Firesides Ask More Faculty

An overwhelming response from eager Arts College students makes it evident that more faculty members should sign up to participate in the Faculty Firesides program.

Sponsored by the Arts College Student Council, it is their intention to invite each student to at least one Fireside. This will result only if more faculty members express interest.

The Firesides are designed to develop social relationships between faculty and students. Its purpose is to give the members of the campus community an opportunity to know one another on a personal basis outside of the formal atmosphere of classroom and office. In addition, it is hoped that they will unify the college by encouraging friendship instead of the usual business contact between students and faculty.

The small number of students that are invited for an evening's visit to a faculty member's home can enjoy such activities as current events discussions, slides and home movies or simply conversation.

Faculty members who would like to take part in this program are urged to contact the Arts College Council.

CHURCHILL IS 85

LONDON. — (UPI) — Sir Winston Churchill, fighter in war and peace, gave in to his wife yesterday and agreed to a family party today for his 85th birthday.

Ice Authority Speaks Today

One of the world's foremost experts on the theory of the movement of glaciers, Dr. John F. Nye of Bristol University, England, will speak here at 4 p.m. today. Dr. Nye's technical lecture, "Motion of Ice Sheets," will be given in room 205 in Orton Hall.

Captain Keegan New Skipper Of NROTC

By Sonja Judy

The campus NROTC unit has a new skipper — Capt. Thomas D. Keegan, USN, who is the new Professor of Naval Science.

He took command Oct. 30 at the traditional change of command ceremony with an inspection of Navy officers and a review of the midshipman battalion led by Midshipman Commander Frank Faistl.

CAPT. KEEGAN succeeds Capt. Charles E. McCombs who has retired from the Naval service.

"This is actually an extension of my last tour when I had men new from college. Now I can work and help to prepare them before they graduate and enter active duty," commented the Captain. "It is my first experience with a coeducational campus and such a large one."

There will be no fundamental change in policy of the NROTC Unit. "Of course, a new broom may do some new sweeping, but there will be no basic changes," the Captain stated.

Anti-U.S. Rioting Wanes In Panama

PANAMA CITY. — (UPI) — The threat of new anti-American riots by nationalists waving Fidel Castro placards waned Sunday in the face of U. S. infantrymen and Panamanian national guardsmen who stood ready to do battle again to prevent an "invasion" of the U.S.-controlled Canal Zone.

U.S. authorities heaped praise* on the guardsmen who turned back nationalists Saturday night at the zone frontier in a three-hour melee in which 13 American soldiers were injured along with a number of Panamanians. Some 150 rioters were jailed.

Two Americans were hospitalized. Pvt. James E. Mitchell of East Prairie, Mo., accidentally wounded himself with his bayonet. Pfc. Ralph B. Gillan of Fort Worth, Tex., had his forehead opened by a thrown rock. All the others were slightly hurt by rocks hurled by rioters.

Officials said they believed the profusion of Castro placards in the rioting mob was for the most part the work of Cuban newsmen who photographed them for consumption in Havana.

National guard officers, under instruction from President Ernesto De La Guardia to stop any invasion of the Canal Zone said they expected more attacks by nationalists determined to plant the Panamanian flag on zone territory as a symbol of their claim to Panama's sovereignty over the territory.

The guardsmen, afoot and on horseback, were ordered to use "whatever means necessary" to keep the peace.

Canal Zone Governor William E. Potter said the American soldiers held their fire last night while the guardsmen coped with the rioters along the road marking the border of Panama and the Canal Zone. At one point, cavalrymen had to ride into the zone proper to sweep out a wave of demonstrators.

U.S. Ambassador Julian F. Harrington said he had "nothing but the highest admiration" for the guardsmen who foiled the efforts of hundreds of boiling mad Panamanians to storm the zone frontier.

BASKETBALL TICKETS

Students and faculty members desiring to attend tomorrow night's basketball game against Wake Forest have until noon tomorrow to exchange their athletic cards for reserved seats. There will be a 25-cent service charge. The tickets can be purchased at the Arena Ticket Office. No cards will be exchanged at game time.

Captain Keegan

craft since his 1939 graduation from the U.S. Naval Academy interspersed with shore, staff, and overseas duty in London, Naples, Pearl Harbor and Washington, D.C.

His recent commands were the radar picket destroyer Goodrich and Mine Squadron FOUR. He has been awarded the Silver Star, Bronze Star, Letters of Commendation, and is authorized to wear the Presidential Unit Citation for his service in submarines.

"My career?" he replied. "Much of it was spent in the Pacific, including most of World War II in the Pacific Theater. The war had its tricks and in the middle of it, I was married in Honolulu with an unexpected honeymoon of four months duty in the United States."

Captain Keegan, a native of Staten Island, New York, has also attended the Armed Forces Staff College and has a Master of Science Degree from the U.S. Navy Postgraduate School. He now resides in Columbus and is the father of three children.

Closed Doors

With only two weeks of classes left, it's time to get set for that big week—finals, which start on Dec. 14.

Yesterday, after spending the Thanksgiving holidays at home, many students came back early planning to get some studying done. Many wanted to use the libraries on campus, but found that they were all closed, including the Main Library.

During the holidays, the Main Library was only open till 5 p.m. Friday and from 8 to 12 a.m. on Saturday.

We know that there are few students on campus during any vacation period, but there are always some who stay here just so they can use the libraries. But it seems that they have to plead to get inside the doors.

We can see no reason why the Main Library wasn't open yesterday, if only just for two hours or so. It's that time of the quarter when final term papers are due and students need books and facilities from the libraries.

Another good reason why the library should have been open is that some students do not wait until the last minute to study for final exams. We received several complaints yesterday from students who went to the library counting on a quiet place to study and to look up some needed reference material. But the doors were shut and they had to go back to their "noisy dormitory rooms."

The libraries here are to serve the students. They are open on every other Sunday during the quarter. It seems that yesterday's closing was inexcusable.

The Main Library has made some remarkable progress this year by remaining open during football Saturdays. But then, when its facilities are probably more needed, it was closed—just two weeks before finals. What good does a closed library do!

And, speaking of the Main Library, we witnessed an irate student Wednesday afternoon trying to check out books at the main check out counter. The student wanted several books, but wasn't able to get any.

The student was, of course, upset that none of the books were in, but was more irritated at the way the attendant acted. The student was abruptly told that the books were out or lost or that a tracer was on them, and that he had tossed in the wastebaskets the request slips for the books.

This is not the only complaint that we've heard about by students trying to check out a book. Some say that the employees could show more courtesy, that it takes too long to get a book (if it's in) and that "I've gotten about only half the books that I've tried to get from the Main Library."

CSA Open Meeting

Students who charge apathy and laxity in student government, but yet who are willing to just sit back and do nothing, will have an opportunity to see the Council on Students Affairs in action this Wednesday.

CSA will hold an opening meeting in the Grand Lounge of Pomerene Hall from 4 to 5:30 p.m. It will be open to all students and faculty members.

The Council, highest student government group, will conduct a regular meeting.

Students who yell "foul" at government groups, should be interested enough to witness a CSA meeting. They will be able to get a firsthand report on how meetings are conducted.

As stated in the official Student Handbook of Rules and Regulations, the Council on Students Affairs "shall be the principal liaison council between student government and the faculty and administration.

"It may recommend to the Faculty Council proposed legislation affecting student life and activities. Its administrative responsibilities shall be expressed through recommendations to the Executive Dean, Student Relations.

"The Council shall have the authority to promulgate regulations elaborating or interpreting existing rules of the faculty and of the University. It shall also review decisions of the student court when properly brought before it on appeal."

The Council consists of 12 members as follows: Six students, three members of the University faculty, the executive dean, student relations (who is also the chairman), the dean of men and the dean of women.

Student members are Kay Wagner, president of Student Senate; Sharon McGowan, president of WSGA; Cora Riber, Bob Young, John Duda and Bob McWilliams.

Faculty members are Prof. Harry E. Phillian, School of Architecture and Landscape Architecture; Prof. Arthur W. Cullman, business administration, and Prof. Collins W. Burnett, coordinator student personnel and professor of psychology.

Says 'Oaths' Should Be Extended; Reader Asks Who Speaks For OSU

Extend Oaths...

To the Editor:

I read your article (reference to the letter from Sigurd Burckhardt, which appeared in the Nov. 23 LANTERN) in which you indicate your displeasures over the government requirement concerning the signing of loyalty certificates by students receiving grants.

I feel strongly as do most Americans that everyone who refuses to sign a loyalty oath demonstrates that he or she has something to conceal.

I HAVE NEVER refused to sign one and also do not mind the slight inconvenience because the price paid in the past for the preservation of this nation has been astronomically greater.

This government has every right to protect the people of this nation against the evil claws of the Communist menace. Under a democratic form of government it is almost impossible to convict a Communist and therefore the government utilizes a system based on perjury. This is how Alger Hiss was convicted and we all should know about the influence he exerted in favor of the Communists at the Yalta Conference and during the formation of the UN.

This case, my dear professor, was handled by our vice president who I notice you don't seem to appreciate. It made Richard Nixon a fixture in the hearts of all true Americans.

I HAVE STRONG suspicions of anyone who attacks the FBI and other security organizations and measures continuously.

This government should not be allowed to do away with loyalty oaths but should on the contrary extend them. This nation must be protected against the most evil form of totalitarianism the world has ever witnessed.

Tony Maroscia

Loyalty Oath...

To the Editor:

Today, on a crisp frosty morning I warmed up (internally) considerably when I read Mr. Fullen's comments on the "Loyalty Oath," (LANTERN, Nov. 20).

Quoting Mr. Fullen: "It is but a short step to ask us to sign an oath to be loyal to the Republican party, to the Democratic party or to the AFL-CIO or to whomever happens to be in power at the time."

I AM ASHAMED of the attitude taken by some of our Ohio State people and other schools as well. If one cannot be loyal to these United States, does he deserve help (or for the faculty, employment) from our government.

There seems to be a tendency towards subversive thinking among too many (fortunately not all) of our educators who help mould the opinions of our students.

For an alleged "educated man" Mr. Fullen draws quite erroneous conclusions. Loyalty to the "United States" means just that, not to an individual, organization or group, majority or minority, so I'm afraid Mr. Fullen fumbled. Not only did he fumble, but lost ground because henceforth, I shall no longer contribute even my small bit to "His" Development Fund.

I SHALL ALSO change a few words in that little document known as my last will and testament, eliminating a not real small amount.

Let's all be loyal not to a party, an individual or a misguided Fullen, but to that we have obtained through the efforts of men and women, who were loyal since the days of Concord and through Korea and forever if our educators do not completely destroy the desire to maintain freedom.

Lt. Col. C. H. Hoover, USAR
Editor's Note: The LANTERN has raised the questions: "Why should a loyal American be asked to sign the oath?" and "Why should a loyal American object?" We feel that Mr. Fullen took the side, "Why should a loyal American be asked to sign the oath?"

Who Speaks...

To the Editor:

Who speaks for the University?

The Board of Trustees are authorized by law to act for the University, and this power they have delegated to sundry administrative agencies. But the Board cannot speak for the University, nor can the President, nor the Deans. The day when administrators successfully arrogate to themselves to speak for the University, the University simply ceases to be a university.

Who, then, does speak for the University? In what comprises the central historic mission of any university, the search for truth and its transmission, one might suppose that the faculty speaks for the University. Yet even here we run into trouble. No scholar, no scientist—and no student—can surrender his conscience to the faculty as a corporate body anymore than to the Administration. The corporate wisdom of a faculty may deserve respect; it cannot ever compel belief.

Let us then have done with the idea that anyone speaks with the voice of the University. Policy, which is merely the prelude to action, will continue to be set. A policy may be wise, it may be expedient—or it may be ill-advised, even immoral. If it be duly formulated, the policy becomes the law of the University, but not its voice. The voice of the University is the voice of the eternal quest for truth. Who dares say it comes forth from his throat.

Prof. Horace B. English

Human Relations

To the Editor:

The United Student Fellowship is the student movement of the United Church of Christ (E&R-CC). We offer our support to the faculty petitions in proposing that the University administration take immediate action against racial discrimination in off-campus housing. We support the principle points of action proposed by the Human Relations Commission:

1. That the University withdraw registrations of all rooming houses practicing discrimination.
2. That the Human Relations Commission conduct an extensive door-to-door campaign among the rooming houses in an effort to break down discrimination.

We welcome this awareness of fellow students on the problem of discrimination, for in our own way we have been witnessing to our conviction that all men are created equal and we are all children of God.

For the past four years the Fellowship House for Women, the Fellowship House for Men, and the United Student Fellowship, 124 W. 10th, 35 W. 11th, 39 W. 11th, have maintained an inclusive fellowship.

Provision is made in our living units to include persons of different races and nationalities. The

'New-Fangled Ideas' Routed By McGuffey

STILLWATER, Minn. — (UPI) — Old-fashioned ideas about education clashed with "life-adjustment" in district court here recently, and a family that believes in McGuffey's Reader won its case.

Judge Carl Gustafson dismissed a case in which that state charged Mr. and Mrs. Otto Kral, of rural Hastings, with violation of the state school attendance law.

HE SAID the state had failed to prove the Krals' 8-year-old son was not attending a private school when his parents taught him at home.

Tommy Kral, subpoenaed to appear at the trial, listened to the proceedings and now and then thumbed through two textbooks and a dictionary on the table before him. Wearing a bright blue sweater and beaming under a new haircut, he spent much of his time diagramming Latin sentences or doing other homework.

Last year, the Krals removed Tommy from the Afton-Lakeland School near here, charging that modern education put too much emphasis on "life-adjustment" and too little on the fundamentals.

MRS. KRAL, a college graduate began classes for the boy at home.

She placed heavy emphasis on the old standards of reading, writing and arithmetic.

Latin, German and world history became parts of Tommy's classroom diet. But the Krals were hauled into municipal court and sentenced to 30 days in jail on grounds that under the law, their home was not a private school.

..It was their appeal from that conviction that was heard last week.

The five jurors had been drawn for the case when attorneys for the Krals exhausted the challenges allowed them.

The family charged that a "wall of prejudice" had been built up in the community and to get a fair trial by jury would be "impossible."

Judge Gustafson agreed to decide the case on its merits after the Krals waived their rights to trial by jury.

THE STATE called only two witnesses—both school officials—and defense attorneys moved for dismissal on the basis of two rulings by Minnesota attorneys general.

Both rulings, they said, supported the fact that Tommy had attended a "private school" at home.

Both Gustafson and attorneys for the prosecuting commented after the trial that there was a "dire need" for the attendance law to be strengthened.

"I DON'T think the parents should take it upon themselves to instruct the child," Gustafson said. "It undermines the authority of the state on what is sufficient to effect the education of a child."

Four University of Minnesota professors called in as defense witnesses to testify to the quality of Tommy's education did not appear. Neither did Tommy, who went home shortly before the dismissal was announced.

Tommy is now being taught along with three other children at a school in St. Paul, Minn. His mother is still the teacher but authorities have not questioned the legality of the new school.

MRS. KRAL advocates a school with "no frills—just good common honest learning." That's why she and her husband, head of the applied mathematics department at Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Company, went back to the old textbooks.

Grant Helps Fly Research

A biochemical study of the stable fly and the Rhodnius bug, a native of tropical South America, will be continued at Ohio State under an $8,510 grant made by the National Institutes of Health.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases of the NIH designated Dr. Frank W. Fisk, who has done considerable research on the yellow fever mosquito, to continue his more recent work on the stable fly and try his hand on the Rhodnius. Both are blood-sucking insects.

Dr. Fisk and his assistants, Shahid Husain Ashrafi, a graduate fellow in entomology, and graduate assistant Richard E. Gingrich, have been authorized by the U. S. Public Health Service, to bring specimens of the Rhodnius to their laboratory.

Scientists hope that the knowledge gained may help point the way to effective control or eradication of the stable fly and provide further basic information on the Rhodnius bug.

Tale of Two Cities!

Among Western Hemisphere cities with the largest per capita enjoyment of Coca-Cola are, interestingly enough, sunny New Orleans and chilly Montreal. When we say, "Thirst Knows No Season," we've said a cheerful mouthful.

So don't take any lame excuses about its not being hot enough for Coca-Cola. Forget the temperature and drink up!

Full House Expected For Opener

By Frank Evans, Sports Editor

All roads will lead to St. John Arena tomorrow night, when Ohio State's youthful coach, Fred Taylor, will unveil his highly-publicized cage squad in front of an expected packed house—when the Buckeyes go against Wake Forest of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Tip-off time is 8:00 p.m.

The Bucks, opening their 1959-60* season with an over-all team average of 6'5", will have an offense built around the fast-break, the tip-ins, and exceptionally good ball handling.

TAYLOR, starting his second year at Ohio State, hopes to better his 1958 campaign when his team played .500 ball, winning eleven while dropping the same amount.

The task of getting the Bucks into the winning column will be in the hands of 6'8" center Jerry Lucas, forwards 6'5" Joe Roberts and John Havlicek, and 6'3" guard Larry Siegfried and 6'2" Mel Nowell.

The Demon Deacons have their own version of Jerry Lucas in 6'8" Len Chappel, a 240-pounder who, like Lucas, scored well over 2,000 points in high school. He is also a sophomore.

Bones McKinney has everybody back from last year with the exception of his captain. Dave Budd 6'6", Jerry Steele 6'8", and Winston Wiggins 6'6" are the leading returnees.

Forward Dick Furry, a veteran of last year's squad, received a gash over his eye in a scrimmage a week ago and is not expected to be ready for the tip-off.

THE BUCKS have been picked by a national magazine as the "team to beat" in the Big Ten and are charted to finish seventh in the country.

Coach Taylor, though quite pleased with the magazine choice, isn't taking orders—not yet at least, for the Western Conference championship banquet.

For never in the Big Ten basketball history has a team, which is predominately a sophomore group, ever won the title. This is the problem that confronts the Buckeye coach these days.

Browns Lose Second Game By One Point

CLEVELAND. — (P) — "Thank goodness for our defense."

That was Coach Howard (Red) Hickey's comment after his San Francisco 49'ers held off the Cleveland Browns for a 21-20 National Football League victory here Sunday.

The Browns last week lost to the Pittsburgh Steelers by the same score.

Hickey said he was disappointed in his offensive team, which was unable to move the ball effectively in the second half after scoring all its points in the second quarter.

"We got a couple of breaks early in the game and that, coupled with the great play of the defensive team, was the difference," he said.

Hickey said he thought a pass interception by linebacker Jerry Tubbs, which set up the 49ers' third touchdown after quarterback John Brodie had thrown two scoring passes, was the turning point of the game. He called the interception one of the breaks that meant the difference between victory and defeat.

The coach said he thought Brodie, making his first start at quarterback in place of the injured Y. A. Tittle, played a good game, "but he's capable of playing better."

Announcing a comprehensive Postgraduate Education Program for engineers, scientists and mathematicians

Ever since the founding of the company some forty years ago, IBM has recognized education as an integral and continuing part of a professional person's life. Through formal educational programs within the company, and through affiliations with universities, it has long been possible for IBM employees to earn scholastic credits. Now a comprehensive Postgraduate Education Program, surpassing any previous program, has been initiated at IBM for plant and laboratory personnel.

ADVANCED DEGREE UNIVERSITY PLAN

A qualified engineer, scientist or mathematician, who has been with IBM at least a year, may compete for a fellowship or a scholarship in selected fields at the university which he believes offers the finest opportunities for advanced study. All benefits that would normally accrue if the candidate were on active employment will be retained.

• Doctoral Fellowships: Selected candidates will receive full tuition, fees and regular salaries for full-time study up to three years.

• Masters' Scholarships: Selected candidates will receive full tuition, fees and regular salaries for an academic year of full-time study.

ADVANCED DEGREE ON-SITE PLAN

A qualified engineer, scientist, or mathematician may undertake part-time graduate studies at an IBM plant or laboratory, concurrent with active employment.

• Masters' Degrees: Candidates may complete their studies at company expense under various programs operated in conjunction with universities near IBM facilities.

ADVANCED STUDY PLAN (NONDEGREE)

These studies offer continued educational opportunity throughout a career at IBM. They are not generally degree-oriented. Given at or near IBM facilities, they are designed to help retain mastery over basic engineering, science, and mathematical subjects and to gain knowledge in advanced fields such as number theory, finite mathematics, magnetism, solid state physics, and network analyses.

Know Your Head Resident . . .

Head Resident Has Canfield Women 'Worried'—And For A Good Reason

By Dorothy Sarna

"I'm afraid to introduce her to my boy friend!" Such is the comment often heard in Canfield Hall about the new, brown-haired, brown-eyed head resident, Miss Susan Connett.

WHETHER IN her office in the main lobby or in her apartment on the west wing of the first floor, she always manages to keep busy. In addition to being attractive and busy, she is also intelligent, friendly and humorous.

Born and reared in New York, Miss Connett spent summers in Vermont during her childhood. At 15, she moved with her parents to Pasadena, Calif.

There they lived on a hill ("arroyo," as she says) to the immediate left of the Rose Bowl.

"WE COULDN'T see anything but the top two layers of seats so we had to pay to see everything anyhow."

Following graduation from high school in Pasadena, Miss Connett entered Mills College in Oakland. This was a small women's college of approximately 600 students. While there, she was an active participant in student government and also participated in World University Service.

WUS, with 66 countries represented (including 40 U. S. campuses on the West Coast), is composed of students and faculty who try to help people realize the need for higher education.

BETWEEN HER junior and senior year at Mills, Miss Connett had the opportunity to attend college in Scandinavia—in particular, the University of Oslo in Norway. Subjects there were taught in English.

"Norway is a beautiful country; it hasn't been hit by thousands of tourists and everything is clean and fresh. I'm glad I went there instead of to Paris. Did you know that Parisians go to Norway to escape all the American tourists?"

In June, 1957, Miss Connett received her B.A. degree in psychology from Mills. Liking travel as she does, she journeyed from the West Coast to Athens, O., where she entered a two-year program as graduate counselor at Ohio University.

"I'D DECIDED to do student personnel work, instead of clinical psychology because of a greater interest in college students and student government."

Then this fall, Miss Connett came to Ohio State and Canfield Hall. Besides doing everything involved in taking over a dormful of 328 girls, she manages to spend a few extra hours working on her master's degree.

The other staff members in Canfield have perpetuated certain aliases for the head resident over which she chuckles. "One minute I'm Hey, Mrs. Canfield!" and the next I'm "Edith Piaf," "Big Mama," or "Princess Margaret Rose."

"MY SPELLING is terrible. At one time, the staff started a petition to make me take remedial courses. Of course, it was just a joke, but I still misspell awful words like "bulletin board."

She enjoys campus activities very much, especially lectures and the Mershon series. Her only regret is that she doesn't have enough time for all the activities she'd like.

She herself sings with the University Chorus.

Her "pet" is an odd-looking wooden balancing bird whose feet come to a point. He sits on the very edge of a stand in her apartment rocking back and forth, almost falling each time, but regaining his balance at the last second. Her parents sent it to her and, as she says, "I couldn't figure out what he was supposed to do for the longest time. Now I wish I hadn't because he drives me crazy."

As a last comment, Miss Connett sighed, "My, I'm getting old and creaky. You know the only thing active I've done lately? Take the elevator to the fourth floor. . ."

Miss Susan Connett.

Students Who Love Soaring Can Do So In The Glider Club

By David Young

Every Saturday and Sunday, members of the Ohio State Glider Club take off into the 'wild blue yonder'.

Founded in 1953, the club gives the members a chance to take part in a national sport at a minimum of cost.

The president of the organization, Paul B. Wolfe, Eng-5, said that it has $6000 worth of equipment to put at the disposal of flying enthusiasts: four gliders, one towplane and a small powered aircraft.

"We give free instructions to those who want to join the club," he said. "It is not necessary for prospective members to have previous flying experience."

The club has 22 members, 5 of which are women. Its base of operations is located at the Marion Municipal Airport.

Wolfe described some of the features of glider "soaring." He pointed out that the 350 pound craft is tied by a rope to a towplane. The latter takes the glider aloft and releases it at an elevation of 2000 feet.

"This is considered the optimum soaring attitude. However, a glider is capable of high levels depending on the cloud base," he said.

The craft then stays up in the air for about forty minutes. It soars in circles and slowly descends to the ground at the rate of three or four feet a second.

"Although the glider is towed at a speed of 60 miles per hour during the ascent, it soars 45 to 60 miles per hour after its release," Wolfe pointed out.

The three-year-president of the club stated that its is considered one of the most active groups in the United States. Its members make about 1600 flights a year.

Wolfe expressed the club's desire to initiate a "glider meet" sometime next summer at the Marion headquarters.

"Twenty to thirty gliders from various sections of the country would take part in such an event," he said. "Duration flights would be made to see who could stay in the air the longest and who could soar the greatest distance."

A member of the Soaring Society of America, the organization attempts to introduce more people to flying and soaring. Demonstration flights are held periodically at various airports.

"We are always interested in gaining new members. I know of no better sport. In fact, I consider soaring the art of flying," Wolfe emphasized.

results of this relationship have been many. Personal friendships across racial and international barriers have shown to all involved that we are truly one in God. A former President said, "We are involved in an experiment which the world fears to make."

We make this statement, not out of pride or self-righteousness, but from a sincere desire to share with others this wonderful experience which we have had.

Scott Egan Jr., Pres.,
United Student Fellowship.

Senior Group Is Appointed

Members of the newly formed Senior Class Committee have recently been appointed. The Committee was instituted last spring by Student Senate to replace the abolished Senior Class Council.

PRESIDENT OF the eleven member committee is Matt Drake, Ed-4. Other officers are: Niki Schwartz, vice president; Jan Campbell, secretary; and Paul Reskoph, treasurer.

Members of sub-committees are: Jack Moody, class memorial chairman, and Fritz Saenger, vice-chairman; Carole McKie, class announcements chairman, and Johanna Murtha vice-chairman; Roberta Brunner, Roy Hoffman and Johanna Murtha, publicity committee; and Karen Pierce, class ring chairman.

THE SENIOR Committee, which has representatives from all five undergraduate colleges, deals with matters of particular concern to seniors. Members were appointed by the Senior Committee chairman and the elected Senior Senators, with the approval of Student Senate.

The committee will make the final selection of official class rings, commencement announcements, and the class memorial.

Wouldn't Dig Beat . . .

4-H Club Members Protest Removal Of Modern Music

WASHINGTON—(UPI) — Two top 4-H club members balked today at government "pressure" to omit rock 'n' roll from their entertainment at the World Agriculture Fair in New Delhi, India, next month.

But other youngsters on the eight-member troupe said the Indians probably wouldn't dig that crazy beat, anyhow.

"THEY WOULDN'T even understand the term. They'd think we were talking about a stone and a piece of bread," said Patricia Ann Bottomley, 19, of Winnebago, Minn.

"And after all, it's just a passing fad."

There was a chance that the fair visitors would see some swing 'n' sway if not rock 'n' roll. Kay Mmiko Mihata, 19, of Kailua, Hawaii, said she was going to take along her hula grass skirt.

KENNETH C. KEHRER, 20, of Orange, Conn., said in an interview that agriculture department officials had advised the youths to "steer away" from rock n' roll tunes because they were "objectionable."

Kehrer, who has a disc jockey program at Williams College, disagreed. He said rock 'n' roll, highly popular with U. S. teenagers, should be included in the farm group's entertainment at the fair Dec. 11 through Feb. 14

He was backed up by attractive Nancy Ellen Nesbitt, 20, of Hobart, N. Y., "If we are to represent rural young America," she said, rock 'n' roll should be included in the program.

Fundless Students Go Abroad To Work

By Jeanne Simpson

If you have long wanted to go abroad, but lacked the money to do so, here's a way to take the trip with no money at all. The International Center of the University of Louisville, Ky., can offer you a chance for the trip as an exchange employee.

Jane Richards, a junior transfer from Miami University, was one of 30 U. S. students chosen to spend seven weeks in Paris last summer. She did secretarial work in a French department store similar to American stores.

USING A FRENCH typewriter seemed to be the main problem Jane encountered although she became accustomed to it with practice.

Jane lived in the Netherlands Pavillion, a housing unit for students of the Cite University in France, where she met a number of students.

Jane, along with other exchange employees used the Metro the French subway, to reach the heart of Paris where they worked. Jane found the Metro a cheap means of transportation and less confusing, she said, than the New York subway system.

All in all, the seven weeks went quickly, and Jane considers them well spent. "It was a wonderful opportunity for an inside views of Paris," she said.

The exchange employee program has been set up by the International Center of the University of Louisville. Kiwanis provides the jobs for the foreign students and the International Center provides jobs for the American students. Travel and housing arrangements are made by the Center. The exchange employee must pay his own expenses.

To qualify for an exchange summer, the student must have some knowledge of a foreign language and be accepted after an interview with the International Center of the University of Louisville.

Gov't Clerks Stage Revolt Over 'Duty'

WASHINGTON—(UPI) — An angry band of government girls has done what many a GI only dreamed of—revolted successfully against "latrine duty."

The girls, secretaries, clerks and typists for the Military Air Transport Service (MATS) at National Airport here, were ordered to split into teams and take turns cleaning up their ladies' room while the custodian was out sick.

THE GIRLS howled and refused to do the job, euphemistically called "extracurricular duties" in the order.

MATS, admittedly embarrassed by the incident, withdrew the directive. A spokesman said the order was issued by a low-level "eager beaver" who did not check with superiors.

For the first time in hundreds of years, no flax was grown commercially in Northern Ireland in 1959.
