OHIO STATE FISHER COLLEGE OF BUSINESS HONORS TOP ALUMNI

COLUMBUS -- Restaurant magnate Alex Schoenbaum, retired state senator Ted Gray, and financial consultant George Gummer were recognized with awards Friday (9/16) by the Max M. Fisher College of Business Alumni Society at The Ohio State University.

Schoenbaum was honored with the Distinguished Alumni Award; Gray and Gummer were each presented the Alumni Community Service Award by Joseph A. Alutto, dean of the college.

Alutto also presented Bryan L. Kelln, a management consultant, and Lynn M. Edens, a research analyst, with the Young Professional Achievement Award.

The recipients were selected by the Alumni Society Awards Committee from nominations by alumni, faculty, staff and students.

Schoenbaum, a resident of Charleston, W.V., and Longboat Key, Fla., is a director and retired senior chairman of Shoney's Inc., the company he founded in the 1940s. Well known for their philanthropic activities, Schoenbaum and his wife, Betty, have supported their alma mater, benefiting such programs as the Schoenbaum Scholars Program, which provides scholarships to students in the colleges of Business and Education, the Department of Athletics, and the Betty Schoenbaum Critical Difference for Women Re-Entry Scholarship Fund. Schoenbaum is a member of the Ohio State University Foundation Board and the Max M. Fisher College of Business Campaign Committee. Schoenbaum was an All-American football player at Ohio State, graduating in 1939 with a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration.

Gray served in the Ohio Senate from 1951 to 1994, the longest tenure in state history. First elected while still a student at Ohio State, Gray started out in his hometown of Piqua and after a series of redistricting moves, finished his career as a resident of Upper Arlington. He served 10 years as president pro tempore of the Senate, and chaired a number of committees over the years. He graduated from the college in 1950.

Gummer is president of G.A. Gummer & Associates, a Columbus-based firm which provides financial consulting services to banks, savings and loans, corporations and private individuals in the areas of portfolio management, investment planning and long-term debt financing. He serves as executive director of the Ohio Mortgage Bankers Association of Ohio, and as a board member of Commerce National Bank, Salesian Inner City Boys' Club, the Ohio Council on Economic Education, Central Ohio Center for Economic Education, and St. Catherine's Parish Council. A former vice president and division head of Bank One, Gummer graduated from Ohio State in 1967 with a Bachelor of Science degree, majoring in finance with a minor in accounting.

Kelln, of Naperville, Ill., is a principal in the Operations Management Practice at Mercer Management Consulting where he handles a wide variety of logistics engagements for retailers, distributors, and manufacturers. He joined Temple, Barker & Sloane Inc. in 1990 after earning his Master of Business Administration degree from Ohio State. He has returned to Ohio State to speak with students and offer guidance. Kelln has a Bachelor of Arts degree in economics from Washington State University. He is a member of the Council of Logistics Management.

Edens, of New York City, is vice president of Goldman, Sachs & Co. where she is responsible for coordinating research strategies and recommendations across all sectors of the domestic fixed income markets. She formerly served as head of mortgage market research. Edens has twice been named to Institutional Investor's list of outstanding mortgage market analysts. She earned two degrees from Ohio State: a Bachelor of Science degree in business administration, majoring in finance, and a Master of Business Administration degree.

The Max M. Fisher College of Business Alumni Society recently honored five of its top alumni members.

Former OSU All-American football player and restaurant magnate Alex Schoenbaum was honored with the Distinguished Alumni Award, said Dr. John D. Stegman, director of alumni affairs.

Schoenbaum, earned his bachelor's degree in business administration in 1939. During the 1940's, Schoenbaum founded the well-known restaurant chain, Shoney's Inc.

Through programs such as the Schoenbaum Scholars Program and the Betty Schoenbaum Critical Difference for Women Re-Entry Scholarship Fund, the Schoenbaum's have offered continuous support to their alma mater, Stegman said.

Currently, Schoenbaum serves as a member of the OSU Foundation Board and the Max M. Fisher College of Business Campaign Committee.

Joseph A. Alutto, dean of the college of business presented retired state senator, Ted Gray and financial consultant George Guemer with the Alumni Community Service Award.

Gray was first elected while still a student and served on the Ohio Senate from 1951 to 1994, the longest tenure in state history. Gray has chaired a number of committees and served 10 years as President Pro Tempore of the Senate, Stegman said.

"It was a very nice, very pleasant experience," said Gray. "I was very honored."

Guemer is the president of G.A. Guemer & Associates, a Columbus-based financial consulting firm. He currently serves as executive director of the Ohio Mortgage Bankers Association of Ohio, and as a board member to several organizations such as Salesian Inner City Boy's Club, the Ohio Council on Economic Education and St. Catherine's Parish Council.

Guemer graduated in 1967 with a bachelor's degree in finance and a minor in accounting.

The Young Professional Achievement Award was presented to Bryan L. Kelin, a management consultant, and Lynn M. Edens, a research analyst.

Kelin works in the Operations Management Practice at Mercer Management Consulting.

Kelin earned his bachelor's degree in economics from Washington State University and his MBA from Ohio State. He has returned to Ohio State to speak with students and offer guidance.

Edens currently serves as vice president of Goldman, Sachs & Co. She has been named twice to Institutional Investor's list of outstanding mortgage market analysts.

Edens earned her bachelor's degree and master's degree in business administration from Ohio State.

"It was great to get together with other alumni," Edens said. "Once I left school, I found that the skills I had picked up were immediately applicable and they have been an important contribution to my success."

Recipients of this annual award are nominated by faculty, staff, and students and are chosen by the Alumni Society Awards Committee which is composed of six member of the Alumni Board, Stegman said.

William Yeack, C.S.E.
Executive Vice President
Integralis AG

Bill was a member of the Professor Burns accounting classes of the 1970s and graduated from The Ohio State University, with B.A. in accounting in three years (1980). Under the sponsorship of Dean Georges, Bill then went on to receive a MBA in 1981. After graduation Bill joined "the Firm," Arthur Andersen, and was a successful member of the Andersen Consulting Practice. Subsequent to his tenure in the firm, Bill was at numerous high technology organizations.

After graduation and for the next 25 years Bill has lived in and worked in just about every industrial nation in the world (and many others). Traveling in excess of over one million air miles per year, Bill has experienced three Coup d'etas, four hotel fires and five riots. Bill has many global experiences and has published accounts of some of these.

Bill is recognized as a resourceful, team-oriented global executive with more than 25 years experience in driving rapid growth in Recurring Revenue sectors of the information technology industry. He has a demonstrated ability to create and implement successful marketing strategies and form synergistic business alliances that protect investment and assure attainment of targeted returns. Specializing in global transformational leadership he has a proven record of building global, hypervelocity growth organizations through revenue and profitability leadership. He has extensive experience with international development and operations and mergers and acquisitions. As one of the Internet luminaries from the 1990's, Bill worked early and aggressively to establish the reality of the Managed and Professional Services vision in the industry as EVP of Services at Exodus Communications and President of Tandem Services as well as leading emerging global financial services projects for Accenture (formerly Andersen Consulting). Bill is a seasoned public industry speaker, and has published over 25 books and articles.

Oh come let's sing Ohio's praise,
And songs to Alma Mater raise;
While our hearts rebounding thrill,
With joy which death alone can still.
Summer's heat and winter's cold,
The seasons pass, the years will roll;
Time and change will surely show
How firm thy friendship O-HI-O.
