WBNS stops student radio

Underground asked to halt football webcasts

By Brandon Schoonover
Lantern staff writer

The estimated 200 listeners of The Underground's webcast of Ohio State football games might have to turn to other means of media to cheer on the Buckeyes this season.

Steve Snapp, the OSU sports information director, told Aaron Stollar, director of the sports department at the Underground, to cease broadcasts of the games immediately. Stollar was told that WBNS — The Fan 1460 AM and 97.1 FM — has an exclusive $1.5 million deal for the rights to broadcast football games.

The Underground had been offering a completely free webcast of the games, while WBNS's service charges a monthly fee through the athletic department's Web site. Both Snapp and Director of Athletics Andy Geiger denied that there is a charge for the service, Stollar said.

Stollar admitted The Underground is technically in violation of the contract signed by WBNS, but that everyone at its station thought the games could still be broadcast without a problem.

"I guess The Fan sees our 150-200 viewers a week as a threat," Stollar said.

Scott Barthelmas, who announces OSU games along with Stollar every Saturday, calls the ordeal an "odd situation."

"We've been doing this a long time, and the communication from the athletic department has not been clear," he said.

Ruth Gerstner from Student Affairs said she was surprised the Underground had been

GESO pushes for full benefits

Students fight OSU's high health insurance costs

By Ashley Allison
Lantern staff writer

Ohio State could not function without graduate students — at least that is what several student organizations tried to portray yesterday outside the Main Library.

The students petitioned the university for full coverage on health insurance — an initiative sponsored by the Graduate Employees and Student Organization, Chinese Student and Scholars Society, and the Indian Student Association.

"I have won fellowships and awards and now OSU has left me to fend for myself," said Sonya Humes, a teaching assistant with the Center for the Study of Teaching and Writing and Jobs for Justice. "I am seven months pregnant, make $1,100 a month, and my husband is self-employed, so there is no way we can afford the health insurance OSU offers."

If graduate employees do not receive full coverage they may begin to seek other jobs, which would take away time for class preparation and research, said Clayton Peoples, a graduate employee in sociology and a member of GESO.

GESO approached the Ohio Federation of Teachers in the spring of 2002 in an effort to begin the process of unionizing graduate employees.

Ohio State students will soon have a new place to sweat off those extra pounds.

After years of contemplating the renewal of the current Larkins facility, the plan for a new recreation center gained momentum when OSU hired an architect to design the two-phase project.

Diane Jensen, associate director of the department of recreational sports at OSU, is pleased with the project's progress and expects construction to be complete in 2006.

"Buildings of a larger magnitude can definitely take some time to finish, but things are moving smoothly," Jensen said. "By 2005, phase one of constructing the building will be finished, and by 2006, phase two of the completion of the classrooms will be done."

OSU and others like Jensen acknowledge an improved recreation facility will also enhance the competitive recruitment for prospective OSU students in the future.

"When students interested in attending our university visit, they will not only be impressed by the school, but also by the various activities the facility has to offer to such a diverse group of students," Jensen said. "There's something there for everyone."

Gay frat welcome at OSU

By Melanie Sonderman
Lantern staff writer

The first fraternity for gay, bisexual and progressive men at Ohio State started rush this week.

Delta Lambda Phi, the newest addition to the Greek community at OSU, distinguishes itself from other fraternities because of its dedication to avoiding discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.

"Our fraternity was founded to provide a place where gay men can be themselves and speak freely," said Tim Ortyl, vice president and rush chairman of the OSU Colony of Delta Lambda Phi.

Although there are a number of organizations for the gay community at OSU, it is difficult to create the type of bond found in a fraternity. Delta Lambda Phi is able to do that, Ortyl said.

The Delta Lambda Phi Colony consists of eight founding members who were inducted in May of this year.

Members of the colony said they believe there has been a large gap between the gay, lesbian,

Do-not-call list will not affect student jobs

By Ben Nanamaker

While the do-not-call registry is likely to survive challenges from the telemarketing industry, its implementation may or may not affect hiring practices at local calling centers.

The Federal Trade Commission began setting up a national do-not-call registry in June, following in the footsteps of states who set up do-not-call lists for their citizens. Over 50 million phone numbers have registered for the do-not-call list, according to a FTC press release.

Two judges at U.S. district courts in Oklahoma and Colorado ruled in September the registry violated telemarketers' rights to freedom of speech. The FTC did not have the authority to regulate telemarketing calls, and the registry was declared unconstitutional. The FTC then appealed to the 10th Circuit Court of Appeals and requested the registry be allowed to continue temporarily while the court made its decision.

Since the decision, Congress and President Bush have worked to pass a bill that gave the FTC the authority to set up a do-not-call registry. The Federal Communications Commission claimed the authority to enforce a national do-not-call list under the Telephone Consumer Protection Act. On Oct. 7, the

Arnold's victory is a blockbuster

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Seething over taxes and red ink, voters dumped the unpopular Gov. Gray Davis and replaced him with political novice Arnold Schwarzenegger, the Hollywood action star who now faces the colossal challenge he asked for: jump-starting California's flagging economy.

Davis, the Democrat who presided over California's economy as it careened from boom to bust, was recalled Tuesday less than a year into his second term. According to partial returns, more than 55 percent of voters called for his ouster.

Schwarzenegger, a moderate Republican with tons of charisma but virtually no political experience, was easily elected among candidates to replace Davis just two months after shocking even his closest aides when he declared his candidacy on "The Tonight Show With Jay Leno."

The action hero may find that the hardest part is yet to come. He will need to quickly assemble an administration and work with a Democrat-controlled legislature to close a projected $8 billion shortfall for next fiscal year. Schwarzenegger scheduled an afternoon press conference yesterday to discuss the transition.

"We have tough choices ahead," Schwarzenegger said in declaring victory. "The first choice that Oldfield's Bar & Grille on south campus is located at the corner of Fourth Street and Chittenden Avenue.

Oldfield's survives 50 years

By Julie Dill
Lantern staff writer

Oldfield's rich history lingers on, despite the tapering south campus bar scene.

Located on the corner of both Chittenden Avenue and North 4th Street, Oldfield's remains a campus bar, even though Campus Partners has torn down much of the south campus for the University Gateway Center.

Oldfield's Bar and Grille has been residing in the area for more than 50 years.

During the late '60s and early '70s, it was located in the heart of the jazz scene. At the time, Oldfield's — along with its neighbor, the Sugar Shack — welcomed many innovative artists, such as Bob Seger and Linda Ronstadt.

Many lawyers and judges visited Oldfield's for steak dinners back when the previous owner, Florence Oldfield, was still running the bar.

"This area used to be more of a neighborhood, with a pharmacy and a barbershop across the street, and factories all around. Oldfield's was a swanky place, but there were still the occasional college kids," said Beth Bice, owner of Oldfield's Bar and Grille. "Oldfield's is the only thing left from that era."

When most Ohio State undergraduates were in grade school, Oldfield's was just beginning to blossom into the campus bar it is today. The Ark Band, a reggae group, played at Oldfield's every Sunday for a year and a half.

"There has always been a mix of college students and regulars, but in the '90s there were just more regulars," Bice said. "The Ark Band began making it a college bar."

Now, Oldfield's is not only an OSU campus bar, but it also is a memorable milestone for many alumni.

"A lot of students come in and tell me that their parents tell them stories about coming here when they attended OSU," Bice said. "Some alumni even drive by or stop in to tell me they can't believe we're still here, and that it looks exactly the same as they remembered it."

Most of the bars on and around OSU's campus cater to the typical college student's budget and lifestyle, and Oldfield's is no exception. Monday nights feature a free two topping pizza with the purchase of any pitcher, and Tuesdays feature a free Mexican buffet.

"It's a good laid-back atmosphere," said Lisa Schneider, a senior in marketing. "And Monday night pizza night is one of the best nights around here."

Steve Siefker, a senior in marketing, said that even though Oldfield's is not located in the center of the campus bar scene, it should not be overlooked.

"It feels like this bar could be right in the middle of the north campus bar scene," Siefker said. "You don't even feel like you're this far south."

allowed to broadcast games. She said anything other than the WBNS broadcast would be violating the contract made by the athletic department and WBNS, which holds exclusive rights to the games.

The athletic department gave The Underground $3,000 in August in order to ensure the broadcast capabilities of the station. The Underground broadcasts many Ohio State sports, including football.

In an article which appeared in the Oct. 3 issue of The Lantern, Snapp said it was important for students to hear a wide variety of games from the perspective of other OSU students. He also said Geiger wanted to assist the troubled organization so it could continue broadcasting games.

"Student affairs tells us to be more visible, and get our name out there and advertise, and then we get shut down," Stollar said.

Barthelmas and Stollar both said they might be able to solve the issue and keep broadcasting the games on Saturdays, but they might need some help from Geiger, whom Stollar said is on their side.

Numerous phone calls to Snapp and Geiger were not returned.

"Nothing is final as of yet," Stollar said. "This could still be worked out."

10th Circuit Court of Appeals granted the FTC's request to implement the registry while waiting for the court's ultimate decision.

While the appeals court sorts out the legal mess, Moritz College of Law professor David Goldberger said it's likely, but not certain, the appeals court will overrule the district court's decision.

"There's a good chance the district court was wrong," he said. "It's not a slam dunk either way. The rule as it's presently drafted and approved by Congress distinguishes between pure commercial speech on the one hand, and political and charitable solicitations on the other hand. The district court said it was invalid because of that distinction."

If the telemarketers win their case and the do-not-call list is banned, it could be because this was the first time government moved from regulating false and misleading speech, which it normally does, into speech that is truthful but annoying, or telemarketing, Goldberger said.

One of the biggest complaints levied against the national do-not-call list is it will remove jobs, especially jobs that benefit those of low economic status. Students could also be affected, as they compose a significant number of workers at call centers.

Jason Huxley, manager of Premiere Prospects, a telemarketing service located at 2060 North High Street, said of the 11 employees he has hired, seven or eight of them are either recent graduates, graduate students or undergraduates at Ohio State.

"Legally, it doesn't affect us because the national do-not-call list just regulates interstate calling," he said. "We're located in the Columbus area and call people in Ohio."

Huxley said Premiere Prospects would not be contacting people on the list.

"These people who are on the do-not-call list don't know all the legalities," he said. "It's just a route I've chosen not to mess around with."

"A lot of them are just going to be a thorn in our sides," Huxley said.

Depending on whether or not the Federal Communication Commission enforces the do-not-call registry and what happens ultimately with the FTC's appeal, intrastate calling might also be prevented by the national do-not-call list, said Michelle Gatchell, spokeswoman for Ohio Attorney General Jim Petro.

"When the FCC originally got on board, what they added to it was intrastate calls would be added to enforcement," she said. "The FCC is basically utilizing what the FTC put together."

OSU has one of the oldest phone-based programs in the nation at about 15-20 years old, said Alissa Comella, director of annual giving at OSU. They were also the first to have automated calling.

Ohio State Calling, the call center for Ohio State, employs 120 students.

"We call alumni, parents and friends, and we probably make over 20,000 contacts a year just over the phone," Comella said. "It's a great way to get current students in touch with alumni."

Comella said that typically 30,000 people pledge about $2 million a year over the phone.

"We don't anticipate or expect any problem at all," said John Meyer, interim vice president of university development. "We don't anticipate making any changes to the way we do business."

Comella said people who ask we must make is the one that will determine our success. Shall we rebuild our state together or shall we fight amongst ourselves, create even deeper divisions and fail the people of California? Well, let me tell you something — the answer is clear. For the people to win, politics as usual must lose."

With more than 99 percent of precincts reporting yesterday, the recall was favored by 4,310,219 voters, or 55.1 percent, and opposed by 3,521,809 voters, or 44.9 percent.

Among the replacement candidates, Schwarzenegger was ahead with 3,655,074 votes, or 48.4 percent of the vote; Democratic Lt. Gov. Cruz Bustamante had 2,409,094 votes, or 31.9 percent; Republican state Sen. Tom McClintock had 1,004,558 votes, or 13.3 percent; and Green Party candidate Peter Camejo had 210,274 votes, or 2.8 percent.

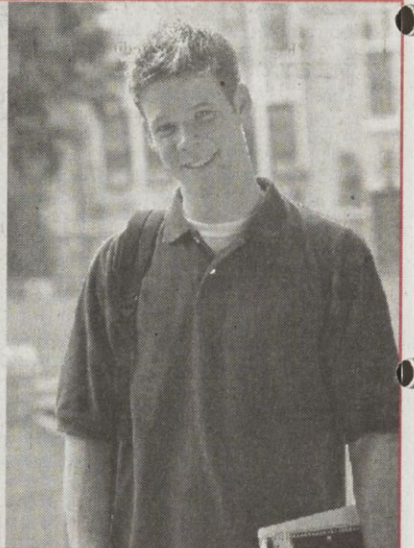

"Tonight, the voters did decide it's time for someone else to serve, and I accept their judgment," said Davis, the career public servant who became the first California governor and the second in the nation ever to be recalled.

"I'm calling on everyone ... to put the chaos and division of the recall behind us and do what's right for this great state of California," Davis said.

Davis kept a low profile yesterday, with his office releasing a statement that he planned to begin completing work on approximately 250 pieces of legislation before him.

Meanwhile, President Bush called Schwarzenegger to congratulate him and left open the possibility that the two would meet next week in California.

Lecturer willing to walk the walk

Department chair inspires students with stories of events in her life

By Becky Goldsmith
Lantern staff writer

"Talkin' the Talk and Walkin' the Walk: Making Diversity Work," the second of President Holbrook's diversity lecture series, got underway yesterday with speaker Valerie Lee.

Lee began her lecture with three different stories, each one dealing with the idea of diversity.

"It's June 1999, six months before the new millennium," Lee said. She told the story of a chance meeting she had in an airport.

While traveling, Lee met a young, white girl named Sally Ann from Chillicothe, Ohio. The girl opened up about her life and eventually told Lee that she was the only "pure white" of five grandchildren living with her grandfather.

Next Lee shared a little of her own childhood by telling about life growing up in southern Maryland. She spoke of seeing the integration of the white and black schools that stood across the street from each other when she was 17 years old.

She jumped ahead a few years and told the audience of the time she stumbled across an old letter from a woman who had donated money to a scholarship.

"I trust that no Negro or Jewish students will receive the money," the letter said.

Lee could only laugh when thinking about the author of the letter. The woman never imagined that Lee, a black woman would be the chair one day.

She continued her lecture touching on topics of diversity and the battle that University of Michigan dealt with not too long ago. Her speech was not only provided humor, but inspiration as well.

"Let's turn discussions of black-on-black crime into discussions of white-on-white crime," she said.

Lee finished her lecture by admitting that she recently found out she was not the first female chair of the English department.

She recently found documents that made reference to Miss Cynthia Well, the chair of the English and history departments from 1883-1884. Lee was proud to speak of a woman in charge so many years ago.

Lee reminded the audience that "diversity thrives" at Ohio State. People talk the talk, and now they must be willing to walk the walk, she said.

Lee is a professor of English and chair of the Department of English.

The lecture was held at 3 p.m. in the Drinko Law School Auditorium. It was followed by a brief question and answer session, and then the annual "Women's Reception" in Stecker Lounge in the Ohio Union.

doing something great, but we think that forming a union would do just that," Peoplesaid. OSU subsidizes graduate employees health insurance 42 percent, but ranks 7th among Big Ten schools.

"Let's beat Michigan by providing full coverage by 2005," Alistair Fraser, a doctorate student in geography and a GESO member said.

Elizabeth Conlisk, spokeswoman for OSU, said the university has set aside money that enables graduates to receive a 50 percent deduction in health insurance.

"We believe that health care support for our graduate associates is very important. We will put together another three-year plan to increase the amount of subsidization the university provides," Conlisk said.

She said although it is important to support graduate students, they are not likely to receive full coverage.

"We do not provide 100 percent coverage to any of our groups on campus, whether they are faculty, staff or graduates," she said.

Fraser said graduate students subsidize the university by paying 58 percent of health insurance, while working for low wages.

"There are 1,000 Chinese graduate students and most of us have no personal savings," said Jinjun Liu, a research assistant in the department of chemistry and the president of the Chinese Student and Scholars Society.

"Because we are international students we have a hard time getting student loans," he said.

GESO also is fighting for graduate employees' dependents to receive partial coverage.

"I applied and received Healthy Start, so my baby will be covered," Humes said. "But I am a recipient of Medicaid and working on my second masters degree."

Peoples said despite a lack of support from the university, they will continue to fight for paid coverage. The GESO received over 1,000 signatures in three weeks.

LARKINS FROM PAGE 1

Activity Center boasts 605,000 square feet, which is nearly three times larger than Larkins. The facility will include 25,000 square feet of fitness space, five pools, a jogging track, basketball and racquetball courts and a lounge area intended for studying purposes.

Chad Seifried, a teaching assistant for activity classes, is not surprised by the university's decision to improve and expand the recreation facility. Seifried finds the atmosphere at Larkins to be depressing and the floor plan to be complicated.

"When people work out, they don't want to be in a dark, dismal area; they want to be in a place that is upbeat unlike Larkins," Seifried said. "It's also inconvenient when a person has to go to practically every room in the building just to complete a workout."

Although the center will provide a superior recreation facility, it will also ensure a higher level of safety.

Mike Garrett, a junior in hospitality and management, works part time at Larkins as the facility manager. He said the various entry ways into Larkins can be a possible cause of theft.

"There are multiple entrances at Larkins, so it's easy for someone to slip by the Buck-ID scanner. That's a problem when you don't know who is coming and going into your building," Garrett said. "At the new RPAC, there's only going to be one entrance, so we'll know everyone who has entered."

A backhoe moves rubble around the Larkins construction area.

The projected cost of the project will be just under $140 million. The funds are being obtained from the state, student tuition, the athletic department and faculty members who choose to purchase a membership. Although some students may become frustrated by the estimated $72 a quarter tagged onto their tuition statement, Jensen finds the overall method to be beneficial.

"I pay taxes in my neighborhood for things that I never use, but I continue to do so because of their aesthetic purposes," Jensen said. "My taxes beautify and improve my community, just as the money used from student tuition will be used to enhance and beautify our campus."

Correction

In yesterday's story about Camp Wellstone, the wrong date was given for the death of Minnesota senator Paul Wellstone and his wife Sheila. Instead of Dec. 27, 2002, the Wellstones died on Oct. 25, 2002.

In a story on online book buying, the story stated that a small fee would be charged to post books. There will be no charge.

Teenager locks self in Kmart safe

WOOSTER — Firefighters and a locksmith saved an 18-year-old man who squeezed himself into a 4-foot by 2-foot safe at a Kmart on Saturday.

After at least 10 minutes inside the safe, the teenager, whose name was not released, emerged sweaty and short of breath.

The Wooster Fire Department received the call at 9:16 a.m. and had the teenager out by 9:25 a.m., Lt. Joe Linz said.

The teenager along with another 18-year-old man, both Kmart employees, were playing around and decided to see if he could fit in the safe, Linz said.

He said employees tried to get the teen out by using a combination, but it would not open.

A locksmith was called and attempted to use pry bars to open it. After that was unsuccessful, the combination was tried again and worked. The teen refused to be taken to the hospital.

Dispute disrupts campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wesley Clark is looking for a new campaign manager after his first one quit in anger, the latest setback for a team struggling to mesh its Internet-savvy founders with a corps of Washington insiders assuming more power.

Donnie Fowler, 35, told associates he was leaving over concerns that supporters who used the Internet to draft Clark into the race are not being taken seriously by top campaign officials. Fowler also complained that the campaign's message and methods are focused too much on Washington, not key states, said two associates who spoke on condition of anonymity.

But those concerns were disputed by campaign officials, who suggested that Fowler resigned after losing a power struggle. Mike Frisby, a former spokesman for www.DraftClark2004.com and an adviser to the Clark campaign, said the political team has made an "earnest effort" to work with draft-Clark backers.

"There's always different friction and different tensions that take place in any campaign," Frisby said. "I don't think what's taking place is any different than what happens in any other campaign."

Clark campaign chairman Eli Segal praised Fowler in a statement that did not address the rift.

CLARK

Segal moved to Arkansas this week, giving him more hands-on control of the campaign. In addition, Clark adviser Dick Sklar has taken on more authority in recent days. Campaign officials said Fowler's influence was diminished by the changes, which they said were ordered by Clark.

The departure of Fowler, son of former Democratic Party chairman Donald Fowler, is the latest blow for a campaign that has gotten off to mixed reviews.

National polls put Clark near the top of the nine-person field and he raised more than $3 million in the first two weeks of his campaign, a sum that surpassed what several rivals raised in three months. He has been criticized for flip-flopping on whether he would have supported the Iraq resolution, and his commitment to the Democratic Party has been questioned.

Rivals have criticized Clark for backing former Republican Presidents Reagan and Nixon, praising both Bush administrations and not registering to vote as a Democrat in his home state of Arkansas before entering the race. Clark's rivals can now point to Fowler's departure as a sign of disarray in the fledgling campaign.

Fowler, involved in his fifth presidential campaign, ran Al Gore's field operation in 2000. He is one of several veterans of the Clinton-Gore political campaigns involved in Clark's bid. The other veterans include Segal, communications adviser Mark Fabiani, policy adviser Ron Klain and adviser Mickey Kantor.

Fowler has complained that while the Internet-based draft-Clark supporters have been integrated into the campaign, their views are not taken seriously by senior advisers, many of them with deep Washington ties. He has warned Clark's team that the campaign is being driven from Washington, a charge leveled against Gore's campaign in 2000 even though its headquarters were in Tennessee, associates said.

SARS fear may disrupt hospitals

By Daniel Yee
Associated Press

ATLANTA—Fear over the possible return of SARS is so great in the United States that even if the virus does not appear, it will probably cause disruptions in hospitals this winter, top U.S. health officials said.

CDC and other health officials said emergency rooms could be swamped with suspected cases of the disease.

"Whether the virus comes back this winter or not, we will be dealing with SARS," said Dr. James Hughes, director of the National Center for Infectious Diseases of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. "When people start showing up with respiratory diseases, physicians will be thinking of SARS."

Health officials are worried that doctors with limited SARS experience could easily confuse early SARS symptoms with the flu. To clarify matters, the CDC is working on a plan for doctors and hospitals to prevent outbreaks.

Hospital officials will be on the lookout for Severe Acute Respiratory Syndrome cases this winter because of the seasonal nature of such viruses.

SARS emerged in China last November, but it was not until the spring when researchers identified SARS as a new kind of virus. Through July, when the virus' activity subsided, SARS had affected nearly 8,100 people, killing 774 worldwide. There were 74 probable U.S. cases and no deaths.

"I can tell you we're more prepared than before," Hughes said. "I think the global community can handle SARS if it's handled appropriately. I think enough lessons have been learned in the previous outbreak."

Research on a vaccine and antiviral treatments is under way, but it could be years before any new drugs reach the market. And health officials say the lack of a rapid diagnostic test is a key obstacle in the campaign against the virus.

Last week, the agency warned doctors not to offer patients flu shots in hopes of reducing the number of people with SARS-like symptoms. The CDC said people who have received flu shots can still get the flu.

Bush campaign set to change Americans' minds about Iraq

By Terence Hunt
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Bush, facing growing doubts about his handling of postwar Iraq, launched a new public relations campaign to convince Americans his course is the correct one. His national security adviser insisted yesterday that Saddam Hussein harbored ambitions to use unconventional weapons even though none have been found.

Condoleezza Rice told a foreign policy forum in Chicago that the team led by chief U.S. weapons hunter David Kay is finding proof that Iraq never disarmed and never complied with U.N. inspectors.

In fact, she suggested, if the U.N. Security Council knew last winter what Kay's group has uncovered now, it never would have rejected the U.S. call for war.

"Right up until the end, Saddam lied to the Security Council. And let there be no mistake, right up to the end, Saddam Hussein continued to harbor ambitions to threaten the world with weapons of mass destruction and to hide his illegal weapons activity," she told the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

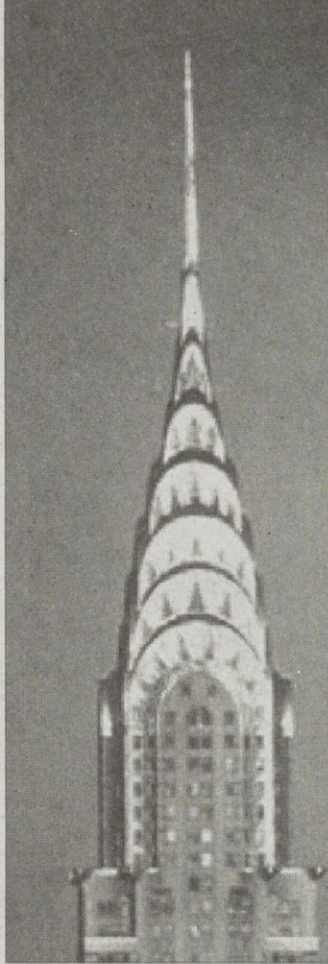

Rice's speech was part of the administration's effort to combat suggestions by critics that Kay's group had essentially come up empty-handed despite three months of looking for illegal weapons. Kay's team found no actual weapons, although he reported to Congress last week that there was evidence that Saddam still intended to produce such weapons and had retained the capability to do so.

Rice said the weapons inspectors had found strong evidence of materials and equipment that could have been used to produce weapons of mass destruction, and also that Saddam had continued to use lethal weapons against his own people.

"Today, in Iraq, the killing fields are yielding up their dead," she said. "We have no evidence that Saddam Hussein was involved in the Sept. 11 attacks," Rice said. "Still, the possibility that the Iraqi leader could be behind another attack beyond the scale of 9-11 ... could not be put aside."

Her speech was just part of a White House offensive that officials said will include speeches by Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney, as well as high-profile trips to Iraq by Cabinet secretaries to illustrate areas of progress, such as the reopening of schools and the introduction of a new currency.

Bush at times will reach beyond the Washington media to try to drive his point home with regional and local press corps, the officials said. The United States is also beefing up press operations in Baghdad to provide more live video opportunities and greater access to U.S. and Iraqi officials.

FBI bug found in mayor's office

By David B. Caruso
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Federal law enforcement officials on yesterday confirmed that listening devices found in the offices of Mayor John F. Street were planted by the FBI — a discovery that touched off a political furor just weeks before Election Day.

Three federal law enforcement officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, acknowledged that the FBI was responsible for the bug, but refused to comment on whether the Democratic mayor is a target of an investigation or to provide any details about the nature of the probe.

Pennsylvania Gov. Ed Rendell, a Democrat, and Sen. Arlen Specter, a Republican, were among several politicians who called on the FBI yesterday to tell the public what it knows about the eavesdropping equipment, found Tuesday.

"I think given this extraordinary situation with four weeks to go in the campaign, it is incumbent upon the FBI to say why they planted the device," Rendell said.

The bug was found during a routine sweep of Street's office by police. Street is locked in a bitter rematch against Republican businessman Sam Katz, and the campaign has been marked by charges of threats and race-baiting. Election Day is Nov. 4.

At a meeting with reporters yesterday, Street said for the second day that he didn't know who bugged his office or why.

"I haven't done anything wrong, and I don't know that anybody in my cabinet or in my staff around me has done anything wrong," Street said.

Street's campaign suggested the bugging was instigated by the U.S. Justice Department for political reasons.

"The timing of the discovery of these listening devices seems incredibly strange, seeing that we are four weeks out of the election, and we have a Democratic mayor ahead in the polls, and we are on the eve of the first mayoral debate," Street campaign spokesman Frank Keel said.

"Do we believe that the Republican Party, both at the federal level and state level, is pulling out every stop to get Pennsylvania in 2004? Absolutely," Keel said. "Is the Republican Party capable of dirty tricks? I think that is well-documented."

U.S. Attorney Patrick Meehan, the top federal prosecutor in Philadelphia, declined to say what federal agents might know about the bug but denied politics plays any role in his office's decisions.

"The U.S. Attorney's office in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania has a long and proud history of doing its work without regard to partisan politics. That was the practice of my predecessors, and it is my practice as well," Meehan said in a statement.

Laxative jar can be pain in rear

I recently found an unopened jar of suppositories in my new house.

They were hidden in the depths of my bathroom pantry, left behind by former tenants who bought the Fleet-brand glycerin suppositories, shelved them and, luckily, never needed to open the jar.

So there they sat until yesterday when my roommate came across the jar and disturbed their slumber.

Now they sit on my desk, causing me anxiety.

What do I do with 50 "adult" suppositories?

Maybe I should keep them around for casual — hopefully occasional — usage.

According to the jar, the Fleet-brand suppositories provide "fast, gentle, effective relief."

Fleet touts itself as the "most trusted name in laxatives."

I do not generally experience "situations" that would require the use of any type of suppository, but they do "generally produce a bowel movement in 15 minutes to one hour."

A bit vague, but when I happen to be constipated I do not want to wait for the Immodium A-D to kick in. I want to address the problem at the source, I think, and a glycerin suppository is just the way one could go about doing that.

My worries, in part, stem from the directions, which read, "Insert suppository well up into rectum."

Not being wholly familiar with inserting things there, I am worried about the actual distance of "well up." Are we talking finger length? Can we have some actual distance definition?

I would be afraid of not pushing the thing far enough, out of said anxiety, and then what do I do when I am trying to get on with my day and the shallowness of the suppository's placement causes it to be dislodged and float freely amongst my nether regions?

What am I supposed to do with the somewhat used suppository then? Should I be expected to put it back in place, or do I discard it and reach for a new one, attempting to learn from my earlier placement mistakes?

All of this suppository worry has led me to think about other uses for that jar of greasy, translucent cones.

My house on Highland Avenue is subdivided several different ways. As a result, there is a central mailbox system on the front porch and each respective apartment has an individual lockbox for their postal articles.

As a sign of goodwill to my neighbors, I think it might be a kind gesture to set the jar of suppositories atop the mailbox unit. Neighbors experiencing an unexpected bout of constipation could thus seek rectum relief as they pick up the day's mail. Double score.

A greedy neighbor could ruin my communal goodwill by swiping the jar of suppositories, though. Then everyone loses, except of course the thief who will have his constipation needs addressed for quite sometime.

Instead of kindness, maybe the focus should fall on humiliation. Those who throw house parties should beware. Fleet-brand suppositories could turn up at your packed soiree; jar open, sitting prominently on the sink. Perhaps a few glycerin inserts will be scattered about for extra effect. There will be many a muted giggle as individuals file in and out of your lavatory, laughing at a supposed constipated soul who just might be carrying a suppository in their system at that very moment.

Oh, I guess the possibilities are endless for Fleet's constipation cure-all. The seemingly moldable suppository could make for my first foray into conceptual sculpture

Colors of autumn dominate red-hot fall fashions

Vintage look crucial to having this season's most fashionable wardrobe

By Taya Flores
Lantern arts writer

As summer's green turns into bold bursts of fall's gold, red and orange, color also permeates fashion for this fall season.

"Colors and layers are two words to describe this fall's look," said Marcus Batista, manager at Urban Outfitters.

Jewel tones and earth colors are classic and dark pinks express femininity. However, a combination of these fall favorites with brighter renditions has surfaced for a full-frontal affect.

The 60s-mod look is in with vibrant stripes, boat necks, asymmetrical lines and cuts and vintage '60s geometrical prints on tees, skirts and accessories, Batista said.

Brighter reds, pinks, greens and blues are geometrically shaped, centered and revived on solids.

Many express their style by dressing up a solid boat neck tee with a geometrical print polyester scarf. Or they can dress down with a '60s-mod ski vest over a turtleneck for a look that is both functional and fashionable.

Brightly-hued pinks, blues and greens are found in heavy rotation within the color spectrum of highly decorative skirt prints.

"Skirts are a summer trend that carried over to the fall and have great popularity," Batista said.

The fall skirt has versatility ranging from the solid mini worn over opaque tights to the innovative hanky hemline skirt with multicolored stripes that rise over billowing folds.

For pants, Batista said that low-rise, boot cut jeans are still an essential.

"Jeans were a lot tighter in recent seasons, but they are loosening up," Batista said.

The washes are toned down with basic and vintage washes.

Color has characterized corduroys, with dusty fall colors like burgundy, blue, green and brown.

"Brown's the neutral this season, but that'll only last about a year and then we'll be back to black," said Gayle Stregge, OSU's fashion museum curator.

Some men's pieces have been feminized for women's use with the right color scheme and shapelier cuts. Cabby hats, sweater vests, and herringbone prints that are found in light blues and dusty pinks are extremely popular.

Military influences are apparent in low-rise cargos and camouflage pants that can be dolled up with a burgundy henley over a lacy camisole for an urban chic appeal.

Thea Montgomery, an art history major, and Ryan Grubish, a senior in marketing, show off new fall fashions at Urban Outfitters Tuesday.

This year's look lets femininity shine through innovative men's pieces with a vintage jean jacket, novelty tee, hanky hemline skirt, low vintage Converse Chuck Taylor's and the fall necessity — the skinny knit scarf.

The preppy-chic look utilizes feminized men's pieces like an argyle sweater with a solid turtleneck over a knee length skirt, topped off with a cabby hat and a tie for innovative appeal.

Batista said women's shoes with patterns or bows, a blazer or jean jacket and cool denim can spice up your fall wardrobe.

"It's good to have a cleaner look," Batista said.

Other fall patterns that are trend-worthy include pin-stripes, jacquards, checks, vintage florals and paisleys.

One does not have to look far behind to determine this season's most popular items.

"Trends resurface every 20 or 30 years," said Leslie Stael, professor of OSU's business of fashion course.

"When I went to school in the 70s, trends from the 50s were still popular."

For a night on the town 1920s or 30s pieces are classic in soft pinks, greens and creams. Detailing the attire with gem jewelry adds a deco edge to complete a Gatsby-girl mode of style.

Color is important in men's fashion with '80s vintage and Midwest grunge that has a popular appeal for fall.

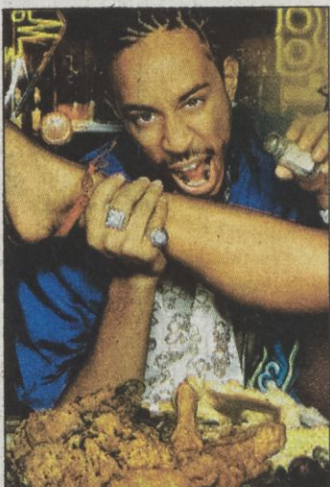

The blue-collar look is big for fall, as well as the workwear casual appeal that places little emphasis on dress pieces. Acid wash jeans, faux vintage tee's and worker canvas pants dominate the 80s western ensemble.

Purported fall necessities for men include a vintage '80s pin-stripe blazer, Nike Dunks, vintage tees and a cabby hat, said Jessica Hoffman, men's manager at Urban Outfitters.

She also said that novelty vintage tees are essential this season because, "It's a big statement without being expensive."

Trucker hats, knit caps, overdyed tees, and ribbed crew neck sweaters are other great fall buys.

Steele describes this season's fashion as, "What they're interested in. Some want to be fashion forward, looking for something physically and psychologically comfortable, being in style and edgy."

New album lacks Word of Mouf

By John Ross
For the Lantern

When I was on the phone with Ludacris — yeah, that's right — I couldn't wait for the new album to come out, since hearing the single "Stand Up" in heavy rotation.

But listening to the rest of Luda's new work has been somewhat of a letdown, nowhere near the odd, creative genius and lyric experimentation the single is drenched in.

Birthing out of life experience and hip-hop training deep in the Dirty South, Ludacris' third major release, "Chicken and Beer," shows the rapper — known for his vibrant, outlandish personality and the hairstyles and videos to match — trying to navigate the notoriously difficult, pitfall-ridden hip-hop industry.

Now, the question for Ludacris is whether he can do what Dre did.

He has started down that path already, by branching out into film and most recently by making the transition from MC to executive producer and collaborating with fellow artists Tity Boi and I-20 who are up and comers from his Disturbing Tha Peace conglomerate.

"As time goes on, I feel I'm getting more and more creative control," he said when asked about the bizarre new video put out along with "Stand Up."

Even in peripheral aspects,

Moist Star falls on OSU

By Becky Goldsmith

Local band The Moist Star will play an acoustic, candlelit set at 10 p.m. Saturday in the Mirror Lake Cafe.

The acoustic duo, made up of Ohio State students Cassie Lewis and Courtney Jacobs, have been playing together as a band since March 2002. Jacobs had performed in the Columbus area as a solo act before meeting Lewis.

"I was playing a show and she came up to me afterwards and said 'When are we going to play together?'" Jacobs said.

Together they have been playing local venues in the campus area ever since.

Lewis and Jacobs agree that their favorite place to perform is Andyman's Treehouse. They enjoy Andyman's because the bar and performance area are separate.

"Our music is not loud and commanding," Jacobs said.

"It's still rock though," Lewis said.

Lewis and Jacobs write all of their own music.

"Sometimes I'll write a song, and she'll write a song, then we'll work them together," Lewis said.

Inspiration, they say, is derived from day-to-day things going on in their lives.

"I get ideas from experiences and things that I am feeling," Lewis said.

Jacobs laughed and said that her inspirations come from

Comedian to perform at Hillel

By Sam Karr
Lantern arts writer

Comedian Steve Hofstetter will bring his college tour to Ohio State when he visits Hillel tomorrow.

Hofstetter's show is based on the premise "stupidity should not go unpunished."

"I believe we all have the opportunity to educate ourselves and think before we act, but we don't always take that opportunity," Hofstetter said.

He said comedy should be about the comedian. He has crafted his show around his own observations and experiences including his Jewish upbringing in New York City. Hofstetter also jokes about incidents on the road and even performs a recap of Martin Luther King's "I Have a Dream" speech.

Although he does joke about sensitive subjects, Hofstetter said he does not have a specific agenda.

"I observe things and put them out there. What the audience wants to do with them, that's up to them," he said.

A member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity at Columbia University, Hofstetter said

Greek life was an important part of the college experience. He has performed for many Greek events as well as several other campus' Hillels.

His show at OSU is sponsored by Hillel and the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

"He combines the essence of being both Greek and Jewish at a big university," said Valerie Kolko, the director of programs and campus relations at Hillel. She was also involved in the same youth group as Hofstetter during high school.

"I was very involved with my fraternity, and I know Greek life is looking for positive events," Hofstetter said.

He added booking shows through student organizations creates a more fun atmosphere and gets people involved.

"It gives students a chance to meet people that are Jewish and to see where they have taken their lives," said Melanie Ouziel, the Jewish Campus Service Corps Fellow for Hillel.

Hofstetter gained popularity with a piece named "Sports Jerk of the Week" which he carries on his Web site. He began the piece in 1998 with his broth-

His popularity grew further with his column "Observational Humor" which he wrote while attending Columbia University.

His advice for anyone pursuing a journalism career is to try and write as often as possible and also remember to write for an audience.

"Recognize your stuff is worth it, but never be afraid to improve," he said.

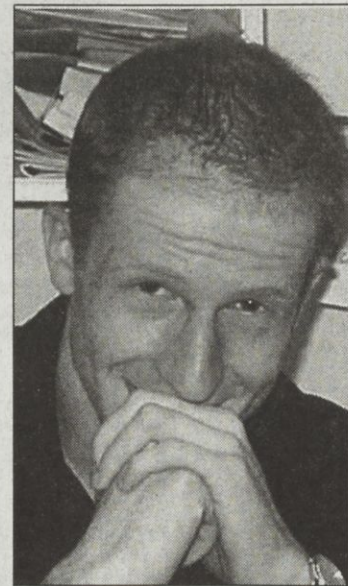

Hofstetter said he chose comedy over sports writing because he is directly involved with the comedy.

"A year ago I was writing about other people, and now people write about me," he said.

His work with the humor column helped inspire him to write his first book, "Student Body Shots," a sarcastic look at college life.

Hofstetter said writing a book was always an idea for him, and once people began to respond positively to his humor column, a book seemed like the next natural step.

To promote the book, he began touring college campuses performing stand-up comedy. He also performed in several New York City clubs and is now on a full campus comedy

"I am an English major," Jacobs said. "So it helps with the writing."

Both Lewis and Jacobs said they hope to make The Moist Star their career.

"I want to do this for the rest of my life," Jacobs said. "I would love to play at the 'Grand 'Ole Opry' someday."

"I will be doing this no matter what, so I would love to get paid to do it," Lewis said.

Eventually Lewis and Jacobs plan to have a full rock band. They perform with other people, and have a few in mind for the final line-up.

"We need to find people that don't have a crush on either of us," Jacobs said. "The band is a soap opera."

The Moist Star plays about three times a month, mostly in the campus area. They will play willingly if asked to perform with others, Lewis said.

The band has an album called "The Splendor of Fallen Graces" available at Used Kids, on their Website—<http://moiststar.topcities.com>—and at all of their performances. The album was recorded in December 2002.

Lewis and Jacobs said they plan to record again very soon.

"We have enough songs for another CD," Jacobs said.

"I had a lot of output over the summer," Lewis said.

Ludacris is having a hand in the varied process of artistic production.

"I mean, you kind of have to change with the times," he said. "Some people hate that hip-hop changes. They want it to stay a certain way. But I love the fact that it changes."

Ludacris has, indeed, changed by having more input into various products that form his unusual persona and by using innovative references and rhyme schemes to illuminate tracks. Those rhyme schemes can be found in places on the new album, but they are rare and too often spit over beats that don't live up to the kind of laughter-inducing, party starting a Ludacris verse is capable of. Much of the new album seems too conventional and out-dated to fit a rapper making videos with silver-colored midgets on platinum chains.

The album falls too far into patterns that were birthed with "The Chronic" — an album intro and several comedic skits, interspersed with tracks that range in quality from the invigorating stream of battle rhymes, "Hip Hop Quotables," to the lifeless, space-filling "Teamwork."

Most is too outdated also for a rapper who preaches repeatedly about longevity in the music business. The inconsistency of the album shows what can happen when a self-proclaimed, "self-motivated" and eager hip-hop star does too much, too quickly and tries to carry too many friends along with him.

The next question is whether he can keep up his infamous intensity — whether he can bounce back from a lackluster album and regain the fury of old.

"I see Israel...as one of the great outposts of democracy in the world..."

Martin Luther King, Jr. supported Israel...

WHY?

He understood Israel has the right to exist within secure borders. Shortly after the 1967 Six-Day War, Dr. King said these words:

"I see Israel, and never mind saying it, as one of the great outposts of democracy in the world, and a marvelous example of what can be done, how desert land can be transformed into an oasis of brotherhood and democracy.

Peace for Israel means security and that security must be a reality."

James' agent: Lebron offered to pay back daddy's loan

By Tom Withers
Associated Press

CLEVELAND — LeBron James offered to repay a $148,000 loan to a businessman who gave financial help to the rookie's family while he was in high school.

However, James' agent, Aaron Goodwin, said he revoked any payment to Joe Marsh when the entertainment producer demanded more money.

"I wasn't going to allow him to hold LeBron hostage for any money," Goodwin said yesterday. "It's not fair that someone would try and disgrace his name or target him because of his fame."

In a story published yesterday in The Plain Dealer, Marsh said he lent James' father figure Eddie Jackson the money during the Cleveland rookie's last two years at Akron St. Vincent-St. Mary.

Marsh said repayment of the loan was due June 1.

Jackson, who is serving a three-year prison term for mortgage and mail fraud, helped Gloria James raise her son, who was chosen by the Cavaliers with the No. 1 overall pick in this year's NBA draft.

Marsh told the paper that Jackson asked for the money to help support the James family and to pay for Jackson to meet with shoe company executives, who were in a bidding war to sign the 18-year-old star.

James eventually signed a $90 million deal with Nike.

Marsh, majority owner of Magic Arts & Entertainment in Aurora, said he didn't make the loan with the intention of being James' agent when he turned professional. But he said he did consider that it could open doors for him in other potential deals.

Goodwin said he had no knowledge of Marsh or the loan when the businessman contacted him in April, saying he was owed the money and wanted to be repaid with interest totaling $115,040.97.

Goodwin asked for documentation from Marsh, who sent him an agreement signed by Jackson. Goodwin said Jackson owed $148,000.

Goodwin said James wanted to clear up Jackson's debt and agreed to repay Marsh. But the agent asked Marsh to agree to keep the transaction private.

Marsh wanted more money and threatened to take his story to the media if he wasn't paid, Goodwin said. He would not say how much money Marsh wanted.

A phone message seeking comment was left at Marsh's office.

A Prayer for America

A Speech By
Congressman Dennis J. Kucinich,
Democrat Ohio
Delivered To The Southern California Americans for Democratic Action, February 17, 2002

Peace Is Possible.....

I offer these brief remarks today as a prayer for our country...With the understanding that freedom stirs the human heart and fear stills it. With the belief that a free people cannot walk in fear and faith at the same time...

That implicit in the union of our country is the union of all people. That all people are essentially one...we must challenge the rationale of the Patriot Act. We must ask why should America put aside guarantees of constitutional justice?

How can we justify in effect canceling the First Amendment and the right of free speech, the right to peaceably assemble?

How can we justify in effect canceling the Fourth Amendment, probable cause, the prohibitions against unreasonable search and seizure?

How can we justify in effect canceling the Fifth Amendment, nullifying due process, and allowing for indefinite incarceration without a trial?

How can we justify in effect canceling the Sixth Amendment, the right to prompt and public trial?

How can we justify in effect canceling the Eighth Amendment which protects against cruel and unusual punishment?

We cannot justify widespread wiretaps and internet surveillance without judicial supervision, let alone with it.

We cannot justify secret searches without a warrant.

We cannot justify giving the Attorney General the ability to designate domestic terror groups.

We cannot justify giving the FBI total access to any type of data which may exist in any system anywhere such as medical records and financial records.

We cannot justify giving the CIA the ability to target people in this country for intelligence surveillance.

We cannot justify a government which takes from the people our right to privacy and then assumes for its own operations a right to total secrecy.

The Attorney General recently covered up a statue of Lady Justice showing her bosom as if to underscore there is no danger of justice exposing herself at this time, before this administration...

The great fear began when we had to evacuate the Capitol on September 11. It continued when we had to leave the Capitol again when a bomb scare occurred as members were pressing the CIA during a secret briefing. It continued when we abandoned Washington when anthrax, possibly from a government lab, arrived in the mail. It continued when the Attorney General declared a nationwide terror alert and then the Administration brought the destructive Patriot Bill to the floor of the House...

The trappings of a state of siege trap us in a state of fear, ill-equipped to deal with the Patriot Games, the Mind Games, the War Games of this Administration.

Let us pray that our country will stop this war. "To provide for the common defense" is one of the formational principles of America.

We licensed a response to those who helped bring the terror of September 11th. But we the people and our elected representatives must reserve the right to measure the response, to proportion the response, to challenge the response, and to correct the response.

Because we did not authorize the invasion of Iraq.

We did not authorize the invasion of Iran.

We did not authorize the invasion of North Korea.

We did not authorize the bombing of civilians in Afghanistan.

We did not authorize permanent detainees in Guantanamo Bay.

We did not authorize the withdrawal from the Geneva Convention.

Unity crucial for women's hockey

By Adam Jardy
Lantern sports writer

Hockey season is beginning and at Ohio State that not only means the men are ready to lace up their skates, but the OSU women's ice hockey team also is getting prepared.

The Buckeyes, who finished fourth in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association with a record of 12-22-3 last season, begin this season ranked fifth in the WCHA Preseason Coaches Poll.

"Our big goal is to go to the Final Four at the end of the year," junior captain Meaghan Mulvaney said.

Achieving that goal in this, their fifth season, will not be an easy task for the Buckeyes. OSU's first two opponents will be Minnesota and Minnesota-Duluth, who are ranked second and third respectively in the preseason poll.

"It's tough right out of the chute," OSU coach Jackie Barto said. "I'm excited to go against two of the top teams early."

Both teams from the North Star state appeared in the WCHA championship game last year. Minnesota-Duluth won and then went on to defeat Harvard for the national title.

"It will certainly challenge us," senior defenseman Emma Laaksonen said.

Though they lost eight seniors to graduation last year, the Buckeyes have confidence in their nine returning offensive players, eight of whom finished the 2002-03 season with over 10 points.

"I think it's important for us to step it up and create a lot of offense," senior forward Heather Farrell said.

On the defensive end, Laaksonen brings a wealth of experience to the OSU roster. She is a member of Finland's national hockey team and has competed in both the 1998 and 2002 Winter Olympics for her native country.

"You really feel more like a part of the team here (as opposed to the Olympics)," Laaksonen said. "You live with your teammates, go to class with them and play hockey with them."

NOLAN SAUNDERS/THE LANTERN

Erika Vanderveer hopes to see some time on the ice this season at goalie. Vanderveer is shown here gearing up for the opening of the Buckeyes season in practice yesterday.

Barto said she feels it is this unity that makes winning possible.

"Our biggest asset is the way we're coming together now, on and off the ice. There's improvement every day," she said.

Critical to the team's success this season is how well their six new freshmen adapt. Many of the rookies will see early playing time and will be expected to immediately contribute.

"The freshmen seem to fit in really well and look good on the ice," Laaksonen said.

"It's a young team, but they're coming along well," Mulvaney said.

The ladies play their home games at the OSU Ice Rink while their male counterparts play at the Schottenstein Center. This does not seem to bother the women.

"I like playing here," Farrell said. "It's a great barn when it gets filled. The men don't even fill the Schottenstein Center."

The Buckeyes play exhibition matches against Toronto tomorrow and Saturday at the OSU Ice Rink.

Cross country teams running to Delaware

By Josh DeSonne
Lantern sports writer

The Ohio State men and women's cross country teams look to continue building on successful seasons this weekend at the All-Ohio Invitational in Delaware, Ohio.

The women's team returned last weekend with a victory at the Indiana State University Invitational. Senior Lyndsi Gay lead the Buckeyes with a second place overall finish. She was quickly followed by teammates Robyn Detty, Nicole Gliem, and Chelsea Poling who finished third, fourth and fifth, respectively.

"We ran well," Gay said. "We ran in a pack. It's nice to race and look around and see your teammates with you."

Women's coach Chad Myers was pleased with the win.

"Any win is always important," Myers said. "We came out of it with a good confidence level that we need going into this weekend."

The men's team had last weekend off after a highly successful run two weekends ago at the Great American Cross Country Festival. The team finished third overall in the meet behind Arizona and Central Michigan. The squad was led by Aaron Fisher, who finished 20th in the race, and Dan Glaz, who placed 21st.

The win helped the Buckeyes to climb all the way to No. 11 from a preseason ranking of No. 26 in the NCAA Mondo Coaches Poll, the highest ranking the men's team has ever achieved.

"It was huge," men's coach Robert Gary said.

Junior Matt Penza, who finished in the top 40 at the Great American, said the third place finish at the meet was great for the team.

"It was a huge confidence booster to come in like that against top teams," Penza said.

Both the men and women's teams are preparing for the All-Ohio Invitational in Delaware, Ohio this weekend.

For the women's team, this meet represents half a season of hard work.

"Throughout the season we had specific goal races that we set early in the summer," Myers said.

The All-Ohio is a mid-season goal for the team, while the Big Ten Invitational is the ultimate goal Myers said.

Gay said the All-Ohio will be on a hilly course this year, which suits her fine since those are her favorite types of courses.

"The All-Ohio is fun, it's exciting," Gay said.

The men's team will be giving some of its underclassmen a shot this weekend.

"This week at the All-Ohio, we'll give our younger guys a chance to see what they can do in a varsity situation," Gary said. "We'll see how they stack up."

Penza said the team hopes its stellar season so far will force other teams to think twice before a race against it.

"We want to show people that we're ready to go this year," Penza said. "Make them rework their race strategy."

Field hockey shoots to turn heads, beat ranked teams

By Zachary Lint
Lantern sports writer

The Ohio State field hockey team came home from College Park, Md., last weekend with a split decision and will face Big Ten Conference foe Penn State tomorrow.

Sunday gave the Buckeyes a chance to prove they could hang with the No. 2 University of Maryland Terrapins after they defeated University of Maine 2-1 Saturday.

"I thought we matched up well with Maryland," OSU coach Anne Wilkinson said. "We were in a position to beat them and almost had the score 2-2, but going into the half 3-1 kind of lets the air out of your sails."

Even though the Terrapins (12-1 overall, 1-1 Atlantic Coast Conference) won 3-1, OSU proved to itself that it can play with high caliber teams.

"The way we played Maryland showed the level that we can play at," OSU midfielder Lucy Clayton said.

The Maryland loss came just one day after the Maine Black Bears (7-3 overall) finally folded to the Buckeye attack in overtime. Vanessa Immordino scored two goals in the game, marking her 100th career goal at OSU and giving the Buckeyes a 2-1 edge in the contest.

"We played with a lot of character after going down by one to start," Wilkinson said.

Maine stalled throughout the game after scoring the first goal of the contest. Wilkinson said Maine's style of play was tough to deal with but credited her team for sticking with it and creating the scoring opportunities that it did in overtime.

In the Maine victory the Buckeyes lost Clayton, who, despite finishing the game, broke her big toe in the contest when someone missed her shot and ended up hitting Clayton's foot instead.

With Ball State University coming up this week and Penn State this weekend, Wilkinson will be trying to move some players around to take Clayton's spot.

"We have a deep bench," OSU forward and midfielder Deen Rebstock said. "It doesn't matter who comes in to fill Lucy's position, everybody works hard so we should be good."

Clayton, a junior, who is responsible for 61 of OSU's 178 shots this season, will be missed by her teammates but said she hopes to be playing again by the Iowa game on Oct. 17.

Going to Penn State this weekend will give OSU a chance to play a ranked opponent once again when they face the No. 6 Nittany Lions.

"PSU is a good team," Clayton said. "We're getting ourselves together and we got our first Big Ten win against Northwestern. It's important that we do well in the Big Ten and turn some faces when we prove that OSU can beat teams that are ranked."

The Lantern will not publish illegal advertising or the advertising of illegal products or services. The Lantern reserves the right to reject advertising that denigrates individuals, groups or organizations based on race, gender, nationality, ethnicity, religion, mental or physical capacity, veteran's status, age or sexual orientation. The Lantern Business Manager will refer questionable advertising to the Publications Committee of the School of Journalism and Communication. The committee will recommend a decision on whether to publish the advertising to the Director of the school.

1. Complete name, address and telephone number for each advertiser is required.
2. Copy must be furnished by noon three days before publication, except for special publications whose deadlines will be announced.
3. An advertisement is required to occupy at least as many inches in height as columns in width. Any advertisement exceeding 18 inches in height will be considered a "full column" (21 inches) advertisement and charged accordingly.
4. Make-goods and adjustments will be considered for those advertisements only where errors occur in (a) business or group name, address, or phone number, (b) item price or (c) date, time or place of event. The error must be solely the fault of the Lantern. Adjustments will not exceed the cost of the advertisement and will be based on the portion of the advertisement nullified by the error. Minor spelling errors will not qualify for adjustment. Complaints must be registered with the Business Manager within 45 days of publication to qualify; otherwise the advertiser accepts full responsibility.
5. Guaranteed position is sold at the Business Manager's discretion.
6. A composition charge may apply to any changes, revisions or cancellations made after deadline.
7. No proof will be furnished for any advertisement received after deadline or for an ad smaller than seven column inches.
8. If the Lantern finds it necessary to stop contracted advertising because of nonpayment, the advertising agreement will be violated and the advertiser subject to a "re-bill" fee.
9. The Lantern reserves the right to require prepayment for advertising, or to reject advertising, if the advertiser is delinquent in payment, or if the advertiser's credit is impaired. Advertisers must prepay all advertising until a satisfactory credit rating with the Lantern is established. A certified check or money order is required for out-of-town advertisers.
10. Contract advertisers will furnish the Lantern with a "rate-holder" ad meeting contract minimums for use in any contract period for which the advertiser does not provide an ad.
11. A tearsheet will be furnished for all display advertising run in the Lantern. Additional tearsheets are available (limit 15) provided the advertiser requests them from the Lantern office prior to publication.
12. The advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless the Ohio State University, its Board of Trustees and its officers, agents and employees from and against any and all loss, cost and expense, including reasonable attorney fees, resulting from the publication by the Lantern of the advertiser's advertisement.
13. Advertisers in the Lantern agree that they will not represent themselves in any way as being endorsed by the Ohio State University.
14. A mail-order advertiser is required to submit a sample "proof-of-product" prior to publication.
15. Advertisers must request the return of their original ad materials; the Lantern will dispose of such materials 60 days after their first publication.
