Honorary Lauds Spring Initiates

Spring initiates of Beta Gamma Sigma were honored at a banquet Wednesday evening in the Faculty Club.

Twenty-four new members and one honorary were initiated before the banquet.

Beta Gamma Sigma is a national honor society for college graduates, undergraduates and faculty members in the field of business administration. Election to the society is based upon an accumulative point hour of 3.25 for seniors and a 3.5 for juniors.

Jerry E. Nathan, Commerce 2, was honored as the leading freshman scholar in the College of Administrative Sciences. He maintained a 3.75 point hour as of Spring Quarter 1967.

William B. Hoyer, general agent for John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., was the honorary and speaker at the banquet. His topic was "Leadership." He told the audience that to be successful, they must think successful.

Faculty members chosen by the society were Irving Abramowitz, professor of business organization; Fred E. Kindig, professor of business organization; Felix P. Kollaritsch, professor of accounting; and Halbert C. Smith, professor of business organization.

Graduate students initiated were William F. Bentz, Roger F. Davis and Daniel W. DeHayes.

New members initiated as juniors were Thomas L. Clark, David W. Ennis and John G. McWilliams.

Other honored guests at the banquet were the students initiated during Autumn and Winter quarters.
