It is a pleasure to welcome to our campus so many members of the larger University community. The occasion of Ohio State's 300th commencement is a grand opportunity to reaffirm our historic relationships with the many and diverse constituencies which we serve. The Ohio State University is proud of its traditional linkages with its home community and those community members who, by their active involvement, enrich campus life so much. We hope you will enjoy this evening and take the opportunity to renew your friendship with your University.

Sincerely,

Edward H. Jennings

125 Years of History

"The Ohio State University, 1870-1995: 125 Years of History," the current exhibition in the Philip Sills Exhibit Hall at The Ohio State University's Main Library, illustrates the history of the University from its origins to the present through materials from University Archives, a department of University Libraries.

Particularly noteworthy are the numerous photographs of people, places, and events. In fact, University Archives has more than one million images, probably the largest repository of academic photographs in the United States. Also included are books, the original scarlet and grey ribbons chosen as the University's colors, and publications.

Special themes of the exhibit are: The founding and early years, the beginning of University Libraries, and the University during the administrations of presidents William Oxley Thompson, George Washington Rightmire, Howard L. Bevis, Novice G. Fawcett, Harold Enarson, Edward Jennings, and E. Gordon Gee. In addition the display highlights historical celebrations of the past and the history of The Ohio State University Archives.

The exhibit runs through June 9, 1995. The Main Library is open 7:45 am - 12:00 midnight Monday through Thursday; 7:45am - 10:00pm Friday; 8:00am - 10:00pm Saturday; 11:00am - 12:00 midnight Sunday; and is located at 1858 Neil Avenue Mall. Parking is available at the Ohio Union garage. Further information may be obtained by contacting Raimund E. Goerler (614-292-2409).
