Revised curriculum set for 1988 debut

By EILEEN MALONE
Lantern staff writer

A new, university-wide undergraduate curriculum with enhanced liberal arts requirements will be instituted by autumn quarter 1988, if a proposed curriculum report is approved by a special committee in the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences, said Myles Brand, vice president for academic affairs and provost.

The Interim Report of the Special Committee for Undergraduate Curriculum Review was developed by members of the faculty senate.

President Edward H. Jennings called for a curriculum review during his 1985

State of the University address, saying the goal of such a review would be "to identify a basic body of knowledge, thoroughly grounded in the liberal arts, that each of our students would be required to achieve."

Gerald M. Reagan, chairman of the Special Committee for Undergraduate Curriculum Review, said he and other committee members developed the report with these concerns in mind.

The report reviews Ohio State's present general education curriculum, outlines the attributes a person should have upon graduating from Ohio State, and provides a framework for reforming general undergraduate curriculum at Ohio State.

"Perhaps we haven't been giving the students the best general education we could give them," Reagan said. He added that more liberal arts courses need to be provided in every student's general education curriculum in order to receive the most broad-based education.

The Special Arts and Sciences Curriculum Committee was asked to develop a model for undergraduate general education based on the principles set forth by the Reagan committee report, said Charles L. Babcock, chairman of the ASC committee.

"Because most of the general education classes fall in the Colleges of the Arts and Sciences, we asked them to set up a committee to develop the first new curriculum model," Reagan said.

If approved by the ASC committee, the proposed model for general education curriculum will be sent back to the Reagan committee for modifications and then resubmitted to the ASC committee for final approval.

Other colleges will then develop their own curriculum based on the ASC model, though there will be some variation to the model in each college, Babcock said.

Babcock will meet with his committee Monday to discuss its reactions to the Reagan committee report.

"All the committees can do is make recommendations," Reagan said. "Until the (ASC) faculty accepts the model, we don't know what the exact changes in BERs (Basic Education Requirements) will be. It will then be up to the Arts and Sciences faculty to create new BERs with the new general education curriculum ideals in mind."

Brand said courses proposed will not be class-specific. Instead, each college will develop general courses, such as integrated science sequences and various communications courses involving writing, oral presentation and critical thinking.

Brand said the portion of the report entitled Attributes of the Educated

Grant for housing collapses

By ANYA SILECKY
Lantern staff writer

Plans for building the Martin Luther King Housing Center, a proposed centerpiece for renovations of the near east side, were temporarily set back Thursday when $1.3 million in federal grant money was denied for the project.

The center, originally the idea of Columbus City Council President Jerry Hammond, was slated at a cost of $2.6 million and would have been built along the new Martin Luther King Boulevard at the entrance of Mt. Vernon Avenue. The remaining $1.3 million was to be attained through the private investment of three local developers.

So far in 1987, Columbus has received $6.7 million in federal funding for general housing projects, but that money does not include specific sites like the one proposed, said David L. Kern, of the Columbus Office of Management and Budget.

"It would have been a real jewel in the crown of our revitalization efforts," Hammond said.

U.S. Rep. Chalmers P. Wylie, R-Columbus, who supported the application for the grant filed last July, said he didn't know why the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) rejected Columbus's application for the grant.

"There were 129 applicants for the $100 billion in grant money available under the HoDAG (Housing Development Action Grant) program for low income housing, and only 50 areas will receive funding," Wylie said. "HUD must have felt that other underdeveloped areas need the money more than Columbus."

Plans for the center included the construction of 64 townhouses, 20 percent of which were to be subsidized and 80 percent available at the market rate, said Ako Kambo, head of legislative research for city council.

Columbus is one of 8,451 designated areas eligible for the $100 million available through the program for low income housing, Wylie said.

Kern said Columbus is not considered as economically depressed as other major cities such as New York and Cleveland, which receive most of the major funding.

Although not yet officially announced, Wylie was informed by phone of the denial for the grant by HUD.

"I think we'll get the money eventually," he said. "I think more than anything else there were some other cities where they (HUD) regarded there was a greater need."

Wylie said although the plan was denied at this point, this is only the beginning of the effort.

"This is the latest round for fiscal year 1987," Wylie said. "We can go at it again. It could take anywhere from one month to a year."

Hammond said the plans have definitely not been put aside and they will continue with their efforts to receive the grant.

"We will continue to move forward and try to get funded," he said. Meanwhile, in addition to plans for a city office complex in the area, Ohio State as well as area restaurateurs have expressed interest in building in the air, Hammond said.

Bucks take plunge into LSU 'Tiger Pit'

By JAMES D. TOUVELL

It's the classic college football match-up — the stubborn OSU defense versus the wide-open offense of Louisiana State University.

The fourth-ranked Tigers (3-0), who will host the Buckeyes Saturday in Baton Rouge, La. (2:42 p.m., CBS), feature an offense that ranks sixth in the country, scores an average of 40.7 points a game, has one of the top quarterbacks in the nation and a running back who averages 9.7 yards a carry.

"They have some great, great football players," OSU Coach Earle Bruce said. "They use multiple plays, I can't believe it. They use three wide outs, a one-back set, I-formation. They run isolation, sweep, our power play off-tackle, and they give it to the fullback."

Bruce said he is also impressed with the Tigers sophomore quarterback Tom Hodson, who ranks second nationally in passing efficiency with a .643 average.

On the first play from scrimmage last weekend, LSU's sophomore tailback, Harvey Williams scammed 60 yards for a touchdown to set the tone for a 49-16 victory over Rice. Williams is averaging 100.7 yards per game in an offense that compiled 664 yards last Saturday.

The seventh-ranked Buckeyes (2-0) will bring their 14th-ranked defense into Tiger Stadium led by All-American senior linebacker Chris Spielman, who boasts 34 tackles and two interceptions in his first two games.

"I think our defense will play well," Bruce said. "They're going to be challenged by a fine offensive team. We match up well with their offense and our defense."

First-year LSU head coach Mike Archer, who was the Tigers' defensive coordinator for three years, said the biggest thing Ohio State has going for them is their defense.

"Chris Spielman... is everything everybody says he is," Archer said.

"Last year, in preparation for Nebraska, we had the opportunity to watch Brian Bosworth on film," he said. "After studying Spielman in seven games of film, he's an outstanding linebacker. He's better than Bosworth."

Archer said he is also impressed with Buckeye outside linebacker Eric Kumerow, whom he says may be just as talented as Spielman.

"They both make an awful lot of big plays," he said.

Archer also is wary of the Buckeye defensive backfield.

"Their secondary has got three guys who have played there for a number of years," he said. "I think it's the best secondary we've played against in the three years since I've been here at LSU. They do a great job of disguising coverage. They're very aggressive and they try to intimidate you with hits."

Archer, who at 33 is the youngest head coach in Division I football, said he also expects the Buckeye offense to break out of its shell on Saturday.

Campaign costs prompt proposal

With the issue of a merit selection plan for Ohio's appellate and Supreme Court judges coming before voters November 3, politicians, labor unions and judges are taking sides in a battle that finds few of them remaining neutral.

With supporters and detractors squaring off before the public over the issue of a merit selection plan for Ohio appellate and Supreme Court judges, voters will decide its eventual outcome November 3 in the general election.

Currently judges for appellate courts and the Supreme Court are voted into office every six years by the public. Both the Democratic and Republican parties nominate one candidate for each position.

The constitutional amendment placed on the November ballot would allow the governor of Ohio to appoint the justices. The governor would choose one of three nominees for each position selected by commissions, which would evaluate the nominees' qualifications.

The commissions would consist of attorneys and citizens. Thirty-four states already use some sort of merit selection system.

John Thomas, spokesman for the AFL-CIO, said the amendment should not be passed.

"(The amendment) is an attempt by a bunch of lawyers and insurance companies to control the state's highest court system," he said.

Both Republican and Democratic parties, as well as local organizations such as the NAACP, the Ohio Education Association, the United Auto Workers, the National Conference of Black Lawyers and the Ohio Farmers Union do not support the issue.

Jean Curtis, political director for the Ohio Republican Party, said rather than have a commission nominating judges, the decision should be made by the voters.

"We don't give credit to the voters," she said. "People voting will seek out the qualifications."

A spokesman for the state Attorney General's office said Anthony J. Celebrezze also does not favor the issue.

Diana Winterhalter, president of the League of Women Voters in Ohio, and Citizens for the Merit Selection of Judges, the group organizing the campaign for the issue, said judges should not have to explain their positions on an issue in order to run for election.

"They say how they approach laws and how they will change them," she said. Judges shouldn't have to change laws, just interpret them, she said.

Francis X. Beytagh, dean of the Law School, supports the merit plan, saying it will rid judges of the need to raise money for campaigning. Judges are not supposed to be partisan, he said.

Terry McCoy of the Citizens for the Merit Selection of Judges said the cost of campaigns is one of the reasons for the proposed change. She said running for the office is too expensive, citing the $3 million campaign costs in last year's race for chief justice of Ohio's Supreme Court between Republican Thomas Moyer and Democrat Frank D. Celebrezze.

McCoy said when a business or citizens give money to a judicial campaign, the justice may feel obligated to the sponsor, swaying his interpretations.

Franklin County Court of Appeals Judge Alba L. Whiteside, who said he was dubious of the merit system in the past, supports the issue now because he said it gives the voters a better opportunity to know the judges they are voting for.

The proposed amendment states that following appointment by the governor, and serving two years, a judge must run unopposed and receive 55 percent of the public vote in a retention election to keep the office. Retention elections would occur every six years.

Whiteside said with the merit system, voters could focus on the judges' qualifications instead of their names.

Ritchey Hollenbaugh, president of the Columbus Bar Association, said if the merit system is adopted, the courts "would then have people with unusual names, other than or in addition to Celebrezze, Brown and Sweeney."

He said more people would have the opportunity to be considered for the courts, based on their qualifications.

Investigation acquits Moyer of wrongdoing

ASSOCIATED PRESS

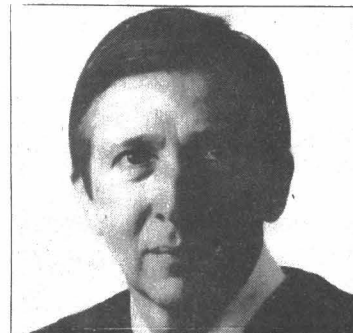

COLUMBUS — A report issued by Secretary of State Sherrod Brown on Thursday said there was no evidence that Chief Justice Thomas Moyer or his 1986 campaign committee concealed expenditures to a political consulting firm.

But the four-month investigation by Brown, a Democrat, concluded that the Cleveland law firm of Thomas R. Frutig, who was campaign finance chairman for the Republican chief justice, appears to have violated a state law which bars corporate involvement in political candidate campaigns.

Moyer said in a statement the findings confirm that operations of his campaign were consistent with state election laws.

"In fact, every effort was made to see that my campaign committee reported all contributions received and accurately reported all expenses incurred in its fund-raising efforts," Moyer said.

"While I appreciate the enthusiasm and dedication of the campaign staff, it is regrettable that inadvertent errors by a volunteer involved in his first statewide fund-raising effort resulted in the need for this review," he said.

Frutig said in a telephone interview he had not seen the report, released late Thursday.

"I think from what I've been told that it's a positive report," Frutig said. "I don't think there ever was any concealment. I don't think there ever was any corporate contribution." He had no other

The report describes the educated person as having "the ability to engage in careful logical thinking and critical analysis, the development of a refined historical artistic and literary consciousness and the capacity and confidence to make informed and discriminating ethical and aesthetic judgments."

"We need to be strong in acquainting students with the diversity of our own society and other cultures throughout the world," Brand said.

According to the report, there are three obstacles to major revisions of the undergraduate general education program: intense academic specialization, over-emphasis on professional preparation and over-reliance on the view that students can appropriately determine which courses to include in their curriculum.

Brand said that though ASC students are required to complete 100 hours of BERs, most other colleges only require 50 hours.

"We educate them enough to get entry level jobs, but do we educate them to move up to managerial positions? Unless they have a solid liberal arts foundation, they won't be able to move forward in their careers," Brand said.

"In the past, general education has been consumer driven," Brand said. "There's been a wide variety of BER courses from which students could choose and they could stock their own curricula."

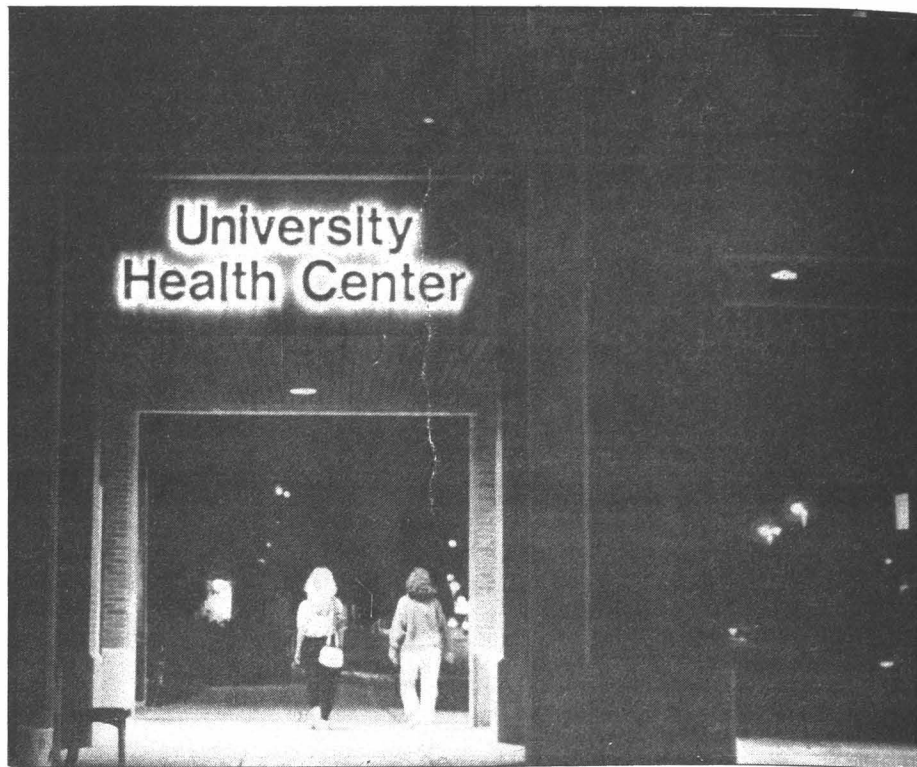

This "smorgasbord" of BERs leaves many undergraduates, particularly those in General Baccimmediate comment.

At issue in the probe was whether Moyer's committee knowingly concealed expenses to Roxbury Associates, a political consulting service established by Frutig in 1985 as a business separate from his law firm.

"Over the course of the campaign the Moyer Committee paid Roxbury $272,786.68 for fundraising expenses listing the expenditures as consulting expenses, financial consulting expenses and consulting fees or various combinations thereof," the report said.

It concluded there was no evidence that Moyer's committee knowingly concealed or misrepresented the expenditures to Roxbury for the services.

"There is no evidence that there ever were, in fact, two campaign committees operated on behalf of Moyer," the report said.

The Akron Beacon Journal prompted the investigation with a May 10 story in which it quoted Frutig as saying he set up Roxbury to hide his involvement with Moyer's campaign.

Brown's investigation, headed by elections counsel Jon Marshall, found that Roxbury many times operated essentially as an arm of Frutig's law firm.

It said Roxbury did not bill the law firm for some services received, which were worth an undetermined amount. In addition, it said the law firm initially paid for nearly $97,000 in services that eventually were reimbursed by the Moyer committee.

"Roxbury and the law firm, in effect, made interest-free loans to the Moyer campaign. Approximately 41 percent of the total billed to the Moyer Committee was not billed until after the election," the report said.

It said there appears to have been a violation of a state law banning corporate involvement in candidate campaigns by the law firm.

If only typewriters let you proofread your work before they printed it on the page.

You've just proofread your term paper and it's got typos, spelling errors and misplaced paragraphs.

Now, you can't hand in a paper like this. So no matter how tired you are, you've got to retype the entire thing.

That is, unless you typed it on a Videowriter.*

The Videowriter solves all your typing problems.

Take the most obvious one: typos.

On an ordinary typewriter it would mean a bottle of white-out and a frustrating interruption.

On a Videowriter it just means pressing the key marked "delete." That's all. Because you type your work on a screen before you print it on a page.

It edits.

And how about those bigger problems like wanting to rearrange paragraphs?

On an ordinary typewriter you have to "cut and paste" them.

On a Videowriter you only have to press the key marked "move" and then indicate the area you want it moved to. It's that simple.

It spells.

What happens when you're typing and you come to a word you can't spell?

On an ordinary typewriter you have to stop typing, find a dictionary and look it up.

Not so on a Videowriter. Spelling problems can be corrected simply by pressing the key marked "spell."

It counts words.

If you've ever had a teacher tell you to write a thousand word essay, you know what a pain it is trying to count your words.

On an ordinary typewriter you have to do it with your finger.

But on a Videowriter you can press a mere two buttons and it does the counting for you.

It makes multiple copies.

From time to time you want a copy of what you've typed, right?

Well, if you use a Videowriter you won't have to go to the school library to look for a copier machine.

All you'll have to look for is the button marked "print." Press it and the Videowriter will make another original.

And because your work is automatically stored on a standard 3½" floppy disk, you can make those copies whenever you want.

It obviously does a lot more than type.

That's because the word processing features just go on and on.

What's more, we sell the Videowriter* Word Processor for around the price of a good electronic typewriter.

And that's quite a bargain when you consider the amount of time it'll save you. Time you can spend doing the work for your other classes.

You would do that, wouldn't you?

BRITAIN ASKS FOR EMBARGO:

Britain called on Wednesday for a worldwide arms embargo against Iran as pressure mounted in the United Nations for an end to the seven-year Iran-Iraq war.

The Soviet Union withheld its support of an embargo and instead echoed Iran's call for the United Nations to investigate the cause of the war.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei, meanwhile, continued his counteroffensive and said again that Iraq must first be branded the aggressor.

In a news conference after speaking to the General Assembly on Tuesday, Khamenei repeated Iran's threat to retaliate for the U.S. attack on an Iranian ship caught laying mines in the Persian Gulf on Monday night.

He also denied that Iran attacked the British-flag tanker Gentle Breeze earlier on Monday.

Britain called the attack "cynical" and the "last straw" and announced Wednesday it would close the Iranian Military Procurement office in London.

From the podium at the U.N. General Assembly, Sir Geoffrey Howe, the British foreign secretary, called for an international arms embargo against Iran to enforce the U.N. Security Council's July 20 cease-fire resolution.

EMILY KILLS THREE: Hurricane Emily swept through Santo Domingo, in the Dominican Republic Wednesday with 110 mph winds and heavy rain, killing three people and injuring two others, but causing little damage.

Emily lost strength over land and was downgraded to a tropical storm, but forecasters warned that it was expected to become a hurricane again as it churned northward over warm Caribbean waters toward the Bahamas.

"It's a blessing from God that Emily didn't wreak the havoc we all feared," said Civil Defense Director Eugenio Cabral. "Also, people took precautions and didn't overreact."

Hurricane David killed 1,000 people when it hit the Dominican Republic in 1979.

Emily toppled utility poles and uprooted trees when it hit Santo Domingo on its way north. It lost strength as it crossed over 12,000-foot peaks and exited over the northwestern part of Hispaniola, the island shared by the Dominican Republic and Haiti.

DISCRIMINATION LAWSUIT

SETTLED: Libby-Owens-Ford Co., Chicago, will pay up to $10 million for lost wages and make 342 jobs available to women over five years under a settlement with the federal government of a sex discrimination lawsuit, attorneys said Thursday.

"This settlement is historic for its cooperative disposition of a major lawsuit," Charles A. Shanor, general counsel of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, said at a news conference announcing the agreement with the Ohio-based glass manufacturer.

The settlement still must be approved by a federal judge.

The EEOC filed the lawsuit in 1978 after receiving a complaint from a woman who said she had been denied a job at the company's Ottawa, Ill., plant because she didn't meet minimum height and weight requirements, he said.

Under a 16-year-old policy, the company required factory employees to be at least 5 feet, 4 inches tall and weigh at least 110 pounds.

JURY CONVICTS TEACHER: A Washington County jury on Thursday convicted a West Virginia school teacher who was accused of having sex with a 14-year-old student after taking him to a Marietta motel, officials said.

Denny Marie Way, 32, of Vienna was convicted on one count of corrupting a minor and faces up to two years in jail, court authorities said. Sentencing was set for Oct. 27.

Prosecutors said Way, an English teacher at Blennerhassett Junior High School in Parkersburg, W.Va., took the student to the motel in December 1986 and had sex with him.

Judge Walter Halloch can sentence Way to up to two years in jail, Washington County Assistant Prosecutor Michael Spahr said.

Program trains residents to combat crime problem

By GEORGIA TETERIS
Lantern staff writer

Operation SAFE, a neighborhood block watch program, kicks off this fall and coordinators have high hopes for its success.

SAFE, Safer Areas For Everyone, will feature neighborhood block watches, public education programs and clean-up activities aimed at reducing crime on campus and in the university area.

To qualify as a block watch unit, 50 percent of the people on the block must participate in the training.

Linda Ridihalgh, executive director of the University District Organization, one of the groups behind Operation SAFE, said participating residents should expect to spend an hour and a half in training.

"It's a very small investment in time for a big return in security," Ridihalgh said. "Nationally, block watches have reduced burglaries by up to 40 percent and other types of street crime anywhere from 15 to 25 percent."

"The point is, block watches are proven effective measures against crime," she said.

Funding for the project comes from a $35,000 federal grant through the Governor's Office of Criminal Justice.

Democratic State Representative Mike Stinziano, whose 30th District includes the campus area, explained the need for Operation SAFE.

"Last year, following a series of attacks involving several students who were badly beaten, Senator Watts and I convened a meeting of the leadership of the University community," Stinziano said. "It was a cooperative event."

Students, OSU officials, small businesses, University and Columbus Police Departments and University area officials comprised the group.

Stinziano said growing community concern centered on the crime rate and the number of muggings, break-ins and thefts.

"Criminals prey on the campus community because they are generally a trusting community and don't believe they are going to be victims of crime," he said.

"On campus, when students runs down the hall to get a candy bar or take a shower, they don't always take the necessary precautions of locking the door. Particularly, students who live in dorms think they are safe and out of the reach of the criminal element," Stinziano said. "They come back to find their wallet missing or their purse gone."

Theft, Stinziano believes, is the major focus of the on-campus segment of Operation SAFE.

"Off-campus, break-ins to apartments and homes is a problem. And generally, safety on the streets after dark is always a problem in the University community," he said.

Stinziano is optimistic about community participation in the project. "If there's any community that can benefit from strong block watch programs in Columbus, it's the University area."

Mark Bordas, an OSU student from Worthington and organizational leader of the fraternity and sorority systems (for Operation SAFE), said he got involved with the project after being assaulted on High Street.

"Let's just say I was an unwilling participant in a gang initiation that involved a pair of brass knuckles," Bordas said.

The attack occurred on May 31, 1986, and left Bordas with a broken nose, a crushed cheekbone, a lot of anger and frustration.

"My letters, my friends and parent's letters were so angry that it acted as a catalyst for this committee," he said. "I would say that OSU tried to ignore the problem."

Jim Chisman, assistant vice president for University Public Safety, said there was a need for SAFE.

"We realized that many OSU students, faculty and staff were becoming victims of crime off-campus, in increasing numbers," Chisman said.

"Operation SAFE is primarily an off-campus operation because the major component is block watch," he said. "Obviously, more students live off-campus than on."

Many students living on campus think Operation SAFE is a positive step toward the reduction of crime.

GULF RAID: U.S. engages Iran

Enough is enough.

That was the message the United States sent Iran earlier this week, regarding mines being laid in the Persian Gulf.

Navy helicopters attacked an Iranian ship that was caught planting the mines in international waters often traveled by ships belonging to the United States.

Now that the United States has finally taken the initiative to show Iran it will not sit back and watch the safety of its forces be jeopardized, several senators want the military forces pulled out.

That would be a mistake.

The United States must keep forces stationed in the Gulf to ensure the safety of its economic interest in that area. Also, if the United States left the region, the Soviet Union would surely try to fill the gap, and the United States cannot afford to have that happen.

The Senate is considering a proposal that would cut off financial support to forces stationed in the Gulf.

That too would be a mistake.

Senators must support President Reagan, who feels military forces must remain in the Gulf until "tension diminishes." Military presence was increased early this summer to act as an escort service for Kuwaiti tankers traveling through the Gulf.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater called Monday's attack a "defensive action." If the United States is to remain stationed in that war zone between Iran and Iraq, it must be certain to limit their military operations to such "defensive" actions, and not use the attack as a precedent to get more involved in that area than it already is.

NFL STRIKE: Back to the table

The strike is here, there are no games for Sunday, and the owners and players, after two weeks of silence before the strike, have finally decided to talk about it.

The walkout has spared no one: players on the picket line who watch scabs make a mockery of the game, owners who will suffer a loss of TV and ticket revenues, bettors in Las Vegas without an NFL line, TV networks that scramble to fill the time slots, and hard-core fans who frightfully remember the 57-day hole of five years ago.

The players' gripes are not without foundation: a sufficient pension fund is just reward for those who acquire injuries that cannot be left in the locker room at retirement. The pension plan is not designed for John Elway and his millions, but for former Green Bay cornerback Tim Lewis, who at age 23 last season suffered a neck injury that ended his career. Lewis, only 23, can no longer do that for which he trained so hard.

Free agency — the right to play for the team that will offer the best deal — is the other key demand of the players. Who will deny the right of free agency amid an economy that prides itself for how well the marketplace decides all?

It is understandable that owners fear the sort of free agency which sent salaries of major league baseball players into the stratosphere, but a more liberal policy is needed when only one player in 10 years has benefited from the present scheme.

Certainly a compromise is attainable, if only the players' union and owners' negotiators will work at it. Until then, college football will have to suffice.

Smoker asks, 'Light up where?'

A message to all non-smokers from a smoker: We are trying.

But the university sure isn't making it easy.

In July Ohio State put into effect a non-smoking policy restricting smoking to private offices. Some smokers yelled, some complained, and others, like myself, accepted it as only fair.

We cannot, after all, deny the medical data saying passive smoke can cause health problems. It has long been suspected, yet smokers continued to blow smoke into the faces of innocent bystanders.

Now, I'm not saying that passive smoke has been proven without a doubt to cause cancer, but why chance it. Speaking from a smoker's point of view, I surely don't want to be responsible for someone else's health.

But on the other hand, I think the university has a responsibility to inform the thousands of individuals who smoke on this campus, of the new policy.

I encountered the policy on my first trip to campus Sunday. Well, actually, I didn't encounter it. A stranger to Ohio State would not have known there even was a smoking policy. I saw no signs designating areas as either smoking or non-smoking.

There is just not enough information given about exactly how this policy works.

I blame it on the committee that Madison Scott, vice president for personnel, led in the early part of this year to study the non-smoking policy. It was called the Committee to Review the University Non-smoking Policy. The name, I think, was misleading. What exactly did they review?

Sure, they decided to ban smoking in public places. But did they decide where to allow people to smoke? Apparently not. After the policy went into effect, people in buildings all over campus were still trying to figure out where they could smoke.

The smoking ban went into effect July 1. On July 27, the university said it would make signs to post inside buildings to designate where smoking would and would not be permitted. They expected these signs to be done a month later.

What a radical idea. Shouldn't a committee designated to study the policy figure out that signs might be needed, or did someone just mention a month after the policy started that signs might be nice?

If we accept that this was an oversight, then where are the signs? I have yet to see one sign anywhere that says anything about smoking or not.

Autumn quarter started Wednesday. How does the university plan to let every student know about their smoking and non-smoking rights? Are they planning to pass out pamphlets or have every instructor talk about it in their classes? Or are they, as they have shown earlier, going to think about it next month or the month after?

I think the committee and Mr. Scott put this policy into effect long before the university was ready for it. Instead of rushing it through and passing it so quickly, there should have been more review.

It's obvious there was little discussion about how to designate smoking areas. Come on, signs would have been my first guess.

This week, nearly three months after the policy was put into action, the dormitories are still not sure what is happening. One resident adviser said each floor will vote to decide whether their halls will be smoke-free and dormitory councils will decide the rest of the areas. Since the rooms are private, smoking is up to the residents. I wonder if they have made up their minds yet.

Also, why should the dormitories get to vote on their policy? By a vote, it could be decided that smoking is allowed everywhere in the residence halls. None of the other campus buildings get to decide by a vote.

The situation in the dorms is just another example of lack of planning. What did the university actually do before they passed these restrictions?

Once again, the university has muscled under to the wishes of a few non-smokers without considering the feelings of the thousands of students, faculty and staff who want to know their options.

Not informing me of the policy is like a free reign for me to smoke wherever I want. Why should I be restricted by a policy that most people don't even know exists?

Even though I favor the policy, I take exception to people coming up to me and saying, "You can't smoke here." How did I know?

In July, the Lantern quoted a university worker as telling someone, "You can't smoke here. It's against the law."

Is it really against the law? Can I go to jail if I light up in the wrong place? What the heck will happen to me if I inadvertently blow smoke in the face of a non-conformist?

This policy is so vague and so unenforceable that it's a laugh. People all over campus are chuckling as they light up wherever they please.

Advice for those who care to listen

You know how you were told by your parents not to buy a certain car, or get a particular pet — or whatever?

My dad told me a lot of things to which I paid no concern. "Yeah, whatever," I would say. "Ok, you'll see," he would say with a vacant look past me as though I was about to back into an elevator shaft.

In time, I learned that a lot of what the old man told me was true. I could have saved myself some aggravation, money and time if I had only taken his advice. If I had only kept my finger out of the flame.

Of course I couldn't, you know. Some weird trait, from a darker time in my family tree no doubt, makes me cynical. I've also killed enough brain cells to give me acute paranoia, so I'm what anyone would call a raving wreck when it comes to advice. You know. Shove it.

Well, for all the advice I disdain, I seem to dole out an inordinate amount. Sort of hypocritical, don't you think? Well, anyway, there are a few things I must tell the new students.

Take free advice for what it's worth — but never say you weren't told.

The Ohio State University is a maze, physically and mentally. Actually, in the mental sense, it's more like an ongoing war with something you can't see yet know is there. Like the meaning of life, or answers on a physics test, it's all the same — somehow.

The first rule of survival at Ohio State: Do it early.

You're registering for a class, you're studying for a test, you're swinging at a local mutant/malcontent for making a comment about your date. Whatever. This isn't high school. There are people here who think you're just another number, which you are — but not to you.

Drop a class in the seventh week if you're failing. This may seem obvious, but procrastinators have a way of putting things off until Monday, which in this case is ever so dangerous.

Second rule: Don't worry about graduating on time. You're in your early 20s now; you'll be working for the next 50 years. Have fun now because when our generation hits retirement, FICA will be a cruel joke we share from old paychecks. Besides, nobody with an ounce of personality graduates on time anyway.

You really think your parents will mind you graduating a quarter late? Tell them you'll be away from home for another 10 weeks. Regardless of what they are now, they once knew excitement and might start throwing parties in your absence. Encourage such reveling and other human traits could begin to re-emerge.

Next rule: Get a job. It will mean curtailing your lifestyle a bit, but it pays bigger than money. I'm not talking about some grease-pit $4 per hour position. I mean a job in your field of study that can provide you with the golden goose of your resume. Experience.

You can't imagine how many people graduate from here with no practical experience. Take this paper for instance. Telling an employer that you worked on the school paper as a reporter, copy editor or even as an editor is fine, but anyone anywhere majoring in journalism worked on his or her school paper. The employer wants more.

I've seen business majors work at internships for free. Laugh now, yuppie, but working for free at a fairly difficult task tells your future employer one thing: You worked because you liked the job and not the money. Interning anywhere is the key to successful job hunting.

It's never too early to start interning. I've seen people intern while still in high school. Really. This isn't desperation. It's determination.

Another rule: Always be on the lookout. You wouldn't believe the number of people who will be victims of crime. You may not think so, but you could become a statistic beyond just a number. The cops can only be so many places at once. I've seen brute violence in action at Ohio State, and it doesn't make for a healthy appetite.

Whether you're in your dorm or your apartment, you can be a target for a criminal.

Last, develop a hearty skepticism — at least while you're here. If you say you know, then you've stopped thinking. Einstein said something like that. Skepticism can help you, whether you're reading Plato, or a newspaper column.

Questions of integrity dog '88 candidates

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Sen. Joseph Biden's retreat from the 1988 presidential race, hot on the demise of Gary Hart, raises a new round of questions about the media frenzy that follows any disclosure of a candidate's personal foibles.

Biden quit his Democratic campaign Wednesday, the victim of an unrelenting string of mistakes that included law school plagiarism in 1965 and campaign misstatements in 1987.

He was victim not only of his personal failings, but of the intense campaign process that has focused on difficult questions of personal integrity rather than comfortable questions of policy and leadership.

NEWS ANALYSIS

First Gary Hart, now Biden.

"It had all the earmarks of a feeding frenzy," said Eric Woolson, a former Waterloo Courier reporter who recently became Biden's Iowa spokesman. "He made some mistakes too. But are you permitted to be a human being and still run for president?"

Biden, in his departure statement, said he was angry for robbing himself of his 1988 White House ambitions, and "frustrated at the environment of presidential politics that makes it so difficult to let the American people measure the whole Joe Biden and not just misstatements that I have made."

Like Hart last spring, Biden was forced from the race before he could wrestle with questions of economic prosperity or national security. "Now the exaggerated shadow of those mistakes has begun to obscure the essence of my candidacy and the essence of Joe Biden."

It's a polite way of saying no one wanted to talk about anything except his personal troubles — or at least that the press was not about to listen.

Biden's swift fall began with the disclosure that he had delivered a personal anecdote as if it were his own, not crediting British Labor leader Neil Kinnock.

Suddenly there was a rush to follow up that story, to show whether the mistake was part of a pattern or simply an aberration, which is a central element of the journalist's role. The Kinnock episode led to the discovery — and swift confession — of law school plagiarism, which led to disclosures that the senator recently had misstated his academic record in an angry exchange with a New Hampshire voter.

Biden's supporters suspected that his political opponents may have literally fed the frenzy, through news leaks.

Biden's role in the Bork hearings was ignored. It would have been senseless for him to deliver a speech on foreign policy or any other issue. Deja vu, Gary Hart.

Ritzzy's robbed at gunpoint

The manager of a campus area restaurant reported to Columbus police that an undetermined amount of cash was robbed from the store Tuesday night.

Police said a man held up G.D. Ritzzy's, 1816 N. High St., at gunpoint at approximately 11 p.m. The manager told police the suspect locked himself in the bathroom shortly before the restaurant closed. When the manager tried to force the door open, the suspect ordered her into the office and demanded money from the safe.

Police said the gunman got the cash from the safe and ordered two other employees to lie on the floor. He then fled out the rear of the restaurant.

POLICE NOTES

Car broken into

An OSU student reported a theft from his car to Columbus police Wednesday morning.

Suspect(s) smashed a rear window of the victim's 1982 Renault between 2 a.m. and 6 a.m., police said. The car was parked on East 15th Avenue.

Police said an AM/FM cassette deck valued at $300, an AM/FM clock radio and a football were removed from the car.

Equipment stolen

University police were notified by staff members on Monday that medical equipment had been stolen from Doan Hall.

Police said a blood glucose monitor, valued at $70, was taken from a patient's room in the building.

Breast exams needed
Center stresses early cancer detectionBy GEORGE VONTSOLOS
Lantern staff writer

As part of the observance of Women's Health Month, the newly opened Women's Diagnostic Center of Mount Carmel Medical Center will place a special emphasis on early detection of breast cancer.

The month of September has been designated as Women's Health Month.

One out of 10 women will develop breast cancer and almost 130,000 new cases are diagnosed each year, said Nancy Shilling, director of Women's and Family Health at Mount Carmel.

Shilling said the Women's Diagnostic Center offers mammography screenings. A mammogram is an X-ray examination of the breasts, which is used as a means for early detection of breast cancer.

Ohio State offers mammography screenings at the University Hospital Clinic in the department of Obstetrics and Gynecology. Screenings are by appointment.

"There is not a lot we can do to prevent breast cancer," Shilling said. "That's why we need to have widespread detection."

She said one of the major parts to early detection is routine breast self-examinations. Women should start doing the exams in their early 20s.

"Women should become familiar with the texture of their breasts," Shilling said.

Dr. Steven Gabbe, chairman of the department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Ohio State, agrees with Shilling. "Women should be familiar with the normal anatomy of their own breasts. It's very helpful for them to be instructed in breast examination and then instructed as to what is normal and what they can expect to feel."

Shilling said in a self-examination women "should be looking for any bumps or lumps that are different and any discharge from the nipple."

Women who visit the Diagnostic Center are usually 35 and older, said Deb Esterwood, Women's Health Specialist at the center.

She said these women are very interested in their own health care. "Some women self-refer themselves here, most come with a doctor's referral," Esterwood said.

The American Cancer Society recommends first mammograms for women who are between 35 and 40 years old and yearly thereafter, Esterwood said.

"Women who take care of themselves turn up here at all ages. Anywhere from age 30 to 90," Esterwood said.

Esterwood conducts patient education for everyone who visits the center for a mammogram. She shows them a film specific to their own problem and provides them with literature which helps in patient education about breast cancer.

Gabbe said women should perform the self-exams after their menstrual cycles, so they won't have any hormonal changes in their breasts as a result of their period.

"Women are instructed to examine their breasts ideally in the shower where their breasts are wet and (the women) are less likely to be concerned by some insignificant findings," he said.

Gabbe said if a woman has any suspicions after a self-examination, she should have a mammogram. "Mammography screenings take minutes," he said.

Esterwood noted that a mammogram can detect cancer up to two years before a lump can be felt.

She said it is crucial to detect breast cancer before the disease is threatening.

Gabbe said the 5-year survival rate for breast cancer detected when the disease is localized is more than 85 percent. If the disease has a chance to spread to the lymphatic system the 5-year survival rate drops to about 50 percent.

Tigers' quarterback gaining more confidence

By JAMES D. TOUVELL
Lantern sports writer

A year after leading the Louisiana State University Tigers to a 9-3 season, sophomore quarterback Tom Hodson says each new game is adding more confidence to an already talented squad.

Hodson said a year at starting quarterback has left him with a more relaxed attitude about directing the Tigers.

"The year of experience has helped a lot," he said. "I have a lot of confidence with the guys around me. It makes my job a lot easier."

After the type of season Hodson had last year and with the type of players surrounding him, it's no wonder he's feeling more self-assured.

The 6-foot-3, 195-pounder from Mathews, Louisiana was the first freshman quarterback in South Eastern Conference history to throw for more than 2,000 yards and set a school record for most touchdowns in a season with 19. His 2,261 total yards represent the second-highest single season total in LSU history.

This season, Hodson is continuing to be one of the most prolific passers in the nation, passing for 607 yards with five touchdowns while completing 36 of 56 passes.

Hodson said the Tigers' wide-open style of offense with their multiple formations has had a lot to do with his success.

"It's a pretty complex offense with multiple sets," he said. "We do a lot of motion. I guess you could say it's a pretty complex offense for a college team."

However, Hodson may have to do without his favorite receiver during Saturday's game with Ohio State.

All-American wide receiver Wendell Davis is listed as doubtful for Saturday's game. He suffered bruised ribs in the first half of the Tigers 49-14 victory over Rice last weekend.

Last season, Davis set LSU records for most receptions in a season (80), most receiving yards in a season (1,244) and most touchdown receptions in a season (11).

Davis said earlier this week he had been receiving treatment for the injury and hoped to be ready to play.

First-year Tiger coach Mike Archer said he was less optimistic.

Archer said they packed Davis in ice for 24 hours after the game. He has been in a protective brace this week and has not practiced with the team.

"It's very hard to not practice Tuesday or Wednesday and play in the game on Saturday," Archer said. "We'll get something out of him on Friday. If he continues to make the progress we may be able to use him a little bit."

Davis said even if he does have to sit out the game, the Tigers will have plenty of offensive fire power without him.

"We have strength in every part of our game," he said. "When the offense is not doing the job the defense picks up the slack."

The last time LSU faced a team from Ohio they beat themselves, Davis said. The Tigers lost to Miami of Ohio, 21-12 last season.

"Miami of Ohio game left a bad taste in our mouths and everybody does not want to feel that way again," Davis said.

Hodson said the Tigers beat themselves by turning the ball over seven times.

"I think we're a lot more mature this season," Hodson said. "We had a lot of young guys last year."

Hodson said during first few games the team made a number of mistakes and the offensive line needed those games to start to perform well together.

The Tigers have improved every game and are prepared mentally and physically to play the Buckeyes, he said.

Hodson said after watching films of the Buckeyes he feels they must play a more physical game.

"They basically just line-up and take it to you. They try to wear you out. (OSU senior linebacker Chris) Spielman really sticks out when you watch the films," he said. "He gets a lot of press and he deserves every bit of it."

OSU vs. LSU

The coaches: LSU— Mike Archer, 3-0, first year

OSU— Earle Bruce, 77-22, ninth year

Previous meetings: first meeting.

Television: 2:42 p.m. by CBS, with announcers Brent Musburger, Ara Parseghian, Pat Haden and John Dockery on the sidelines.

Site: Tiger Stadium, Baton Rouge, La. 78,882

Playing surface: Natural Grass

1987 Records: LSU— 3-0; 17-3 over Texas A&M, 56-12 over Cal-State Fullerton, 49-16 over Rice.

OSU— 2-0; 24-3 over West Virginia, 24-14 over Oregon

Rankings: LSU— No. 4 by the Associated Press

OSU— No. 7 by the Associated Press

LSU strengths: The Tigers are averaging 40.6 points per game led by quarterback Tom Hodson, All-American wide receiver Wendell Davis and tailback Harvey Williams, who rushed for 192 yards last week. LSU's point total of 122 is the most the Tigers have scored in their first three games since 1977. Offensive guard Eric Andolsek, an Outland Trophy candidate and center Nacho Albergamo.

LSU weaknesses: Schedule. The only test the Tigers have faced so far has been Texas A&M, which they won. However, Rice and Cal-State Fullerton are definitely not powerhouses. Also, LSU has been averaging more than seven penalties per game.

OSU strengths: The Buckeye defense led by senior linebackers Chris Spielman and Eric Kumerow and the defensive secondary. Ohio State ranks first in the Big Ten in total defense, scoring defense and number two in pass defense.

OSU weaknesses: The offense came to life in the last minutes of the Oregon game, yet is still struggling. Also, inexperienced players at the skill positions — quarterback Tom Tupa, receivers Tony Cupe and Bobby Olive could hurt the Buckeyes in "Death Valley."

The Line: LSU is favored by seven.

Foggie returns; Brown makes big impression

Minnesota quarterback Rickey Foggie, who was suspended for two games by the NCAA, is expected to see action tomorrow against Central Michigan.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association suspended Foggie, a junior, for accepting money from an assistant coach to attend his grandmother's funeral. He repaid the money three months later.

"Rickey's back at practice and he's still our number one quarterback," said coach John Gutekunst, during the weekly Big Ten teleconference, "but I'll have to make a determination as to who will start. Our backup (Alan) Holt played well and gained some experience, but it depends on how quickly Rickey gets back into the swing of things."

Gutekunst said Foggie will help open up the offense, which is averaging 28 points per game. The Gophers are 2-0.

"With Foggie at quarterback the defense has no real good choices," he said. "California (a 32-23 Minnesota victory) let Holt keep the ball on the option more than most teams would have."

Notre Dame wide receiver and Heisman Trophy candidate Tim Brown has left quite an impression on at least two Big Ten coaches.

Michigan State coach George Perles, who said an opponent has never before returned a punt for a touchdown against his team, saw Brown, a senior, return two punts for first quarter touchdowns on runs of 66 and 71 yards.

"The roof fell in on us with Tim Brown's great ability to return punts," said Perles, referring to the Spartans 31-8 loss which dropped their record to 1-1. "On the first one he got one good block and he was off to the races. We had the second covered pretty well, but he broke one tackle and he was off."

First-year Purdue coach Fred Akers, who recruited Brown heavily when he coached at the University of Texas, said, "Trying to catch him is like grabbing hold of a bolt of electricity."

Purdue, 0-1-1, hosts Notre Dame (2-0) Saturday, while the Spartans are home against Florida State (3-0).

A leader in Michigan's quarterback battle between Demetrius Brown and Michael Taylor still hasn't emerged.

"They both played much better than they did last week against Notre Dame (a 26-7 loss) and we only had one turnover and I'll take a look at both of them again this week," Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said.

Schembechler said the Wolverines (1-1) won't be satisfied with a close win over Long Beach State (2-1).

"Long Beach has a history of good football with talented players and they're accustomed to playing big games against Pac 10 teams," he said. "But if we just win it won't be good enough. Long Beach really doesn't prepare us for the Big Ten, but I don't set up the schedule. I just play."

Illinois Coach Mike White said the Illini are trying to make the most of an off week before opening their Big Ten schedule against Ohio State Oct. 3 in Champaign, Ill.

Illinois (1-2) has played the Buckeyes following an off week the last four years and the home team has won each time.

"Sometimes it's not a bonus because your team loses its competitive edge," White said, "but we try to make it a positive thing and work on the technical standpoint of the upcoming game."

What's wrong with the Big Ten?

Last year the Big Ten sent five teams to bowl games and compiled a 19-13 non-conference record. They're barely over .500 this year at 11-10-1, but none of the coaches seem too concerned.

"It's difficult to say the league is down this year because a lot of it depends on who plays who," Schembechler said.

Of the record, White said, "It's a little bit of a surprise. Big Ten teams have always taken a lot of pride in their non-conference records, but based on the quality of opponents we've played, the record might be a little bit misleading and exaggerated."

Williams still confident despite loss of players

By TOM ANDREWS
Lantern sports writer

The early losses of members of the men's basketball team have been lessened by the new players coming in, which keeps Coach Gary Williams feeling optimistic for the upcoming season.

The recent announcement of the academic ineligibility of junior Joe Dumas and senior Kip Lomax leaves the Buckeyes shorthanded. Dumas is eligible to play in January, while Lomax has withdrawn from the university.

Compound that with the already ineligibility of freshmen recruits Treg Lee, from Cleveland St. Joseph, and Eli Brewster, from Columbus Wehrle, because of Proposition 48 and one would expect Williams to be pessimistic.

Things would be even worse if the injuries to senior center John Anderson, knee, and junior guard Jay Burson, finger, had been projected as serious. Burson, however is already working out with the team and Anderson is expected to be ready by the first practice on Oct. 15.

But the availability this season of junior Grady Mateen, sophomore Randy Doss and freshman James Bradley has Williams feeling optimistic.

The 6-foot-11 Mateen transferred to Ohio State after spending two seasons at Georgetown and Doss, a 6-foot-5 swingman, was ineligible last year under proposition 48.

Bradley transferred from Miami (Ohio) during fall quarter last year and will not be available until January.

"Obviously Grady played quite a bit at Georgetown especially his freshman year and he has some good game experience," Williams said.

Mateen agreed.

"I think playing behind (former All-American center) Patrick (Ewing), and with (All-American forward) Reggie (Williams) and Michael Jackson helped me," Mateen said. "I gained a lot here by practicing with everyone last year, in that now I know what everyone can do."

Doss, however, was unable to practice last season because of NCAA rules.

"Right now I have to get into condition, but I'm looking forward to the season," Doss said. "Not practicing last year hurt in not getting to adjust to the players, but academically it helped me to adjust and right now I'm in good shape and I have no problems."

Williams said Doss is like a freshman in terms of experience. "He hasn't played with our players even in a practice situation so it's going to be a new experience for him."

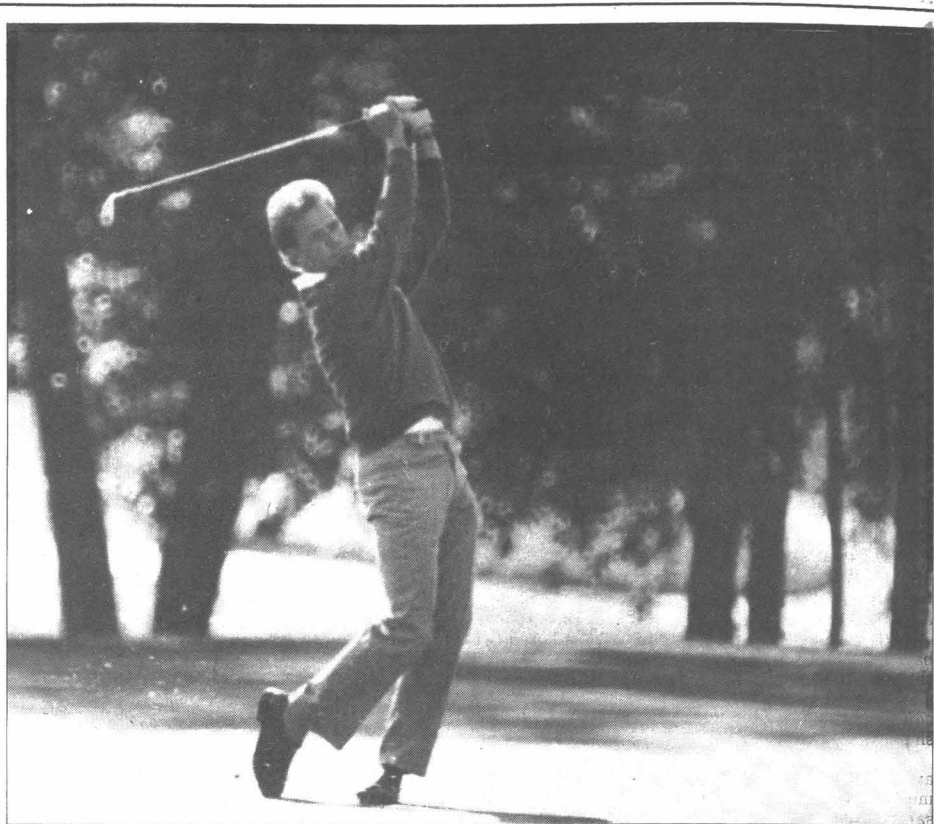

"The intensity of the Big Ten is always a thing you worry about for a new player coming in because it's completely different than the way they played in high school, so hopefully the skills Randy had in high school will be good enough to play against the people here," he said.

Williams is also counting on the walk-on tryouts on Oct. 16 to produce a member of this year's team, similar to last year when Jim Martin and Randy Printup made the team.

Martin will not return this year because he is in pre-med and will concentrate on academics, Williams said, and Printup is not sure yet whether he will return.

Martin and Printup were not available for comment.

"We'll always have at least one walk-on, I really believe in that," Williams said. "It's fun for us to see the students try out and the crowd seems to like it. Randy and Jim were as popular as any players on the team."

Impatient golfers ready for cup

By RANDY JACOBS
Lantern sports writer

After a formal opening ceremony, and two days of interviews and practice rounds, the Ryder Cup teams are finally ready to tee it up. This makes both team captains happy.

"I think our guys are anxious, excited and nervous. Which is good," said Jack Nicklaus, captain of the U.S. team. "All the guys are keyed up and ready to play."

Tony Jacklin, captain of the European team, said his players feel the same way.

"They're ready, I think a few of them would like to have started today (Thursday)," Jacklin said. "You can hit too many balls and get too much practice."

The competition begins at 8 a.m. today at Muirfield Village Golf Club with the foursomes matches. In foursomes, each player on the two-man teams alternates shots until the ball is holed. No tournaments on the American tour are played under this format.

Nicklaus said the pairings for the foursomes matches are the most difficult for the captains to make.

"Sometimes it is just a hunch," he said. "I listen to the players and get some input from them, but the final decision is mine."

Jacklin said he has gone with the same pairings he had in mind on Monday.

"You can outsmart yourself doing all this," he said. "I just try to talk to the players and see how they feel, then just do it."

For the early matches, Nicklaus has paired up experienced Ryder Cup players with those who have little or no experience.

Good Grief.

Whether you're into business, science or engineering, TI has all the right calculators with all the right functions for you.

Every year, thousands of hapless students watch their course load become an overload. And every year, the smart ones among them pick up a TI calculator and take a load off.

TI offers everything from advanced scientifics that clock your performances, to program-mables that speak your language, to a solar-powered financial calculator that highlights your answers even in lowlight conditions.

And the large, color-coded keys and simple keyboard layouts mean you'll spend less time figuring out the calculator and more time figuring out your problems.

Censored books featured at Derby

By VAETA MEREDITH
Lantern staff writer

Alie Walker's "The Color Purple" was rejected by school trustees in Hayward, Calif., in 1985 because of "rough language" and "explicit sex scenes."

The American Heritage Dictionary was moved in 1982 from school libraries in Folsom, Calif. due to "objectionable" language.

Mark Twain's "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" was challenged in many school districts as a "racist" novel.

These books, and many others banned throughout the world, are the focus of Banned Books Week, a week-long, national effort to educate the public about censorship.

"This week is to make people aware of how our first amendment rights are being ignored," said Bonnie Mitchell, executive director of the Ohio Library Association. "People should be able to read what they want."

Loanne Harmer, of the Ohio

Chapter of the National Federation for Decency, said only those things which are illegal and obscene should be banned from adult libraries. But school libraries must have some type of guidelines, she said.

"There are books that aren't suited for young people," Harmer said, "and screaming 'censorship' is silly because somebody in the school is already deciding what they read."

Harmer said parents should be able to object to the books their children read in school.

"The parents are ultimately responsible for the well-being of their children," Harmer said. "If anything (in a book) is questionable, it shouldn't be in school."

Ann Zeller, executive director of the Ohio division of the American Civil Liberties Union, said parents should not have the power to change a school curriculum.

Zeller said if parents disagree with something being taught, the parents should discuss it with their child.

Loanne White of the OSU Bookstores, Derby Hall, said OSU students should become more acquainted with what books have been banned.

The Derby Hall bookstore has a display of some books which have been banned, she said.

"People don't realize that it's not just pornography," White said. "It's everything from Mother Goose to the classics like Faulkner and Hemingway."

Recital to feature classical pieces

By AMY WIERAUCH
Lantern staff writer

The music of Mendelssohn, Boccherini and Rachmaninoff is foreign and incomprehensible to many ears. However, these centuries-old classical pieces are being performed for the public as part of the Ohio State Faculty Recital Series.

"There is a kind of threshold one must step over before understanding classical music, but it is worth the effort because the music is so wonderful," said William G. Conable, Jr., professor of music.

Conable will be the first faculty member to perform in the series.

The 45-year-old cellist will play Sunday at 8 p.m. in Weigel Hall Auditorium.

"The faculty recital is one of the ways we show our students what being a professional performer is all about," Conable said.

In addition to teaching at Ohio State, Conable is a member of the faculty Hughes Quartet and principle cellist for the Columbus Symphony Orchestra.

Culture has changed through time and so has the sound and style of music. A lot is forgotten once a new sound emerges, he said.

Conable said the piece he will play at the recital is "marvelous music that even many specialists in music don't know."

The Ohio State String Faculty will accompany Conable during the Boccherini piece, and pianist Sylvia Zarembo will accompany the cellist during the Mendelssohn and Rachmaninoff sonatas.

Zarembo is a world famous pianist, Conable said, adding he is very excited to have the chance to work with her.

Conable attended the University of Illinois and earned his doctorate in music from Boston University. He also taught in Youngstown.

Conable said each of these, and all of the other colleges he has visited are filled with brilliant, talented people, but no other university has been comparable to Ohio State.

FILM

SUSAN CAREY

This is a truly entertaining and horrifying film. Seething with macabre demons, bloody reincarnated corpses and lusty women, "Hellraiser" is the perfect blend of pleasure and pain.

Clive Barker has written and directed a horror film masterpiece. The film stars Andrew Robinson, who many will remember as the psychotic killer from "Dirty Harry", Clare Higgins and Ashley Laurence.

The film exposes the limits of desire as Barker imagined them. It is your worst nightmare and your wildest dream. "Hellraiser" is the story of one man's quest for the outer reaches of sensual experience and the horror that ensues when he finds them.

Frank, played by Sean Chapman, is a reckless man whose life is dedicated to the fulfillment of his senses. He buys a Chinese puzzle box which holds the secret pleasures of heaven and hell.

He solves the puzzle in the attic of his family home, and the forces of hell open before him in the form of Cenobites. Cenobites are the gatekeepers of hell who claim the body and soul of all who enter their domain in search of the ultimate sensual pleasures that they promise.

This is a film which must be seen if horror means more to you than maniacs slaying teenagers. It sneaks into your fantasies and makes them realities which are too hard to resist.

Director Fosse dies at 60

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Director and choreographer Bob Fosse, whose art won every major entertainment award, collapsed and died Wednesday before the premiere of "Sweet Charity," one of his most enduring creations. He was 60.

Fosse was director of the show, which was opening at the National Theater. Alma Viator, a spokeswoman for the theater, said Fosse had rehearsed the company earlier Wednesday and left the theater at 6:30 p.m. for a break with Gwen Verdon, his former wife.

"He and Gwen Verdon went back to his hotel room at the Willard hotel. He had a massive heart attack there. They rushed him to George Washington University Hospital, where they tried to revive him and could not."

"The cast knew nothing of this until the end of the show. He never made it to opening night," she said.

George Washington University spokeswoman Yvonne Hiott said Fosse was brought into the hospital's emergency room by ambulance at 6:48 p.m. She said he died of cardiac arrest at 7:23 p.m., but she had no further information.

Ms. Viator said Fosse showed no signs of illness earlier in the day.

"He had a very spirited, 'up' rehearsal," she said.

The cast of the show attended an opening night party at a Washington restaurant and toasted him to sustained applause.

"It's very somber," Ms. Viator said.

Fosse was long a mainstay of the Broadway musical theater, and he was one of the most widely acclaimed choreographers of recent decades.

"Sweet Charity," one of Fosse's most enduring choreographed creations, opened this week at the National Theatre for a four-week run. It first opened on Broadway in 1966, with Miss Verdon the original Charity.

It was Fosse who gave the show its distinctive stamp, as he did in much of his choreography.

Fosse won numerous awards for his work on stage, movies and television.

He won Tony Awards for his Broadway musical hits "Pajama Game" in 1956, "Damn Yankees" in 1956, "Redhead" in 1959,

"Sweet Charity" in 1966, and two Tony Awards each for "Pippin" in 1972 and for "Dancin'" 1978.

His film work included "Cabaret," "All That Jazz" and "Lenny."

Fosse accomplished an unprecedented achievement within one year, when he won awards in every major entertainment medium in the same year.

He captured an Oscar in 1972 for his film of "Cabaret," a Tony that year for his Broadway show, "Pippin" and an Emmy for his TV special starring Liza Minnelli, "Liza With A Z."

Although he had undergone a coronary bypass operation, Fosse still smoked five to six packs of cigarettes per day while he was working.

Fosse, the son of a vaudeville singer, was born in Chicago on June 23, 1927. Fosse formed his first nightclub act at age 13 and performed in clubs around the Middle West. He made his Broadway debut at a dance at age 23. He was known for his bump-and-grind routines.

Fosse was married and divorced three times, to Mary Ann Niles, Joan McCracken and Miss Verdon. After his breakup with Miss Verdon his girlfriends included Ann Reinking and Jessica Lange, both of whom appeared in "All That Jazz."

He had a daughter, Nicole, with Miss Verdon.

McGuffey Lane salutes local fans

By MOLLY MERRYMAN
Lantern staff writer

Wednesday night local country rock fans had the opportunity to appear on McGuffey Lane's fifth album, "Live on High Street."

The group recorded their two-album set at the Newport Music Hall. Names of audience members will appear on an insert to the album. Bassist Steve Reis, a founding member of the band, said "It's a way for us to thank our fans, both old and new," he said.

McGuffey Lane has developed a large number of fans in their 15 years of existence. Their beginnings were in bars along High Street, most notably the now-defunct Zachariah's Red Eye Saloon.

"We've been out of touch with the campus area for some years, and we've decided to get back with the students."

The two founding members, Reis and guitarist Terry Efaw, have known each other since they attended junior high school in Athens. The rest of the band joined in Columbus, where Reis moved after graduating from Ohio University with a degree in advertising.

"After four or five months of pursuing another avenue of employment, I decided that I had to return to music," he said.

The other members of McGuffey Lane are John Schwab on guitar and mandolin, Dave Rangelier on drums, Casey McKeown on keyboards and Dave Robins on xylophone. Vocals are shared between Reis, Schwab and Rangelier.

Reis said that he expects the album to be a continuation of what he calls "the best of 15 years." Lately, the years have been difficult for the band. Album sales declined, burdened by mismanagement and the diminished popularity of country rock. The band's ebb was in 1984, when harmonica player Stephen Douglas was killed in a car accident while returning from a concert in Dayton.

The band has spent the past three years reassessing themselves. They have broadened their sound with the inclusion of saxophonist Dave Robins and have broadened their musical base to include rhythm and blues and bluegrass in addition to country and rock.

Reis said the band is hopeful that the new album will generate as much interest as their self-titled debut did. Reis said that the 1980 album sold 9,000 copies in three days in Columbus alone. In central Ohio, sales of "McGuffey Lane" surpassed that of the Rolling Stones' "Emotional Rescue." When the Stone's label, Atlantic Records, heard about this, they signed McGuffey Lane.

The band is optimistic about their future. "We're confident," Reis said. "We're as good as we ever were, and we're a lot more sure of our direction."

Encore concert held at Mershon

By BETSY K. LEE
Lantern staff writer

The Columbus Symphony Orchestra and Chorus will present a special Encore Performance at Mershon Auditorium on Friday at 8 p.m. and on Sunday at 3 p.m.

Beethoven's Symphony No. 8 and English composer Sir William (Turner) Walton's oratorio, "Belshazzar's Feast," highlight the Encore Performance program. Beethoven's "Coriolan Overture" will also be performed.

The orchestra will be directed by Artistic Director Christian Badea, who has been with the orchestra since 1983.

The Columbus Symphony Chorus, under the direction of Ronald Jenkins, will be featured in "Belshazzar's Feast." Jenkins has been the chorus conductor since 1982.

Walton's piece derives its name from the feast of the co-regent of Babylon, Belshazzar, at which the prophet Daniel interpreted the handwriting on the wall and foretold of the destruction of the city in 539 B.C.

Performing with the chorus will be guest artist William Parker. "The Encore Performance will be the first time Parker has performed in Columbus," said Dawn Boyer, Columbus Symphony Orchestra public relations associate.

Parker, a baritone and one of today's finest concert artists, has performed as a soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, San Francisco Symphony and Pittsburgh Symphony, among others, Boyer said.

Tickets for the performances are $5-$18. A special ticket price of $5 each is available to all CSO subscription holders. For more information, call the symphony ticket office at 224-3291 or stop by the office at 55 E. State St.

'Withnail' bores, but music pleases

A supposed comedic film on growing up in the '60s, "Withnail & I," has little to do with that era but instead repeats themes as excessive drinking, repetitious dialogue pertaining to the meaning of life and ambiguous homosexuality with a few drugs thrown in for effect.

The British film, currently showing at Drexel North, was written and directed by Bruce Robinson, in an attempt to recap his experiences as a struggling young thespian.

Robinson, an academy-award winner for his screenplay in "The Killing Fields," treats us to nearly two hours of disjointed experiences of the major characters, Withnail, portrayed by Richard E. Grant, and "I" played by Paul McGann.

They discuss the meaning of life. And then they discuss the meaning of life, again.

Lending support to their efforts and turning in a fine performance is British actor Richard E. Griffiths. Griffiths portrays "Monty," a middle-aged homosexual who is quite fond of "the boys."

The film opens with "I" casually smoking a cigarette in an apartment so unbelievably filthy only students or deranged motorcycle gangs could possibly reside on the premises.

One saving grace of the movie is the soundtrack which contains excellent original compositions by David Dundas. A version of "A Whiter Shade of Pale" by Procul Harum is simply superb.

But the dialogue never keeps up with the music, and the cinematography, although beautiful at times and well filmed, is not enough to salvage the admission price.

Along with the ever-present bottle of alcohol, or in one case a chugged can of lighter fluid, the duo discusses their attempts at stardom. "The only program I'm likely to get on is the news," snarls Withnail. Time to visit the local pub.

In the pub, after smelling "I's" boots, doused with patchouli oil to cover the smell of Withnail's vomit from the lighter fluid, a big burly guy gets surly with "I," calling him an unflattering English name reserved for homosexuals. This introduction of questionable homophobic behavior is picked up later in the film by Uncle Monty.

"I" then suggests, in that oh-so-'60s way, the duo needs "harmony, fresh air, stuff like that." After escaping the bad guys in the pub, it's off to the country to stay at Uncle Monty's country cottage. The car trip is fueled by a booming original version of Jimi Hendrix's, "All Along the Watchtower." But the film and the script run out of gas again.

The boys search for food and meet locals. They even manage to meet a bull. They cook a chicken in a manner never before imagined on screen and hunt for fish in a highly unusual way. It might be catchy, but the humor doesn't last. The boys, and the film, don't know where they're going.

In one anti-climatic scene, "I," awakens early in the morn and strolls along beautiful hedge-rows of stone in the magnificent English countryside. Beautiful uplifting music. You can almost imagine his questioning spirit about the future. In fact, you have to.

The characters in this film are alternately funny, serious, inane or insane. It's difficult to tell, however, which they are attempting to portray.

Rich Uncle Monty, that sly fox, arrives to the cottage just in the nick of time in his Rolls Royce to save the boys from running out of alcohol and food.

Withnail, the slime devil of the film, has told Monty that "I" is sweet on him. Which, of course, he is not. In one brutally terrifying scene, Monty, misguidedly convinced of "I's" passion for him, nearly rapes him. This isn't comedy, it isn't funny and it has nothing to do with the '60s. It's just violence.

On the trip back to the city, certain lunacy overtakes Withnail in a hilarious trek, via the police station, to their pad.

Enter the drug dealer. What's a film about the '60s without a drug dealer?

But wait. "I" has an offer for an acting role. "If you're hanging on to a balloon, you've got a difficult decision," advises the drug dealer. Will he cut his hair and take the role? The duo part company at the same neighborhood zoo seen earlier in the film. Withnail is left alone.

Which is where you should leave this film.

WE WORK HARDER FOR A BUCK

For years, BANK ONE has been bringing better student banking service to Buckeyes. And now, we're working even harder for all the Bucks who bank with us. That's why our special student services fit the demands of your busy schedule and your budget. And why we're the bank that offers everything you need...cheaper checking, more campus-area locations, and a special deal we'll deliver right to your door.

We give you cheaper checking

Why should you have to pay an arm and a leg for a checking account? With our Student Economy Checking, you pay only $1.50 a month. That gives you 10 free transactions plus a free Jubilee® card. You can't find a lower priced checking account on campus.

We give you more places to bank

BANK ONE has two full-service offices and an express branch in the campus area plus twelve 24-hour Jubilee machines. Just look for the blue BANK ONE pennant, and you'll know you're at another convenient BANK ONE location.

Until now, beer this real came only from a keg.

Draft beer is as real as beer gets. Since it's not heat-pasteurized, heat can't change its rich, smooth, real taste.

Miller Genuine Draft is as real as that. It's not heat-pasteurized like most other beers in bottles and cans. Instead, it's cold-filtered so it's as rich and smooth as only real draft beer can be.

As real as it gets.

TERMS AND CONDITIONS

The Lantern cannot accept advertising that advocates sedition or other illegal actions, violates normal standards of morality and taste, or attacks an individual race, nationality, ethnic group, religion or sex. In cases of doubt, the proffered copy, illustrations and layout will be submitted by the business manager of the Lantern to the School of Journalism Publications Committee and judged by a majority vote of the members. Decisions of this committee are final.

The Ohio State Lantern does not restrict advertisers beyond the limits of responsible journalism and the rules imposed by the Ohio State University on all student publications.

- Copy will be furnished by noon three days before publication.
- All advertisements are required to occupy at least as many inches in depth as they do columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in depth will be considered full column (21 inches) and charged accordingly.
- The Ohio State Lantern reserves the right to reject any advertisement that promotes illegal activity or activity detrimental or damaging to the university and its educational mission. It further reserves the right to revise any copy which is deemed objectionable for any reason.
- The Ohio State Lantern will not be responsible for typographical errors except to cancel charge for such portion of advertisement as may have been rendered valueless by such typographical error. In order for adjustments, complaints about errors must be registered to the Lantern Business Manager by local advertisers within three days of ad publication date, and out-of-town must contact the Lantern Business Manager at time of receipt of tearsheet of ad in question. Noncompliance with this request will leave full responsibility with the advertiser.
- No position will be sold or guaranteed.
- A composition charge will be made for all advertisements set up and
