DeSantis comments on eviction attempt

By Debra Baker
Lantern city reporter

Albert J. DeSantis said Monday that the recent eviction action filed against the owners of Mean Mr. Mustards was to prevent the building from burning down and not to try to obtain the bar's ownership.

"I am a part-owner of that building. I have great liability, and that is why I had to do it," DeSantis, 4040 W. Henderson Rd., said.

"Am I a tough landlord? I hope so," he said. "How would you want me to be? Careless? Reckless? Irresponsible?"

DeSantis was referring to the recent charges he filed against Mark Gutentag, Brad Miller and the Wullum Corp., the owners of Mean Mr. Mustards, for failure to evict.

He is attempting to evict them for violations in health, safety and fire codes, DeSantis said.

DeSantis disagreed with Gutentag's statement in Friday's Lantern that none of the violations were life-threatening. "There were dozens of violations," he said.

Documents from the city of Columbus Bureau of Fire Prevention state that signs and lighting of the exit signs at the bar, 1580 N. High St., were not maintained; fire extinguishers were not installed and tested; the stairways and hallways were not kept adequately lighted; building appliances were in violation of code and were an immediate life or fire hazard and the wiring was not according to code.

DeSantis said he saw cockroaches and a rat when he was there.

The Columbus City Health Department gave them a 72-point rating out of a possible 100 points.

"The fire department said to Brad Miller, in my presence, 'You have 24 hours to substantially repair this; otherwise, I will shut you down,'" DeSantis said.

"It was a disaster; it was a fire trap; it was a health trap. They ran a pigsty," DeSantis said. "I am a part-owner of that building, and I have great liability. That is why I had to do it."

"Thank God that the government agencies helped me to get them to reduce the risk of the building burning down and bringing the facility up to reasonable cleanliness and health," he said.

"These are not created, not fabricated; they are legitimate violations," DeSantis said.

Craig A. Smith, attorney for Miller, Gutentag and the Wullum Corp., said that most of the violations were minimal.

"The wiring was admittedly a problem," Smith said. However, 70 percent of the electrical work was done the next day," he said.

"He (Fire Inspector Wayne Redmond) was very impressed with their cooperativeness," Smith said.

All of the violations have been corrected and approved by the inspectors, Smith said. They received a rating of 99 points out of 100 on the second health inspection, he said.

Smith said he did not see any rats.

"These guys have been in the bar since April of 1987," Smith said. "They have had routine fire and health inspections, and there has not been any problems."

DeSantis said he will probably drop the case if all the corrections have been made.

"The whole purpose of the eviction was to get them to fix it up," he said.

Photographs of Mean Mr. Mustards were taken by DeSantis. They show examples of the code violations.

"I was appalled by their lawyer saying 'I've seen worse,'" DeSantis said.

Council approves gun amendments

By Muchun Yin
Lantern city reporter

Columbus City Council Monday night approved three amendments to the city's controversial new gun control law.

It voted to:

- Push back the effective starting date of the law.
- Make an old gun control law conform with the new one.
- Amend the law so that the city can revoke assault rifle permits.

City Council moved the date the gun control law was to go into effect from September 30 to October 31. Council passed the gun control law in May.

"There were some department stores in Columbus, like Meijer, that wished to have additional time to understand what the procedure is so they could school their employees," Councilman John Kennedy said.

Lisa Griffin, city council's public information officer, said the city also heard from K-Mart Department Stores, asking about the new regulations.

When the law takes effect in October, it will ban the sale of assault rifles in Columbus.

It also will require a seven-day waiting period before a gun permit can be issued.

Prior to the council decision in May, and according to the old gun control law, only buyers of handguns needed permits, and a seven-day waiting period was not required.

Council approved changes to the old law so that starting in October, buyers of any kind of firearms will need permits.

The new law also has a "grandfather clause" that allows present owners of assault rifles to keep them. However, owners must have permits for the assault rifles.

The law, as amended Monday night, will allow the city to revoke an assault rifle permit if the owner is convicted of a felony.

The amendment also gives the city the right to take the felon's gun.

"We can literally confiscate it from you," Griffin said.

For each of the three amendments, City Council voted 6-1 in favor of passing it.

Councilwoman Arlene Shoemaker, who cast the dissenting vote each time, said she opposed

Cincinnati's defense shuts down Cleveland

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Boomer Esiason threw three touchdown passes and Jim Skow led a second-half defensive surge as the Cincinnati Bengals beat the Browns 21-14 Monday night, handing Cleveland its first loss of the season.

Esiason, who had just three TD passes in nine previous games against the Browns, matched that output. He had second-quarter scoring tosses of eight and 16 yards to tight end Rodney Holman, then hit James Brooks with a 19-yarder 5:05 into the second half to put the Bengals ahead for good.

But it took two late goal-line stands by the Bengals to win it, the second ending at the 3-yard-line with 1:41 left when Eric Thomas knocked down a fourth-down pass.

Skow, meanwhile, was credited with 2½ sacks on Cleveland's first two possessions of the second half, giving Cincinnati good field possession both times. He also dumped Tim Manoa for no gain on a fourth-and-1 at the Bengals' 9 with 7:52 left.

The first time Skow got a sack, the Bengals capitalized, going 49 yards in six plays, capped by the TD pass to Brooks from Esiason, who finished with 14 completions in 20 attempts for 104 yards, plus 34 yards rushing on five carries. The second time, Jim Gallery, who later missed a 44-yarder, missed a 48-yard field-goal attempt.

But it didn't matter as the defense almost completely shut down Cleveland, sacking Kosar six times and holding the Browns without a first down in both the first and third quarters.

Kosar, who threw for 163 yards and two touchdowns in the first half, finished with 15 completions in 23 attempts for 203 yards.

It was the 11th straight home win for the Bengals, now tied with the Browns for first in the AFC Central at 2-1. They got 78 yards rushing from rookie Eric Ball, replacing the injured Ickey Woods.

The Bengals had the ball all but 3:22 of the first quarter but couldn't score.

But then came four straight touchdowns on four straight possessions for the Ohio rivals.

Cincinnati started it, scoring 2:19 into the second period on an 8-yard pass to Holman. It came at the end of a 49-yard, five-play drive that featured a 31-yard pass from Esiason to Tim McGee and came one play after an illegal motion penalty negated a 4-yard TD pass to Eddie Brown.

Then Cleveland, held without a first down for the first 18:22, finally got going, traveling 78 yards in eight plays to tie it.

The touchdown was a beauty, a 5-yarder on third-and-goal from Kosar to Eric Metcalf, Cleveland's first draft pick. He took the ball in the flat at the 10, danced inside Thomas, outside Lewis Billups and into the end zone for his first NFL touchdown.

Back came the Bengals, going 76 yards in nine plays, capped by the 16-yard pass to Holman from Esiason, who rolled left around the pass rush and hit his wide-open receiver to make it 14-7 with 4:43 left in the half.

But Kosar tied it again with 59 seconds to go on his 6-yarder to Tim Manoa at the end of an 86-yard, six-play drive, all in the air. The score came one play after Kosar and Webster Slaughter hooked up for 55 yards when Slaughter blew by cornerback Thomas and found himself all alone on the left sideline.

Electrical accident kills three

By Tracy Elmer
Lantern city reporter

Three men were electrocuted and three critically injured Monday when a steel scaffolding they were moving struck a 69,000-volt power line at a Worthington Industries construction site.

The accident occurred around 10 a.m. in North Columbus when the men, all employees of Target Construction Co., were putting aluminum siding on a new distribution center for Worthington Industries, on Deerborn Road, north of Interstate 270.

The employees were wheeling a 25-foot scaffolding away from the building when it collided with high-voltage power lines.

Authorities identified the dead as Greg Donahue, 34, of Ashville, J.H. Claytor, 31, of Waverly, and Terry Titus, 38, of Richmond.

The injured men include Jeff Grabill, 26, of Grove City, who is in stable condition with extensive injuries to his left hand at Riverside Hospital; Willard Tackett, 39, of Piketon, who is in stable condition at St. Ann's Hospital; and Thomas Moore, 39, of Springfield, whose condition at University Hospitals has not been listed at the time of this report.

A Target Construction spokesman said workers apparently do not consider electrical wires to be hazardous unless the wires are within 10 feet of the worksite.

Because the lines, four cables that run parallel to the building at Worthington Industries, were 30 feet away, the workers thought they had enough room to operate.

Bob Jones, a spokesman from Columbus Southern Power, said that the scaffold was cranked up to about 28 feet, a point that reached the bottom of the power lines, causing the electrocution.

Jones said that the scaffold had warnings posted to stay clear of power lines.

The power lines involved went only to Worthington Industries, so power was not affected in any other areas, he said.

Greg Dresh, a spokesman for Target Construction, said that there are investigators at the accident site.

"There are three men walking through the area trying to piece the accident together," Dresh said.

The employees involved in the accident worked independently, so they are the only ones who know exactly what happened, Dresh said.

Target Construction will comment further when they have a definitive account of the accident, he said.

U.S.-made crank makes resurgence as alternative to cocaine

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's cheap, it's easy to produce and drug dealers tout the fact that it's "made in America."

Methamphetamine, known in the 1960s as "speed" and now widely called "crank," is making a resurgence in the United States as an inexpensive alternative to cocaine or crack.

Users are beginning to smoke it, sending an instant jolt to the brain. But unlike crack, crank can give the user a high that lasts several hours.

Quickly addictive, it can also lead its victims to hospital emergency rooms, their fists clenched, raring for a fight even while strapped to gurneys for their own protection and that of hospital workers.

"I think there's sound reason to say this stuff is more dangerous than cocaine or crack," says James N. Hall, executive director of the Up Front Drug Information Center in Miami. "Speed killed in the 1960s and it can still kill in the '90s."

The Justice Department, in a report last month, said "methamphetamine has the potential of becoming the crack problem of the 1990s."

Dr. George M. Shumaik, an emergency room physician at the University of California at San Diego Medical Center, describes crank users as "crazy" and "combative."

"The complications are the same as we saw with PCP," Shumaik says of crank users who overdose severely. "They're so combative and so strong that they can throw you across the room."

The National Institute on Drug Abuse says the number of deaths involving crank nearly tripled in 2½ years — from 34 in the second half of 1985 to 91 in the first half of 1988, according to reports from 26 metropolitan areas.

"There has been an explosive growth in the use of methamphetamine" over six years, the Justice Department says. The problem has been especially severe in the western United States and Southern California.

San Diego, according to the Justice Department, is "the methamphetamine capital of the United States."

Shumaik says many of those who come to his UCSD emergency room suffering from crank overdoses just need a place to come down from highs that can last up to 24 hours due to repeat doses.

Their hearts will be racing, their blood pressure will be high, they'll be paranoid and anxious, but they'll survive.

But severe overdoses can result in seizures, increased muscle tension or hyperthermia.

"They'll be so wired up, their muscles so tight, so intensely clenched, that the muscle protein breaks down, gets into the blood stream, goes to the kidneys and can create kidney failure," Shumaik says.

"They lose their temperature regulation. Our record is 109 degrees. I've not seen any of those patients survive."

Two killed, 1 injured in Colombia bombing

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A bomb exploded Monday night in the Cartagena Hilton on the Caribbean and reports said two doctors were killed and another was wounded, the chief of the police in that coastal resort said.

Another bomb exploded at a Cartagena bank Monday night, injuring a passer-by, Col. Luis Herrera told The Associated Press in a telephone interview.

A fireman at the hotel told a Colombian TV news crew the blast ripped through the sixth floor of the Cartagena Hilton, whose majority owner is the Colombian government's National Tourism Council.

The bomb exploded in room 642, the Colombian radio chain Caracol said in a report from the scene. The two doctors who were killed were attending a medical convention at the hotel, Caracol said. Their identities were not immediately available.

The one who was injured was also thought to be Colombian, witnesses told Caracol.

Herrera said no one had claimed responsibility for the bombs.

However, Colombian government security forces have presumed that scores of bombs that have exploded in major Colombian cities in the last month have been the work of drug traffickers who declared war on the Colombian government.

Including the two bombs in Cartagena and one Monday night in the capital of Bogota, there have been 110 bombings, killing eight persons and injuring 132 persons.

The Hilton was evacuating the approximately 1,500 guests to other hotels in Cartagena, Caracol said, quoting its correspondent, who filed a report by radio telephone with Bogota.

Thousands of Americans, Canadians and other foreigners flock to Cartagena each year.

A group of Canadian tourists at the Cartagena airport last week told the wife of an AP reporter they were cutting their vacations short and going home because the Canadian Embassy warned them of the war possibly spreading to Cartagena.

Smith enters race for city auditor

By Aria Ala-U-Dini
Lantern city reporter

Democratic incumbent Hugh J. Dorrian.

With only six weeks to Election Day, Republican Nancy Burtch Monday dropped out of the race for city auditor to run for city council, while a newcomer to city politics took her place.

Craig A. Smith, a Columbus attorney specializing in commercial and business law, officially announced his candidacy during a news conference held at the Franklin County Republican headquarters.

"Realistically speaking, there are disadvantages getting into a race when there are only 45 days left," Smith said.

He said he is confident that he still has a chance at beating

"IF WE can get the message across, we can be very successful," he said.

Smith said the message he hopes to get out to voters is that there is a problem with not only the current city auditor, but also with the income tax system.

"As it stands right now, not everyone has to file a city income tax in Columbus," Smith said.

He said because of certain loopholes in the tax system, nearly $8 million of potential city tax revenue is lost annually.

He said this money will go a long way in helping Mayor Dana G. Rinehart fight the drug problem in Columbus.

SMITH SAID another problem he sees with the present system is that the auditor's office has failed to keep up with changes.

"The formula the city uses for making investments was devised in 1953," Smith said.

The solution he said is replace Dorrian, who has been in office since 1969.

"Because of the personality of the auditor, he does not want to rock the boat," he said.

He also said if elected, he plans to update the city auditors computer system and overhaul its method of tax collection.

FRANKLIN COUNTY Republican Party Chairman Michael F. Colley said the party realizes with such a short time to Election Day, Smith has an uphill battle.

The Republicans, however, are taking special measures.

"You can expect there will be additional help for him," he said.

Colley would not specify in what form that help would be, but did say that they have already begun a direct-mail voter information drive to aid him.

Colley also said the fact that he is the only endorsed Republican to be running for the office will also help the first-time candidate.

"THE OBJECTIVE of the Republican Party is to recruit qualified candidates and Craig Smith is well qualified. We're proud to support his candidacy," Colley said.

owners of Mean Mr. Mustards charging breach of contract, DeSantis was charged with intimidation in the counter-claim.

"I want to get across that I have not harassed them or intimidated them," he said. "I simply said that 'if you don't fix this place up, I will throw you out.' Meaning I will find a covenant in the lease you have violated and I will evict you."

Smith said in Friday's Lantern, "Brad and Mark were obviously intimidated by DeSantis, and it is understandable."

DeSantis said he negotiated a contract with the owners and agreed to their terms and their price and to allow them to manage the bar. Then Miller told him they had changed their minds, he said.

"A jury will determine whether

I was right or I was wrong, whether I have a valid contract or not. But, when a contract is written, and adults sign it, and they feel they don't have a contract, but they are the ones who defer it for a year-and-a-half, that should tell the public something," DeSantis said.

the amendments for two reasons.

"In straightening up . . . the old code that dealt with licensing firearms, it increases and puts actual gun legislation into place for all firearms in the city. This was done without any public hearing, and I thought it was wrong," Shoemaker said.

Besides the lack of a public hearing, Shoemaker said she opposed the amendments and gun control law because they were passed for the wrong reason.

"I would rather not see any gun control because to have gun control, stating it will control crime, is a misnomer. . . It has never controlled crime," she said.

In other action, City Council:

- Passed legislation requiring contracting agencies that are hired by the city to try to employ a certain percentage of minority and female-run businesses.

The percentages are to be determined after Otto Beatty, a state representative from Columbus, decides whether discrimination has occurred before in city contracts, Griffin said.

Richard Hobbs, executive director of a general contractors association voiced his opposition to the legislation.

Hobbs said Beatty was already predisposed toward the idea that continuing discrimination has occurred in city contracts.

He also said an independent group was needed to provide a true analysis of the situation.

The police dispatcher then notifies officers in the field, Mattmiller said.

James H. Chisman, assistant vice president for public safety, also said the roves serve as a great set of "eyes and ears."

Chisman said, in addition to the most important function of providing escorts, roves report burned-out lights, overgrown foliage and unlocked doors that may present safety or security problems on campus. Mattmiller said the roves also check the blue emergency phones on campus.

The Department of Public Safety can then act on correcting these problems much more quickly because of the roves' report, Chisman said.

Richard A. Hollingsworth, acting dean of student life, said "The more eyes you've got out there, overall, the safer the environment's going to be."

Hollingsworth said the program is based on the same principle that many neighborhood block watch programs are. "They are most effective when those most affected get involved," Hollingsworth said.

Escorts are provided from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Sunday through Wednesday, and from 9 p.m. to 3 a.m. Thursday through Saturday, Tumney said.

Escorts are also provided from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily but must be requested in advance, Tumney said.

Fishery planned for OSU

By Susan Westbrook
Lantern campus reporter

OSU students may soon be raising perch and walleye in addition to cows and hogs.

A new aquacultural facility will provide a place for field researchers to study the possibility of having aquaculture, or fish farming, in Ohio.

Architectural plans for the Piketon Research Facilities in Piketon, Ohio have been completed and bids are in with acceptance scheduled for later this fall or early spring, Charles F. Cole, assistant director of the School of Natural Resources, said.

The driving force behind Ohio State's aquaculture program is to diversify the choices the American consumer has for its protein needs, Cole said.

Konrad Dabrowski, head of OSU's aquaculture program, is in the process of applying for research money. Hoffman-LaRoche, a pharmaceutical company with headquarters in New Jersey, and Showa Denko, a Japanese pharmaceutical company have each agreed to a $90,000 grant.

A $40,000 grant from the North Central Aquaculture center is currently being reviewed, Dabrowski said.

The extensive aquaculture is the traditional approach to growing fish in low density units in a pond environment. The intensive aquaculture is done in high density units, for example in tanks which initiate the stream habitat, Dabrowski said.

Ohio State is working cooperatively with Michigan State, Purdue, and Iowa State to develop aquaculture in the Midwest, Cole said.

"We could get to the point where perch and walleye come off the farm the same way corn does," he said.

The types of fish being considered for research are perch, walleye and muskie, Dabrowski said.

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources is interested in the muskie research findings since they already produce muskie to stock Ohio's waters for sport fishing, and would like to increase their production by genetically engineering a mono-sex muskie, he said.

Ohio State is part of the North Central Aquaculture Center which is one of five centers funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Cole said. Started in 1987, the center is a consortium of universities. Cole said the consortium is a collection of minds rather than buildings. The director of the group is at Michigan while its associate director is at Iowa State. Ohio State's contribution to this center is the Piketon Research Center, Cole said.

Government regulations placed on student loans

By Trish Borne
Lantern campus reporter

The high number of student bank loan defaults has prompted the federal government to mandate new laws that will help banks recover their money, according to the account manager for the Ohio State Office of the Treasurer.

Lee Wurster said the new regulation, adopted by the United States Department of Education, went into effect at Ohio State on August 24.

The regulation stipulates that all higher education establishments require their students to participate in an entrance interview before their student loans, are dispersed and exit interviews after their schooling, he said.

The entrance interviews are designed to inform students what their loan responsibilities are before they receive their checks, Wurster said.

The interviews are conducted in groups of about 20 to 30 students at which time they are told when and how they are expected to repay their borrowed money, he said.

Despite this new time-consuming regulation, the entire process of dispersing the checks has been speeded up due to better computer services and more volunteer participation, he said.

The second part of the regulation requires universities to conduct exit interviews of students, Wurster said.

Student loans are called Stafford Loans.

In the past, it has been the bank's, not the university's responsibility to inform the borrowers of their debts-what their payments will be, and when they must start making their payments, Wurster said.

The exit interviews, required to be given by the borrower's university, will advise the student on the same data the banks used to provide, he said.

Mary Haldane, director of student financial aid, said Ohio State's exit interviews will be conducted by the university financial aid department. The financial aid officials have not yet formulated how they will conduct the interviews, she said.

The department will advertise and notify students of the interview schedule, then hold a slide presentation and individual sessions with the borrowers to present them with their repayment information, Wurster said.

He said whether the borrowers attend these interviews or not, the universities are still liable for the students receiving this information.

Both provisions of the new regulation are designed to help decrease the Stafford Loan default rates and insure that the students know their obligations of repayment, Wurster said.

Edward H. Jennings, president of Ohio State, said the onset of federal regulation did not pertain to anything happening at Ohio State.

The majority of the default rate problems were on the East Coast and West Coast and primarily in privately owned schools, he said.

75 Chinese students arrive

Large number surprises international student director

By Lynn Echelberger
Lantern campus reporter

Approximately 75 out of the 116 students from China accepted at Ohio State have arrived to attend fall classes, according to the director of the Office of International Students and Scholars.

John Greisberger said, unofficially 75 students have checked into the university and that number of students is more than they had expected.

"We expected in mid-summer to see fewer (students) because of the reaction of the Chinese government to the (pro-democracy) demonstrations," he said.

Greisberger said they never expect that all students accepted will actually attend Ohio State.

Chung-Min Chen, director of the East Asian Studies Center, said the enrollment numbers are not an indication of something unusual.

There are many reasons why the entire number of students admitted would not show up, Chen said.

"After June 4, 1989, the government in Beijing is trying to review its policy about sending students to the United States," Chen said.

He said there is a policy change inside China that requires students to supply a financial guarantee from friends or relatives in the United States, even if the student is already receiving support from an American institution.

Chen said the Chinese government wants to make sure a student will still have a means to survive in case the support from the American source does not come through.

Glue fumes help thumb area crooks

ASSOCIATED PRESS

(AP) — Columbus police are using a fingerprinting technique popularized in the movie "Beverly Hills Cop II" involving the fumes given off by cyanoacrylate, a chemical contained in Super Glue.

In the Eddie Murphy movie, detectives place a matchbook cover in a sealed aquarium with a capful of Super Glue, then wait for the chemical to react with the oils and acids emitted by the skin.

Columbus police said the technique had provided fingerprints used as evidence in several recent trials, including the rape trial of Robert Biddings, convicted of being the city's "handcuff rapist."

Biddings, convicted on numerous counts of rape, kidnapping and other charges, was dubbed the handcuff rapist because several of his victims were bound during the attacks.

Other cases in which the technique proved valuable include the Nov. 7, 1986, slaying of a North Side man whose body was found wrapped in a trash container, said police Sgt. Ray Clary, supervisor of crime scene investigators. A sheet and the garbage bags in which the body had been wrapped were tested for fingerprints, which were later used to obtain a conviction, Clary said.

Police use gauze pads soaked in the chemical, placing them next to the object in a sealed container. The process actually takes several hours, much longer than shown in "Beverly Hills Cop II," Clary said.

"We usually let (the evidence) sit there for three or four hours, then open up the tank and see what we have," Clary said. "It seems to work best on firearms and metals."

Smugglers ingest cocaine

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MIAMI (AP) — U.S. Customs agents, used to seeing travelers use exotic methods to smuggle drugs into this country, are noticing an increase in the dangerous practice of swallowing cocaine to avoid detection.

Plainclothes inspectors roving the huge customs area at Miami International Airport are capturing an average of a half-dozen of what they called "internals" every week, said senior customs inspector George Dickinson.

The swallows are taken to a hospital prison ward to pass the sealed pellets of cocaine, with the help of laxatives.

In one recent week, among those taken into custody were: a 45-year-old man who arrived on a flight from Bogota, Colombia, after swallowing 120 packets totaling a kilo of cocaine, or about 2.2 pounds; two men on another flight from Bogota who ingested 226 drug packets between them; and two men who flew in from Jamaica with a total of 100 packets of cocaine and hashish in their systems.

So far this year, 64 people "packed from top to bottom with pellets" have been taken into custody compared with 25 for all of last year, Dickinson said. The majority of drug seizures by agents at the airport in the past three months have been from internals, he said.

"It's becoming more prevalent due to extensive outbound searches in Colombia," he said.

Most of the defendants accused of smuggling drugs internally are poor, illiterate Colombian citizens who can expect to earn about $2,000 for successfully delivering the drugs for someone else, said Dickinson.

Officials aren't certain how much cocaine is getting in via swallows. But customs agents believe they have developed a keen eye for spotting potential smugglers by looking for signs of unusual behavior or nervousness.

Once people are targeted, they are taken aside for an in-depth interview and a decision is made whether to transport them to Jackson Memorial Hospital to recover the drugs if they don't produce them at the airport.

Cooper says team down but not out

By Scott Campbell
Lantern staff writer

Despite a 42-3 shellacking by the University of Southern California Trojans Saturday, OSU football coach John Cooper says his Buckeyes are down but not out.

"I can take two attitudes," said Cooper, speaking at his weekly Monday press luncheon. "Number one, I can hang my head and throw in the towel and play out the season. Or number two, I can compete."

Cooper said he'll go with the latter.

"I'm tremendously disappointed but I'm not discouraged," he said. "I think we can bounce back. We've got to bounce back. There isn't any other course of action that I know of."

Cooper said he wasn't happy with the outcome of the game particularly the final three quarters of play when the Buckeyes were outscored 42-0.

"After it was 21-3 everything we did sort of backfired, disintegrated," he said. "And we got out of our game plan a little bit and we didn't play with confidence and we were embarrassed."

Southern Cal, trailing the Buckeyes 3-0 after the first period, hammered the OSU defense for 21 points in the second quarter, 14 in the third and seven in the fourth. Meanwhile a veteran USC defense held Ohio State scoreless during that same stretch. It was the Bucks' worst defeat in 43 years.

Included in the romp was a USC record 87-yard touchdown pass from redshirt freshmen Todd Marinovich to John Jackson in the second quarter that put the Trojans on top 14-3. OSU cornerback Vince Clark, who was covering on the play, slipped leaving nothing but daylight for Jackson.

"They hit their wide receiver and he turns it into an 87-yard touchdown," Cooper said. "I think that broke our back right there."

"There wasn't too many good things that happened. We played a good football team. Southern Cal is for real. They have excellent athletes and a lot better team speed than we do."

Cooper singled out Trojan outside linebacker Junior Seau with disrupting the Buckeyes' offense. Seau, a 6-3, 245 pound junior, harassed OSU quarterback Greg Frey all afternoon and had two tackles for losses of 17 yards.

"I probably spent as much time trying to recruit Junior (at Arizona State) as any player as long as I've been in coaching," Cooper said. "We knew he was a great football player. He's a great athlete. He put his ears back and came after us and we weren't quick enough."

"We're not extremely quick in the offensive line. He beat (offensive tackles) Staysniak and Moxley and he beat anybody who tried to block him. He caused us some problems."

Cooper said it's back to the drawing board for the Buckeyes as they prepare for Saturday's game against the Boston College Eagles.

"I was taught a long time ago that when things go bad, go back to fundamentals," he said. "That's certainly what we'll start to do in practice. We've got to tackle better. We've got to shed blockers better. We've got to get a better pass rush than we had Saturday."

Cooper said a lack of practice time due to injuries is one reason the Buckeyes turned in such a poor performance against the Trojans.

"We've had too many players miss too much practice time," he said. "And when they get in the ball game you have some timing problems, you have some fumbling problems, you have a blown assignment here and a blown assignment there and the whole football team looked bad."

"We've got to get players practicing in order to be effective."

Cooper, when asked to respond to an article in the Columbus Dispatch that there was dissension between his players, referred to former Alabama coach Bear Bryant.

"Somebody asked coach Bear Bryant one time if there was any bad feelings on the football team. And my answer to that is that you ought to have a little of that after you get your fanny kicked as bad as we did," Cooper said. "I don't want our players bitching amongst themselves but I think a competitive person should be upset after he gets beat as bad as we did."

"I didn't see anyone play well enough that they can sit back and judge the other 21 players. We'll get that straightened out if that is a problem."

Cooper said OSU tight end Jeff Ellis, who suffered torn ligaments in his left knee in the second quarter of Saturday's game is scheduled for surgery today and will miss the remainder of the season.

He said Ellis, who was touted as an All-Big Ten candidate this season, will be granted a medical redshirt enabling him to play next season as a junior.

Cooper said Ellis will be replaced in practice by Jim Palmer, a 6-5, 250 pound senior from Loudonville.

Irish hold on to top spot after beating Michigan State

By The Associated Press

For the third straight week, Notre Dame is No. 1 in The Associated Press college football poll and Miami, Fla., is hanging tough right behind.

And for the second straight week, the Top Ten remains virtually unchanged, with the exception of Pittsburgh joining the elite group.

Following their 21-13 victory over Michigan State on Saturday, the Fighting Irish received 57 of the 60 first-place votes for 1,497 points from the AP board — the exact total they had the previous week.

Miami, a 38-7 winner over Missouri, recorded 1,432 points this time to shave eight points off the Notre Dame lead. Like the previous week, the Hurricane received the other three first-place votes.

After that, it was Nebraska in the third spot with 1,315 points following a 48-0 pounding of Minnesota and Auburn, which was idle, No. 4 with 1,284.

Colorado didn't play, but moved up a spot to No. 5, replacing Michigan. The Wolverines, who needed a last-second field goal to beat UCLA, fell one spot to No. 6.

Clemson, Arkansas and West Virginia remained Nos. 7-8-9 after weekend successes. Clemson beat Maryland 31-7; Arkansas beat Mississippi 24-17 and West Virginia stopped Louisville 30-21.

Pitt replaced Syracuse as the No. 10 team following a 30-23 victory over the Orangemen, making a jump of three places.

The loss dropped Syracuse eight spots to No. 18, but it wasn't the biggest drop among the ranked teams. Washington plunged 10 places to No. 21 following a 20-17 loss to Arizona.

The voting by a panel of the nation's sports writers and broadcasters resulted in three new teams in the rankings: No. 23 Georgia, No. 24 Air Force and No. 25 Florida State.

The Top 25 dropouts included Oregon, UCLA and Ohio State.

The remainder of the Top 25 were No. 11, Southern Cal; No. 12, Tennessee; No. 13, Alabama; No. 14, Houston; No. 15, North Carolina State; No. 16, Oklahoma; No. 17, Arizona; No. 19, Washington State; No. 20, Illinois; and No. 22, Texas A&M.

Arizona made the biggest jump, moving up six places.

VOLLEYBALL TEAM OPENS LEAGUE SEASON — The Ohio State women's volleyball team started the Big Ten season the right way over the weekend with come-from-behind victories over Northwestern and Wisconsin.

The Buckeyes (9-3, 2-0) defeated Northwestern in five games Friday with scores of 15-2, 13-15, 15-7, 15-8, 15-11. Erica Schlitz led the Buckeyes against the Wildcats with 17 kills. Julie Chellevold had nine kills for Ohio State.

Ohio State defeated Wisconsin on Saturday with scores of 15-2, 11-15, 11-15, 16-14, 15-11. The Buckeyes trailed 14-9 in the match's fourth game and withstood seven match points to regain control.

Holly O'Leary had 27 kills and Lisa Wissler had 23 kills against the Badgers.

Ohio State will host Purdue Friday and Illinois on Saturday. Both matches will start at 7:30 p.m. at St. John Arena.

The Buckeyes and Minnesota are the Big Ten's only undefeated teams after the first weekend of league play.

Each week the Lantern will try to track the performance of former Ohio State football players in the National Football League. The year listed in parenthesis is the last year that player played for Ohio State.

SUNDAY'S GAMES

BEARS 47, LIONS 27 — Chicago QB Mike Tomczak (1984) was 17 of 25 for a career-high 302 yards passing with two touchdowns. Chicago safety Shaun Gayle ('83) had two tackles and a fumble recovery. Detroit LB Chris Spielman ('87) had six tackles and Lions CB William White ('87) had five tackles. DE Keith Ferguson also plays for Detroit.

STEELERS 27, VIKINGS 14 — Center Kirk Lowdermilk ('84) starts for the Vikings. '84) the offensive line allowed five sacks against Pittsburgh.

N.Y. GIANTS 35, CARDINALS 7 — Giants LB Pepper Johnson ('85) played his first game of the season after a two-game contract holdout. Johnson had five tackles. Tackle Bill Roberts ('84) plays for the Giants. Tom Tupa ('87) is the Cardinals' second string QB, but has not played or punted for Phoenix yet.

49ERS 38, EAGLES 28 — Philadelphia RB Keith Byars ('85) caught three passes for 29 yards and rushed six times for seven yards. Eagles WR Cris Carter ('86) caught two passes for 13 yards. Safety Todd Bell ('81) had two tackles for Philadelphia.

REDSKINS 30, COWBOYS 7 — Tackle Jim Lachey ('84) starts for Washington, which allowed just one QB sack against Dallas.

CHARGERS 21, CHIEFS 6 — San Diego RB Tim Spencer ('84) caught two passes for 11 yards and rushed 13 times for 57 yards. WR Jamie Holland ('86) also plays for the Chargers.

JETS 40, DOLPHINS 33 — Miami DE Eric Kumerow ('87) played for Miami, but is working his way back to full strength after a knee injury. Center Jeff Uhlenhake ('88) started his second game for Miami against the Jets. Uhlenhake made a tackle after a Jets interception and was apart of the Dolphins line that yielded no sacks to the Jets.

BRONCOS 31, RAIDERS 21 — Raiders left tackle Rory Graves ('87) committed three holding penalties on consecutive plays to take the Raiders out of scoring range in third quarter.

RAMS 41, PACKERS 38 — RB Vince Workman ('88) has yet to play for Green Bay.

Blue Jays manager leading team toward title

ASSOCIATED PRESS

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Cito Gaston is a confident man, but not so much so that he didn't put a hand to his own head when the people all around him began losing theirs.

On May 15, the Toronto Blue Jays were 12-24 and tied tighter than a knot when Gaston's friend, Manager Jimmy Williams, had his head handed to him.

Branded as the best paper team in the American League East since a division championship in 1985, Toronto seemed at the start of this season more tense than talented, more troubled themselves than troublesome to others, and more likely, than anything else, to fold up the tent.

On Sunday, those same Jays limped out of County Stadium — having dropped two out of three to the Milwaukee Brewers — with a one-game lead over the Baltimore Orioles in the race for the division championship.

But following the lead of the man who patiently walked them out of baseball's wilderness, they pointed toward Detroit with heads held high — and their hands still some distance from the panic button.

"I learned a long time ago to leave the losses at the ballpark," Gaston began in a quiet but compelling voice. "Same thing with the wins. Because if you don't forget it, it just gets in the way of the next day."

"People make a lot out of what goes on in a clubhouse. If I see guys in there enjoying themselves — even after we lose — I'm not going to discourage that."

"The biggest thing involved in running a ballclub right, from my point of view, is never forgetting what it's like to have played and the mistakes that you made. A guy won't appreciate his mistake any better with you in his face telling him about it."

"If he learns from it on his own, great," Gaston continued. "If not, there are plenty other, more dignified ways to let him know about it."

The 45-year-old Gaston was Toronto's batting coach when the season began, closer and more comfortable with almost all of the ballplayers than they were with the edgy Williams. He was a safe haven for those who often got caught in one of the manager's storms, and was as reluctant as the Toronto brass to move his things from a clubhouse locker to the manager's office because of it.

Indeed, he turned down General Manager Pat Gillick's entreaties several times after Williams' firing, then agreed to accept the interim job only after assurances it wouldn't last beyond two weeks. Unwilling to pay the New York Yankees and George Steinbrenner a king's ransom to free Lou Piniella for the job, Gillick returned to Gaston a second time and wrung from him a promise to finish the season.

Gaston became only the fourth black manager in major league history — and a reluctant one at that.

"I know I never asked for it," he said. "I didn't think I wanted it."

The Blue Jays, on the other hand, had lobbied long and hard for Gaston and promptly rewarded him by catching fire.

George Bell, who followed an MVP season in 1987 with a hang-dog 1988 and the (only slightly) premature prediction that he or Williams had to go, is back on form. His 22-game hitting streak, recently ended, dovetailed nicely with the 16-3 tear that carried the Blue Jays past the Orioles and into first place Sept. 8.

"People always called us under-achievers and George seems to be the one the media always settles on," outfielder Lloyd Moseby said. "But George Bell is George Bell, and I don't care if he played for Nixon or Reagan or whoever. Bell is Bell, he plays hard every day."

Bell, though, wasn't the only Blue Jay to thrive under Gaston's command.

Helms, Dibble meet following latest incident

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds relief pitcher Rob Dibble and interim manager Tommy Helms say they have resolved their weekend dispute that prompted Helms to suspend Dibble for insubordination.

Dibble, suspended Saturday in Atlanta, was reinstated in time to watch the Reds' 6-2 loss to the Braves on Sunday.

Dibble met with his teammates before the game, but declined to reveal what was said in the clubhouse. "What happened in here is between me and the team," he said.

"I have nothing against Rob Dibble," Helms said. "He knows that, too. But sometimes you have to do what you think is right. If you let certain things on a ballclub get out of hand, it destroys morale."

"We sat down and talked, and I got the feeling he wants to be a part of this ballclub. It's his livelihood. So we worked things out," Helms said.

Dibble got in trouble for an incident in the eighth inning of the Reds' 8-3 victory Friday in Atlanta. With the Reds leading 5-1, the count 2-0 and the bases loaded, Dibble ignored a "take" sign from third-base coach Dave Bristol and lofted a fly ball to shallow left field.

In a brief meeting before Saturday night's 11-5 victory, Helms addressed the issue in the clubhouse. Shortly thereafter, the Reds announced that Dibble had been suspended indefinitely.

But before general manager Murray Cook even had time to inform the National League office, Dibble was back in uniform.

Helms said the Reds have fined Dibble $500 for the incident.

Dibble, 25, a hard-throwing reliever in his first full season with Cincinnati, has already established a reputation for temper tantrums. He was previously fined by the team in spring training when he flung some clubhouse furniture into a pond after a bad outing in relief. He has been suspended twice by the National League this season, for flinging a bat against the screen in Cincinnati and playing a part in a beanball fight in New York.

On the field, he is 8-5 with a 2.20 earned run average and has set a team record with 135 strikeouts in relief.

Helms took over as Reds' manager on an interim basis after the baseball commissioner banned Pete Rose from the game Aug. 24 for alleged betting on baseball and football through bookies. The Reds have not said whether Helms will be brought back as manager in 1990, although they have said he is a candidate for the job.

Helms' approach has apparently earned him respect from his players. On Friday, center fielder Eric Davis said Reds owner Marge Schott should allow Helms to start fresh as Reds' manager in 1990.

Asked if he thinks other players share his opinion, Davis replied, "Yes, I do."

Call Clemons 'Mr. C'

ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — The King of the World. The Master of Disaster. The Big Man. After more than 20 years in rock 'n' roll and almost as many nicknames, Clarence Clemons prefers the simple tag, Mr. C.

"All those names, it's a heavy cross to bear," said Clemons. "I think about all that stuff, but 'Mr. C' has evolved and he's the guy who combines all these things."

As Clemons says, it takes someone special to play the saxophone. "You got to have an urban attitude, be a streetwise person," he said. "I don't know whether the saxophone made me this kind of person or if I was just born to play a saxophone."

"Nobody played instruments in my family. My father got that bug and said he wants his son to play saxophone. I wanted an electric train for Christmas, but he got me a saxophone."

Clemons prides himself on being a survivor, staying around even when music involved far more than the simple joy of playing the sax. On tour now with Ringo Starr and a band that includes Joe Walsh, Levon Helm and Rick Danko, Clemons is getting those old feelings back.

"Every night when Levon Helm breaks into 'The Weight,' I catch myself," Clemons said of the Band's drummer. "When Rick Danko goes into his bass, I have flashbacks to when I was young and wild and didn't understand a thing."

"You need to go back a little bit and remember how it was and how screwed up it got. This whole tour is bringing back this stuff."

Clemons also reaches back on his third solo album, "A Night With Mr. C," which recalls a few other nicknames — such as King, as in King Curtis, whose sweet saxophone was featured on hits by the Coasters, Sam Cooke, Aretha Franklin and many others.

"King Curtis is my mentor," Clemons said. "I try to pattern myself after his style. 'Memphis Soul Stew' and 'Soul Serenade' are two songs that made me understand the kind of music I liked."

Junior Walker, Motown's hottest sax player of the '60s, is acknowledged with Clemons' version of "Sho.gun." Clemons also sings "Quarter to Three," a hit for Gary "U.S." Bonds, and does a duet with pop star Kim Carnes on his own "Dance, Dance, Dance."

"Singing's one of the hardest things," Clemons said. "It was terrible the first few times."

"I was so depressed I went into the house and didn't come out for six months," Clemons said. "That still looms in the back of my mind."

TV shows disappoint

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The new season brings a new reason for thinking you're still looking at the summer festival of rejected pilots on network television.

Have you seen ABC's "Chicken Soup" or "Homerom" or CBS' "Top of the Hill?" No wonder the three networks are losing viewers to alternative viewing.

First, the good news.

Stephanie Beacham, last seen vamping on "Dynasty," has taken the vows and borrowed the tongue of an asp to have a go at NBC's "Sister Kate." She rides herd on a group of unruly orphans who are the dickens. (Sorry, Charles.) It does have a nice twist and great expectations.

"The Famous Teddy Z" on CBS is the kind of agent your mother would want you to take home. Laughing all the way, of course. Creator Hugh Wilson is at his best tilting his lance at Hollywood, and actor Jon Cryer makes the little twerp endearing.

ABC's "Life Goes On" is a satisfying story of a family coping with the usual problems plus a teen-age son with Down's syndrome. Christopher Burke, who has the genetic condition himself, is Corky, and if you don't watch out he'll charm your socks off.

ABC's "The Young Riders" shows promise. It follows a group of Pony Express riders whom one critic called "hunks on horseback." Anyway, it's great to see another Western on the air.

Here's the bad news.

ABC's "Chicken Soup" appears to be on its way to becoming a smash hit. Simply because it follows "Roseanne." Scheduled anywhere else this show would be gone in a few weeks. It's not funny and it has no charm. The so-called "Abbie's Irish Rose" romance between Jackie Mason and Lynn Redgrave doesn't generate enough heat to warm a flea. Mason, even at his cheeriest, comes across like a messenger of doom.

CBS' "Top of the Hill" started with great potential. The surfer son of an ailing congressman takes over his seat in the House. His idealism clashes with political realism. It has touches of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington." That lasted about five minutes. Rep. Tom Bell, played by William Katt, quickly becomes involved in freeing a federal agent being held by a drug lord in a Latin American country. Bell's heroics become so unbelievable you expect Katt to get back into his costume from "The Greatest American Hero."

ABC's "Homerom" will never move to the head of the class. Not funny, no appeal.

NBC's "Nutt House" is too much shtick. While Harvey Korman and Cloris Leachman are marvelously loony, the show needs one sane person for them to revolve around.

Fox's "Alien Nation" should just get on with telling its stories and lay off the heavy-handed preaching. We don't need to be hit over the head to get its message of tolerance.

CBS' "Snoops" and NBC's "Mancuso, FBI" are still unseen, but the expectations are high.

Journalists killed in Vietnam remembered by colleagues

ASSOCIATED PRESS

JEFFERSONVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Sixty-three photographers and reporters who died in the Vietnam War were honored Sunday in a tearful memorial on a Catskill mountain hilltop as remote as some of the outposts they covered.

The ceremony at the second annual Eddie Adams Workshop marked the 150th anniversary of photography.

Adams, a Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer of the Vietnam War who planned the memorial on his workshop-farm, joined speakers in recalling the courage of their friends and colleagues.

Some of the speakers wept as they remembered their colleagues and the ironies that led to their deaths. The tribute brought tears to some of those among the more than 200 photographers, staff members and guests.

The ceremony was held around a slate table inscribed with the first names of six of Adams's best friends who died in Vietnam: Larry Burrows of Life Magazine, Henri Huet of The Associated Press, Michel Laurent of Gamma, Kent Potter of United Press International, Kyoichi Sawada of UPI and Huynh Thanh My of the AP.

Sports can sap enthusiasm

ASSOCIATED PRESS
(AP) — New research is lending credence to what some college athletes have long suspected — athletics, not academics, sap their enthusiasm and vigor for continued sports training.
At least that's the conclusion of an OSU psychiatrist who studied a group of students at the University of Wisconsin.
Kathleen Ellickson, an assistant professor of psychiatry at Ohio State, says field work, not book-work, is the culprit of waning sports interest. Ellickson and colleagues at the University of Wisconsin and Indiana University presented their study last month at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association in New Orleans.
"Athletes start the semester with more energy and in better mental health than other students, but by the end of the term, they're actually worse off," she said.

The researchers compared mood changes over a semester in a group of 44 competitive college swimmers at the University of Wisconsin and 86 other students there who didn't take part in varsity sports.
She conducted the study with William Morgan of the University of Wisconsin and John Raglin of Indiana University.
Once every two weeks, the two groups filled out a 65-item questionnaire that measured tension, anger, depression, fatigue, confusion and vigor. Ellickson said that at the start of the semester, the athletes' scores on the questionnaires averaged 8 percent better than those of the other students.
As the semester progressed, she said athletes lost vigor and showed steady increases in negative emotions while non-athletic students stayed about the same.
During the test time, the swimmers steadily increased the length of their daily swims from 3,000 yards to about 9,500 yards.

By the fifth week of the term, athletes no longer had an edge on other students in terms of mood. By the end of the semester, the athletes' scores on the mood test averaged 19 percent worse than the other students.
"Many studies have shown that athletes generally have better mental health than others, but overtraining can eliminate that advantage," Ellickson said.
Athletes who suffer depression, fatigue and a drop in performance from overtraining are said to be stale.
"Once an athlete becomes stale, the only known remedy is rest, which is usually the last thing a competitive athlete wants to do," she said.
Ellickson said staleness may be prevented by easing the training regimen for a day or two when an athlete begins to lose the competitive edge.

Judge's mistake costs trial

ASSOCIATED PRESS
CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal judge who jotted her decision in a case in the margin of a court document failed to meet civil procedure requirements, a federal appeals court said Monday as it sent the case back to the lower court.
The three-judge panel of the 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals unanimously ordered the case sent back to U.S. District Judge Alice Batchelder of Cleveland for further handling.
Federal prosecutors, representing the Veterans Administration, had sued in the Cleveland court to recover educational assistance funds paid to a veteran, Danny Woods of Cleveland.
The VA alleged Woods owed the government $4,485, plus interest and administrative costs, of the $11,095 paid to him by October 1985 for educational assistance.
The government's complaint alleged that Woods, a veteran, owed the money because he withdrew from several of the college courses he had enrolled in and because he enrolled in courses that were not required for his program of study.

Woods countered that he had cleared all of his course choices with a VA representative, whose name he could not recall, according to testimony.
The government said Woods attended Cuyahoga Community College from September 1975 to June 1980.
In June 1988, Ms. Batchelder ruled in the government's favor by writing a two-sentence note in the margin of the government's court-filed brief. Woods appealed the decision.
The appeals court ruled Monday that Ms. Batchelder's ruling should have been entered on a separate document, according to requirements of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Her order also should have given specific reasons to support her decision, the appeals judges wrote.
"A marginal order does not adequately notify a party that its time for appeal has begun to run, for a party may be reasonably confused as to the standing of its case when a decision is rendered in such an informal manner," wrote appeals judges Boyce Martin, Danny Boggs and H. Ted Milburn.

GAO cites Cleveland Schools

ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Cleveland Public Schools owe the federal government more than $1.5 million, the investigative arm of Congress said Monday.
A report by the General Accounting Office said the Ohio school district took more money for desegregation programs than it spent, then failed to give back the money and an unspecified amount of interest earned over a period of about five years.
The GAO said Cleveland Schools should return the money as required by law — a contention disputed by the school district and the U.S. Department of Education, though for different reasons.
The Education Department said Cleveland Schools can keep the money because a deadline to return it has expired, but agreed the district ought to give the federal government the interest the money earned.
The GAO, in reply, said the department misinterpreted the deadline.

The school district said it properly spent the money after transferring the $1.5 million into other accounts.
The Ohio Education Department approved one of the transfers, and the federal government balanced the books on two others by deducting $1.1 million from Cleveland's share of other federal education programs, district treasurer Paul Jacobian said in a letter to the GAO.

Researchers search for perfect chestnut

By Aria Ala-U-Dini
Lantern city reporter

Ohio State will soon receive a $181,849 research grant to be spent on developing better chestnuts.

Diane Miller, assistant professor of horticulture at Ohio State, said the research will primarily focus on developing and grafting root stocks with superior chestnuts to develop a hybrid that grows easily.

"We're looking to develop a plant that has the best chance of survival in the United States," she said.

Miller is half of a husband and wife team working hard to bring chestnut farming back to America.

Less than .05 percent of the world's chestnuts are produced in the United States annually.

Gregory Miller thinks he has a chance to raise that amount significantly.

"There is a potential for a big chestnut industry in Ohio," Miller said.

Miller, who owns the Empire Chestnut Co., one of the largest chestnut growers in the country, said part of the reason chestnut farming is nearly non-existent in the United States is because of a blight 50 years ago that destroyed nearly all the chestnut industry.

He said there now seems to be a real need for new, stronger strains of chestnuts.

"A lot of people want to plant (chestnut) trees, but there aren't enough trees," Miller said.

He said he hopes the research his wife intends to do doubles the survival rate of chestnut trees.

Miller said if successful there is a good chance chestnuts may become a major crop produced in southeastern Ohio.

The funding for the research is coming from Ohio's Thomas Edison Program, a state supported private technology research program designed to link Ohio universities with industry.

Gregory Miller said while it may appear that a conflict of interest exists between him and his wife's research, the Edison program is designed to help small businesses in Ohio.

He said whether or not they were married, his wife would be doing research on chestnuts and the bottom line is that they have an opportunity to revive the chestnut industry in Ohio.

According to Jennifer Morrison, spokeswoman for the Edison program, the underlying goal of her organization is to create jobs in Ohio.

"The research looked like a good project with job creation possibilities," Morrison said.

The fund will give the Millers a chance to conduct two years of research into propagating and genetic copying of trees to make a perfect genetically engineered American Chestnut tree.

Victim gets no help from passers-by

By Spencer Schein
Lantern city reporter

A rape victim who may have been attacked by the North Side rapist told police that three men walked by the car where she was being raped without stopping to help her, Columbus Division of Police Detective Patrick Dorn said.

The woman, an OSU student, was raped on Aug. 13 and said she screamed but received no help from three men who were walking in the area, Dorn said.

Police Lt. Daniel Wood said there are some similarities in the description of the suspect and the North Side rapist, but the descriptions are very general.

Although Dorn said the rape occurred in an alley, he would not comment on the actual location of the assault.

Wood said the woman apparently saw several people walking on a sidewalk some distance away from her.

"We're not sure if they saw her or heard her," he said.

Dorn said the student is thought to be the latest rape victim by the man they are seeking as the North Side rapist.

Although there are no new suspects in the case, some suspects have been eliminated, but no charges have been filed.

Dorn said the police are stumped by the lack of recent assaults by the rapist.

"We've explored a number of reasons why (there have not been many recent assaults), but we can't narrow it down," he said.

Dorn said he is confident, however, that the suspect will be caught.

Janine Jakim, a volunteer with the Rape Crisis Center in Columbus, said that no one helping a woman being raped happens more often than people would like to admit.

"A lot of people don't want to respond (to seeing a rape)," Jakim said. "A lot of people don't want to get involved."

She said people think the struggle is a domestic argument, and they are either apathetic or apprehensive.

Dr. Mark Benn, a psychologist with OSU's counseling and consultation services and a group leader with the rape education and prevention program on campus, said that people do not want to get involved in domestic conflicts, especially involving other people, because they have been taught to mind their own business.

"Most of the social psychological research shows that people in groups are less likely to respond than a person who is alone," Benn said.

"It's very important not to blame a victim of a crime who has been sexually assaulted," Benn said.

Wood said although there were 12 unrelated rapes in Columbus last week, none of them were in the university area.

Mother released after two years in jail

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The District of Columbia Court of Appeals on Monday ordered a lower court to release a Washington physician jailed more than two years in a custody case involving her daughter.

The court ordered a D.C. Superior Court judge to sign the release papers for Dr. Elizabeth Morgan. However, it left open the possibility of further consideration of her former husband's challenge to a law, signed over the weekend by President Bush, designed to free her.

Morgan was jailed in August 1987 for contempt of court after refusing to produce her daughter for a visit with Dr. Eric Foretich, her former husband and the girl's father.

The appeals court has been weighing the requests of Elaine Mittleman, who represents Foretich, and attorneys for Morgan, who filed papers seeking the woman's immediate release on Saturday, the same day Bush signed the law.

Morgan has alleged that Foretich sexually abused the child; Foretich has consistently denied those charges.

Justice Department spokesman David Runkel declined to say what kind of recommendation Bush had been given.

Mittleman also charged in her papers that the law violated Foretich's and Hilary's due process and First Amendment rights.

Morgan "remains in contempt of court, and this law doesn't change that," Mittleman said. "That's not being vengeful; it's just what the law is about."

"Congress has legislated on an issue before the court of appeals," Ms. Mittleman said.

Foretich has maintained since Morgan went to jail that her continued incarceration is the only way she can be forced to produce their daughter.

Taking advantage of Congress' right to review all city laws and court action, Rep. Frank Wolf, (R-Virginia), wrote a bill to place a 12-month cap on civil contempt of court jailings in District of Columbia child custody cases.

The bill, which will be applied retroactively to Morgan's case, also required prosecutors to file criminal contempt charges against a defendant before the person has been jailed for a year, in a move to guarantee the defendant a jury trial before a judge different from the one who initially incarcerated him.

Morgan's attorneys have argued that she should be freed, claiming that the coercive intent of the contempt jailing has failed, and thus become unconstitutionally punitive.

Workers cannot be dismissed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Energy Department's contracts with companies that run nuclear weapons plants do not let the government demand that incompetent workers be fired, an Inspector General's Office report showed Monday.

The report was released by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, who asked for the audit of department policies.

It listed a variety of problems with the way the department does business with contractors and recommended ways the department could fix the problems.

For instance, the report suggested changing contracts to make it possible for the government to go after contractors' parent companies so that they, and not the taxpayers, pay penalties assessed because of their mistakes.

It suggested changing contracts to give the government the right to demand the firing of "incompetent, careless, insubordinate" workers.

The report also suggested the government adopt a standard definition for "willful misconduct," a term that is interpreted differently from contract to contract.

The report said the Energy Department was forced to pay more than $3 million, including $420,000 in stolen money which was fraudulently awarded to a Savannah River Plant subcontractor.

"The IG clearly indicates the need for the DOE and Congress to make reform of DOE's system of contracting a high priority," Glenn said in a statement prepared for inclusion in Tuesday's Congressional Record.

Compromise to ease racial tensions

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOLEDO (AP) — A conciliation agreement between the Ohio Civil Rights Commission and the city of Toledo is a positive step toward improving racial tensions, the agency's executive director said Monday.

But some civil rights leaders said the agreement lacked legal "teeth," and complained the commission should have taken remedial action against the city for what they contended were discriminatory hiring practices.

The agreement calls for the city to continue current hiring and promotion safeguards that include comprehensive minority recruitment programs.

It also requires the city to take "affirmative steps" whenever significant underuse of minorities or women is found in a city job category.

"This agreement, I think, is a strong agreement," Darlene McCoy, the Civil Rights Commission's executive director, said at a news conference.

The agency investigates civil rights complaints throughout Ohio.

"It is an agreement that will move the city into a much more positive light with its employees, the community — and, when fully complied with, will diminish the perception of unlawful employment practices," she said.

McCoy was in Toledo to answer questions about the agreement, which was signed by the commission and city in late July.

The agreement ended a one-year investigation by the commission of the city's hiring practices. The panel, however, issued no discrimination finding against the city.

Because federal consent orders already require the city's police and fire departments to hire a certain number of minority-group members, the agreement applies only to non-uniformed municipal employees and operations.

It requires that all city administrators take part in a training program to examine barriers that may hinder equal employment opportunity.

It also makes department and division heads accountable for complying with the plan.

The commission conducted a public hearing in Toledo late last year to determine if municipal employment policies discriminated against minority-group members.

The forum was prompted by complaints that blacks employed by the city government received unfair treatment and that federal money coming into Toledo did not benefit blacks sufficiently, the commission said.

The complaints came from a group of black ministers known as the Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance.

The city has since approved a five-year affirmative action plan, which includes plans for workshops, a career counseling service, a dictionary of city jobs and other steps to help minority employees and prospective employees.

McCoy said the commission assigned to the case 10 investigators, who examined thousands of documents and interviewed more than 100 city workers.

"We wanted to come up with a document that would strengthen the city's affirmative action effort that was already in place," she said.

But some of the 25 people attending Monday's news conference expressed frustration that the commission did not order the city to hire a certain number of minority-group members in various departments.

"It's kind of hard to believe that after the number of man hours that you couldn't find something substantial to really do much more than to put them on temporary probation," said Willie Woods, a local civil rights leader.

He contended the city's affirmative action office was understaffed and the city's human services department, which controls hiring, had no Hispanic employees.

But McCoy said the commission had ordered the city's human services department to hire an Hispanic employee within 120 days, and to provide the affirmative action department with an adequate staff.

If the city doesn't comply with the agreement, the commission will take the city to court, she said.

Jim Burkhardt, Toledo's chief of bargaining and representation, said the document will force the city to successfully implement affirmative action programs.

"What we have is a document that will ensure the city won't be discriminatory," he said.

Steroid smugglers have trial delayed

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Government lawyers were negotiating Monday with two men who faced federal charges they smuggled $2.1 million worth of steroid drugs into the United States for sale, a customs agent said Monday.

A trial had been scheduled to begin Monday in U.S. District Court here for Tibor Reiter, 47, of Weston, Canada, and U.S. Army Capt. Clint Medford, 29, of El Paso, Texas. Medford had been stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas.

But U.S. District Judge William Bertelsen granted a delay of the trial until Nov. 6, federal authorities said.

Reiter and Medford — both free on bond — had requested the delay while they attempt to dispose of other charges pending against them, said Assistant U.S. attorney James Arehart.

Arehart declined to say whether the government was negotiating a plea agreement with the men. He said he could not comment on any negotiations not noted in the court record.

But Robert Cortesi, agent in charge of the U.S. Customs Service office in nearby Fort Mitchell, Ky., which oversaw the July 21 steroids confiscation and arrests, said plea bargains were being negotiated with Medford and Reiter.

"I understood that was the reason for the delay," Cortesi said Monday. He declined further comment.

Customs agents have said Medford and Reiter face U.S. charges of smuggling, which carries a maximum punishment of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

In July, the Customs Service and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police seized 25,790 animal steroid units found in a tractor-trailer stopped in Erlanger, Ky. The load was worth $2.1 million, customs agents said.

The drugs were driven into the United States at Buffalo, N.Y., from an undisclosed European country, agents said.

Reiter had been driving the truck and Medford was following behind in a car when the two were arrested, the Customs Service said. The shipment of vials and boxes was being delivered to undercover agents, customs agents said.

The steroids are legally permitted for veterinary use, but were intended for illegal sale in U.S. athletic markets, authorities said.

Four other men were arrested in Canada and face charges in that country, U.S. authorities said. The charges resulted from a joint U.S.-Canadian undercover investigation lasting four months, agents said.

Inquiry examines Flight 103 disaster

ASSOCIATED PRESS

LONDON (AP) — A British television inquiry into the Pan Am Flight 103 disaster said Monday that West Germany committed major blunders, including releasing the probable bomb-maker after a raid on a Palestinian group last year.

However, the chief Scottish investigator into the bombing of the plane over Lockerbie, Scotland, last Dec. 21 said on the program: "We are still on course to being able to put together a case that will reveal who was responsible."

The British Broadcasting Corp.'s current affairs program "Panorama" reported that investigators are convinced the Syrian-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command — long the prime suspect — masterminded the attack. The group's leader has denied involvement.

All 259 people aboard Flight 103 from Frankfurt to New York via London were killed along with 11 people on the ground in Lockerbie.

Scottish investigator Lord Fraser, speaking on the program titled "Lockerbie: An Avoidable Tragedy," said a West German police raid in October 1988 and the discovery in April of three bombs similar to the radio cassette bomb on Flight 103 may be linked to the Lockerbie disaster.

"There are clearly points of similarity that have to be checked out and may indeed point to more than just a loose connection but a firm link," said Fraser.

West German authorities arrested 16 men in the October raid on an apartment being used by the Popular Front but released 14 of them, despite finding a radio cassette bomb, detonators and Semtex plastic explosives.

Those released included a Jordanian, Marwan Khreesat. "Panorama" said Khreesat is a known bomb-maker and widely believed by British and U.S. investigators to have made the Lockerbie bomb and several others.

"There were major blunders by the West Germans... (who) let the group's bomb-maker go in very strange circumstances," said reporter Gavin Hewitt.

"They took until April to find all the bombs he had made, including ones that could have been used to blow up commercial airliners. And they freed key members of the PFLP-GC, who were capable of regrouping their network," he said.

One of the men still held — on bombing charges unconnected with Flight 103 — is Hafez Kassem Dalkamoni, the top aide to Popular Front leader Ahmed Jibril.

Jibril has denied his organization had any role in the attack but said Dalkamoni often built and used the type of bomb that blew up Flight 103.

The West German federal prosecutor's office told The Associated Press Monday it has "not yet come up with a connection" between Dalkamoni and the Lockerbie bombing.

Hewitt said, without disclosing the source, that he had been told Khreesat, now in hiding in Jordan, was a double agent working inside the Popular Front for Jordanian intelligence. He said this was apparently why the West Germans freed him.

Fire guts dance hall

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CARLISLE (AP) — The state Fire Marshal on Monday investigated the cause of a large fire that erupted at a dance hall, forcing authorities to call in nine area fire departments to help extinguish it.

No one was injured in Sunday night's fire, which destroyed the Showcase Dance Hall, authorities said. The building, which had been closed, formerly housed the Palladium, a popular dance hall in the 1950s and 1960s.

"I just put $20,000 (for remodeling) in that building. I don't believe it," said owner Ron Harris, of Lorain, who said he bought the hall last month. "I was renting it out (to different clubs)."

Research says older fathers feel prepared for parenthood

ASSOCIATED PRESS

OXFORD (AP) — Middle-aged men who became fathers reported feeling better prepared for parenthood in a new study, but those who were better off financially said they were less satisfied with the experience.

"I think the reason is because men at the higher socioeconomic status... have had good jobs, probably traveled and had the better things in life," said Deborah Ulrich, a researcher who studied 210 fathers in Ohio.

"When they compare parenthood to those experiences, it just doesn't rate as high," Ulrich said.

Ulrich, an associate professor of nursing at Miami University, said she chose her study subjects from among 5,000 men between ages 40 and 55 after examining Ohio birth certificates to find those who became fathers in 1986.

"The advantages of being a father at mid-life were that they felt they were more responsible, more ready to father a child and to be an important part of the child's life," Ulrich said.

Nearly 90 percent of the men in the study reported being as fulfilled with fatherhood as they had anticipated, Ulrich said.

The same number said they had more money to spend on the child, and had reached the point in their professional lives where they could spend less time at work and more with the baby.

The average annual income was about $25,000 to $30,000, Ulrich said.

Two factors influencing satisfaction the most were the length and strength of a couple's marriage, Ulrich said. She said 52 percent of the fathers in her study were on their second marriage, and the men with shorter second marriages said they were happier as fathers.

"It could be that they wanted their wives — being that new wives are usually younger — to think that they were still young enough to be a father and enjoy it," she said.

Disadvantages of parenthood reported by the fathers in the study were physical exhaustion and the knowledge they might not live to see their child grow up and have children, she said.

Nearly 71 percent said they had at least one year of college.

The study asked fathers to rate 17 factors associated with having a baby, including having the baby cry at night, not having time to spend with their wives and financial concerns.

Questions on satisfaction asked how much pleasure the fathers received from such things as watching the child grow, she added.

OSU KARATE CLUB

Beginning students will be accepted the first two weeks of each quarter. Classes are open to all University students, faculty, and staff.

Equal emphasis is placed on Kata (form) and Kumite (sparring). In addition to the ancient techniques of Karate and self-defense, the OSU Karate Club teaches meditative methods to help you relax and release tension. Classes are taught with an emphasis on developing your inner self-discipline, strengthening the will and integrating the physical, mental and emotional self.

The OSU Karate Club offers instruction for advanced students in the use of classic Okinawan weaponry such as: the staff (Bo), Karate sticks (Nunchuku), short swords (Sai), sickle (Kama) and Tonfa.

Schools receive support

ASSOCIATED PRESS

COLUMBUS (AP) — State controllers Monday approved $3.5 million in loans for nine ailing school districts under a revised loan program that requires districts to borrow from local banks instead of the state.

Members acted without dissent in moving promptly through a mostly routine agenda, except for questions that were raised about the state spending $181,000 on chestnut tree development.

The Department of Education withheld action on a request for a $4.9 million loan from the Warren City School District, citing lack of an advance commitment from a bank in the Warren area.

Under the new program, while loans are made directly to the school district, and the state repays the bank or banks with deductions from future state subsidies, banks first must agree to the deal in writing.

A law enacted in July eliminated Ohio's Emergency School Advancement Fund, better known as the school loan fund.

James Van Keuren, the department's finance director, said a local bank was considering but had not consented to Warren's loan.

He told the Controlling Board that the request will be re-submitted Oct. 10 if the problem can be worked out.

Van Keuren and others say they believe the new program will enable districts to negotiate lower interest rates with banks than they got from the state.

"We were charging some districts as much as 10 percent. We believe they can get about two points less than that," Van Keuren said.

The nine bank loans approved Monday were East Guernsey Local, $520,000; Fairless Local, Stark County, $330,000; Howland Local, Trumbull County, $1.166 million; Mathews Local, Trumbull County, $364,000; Northwestern Local, Wayne County, $250,000; Paulding Exempted Village, Paulding County, $142,000; Poland Local, Mahoning County, $382,000; Pymatuning Valley Local, Ashtabula County, $367,000; and Weathersfield Local, Trumbull County, $52,000.

In other business, the board approved a $181,849 research grant for the Ohio State University College of Agriculture to develop an improved chestnut tree that ostensibly would grow well in the acidic soils of southeastern Ohio.

State development said Ohio's chestnut industry is almost nonexistent since a blight about 50 years ago wiped out most of the trees in Ohio and elsewhere. However, they have hope for new blight-resistant trees, they said.

Timken employees picket Canton plant

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CANTON (AP) — Workers carried picket signs near Timken Co. steel plants on Monday after contract talks broke off the previous day, putting more than 5,400 people on strike.

Pickets marched peacefully at three sites in the Canton area, where most of the company's Ohio employees work, local authorities said.

"There doesn't seem to be any problems as of this time," said Police Chief Thomas W. Wyatt. "Usually, in past strikes, there've been very little incidences."

Timken has three plants in the Canton area in northeastern Ohio. It is the largest employer in Stark County, where 7,000 of the company's worldwide total of 18,000 employees work. Some of the 7,000 are white-collar workers.

The strike affects about 5,000 workers in Stark County, about 190 in nearby Wooster and 250 in Columbus.

It also has a plant in Wooster and one in Columbus. The workers walked off the job at 12:01 a.m. Monday, when the four-year contract expired, after a dispute over benefits and pay.

No new talks were set Monday, said Timken spokesman Jim Mulder. Negotiations began Aug. 17.

"We're willing to meet with representatives of the union at any time," Mulder said.

Striking workers, represented by United Steelworkers Union Local 1123 in Canton, said the company did not offer enough pension benefits and pay.

"I think we've sacrificed enough, and now it's time for our fair share," said Don Roan, a bearing operator who has worked for Timken for 23 years. "This is

Lottery revises 'Kicker' method

ASSOCIATED PRESS

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Ohio Lottery announced Monday it will pay an additional $384,150 to more than 11,000 "Kicker" ticket holders and revise the method by which winning numbers are selected following a malfunction in the drawing device Saturday night.

A technical problem disrupted Saturday night's live television drawing, causing the spinning wheel which randomly picks the first digit of the winning "Kicker" number to hang between 5 and 6.

In a later drawing held off-air with a backup machine, 9 was selected as the first number in the six-digit "Kicker" number.

Ronald Nabakowski, lottery executive director, upheld 934515 as the winning number and Monday, said tickets starting with 5 or 6, followed by some of the remaining 34515 digits in order would receive payments.

Players in the "Kicker" game win when they match the first two, three, four, five or six numbers in a row.

Nabakowski said no players matched all six numbers.

"The liability of the 934515 official 'Kicker' number is $206,950," Nabakowski said. "The additional liabilities of $181,710 for the 534515 and $202,440 for the number 634515 will then bring our payout for this drawing to $591,100.

"Further, I have ordered our night drawing staff to discontinue use of the 'Kicker' device and we will be utilizing ping pong ball blower machines to select winning 'Kicker' numbers," he said.

The Ohio Lottery had commissioned the design and development of the drawing device for the "Kicker" game in the early spring of 1988. There had not been an on-air malfunction in the device, which resembles an automobile odometer, prior to Saturday, but Lottery spokeswoman Anne Bloomberg said there had been previous problems with the device during tests.

Any better playing the "Super Lotto" game each Wednesday and Saturday night has the option of paying an additional $1 to play the "Kicker" and receiving a randomly generated six-digit number.

The top prize is $100,000 for having all six numbers in order. Other prizes ranging from $10 to $5,000 for having two to five numbers in order from left to right. "Kicker" sales for the Saturday drawing totaled $631,872.

Ohio Lottery Executive Director Ronald Nabakowski, stands next to the new Kicker game which had a malfunction during the drawing on Saturday. The first wheel came to rest in between the numbers 5 and 6. Nabakowski announced during a news conference Monday that they will pay for both the 5 and 6 numbers as well as a special drawing in accordance with the Lottery Drawing Procedures.

Northwest Ohio poll shows residents feel safe at home

ASSOCIATED PRESS

TOLEDO (AP) — A majority of northwest Ohio residents surveyed in a crime-outlook poll said they felt safe in their own neighborhoods, despite fears about area drug trafficking and street gangs.

More than half of the 400 surveyed also said they believed the Toledo police department lacked the manpower to control the sale of illegal drugs in the city.

The telephone survey was conducted among randomly selected residents of Lucas, Wood and Fulton counties from May 31 to June 10 by the Population and Society Research Center at Bowling Green State University.

The survey, released Monday, has a margin of error of plus or minus 5 percent, researchers said.

During the past year, a wave of gang violence has hit certain inner-city Toledo neighborhoods. Police say much of it has been drug-related.

Problems with gangs, drug dealers and addicts have prompted some Toledo community leaders to set up programs to try to combat crime.

One group, Crackdown Inc., has launched its own efforts to fight the crime wave, declaring a Toledo housing project, Northwood Apartments, a Drug-Free, Crime-Free zone.

Yet despite the anxiety over drug-related crime, nearly 78 percent of the residents surveyed said they felt safe in their own neighborhood, researchers said.

More than 50 percent of the respondents said they believed the city crime-control programs "Crime Stopper" and "Neighborhood Block Watch" were effective.

Crime Stopper offers up to $1,000 for crime information leading to an arrest and conviction. Block Watch is a voluntary program under which people may anonymously report suspicious activity in their neighborhoods.

At the same time, about 86 percent of those surveyed said the Toledo police department lacked the manpower to control the sale of illegal drugs.

Thirty-one percent of those surveyed said they felt safe in downtown Toledo at night, while another 35 percent said they felt unsafe and the rest gave a neutral response, the pollsters said.

And a majority of respondents, 73.4 percent, said they would like to see local volunteer groups, like Crackdown, patrol the streets to help stop crime.

Yet fear of crime did not appear to stop respondents from attending recreation events in downtown Toledo.

Half of the Toledo-area adults surveyed reporting attending downtown events, such as Rally by the River, during the past year.

With regard to specific crime activity, 67 percent of respondents said prostitution laws should be strictly enforced.

But 43 percent said laws against prostitution should be enforced only when prostitutes are a visible nuisance in the community.

Mural represents ancient histories

ASSOCIATED PRESS

VAN WERT (AP) — The significance of a mural seen from an alley on the side of a restaurant building in this northwest Ohio city is puzzling to many who see it.

But those who inquire learn that behind the visual appeal of the mural is a complex interpretation of history as it is presented in the Bible. Geographical images, biblical passages and references to history are part of a life-long study by the mural's creator, Bill Roth.

Roth, of Delphos, became fascinated as a child by history, geography and biblical teachings. "I was lucky since I had an uncle who had a library of history books describing the individual countries and their peoples," he recalls.

"The way they teach history in school, it is boring," he said. "History should be as interesting as gossip. In fact, it is like gossip; it's about love stories, sometimes between kings and queens, and jealousies that start wars."

Roth has interpreted teachings of the Bible as predicting cycles of history and points to numerous events to support his theory. He said verses in Revelations describe a beast with two horns; Roth believes it refers to Marxism as the beast and Lenin and Stalin as the horns.

Also central to his theories is the concept of geographical hieroglyphics. "Even as a child, as I watched a teacher flip over the large sheet maps, I thought the continents formed specific images in my mind," Roth explained.

Roth thinks the islands, continents, seas and national boundaries form "word pictures" and "tell the message of Christian history." He said biblical references to "the foundation of the world" direct Christians to examine messages provided through geographical hieroglyphics.

Royt said he could "fill the sides of every building in town" with his ideas.

Woman not advised of offer for settlement in lawsuit

ASSOCIATED PRESS

PORTSMOUTH (AP) — A woman who filed a $6 million lawsuit against three men accused of killing her son in an insurance scam said Monday her attorney didn't tell her he offered to settle the suit for a defendant's book and movie rights.

California authorities charged two Ohio businessmen and a Glendale, Calif., doctor with murder in the death of Ellis P. Greene. Police believe Greene was killed and his body identified as one of the two founders of the Columbus-based Just Sweats athletic clothing chain.

The murder charges were filed against Dr. Richard P. Boggs, Melvin E. Hanson and John B. Hawkins.

In a wrongful-death suit filed April 6 in Los Angeles Superior Court, Darlene and Harry Greene of Portsmouth allege that Hawkins, Hanson and Boggs killed their son for financial gain. The Greenes seek $6,092,506 in damages: $5 million in punitive damages, $1 million in general damages, $50,000 for losses inflicted by the defendants and $42,506 for funeral costs and lost earnings.

Greene said she was unaware that her attorney, Glenn F. Beckett of Pasadena, Calif., apparently offered to settle the suit against Boggs for book and movie rights.

"I hadn't gotten any information that he had offered to settle or anything," Greene said in a telephone interview. She said she first learned about the offer from a reporter on Saturday and that she has not yet heard from Beckett.

She said she was not sure whether she would want to settle the suit.

"I would have to see somebody and talk to them," she said. "It's my son that was murdered. That right there was part of my life, and I just can't come up and say yes, I would settle."

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The Lantern cannot accept advertising that advocates sedition or other illegal actions, violates normal standards of morality and taste, or attacks an individual race, nationality, ethnic group, religion or sex. In cases of doubt, the proffered copy, illustrations and layout will be submitted by the business manager of the Lantern to the School of Journalism Publications Committee and judged by a majority vote of the members. Decisions of this committee are final.

The Ohio State Lantern does not restrict advertisers beyond the limits of responsible journalism and the rules imposed by the Ohio State University on all student publications.

- a. Copy will be furnished by noon three days before publication.
  - b. All advertisements are required to occupy at least as many inches in depth as they do columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in depth will be considered full column (21 inches) and charged accordingly.
  - c. The Ohio State Lantern reserves the right to reject any advertisement that promotes illegal activity or activity detrimental or damaging to the university and its educational mission. It further reserves the right to revise any copy which is deemed objectionable for any reason.
  - d. The Ohio State Lantern will not be responsible for typographical errors except to cancel charge for such portion of advertisement as may have been rendered valueless by such typographical error. In order for adjustments, complaints about errors must be registered to the Lantern Business Manager by local advertisers within three days of ad publication date, and out-of-town must contact the Lantern Business Manager at time of receipt of tear-sheet of ad in question. Noncompliance with this request will leave full responsibility with the advertiser.
  - e. Guaranteed position is sold at Business Manager's discretion.
  - f. A composition charge will be made for all advertisements set up and canceled without insertion and also for extensive change in copy or style after advertisements have been originally set.
  - g. No proof will be furnished on any advertisement which is received after deadline or for ads smaller in size than seven (7) column inches.
  - h. If the Lantern finds it necessary to stop contract advertising because of nonpayment, advertiser will be in violation of agreement and will be required to pay re-bill.
  - i. Advertisers are encouraged to avoid making misleading claims or using art or words that impugn or degrade sex, race, national origin, creed or color.
  - j. Advertisers must pay in advance of insertion until credit rating is established with the Lantern. The Lantern reserves the right to require advance payment for advertising, or to reject advertising, if the advertiser is delinquent in payment, or advertiser's credit is impaired. CERTIFIED check or money order required for out-of-town advertisers.
  - k. Advertisers on contracts will furnish the Lantern with a rateholder ad of the minimum size in the contract for use in contract period the advertiser does not provide an ad.
  - l. A tear-sheet will be furnished to advertisers for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tear-sheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser notifies the Lantern Business Office prior to publication.
  - m. Advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Ohio State University, its Board of Trustees, and its officers, agents and employees from and against any and all loss, cost and expense, including reasonable attorney fees, resulting from the publication by the Lantern of advertiser's advertisement.
  - n. Advertisers in the Ohio State Lantern agree that they will not represent themselves in any way as being endorsed by the Ohio State University.
- Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required; this information is for our records only and not available to the public. All mail-order advertisers are required to submit sample proof of product prior to publication.

Children death tolls in Gaza cause anger

ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM (AP) — Two legislators said Sunday that almost a third of the Arabs killed by troops in the last six months of the Palestinian uprising were children under age 16, and they demanded a government inquiry.

In a letter sent to Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin and Justice Minister Dan Meridor, the two legislators said 17 Palestinians aged 12 or less were shot to death and 31 youths between the ages of 12 and 16 were killed since April.

The letter said the 48 children represented one-third of all Palestinians killed over that period by soldiers.

On Sunday, troops shot and killed Bassam Farouk el-Jabri, 18, when they opened fire on stone-throwers in the Gaza Strip town of Khan Yunis, hospital officials said. An army spokesman said the military was investigating.

The death raised to 574 the number of Palestinians killed by soldiers or Israeli civilians during the 21-month uprising against the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Forty Israelis also have been slain.

The legislators, Yossi Sarid and Dedi Zucker, of the left-wing Citizens Rights Movement demanded that Rabin and Meridor investigate whether the killings are the result of new regulations on firing weapons.

In the last few weeks, Rabin liberalized the army's firing orders, giving troops permission to shoot unarmed masked youth if necessary to stop them. The youth are often members of underground forces who kill suspected collaborators or enforce strikes.

Brain drain in E. Berlin poses economic threat

ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN (AP) — With thousands of East Germans going West in the past few months, those staying behind have found themselves without the services of some important people — from the village baker, to the town plumber, to medical specialists.

There are visible signs of the "people drain" in East Berlin.

An official sign on a shuttered bar called "Restoration 1900" says the establishment has received "permission to close" because the manager is ill.

Local residents say that in truth, the manager fled to West Germany two months ago.

"An operator of three other bars in this area also went West a while back. He's since been replaced," said a middle-age East German walking past the bar on the city's Husemannstrasse.

A vegetable shop a few blocks away is shuttered as well, and residents say its owner also has gone to the West.

East German reform activist Jens Reich says his eye doctor has fled to West Germany. "I fear my dentist's gone as well," said Reich, an East Berlin founder of the fledgling New Forum pro-democracy group.

About 100,000 East Germans have either fled or emigrated legally to West Germany this year, the greatest flood of East German refugees since the Berlin Wall went up in 1961. More than 17,500 of them have gone through Hungary since that country opened its Western border to East Germans Sept. 10.

The refugees say they left their homeland because they could no longer bear the lack of democratic freedoms and because they want better lives in the West.

The exodus has produced a new rash of demands for political and economic reform among many East Germans who remain behind. Within two weeks of the exodus, Reich's group collected signatures of more than 2,000 citizens supporting its pro-democracy demands.

Church officials in East Germany have intensified their calls for democratic change as well. They say leaving the country is no way to change it.

Sources within the ruling Communist Party, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the drain of medical personnel is so severe in the district of Suhl that doctors there have been forbidden to travel out of the country.

Bush offers to cut chemical weapons

ASSOCIATED PRESS

EDGEWOOD, Ky. (AP) — Gunmen armed with what witnesses said were automatic weapons robbed a bank in this northern Kentucky community Monday and escaped in a van, investigators said.

Witnesses reported seeing three or four robbers enter a branch of the Huntington Bank about 11:30 a.m., brandish automatic-type guns and demand money, said FBI Agent Terry Hulse said.

Hulse said the robbers escaped in a van, which they traded a short distance away for a car they then used to drive to a shopping mall in neighboring Crestview Hills, Ky.

"They dumped that car and disappeared from that point," Hulse said.

He said there no gunfire was involved in the robbery, and there were no injuries reported.

Witnesses disagreed on the number of robbers, and investigators couldn't confirm accounts that the robbers carried submachine guns, Hulse said.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Declaring the world "has lived too long in the shadow of chemical warfare," President Bush offered Monday to slash U.S. stocks of such weapons more than 80 percent provided the Soviet Union reduces to an equal level.

Bush's proposal, in his first speech to the U.N. General Assembly as president, was designed to spur a 40-nation conference in Geneva to ban chemical weapons entirely within 10 years.

He also used his appearance to salute "freedom's march" around the world — in Hungary, Poland, Latin America and Africa — and to praise the Soviet Union for removing "a number of obstacles" in the way of treaties to reduce long-range nuclear weapons, and troops and tanks in Europe.

Bush noted progress on those issues and agreements on other matters — during talks last weekend between Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze — as well as a decision to hold a summit meeting with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev by early next summer.

"Let us act together — beginning today — to rid the earth of this scourge," Bush said in his comments on chemical weapons. Shevardnadze said after the speech that the Soviets had "a positive view" of the plan but that it and other Bush proposals "will have to be studied additionally."

Brent Scowcroft, the president's national security adviser, said the Soviets had been given an outline of the U.S. initiative in advance and "they really have not responded."

Congress has passed legislation requiring the administration to destroy old chemical weapons by 1997 as more advanced weapons are stockpiled. Asked about any connection between Bush's proposal and the legal mandate to destroy a large percentage of such weapons, the White House official said that whether or not the new plan was "making a virtue of necessity it is certainly part of a major effort and a serious effort now."

Elderly couple and child slain

ASSOCIATED PRESS

KANAUGA (AP) — A elderly couple and their daughter were found slain Monday in a house in this southeast Ohio community along the Ohio River, the Gallia County prosecutor said.

Dale Saunders said deputies responding to a call found the bodies of Marvin Wears, 92, his wife, Beulah, 81, and their daughter, Audrey Foster, 50. The house was owned by the Wearses.

Ms. Foster lived in Milton, W.Va.

Saunders said the Gallia County Sheriff's Department and the Ohio Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation were investigating.

Saunders said foul play was suspected.

Additional details were not immediately available. A woman who answered the telephone at the sheriff's department in Gallipolis said a spokesman was not available.

Kanauga is about 10 miles northeast of Gallipolis, the county seat.

I lived in a dorm suite with seven other girls, and first-date experiences were a frequent topic of conversation. No one had any trouble saying good-night to a guy she wasn't wild about. "But what do you do if you really like him and desperately want him to kiss you?" asked one suite mate. "That's simple," replied another, known for juggling boy-friends. "Say, 'Are you going to kiss me, or must I lie to my diary?'" —Contributed by Amy L. Pritchard

In an opera course I was taking, one of the college's star athletes would doze off every day just at the lecture's start and snooze until the final bell. One day he walked in late. Stopping his lecture in mid-sentence, the professor smiled wryly. "You shouldn't be late, Mike," he remarked. "You know you need your sleep." —Contributed by Joseph J. Gallucci, Jr.
