the child.

Another problem with this alternative is how long the men would be required to receive shots. It might be a good idea to require men convicted of sexual crimes to receive Depo-Provera shots after they've completed their prison sentences. It may not help, but it cannot hurt.

Rape is not listed in the medical journals as a treatable disease. It's not a disease — it's a first degree felony.

Should convicted murderers be "sentenced" to a year of tranquilizers because they committed the murder in a fit of rage? A judge should not play doctor and prescribe medicine.

Judge Robert Boros, who sentenced Gauntlett, said, "There's almost a guarantee that there would be no repeated crimes."

This was a ludicrous and irresponsible statement for anyone to make, especially someone who deals with criminals. Allowing a convicted rapist to remain in society with little more than "a slap on the wrist" is not a deterrent.

The only guarantee that someone will not rape again is to incarcerate him.

Penalties for convicted sex offenders should not be getting more lenient, they should be getting tougher — a lot tougher.

Campbell stars as Bucks blast Badgers

United Press International

MADISON, Wis. — Tony Campbell scored 29 points to match his season high and Troy Taylor added 19 Thursday night to lead Ohio State to its fifth consecutive Big Ten win with an 85-74 victory over Wisconsin.

The Buckeyes, now 12-6 overall and 5-3 in the conference, also got 13 points from Ron Stokes. The Badgers, now 7-10 and 3-5, were led by Scott Roth with 22 and Cory Blackwell, the Big Ten's leading scorer with a 19.6 average, had 20.

Ohio State led 40-39 at halftime and scored the first two baskets in the second half. The Buckeyes' advantage see-sawed between three and five points until Campbell scored four points in an 8-0 burst that gave Ohio State a 60-49 lead with 11:56 remaining.

The Badgers closed to within nine at 68-59 with 6:17 left after a jump shot by Roth. But the Buckeyes, aided by Wisconsin Coach Steve Yoder's second technical foul, scored six straight points to take their biggest lead of the game at 74-59 with 4:20 remaining.

Wisconsin never got closer than nine points the rest of the way.

Both teams were red-hot in a first half which ended with the Buckeyes enjoying their one point lead. Ohio State, which hit 65 percent of its shots in the first 20 minutes, jumped out to a 19-8 lead behind 8 points by Campbell.

But Wisconsin, which connected on 58 percent of its shots in the half, fought back behind 12 first half points by Roth.

Ohio State was leading 32-24 when Roth scored six of the Badgers' eight points to pull Wisconsin even at 32-32 with 3:55 left in the half. After a jumper by Taylor the Badgers took their first lead of the game at 35-34 on a three-point play by David Miller.

The teams traded baskets until Curtis Wilson's rebound basket at the buzzer gave the Buckeyes their 40-39 halftime lead.

Swimmers face depth problems

By Karen Kinsella

Lantern sports reporter

The OSU men's swim team will face a 'deep' Iowa squad this weekend when the team travels to Michigan State for a tri-meet with MSU and Iowa.

OSU coach Dick Sloan said that the Iowa team is "three deep" in every event, meaning "their three are stronger in depth than our three."

OSU may have two advantages in this meet. Iowa is battling the flu and OSU has strong divers.

Iowa coach Glenn Patton said that three of his strong swimmers will be out of the meet this weekend, and that the three that were out last week will be back in, but they may not be very strong because they are still recovering (from the flu).

Patton said Iowa's divers will have a tough time against OSU's, who are favored to finish first and second.

If that happens it will give OSU a 16-2 score advantage.

"But we can offset that with other one-two finishes," Patton said.

"On paper Iowa is a little stronger and has more depth," he said. "But meets are won and lost in the pool, not on paper."

Patton said backstroke is the Hawkeyes strongest event because he has three of the top Big Ten swimmers in that event.

Artie Williams is leading the Big Ten this year in the 100- and 200-yard backstrokes, David Ross was the 100 and 200 conference champion in 1983 and Tom Roemer was Big Ten champion from 1979-1982.

Patton said the weak events, if they can be called that, are breaststroke and distance free, where the Hawkeyes are "about equal with OSU."

He said some of the team members will swim their second and third strongest events to get meet experience in them before Big Ten's.

Patton said he regards the meet with OSU as Iowa's toughest this season.

"I think Indiana and Iowa will be battling for the team championship in the Big Ten and I feel OSU and Michigan will be competing for the third spot," he said.

The Buckeyes will return to their home pool next weekend to swim Northwestern Friday at 7 p.m. and Michigan Saturday at 3 p.m. The senior members of the team will be honored Saturday in their last home meet.

Top synch teams to compete

By A. B. Morris

Lantern sports reporter

Three of the top synchronized swimming teams in the country will invade Larkins Hall Saturday when the Buckeyes host the Canadian—United States College Invitational meet.

The meet, which is the Buckeyes' final home competition, will present the collegiate powers of Ohio State, University of Arizona and University of Michigan, along with several Canadian schools.

"This meet will give us some good, stiff competition," OSU coach Mary Jo Ruggieri said. "There is a certain rivalry between OSU and Arizona. They place first in certain events then we take first in others and the result is a very close meet."

The meet is an opportunity for the Buckeyes to preview their top competition for the 1984 collegiate nationals. The Buckeyes have won every collegiate title but one, which Arizona took in 1981.

NOTES: In last week's home opener OSU placed first in most events and finished 71 points ahead of its closest competition with a score of 108 points...The Buckeyes remain undefeated in home meets.

Gophers aim for playoffs without Breuer

By Bob Irvin
Lantern sports reporter

Having four starters back including some solid scorers and rebounders usually means instant Big Ten title contention. But for the Minnesota Golden Gophers this year, it means just getting into post-season play.

Seven-foot-3 and All-conference center Randy Breuer is now in the NBA, and replacing the school's second all-time leading scorer (1,755 points) is no easy task — even if you have four more 7-footers on your roster.

OSU (11-6, 4-3 in the Big Ten) travels to Minnesota tomorrow night to wrap up the first half of the Big Ten conference season. Both teams will need wins to help make a run at conference leaders Purdue and Illinois (both 6-1 before Thursday.) Minnesota lost its first three conference games before winning three of its last four. Their only loss in that span came 52-50 in overtime at Northwestern. Minnesota coach Jim Dutcher allows that comeback to primarily, "easier scheduling."

Surprisingly, though, Dutcher is adamant in his contention that Minnesota (11-5, 3-4 in the league before Thursday) is not a legitimate title contender — the opening Breuer left is just too big to fill.

"I don't think we're a title contender, we just don't have enough stability to be there. We're just looking at this point to get into post-season play," Dutcher said this week. "I think we have to look at it that way," he said, when asked if this was considered a rebuilding season.

"We can beat those teams (the league leaders) on given days, of course," Dutcher said, "but I just don't think we have the talent to stay with them over 18 games." That's how much Breuer meant.

But don't start feeling sorry for Dutcher's team, who won the Big Ten two years ago, and went to the NIT in post-season last year. Seven-footer John Shasky, Breuer's replacement, is definitely showing improvement.

In the Gophers' last time out, a 75-62 win over Wisconsin, Shasky had a league-high 16 rebounds and 18 points to go with it. Not surprisingly, after the game, he spoke of how Breuer's shoes are too big to be filled. Still, he's not doing that bad himself; he now ranks second in league rebounding (8.7 average).

"That was definitely a concern of ours," Dutcher said of the center position. "He (Shasky) is definitely not the scorer Breuer is, but we are pleased overall with the way he's improved." The other three 7-footers are all freshmen (Mike Carpenter, David Holmgren, and Paul VanDeineide) and won't be ready to contribute in big ways for at least another year.

Surrounding Shasky are senior forwards Jim Peterson and Roland Brooks. Both average in double figures and Brooks has climbed to 13th in league scoring. Peterson plays a big 6-foot-10.

Perhaps the key to the Gophers, however, lies in guards Marc Wilson and Tommy Davis.

"They're probably the most versatile pair of guards in the conference," OSU assistant Randy Ayers said.

"Well, they're not the scorers that (Scott) Skiles and (Sam) Vincent (of Michigan State) are, and they don't have the quickness of Stokes and Taylor (of the Buckeyes), but we certainly ask them to do a lot of things," Dutcher said.

Wilson, especially, does a lot of things. He is eighth in league scoring, tied for sixth in league assists (3.3 average) and ranks 12th in free throw percentage. Davis ranks 14th in league scoring.

Ohio State University vs. University of Minnesota

Saturday, February 5

9:05 p.m.; Williams Arena; Minneapolis, Minnesota

Probable Buckeye Starters:

	Ht.	Wt.	PPG	RPG
F Tony Campbell	6-7	212	18.6	8.8
F Dave Jones	6-2	192	6.6	2.9
C Clarence McGee	6-7	217	5.5	3.6
G Troy Taylor	6-0	170	12.6	1.8
G Ron Stokes	5-11	170	13.1	2.6

Probable Gopher Starters:

	Ht.	Wt.	PPG	RPG
F Roland Brooks	6-7	189	11.1	5.1
F Jim Petersen	6-10	221	10.5	7.3
C John Shasky	7-0	219	7.4	7.0
G Marc Wilson	6-1	178	13.9	3.1
G Tommy Davis	6-4	197	14.3	4.2

Key Matchups — The guards, Wilson and Davis against Taylor and Stokes... Two of the finest pairs of guards in the conference. Wilson is a big guard, so he may look to try to go down low... Centers McGee and Shasky... Both are learning at their positions and both are growing with confidence. Watch this one, it could be an interesting matchup.

What to Expect — "Offensively they (Minnesota) try to feature the inside game," said OSU assistant and advance scout Randy Ayers, "but they can beat you from outside, too." Ayers said Minnesota zones a lot, playing a 1-2-2 version of that defense. It's tough to get the ball inside on them. OSU, of course, should stick to their man-to-man defense, with some zone mixed in.

Update — OSU won last year's meeting at Minneapolis 74-69, but dropped a home 89-80 double overtime game. The teams always seem to play each other well, having split their last eight. OSU leads the all-time series 51-38. Miller is 7-7 against Dutcher's Gophers, while Dutcher is 9-7 against OSU. Dutcher has a nine-year record at Minneapolis of 160-83.

Strike one, strike two...strike three, you're out, usually comes next, but not for the Ohio State hockey team.

The Buckeyes will attempt to bounce back this weekend in a home-and-home series with Miami University following a devastating two game sweep by Bowling Green last weekend.

The Miami Redskins are 8-19-1 overall and 5-16 (10th) in league action.

"We are looking forward to playing Ohio State at home tonight. It is not only exciting for us, but for our fans as well," said Miami coach Steve Cady. "OSU is not only a name people look up to, but is a name people can relate to. OSU is known for their athletic excellence. This is probably one of the biggest games we have played all season."

The young Redskins have only been in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association for four years, operating as just a club sport before that.

"We have a long way to go before we can actually feel confident about playing a team like OSU. The Buckeyes have been around a while and have established themselves in the league," Cady said. "We have been constantly struggling all season. Our goaltender, Alain Chevrier, had an excellent season last year, but ran into difficulties this year."

"During our first game this year, Alain suffered knee injuries and was required to have surgery. That added to our 0-12 start. He is back on the ice for us but is playing with a great deal of pain. When he can put the pain out of his mind he can perform really well," Cady said.

Ohio State's record (14-4-1) in playing the Redskins, dates back to 1966. The Buckeyes have met Miami three times this season, winning two in a weekend sweep and losing the first game of the season 4-3, Nov. 29.

"Miami was our first loss of a 13 game winning streak. They may be in last place in the league, but they still have a chance of making it into the playoffs," said Buckeye coach Jerry Welsh. "We're expecting them to come on strong, we like challenges."

The Buckeyes fell to 21-7 and 16-6 in league action, after losing in overtime against Bowling Green.

Michigan State's sweep over Michigan this past weekend, moved them into second place in the CCHA standings, knocking the Buckeyes into third.

"The only thing we know right now is that we're not quite as good as the number one team in the country, and we're only about an overtime goal away. So, if we're that close, we're very good," Welsh said.

Buckeyes to watch:

Mark Shortt- the sophomore defenseman was named Buckeye Player of the Week against Bowling Green. Is very physical and often plays across from Paul Pooley on the point when the Bucks have a man-advantage.

Dave Beaudin- the freshman center has been coming on as of late fitting nicely into Ohio State's line-up. Scored the goal that sent last Friday's game into overtime.

Update- Miami split a weekend series with non-league opponent Michigan-Dearborn last week, winning 9-2 and losing 6-4. As of Thursday afternoon, a few tickets were still re-

Redskins to watch:

Alain Chevrier- senior goalie, was Miami's 1982-83 Most Valuable Player of the Year. Has had off and on year, being bothered by a knee injury that required surgery earlier this season.

John Ciotti- the junior center is playing extremely well for the Redskins. He has been very important in setting up goals (16 assists) and is important on the Miami powerplay.

remained optimistic.

"We were all a little down. We really wanted those games. But, we all still believe we have the team to beat BG and that we should have won both games," said sophomore defenseman Don Perkins. "We not only know what we have been doing wrong, but we know what we have been doing right."

Although the Buckeyes aren't exactly starving for wins, they are determined to find the correct ingredients coming down the stretch and into the Central Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs.

"We are all hungry to bounce back from those losses," Welsh said.

Top teams to compete

Large field to gather for OSU invitational

Volleyball will be in form this weekend as the OSU men's volleyball team hosts the annual Buckeye Invitational.

Teams participating include Ball State, Penn State, Loyola Marymount (California), Edinboro St., and Canadian teams Guelph, Waterloo and Western Ontario.

Western Ontario and Penn State will be two of the teams that will give the Buckeyes good competition. However, Buckeye Coach Jim Smoot feels that OSU has a good chance of winning.

"The team has really been coming along," Smoot said. "Although we lost last weekend (to Penn State and Winnipeg), we played really well."

Smoot said his team played tired and unenthused last Saturday morning due to a late game Friday night.

"This weekend, however, we are ready and we have to forget what happened last weekend," Smoot said. "Including OSU, there will be three of the nation's top 10 teams (Ball St. and Penn St.)."

Smoot encourages people to attend the invitational because the high level of competition will be entertaining.

OSU plays Loyola Marymount at 7:30 Friday night and Guelph at 1 p.m. Saturday. Semifinals will be at 3 p.m. Sunday with the finals at 7 p.m.

Games will be played in the Blue and Exhibition Gyms in Larkins Hall.

Following the weekend tournament, the Buckeyes will travel to the Edinboro Invitational next weekend and will host Bowling Green in an individual meet Feb. 15. OSU has three tournaments scheduled for March, all on the road.

'Yes' tickets

WLWQ buys out the house

By Jay Freer
Lantern arts reporter

You can put away your sleeping bags and twelve-packs; there will be no camping overnight or waiting in line for Yes tickets.

Columbus radio station WLWQ-FM-96 has announced that Yes tickets will be mail order only with orders being taken on a first come, first serve basis.

Tickets are $12.50 each with a 50-cent charge for handling per ticket. There is also a limit of six tickets per order.

The tickets may be paid for with certified check or money order only, made out to Q-FM-96 Yes Concert. No personal checks will be accepted.

Mail orders should be sent to: Q-FM-96 Yes Concert, P.O. Box 1996, Columbus, 43216.

A self-addressed stamped envelope should be included; allow three weeks for delivery.

Q-FM-96 bought all the tickets from Belkin-Maduri Productions in Cleveland, the show's promoter.

"We bought all the tickets because we want to make sure people who live here in Columbus will see it," said Pat Still of Q-FM-96.

Yes' U.S. Tour was to begin in Cleveland Feb. 6, but was delayed due to the illness of guitarist Trevor Rabin. He suffered a ruptured spleen earlier this month when he collided with another swimmer in a pool in Miami, Fla.

The Cleveland show could not be rescheduled until May 2, according to a spokesperson for WMMS radio in Cleveland.

March 1 at the Ohio Center will be the first date on Yes' 1984 U.S. Tour.

"They wanted to play in Columbus," said Still. "Ohio has always been very important to Yes because their records have sold very well here."

"They were slated to play in Columbus anyway," he said.

Their recent release "90125" is currently No. 1 on the Rolling Stone album chart.

Travel focus of film series

By Linda Thibaut
Lantern arts reporter

Travel through a foreign country can be as cheap as $2 per nation.

Merston's Far Horizons World Travel Film Series brings popular tourist spots and exotic places to campus.

The films differ from most travel series because viewers have the opportunity to hear in person the producer's narration and can ask questions afterward.

"New Zealand" is the featured film tonight and Saturday.

Ken Armstrong, a Cleveland native and former TV news director there, is the narrator. He is a world traveler who specializes in the countries of New Zealand and Australia. He has produced films since 1967.

This year marks the 20th season of the film series.

Merston director Tim Van Leer said the series is successful because of the variety of people at OSU. Many people are interested in the films because they have traveled internationally or would like to. There is also a large number of foreign faculty and students on campus who have lived in these countries.

The remainder of the series includes:

"Scotland," March 16-17;

"Ecuador," April 6-7;

"The Great World Cruise of the Queen Elizabeth 2," April 27-28.

The films are shown at 8 p.m. Fridays. On Saturdays they are shown at 2:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Admission is $3 ($2 for students). Tickets are available at Merston and all CTO outlets.

Woman defends sanity in "Nuts"

By Linda Thibaut
Lantern arts reporter

"Nuts," a courtroom drama about a woman's competency hearing, will open tonight.

The play revolves around a woman defending her sanity after being committed to an asylum by her parents to spare her from being tried on manslaughter charges.

It is a Worthington Community Theatre (WCT) production and will be performed in the Monsignor Fick Auditorium of the Pontifical College Josephinum.

"Nuts" was a 1980 Broadway production.

The role of the judge is played by Norm Singer, an OSU senior research and development specialist.

Singer appeared in the WCT productions of "Dracula" and "Death Trap."

He was formerly a community and instructional TV producer and studio teacher in Miami. He has also done regional commercials in the South.

Jeff Slagel, a junior part-time student from Canton, portrays the court officer.

This is his first performance with WCT.

WCT is in its fourteenth season. The group receives some funding from the city of Worthington.

The group has three major productions a year which usually consist of a drama, a comedy and a musical to provide members with a broad range of experience, said Roger Lovell, past president of WCT.

WCT holds open auditions and membership is open to anyone interested.

After 149 years, a girl in the family

United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — Steve Railsback, who starred in "The Golden Seal" and "The Stunt Man," has a new leading lady — a very special daughter.

Six-week-old Lalesha Marie is the first female child born into the Railsback family in 149 years. The actor thinks this may be an American record.

Railsback men have sired only sons since 1835 when the last baby girl was born into the family. Her name was Mary Jean.

According to the proud papa, the Railsbacks had given up hope of producing girls. He is one of six brothers himself. Brother Paul is the father of three sons.

"There must have been only male genes in our family history. Whenever a Railsback wife got pregnant they automatically painted the nursery blue. We bought clothes in every color but pink."

"My father went bonkers," Railsback said. "He flew in from Florida. And my 90-year-old grandmother can't believe it yet. Three of my brothers came over to see the baby."

"When you've been raised fighting with five brothers, you begin to wish you had a sister," he said.

"Lonely guy" Martin beats love blues

By Linda Thibaut
 Lantern arts reporter

REVIEW

If you're a lonely gal or guy, Steve Martin's latest movie will provide some helpful hints on combating the blues.

"The Lonely Guy" stars Martin as Larry Hubbard, a greeting card writer and aspiring novelist in New York City.

Hubbard's live-in girlfriend subtly lets him know their relationship is over by being in bed with another man when Hubbard returns home from work.

Thus, he becomes a lonely guy.

Joining Martin is Charles Grodin playing Warren, another lonely guy who teaches Hubbard the ropes of this sorry state.

Warren suggests Hubbard buy a dog to help occupy his leisure time and, while walking the dog, attract women.

Hubbard is as unlucky as he is lonely. Women in Central Park ogle the dog, but ignore him.

During his jogging, he passes a health food restaurant and notices a lovely lady named Iris, played by Judith Ivey.

She detects the phony sweat but gives Hubbard her phone number anyway.

The movie follows the two through their topsy-turvy love affair.

After the six-times-divorced Iris tells Hubbard she can't marry him because he treats her too well and she needs a man who treats her badly, Hubbard is again forced to be a lonely guy.

He returns to writing and pens a best-seller, "The Lonely Guy's Guide to Life." Hubbard becomes famous and is in demand at parties and on talk shows, but still is lonely without Iris.

The movie was adapted by Neil Simon from Bruce Jay Friedman's book of the same title.

New York City provides a good background to prove you can be lonely even in a bustling city surrounded by many people.

The movie is a good comic portrayal of a serious topic.

Martin has the knack for portraying humor in the stupid things people do such as talking to and kissing their pillow as if it were a person.

The movie's only fault is Martin's obnoxious habit of stopping and talking to the camera in the middle of a scene.

The movie was directed by Arthur Hiller, who is currently in Columbus directing the filming of "Teachers" at Central High School.

U.S. Olympic hockey starts TV coverage

United Press International

NEW YORK — ABC's planned 63 1/2 hours of coverage of the XIV Winter Olympics in Sarajevo, Yugoslavia, begins Monday, introducing what the network is calling the biggest television show in history.

The competition does not begin until Tuesday night, but ABC is launching its record coverage Monday at 11:30 p.m. with a half-hour program on ice hockey that will look at both the U.S. "miracle" team of 1980 and this year's team.

Tuesday's coverage, from 8-11 p.m., will consist of three hours of ice hockey, including an opening round game between the United States and Canada, and "The Gold and Beyond," hosted by sportscaster Jim McKay.

McKay will be joined by ABC Sports' play-by-play announcers, who will provide a preview of each Winter Olympic sport, and John Denver, who will sing songs he composed especially for the games.

Wednesday, the network will air the opening ceremonies at Kosevo Stadium in Zetra, Yugoslavia, from 9-11 p.m.

The network also will air a half-hour Olympic magazine program beginning each night at 11:30.

Altogether, ABC will be providing 250 hours of Olympic coverage.

Nominations being taken for student leader awards

By Michael Marlow
Lantern staff writer

OSU is looking for a few good leaders. The awards steering committee of the Office of Student Life is accepting applications for the annual President's Undergraduate Leadership Awards.

The awards were created to recognize OSU's outstanding student leaders, said Beth McKinley, a senior from Columbus and co-chairwoman for the committee.

"This is creating an awareness in the university that extracurricular skills and leadership are important," McKinley said.

Students, faculty and staff members may nominate a student for a specific award by sending a letter to the committee, and students may nominate themselves, she said. The letter must contain the nominee's name, campus address and phone number.

Applications for nominations are also available in college offices, Main Library and Ohio Union 329, McKinley said. Nominations must be received by Feb. 17 in Ohio Union 329.

Awards will be presented at the President's Undergraduate Leadership Awards banquet May 16.

Nutritionist warns against information fraud

By Teresa Armbruster
Lantern staff writer

People want to believe in magic — from pills that melt the pounds away to vitamins that make the average male a super jock.

"Eighty-five percent of nutrition information in the media is deceptive, misleading and often false and unreliable," said Victor Herbert, nutrition scientist, physician and attorney.

Nutrition misinformation did $6 billion in business in 1982, and that rate is going up 15 to 20 percent each year, Herbert said in a lecture Wednesday night in Weigel Hall.

For $35 or $50 you can snip a lock of hair, mail it to a company that analyzes hair and receive computerized data on your nutrition deficiencies, Herbert said.

Hair analysis firms will also include recommendations for a variety of vitamins and minerals you should take to correct your deficiencies, he said.

"But there are no vitamins in hair, except for the root," Herbert said. "The results are worthless."

Lysine, an amino acid found in many foods, has been suggested as a cure for herpes. Promoters of the lysine cure often let patients read a study proclaiming its effectiveness, Herbert said.

The study says that of 50 herpes victims who were given lysine for a month, 40 of the victims became symptom-free. However, Herbert said, from the natural history of herpes, the symptoms eventually disappear anyway.

Cause and effect have not been separated from coincidence and suggestibility, he said.

Herbert said Dr. Herman

Taller's book, "Calories Don't Count," is deceptive in title and content.

"Calories do count," Herbert said, "and to say they don't is deceptive and misleading."

Herbert said Taller promoted eating safflower oil to help people lose weight. Safflower oil has nine calories per gram, whereas carbohydrates and proteins have only four calories per gram, Herbert said.

Since Taller had a financial interest in a company that sold safflower oil, Taller attached his book to packages of the safflower oil, Herbert said.

"It is illegal to lie on the label of a product," Herbert said. "You must do your lying elsewhere."

Taller was convicted of 11 counts of federal fraud, Herbert said.

Why do these fake products and nutrition quacks continue to bombard the public with their claims?

Herbert said the federal government will not investigate a product proclaiming revolutionary cure-alls unless complaints have been made about the product. Many times, these product developers claim their newest creation is a "food" instead of a drug, so it doesn't have to be approved for human consumption by the Food and Drug Administration.

Starch blockers, thought to be effective for weight loss, were ruled harmful and ineffective as diet aids and became illegal to sell, Herbert said.

But this happened only after starch blockers had made over $50 million, he said.

Since 1979, a law in Canada forbids manufacturers from selling diet plans, foods or drugs that call for less than 900 calories per day. Very low calorie diets can cause severe damage to a person with minor defects in his or her liver, kidney or heart, he said.

Herbert said in diets calling for less than 600 calories per day, humans not only lose fat, but also lean muscle mass which could be coming from the heart.

"There are people who die on very low calorie diets," Herbert said.

The FDA tried to get a similar law passed in the United States, where any diets calling for less than 600 calories per day would be labeled with a warning.

However, the Council for Responsible Nutrition, a trade association of health food sellers, got an order forbidding the FDA from enacting that regulation.

"That's why the American public is not protected like the Canadian public," Herbert said.

Victor Herbert

But how can people separate the real nutrition experts from the quacks?

The United States Department of Agriculture, the American Dietetic Association, and Registered Dietitians are reliable sources of nutrition information, he said.

Family of missing envoy brings suit against Soviets

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The family of Raoul Wallenberg filed a $39 million suit against the Soviet Union Thursday and demanded the Kremlin reveal what happened to the Swedish diplomat who saved the lives of at least 100,000 Jews during World War II.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court by lawyers for Guy von Dardel, half brother of Wallenberg, who was imprisoned by the Soviets in 1945 after carrying out his life saving mission in Nazi occupied Hungary.

It demands that the Soviets either release Wallenberg, supply definitive proof that he is dead, and in either case, pay $39 million in damages.

The Soviets say Wallenberg died in prison in 1947, but the diplomat's family claims he still is alive.

"I know my brother is still alive today," von Dardel said as his suit was being filed. "I have evidence even after 1979 that he is still alive but I can't release it. We must get him out."

The U.S. and Swedish governments sent Wallenberg to Budapest, Hungary in 1944 to help save the lives of Jews still under Nazi occupation.

On Jan. 17, 1945, Soviet forces who had moved into Hungary took Wallenberg into custody, allegedly to protect him. For years the Soviets denied holding Wallenberg.

The suit against the Soviets was filed under the 1977 Foreign Sovereign Immunities Act, which makes foreign governments liable to lawsuits in U.S. courts for wrongful acts, said von Dardel's lawyer, Morris Wolff.

Bipartisan talks planned to tighten federal budget

United Press International

WASHINGTON — House Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas said Thursday the White House has tentatively agreed to meet Wednesday to begin bipartisan discussions on trimming the federal budget deficit.

Wright said Democratic leaders are drafting several plans that would shrink budget deficits by $200 billion, partly by proposing two things President Reagan does not want to do, cut defense spending and raise taxes.

"We will have several alternatives," Wright told reporters. "We won't be rigid and inflexible."

During conversation with James Baker, Reagan's chief of staff, Wright said he had offered to meet on Monday, but that both Baker and Reagan will be out of town.

Wright revealed the Democratic preparations shortly after Reagan sent Congress his $226 billion budget for fiscal 1985 that projects at least a $180 billion deficit in each of the next three years.

Wright said he and Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii will represent the Democrats. Congressional Republicans and White House staffers also are included in the working group.

Reagan suggested last week a way to make a $100 billion "down payment" on the deficit. Wright said Democrats will try to cut twice that much.

But $40 billion of the three-year "savings" Reagan proposed are achieved by scaling back even higher Pentagon spending projections and by assuming interest rates will drop enough to reduce interest costs on the national debt. Actual spending cuts and tax proposals amount to only $60 billion in savings over three years.
