City Council to vote on weapons ordinance

ASSOCIATED PRESS

(AP) — Opponents of the city's new ordinance requiring registration of currently held assault weapons, and banning further sales, are still fighting the measure that is scheduled to take effect this week.

A hearing is set for Tuesday before Franklin County Common Pleas Court Judge C. Howard Johnson on a request for a temporary restraining order blocking the ordinance and a lawsuit against enforcement.

The lawsuit against the ordinance, which could go into effect Saturday, was filed by local gun owners who claim the measure is a violation of the constitutional right to bear arms.

The gun law, which also institutes a seven-day waiting period for the purchase of any weapon, faces additional problems in City Council.

Council at its meeting today must approve several amendments to the new ordinance and to existing laws before the new law can take effect.

One of the amendments before Council would make the city's old gun law conform with the new law. The old law requires permits only to purchase handguns; the new law also requires permits to buy shotguns and rifles.

"It's wild," said Sally Freeman, supervisor of the city License Bureau, which will issue the permit applications. "I work here, and it's confusing."

Freeman said she did not know which law her office would prepare to follow if the amendments do not pass.

"We will just have to wait to see what happens Monday," she said. "It's very, very confusing. If the amendments are not passed, I may have to leave town because of all this."

Freeman said she had developed permit forms for the three types of weapons, as well as applications to register assault weapons. She is also training her staff of 18 to deal with the new requirements under the assumption they will be in place next week.

"We have to sort of pretend we're going to go ahead with it," she said.

The new ordinance, passed in May, followed a public outcry over the use of high-powered, large-magazine rifles in several shooting sprees.

Under the new ordinance, current owners of assault weapons would not be required to surrender them, but must take them to the Police Training Academy to have them inspected. Owners will be fingerprinted and photographed and the serial numbers of the weapons will be recorded. The fee to register an assault weapon is $25.

The law prohibits further sales of assault weapons in Columbus.

Applications for the purchase of a gun could made Oct. 2 under the new ordinance and those who pass a required background check would be able to buy a weapon Oct. 9.

Picnic reunites donor patients

By Jackie Wirtz
Lantern campus reporter

The first reunion and picnic for OSU Hospitals' organ transplant patients was held Sunday at the Drake Union.

The picnic reunited patients who have received heart, kidney, liver and pancreas transplants with their physicians, nurses and others who cared for them during their stay at the hospitals.

Ron Ferguson, director of University Hospitals' Division of Transplantation, said the reunion was also an opportunity to announce the formation of The Organ Donation Advocate Group of Ohio. Ferguson said the group was an idea started by many of the patients.

The group will work to increase public awareness of the need for donated organs, he said.

ODAGO will conduct public campaigns, and offer programs and educational seminars to increase awareness of the organ shortage, Ferguson said.

Teresa Jacott, a former insulin-dependent diabetic and the first person to receive both a kidney and pancreas transplant, is a spokeswoman for the group. She received the transplant March 1, 1988, and said she is now in perfect health.

"We will be working in conjunction with Lifeline of Ohio Organ Procurement to make people more aware of the need for organ donation. And we will be working with patients who are on the waiting list to receive donor organs," Jacott said.

She said what specific plans for the group is still in the planning stages but added that they hope to create public awareness of the need for organ donors by giving talks and lectures to citizens groups, at educational centers, public and private meetings, and various organizations.

The group also wants to convey new information to other transplant patients, she said. Jacott said this will probably get started sometime within the next month.

LeeAnn Welch, education coordinator for LOOP, said the group will show the transplant patients' strength in numbers and will create an awareness of the need for donated organs.

They will also deal with legislative matters by speaking to the Ohio House of Representatives, she said.

Welch said she wants people to be able to see that organ transplant patients are normal people.

"People think of transplant patients as being old and decrepit and not able to do anything," Welch said.

OSU Hospitals has one of the 10 largest kidney transplant programs in the United States and average 150 transplants per year. One year after receiving a kidney at the Hospitals from a live, related donor, there is a 90 percent to 95 percent success rate.

Ferguson said approximately 20 to 30 liver and pancreas transplants are performed a year. The shortage of donor organs is increasing on a national scale and many patients are waiting as long as two years before receiving a donor, he said.

David Myerowitz, director of University Hospitals' heart transplant program, said there are 15 to 20 people who are on the waiting list to receive a heart transplant.

Beirut pact alive; airport reopens after six months

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Beirut's airport opened for business Sunday and a cargo ship sailed unscathed into a Christian port, raising hopes that a truce was holding after six months of fighting between Christians and Syrians.

"It's music to our ears," said resident Randa Masri after a commercial freight plane circled overhead, one of three aircraft to land Sunday at the newly reopened Beirut International Airport.

Beirut residents stopped in the streets and rushed to balconies, craning their necks to look at the plane.

A security committee made up of officials from the warring factions and headed by Lakhdar al-Ibrahimi, an assistant secretary-general of the Arab League, met for the second time Sunday to discuss how to solidify the cease-fire and implement a peace plan.

The committee had met for the first time Saturday as some of the most ferocious artillery battles in Lebanon's 14-year-old civil war came to an end.

Officials announced the lifting of seaport blockades, the opening of the airport and the daytime opening of all crossings between Christian east Beirut and Moslem west Beirut. Only one crossing had been open sporadically during the latest outbreak of fighting.

By police count, 929 people have been killed and 2,741 wounded, nearly all of them civilians, since the bombardments began March 8 between Gen. Michel Aoun's mostly Christian army units and Syrian troops joined by allied Lebanese Moslem militias.

The airport, port and crossing reopenings prompted Sunni Moslem cleric Sheik Mohammed Rashid Kabbani to say they were "the first step on the road to resolving the Lebanese crisis."

Carrying a cargo of clothing, the Trans Mediterranean Airlines freight plane was the first aircraft to land at the airport since it was closed March 12. It was the longest shutdown for the nation's only civil aviation facility since Lebanon's civil war broke out in 1975.

Later, a passenger plane belonging to Middle East Airlines, Lebanon's national carrier, landed on a flight from the Saudi Arabian port city of Jiddah with eight passengers aboard.

U.S., Soviet talks make progress

U.S.S.R. still a threat, Baker says

ASSOCIATED PRESS

JACKSON HOLE, Wyo. (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III said Sunday the success of his meeting with the Soviet foreign minister should silence congressional critics and dampen their appetite for unilateral arms cuts.

Despite progress on talks to cut strategic, conventional and chemical weapons and the signing of six accords Saturday, Baker said the Soviet Union still was "a military threat."

"I think it would be quite naive for the United States to talk about unilateral reductions of its strategic arsenal," Baker said on the CBS-TV program "Face the Nation."

The Bush administration, he said, remains committed to the Strategic Defense Initiative and deploying new classes of long-range bombers and mobile missiles.

Baker's four-day session with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze yielded an agreement to hold a summit in the United States next spring or summer.

It will be the first meeting between President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev since Bush took office, although the two met in New York during Bush's election and his inauguration.

In the course of the Baker-Shevardnadze talks, the Soviets also said they would withdraw a demand that the United States agree to curb work on "Star Wars" before conclusion of a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty (START).

Baker told a news conference Saturday the Soviet decision could speed conclusion of START, which would cut long-range strategic arms by 30 to 50 percent.

Taking on domestic critics Sunday, Baker said, "There was a lot of criticisms in advance of this ministerial (meeting) that I hope

Cambodia prepares for Vietnamese exit

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Fighting between the government and guerrillas intensified as Vietnam's pullout deadline neared, but Thai officials said today the resistance and Cambodian government had agreed to more peace talks.

Vietnamese soldiers, meanwhile, received gifts and were serenaded at a farewell ceremony.

In Bangkok, Thai Prime Minister Chatichai Choonhavan said that after meetings in the past two weeks, Cambodia's three main guerrilla factions and Premier Hun Sen agreed to future talks after negotiations failed in Paris last month.

The time and place for the talks had yet to be fixed, Chatichai said at a news conference.

There was no immediate comment from the guerrillas or the Cambodian government.

However, Chatichai said Prince Norodom Sihanouk, the leader of a coalition of guerrillas, had suggested that the meeting be held in Bangkok, Jakarta or Paris.

"We cannot let the Cambodian fighting go on any longer. If a civil war happens Thailand will have to bear a greater burden of Cambodian refugees," he said.

Already about 300,000 refugees live along the Cambodian-Thai border.

A Soviet military adviser was quoted today as saying the Cambodian government and Khmer Rouge guerrillas have thrown their best troops into heavy fighting for a gem-rich town near the border.

The Soviet adviser said Khmer Rouge troops succeeded in controlling the ridge and mountains around the city of Pailin but that they had not taken the town, located about

Songwriter Berlin dies in sleep at age 101

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — Songwriter Irving Berlin, who celebrated his adopted homeland with memorable melodies and simple but heartfelt lyrics in such standards as "God Bless America" and "White Christmas," died Friday night. He was 101.

Berlin died in his sleep at 5:30 p.m., said his son-in-law, Alton E. Peters. Asked if Berlin had been ill, Peters said, "No, he was 101 years old. ... He just fell asleep."

Peters said nurses were with Berlin when he died but no family members were present. Bill Hart-grove, evening manager at the Frank Campbell funeral home in Manhattan, said services would be private.

An actor, singer, and songwriter, Berlin began his career in the early days of vaudeville and his songs for a time so dominated the stage and screen that the late composer, Jerome Kern, said: "Berlin has no place in American music. He is American music."

Berlin, whose musical career began when he got a job as a singing waiter, wrote nearly 1,000 songs, from his first big hit, "Alexander's Ragtime Band" in 1911, to "Puttin' on the Ritz," which was revived in 1983 by the Dutch singer Taco and was a hit on the rock charts.

He was an immigrant Russian whose "God Bless America" became the nation's unofficial second national anthem. A Jew, his "White Christmas" and "Easter Parade" became Christian holiday traditions.

Berlin played the piano by ear and never stopped making what he described as "songs with Myerowitz said the battle has gotten worse in the past year and a half. "In the past two years, the number of (donor) hearts has decreased dramatically," he said.

Most of the heart donations are from within Ohio, Myerowitz said. People are more willing to donate organs to people who are close or within their own state.

Linda Jones, co-director of LOOP, said, "OSU has a progressive transplant program and 95 percent of the organs we receive go to OSU Hospitals."

Tom Gerard, a heart transplant patient, was on a waiting list for a heart for nine months. Gerard said he thinks education is the most important thing that is needed to make people aware of how important it is to be an organ donor.

Gerard said legal action is also needed. "When people sign their drivers license and agree to be donors, organ donation should be compulsory," he said. Family members should not stand in the way, he said.

is absolutely gone now because we have made some really fundamental progress."

The most influential critic, Senator Majority Leader George Mitchell, tempered his remarks somewhat on another interview program, but did not recant.

"The events of the last 24 hours are certainly positive ... but I still think there are a number of steps that should be taken, should have been taken previously," the Maine Democrat said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

He specifically mentioned the Democratic call for more financial aid to Poland and expanded trade with the Soviet Union as areas needing more attention.

Baker also urged Congress to approve Bush's full budget request for Star Wars development.

"We still (are) every bit as committed to the Strategic Defense Initiative as we were before," he said. "Of course if the Congress says, 'You can't move forward,' then we will be constrained from moving forward. And yes, they are making a heavy run at the budget of S.D.I., much against the wishes of the Bush administration."

140 miles northwest of Phnom Penh and known for ruby mines in the area.

The adviser, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said most of the town's residents had fled or been evacuated and that fighting was fierce. His remarks, made in Russian in an interview with an East European reporter, were made available to The Associated Press.

The adviser said Cambodia's 196th Division apparently its best, was fighting with the 302nd Division of the Khmer Rouge, a force formed in 1978 to serve as bodyguards for high-ranking Khmer Rouge leaders when tensions with Vietnam were mounting.

Soviet-backed Vietnam has been supporting the communist government in Phnom Penh while China has backed the Khmer Rouge, who governed from 1975 until 1978 and tried to carry out an agrarian revolution that killed hundreds of thousands of people before the Vietnamese invaded.

For the past three days, festive gatherings have been held across Cambodia marking what Vietnam says is the withdrawal of the last 26,000 troops it sent since invading in December 1979 to oust the Khmer Rouge.

Guerrillas say the pullout, which Vietnam promises to complete by Tuesday, is a sham.

Observers say they believe the movement is largely genuine.

Crowds of villagers, holding placards reading "Welcome, the withdrawal Vietnamese troops from Cambodia," applauded and cheered in unison after patriotic speeches by Cambodian and Vietnamese officials.

The withdrawal is to end Vietnam's involvement in the decade-long war that left more than 25,000 Vietnamese soldiers dead and its economy in tatters.

heart." Even in his 90s, he talked of adding yet another musical to his credits, which included 19 stage musicals and 15 movie scores.

At the peak of his career, one smash followed another so readily that Cole Porter once said Berlin "can't help but write hits."

Berlin, along with 11 other

American immigrants, received a medal from President Reagan during the Statue of Liberty centennial celebrations in July 1986.

Reagan, a former actor who was featured in 1943's mammoth, flag-waving movie musical "This is the Army," with songs from Berlin, said in a statement:

"Nancy and I are deeply saddened by the death of a wonderfully talented man whose musical genius delighted and stirred millions, and will live on forever."

On May 11, his 101st birthday, Berlin continued his practice of not paying much attention to his personal holiday. "A quiet day with family. That he always has.

He never had any big to-dos," said his secretary, Hilda Schneider.

A year earlier on his centennial, he declined to attend a Carnegie Hall gala led by Frank Sinatra and Leonard Bernstein. Nor did he appear when neighbors assembled beneath his window and serenaded the master of American popular music with his own songs.

Dental students to renew Michigan research rivalry

By Katherine Buchmueller
Lantern campus reporter

The OSU College of Dentistry will take on the University of Michigan in a duel of dental research between the rival schools.

Six OSU dental students will travel to Ann Arbor, Mich. this fall, to present their pre-doctoral research to a panel of four judges, with hope of bringing back the traveling plaque awarded to the winners.

The third annual duel will be held Saturday, Oct. 7. The plaque was taken from Ohio State by Michigan last year.

Samuel Rosen, professor of oral biology, said, "The students' research was very good last year, but we lost by one point."

"We have a good team this year, but Michigan is tough," he said.

The students have five to seven minutes to present research projects that they have spent up to three months completing. Each student was assigned to a professor, who acts as a research advisor.

The students choose a topic of research that fits in with what the professor is working on at the time, Rosen said.

The judges will consider five categories under subject matter, six categories under presentation and one category under visual display. The scoring is based on a scale from one through five, with five being highest.

The panel will be made up of two judges from Ohio State and two from Michigan.

Don Morgan, a general practice resident at the OSU Dental Clinic and one of the judges from Ohio State, said, "It's a little, friendly rivalry. We try to mimic the play between the football teams."

"It gives the students an opportunity to present their research," he said.

Rosen and Lewis Claman, a professor of periodontology, are part of a consultation panel that selects the judges to represent Ohio State.

"The judges are chosen partly because of their past research. Don Morgan has previously participated in the research duel and many other research projects," Claman said.

Morgan said, "We have a lot of good research and have an excellent chance of coming out on top."

The Ohio State students participating in the research duel are Michael Baiker, David Covell, Mary Ann Hanlon, Michelle Kennedy, Lisa Knobloch, and Deborah R. New.

Student fair to promote activities

By Megan Markey
Lantern campus reporter

Ohio State students can get involved in the more than 500 campus activities Ohio State has to offer at the Student Organizations Fair on Tues. Sept. 26. The fair runs from 12-4 p.m. on the Ohio Union West Lawn.

Lenore Lawson said, "The purpose of the fair is to help students become acquainted with different clubs, campus services, campus recreation, student government and sports." Lawson is a graduate administrative associate in the Student Organizations and Activities office.

"We would like students to know that there are groups out there if they would like to get involved in the future. Getting involved in campus activities helps students learn real practical things that they can't learn in the classroom. The fair is a fantastic opportunity for students," Lawson said.

Organizations can help students in their future careers by teaching them to be leaders and budget their time more wisely, Lawson said.

Circle K, a campus service organization sponsored by the Kiwanis, is helping staff the event.

Christine Chen, president of Circle K, said the group would be helping about 100 organizations setting up displays, handing out fliers and directing special events. She said Circle K is participating in the event because they want to let people know about their organization.

Karl Davidek, treasurer of the OSU Mountain Biking Club, said his club wanted to gain more public exposure through the event. The club is expecting to increase membership from 25 to 50 members this quarter. The fair will help us reach this goal, Davidek said.

"Our display table at the fair will have a video tape of mountain biking which shows actual footage of mountain biking," Davidek said.

videk said.

Elaine Brunschwig, treasurer of the OSU Women's Self-Defense and Tae Kwon Do Club, said their club wants to let people know that they are a good club for self-defense and safety purposes.

"The club is good for the mind and body. It takes your mind off school work and it's educational, too," said Brunschwig.

Bill Hoza, adviser for the OSU Sports Car Club said he hopes to attract students attention at the fair with their slide show and a car that will be on display.

Riad A. Ajami, adviser for the International Business Association, said, "Our goal is to inform students that we have something to offer to enrich their life both culturally and internationally."

Special events at the fair include a volleyball match between President Edward H. Jennings and his staff and the Undergraduate Student Government, as well as a fraternity step show and a performance by the OSU cheerleaders.

Next decade to start in 1991; not as early as many expect

ASSOCIATED PRESS

(AP) — Many people expect the end of the 1980's to arrive Jan. 1 1990, but they are a year early, according to William M. Protheroe, astronomy professor at Ohio State.

"The next decade begins Jan. 1, 1991, strictly speaking," Protheroe said. "The big problem, of course, is that the calendar was set up before the concept of zero was in place. This leads to all sorts of difficulty."

Whenever man began marking time with the calendar, he started with the numeral 1, not 0. With that in mind, the first decade ended at the completion of the year 10, not the year 9.

Since a decade is 10 years, the final year of each decade ends in zero. So each decade begins with a year that ends in 1, Protheroe explained.

"The decade has to end at the completion of 1990, or else the first decade only had nine years," Protheroe said. "So, the year 1990 actually belongs to the current decade."

The same concept applies to determining when the 21st century starts. The year 2000 belongs to the present century. The next century will begin Jan. 1, 2001, Protheroe said.

"If one likes to celebrate, you can celebrate the coming of the new decade two years in a row," Protheroe said.

"If you want to call the '90s any year that contains 9 in the third digit, you can. But if you are talking about the next decade, it begins with 1991," he said.

Protheroe, a faithful reader of Research & Development magazine, said the publication gets a lot of mail on whether midnight belongs to day or night.

For the record, Protheroe believes midnight belongs to no day.

"Midnight is not an interval of time that can be labeled a.m. or p.m. ... The next day begins the shortest amount of time you can imagine after midnight."

Therefore, said Protheroe, the next decade will begin the shortest amount of time imaginable after the midnight that separates Dec. 31, 1990, and Jan. 1, 1991.

EDITORIALS

Advertisement: Report doesn't pass

At the Lantern we think local politics are as important as state and federal politics.

In this regard we are devoting one of today's editorials to the six pages of drivel called 1989 Annual Report of Franklin County which appeared Sunday in The Columbus Dispatch.

When one thinks of a typical annual report one might imagine a report containing dryly presented financial statistics, issues of concern to its constituents and projected future success.

We would like to say this is what this particular report contained.

Unfortunately, as residents of Franklin County we are unable to find a shred of useful or insightful information in the entire six full pages.

This should be of particular insult to the civic-minded individual who would be interested in county development.

Whereas the six-page advertisement, which couldn't qualify as a report by even the most disjointed definition, is nothing more than a cheap yearbook of county officials, it attempts to sidestep issues of developmental concern.

Beside the half-baked job descriptions and file photos of the people supposedly running one of Ohio's most important counties, the insert offers nothing useable to the average citizen. No telephone numbers, no addresses, no state-of-the-county report.

For instance, look at the bottom of the second page under the heading Office of County Sheriff. The lame-brained job description starts "The sheriff is responsible for law enforcement..." and steadily goes downhill from there.

The advertisement in itself also presents a few interesting scenarios.

The section cost around $47,000 and in all likelihood we the taxpayers footed the bill. We could give our county officials the benefit of the doubt and assume the money for this ad came from some obscure campaign fund. Even at that, while they didn't waste our money on some useless information, they seem to make an attempt at deception by calling a campaign ad a county report.

In any case, the county officeholders have abused the public trust and we end up with no information about the county in which we reside.

Even if you aren't civic-minded, you still have a right to be informed about your government. If you don't demand it, who will?

Cleanup: Coordinate efforts

The Ohio State University campus is a dump.

That's the impression people get while driving along High Street.

Paper, cans, bottles, plastic — you name it — can be seen blowing on the street and sidewalks in front of, and behind, the bars and shops along High Street.

And although High Street is not a part of campus property, its sad condition might be the only glimpse area residents get of our university.

Visitors who don't leave their cars never experience the beauty of Mirror Lake, the grassy lawns of the Oval, or the ivy-covered buildings of South Campus.

But High Street is a dump — a fact that can be changed with input from local businesses, area residents and, most importantly, students.

Peter Eichler, a junior from Summit, N.J., is working to revitalize a High Street cleanup program that he started last October. He is working with local businesses and plans to solicit volunteers from student organizations.

Brad Shimp, executive director of the University Community Business Association, said he has been asking area merchants to donate $10 per month to fund a separate project. Shimp's project, High Street Clean-Up, has paid employees clean up.

Why don't the two projects get together and coordinate their efforts?

Considering the present condition of High Street, a concerted effort seems most likely to succeed.

But it will only work if all the area businesses, as well as the students, do their part. Shimp said many businesses have to pay for cleanup away from their store because not all of the campus businesses are participating. That has to change.

Eichler's letters to 120 of this university's student organizations, have to get a positive responses or High Street and the community's impression of Ohio State will remain dirty.

If you are a student who frequents High Street you can do your part as well. You know how.

Hugo leaves islander in a storm

"Due to the hurricane in the area, your call cannot be completed at this time, please try your call later," clutching the telephone, I pray what heard was not true.

Hurricane Hugo, the worst storm of the decade has disrupted a vital link between my family and me.

Hugo wreaked havoc the weekend of Sept. 17, on the three islands that make up the U.S. Virgin Islands and other islands in the Greater Antilles, with rains and winds over 145.

With 95 percent of the houses on the island of St. Croix (my home) damaged or demolished, food is scarce, the electricity has been turned off and the telephone lines are down. There is little hope that my family and other Virgin Islanders are not among the homeless.

I hang up and try to call again but I keep getting the same bleak message that rings in my ears time and time again. Fear, confusion, pain, anger and pity are emotions that flood my mind all at the same time.

My sister, a graduate student in the College of Business, other friends from the Caribbean and I lament about the destruction and damage that the hurricane has caused. We express our fears, concern and anger over the situation.

THE MAJOR networks take little time to cover the damage that was done, failing to provide desperately needed information on the fate of the people of the Virgin Islands and the Caribbean.

Instead there is ample coverage on the looting and lawlessness that has erupted as a result of the chaos the storm has left.

What about the thousands of people who are left homeless? Aren't they more important? Or is coverage about looting and confusion more in synch with what the American public wants to see?

With over 55,000 people listed as homeless in the Virgin Islands, this should warrant more coverage than the looting that has taken place.

Questions such as: Where are the people being housed?; how are food and medicine being distributed?; and how are the injured and sick being cared for? are left unanswered. The news media has ignored these issues and covered the looting, which made for more sensational news stories.

THIS BRINGS me to one question that I am sure many others concerned enough to watch the coverage hard-hit islands are asking: Why is the major focus of the coverage on crime and not the victim of the storm? Is this the media's way of discrediting the people of the Virgin Islands as just a band of lawless people?

I would hope this is not the case. Instead, I would hope that anyone who watched the coverage would first look at the context under which the looting took place before casting judgment on the people of the Virgin Islands.

Although this is the worst storm in the Virgin Islands in the past 50 years, it seems to be of little significance to the U.S. government, who responded to the cries of tourists and evacuated them before dealing with the homeless of the island.

Maybe because the islands are only a territory of the United States and only seen as a place to go for a "sun and fun" vacation, the reaction to the tragedy was that of nonchalance.

My efforts to make contact with my family, which has gone on for over a week now, have been futile. Upon contacting the American Red Cross and I was told that unless my parents are in the military, they could not assist me in my search. Does the Red Cross only deal with military personnel and not with civilians? I find this absurd.

INSTEAD OF relying on the established institutions such as the Red Cross and the news media, I have started my own efforts to gather news about the people of the Virgin Islands.

I have gotten in touch with Stella Issac, a resident on the island of St. Thomas, who is helping me in my efforts to make contact with my family. She will try to make contact with them and relay my message. When she gets any information she will call me collect.

I have no other choice but to try to get word from my family through my friend on St. Thomas. The established institutions have done little to provide me with any news about the fate of the people of the Virgin Islands.

At this time I can only pray and hope that my family and the people of the islands are safe. I eagerly await the phone call that will ease the heavy burden I have been carrying since Hugo's massive destruction devastated the Caribbean.

LIFE NOW is more difficult for me and many others who await any scrap of information about their families. But with each passing day, I know I will hear from my family. With this positive thought and my faith in God, I know this too will come to pass.

Hints to go from fool to cool

Okay, so you want to be cool.

But you've got one small problem — you're a freshman. You have no personality.

You think the California Raisins are neat.

Your most prized possession is your pair of fluorescent orange spandex bikers pants.

Worse yet, you read Sean Allen's column last Wednesday and now your $43 check for your yearly bus pass is somewhere in postal purgatory.

YOU'RE CLUELESS.

In fact, you're so clueless you don't even know you're clueless.

But don't panic. Out of the goodness of my heart, (and because I couldn't think of any real topics for this week), you're about to get a crash course in college, also known as "How I Went From a Pimp-Faced Geek to a Way-Cool Dude in Just Three Minutes."

So just sit back, relax and shut up. You might learn something.

• Your roommates. OK, so one of your roommates is a Neo-Nazi Satanist, who likes to play with a stuffed weasel named Mengele. His bunkmate is a crazed, Shiite-Muslim terrorist. Your last roommate looks suspiciously like Salmon Rushdie.

You're in for trouble.

The best way to avoid conflicts is simply to not be there. Stuff some pillows underneath your sheets like Bobby Brady always did. They'll just think you sleep a lot.

• Get a haircut. That ridiculous flat-top with the long, curly locks in the back doesn't make you look like Andre Agassi. It makes you look about 13 years old.

• Go to class. I know I sound like your mom, but listen to reason.

Most professors are self-centered egomaniacs who think the world revolves around the little piece of white chalk in their right hand. They love test questions that start with, "As I so thoroughly and eloquently discussed in class, blah, blah, blah..."

So just go to class and you won't have to read the text. Trust me.

• Apartments. Think twice before renting from Albert J. DeSantis.

Hey, call me crazy, but I have a hard time trusting a guy who's been indicted on tax-evasion charges. Besides that, he's a squirrely little man who gives me the willies.

• Dorm food. The four basic commons food groups are starch, fats, Spam, and more starch - guaranteed to induce full-scale constipation. Eat too much and you'll have to get an enema at the student health center. This could ruin your week.

But consider yourself lucky, though, because a couple of years ago they outlawed meatless moussaka and beef strips in gardenaire sauce - the culinary equivalents of putting cardboard in turpentine.

• Clothes. Get rid of your high school varsity jacket. No one cares if you lettered in wrestling for four years at Mechanicsburg Vocational School.

• Scoping. Don't expect to go to the bars, pick up some truly fabulous babe or dude and experience a tawdry, mind-numbing sexual experience.

You'll just get frustrated and take it out on some little, defenseless tree on High Street.

• Depression. Sometime within the next four years you'll feel the inescapable urge to put on all-black clothes, glob two pounds of mousse in your hair and stand around in Mean Mr. Mustards looking psychotic.

This is normal — kind of. Don't fight it, but don't let anyone there take you across the Mexican border on the pretense of going to a "cookout."

WELL, THERE YOU HAVE IT, a fail-safe guide to academic success and social bliss.

Live it. Love it. And tape it to the bathroom mirror so you don't forget it.

And remember, when the going gets rough, when things really get you down, take comfort in the fact that there's always a future in computer maintenance.

And you don't even need a high school diploma to drive a truck.

ARTS

Jewish art gleams at local exhibit

The art work that evolved from the rich traditions of Jewish history, rituals and culture are now on display at the Columbus Museum of Art in "Treasures from The Jewish Museum."

The exhibition showcases 57 pieces on loan from The Jewish Museum in New York City. The objects range in date from the 5th to the 20th century. The pieces come from the Near East, Europe and America.

The collection of Judaica includes painting and sculpture pieces that reflect the Jewish experience, and objects used in the synagogue and the home.

"We must first understand what Jewish art is," said Merribell Parsons, Director of the Columbus Museum of Art.

"Jewish artists were limited by a strict adherence to the second commandment that forbid the creation of graven images. They were able to create objects of beauty for use in their ceremonies and homes that bound people to one another and to their god."

"This exhibit shows eloquently how art is used in service of faith, how it expresses the spirit, and how this expression of faith is important to all mankind," Parsons said.

The Jewish people lived in different lands and absorbed the styles, icons and art forms of the cultures around them. The works in this exhibition are emblems of the Jewish experience that reflect a distinctive blend of influences and represent a moment in time and place.

Many of the pieces in the exhibit relate to the handling of the Torah, the sacred hand-written scroll of the first five books of the Hebrew Bible. The scroll is handled with great respect and strict ceremonial traditions.

FINE ART

A binder is used to keep the Torah protected so that it is not torn or damaged.

"The variations in all of the pieces in the exhibit can be seen in a comparison of the binders that are used to hold the scroll," said Carole Genshaff, Associate Museum Educator.

"As in most pieces on display the objects have the same underlying theme or purpose, their differences are in their origins and the time period they come from," Genshaff said.

A Torah binder on display from Germany, dated 1750, uses brightly colored and metallic embroidery thread to create a story that incorporates a mother's wish for her infant son. The symbols are embroidered on the swaddling cloth that once held the infant.

The child's name and birthdate are incorporated into the design along with symbols showing the mother's hope that her son will study the Torah, get married, and have a life of good deeds. At the end of this binder is a wish that the son will be as strong as a lion and as fast as a deer.

The Torah binder was presented to the congregation on the infants first trip to the synagogue and was saved to be used at his bar mitzvah, which is a celebration on a boy's 13th birthday.

An Italian version of a Torah binder on display follows different traditions in its construction. Brightly colored flosses were used in the design, but Italian mothers used whatever fabric was available to them at the time. The binder on display is done on silk.

This binder from Buttrio, Italy, is dated 1697 and is adorned with designs rather than specific messages from the mother. This binder uses pomegranates, a flower used repeatedly in Jewish art, along with the child's name and birthdate.

"This binder does not have the scenes or message the German version does, but the work is equally beautiful and took a great deal of time and meticulous effort," Genshaff said.

The Jewish Museum's two Passover Sets are also evidence of the contrasting cultural influences.

Passover is a spring holiday celebrated in the Jewish home to commemorate the freeing of enslaved Israelites from Egypt several thousand years ago. The Passover Set is used to hold symbolic foods such as unleavened bread that are eaten during the ceremony.

The Bauhaus movement influenced a 1930 set from Frankfurt, Germany.

"It is strikingly simple and is true to the Bauhaus theme that form follows function," Genshaff said.

The German set is made from silver, ebony and glass, and combines the bowls and cup for the foods needed in the Passover ceremony. The clean lines and simplicity of the set give it a modern appearance.

In contrast to this modern set is a set from 18th-19th century Poland with a folk art appearance. It is constructed of wood, brass, silk and embroidered linen.

The Polish set also incorporates the necessary parts for the Passover ceremony but this piece has a country feel to it. It is decorated with lively brass lions, hand carved wooden bowls, and embroidered fabrics.

The exhibit from The Jewish Museum is part of a year-long series that will be bringing exhibits from other cultures to Columbus, called "Art Turns on the World."

"This exhibition and those that follow will show that this institution is committed to serve the very diverse cultures represented within this area," said Frank Wobst, President of the Board of Trustees for the Columbus Museum of Art.

"Treasures from The Jewish Museum" will run through November 26. During the exhibition the Columbus Museum of Art will be offering a variety of special events centered around the Jewish artifacts. For more information on the exhibition or special events contact the Columbus Museum of Art.

'Cookie' hard to swallow; Seidelman film half-baked

FILM

the film.

The movie is set mainly in New York City's Little Italy, where Capisco gallivants between his tacky wife, Bunny (Brenda Vaccaro) and his mistress, Lenore (Dianne Wiest).

Bunny runs a dog grooming business in her home when she is not yelling and complaining. Lenore spends her time crying about having a big, happy family and spraying deodorizer in every room.

The problem with the film stems from a poorly written and conceived plot. The movie spends most of its 92 minutes trying to introduce characters and situations, rather than trying to develop them.

The end result is a confusing tale about Capisco and Cookie, who go from scene to scene trying to stay away from federal agents or swindle money from other members of the underworld.

The film gets even worse when Capisco attempts to deal with an old friend of the underworld, Arnold Ross (Jerry Lewis) a wealthy Atlantic City developer. It was hard not to laugh after watching Lewis portray an organized crime Godfather who dresses in tacky-plaid clothing. Lewis is much better off sticking to telethons and Las Vegas casinos.

The film ends suddenly when Capisco enters a federal witness program and is given a new identity. The public and the underworld of organized crime are led to believe that "Dapper" Dino was killed when a bomb exploded in his car. All of this is thanks to the remarkable ingenuity of Cookie.

It is too bad that Falk, an outstanding character actor, has been cast in such a poorly directed and conceived film, with a script that leaves much to be desired.

The only saving grace to "Cookie" is Falk, who still manages to bring his wry sense of humor across with a style that is much too good for a film like "Cookie."

Read the book, court rules

NEW YORK (AP) — College students are smart enough to tell a spoof of Cliff's Notes from the real thing — especially because the parody publication is labeled "satire" five times on the cover — a court said.

The explanation, released Friday by the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, gives the background for the court's Sept. 5 decision to let Spy magazine sell its send-up of Cliff's student guide to classic literature.

The ruling overturns a lower court order issued at the request of Cliff's Notes Inc., which sued Spy publisher Doubleday Dell Publishing Group Inc. over the satire.

The publisher complained that Spy Notes — which pokes fun at two novels popular with the yuppie set — looks too much like the slender Cliff's pamphlets students have been using for years to crib comments for book reports.

Spy Notes gives humorous plot summaries, commentary and questions for review on the contemporary novels "Bright Lights, Big City" by Jay McInerney and "Slaves of New York" by Tama Janowitz.

It includes the Novel-O-Matic, a slide rule-like device so readers can create their own 1980s novels.

The three-judge appeals panel wrote: "We conclude that the parody cover of Spy Notes, although it surely conjures up the original and goes to great lengths to use some of the identical colors and aspects of the cover design of Cliff's Notes, raises only a slight risk of consumer confusion that is outweighed by the public interest in free expression."

The judges noted that the cover of Spy Notes carries the words "a satire" five times in bright red letters on the front cover and four times on the back.

"Moving Into Aquarius"

by

Sir Michael Tippett

World renowned composer and conductor, Sir Michael Tippett will present the inaugural lecture of the 1989-1990 Graduate School Lecture series.

An English composer and conductor, Tippett was born in 1905 and began his formal musical training in 1923, when he entered the Royal College of Music, studying under R.O. Morris and conducting with Sir Adrian Boult and Sir Malcolm Sargent.

With their essentially Romantic style, Sir Michael's compositions find their inspiration from such varied sources as Greek mythology, William Blake, Negro spirituals, and W.B. Yeats, as well as from such diverse composers as Palestrina, Purcell, Beethoven, Hindemith, Bartok, and Stravinsky.

His music ranges from solos for wind instruments and electric guitar to jazz song-cycles with orchestral accompaniment. Among his most famous works are the operas A Child of Our Time, Boyhood's End, The Midsummer Marriage, and his most recent, New Year, which will receive its world premiere with the Houston Grand Opera in October 1989.

A reception will immediately follow his lecture. During his visit to Columbus, Sir Michael will attend a performance of Fantasia concertante on a Theme of Corelli with the Columbus Symphony Orchestra as part of an extended tour that will take him to Houston, San Francisco, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, New York, and then on to Australia.

'Black Rain' forecast partly cloudy

Michael Douglas is back on the screen and acting like he never has before.

Douglas plays a tough New York detective in "Black Rain," and although his character type is new, the movie type is old.

Like so often happens to good actors, Douglas is caught up in a traditional drama of fights, chases and hideous, macho-man dialogue.

Far departed from other such roles in "Wall Street" and "Romancing the Stone," Douglas' current character is a mean, streetwise cop named Nick Conklin.

Conklin is a semi-corrupt policeman being accused of taking money that is to be used for evidence. But as the story flows, circumstances justify his corruption.

After a hearing on the issue, Conklin goes to relax in a local restaurant and inadvertently becomes wrapped up in an international situation involving the Japanese mob.

A young Japanese mobster is trying to muscle in on a more established godfather or "Oyubon." In the process, people are being killed and Conklin and his partner, Charlie (Andy Garcia), witness a few murders.

They catch the killer, Sato

FILM

R.D. STANSBURY

(Yusaka Matsuda), and then must return him to Japan because of seemingly unjustified bureaucratic nonsense. Apparently Sato is also wanted by the Tokyo police, and the Japanese government reaches an extradition agreement with the U.S. State Department.

Sato foils the police plan, however, and the remainder of the film is naturally dedicated to finding him.

At this point the movie probably sounds quite exciting. It is not. It is slow and predictable from beginning to end.

One welcome breath of fresh air comes when the story takes viewers through downtown Tokyo. This does not mean the plot gets better. The city just gives the film some interesting and different scenery.

Nick and Charlie are not permitted to carry weapons while in Japan and are required to play by the rules of the Tokyo police department.

Cultures and customs are different, and tensions between the two crime-fighting entities grow. This sub-plot could have helped the film, but only a few scenes were dedicated to this confrontation.

The only buffer between the clashing forces is a Japanese cop played by Ken Takakura. His character is torn between his commitment to his own police force and his belief in the Americans' struggle to see that justice is served no matter the cost.

Everything is solved in the end, and very little effort in deductive reasoning is required, which is fine if you don't like to think. But because audiences are continually subjected to the ho-hum, it is a good idea to shrug off the complacency of the film and enjoy the action and suspense.

Viewers may also enjoy the quick look at Tokyo, as well as some of the social culture of Japan. If watched carefully, the scenery can give the picture a little enhancement.

As for Douglas, he does a good job. He takes his character as far as possible, but that is not very far. There is only so much he can do with a gun and his fists.

Although Nick is bold and daring, it has all been seen before. The only difference this time is that Michael Douglas happens to be playing the role.

Garcia could have given a memorable performance as Charlie, but there just isn't enough time to get to know or care about him.

Matsuda and Takakura both show that they know how to act and are assets to the movie. Unfortunately, the film did not use them quite enough either.

Perhaps some additional time should have been allotted for developing a better storyline. Something that would have built on the clashes of emotions and principles between the good and bad guys would have given this picture some character.

Director Ridley Scott filled the screen with people and objects, thereby making the film more aesthetically pleasing to watch. He especially gave the viewer a good look at the Japanese people, their faces and their actions.

Scott was able to capture the bustle of Tokyo with its markets and streets and all the things that are going on within them.

The writers seem to be the ones to blame for the faults of this film. For had the script been good, the other elements would have made the movie a big success.

Computer 'toons' visiting comic art festival

By John McElfresh
Lantern arts reporter

In the world of classic comics, cartoon art will come to life at the 1989 Festival of Cartoon Art, Oct. 26-28, at the Ohio Union. For the first time the festival will feature computer animation.

The festival is held every three years and will feature three days of displays, demonstrations and discussions.

"It is the most prestigious event of its kind held anywhere in the world," said Lucy Caswell, curator of the OSU Library for Communication and Graphic Arts.

The field of computer animation will be the event's focus on Oct. 26.

"We want people to stop and think of cartoons and computer animation as an art form," Caswell said. "People often don't understand the creativeness and talent that is behind the creation of cartoons and computer animated images, and we wish to shed light on that fact."

Caswell said, "we wish to allow our students and novice cartoonists the opportunity to experience 'state-of-the-art' work first hand."

Activities that day will include an address by John Lasseter, winner of an Academy Award in 1988 for his production of "Tin Toy", on the subject animation and the computer.

Lasseter's film was the first computer-generated animation film to win an Academy Award.

"His winning an Academy Award is important, for it's taken 20 years to win an Academy Award for a computer generated film," said Don Stredney, assistant professor of Art Education with an appointment to the Advanced Computer Center for Arts and Design.

"People don't look at the technological aspects of these films, just the aesthetic qualities of them," he said.

Stredney said one of the reasons computer-generated films haven't won very many awards is because it has taken some time to perfect techniques that now allow characters in these type of films to achieve fluidity of movement as seen in typical types of animation, developed by Walt Disney many years ago.

"We are fortunate to have a leader in the field like Lasseter attend this event," Stredney said.

The rest of the festival will focus on traditional cartoon art.

Featured speakers include Bill Watterson, creator of "Calvin and Hobbes," Mort Walker, creator of "Beetle Bailey" and "Hi and Lois," and many noted editorial and comic strip cartoonists from all over the United States.

Caswell said, the festival is held every three years, to allow each generation of undergraduate cartoonists an opportunity to meet and discuss their craft with experts in the field.

Scot Zellman, who draws "Potshots" for the Lantern, attended the festival three years ago. While he does agree with Caswell on the above point, he urges discretion when approaching some of the more famous cartoonists that will be present.

"Some of these people are here for their own personal information, not to just make a public appearance," he said.

"You have to walk a fine line between running up and badgering these people to death, and saying 'look at what I can do,' versus finding out who is open to providing advice," Zellman said.

"However, it is a good opportunity to mingle and see who may be interested in your work," he said.

Dillard, May make offers for Lazarus

ASSOCIATED PRESS

(AP) — Analysts say Dillard and May department stores are formidable contenders for Lazarus should the Campeau Corp. be forced to continue dismantling its retail empire.

Lazarus, with stores throughout Ohio, has reportedly been on the block since Campeau took over its parent company, Cincinnati-based Federated Department Stores Inc., last year.

Campeau Chairman Robert Campeau, who bought Bloomingdale's last year and recently lost control of a $10 billion retailing empire, gave up power in his company to the Reichmann brothers of Toronto, owners of Olympia & York Developments Ltd.

Little Rock, Ark.-based Dillard Department Stores Inc., which had sales of $2.6 billion last year, is considered the most popular choice for a buyout of Lazarus, said Kurt Barnard, publisher of Barnard's Retail Marketing Report, a New York trade publication.

"Dillard has eyed Lazarus for quite some time," he said.

May Department Stores Co., based in St. Louis, owns May Co. with stores in Cleveland and Akron. The parent company reported sales of $11.5 billion last year.

"Today, if May would move in there (Lazarus), you'd know the difference. If Dillard took over, you would feel it immediately," said Frederick Marx, president of Marx Management Services in Michigan.

"May takes stores that are No. 1 in town, but they don't fix them up to look like Marshall Field's," he said. "Don't expect them to take it (Lazarus) back to where it was."

Dillard, however, "preserves a lot more of the integrity of a store ... They are not a Nordstrom or Marshall Field's, but there is an integrity to what they are all about," Marx said. "I think Dillard is close to how Columbus would remember Lazarus when it was Lazarus."

Dillard purchased 12 Hibbee Department stores in Cleveland, Canton and Akron in a joint venture with Youngstown developer Edward DeBartolo last year.

Dillard "sells large percentages of a very middle-of-the-road assortment at everyday reasonable prices," said Peter Monash, a Columbus retail consultant.

May, which Barnard described as "floundering" a few years ago, has rebounded.

"They were unsure of their target audience. Now they have found a good formula — middle ground — and it's working well," he said.

Dillard had 146 stores in 13 states, most of them in the south, at the end of fiscal 1988. May owns 14 department store companies which operate 297 stores in 29 states.

Analysts declined to predict the potential selling price of Lazarus. But last year, R.H. Macy & Co. said it would have sold Lazarus and Goldsmith's, a Federated division in Memphis, Tenn., for about $1 billion had it won the bidding war for Federated.

Ultimately, the acquisition of Federated cost Campeau $6.6 billion.

Lake Erie clean-up efforts remain slow

AKRON(AP) — A 20-year effort to clean up Lake Erie has led to the return of fish and swimmers but environmental leaders say toxic sediments and toxic rain continue to threaten the Great Lakes.

Scientists and policy-makers now say the Great Lakes, which supply drinking water to 26 million people and recreation to countless more, face an array of environmental problems that defy easy solutions.

"The federal EPA and Corps of Engineers are dragging their feet," said Dominic Sricca, city manager of Ashtabula, where contaminated sediments in the Ashtabula River are considered a major source of pollution in Lake Erie.

Sricca said delays by the federal government in removing the sediments are allowing the river to be choked off while the residents are at risk from toxic pollutants.

Critics complain the International Joint Commission, a joint Canadian-U.S. agency that oversees border issues, and the U.S. EPA have been moving too slowly in cleaning up the lakes.

"Crucial plans have been postponed, solemn promises ignored," said Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., in hearings on the federal government's handling of Great Lakes issues.

Critics point to delays in cleaning up 42 toxic hot spots encircling the Great Lakes as the major policy failure. In Ohio there are four toxic areas: the Cuyahoga, Maumee, Black and the Ashtabula rivers.

Levin, along with Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, and Sen. Herbert Kohl, D-Wis., introduced a bill Thursday to establish tighter deadlines for cleaning up the toxic hot spots around the lakes.

Burglar faces new charges; fails drug test

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND (AP) — A convicted burglar is facing new charges after flunking a drug urine test required as a condition of probation.

"I don't think it's fair," Geraldine Leach said of the county prosecutor's decision to bring drug charges against her son, William Rhoades.

The case is the first of its kind in Cuyahoga County, but Prosecutor John T. Corrigan, despite the objections of defense lawyers and the American Civil Liberties Union, said he hopes similar cases become routine.

Critics charge that such cases amount to prosecution based on a forced search and place the defendant in double jeopardy.

Corrigan wants to indict not only probationers who test positive for drug use, but also people who test positive while they are being considered for probation.

Rhoades, 32, whose criminal record does not include drug-related offenses, was placed on probation last year after being convicted of attempted breaking and entering, a misdemeanor.

Probation violated

The conditions of his probation included a requirement that he submit to random drug testing. Cuyahoga County Common Pleas Judge Sam A. Zingale revoked Rhoades' probation in June after he tested positive for cocaine use for the fourth time.

Rhoades was sentenced to six months in jail on the breaking and entering conviction.

The probation violation hearing came shortly after Corrigan told judges that he was interested in the results of urine samples from convicts on probation and that those samples could be the basis of criminal prosecutions. Zingale said he had lobbied Corrigan to indict Rhoades.

Trial postponed

Rhoades was to go on trial last week before Common Pleas Judge Patricia Anne Gaughan for possession, use and obtaining cocaine. But the trial was postponed indefinitely after Rhoades' lawyers appealed a pre-trial ruling in which Gaughan declined to dismiss the case.

John Parker, Rhoades' lawyer, had argued that the trial violated double-jeopardy prohibitions of the law.

"The ramifications for this are far-reaching," said Parker, who has raised several other issues in pre-trial motions.

He asserted that there was no evidence to suggest that the alleged crimes occurred in Cuyahoga County and that the case against Rhoades was selective prosecution.

Southern Cal routs Buckeyes 42-3

Trojans deliver OSU's largest loss in 43 years

By Steve Helwagen
Lantern sports editor

LOS ANGELES — Prior to Saturday's game at No. 12 Southern California, the Ohio State Buckeyes hoped to try and force USC freshman quarterback Todd Marinovich into making mistakes. It was, however, a combination of Ohio State's mistakes, its missed opportunities and the left arm of Marinovich that buried the Buckeyes (1-1) in a 42-3 USC rout.

Marinovich completed 14 of 22 passes for 246 yards with four touchdowns and one interception in picking Ohio State's defense apart and leading the Trojans (2-1) to the worst defeat an Ohio State team has suffered in 43 seasons (since a 58-6 loss to Michigan in Columbus in 1946).

"Todd executed the big plays today," USC Coach Larry Smith said. "He went out there with confidence and didn't just try to pick or dink. He went for the jugular."

With their own mistakes, though, Ohio State paved the way for Marinovich's heroics. Three big plays were called back due to penalties, another possession stopped by a penalty, and a crucial fumble that set up a USC score all contributed to the defeat.

"I thought Southern Cal was a Top 5 team at the beginning of the season," OSU Coach John Cooper said. "They're a team with 18 starters back from last year's Rose Bowl team. I don't know how many freshmen we had out there today. It's just a matter of us not being good enough."

OSU running backs Carlos Snow and Scotty Graham combined to march the Buckeyes 61 yards on the game's initial drive but OSU failed to score when kicker Pat O'Morrow's 37 yard field goal missed. O'Morrow redeemed himself, though, when he made a 45 yard field goal to give Ohio State a 3-0 lead with 4:18 to play in the first quarter.

A comedy of Ohio State errors and a USC blowout followed:

- OSU safety Zack Dumas intercepted Marinovich at the USC 37 with 2:36 to play in the first quarter, but the Buckeyes were backed up to their own 48 and had to start with a first-and-25 situation when Srecko Zizakovic was whistled for putting a late hit on Marinovich.

"The hit was away from the play, I know that," Cooper said. "Our guy said he didn't hear the whistle."

Three plays later Ohio State punted into the endzone, setting the stage for a 13-play, 80-yard USC scoring drive capped by a three yard pass from Shane Foley, who briefly replaced Marinovich due to a wrist injury, to Scott Galbraith for a 7-3 lead.

- OSU kick returner Bobby Olive returned the ensuing kickoff 50 yards to the USC 39-yard line, but the play was called back due to a holding penalty. Ohio State missed the opportunity and started at their own 18 instead.

Three plays later OSU punted, and despite punter Jeff Bohlman's 69 yard effort, the Trojans capitalized on the situation. Marinovich completed an 87 yard pass to split end John Jackson for a touchdown with 8:21 to play in the second quarter, giving USC a 14-3 lead and taking the wind out of Ohio State's sails.

"That long touchdown pass coming off the goal line was probably the one that killed us," Cooper said.

- Ohio State's next possession was a "double whammy." First,

Olive was whistled for a pass interference penalty negating a 48 yard pass from quarterback Greg Frey, and then on the next play Frey and Snow botched a handoff attempt and USC's Tim Ryan recovered at the OSU 11-yard line.

"That was definitely a good call (on Olive)," Cooper said. "He pushed off."

Marinovich hit Galbraith in the back of the endzone on the next play for the score and a 21-3 lead, just 50 seconds after their last score, at 7:31 in the second quarter.

- Ohio State's next two possessions before halftime were marked by an inability to protect Frey from the pass rush of USC linemen Junior Seau, Dan Owens, Gene Fruge and Ryan.

Frey was 3 for 8 passing in those two possessions, throwing the ball away four times to avoid a sack. He was also sacked twice.

"You can sit back and point the finger at Greg Frey, but I've never seen a quarterback in my life be able to throw the ball when he didn't have time," Cooper said. "When we got behind and we had to throw the football,

BUCKEYE NOTES

By Steve Helwagen
Lantern sports editor

LOS ANGELES — Ohio State tight end Jeff Ellis, a junior from Louisville, Ky., tore ligaments in his knee running a pass pattern in the first quarter of Saturday's 42-3 loss at Southern California.

After an examination by trainer Billy Hill and team physicians Dr. Robert Murphy and Dr. Jack Unverferth, team officials said the injury will require surgery on Tuesday. Ellis, the team's leading receiver last season (492 yards on 40 catches), will likely miss the remainder of the season.

Ellis said the injury resulted from stepping on someone's leg in the middle of the field.

"I was making my move and reading the defense coming off the line," Ellis said. "The defensive end jumped out and hit me like he is supposed to. I stepped on somebody's leg and felt a pop in my knee."

"They tell me its possible I will be out for the season."

Ellis caught one pass at USC and had one reception in the season-opener against Oklahoma State. He was replaced in the lineup by senior Jim Palmer, who had two catches Saturday.

Ellis will be eligible for a medical redshirt and a fifth year of eligibility if he so chooses. The situation is similar to that of linebacker Andy Gurd who played in three games last year before being injured. He was permitted an extra year of eligibility.

SAD EXCHANGE — Quarterback Greg Frey and tailback Carlos Snow had trouble with a handoff for the second straight week. Against Oklahoma State last week, a missed exchange caused a fumble at the OSU 26-yard line. The Cowboys converted it into a touchdown.

In the second quarter Saturday, with Ohio State trailing 14-3 and needing a scoring drive, the handoff was botched and USC tackle Tim Ryan recovered at the OSU 11-yard line. The Trojans scored a touchdown on the next play and took command of the game.

"We had a good practice (Friday) working on the handoffs," Snow said afterward. "They say I didn't have my hands up to get the ball. I came off and told (running backs) Coach Turner that Greg put it in my facemask. I couldn't do anything about it."

"I'm coached not to look at the quarterback.

I'm supposed to be looking at where I'm running. It's up to him to put it in the pocket," Snow said.

HUDDLE PROBLEMS — Snow also admitted that several players were arguing among themselves in the offensive huddle after Frey had been sacked three times.

"The linemen were getting impatient," Snow said. "They were arguing among each other over who missed this or who missed that."

Frey said he never yelled at anyone, but did ask for some more protection.

"Obviously I can't say (the protection) was good because guys were coming through all day," Frey said. "I just asked them to give me a little more time, one more split second to get the ball away."

PUNTING AWAY — Junior punter Jeff Bohlman enjoyed one of his finest days as the OSU punter Saturday. He had a six punt average of 46.2.

Bohlman, who is a non-scholarship player, had a long punt of 69 yards Saturday, one yard shy of his career best 70-yard punt last year at Minnesota.

STANDING PAT — The grass in the L.A. Coliseum was not too kind to senior kicker Pat O'Morrow.

O'Morrow pushed a 37 yard field goal from the right hashmark wide to the left on Ohio State's first possession. He then rebounded to make a 45 yarder on the Buckeyes' next drive, before missing a 56 yard attempt right before halftime.

O'Morrow's teammates, though, are quick to back him.

"We have confidence in Pat," tackle Tim Moxley said. "I've seen Pat O'Morrow make 57 yard field goals in practice every day, off the grass with no tee."

O'Morrow has a string of 30 straight successful extra point kicks dating back to his freshman year.

NEXT UP — The Buckeyes will host Boston College (0-3) Saturday at 1:30 p.m. at Ohio Stadium. The Eagles have lost to Pittsburgh, Rutgers and Penn State (7-3 on Saturday) this year. This will be the first meeting between the two schools.

Viewpoints differ on Browns-Bengals matchup

Browns defense primed to stop Esiason in Jungle

Tonight, the "Dogs" will run wild in the "Jungle".

It is time for Bud Carson's Cleveland Browns (2-0) to establish that they are the team to beat in AFC this season.

By knocking off the Cincinnati Bengals (1-1) in their own backyard, where they were a perfect 10-0 last season, they will do just that.

It's time for Bengal fans to wake-up and forget about last year's Super Bowl appearance (where they choked).

Finally, the Browns have some weapons in their offense to work with Bernie Kosar and a defense that is attacking people.

With players like Eric Metcalf, Keith "Endzone" Jones, and Lawyer Tillman, who will play against the Bengals, the Browns have one of the two ingredients that kept them out of two straight Super Bowls — speed.

The other ingredient the Browns now possess is a good pass rush which helps lead to turnovers and making big plays that turn games around.

Forcing 12 turnovers and scoring four touchdowns in the first two games is evidence of that.

Yeah, I know it was only against the Steelers and the Jets, but Carson has given this Browns defense a license to attack anything they see. Which is something Marty Schottenheimer never did.

The Bengals on the other hand have had some early problems.

Except maybe with a deck of cards, Ickey Woods won't be doing any "shuffling" for about six weeks, due to an injured knee.

Eddie Brown, still isn't in good playing shape after holding out the entire preseason and the first regular season game against Chicago, to whom the Bengals lost.

Tim Krumrie, who is a great player, has made a courageous comeback but is not 100 percent of what he was before his leg was snapped in last year's Super Bowl.

The Bengals are still led by All-Pro quarterback Boomer Esiason who seems to be more interested in setting the league record for most commercials made in one season than getting the Bengals back to the Super Bowl.

Kosar is currently ranked the top passer in the AFC. After two games Kosar has thrown for three touchdown passes and has no interceptions. Not too bad considering he has a new head coach, offensive coordinator, and backfield to work with from the 1988 team.

Kosar won't let the "Jungle" rattle him either. Riverfront is a tough place to play but it's not that intimidating. The Bengals were just on a roll at home last year and Boomer had the year of his life.

I know the Browns haven't been exactly unbeatable playing at Municipal Stadium. Evidence of that is when the Broncos' John Elway conducted "The Drive" in 1987. But Carson's new seek and destroy philosophy on defense will make it almost impossible for the Bengals or any other visiting team to play there now.

Real blood and guts football fans have to love Municipal Stadium. Real football is played with real grass, the wind whipping on Lake Erie, and fans that just go wild over their team.

Tonight's game is definitely not a must win game for the Bengals but falling behind the Browns by two games and losing especially at home would make it tough in the AFC Central for the Bengals.

Simply put the Browns and the Bengals don't like each other.

The rivalry starts at the top between Browns owner Art Modell and Bengals owner Paul Brown. There is no team in the league that Brown would rather beat than Cleveland.

Most of the so called football experts are picking the Bengals to win. But this year's Browns team is different. The defense attacks. The offense can be explosive.

The Bengals will find this out tonight.

Browns face first test in Cincinnati

As the Cleveland Browns venture into the Jungle tonight, they must prepare for their first true test of the season.

The Browns, 2-0 in their somewhat cushy season so far, have been handed victories against the hapless Pittsburgh Steelers and the New York Jets without the benefit of Al Toon and Wesley Walker. Which, for all intents and purposes, is much akin to fighting Gerry Cooney in the first round and Mike Tyson without any arms in the second.

Riverfront Stadium will not house such a defenseless opposition. Boomer Esiason, NFL Most Valuable Player last year, has a full array of weapons available to him.

The return of Eddie Brown has re-established the deep threat and will keep Hanford Dixon and Frank "Mini-who" Minnifield honest and out of man-to-man coverage. Brown led the AFC in receiving yards last year with 1,273, averaging 24 yards per catch.

James Brooks will also play a major part in the dismemberment of the Cleveland defense. Brooks has been taunted by the Browns via the press and presumably plans to answer much as he answered the ranting of Mike Ditka two weeks ago. Against Chicago, Brooks compiled 134 yards of real estate (rushing and receiving) against one of the top run-defenses in the league.

DON ODA

Tonight, Brooks will have to make up for the missing Ickey Woods, who was lost to a knee injury earlier this week. Cheering Browns fans must remember the yardage Woods accumulated last season is not a sole product of individual effort.

The Bengals line is a massive entity with a strong push at the point of attack. Rookie Eric Ball, out of UCLA, could be made a hero similar to Woods if given the chance. Ball and veteran Stanford Jennings are by no means to be underestimated, neither is the row of condos up front that make them the holes.

In addition to opening the gaps, the Bengals' line takes pride in giving Boomer the time he needs to find an open receiver.

On the other side of the ball, the Bengals can expect to dominate the meager Cleveland offensive line. Bernie Kosar is, for the most part, immobile in the pocket and will be an easy target for the blitzing Jason Buck and Reggie Williams.

Perhaps the brightest spot in the Bengal defense is the return of the "King of the Jungle." All-Pro nose tackle Tim Krumrie is returning from a broken leg sustained in the Super Bowl (an event totally foreign to the Browns).

Krumrie is complimented on the corners by a young secondary led by Ricky Dixon and David Fulcher. At strong safety, Fulcher is devastating. He's built more like a linebacker than a safety, and when he is free to roam the secondary, he hits like a Mack truck.

And, speaking of Macks, this brings us to the Cleveland weaknesses. The Cleveland backfield is severely lacking without the presence of Kevin Mack, who is currently serving an NFL drug suspension.

Kosar may be the No. 1 passer in the league against teams that are barely fit to strap on flags and play down on the King Avenue fields, but he will not see this type of success against Cincinnati.

Last but not least, let us not forget to mention the power of the 12th man: the crowd. Sam Wyche cannot possibly expect to make it through the entire game without having timeouts taken due to excess crowd noise. Although Cincinnati fans aren't as terribly inventive as to throw doggie biscuits and chew toys onto the field, they will be a factor nonetheless.

Simply put, the Browns haven't a prayer in the Jungle, and the Bengals will send the Dawgs home to Municipal Stadium with their tail between their legs.

OSU soccer squad scores late in win

By Bryan Davis
Lantern staff writer

A goal by Andrew Catenacci with 3:35 left in the game propelled the Ohio State soccer team past Michigan 3-2 at Findlay High School Stadium Sunday.

The victory raised Ohio State's record to 1-3-1 in what was officially their home opener.

A shot by David Cass, a freshman from Duxbury, Mass., bounced off the right goal post to Catenacci, a junior from Worthington, who fielded the rebound for the winning goal.

"David (Cass) did a good job of working the ball inside and I just happened to be there for the rebound," Catenacci said.

Ohio State broke a scoreless tie at 39:32 in the first period with a goal by Pierre Bigby, a junior from Cincinnati, aided by an assist from Catenacci.

Bigby took a pass from Catenacci, who finished the game with two assists along with his goal, and kicked a left-footed shot into the right side of the goal.

"We've been working on that play all season and we finally got a goal out of it," Bigby said.

OSU took a 2-0 lead at the 31:55 mark of the first period on a goal by Kevin Derickson, a freshman from Colorado Springs, Colo., with Catenacci's second assist of the game.

With Chad Planner, a freshman from Beavercreek, at goalkeeper the Buckeyes held Michigan scoreless the entire first half.

Head coach Gary Avedikian noted the play of the Buckeye midfielders and defensive backs.

"The defense played very positively in the first half," Avedikian said. "Our midfield was linked up properly with our defenders and we were able to intercept a lot of shots before they reached Chad."

Michigan scored their first goal at 41:01 of the second period when Bigby attempted to kick the ball to Planner but it was wide and the ball rolled into the corner of the goal.

"I was just trying to get the ball back to Chad, but I hit it wrong and it went wide of him and it went into our goal," Bigby said.

Michigan's Dick Hillary, closest to the play, was credited with the goal.

Michigan forward Eric Moore tied the score at 2-2 when he scored on a break-away with 18:46 left in regulation.

"We played a little lackadaisical in the second half," Avedikian said. "We were gliding and you can't do that at the college level."

Avedikian said they were following the game plan well in the first half, making good decisions.

"I wanted them to form a wide attack and go wide to the corners," Avedikian said. "We wanted to move the ball around and behind the defense and back out and through it."

A crowd of over 1,700 fans came out to see the game, which pleased Avedikian.

"These fans were great," Avedikian said. "They were appreciative to both schools."

The Buckeyes will travel to Delaware where they will play Ohio Wesleyan Wednesday at 4:30.

Field hockey team falls in conference openers

By Thomas J. McHale
Lantern staff writer

The Ohio State field hockey team limped away from two weekend losses with more experience and a lesson in how to sharpen their survival instinct.

The Buckeyes opened Midwest Collegiate Conference play in DeKalb, Ill. losing to Northern Illinois 2-0 on Friday and to fourth-ranked Northwestern 4-0 on Saturday. Head coach Karen Weaver said injuries to key players disrupted the team's set-up.

"Due to some of the injuries to defensive players, I had to move attack players to the defense," Weaver said.

The changes and adjustments the team made put a big dent into the usual potent offense. The team managed only three shots against Northern Illinois and two against Northwestern.

"In the Northwestern game I turned around to find another player to substitute and there were three goalies and a redshirted freshman," Weaver said. "I guess you could call it a coach's nightmare."

Freshman goalkeeper Sue Willson kept up her great play, making 11 saves in Friday's game and 15 on Saturday.

"Sue came up with some remarkable saves," Weaver said. "It took Northwestern 51 minutes to score their first goal."

Weaver said that there is no way she be upset with the way the team played.

"The newer players got some good experience against a top team," said junior forward Sandy Loeper said. "We played a better game against Northwestern but they had the upper hand, more experience."

"This was our toughest trip of the year and we get to play them later in the season," Weaver said. "We want to get healed for this weekend. The games won't be as physical as the past two."

Sophomore back Sue Carr ruptured a tendon cutting for a ball. Sophomore midfielder Trudy Duffy was back playing after sitting out due to a head injury and she was hit in the head again. Terri VanDeCarr, a senior midfielder, was put out by recurring back spasms.

The team takes to the road again this weekend, playing a nonconference game against Central Michigan on Friday and on Saturday against conference rival Michigan. Both games are in Ann Arbor. Ohio State is 0-2 in the conference and 4-4 overall.

Kelly leads Buffalo to OT win in Houston

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Kelly's fifth touchdown pass gave Buffalo a 47-41 overtime victory over Houston on Sunday in a game of big plays that saw Oilers kicker Tony Zendejas go from hero to villain in less than 10 minutes.

Kelly already had thrown touchdown passes of 6, 63, 78 and 26 yards before his 28-yarder to Andre Reed with 6:18 left in overtime ended this exhausting exercise in give-and-take. Reed also caught the 78-yarder.

"The Buffalo Bills have arrived," Kelly said. "When you can score that many points when you have to, you've really done your job."

Zendejas kicked a 52-yarder, his longest of the season, with three seconds to play, forcing the overtime. Houston won the toss and Warren Moon, sacked three times in the game, drove the Oilers to the Buffalo 25.

Zendejas, who missed three field goals last week, had a 43-yarder blocked, but Buffalo was off-sides. Then he missed a 37-yarder wide to the left, giving Kelly and the visiting Bills possession for their winning drive.

In the rest of the NFL, it was San Francisco 49, Philadelphia 28; Denver 31, Los Angeles Raiders 21; Indianapolis 13, Atlanta 9; Chicago 47, Detroit 27; Pittsburgh 27, Minnesota 14; Tampa Bay 20, New Orleans 10; New York Giants 28, Phoenix 7; Seattle 24, New England 3; Washington 30, Dallas 7; San Diego 21, Kansas City 6; New York Jets 40, Miami 33, and Los Angeles Rams 41, Green Bay 38.

Bills 47, Oilers 41

Kelly's fourth touchdown pass — a 26-yarder to Thurman Thomas with 1:52 to play — had given Buffalo a 41-38 lead. Kelly completed 17 of 29 passes for 363 yards, while Moon completed 28 of 46 for 338 yards.

Buffalo now is 2-1, while the Oilers are 1-2. Houston had taken a 38-34 lead in the fourth quarter on Moon's 26-yard scoring pass to Ernest Givins and a 1-yard touchdown run by Lorenzo White.

49ers 38, Eagles 28

Joe Montana, sacked eight times in the first 3 1/2 quarters, threw four touchdown passes in the final quarter as the 49ers overcame an 11-point deficit in the last eight minutes to beat Philadelphia.

Montana completed 25 of 34 passes for 428 yards, including 237 in the second half, keeping San Francisco unbeaten.

After throwing a 68-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Rice in the first quarter, he connected in the fourth quarter with John Taylor for 70 yards, Brent Jones for 8 yards, Tom Rathman for 25 yards and completed his show with a 33-yarder to Rice with 2:02 left in the game.

The Eagles are 2-1.

Broncos 31, Raiders 21

John Elway threw two touchdown passes to Mark Jackson and scrambled 29 yards for another score, helping build a 28-0 halftime lead that Denver made stand up over the Raiders.

The Broncos (3-0) converted three fumbles by Raiders quarterback Jay Schroeder into touchdowns and also intercepted him three times. But the Broncos let the Raiders (1-2) back in contention with an interception and a fumble, both converted into touchdowns.

The rally ended, however, when free safety Steve Atwater made a leaping interception of Schroeder at the Raiders 36 with 3:23 remaining and David Treadwell kicked a clinching 38-yard field goal with 27 seconds to go.

Colts 13, Falcons 9

Dean Biasucci kicked two field goals, and Jack Trudeau ran for one touchdown as a second-string backfield rallied the ailing Indianapolis Colts over Atlanta.

With Atlanta leading 9-0 late in the third quarter and Indianapolis quarterback Chris Chandler and running back Eric Dickerson out with injuries, Trudeau and backup tailback Albert Bentley led the comeback as the Colts won their first game.

Atlanta (1-2) has not beaten the Colts in 10 games.

Bears 47, Lions 27

The Bears remained unbeaten, led by a career-high 302 passing yards to Mike Tomczak in their rout of winless Detroit. Tomczak, who had completed only 40 percent of his passes this season, completed 17 of 25 against the Lions.

Tomczak is 19-3 as a starter for the Bears, 18-3 in regular-season games.

Chicago's Neal Anderson, the key to the NFL's best rushing attack, carried 16 times for 116 yards, including a 53-yard touchdown, and Kevin Butler kicked four field goals. Rookie Barry Sanders ran for 126 yards for Detroit.

OSU women golfers place 3rd in Lady Northern event

Sophomore Lynch leads Buckeyes by placing fourth overall

Lantern sports staff

The Ohio State women's golf team finished third in the 16-team Lady Northern Invitational this weekend at the University of Minnesota.

The Lady Buckeyes, who are rebuilding after losing four of last year's five starters to graduation, combined for a three-day total of 978. Indiana won the tournament with a 957 total. Iowa was second at 962. Defending league champion Minnesota was fourth at 985.

Sophomore Alyssa Lynch led Ohio State, finishing fourth overall in the tournament. Lynch carded rounds of 85, 79 and 76 for a three-day total of 240.

OSU freshman Tamara Dougan finished 10th overall with rounds of 86, 79 and 79 for a 244 total.

Ohio State's Catharina Hammar and Sarah Morton tied at 21st overall with three-day totals of 249. Roberta Richling and Kristin Scott rounded out the Buckeyes team, each finishing in 40th place at 255.

The Lady Buckeyes will host the Lady Buckeye Invitational Oct. 6-7 at the OSU Scarlet Course.

we could not block."

Frey and his backup Kirk Herbstreit finished the day a combined 13 of 30 passing for 135 yards. They were sacked four times.

Trailing 21-3, Ohio State's first second half possession — a "must score" situation to get back in the game — was in gear driving 33 yards to the USC 47-yard line.

It was effectively stopped there, though, when center Dan Beatty was caught holding after getting beat up the middle.

Two plays later Ohio State punted. USC then marched 88 yards in nine plays to put the game out of reach with a 19 yard touchdown pass from Marinovich to Gary Wellman. USC led 28-3 with 3:16 to play in the third.

Frey was intercepted by USC's Matt Gee moments later, setting up a 17 yard TD strike from Marinovich to Wellman and a 35-3 USC lead with four seconds left in the third period.

USC added a one yard TD run by Mazio Royster with 1:34 to play in the game for the 42-3 final.

What Marinovich could not accomplish through the air, USC tailback Ricky Ervins did on the ground. Ervins rushed 21 times for 117 yards. Several of Ervins big gains were on option plays or handoffs to the outside.

"We ran the option and got the ball outside with Ricky because we wanted to make them run on defense," Smith said. "We tried to stretch them and they weren't prepared for it."

Ohio State had established a running attack early as Snow had 71 yards rushing on eight carries in the first quarter. The quick deficit that followed did not afford Snow the chance to carry the ball.

"I couldn't really understand it," Snow said. "We had one thing working and we went to another. The coaches must have thought that would be best."

Ohio State, ranked 25th coming into the USC game, now must look to Boston College Saturday as a chance to get the season back on track.

"They outplayed us. They just played better than us today," Frey said. "But I'm not quitting. We've got nine more games to play."

Huntington Bancshares Inc. announced Thursday that it has reached an agreement with First Banc Securities Inc. to merge First Banc into a West Virginia subsidiary of Huntington.

Huntington Spokeswoman, Debra Dendahl, said they were approached again by First Banc about ten days ago. A definite agreement was reached Thursday morning.

Huntington and First Banc originally signed a letter of intent on Aug. 7 to merge First Banc with Huntington.

The letter called for a 21-day period in which to reach a definitive agreement. However, an agreement was not reached and the period expired on Monday, Aug. 28.

A First Banc representative would not comment on why the original intent expired and an agreement was not reached.

"We are pleased that after extensive evaluation, the board of directors and management of First Banc Securities have decided in favor of Huntington's proposal and have entered into definitive documents," Frank Wobst, chairman and chief executive officer of

A female student reported that a male had exposed himself to her on Thursday at 12:15 p.m.

The suspect apparently stood outside the victim's room on the fourth floor of Baker Hall, exposed his genitals and fondled them in front of her.

The suspect is described as a black male, about 5'8" and weighing 155 to 160 pounds. He is between 18 and 19 years old and was wearing pink shorts and a dark colored shirt.

Textbooks stolen

About five to 10 textbooks were noticed missing from an office in the Civil and Aeronautical Engineering Building at 5:00 p.m. Wednesday.

OSU Police reports said the suspect removed a ceiling tile in front of the door to room 222A, climbed over the door and removed another ceiling tile inside the office to get in.

The value of the textbooks has not been determined.

Dresser taken

A wooden dresser valued at $40 was stolen from the lower level of the Buckeye Village Apartment Complex on Mahoning Court between 6:00 and 10:00 p.m. Monday.

POLICE BEAT

The victim purchased the dresser earlier in the day and set it on the steps near his apartment because he was unable to carry it upstairs by himself. He went to get some help, and when he returned the dresser was gone.

Machine missing

A telephone answering machine was stolen from Room 2198 Graves Hall between 5:00 p.m. Tuesday and 8:45 a.m. Wednesday.

Police said the machine, valued at $90, had been disconnected from the phone and was discovered missing the following morning. There was no sign of forced entry.

A sign was stolen from the South Recreational Center at 175 W. 11th Ave. between 11:00 p.m. Tuesday and noon Wednesday.

The plastic sign, valued at $100, had the OSU logo and "Jesse Owens South Recreational Center" on it.

Homer honors female political pioneer

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOMER (AP) — Nearly 50 years before U.S. women earned the right to vote, Victoria Claflin Woodhull was running for president.

And 117 years later, her hometown turned out to campaign for her.

Residents gathered Saturday in this central Ohio village to honor Woodhull, who was born here Sept. 23, 1838, and became the first woman to run for president of the United States.

She also reportedly was the first woman stockbroker on Wall Street and the first woman to speak before Congress, said organizers of the event.

"Most people do not even know who she is, but she was an example of courage and leadership," said Joseph Berg, president of the Homer Historical Society.

Several hundred people gathered at the local library for "Victoria Day," where they traded memories and stories of Woodhull and bought and sold T-shirts, caps, plates, bells, post cards and other souvenirs of Homer's history-making female native.

Woodhull was the candidate of the Equal Rights Party in 1872, receiving only a few thousand votes. One of her election opponents was then-President Ulysses S. Grant, who was re-elected.

"Victoria was a person who believed that blacks and women were people, just like the Constitution said they were," Berg said.

One woman spent $32 on "Victoria" memorabilia.

"I came here and now I can't leave," said Nancy Dickerson of St. Louisville. "I am just so delighted with what I have seen. Victoria was a risk-taker and adventurous."

Woodhull's relatives also participated, including a distant cousin, Scott Claflin of Akron, who last year spent about $1,100 to have a historical plaque placed in front of the local library.

Phil Shipley, chairman of the Licking County commissioners, said "Victoria Day" gave residents the chance to honor their heritage.

"She was very brave," said Phil Shipley, chairman of the Licking County Board of Commissioners. "Not many people become known worldwide."

Five political leaders seek election; will square off in upcoming primary

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND (AP) — Five veteran political leaders are trying to succeed Mayor George Voinovich, who led the city out of financial default and fought off years of jokes about Cleveland and its burning river.

The candidates will meet in a non-partisan primary Oct. 3, with the top two vote-getters meeting in the Nov. 7 general election.

Voinovich took office Nov. 12, 1979, one year after the city defaulted under Mayor Dennis Kucinich, a self-styled populist who had considered running for his old job this year.

Voinovich took office with the city's image in shambles, the result of default under Kucinich, who was dubbed "Dennis the Menace."

Then there was the 1969 fire on the oil-slickened Cuyahoga River, which created the image of a dirty city and made Cleveland the butt of jokes.

VOINOVICH, who last year tried to unseat U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, (D-Cleveland), is seeking the 1990 Republican nomination for governor and has endorsed the lone GOP candidate, Ralph J. Perk Jr., who is the school board president and son of a former mayor.

The other candidates, all Democrats, are Cleveland Clerk of Courts Benny Bonanno, City Council President George Forbes, Cuyahoga County Commissioner Tim Hagan and state Sen. Michael White.

FORBES, 59, has served on the City Council since 1963 and has been its president for 16 years.

The candidates have focused on the issues of jobs, education, drugs and how to continue downtown development, that has polished the image of the city of about 536,000 people. Racial voter patterns, urine tests for candidates and charges of ethical conflicts also have been prominent issues.

B. James Kweder, a political science professor at Cleveland State University, expects one white and one black candidate to emerge from the primary. White and Forbes are black; the others are white.

"Blacks vote for blacks, whites vote for whites. They cross party lines to do that," he said.

The Census Bureau estimates 49 percent of the population is black, 45 percent white and 6 percent Hispanic and other minorities.

Forbes acknowledged that he had little support in the predominantly white west side and said race was the reason no white elected official had endorsed him or White.

WHITE DISMISSED Forbes' complaint of racial prejudice, saying Forbes was hoping to capitalize on racial divisions. White said endorsements typically follow neighborhood political considerations, and he noted that no black elected official had endorsed a white candidate.

Forbes ran a major voter registration drive in the predominantly black east side, pushing minority registration to a record high — about 49 percent. Seventy percent of the city's 24,000 new voters live in predominantly black neighborhoods.

Robert E. Hughes, chairman of both the Cuyahoga County Board of Elections and the county Republican party, predicted the turnout in a black-white runoff could surpass the record 79 percent in 1967, when Carl B. Stokes became the first black mayor of a major U.S. city.

Hughes said the likelihood of a large turnout in the primary reflected the high recognition factors of all five candidates. All of the them are known by at least 65 percent of those polled even before the campaign started.

"YOU HAVE five people with enormous name recognition, and they are waging an all-out campaign," Hughes said.

Hughes also said the number of absentee ballots, which will be known Tuesday, could be a record for a municipal election.

Drugs and the growing cocaine problem have been a focus of the campaign, with Hagan and Bonanno accepting Perk's challenge to take urine tests and prove themselves drug-free. All three said the tests showed no evidence of drugs.

They were strangers from different worlds... but a friendship forged out of danger and desperation linked them together forever.

Rinehart pushes better drug policy

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS (AP) — Mayor Dana G. Rinehart is urging state legislators to give police a better weapon against drug dealers by changing the state's property-seizure law to mirror the federal statute.

Last year, city police said they seized about $2 million worth of cash, cars, jewelry, houses and other property. Under Ohio law, any type of property used in furthering any crime can be confiscated, but not before the owner's conviction.

The federal forfeiture law is limited to drug offenses but does not require the sometimes lengthy wait for a conviction. The property or proceeds from a sale must be used for law enforcement.

Barbara L. Baran, assistant U.S.

attorney, handles forfeitures for the region. As of July 31, Columbus drug dealers were $1.5 million poorer because of her work over the previous 10 months, records show.

In the federal fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1988, she took $1.7 million worth of property from drug dealers and users and gave it to Columbus.

The county prosecutor passed on $134,453 worth of property from criminals to Columbus in the same fiscal year, said Sgt. Lloyd Davidson of the Columbus Division of Police.

Davidson said the county prosecutor's office has started proceedings to get $300,000 worth of property but expects to get about half that.

Baran gets more because she gets the bigger cases that require a judge's decision: houses, land and any property worth more than $100,000. Lesser seizures are handled through the FBI, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration and the Franklin County courts.

Capt. Frank Phillips, commander of the Columbus police narcotics squad, said he is pleased with the way seizures are being handled but that changing state law would improve matters.

"Now we're getting our money and property back much quicker than we were," Phillips said.

U.S. Attorney D. Michael Crites' office was "one of the first to seize property under the 1984 revision" allowing seizure of property bought with drug profits, Baran said.

One of her first cases — against karate instructor J.T. Will — proved one of her most complicated, she said.

Baran was seeking Will's Grandview gym and about $124,000 found in his safe as profits from his dealing in cocaine.

The case was settled the day of the court hearing, in January 1988, for $124,000 and the equity in the property. In the separate criminal case, Will was sentenced to eight years in prison and fined $50,000. He has been freed.

But Franklin County Public Defender James Kura says most of those arrested in drug-related cases are the small-time dealers and crack offenders. Kura says these people cannot afford lawyers, so his office is kept busy.

Kura estimated a 42 percent increase in caseloads since 1988, mostly because of drug arrests. His office had 4,748 clients last year.

Senator predicts scrutiny of Iowa

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress will review the Navy's investigation into the explosion aboard the USS Iowa in light of reports of improper experiments with the ship's guns, Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell predicted Sunday.

Mitchell, appearing on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," commented when whether he thought there was a cover up by the Navy, which concluded Gunner's Mate Clayton Hartwig "most probably" sabotaged a 16-inch gun he was loading.

"I'm unable to make that judgment, but based upon the reports we've seen, there will undoubtedly be a congressional inquiry into the matter to attempt to determine, if possible, what did happen and how well done the investigation and report were," Mitchell said.

Hartwig and 46 mates in the ship's second turret died in the April 19 explosion, which occurred during firing practice.

The Senate Armed Services Committee has begun sifting through Navy documents on the investigation, said committee staff director Arnold Punaro. He said the committee will conduct hearings on the Navy's conduct of the investigation.

How soon those hearings will be held is unknown, since the committee is currently involved in working out a defense bill with the House.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney, also appearing on the ABC program, reiterated his defense of the Navy report and said investigators knew unauthorized experiments were being conducted with the guns.

"I was fully briefed on the investigation before it was made public," he said. "The Navy was aware of those tests. The fact that they were experimenting was revealed by the man who did the investigation on the Iowa, but there's no evidence that there's any link between the experiment and the explosion."

Media General Newspapers had reported a week earlier that the Iowa was used as a "floating laboratory" for high explosive experiments, including the combination of a reduced powder charge with the heaviest projectile.

The Navy said it is conducting an investigation into the unauthorized experiments.

In Cleveland, Hartwig's sister, Kathy Kubicina, said Sunday she had been waiting for some word that the Senate would take up the investigation.

"I've been listening closely to what the Ohio senators, (John) Glenn and (Howard) Metzenbaum, have had to say, and they hadn't been willing to make a commitment."

"I'm really glad," she said of Mitchell's comments. "It only goes to prove what I've said all along. You can't put credence in that (Navy) investigation."

She said she planned to go to Washington this week to meet with staff members of Rep. Mary Rose Oaker, D-Ohio, who has called for an examination of the Navy's findings.

Lukens requested to resign position

By Melissa A. Myers
Lantern city reporter

The Ohio Republican Party has made an appeal to U.S. Rep. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-Middletown, to resign and not seek re-election.

The six county chairmen of Lukens' district and Ohio GOP chairman Robert T. Bennett, asked Lukens to resign in a Sept. 14 letter by stating "the feeling was unanimous that despite your many years of distinguished service, your conviction of a crime of this nature has rendered you incapable of adequately representing your constituents."

Lukens was convicted by a jury last spring of contributing to the delinquency and unruliness of a minor.

He was sentenced to 30 days in jail, a $500 fine and was placed on probation for one year. He was also ordered to participate in a program for sex offenders and submit to testing for sexually transmitted diseases.

Lukens has not served his sentence yet because he posted the necessary bond to stay out of jail while his lawyer appeals his conviction.

"This is politics as usual,"

William Jarrell, Luken's chief of staff, said.

He said the congressman has not made a decision whether or not to run for re-election in 1990, and the letter from the Ohio GOP will have no effect on the decision.

"This is in no way relevant," he said.

According to the letter, each of the six county chairmen of Lukens' district had previously called for his resignation and are now making their second appeal.

Bennett had previously called for Lukens' resignation in June.

Jarrell said he believes the county chairmen were forced into signing the letter.

"It is a media gimmick," he said. "It doesn't matter to him (Lukens)."

According to the letter, should Lukens refuse to resign, the county chairmen have threatened "to suspend the honors normally accorded to a Republican Member of Congress. You (Lukens) will no longer be welcomed, or recognized, at any Republican function in any county in the 8th Congressional District."

Lukens is presently under investigation by the U.S. House of Representatives Ethics Committee.

History books fail

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS (AP) — School districts across the nation, including the Columbus Public Schools, believe the achievements recorded in American History textbooks fail to tell the whole story.

"We want children to be told the truth about the contributions women, blacks and other minorities have made to the history of this country," said Columbus school board member Loretta Heard. "We want a true American history book."

In November, Heard and other representatives of the Council of the Great City Schools will vote on a report that is part of a plan to persuade textbook publishers to rewrite history.

The council has a list of demands for book improvements and wants members, 45 big-city districts, to endorse them. By banding together, the districts hope to wield more power, she said.

Textbooks are a $1.4 billion-a-year business. In recent years, attacks on the books' quality and content, especially in history and social studies, have mounted on several fronts:

- Textbooks mention blacks or women but rarely delve into the story behind their contributions.
- Textbooks fail to weave the roles of minorities into the larger picture.
- Textbook publishers cater to Texas and California, which adopt books on a statewide basis.

Critics say en-masse book adoptions skew history.

In a history text used in Columbus middle schools, Texas is cited on 24 pages, Ohio on three, the council's Columbus chapter says.

Survivors of polio may face late effects

By Mark Janselewitz
Lantern city reporter

An OSU professor of medicine said recently that although polio is fairly well eradicated in the United States, some survivors of the disease are starting to feel newly discovered effects of polio.

"A lot of polio survivors are beginning to experience post-polio syndrome, or the late effects of polio," William Pease, assistant professor of physical medicine at OSU said.

According to the Easter Seals Society Polio Fact Sheet, approximately 300,000 people, all with some degree of disability because of the disease, have survived polio. Most of them have been living productive lives, the society said.

However, people who had the disease 30 or 40 years ago are beginning to experience weakness and symptoms similar to aging, said George Bahr, executive director of the Ohio Easter Seals Society.

Research suggests when the polio virus was active, the nerve cells affected had to work harder to function, Bahr explained.

Thus, the cells are "older" and giving out now, he said.

The signs and symptoms of post-polio syndrome are similar to aging, Bahr said.

Symptoms include fatigue, legs and arms giving out, weakness and poor circulation, he said.

"No two polio survivors are exactly alike," Bahr said.

Polio, or poliomyelitis, is a viral infection which attacks the nerves in the spine, Bahr said.

It results in weakness in the trunk or limbs, or impaired or paralyzed respiration, he said.

Polio was most active during the 1940's and 50's and primarily infected children.

According to the fact sheet, polio survivors "who had fought hard to move without braces or crutches now find themselves returning to canes, walkers, or wheelchairs. Others weaned from a mechanical ventilator are retuning to the ventilator for sleeping."

Few polio survivors actually get post-polio syndrome, Pease said. A greater number of people have problems from polio complications or unrelated difficulties, he said.

Ernest Johnson, chairperson professor of physical medicine at Ohio State, suggested that only about one out of 20 polio survivors experiences post-polio syndrome.

Bahr said his sister was in an iron lung when she had polio and has not experienced any of the effects of post-polio syndrome.

According to the Handbook on the Late Effects of Poliomyelitis for Physician and Survivors, the late effects of polio are not well known among physicians. Patients who develop new problems may be subjected to unnecessary tests, it said.

Democratic leaders upset over linebacker's publicity

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI (AP) — A local Democratic leader is miffed that Cincinnati Bengals linebacker Reggie Williams is getting credit for more than his tackling during telecasts of football games.

As a result, ABC television will keep politics separate from football during the network's telecast of a Monday night game between the Bengals and the Cleveland Browns.

Tim Burke, chairman of the Democratic Party locally, complained to ABC last week when broadcaster Frank Gifford mentioned during a Monday Night Football telecast that he was coming to Cincinnati this weekend to help Williams' campaign to retain a seat on City Council.

Williams is a member of the Charter Committee, a Cincinnati independent political party.

Gifford and his wife, Kathie Lee, were the featured guests Saturday night at a $100-a-person fundraiser held for Williams in downtown Cincinnati. Williams, who was appointed to a vacant City Council seat last year, is running for re-election this fall.

Gifford said Saturday he hadn't been ordered by the network to avoid discussing Williams' politics on air, but he will shy away from it to avoid controversy.

"I want to help Reggie, not hurt him, so I guess I won't talk about it," Gifford said.

Burke wrote letters to ABC president John Sias and WKRC-TV, the network's local affiliate, complaining about Gifford's comments last Monday and asking for equal time for the six Democratic council candidates.

WKRC-TV general manager Terry Connelly said his station has no legal obligation to offer equal time to other council candidates, but he does not expect Gifford to mention Williams' candidacy during the telecast Monday.

"If Reggie sacks a quarterback Monday night, Frank can talk all he wants about that, but the politics is something else," Connelly said.

Burke said he has no complaints about Gifford helping Williams campaign.

"He's free to do what he wants with his own time," Burke said. "We just object to his endorsing the Williams campaign on television. No other council candidate can have that kind of exposure. We think it's terribly unfair."

But Williams said he thinks his political opponents are wrong in asking for equal time.

"This kind of thing bothers me," Williams said. "I'm not ashamed of being a council member and I'm not ashamed of being a Cincinnati Bengal. I don't see why someone like Frank Gifford can't go on television and talk about me."

Abortion issue to be renewed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pro-choice forces appear to have seized the momentum in the nation's renewed battle over abortion, but anti-abortion activists say they expect the tide to turn as legislatures — and the Supreme Court — return to session this fall and winter.

So far, a half-dozen states have emerged as early legislative battlegrounds, but most lawmakers appear reluctant to open the door that was unlocked by the Supreme Court in July.

"I would say it's basically a standoff," said Lydia Neumann, a spokeswoman for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America, which favors access to abortion.

In the nation's two governor's races this fall, pro-choice candidates have used their viewpoint for its potential political advantage, while anti-abortion candidates have sought to shift attention away from the issue.

Burke Balch, state legislative coordinator for the National Right to Life Committee, insisted that a strong anti-abortion position was not a political liability. But in general, he conceded that pro-choice forces have had the upper hand in the 2½ months since the Supreme Court upheld Missouri abortion restrictions.

He said the balance would shift this fall, when legislatures begin to consider specific bills and when the Supreme Court begins another round of abortion rulings.

Pennsylvania and Michigan are the most likely states to enact new abortion restrictions this fall, while prospects are less certain in four other states where the issue is expected to come up before the end of the year.

Florida and Illinois are both expected to take up the abortion issue at special sessions, and abortion bills are expected to be introduced at a special session in Minnesota.

Many more states will take up the abortion issue in January, when most legislatures return for their 1990 sessions. An Associated Press survey of the 50 legislatures suggests that abortion will be a major issue in at least 23 states.

Both sides agree that the most likely states to enact further abortion restrictions next year are Missouri and Louisiana. Balch said he considers the 13 states that offer publicly funded abortions to be the least likely to enact restrictions.

The coming abortion battles are likely to be fought along several fronts. In many states, anti-abortion forces are preparing legislation that mimics the Missouri law that was upheld by the Supreme Court on July 3.

That law banned abortions in public hospitals and stopped public employees from counseling women about abortions. It also required doctors performing abortions to first test any fetus over 20 weeks old to determine if it could live outside the womb.

Next year's anti-abortion drive also is likely to include bills to ban abortions that are performed because the parents are dissatisfied with the gender of the fetus, and those that are performed in lieu of birth control.

One of the most contentious issues will be laws that require minors to inform their parents or get parental consent before having abortions.

About 30 states have parental consent laws, but most are tied up in court and aren't in force. A slightly smaller number of states have parental notification laws, almost all of which are in legal limbo.
