Lantern Named Among 10 Best College Dailies

The LANTERN has received an All-American award of superior rating for the 14th consecutive time from the Associated Collegiate Press, Edward L. Wier, editor of the LANTERN, announced today.

The award gives recognition to the LANTERN as being one of the 10 best college daily newspapers in the United States on the basis of the judging standards of the ACP.

Excellent ratings were given to the paper on the following points in news value and sources; adequate coverage of the news; vitality of stories in covering all significant angles; originality in the covering of human-interest stories, and treatment of the stories on the basis of their news value.

In news writing and editing, the LANTERN received excellent rating on the following points: organization of the news content according to accepted newspaper style; on leads featuring the distinctive element of the story; interesting feature stories free from editorial comment; editing, copyreading and proofreading; headlines presenting the significant fact in the story; appealing typography, and a bright, newsy appearance which invites reader interest on the front page and inside pages.

The editorial page, sports pages, and society page were rated as excellent in the complete coverage of their departments, and the interesting manner in which the stories were presented.

Lecture Series Starts Tonight At Museum

The Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society will open its 1950-51 lecture series at the Museum tonight at 8.

John Kent Tilton, director of the Scalander Museum of Textiles, New York City, will speak on "Historical and Contemporary Textiles." Mr. Tilton is also an authority on early American architecture and contemporary design. He will tell of his experiences in the restoration of some famous homes.

One hundred seventeen lengths of textiles designed by Scalander will be shown together with photographs of exteriors and interiors of some of the restored houses.

Mr. Tilton will use color slides in his discussion of the textiles, their designs, and the homes in which they are used.

The exhibit will remain until Oct. 31.

The lecture is open to the public.

Hangs Head In Shame

LONDON, Oct. 5—(AP)—Rajah, an Indian elephant at the London Zoo, pushed a hole in a wall of his cage. On the other side of the wall was the ladies' powder room.

Commission Puts Blame On Engineer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—The Interstate Commerce Commission says an engineer was at fault in the Sept. 11 railroad wreck which killed 33 Pennsylvania National Guardsmen.

The Pennsylvania Railroad's fast passenger train, "Spirit of St. Louis," plowed into the rear of a special troop train near Coshocton. In addition to those killed, 278 were injured.

In a report on its investigation, the ICC said Wednesday that the "Spirit of St. Louis" was not being operated in accordance with signal indications.

The investigators reported that the train was making about 48 miles an hour when it hit the standing troop train, despite "approach" and "stop and proceed" signals.

In addition to these track signals, the report said a flagman from the troop train had run back along the track and given warning signals with lighted fuses.

The Commission said these warnings "were not acknowledged" by the "Spirit of St. Louis."

Both the engineer and the fireman of the train were quoted as saying the visibility was restricted by fog. The time was about 4:40 in the morning.

Eller said he applied his brakes when he saw the warning signals given by the flagman on the troop train.

Red Flannels In Style Today

Students are going to be forced to drag out their ear muffs and red flannels. It looks as though the cold weather is going to stay with us a while longer.

Near freezing temperatures are predicted for Columbus again tonight. Sunny cool October weather will prevail through Thursday with a high of 64. Tonight is expected to be fair and colder with frost in some areas and a minimum temperature of 34 degrees.

Miss Mary Jo Klinker, former University student, listens to the latest Hollywood gossip as told by Wendell Corey, actor. Miss Klinker was in California representing Ohio State at the fifth annual Football Festival held in Berkeley. Corey crowned the queen of the festival and also led the parade as grand marshal. Ten universities participated in the affair sponsored by the Berkeley Junior Chamber of Commerce. Miss Klinker was the University's 1950 May queen.

Exchange Student Studying Here Compares U. S. To Native Japan

Tadashi Yoshida, news editor of Radio Tokyo, attending the University as a special graduate student this year, said that he has been amazed by our way of life and with the United States in general. He arrived here last July to attend school as an exchange student.

Mr. Yoshida thought the things that perplexed him most were the vast miles of uncultivated land, our untouched resources, and the creative minds of our people. "You Americans have much free time and you use it for enjoyment and culture. In Japan we have no free time," he said.

Mr. Yoshida worked for Radio Tokyo, the headquarters of Broadcasting Corporation of Japan, for 11 years. During his first five years at the station he was a member of the educational broadcasting department. The department's broadcasts were not aimed at any specific age group, but were planned for all age levels. From there he transferred to the news section where he rose to his present position.

Prior to his radio work Mr. Yoshida was a reporter for a Tokyo newspaper. At present he is a member of the General Headquarters

Press Club of Japan. While attending the University, Mr. Yoshida will study radio journalism and radio education.

Perseverance Pays Off For Singing Prop Boy

By James M. Yasinow

Perseverance really paid off for Dane Stoll, Ed-4, who turned from prop boy to featured singer on television station WLW-D in Dayton in the short space of last Summer's vacation.

Dane, a music major who traveled to the Rose Bowl as a baritone-playing squad leader of the Ohio State Marching Band, auditioned for a job as a singer on WLW-D last June. At the time he was told that there were no openings on the station's staff.

Eager to get started, Dane took a job as prop boy, setting up props for studio productions, helping engineers, and doing other odd jobs around the station.

His first break came when the station needed a singer for "Pauper's Penthouse," a 15-minute sustaining show under the supervision of Arvie Recore, pianist and staff musician. Dane got the job on the show, and continued to work props in the daytime in addition to singing on the show at night.

Soon afterward, Price Hollister,

Join Fight Against AFM Campus Ban

By Jess Riggie

Phalanx, Independent campus political party, voted to support the Collegians' dance band in its fight against the ban of non-union bands on the campus at a special meeting last night.

The issue will go before the Student Senate tonight in Page Hall. The party policy was adopted after an informal discussion meeting last night in the Union between campus leaders and the Collegians.

Arthur Streng, personal representative of musicians' union president James C. Petrillo, refused an invitation to the meeting on the grounds that he had prior commitments. The local AFM would not permit student representative Eugene D'Angelo, Ed-4, to attend.

The trouble began when the Collegians, members of the Marching Band who joined the Civitas band club organized into a dance band, were hired to play for the "Under the Stars" dances this Summer.

The American Federation of Musicians pulled all union bands from the campus and put the University on its unfair list. They said the hiring of the non-union Collegians violated a 10-year-old oral agreement between Streng and Dean Joseph A. Park to allow no non-union bands on the campus.

Bill Tarrants, speaking for the Collegians, said that any such agreement would constitute a "closed shop" in music, which is outlawed by the Taft-Hartley Law.

Tarrants also denied last night's statements that the union minimum for the "Kickoff" dance would have been $225 as compared to the Collegians' price of $135. He said a union band was paid only $165 for playing for the same dance last year.

The union says that the Collegians are undercutting union scale wages and thus cutting union musicians.

Good Supply Of Tickets For Next 3 Home Games

By Thad Gardner, Lantern Sports Editor

"There are plenty of tickets left for Ohio State's next three home games," said Ticket Director J. Edward Weaver today. The only one that is a positive sellout is Michigan, which has been in that stage since August.

Brisk sales this week make a crowd of 75,000 possible for the Pitt tilt this Saturday.* Weaver reported that nearly 73,000 had been disposed of by Wednesday night. The Buckeye stadium can accommodate over 80,000.

Iowa ducats are moving at a rapid clip since the Hawkeyes walloped Southern California last Friday night. However, a good supply of south bleachers and $3.50 box seats are still to be had. Weaver predicted a 75,000 house for the Buck-Hawk clash on Oct. 28.

Pasteboards for Wisconsin remain, but only south bleacher and field boxes are available. The Badger game is more than a month away yet.

Road game sales find the Northwestern date most popular. Columbus Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a special train for the Evanston game. Next in demand comes the Minnesota meeting carded for Oct. 20 at Minneapolis. Ohio State ticket officials secured 3,500 seats for the Gopher duel.

A large following is expected at Indiana a week hence since over 1300 have been sold for the Hoosier game. Fans are urged to get their orders in for the Indiana clash as soon as possible. By this time next week it is probable the Buck allotment will be gone.

In 1949 the Bucks set a new home attendance record for five games by drawing 382,000 spectators. After the fine draw at the opener with SMU, it is possible last year's mark may be shattered. Unless the Buckeyes fall into losing ways conservative estimates place the expected season total at 388,000.

Ohio State supporters are assured of choice seats for the road games as Conference rules specify the visiting school must get at least 3000 tickets between the goal lines. Except for games at Michigan and Pittsburgh, the Bucks seldom go over that figure.

Buckeyes Liked By All Entries; See Few Upsets

Entries for the second annual LANTERN football prediction contest are pouring into the LANTERN office. Although the ballot only appeared in three issues this week, the response is as high as last year.

Last season the LANTERN ran the contest eight weeks with over 4,000 ballots returned for an average of 500 a week. Strangely enough there were very few perfect entries, and still fewer entrants were able to pick the score of the Ohio State game of the week.

This week, so far, the Bucks are being backed 100 per cent by entrants. Many figure the Scarlet to bounce back from last week's defeat and to down the Panthers by three touchdowns.

Coeds on the campus are urged to join as well as the men. You will probably do as well as some of the would-be experts.

Remember the deadline for entries is noon on Friday. Bring your blanks to the sports desk in Room 216, Journalism Building.

Phils Pin Hopes On Roberts; Reynolds Hurls For Bombers

By Jack Hand

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5—(AP)—Robin Roberts must stop the New York Yankees today—or else. That is the opinion at World Series headquarters as the Phils' 20-game winner prepares to meet Allie Reynolds (16-12) in the second game.

Manager Eddie Sawyer lost his daring gamble on Jim Konstanty in Wednesday's 1-0 opener. But not before his relief ace turned in a pitching job that long will be remembered. Vic Raschi simply threw too hard for the dazed National League champs despite Konstanty's heart-tugging effort.

Now it's up to Roberts, wonder boy of Sunday's pennant clincher. Well rested after his strenuous chore against Brooklyn, Roberts must win or the 1950 series may not come back to Philadelphia.

After today's game at 1 p. m., the clubs move to New York's Yan-

Birds Win Junior Series

(By Associated Press)

The Columbus Red Birds racked up a second conquest for Manager Rollie Hemsley last night in beating the Baltimore Orioles 6 to 3 in the final and winning game of the Little World Series.

Hemsley, who piloted the American Association Red Birds to four wins in five games with the International League champions, managed the Nashville Vols when they won the Southern Association pennant last year.

Even before the little series victory there was speculation that Hemsley, a former star catcher, was slated to succeed Eddie Dyer as manager of the parent St. Louis Cardinals.

Dentistry Classes Held In New Unit

This week students in the College of Dentistry moved into the new Dental College unit of the Medical Health Center for lecture and classroom activities.

The new three-story structure will not be put into complete use until January when laboratory and clinic equipment will have been installed. Until then dental clinics and laboratories will remain in Hamilton Hall, with lectures in the new building. Post-graduate courses are being conducted now in the new building, Dean Wendell D. Postle said.

The new dental building is the first of the four-building Medical Health Center to be put into use. The 11-story, 600-bed hospital, which is the largest unit of the center, will be completed some time next Spring. The two other units—a mental receiving hospital and tuberculosis hospital—also are scheduled for completion early next year.

Space vacated in Hamilton Hall by the College of Dentistry will be taken over by the College of Medicine, which increased its enrollment of new medical students from 88 to 150 this Fall. Hamilton Hall is now undergoing enlargement and remodeling to provide the space and new facilities for the training of the added number of young doctors.

"The main purposes of exchange students are to study the American way of life, to make friends, and to create international goodwill between our countries," according to Mr. Yoshida.

Dwight W. Blauser, 1335 Arlington Ave., has been appointed the new assistant director of the Student Financial Aids Office, it was announced Wednesday.

In his new capacity he will be in charge of the employment unit which helps to find part-time jobs for over 500 students yearly.

Mr. Blauser is very active in the local Kiwanis Club and has a degree from Otterbein College and Ohio State.

Mr. Blauser succeeds C. C. Brackney of Cincinnati who resigned in June to return to his native city.

'Rushing' Too Hard

We feel that it's about time something was said about the sorority and fraternity "rushing" system now being used at Ohio State.

Each fall, there is a mad and hectic two weeks' rushing period, in which most of the rushing for the year is concentrated.

This "rushing" is so timed that it coincides with Orientation Week. Fraternity and sorority members return early, and hold preparatory meetings. Prospective candidates for membership are invited up, through the mails, to visit at noon or evening meals. Entertainment is then provided for the rushees in the evening.

If the man makes a favorable impression, he is invited up again, and usually a bid to join is extended. (This refers to fraternity rushing only, sororities having a slightly different system.)

Then at the end of the week, he makes his choice.

We feel that this system of immediate, all-out rushing falls down in two or three ways.

In the first place, how can any group of men, unless omniscient, judge a man, and know that they want him as a fraternity brother, after only one or two hours association with him?

Unless they use the system of handing out bids to everyone who walks in the door, they will undoubtedly find that they have guessed wrong on several men.

We say guessed, for it often amounts to little more than a guess, or rough estimate, as to how that man will stack up as a fraternity member.

Therefore, several men will be eliminated later, at the leisure of the actives. These men will have been led on and deluded into thinking they are "in" only to awake to cold facts sooner or later. This part, then, is definitely unfair.

Secondly, in many cases, the rushee is away from home for the first time. He is considerably awed by the campus, and as yet probably has few friends here. When a fraternity, composed of campus leaders, etc., shows an interest in him, he is likely to be flattered, and join up, without taking a careful look around, and without seeing if he really likes the members.

In the third place, the rushing by mail leads many men, who do not have a chance of joining, into a feeling of false hope. We know for a fact that many men are struck off rush lists after only one appearance at a house.

This leads us to our plan. We'd like to urge that fraternity and sorority rushing be delayed one full quarter, and that all invitations be made by personal contact.

In this way, the freshman would have a chance to get settled, and to look around, before being rushed. The fraternity would also get a much better chance to observe him.

Also, men will have had a chance to make good on grades.

Men who would never have a chance would not be invited up, only to have their hopes dashed later.

Each year, about this time, a cry urging delayed rushing arises, and many of the fraternities, weary and exhausted after a frantic week, chime in.

But the Council of Fraternity Presidents never brings up the matter until Winter Quarter, by which time unhappy memories have faded.

We'd like to urge that this problem be given due consideration at the first meeting of CFP.

We definitely believe there is a place for fraternities and sororities, but that everything would work out better with delayed rushing.

"Play Ball"

We feel it to be a happy commentary on the American people that, in the midst of a war scare, threatened economic controls, and a generally pessimistic world outlook for the future, they can take time off to forget all cares and enjoy the grand old American sport of baseball.

The eyes of the nation, this week, will be diverted towards horsehide-maddened Philadelphia, and blase New York, home of the Yankees.

For the hungry Phillies, who won the pennant by the barest of margins, it is their first flag in over a quarter of a century.

In totalitarian Russia, or even in most European nations, such excitement over a relatively trivial matter could never occur and would be scoffed at.

But it is just such "foolishness" and spirit that have made America the great nation that it is. We never get to the point where we're taking ourselves too seriously.

Another great American characteristic, sympathy for the underdog, is also in evidence. Although the powerful Yankees are 2-1 betting favorites, the Phillies, mostly kids, are the sentimental favorites. The rank and file will be pulling for them.

So for the next few days, here on campus we feel there'll be a considerable lag in attendance at afternoon classes. It wasn't so bad when instructors had only to compete against the radio, but even the greatest combined raconteur, jester, and informant will be hard put to beat out a television set.

West Germany Wants Bigger Allied Forces

FRANKFURT, Germany (UP)—West German officials and the average German would like to see a sizeable increase in United States and western allied occupation forces in Germany soon.

In the interim, they would like to see more of what western forces are here, complete with tanks, guns and planes.

West German officials admit privately that the greatest possible physical display of United States and western allied military force in Germany is needed to boost sagging West German morale.

Currently, West Germans are in much the frame of mind of the little boy left alone in the house at night for the first time, with instructions to telephone the neighbors if he hears any frightening noises.

The Germans are convinced they have heard the noises. What they want is not the assurance that they can call for help after one intruder breaks in, but the comforting assurance that one of the neighbors is sitting at the foot of the bed, or at least sleeping in the next room.

McCloy Appeals

U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy is acting as salesman for the German appeal for a build-up of United States forces in Germany.

McCloy laid the arguments for increasing United States strength here before President Truman recently. He gave no figures, but sources close to the problem here said McCloy hoped to get a commitment to send two to three additional divisions to Germany, as soon as they can be made available, to bolster the two reported as 1,065 feet but the Hungarian legation told me 1,030).

5. Eiffel Tower, Paris, 948 feet.

6. Television and Radio Tower of Station WKY, Oklahoma City, 962 feet.

7. The "60 Wall Tower," an office building at 60 Wall Street, New York City, 950 feet.

Happening to be in Atlanta the other day, I went to see the 1,057-foot beauty there. Besides being unusual in size, it is unusual in location. Instead of being out in the country, the tower stands on a knoll beside some railroad tracks only a mile or so northeast of the center of the business district.

It is quite an experience to stand a couple of blocks away from the structure and let your eye sweep leisurely up from the base to the top (also it exerts the neck muscles).

Like the WKY antenna in Oklahoma City, the Atlanta tower stands slim and pencil-like—no tapering like the Eiffel Tower—and is supported by guy wires.

Up to the 800-foot level it is three-sided, 14 feet on a side, with a small elevator for the use of repairmen. Above that is the antenna, slenderer than the tower, and no doubt windier for the repairmen.

under-strength United States divisions now on German soil.

This is far short of the 30 or more divisions the military planners believe must be based in West Europe to discourage or to retain, east of the Elbe, any aggressive Soviet move.

However, three additional divisions would be enough to neutralize the danger of any Korean-type invasion of West Germany by the East German "peoples police."

It also would be convincing to the average German, United States and German officials believe, of United States determination to make good on promises to guarantee Germany's external security.

Anything Would Help

Recognizing the scarcity of trained, combat-ready divisions, German officials say even a few additional divisions brought to Germany for training would be welcome as evidence of growing western strength.

Meanwhile, Germans in high places have hinted broadly that what United States, British and French troops are present should be brought out of their isolated and sparsely populated training areas.

They would like to see the coming U. S. Army maneuvers shifted from the remoteness of Grafenwohr, near the Czech border, to areas near major cities where Germans could get a reassuring look at United States tanks, guns and planes. They would like to see United States and British jeeps maneuvering, in combination with British-based bombers, in the skies over Germany's big cities.

The average German, it is pointed out, now seldom sees anything in the United States zone more military than an M.P. jeep or GI's ambling to or from their offices and the post exchange. In the British zone it is possible to drive hundreds of kilometers and through scores of towns without seeing a British soldier. French soldiers make their most impressive showing walking to the Saturday night dances.

Boy With Bean Shooter Piles Up Two Trucks

SPOKANE—(UP)—A boy's accurate aim with a bean shooter caused a two-truck collision.

Don Johnson, truck driver, told police he was driving along when a boy with a bean shooter let fly.

The bean struck Johnson near the eye. He slammed on the brakes and a truck following him crashed into the rear of his vehicle.

Both trucks had to be towed away. The boy could not be found.

Empire State Building Holds Its Laurels As World's Tallest Structure

By Max Hall
(For James Marlow)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5—(AP)—How far above ground can mankind build?

This year we are stabbing the heavens with new structures of awesome height.

A television antenna in Atlanta has shot up to 1,057 feet. This is higher than the Chrysler Building, which is the No. 2 skyscraper of the world.

But the No. 1 skyscraper, the Empire State Building, acting as though it were resolved not to be overtaken, is now hurling itself into the New York sky 217 feet higher than before. That is, a television tower is being built on top.

A few weeks ago, the Empire

State was 1,250 feet tall. Last night it was 1,310 feet. Any minute now, it may become the first man-made structure to reach a quarter of a mile (1,320 feet). By Christmas the building is expected to attain its new full-grown stature of 1,467 feet.

Even this may be surpassed in a few years by new television towers, though plans for a 1,520-footer near Des Moines, Ia., have been abandoned because of the expense. The cost is great, but engineers say that such heights are quite feasible.

I have been looking into this matter of tall structures, and after talking with engineers and government officials, and consulting reference books, I have written down a list of the seven tallest in the world.

I am not sure this list is accurate. For one thing, there may be—somewhere in the world—tall military towers that are being kept hush-hush for security reasons. But the seven tallest non-military structures, so far as I can make out, are as follows:

1. Empire State Building, New York City, now about 1,310 feet, soon to be 1,467 feet.

2. Television Tower at Atlanta, built for Station WCON-TV, not yet operating commercially, 1,057 feet.

3. Chrysler Building, New York City, 1,046 feet.

4. Radio Tower at Budapest, Hungary, 1,030 feet (this has been

Green Halo Disappears As Frosh Adjusts To Life At Ohio State

By Sara Lou Abbett, A-1

Gee, home was never like this! Ohio State certainly is different from Rockford Junction.

I came gaily tripping up the steps of Baker Hall with my green halo shining in the sun. As I stood with my feet glued to the ground and my mouth agape, about 50 upper-classmen came rushing Bumstead-fashion out the door.

Baker Hall cement is hard.

Entering my room, I heard a familiar sound. R-r-r-ing! Was that my telephone? Oh, goodness! Take it easy, kid.

"Hello! Who? Oh, you want to speak with my roommate? Yes, I'll call her. Betts, it's for you again."

Nobody ever calls me.

So off I trudged to the Southern Methodist game. Nothing can compare with the thrill of my first Ohio State football game. And did I love the band! As I sat on my top shelf in the Stadium and watched, it seemed as though the rest of the world and all other worlds might be watching too.

That night I went to the Kickoff Dance, and again I encountered more people than I thought one gym could possibly hold. But I liked it. Where else could you find ten men to one woman? Not in Rockford Junction.

Upon the completion of placement tests, physical examinations, and tours, I was ready to start classes.

I was a little disappointed that none of my professors had mustaches or goatees, but even that seemed unimportant as I realized that at last I was becoming adjusted (psych lingo which I picked up) to Ohio State. The boy sitting next to me is so cute

Carnival To Bolster Westminster DP Fund

Carnival atmosphere will prevail at 64 15th Ave. Saturday night when the Westminster Foundation holds its Lawn Carnival to raise money for its displaced persons fund.

The project, started last year, is financing the education of Miss Anita Melnbrensis, A-3, from Latvia. The slender, blonde four-pointer is here as the result of donations given largely by the student members of the Foundation.

On Friday night from 8:30 to 12 Westminster will hold joint parties at Indianola Presbyterian Church, at 18th and Waldeck Aves., and Northminster Presbyterian Church, 203 King Ave. Students are invited to attend the party nearest to their residence.

The Rev. Ganse Little, minister of Broad Street Presbyterian Church, will speak on "Religion in Education" following a fellowship supper at 6 p. m. Sunday at the Foundation house, 64 15th Ave.

Miss Priscilla Ham is acting director until a new director is appointed to fill the place vacated by the Rev. Leon D. Sanborne in September. He is now minister of Union Church, Berea, Ky.

Newman Club

The banks of the Olentangy will be the scene of the Newman Club's dike party and wiener roast Friday night. Members are asked to meet in front of the Ohio Union at 8 p. m.

Plans for the quarter will be discussed at a business meeting at 2 p. m. Sunday on the third floor of the Ohio Union.

Church of Christ

A Kickoff Party to which new students are especially invited will be held at the W. Fourth Ave. Church of Christ, 296 W. 4th Ave., Friday at 8 p. m.

The program, sponsored by the young people of the church, will include games, square dancing, and a skit.

A Sunday night snack supper and program is also a regular feature of the program.

Roger Williams Club

A Bookduster Pop-in Party will be held Friday at 8 p. m. by the Roger Williams Club of the 10th Ave. Baptist Church, 102 W. 10th Ave. There will be games, dancing, and refreshments.

A snack lunch preceding the football game will be served from 11 a. m. to 1:15 p. m. Saturday. This is open to the public.

"How We Got Our Bible" is the subject being studied by the Sunday School class which meets for breakfast and discussion at 10 a. m.

Sunday.

Some 50 Bible leaves and manuscripts dating from the 12th century will be on display. Included are leaves from the King James, London Polyglot, Miniature, and Doves Bibles.

A period of recorded symphony music will highlight the "Hour of Beauty" in the church sanctuary at 5:45 p. m. Sunday. A fellowship supper will follow, after which Dr. Everett J. Kircher, of the College of Education, will speak on "What Is This Place Called College?"

A Fireside Hour will follow at the home of the Rev. Earl Bloomquist, 1532 Worthington St.

Style Show Features Versatile Separates; Colors Are New, Exciting; Materials Soft

By Betty Ann Martin

Versatile separates . . . soft corduroys, wool jerseys, and flannels . . . new, exciting colors.

This was the fashion picture presented at the Pomerene Activities Council style show and tea Wednesday afternoon in Pomerene Hall.

It was the first of the mass meetings which the Council plans to hold every two weeks. Models were all members of the Council.

Versatility was the keynote of the show, with dresses featuring detachable collars, overskirts for evening wear, and separates. One particularly attractive dress of deep purple featured a plaid skirt of the same shade with a matching detachable scarf.

Smoke Color Is New

Another sheath dress of black crepe acquired a party-party air when topped with an overskirt of black net. An unusual smoky effect was achieved with a panel of white organdy under the skirt in the front.

A paler shade of this same color—not snow-white, not tattle-tale gray, but a sort of ashen—was featured in a trim linen blouse with a double collar and black trimming. It was worn with a dressy black skirt.

In another dress of the new coat-dress style, this same smoky color was carried out in a dark shade of gray flannel.

Another new color which was featured in a frothy formal—strapless and net—was honeybun, a very pale rust. The effect, with the model's long red hair, was exciting!

Necklines Still Low

Low necklines are still very much in. Most of the date dresses had them, often with wide, stand-up collars. One corduroy jumper had the very, very low rounded French neckline. It was shown with a gold blouse of wool jersey.

In general, the dresses shown met the college girl's edict of exciting simplicity.

Preceding the style show, punch was poured from a table decorated with green candles and yellow mums, by Miss Nancella Jones, Pomerene social director.

Models were Janet Redman, Barbara Moore, Gloria Davis, Audree Mayer, Barbara Hartman, Joyce Butz, and Myra Hartman.

Swim Group Will Hold Tryouts

Calling all ducks, goldfish, and gals who can swim!

Swan Club, women's swimming organization, announced today that tryouts for membership will be held Tuesday at 7 p. m. and Wednesday at 6 p. m. in Pomerene pool.

The test includes ability to swim all strokes, dolphin, back and front somersault, and a dive from the edge of the pool within a distance of five yards.

University To Hold Ad Conference

Retail Exec To Speak At Luncheon Session Friday At Chittenden

Fred Lazarus, Jr., president of Federated Department Stores, Inc., and one of the nation's best known retail executives, will be the principal speaker at the luncheon session Friday of Ohio State's annual Advertising and Sales Promotion Conference at the Chittenden Hotel.

The Fifth District of the Advertising Federation of America, representing advertising clubs in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, and West Virginia, is cooperating with the University in sponsoring the event this year.

A native of Columbus, Mr. Lazarus began his career with F. & R. Lazarus & Co. in 1902. He is now a director of this firm as well as of several others.

Winner of the 1949 Tobe Award for distinguished contributions to American retailing, Mr. Lazarus serves as a member of the Business Advisory Council for the Department of Commerce, of the National Planning Association Board, and is a member of the executive committee of the American Retail Federation, Washington, D. C.

President Bevis will extend the University's greetings to conferees at the luncheon. Session chairmen will be Dean W. C. Weidler of the College of Commerce and Administration.

Mr. Lazarus will be one of some 29 industrial and retailing executives and advertising authorities who will appear on the program during the two-day conference, of which Dr. Kenneth Dameron of Ohio State is general chairman. Sessions will be held at the Fort Hayes Hotel and the Chittenden.

Columbus participants in the conference will include Mrs. Mary Morgan, L. H. McReynolds, Harry Nichols, and Joel Burghalter.

Mr. Burghalter will be a discussion leader for the opening conference session on advertising trends. Mrs. Morgan and Mr. McReynolds will lead discussions on retail and national advertising trends, respectively, at afternoon meetings, Friday. Mr. Nichols will serve as chairman of a session on trends in advertising agency management to be held the same day.

Thief Fishes Out Rings

PORT WORTH, Tex.—(UP)—A new burglary method without entering a place was reported by the N. C. Hall Jewelry Co., which was a $2,000 victim. The burglar poked an air pistol through heavy wire grill placed over display windows at night. Numerous shots left a small hole in the window, after which a wire hook was used to fish out 10 expensive diamond rings.

Dr. Blumberg Library Sold To Brandeis U.

Two-year-old Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., has acquired the 1500-volume library of the late Dr. Henry Blumberg, founder of Ohio State's school of applied mathematics.

Acquisition of the library, the lifetime collection of Dr. Blumberg, was announced Thursday by Dr. Abram L. Sacher, president of the non-sectarian, Jewish-sponsored institution.

Dr. Blumberg, one of the nation's foremost mathematicians, died this year at the age of 69. A native of Brooklyn, and a graduate of Columbia University, he was the only American ever to have received a degree cum laude from Goettingen University in Germany.

Grad Students AEC Appointees

Siegfried J. Muessig and Bernard R. Linden, both graduate students were appointed by the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission to continue their studies in fields related to atomic energy. The two students were among 148 appointed by the commission in Chicago.

The studies will be continued at midwest colleges and universities. The students will receive $1500 and $1600 annually in the biological and physical sciences fields, respectively. Study began Oct. 1 and will continue until June 3, 1951.

Grad Student Does Study On Non-Degree Program

Survey Shows Inadequacy Of Opportunities For Post-High School Education In Ohio

Post-high school educational opportunities in non-degree programs of study in Ohio are still woefully inadequate in meeting present and future needs.

This information was revealed in a research study conducted by Newton Rochte, Grad, under the supervision of Dr. Andrew Hendrickson of the University's Bureau of Special and Adult Education. The report is based on a survey of non-degree programs made by the Ohio State bureau in co-operation with the Graduate School and the Ohio College Association.

The study evolved from a previous survey made by an OCA committee which reported at the association's 1949 meeting in Columbus: "(1) that 52 of every 100 students entering the freshman year do not graduate and that approximately one-third of these drop out because of academic difficulties; (2) that with perhaps only one exception no non-degree programs are available in Ohio for full-time students; and (3) that even in highly populated municipalities, almost all non-degree students take their work in degree rather than non-degree programs."

The initial survey, according to Dr. Hendrickson, was made in response to pressures for forms of education suitable to the 75 percent of Ohio youth of college age who are not accommodated by post-secondary educational institutions. The increasing emphasis which American society has put upon education in recent years contributed to this "accumulation of pressures," he pointed out.

Objective of the Rochte study, published this summer, was to determine what is being done in Ohio to meet an acknowledged need for post-high school educational programs "which are less comprehensive than those required for a standard bachelor's degree."

It was found that 37,707 persons were enrolled in non-degree programs in OCA colleges during 1948-49, but that 58 percent of this number were in programs offered primarily for students intending to take a degree. A total of 93 percent were part-time students; most were in colleges and universities located in the larger metropolitan Ohio communities.

Through interviews with officials at several institutions offering the "optional degree" programs, it was learned that approximately half of their non-degree students, when asked, announced their intention of working toward a degree.

Collegians Have Support Of Phalanx In Union Fight

cians out of jobs. Tarrants admits their prices are slightly under union scale, adjusted to fit the budgets of dance sponsors, some of whom would not be able to afford live orchestras if forced to pay the union scale.

The Phalanx party policy is to support the Collegians in their stand that students have a right to organize and play for their own entertainment and that of others, and that campus organizations should be free to hire whatever orchestra or band they want.

If the ban is enforced it will deprive many students of an outlet for their musical talents, Phalanx argues. The Collegians have signed contracts for the Mistletoe Prom and four Pomerene dances this Fall, as well as off-the-campus fraternity dances which would not be affected unless the ban is extended.

No attempt was made to minimize the consequences should the Senate vote tonight to oppose the union, but Young pointed out that the New York State Teachers' College has been fighting a similar ban for several years now.

University of Pennsylvania capitulated to union demands last year after several months of fighting the ban of union musicians, unaware that the National Students Association, which includes many colleges, was preparing to support the University in its stand for non-union bands. Ohio State withdrew from the organization last year, but some hope was held that, even so, the NSA might be willing to help students at Ohio State if such a stand should be taken here.

It was pointed out that when the University of Pennsylvania did submit to union demands for prohibiting non-union bands, union musicians were quick to return to the campus.
