Introduction

The Non-Senate Papers Sub-Group contains 147 cubic feet of records documenting the life of John H. Glenn, Jr. prior to and after his 1975 to 1999 career in the United States Senate. The sub-group contains records dating from 1942 to 1964 documenting the twenty-three years Glenn served as a combat and test pilot in the United States Marine Corps. Other records within the sub-group pertain to his assignment to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration from 1959 to 1964 as one of the original seven Project Mercury astronauts. Additional NASA records document Glenn's return to space in 1998 as a crewmember of the Space Shuttle Discovery mission STS-95. Also located within the sub-group are records from Glenn's corporate career from 1964 to 1974. Other materials date from his boyhood in New Concord, Ohio, and from his time as a student at Muskingum College. In addition, the sub-group contains the records of Glenn's wife, Anna (Annie) Margaret Castor Glenn, along with some materials pertaining to both the Glenn and Castor families. Other records document Glenn's continued involvement in public service activities after his retirement from the U.S. Senate in 1999 until his death in December 2016.

Access: The Non-Senate Papers Sub-Group is open to public research under the rules and regulations of The Ohio State University.

Copyrights: John and Anna Glenn dedicated such copyrights as they possess in the Non-Senate Papers Sub-Group to the public. Consideration of all other copyrights is the responsibility of the author and the publisher.

Arrangement: The records within the Non-Senate Papers Sub-Group are arranged into six series: Family Records, Military Records, NASA Records, Corporate Records, Post-Senate Records, and Personal Correspondence. The Family Series is arranged further into a sub-series for family records and a sub-series for the records of Annie Glenn. The NASA Series is divided into the two sub-series of Mercury Seven Records and STS-95 Records.

Processing Note: Jeffrey W. Thomas, along with staff member, Michelle Drobik, and volunteer, Dick Thomas, processed and arranged the Non-Senate Papers Sub-Group from 2002 to 2003. In processing and arranging the collection a careful effort was made to preserve whenever possible the original order and filing systems found within each series. Subject files generally are arranged in alphabetical order by folder heading, with the documents within folders arranged in chronological order. Correspondence files may be arranged either in chronological order, or in some instances, alphabetically by the author's last name. Large folders originally housed in expanding files were separated for preservation purposes into smaller files by logical subheadings or simply labeled part 1, part 2, etc. Additional materials were added to the collection in 2006 and on a yearly basis from 2010 to 2017.

Scope and Content Note

Series 1: Family Records

Boxes 1 – 11

Sub-series 1: Family

Boxes 1 – 4

The Family Sub-series contains four cubic feet of records dating from the 1890s to the 1960s. Contained within the sub-series are materials pertaining to the childhood and schooling in New Concord, Ohio, of John H. Glenn, Jr. and his wife, Anna (Annie) Margaret Castor Glenn, along with materials pertaining to their respective parents and families. Glenn's childhood materials contain such memorabilia as his baby book, his report cards from elementary school, and the notebook he kept on his boyhood club, the Ohio Rangers. Also included are reports written by Glenn on various school subjects, his class notes and handbooks, and newspapers from Glenn's high school years and from the time he spent as a student at Muskingum College. Notable within the college records are Glenn's original civil aviation pilot's license and log book dating from 1941.

Other items include Glenn family genealogical information, newspaper clippings, and some awards and honors dating from the 1960s. Also included are miscellaneous items from Annie Glenn's schooling, such as a music book and a workbook. The Glenn family materials also contain letters and newspaper clippings pertaining to Glenn's parents, John H., Sr. and Clara Sproat Glenn. Much of this material dates from the early 1960s and relates to the honors and recognition they received following the Friendship 7 space flight. Mrs. Clara Glenn, for example, was named "Mother of the Year" in 1962. The Glenn family materials also contain such memorabilia as John and Clara Glenn's wedding announcement and Clara Glenn's teaching certificate.

Most of the small amount of Castor family materials within the sub-series consists of the correspondence and newspaper clippings received and compiled by Annie Glenn's parents, Dr. Homer and Margaret Castor. The majority of the correspondence and clippings date from the early 1960s and pertain to John Glenn's Friendship 7 space flight and the events that followed it. Also included are items from Dr. Castor's college years and materials pertaining to an award he received from the American Dental Association in 1962. The Castor family materials also contain a few items from the childhood of Jane Castor, Annie Glenn's sister.

Box four of the sub-series contains two scrapbooks, mostly of newspaper clippings, on the Friendship 7 space flight sent to John H. Glenn, Sr. A fan compiled the first scrapbook and it is included in the collection as a typical example of the many such scrapbooks sent to the parents of John Glenn by the general public. The office of Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson compiled the second scrapbook as a memento of the events surrounding John Glenn's space flight. A third scrapbook contains newspaper clippings on a 1962 conference John H. Glenn, Sr. attended in Chicago.

Sub-series 2: Annie Glenn Files

Boxes 5 – 11

The Annie Glenn files consist of six cubic feet of records, dating from the 1960s to 2017, along with six scrapbooks dating from 1957 through 1963. The records document the activities of John Glenn's wife, Anna (Annie) Margaret Castor Glenn and consist of correspondence, speeches, subject files, and travel files. To a large extent, the records pertain to Annie Glenn's lifelong struggle with a severe stuttering problem, a condition she overcame through intensive speech therapy in the 1970s.

The correspondence files consist of incoming letters dating from 1959 to 2010. Carbon copies of Annie Glenn's replies are paired with some of this correspondence. Letters from 1974 through 1985 are arranged alphabetically by the author's name. Another files contain general correspondence arranged in chronological order. Other letters from the 1980s are filed separately into folders by type or topic. Many of the letters concern Mrs. Glenn's speech difficulties, her public appearances after undergoing therapy, her advice to individuals with similar speech problems, and her advocacy for speech and hearing organizations. Also included are invitations for Mrs. Glenn to either speak at or participate in various events, and letters concerning her work with charitable organizations. Scattered throughout the correspondence are a few letters pertaining to the political affairs of her husband and the Democratic Party.

The chronologically arranged speech files date from 1979 to 2004. Contained within the files are copies of Annie Glenn's speeches, along with correspondence, programs, and other materials pertaining to the event. Most of the speeches are for charitable organizations in which Mrs. Glenn was involved, including a variety of speech and hearing organizations. Other speeches were given in support of the political campaigns of her husband and include speeches from John Glenn's 1980, 1986, and 1992 senate re-election campaigns, as well as his 1984 presidential campaign. Notable within the speech files is a copy of Mrs. Glenn's first public speaking engagement, which took place at the Women's City Club in Canton, Ohio, on September 15, 1979. In this speech Mrs. Glenn gave a moving portrayal of the problems she coped with due to her stuttering and how her life had changed after undergoing speech therapy.

The subject files date from 1963 to 2017, though the majority of the files date from the 1980s and 1990s. The files document Annie Glenn's work with and support of a variety of charitable organizations, most notably organizations centered on speech and hearing disabilities. Mrs. Glenn also was involved in organizations concerned with child abuse, domestic violence, mental retardation, homelessness, and women's health. A few of the subject files pertain to Mrs. Glenn's activities with women's groups within the Democratic Party. Also located within the subject files are some newspaper clippings from the 1980s and 1990s, along with files of newspaper clippings and ephemera dating from 1961 to 1967 from folders originally labeled "For Scrapbooks" by Mrs. Glenn.

The trip files date from the 1970s to the 1990s and contain itineraries, correspondence, schedules, and background materials for the various trips, mostly to foreign countries, Annie Glenn took during this time period. Some of these trips were Congressional junkets in which Mrs. Glenn accompanied her husband. Of note are five journals Mrs. Glenn kept during five of these congressional trips, including travel to the People's Republic of China and the Middle East in 1976, trips to the Soviet Union in 1984 and 1990, and a trip to South Asia in 1984. Most of the files, however, are for various conferences that Mrs. Glenn attended, including trips to Taiwan in 1987, to India in 1989, and to both Jordan and Greece in 1994. A few of the files pertain to family travel, such as a trip to the Galapagos Islands in 1996.

Boxes nine through eleven contain six scrapbooks, dated 1957 and 1959 to 1963, compiled by Mrs. Glenn on the activities of her husband as a test pilot for the Marine Corps and as a Project Mercury astronaut. The majority of the materials within the scrapbooks are chronologically arranged newspaper clippings, though scattered throughout the books are a few letters, ephemera, and photographs. The 1957 scrapbook contains materials on Project Bullet, John Glenn's record setting transcontinental flight. The remaining scrapbooks pertain to NASA's Project Mercury and offer a good synopsis of America's first efforts to put a man in space as reported by the national media.

Series 2: Military Records

Boxes 12 – 18

The military records consist of seven cubic feet of materials dating from 1942 to 1965, along with oversized items dating from the 1940s. These records document John Glenn's twenty-three years as a pilot in the U.S. Marine Corps. The first eleven files in the series contain copies of Glenn's official records as compiled by the Marine Corps. Records within the files are in their original order, arranged in three sections labeled commendatory, performance, and service. The commendatory files contain documents pertaining to Glenn's promotions, citations, and awards. The performance files contain fitness reports on Glenn written by his superior officers, while the service files contain various orders, physical fitness reports, and miscellaneous documents.

The remainder of the series consists of files arranged in rough chronological order, divided into five sections titled World War II, Post War, Korean War, Test Pilot and Log Books. Many of the files contain routine documents pertaining to Glenn's changes of duty station and his various promotions and awards. Within the World War II section are records of his civilian flight training in 1941 as well as his manuals, handbooks, and notes from the military flight schools he attended in Iowa and Texas from 1942 to 1943. Other notable files contain materials pertaining to VMO-155, the squadron Glenn flew combat missions with in the Marshall Islands. These items include a journal kept by Glenn, a handbook, an official "war diary" dating from January and February 1945, and a history of the squadron covering the years 1942 to 1944. Located within box 12 is a scrapbook containing annotated newspaper clippings, along with a few photographs and letters, compiled by Glenn during his flight training in 1942 and 1943. Box 12 also contains a navigational workbook used by Glenn during his training at Corpus Christi, Texas in 1942.

Much of the Post-War section consists of routine orders, though notable among these are documents pertaining to VMF-218, the squadron Glenn flew with while posted in northern China and Guam in 1946 and 1947. Other files contain records from Glenn's training at the Naval School of All-Weather Flight at Corpus Christi, Texas in 1950.

The Korean War section contains extensive files from Glenn's training, from July through December 1951, at the Amphibious Warfare School in Quantico, Virginia. Other files contain articles Glenn wrote for the Marine Corps Gazette in 1951 and 1952. The files pertaining to Glenn's combat flying during the war include a series of annotated maps of the Korean Peninsula showing mission targets, some operational documents and handbooks from VFM-311, the Marine Corps squadron he flew with in Korea, a letter Glenn wrote to his wife, Annie, in March 1953 providing some mission details, and a handwritten listing of the combat missions he flew from February to May 1953. Another file contains letters Glenn wrote to his family that provide detailed descriptions of the three MiG-15 aircraft he shot down while serving on temporary duty with the U.S. Air Force in June and July 1953. Also of note is a report Glenn wrote, dated August 1953, on aerial dogfight tactics between F-86 Sabre aircraft and MiG-15 jets.

The Test Pilot section consists of numerous files pertaining to Glenn's posting to and training at the Naval Aviation Test Center at Patuxent River, Maryland in 1953 and 1954. Other files contain routine orders and documents for his temporary duties at various postings around the country. Also included are extensive files on Project Bullet, Glenn's 1957 record setting transcontinental flight. Among these files are maps, planning documents, correspondence, and other official records of the flight. Other files contain materials pertaining to the national publicity Glenn received as a result of his record setting flight. These materials include newspaper and magazine clippings, fan mail, and items from Glenn's appearance on the national television program "Name That Tune." Since Glenn continued as an officer in the Marine Corps during his assignment to NASA's Mercury Program in 1959, the Test Pilot section contains a few records dating from the 1959 to 1965 time period. Notable among these documents is an official notice Glenn received informing him that due to his failure to complete a required written and flight examination he was permitted to fly only as a co-pilot. Glenn received this notice in January 1962, one month prior to his historic flight aboard the Friendship 7 spacecraft.

The Log Books section contains Glenn's official log book from his civilian flight training course in 1941, and five log books kept during his military service in the U.S. Marine Corps, dating from 1942 to 1964. Also included are flight documents from his years in the U.S. Senate, including a log book, dating from 1977 to 1980, and logs of various flights dating from 1993 to 1994.

Series 3: NASA Records

Boxes 19 – 89

Sub-series 1: Mercury Seven

Boxes 19 – 74

The Mercury Seven Sub-series consists of fifty-eight cubic feet of correspondence, memoranda, notes, reports, manuals, publications, newspaper clippings, and related materials dating from 1958 to 1973, though the bulk of the materials date from 1959 to 1964. The records document the six years John Glenn was assigned to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) as one of the original Mercury Seven astronauts. Also included are materials relating to his continued association with NASA after he left the program in 1964. The sub-series is divided into the two main categories of personal files and working papers.

Personal Files

The thirty-six cubic feet of personal files consist of correspondence, fan mail, newspapers, resolutions and proclamations, subject files, and scrapbooks. The personal files generally relate to the publicity and recognition John Glenn received as a Mercury astronaut and provide insights into the elevation of Glenn to the status of a national hero following his historic space flight aboard the Friendship 7 spacecraft on February 20, 1962.

The correspondence located within the personal files (boxes 19-22) contains John Glenn's appointment calendars for the years 1960 through 1963, in which are Glenn's handwritten annotations about his schedule during his years as an astronaut in NASA's Project Mercury Program. Also included are a series of files containing letters, with some replies, written to John and Annie Glenn during this time period from various family members, friends, and some politicians and celebrities. Most of the four cubic feet of correspondence consists of invitations and requests sent to John Glenn from 1959 to 1964, though most letters date from February 1962 through December 1963. The majority of the letters are invitations for Glenn to speak or appear at a wide variety of events around the country and throughout the world. Scattered among the invitations are requests for Glenn to provide the author with such things as a memento, a statement, or an endorsement. The correspondence is divided into two sets of files. The first set was compiled by Glenn or a clerical assistant and is sorted by year from 1959 through 1963. Letters within each year are in alphabetical order by the author's last name and may be paired with a carbon copy of Glenn's reply. Compiled by NASA's Astronaut Affairs Office, the second set of files contains letters dating from 1962 to 1964. Letters within this second set of files also are arranged in alphabetical order by the author's last name and may be paired with a carbon copy of the reply sent by Donald Slayton as the Coordinator of Astronaut Affairs.

The fan mail included within the personal files (boxes 23-36) consists of fourteen cubic feet of letters and other materials sampled from the hundreds of thousands of letters written to John Glenn by admirers from 1959 to 1966. This fan mail provides some understanding about the impact Glenn's Friendship 7 space flight had upon the American public and what it meant to individuals in countries around the globe. The fan mail also provides insights on how John Glenn became the most acclaimed American hero since Charles Lindbergh. As originally received, the fan mail consisted of 137 boxes containing approximately 200,000 pieces of mail sent to Glenn from every state in the union and from eighty-nine foreign countries. Whether or not this number represents all the fan mail Glenn received in the early 1960s or is simply the number that survived in storage is not known. The collection does include a report written by Stephen Grillo of NASA's Administrative Services Division containing details about the mail received by John Glenn from February 20 to August 31, 1962. The report provides a listing by type of letter for an approximate number of 88,000 letters received during this time period.

When initially received the fan mail was devoid of any type of arrangement. Most boxes lacked folders and simply contained a pile of letters. The exception was two boxes marked "Book Consideration," which contained those letters John Glenn and his family sorted and arranged for possible inclusion in his book, P.S., I Listened to Your Heart Beat: Letters to John Glenn, published in 1964 by World Book Encyclopedia Science Service, Inc. The letters contained within these two boxes were ones that Glenn set aside, but did not include in the book. All of these "Book Consideration" letters are included in the fan mail, arranged in the categories developed by Glenn and his family.

The letters contained within the remaining 135 boxes were sorted into the twenty-two categories of adults, business offers, children, crank, drawings, foreign countries, gifts, Annie Glenn, David Glenn, Lyn Glenn, greeting cards, honorary memberships, John F. Kennedy, miscellaneous, music, other astronauts, poetry, publications and newsletters, religious theme, requests, telegrams, and VIP. During the sorting approximately 37,500 letters simply requesting Glenn's picture and/or autograph were set aside and discarded. An additional category, school class packets, contained more than 2,200 packets of letters written by children in elementary school classes from around the country. These letters typically were bound together in some manner and mailed with a cover letter written by the class teacher. Ten percent of these school class packets, taken from a random sampling, are alphabetically arranged by state within the fan mail collection.

Letters from individual children, along with the letters written by adults, were sorted and arranged by year, from 1959 through 1966. Ten percent of the letters per each year for the categories of children's letters and adult letters, chosen by a random sampling, are included in the fan mail collection. The letters from foreign countries first were sorted into folders by country, and then those folders containing more than thirty letters were randomly sampled with ten percent chosen for inclusion in the collection. Glenn also received more than 2,000 pieces of poetry and sheet music commemorating his space flight, of which ten percent was selected randomly for the collection. All other categories of fan mail were not sampled, so the fan mail collection contains all the letters within these respective categories as originally received. Also included in the fan mail are four oversized boxes (boxes 37-40) containing a sampling of the dozens of scrapbooks on the Friendship 7 space flight sent to John Glenn by the general public. Elementary school classes compiled most of these scrapbooks, which are similar in nature to the school class packets. The scrapbooks, however, may contain newspaper and magazine clippings and children's artwork, as well as letters written by school children.

The newspapers located within the personal files consist of five oversized boxes (boxes 41-45) containing newspapers dating from February 20 to February 24, 1962. Box forty-one contains a scrapbook type volume titled, "Glenn in Orbit: The Front Page Story Around the World, February 21, 1962." Compiled by the San Diego Union newspaper, this volume contains facsimiles of the front pages from newspapers published in nine major American cities and from newspapers published in twenty-one foreign countries. The remaining four boxes contain the original front pages with headlines about the Friendship 7 space flight as published by newspapers in twenty-five states and by newspapers in forty-nine foreign countries. These two sets of newspapers are arranged alphabetically by state and alphabetically by foreign country. Most folders contain the front page from more than one newspaper published within that particular state or foreign country.

Box forty-six of the personal files contains dozens of resolutions and proclamations commemorating John Glenn and the Friendship 7 space flight as enacted by various government entities across the United States. The documents are sorted into the categories of cities, counties and townships, states, and the U.S. Congress. Also included is a folder containing resolutions and proclamations as enacted by various private organizations.

The subject files included within the personal files (boxes 47-50) consist of six cubic feet of materials dating from 1961 to 1974, with a few items dating from the 1980s and 1990s. Arranged in alphabetical order by folder heading, the subject files contain correspondence, notes, reports, newspaper and magazine clippings, programs, speeches, articles, and other materials on a variety of topics pertaining to John Glenn's activities in the aftermath of the Friendship 7 space flight. The files also document Glenn's continued association with NASA after his resignation from the agency in 1964.

Included in the subject files are folders on the various space and aviation related organizations in which John Glenn was a member, such as the American Astronautical Society, the Explorers Club, and the National Space Club. A series of files contain some of the numerous awards, citations, and honorary memberships given to Glenn in 1962. Other files pertain to events and conferences in which Glenn participated, including the Third International Space Science Symposium sponsored by the Committee on Space Research in April and May 1962, and both the Second and Third National Conferences on the Peaceful Uses of Space held in May 1962 and May 1963. Other notable events include the 1962 visit of Soviet cosmonaut, Major Gherman Titov, and the presentation of the Friendship 7 spacecraft to the National Air and Space Museum on February 20, 1963.

Also contained within the subject files are copies of articles on space related topics written by John Glenn from 1959 to 1970, along with a number of interview and speech files. The speeches include, most notably, Glenn's drafts and notes for the speech he delivered to a special joint session of the U.S. Congress on February 26, 1962. Other files contain speeches given in 1963 to the Associated Press Annual Luncheon and to the National Education Association. Other files contain numerous newspaper clippings on the events and celebrations immediately following the Friendship 7 space flight, as well as files with Glenn's notes, schedules, and correspondence for the post-flight parades held in his honor in Washington, D.C., New York City, and New Concord, Ohio. Additional files contain clippings of space related articles from newspapers and magazines compiled for reference purposes by Glenn from 1964 through 1973.

Also of note are files pertaining the Leo DeOrsey, the lawyer who volunteered to assist the Project Mercury astronauts negotiate contracts with Life magazine for their personal stories. The DeOrsey files, along with other files labeled Life magazine, contain correspondence and related documents pertaining to these contracts.

After the Friendship 7 space flight John Glenn undertook the role of NASA's good-will ambassador due in a large degree to his worldwide popularity. During the 1960s he traveled to numerous foreign countries for a planned series of public appearances. Contained within the subject files are materials documenting these good-will trips to Japan in 1963, to Europe in 1965 and 1966.

Also contained within the subject files is a sampling of the yearbooks sent to John Glenn during the 1960s through the 1990s by various high schools and colleges. Many of the high schools represented in this sampling are named in honor of Glenn. The remaining yearbooks are from schools that dedicated a particular yearbook in his honor.

The subject files include four oversized boxes (boxes 51-54) containing seven scrapbooks dating from the 1960s. The most notable is a scrapbook of newspaper clippings and photographs compiled by either John Glenn or his wife, Annie, on the 1962 visit of Soviet cosmonaut, Major Gherman Titov. Another scrapbook contains newspaper and magazine articles on the Friendship 7 space flight compiled and sent to Glenn by a fan. This scrapbook is included in the collection as a typical example of the many such scrapbooks sent to Glenn by the general public during the 1960s. Other scrapbooks contain compilations of the Spanish and the Japanese media coverage of the Friendship 7 space flight given to Glenn during his good-will trips in the 1960s. The remaining scrapbooks pertain to the events of Glenn's 1963 trip to Japan.

Working Files

The twenty cubic feet of working files (boxes 55-74) consist of the manuals, reports, subject files, and publications John Glenn compiled and used as a Mercury Seven astronaut. Items located within the files date from 1958 to 1972, though the bulk of the materials date from 1959 to 1964. These materials document Glenn's work with NASA's Mercury, Gemini, and Apollo programs and provide a rich resource into the early years and development of NASA's manned space programs. The files are sorted into the four categories of Apollo Program, Gemini Program, Mercury Program, and Publications.

The two cubic feet of records on the Apollo Program (boxes 55-56) consist of reports and subject files dating from 1957 to 1968, though the bulk of the items date from 1962 to 1963. The majority of the files relate to John Glenn's work on the early designs of the control panel and instrumentation for the crew station of the Apollo spacecraft. These records consist mainly of drawings, reports, memoranda, and briefing materials. Included in the subject files is a series of general memoranda dating from 1960 to 1963, in which are interfiled some meeting agendas, minutes, and notes written by Glenn. Other records pertain to the design of the lunar excursion module and various mission simulators, and to the Apollo Program in general.

The one cubic foot of Gemini Program files (box 57) consist of reports and subject files of a general nature dating from 1962 to 1966. Many of the files contain press kits, press releases, and other media related materials. A few files contain records from specific Gemini missions, such as the May 1965 flight plan and orbital chart for Gemini-Titan Mission Number Four. Notable among the Gemini materials is an operations handbook dated October 1963 and a project familiarization manual dating from July 1962.

The twelve cubic feet of materials pertaining to the Mercury Program (boxes 58-69) include manuals, publications, reports, and subject files dating from 1958 to 1963. The two cubic feet of manuals include John Glenn's personal copies of the manuals covering flight operations, mission rules, and flight control for Mercury-Atlas Mission Number Six (MA-6), his Friendship 7 space flight. Also included are similar manuals for most of the other five manned Project Mercury missions. Additional manuals cover the procedures for pre-launch and countdown, launch pad emergencies, and recovery activities. Other notable manuals include an Astronaut's Handbook, dated December 1959, and an Introduction to Project Mercury and Site Handbook dating from September 1960.

The one cubic foot of Project Mercury publications consist of brochures, booklets, and reports published by NASA on various aspects of the program. Most of these publications were targeted for the general public and include small booklets, heavily illustrated with photographs, on each of the six manned Project Mercury missions. Other public oriented publications include two booklets with biographical sketches of the Mercury Seven astronauts printed in April 1959 and July 1959, two other booklets from 1959 containing general information on the Mercury program, and two chronologies of Project Mercury, dated 1962 and 1963. Also included with the publications are various volumes containing more detailed technical data on the Project Mercury missions published for the scientific community. Included among these volumes are such items as "Descriptive Synopsis of Project Mercury," published in August 1962, and "Biomedical Support for Project Mercury," published in 1963. Another publication, "Results of the First U.S. Manned Orbital Space Flight, February 20, 1962," contains technical and scientific information on the Friendship 7 space flight. The publications files contain similar volumes for the other five manned Project Mercury missions.

The two cubic feet of report files contain reports on various aspects of Project Mercury printed generally for in-house use by NASA personnel and aerospace industry contractors. Most of the reports pertain to a specific Project Mercury mission. Arranged in chronological order by mission, this series contains reports from the Little Joe Mission Number Five, launched on December 23, 1960, to the Mercury-Atlas Mission Number Nine, flown on June 24, 1963 by Gordon Cooper in the Faith 7 spacecraft. The mission specific reports include post-launch memorandum reports, technical information summaries, data reports, mission directive reports, and mission analyses. Other items, such as quarterly status reports, are more general in nature and cover the entire Mercury program. Also included are reports on a particular aspect of Project Mercury, such as the communications system, the pressure suit worn by the astronauts, and the mission preparedness of the astronauts.

The seven cubic feet of subject files date from 1958 to 1964 and consist of memoranda, correspondence, notes, reports, drawings, meeting minutes, charts, maps, media related items, and other materials compiled by John Glenn on a wide range of topics pertaining to NASA's Project Mercury. A significant number of files relate to the suggestions on capsule design put forth by the seven Mercury astronauts early in the program. These files include meeting minutes and other documents, dated 1959 to 1961, from four Capsule Coordination Groups and from NASA's Space Task Group. Other capsule design files document Glenn's assignment to the group responsible for the design of the capsule control panel and instrumentation. Another series of files contain training related materials, including information on basic astronautics and desert and jungle survival. Other training materials, filed by topic, pertain to the conditions NASA scientists and engineers anticipated the astronauts would encounter during launch and space travel, such as acceleration, heat, noise and vibration, and zero gravity.

An extensive number of files pertain to the various unmanned and the six manned missions of Project Mercury. These files include a series of orbit and recovery charts dating from 1959 to 1963. Information on specific Project Mercury missions may include inspection board reviews for both the capsule and rocket, launch procedures, flight plans, general memoranda, post-flight debriefings, transcripts of air-ground communications, and media related materials, such as press kits and press releases. The mission records for Glenn's own Friendship 7 space flight also include files containing his notes and statements, Associated Press bulletins, and foreign press reaction, along with information on such topics as the selection of a name for his capsule and the ice crystals encountered during his flight. Of particular note are oversized charts hand-drawn by John Glenn containing minute-by-minute details on the planned tasks and activities for each orbit of the Friendship 7 space flight. Additional subject files cover such topics as medical issues, communications, press releases, and newspaper clippings on the Mercury program in general. Notable files include an astronaut selection fact sheet dated April 9, 1959, data on Atlas missile flight failures compiled in December 1961, and undated notes written by John Glenn on the history of Project Mercury.

The Publications consist of five cubic feet of materials (boxes 70-74), dated 1958 to 1972, divided into the two categories of miscellaneous publications and NASA publications. The miscellaneous publications contain reports, papers, and studies on a wide variety of space related topics published by the aerospace industry, by institutions of higher education, and by scholarly journals. Included are reports on basic aeronautics and manned space flight published by such corporations as Chance Vought Aircraft, General Dynamics, Space Technology Laboratories, and McDonnell Aircraft. Other items include papers on specific aspects of manned and satellite space flight from, among others, the American Rocket Society, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and the National Academy of Sciences. Of note are various reports on aerospace medical issues published from 1959 to 1964 by the U.S. Air Force School of Aviation Medicine and by the journal, Aerospace Medicine.

Two series, “Current News” and “Astronautics and Aeronautics: A Chronology on Science, Technology, and Policy” comprise the majority of the NASA publications. The “Current News” series contains newsletter type publications, dated 1959 and 1962 to 1964, containing copies of newspaper articles on NASA compiled by NASA’s Public Information Office. “Astronautics and Aeronautics” contains a monthly chronological report with informational highlights on NASA and general aerospace activities. The series contains scattered monthly reports dating from 1966 to 1970, along with yearly volumes of a similar nature for 1961, 1962, 1966, and 1968. Other NASA publications in the collection target the general public and include brochures and booklets on NASA in general and on specific NASA facilities, such as the Manned Spacecraft Center in Houston, Texas. Additional publications include quarterly and annual reports and reports submitted by NASA to the U.S. Congress.

Sub-series 2: STS-95

Boxes 75 – 89

The STS-95 Sub-series consists of nine cubic feet of records and six oversized boxes of materials documenting John Glenn’s return to space in 1998 as a crew member aboard the Space Shuttle Discovery Mission STS-95. Materials within the sub-series date from 1993 to 2000, though the bulk of the materials date from 1998 to 1999. Items within the sub-series are divided into the two major categories of working files and fan mail.

The six cubic feet of working files (boxes 75-80) consist of the briefing materials, mission and training manuals, personal files, newspaper clippings, publications, and trip files compiled and used by Glenn during his training for the STS-95 mission, during his time in space aboard the Space Shuttle Discovery, and during the events following the mission. Most of the briefing materials, mission manuals, and training manuals within the sub-series pertain to the training John Glenn underwent to become familiar with the operation of various onboard systems, equipment, and other aspects of the space shuttle. Other manuals contain information on procedures for shuttle launch, landing, and emergency situations, as well as information on mission rules, schedules, and flight plans. Additional manuals and briefing materials pertain to the experiments planned during the mission, with an emphasis on a variety of investigations into the relationship between space flight and the aging process. Also included are materials on the shuttle mission payloads, such as the Spartan solar-observing spacecraft, the Hubble Space Telescope Orbital Systems Test Platform, and the SPACEHAB science module.

The personal files contain general information on the shuttle mission, biographical sketches of the mission’s astronauts, and a variety of materials pertaining to John Glenn’s personal involvement in the STS-95 mission. Included in the files are reports containing the results of the various medical experiments Glenn undertook during the mission. Other files consist of Glenn’s speeches, news releases, press conferences, and articles. Additional files contain educational materials about Glenn’s activities as a space shuttle astronaut and the Space Shuttle Discovery mission designed for schoolchildren. The personal files also include a number of correspondence files containing letters sent to Glenn prior to and after the space flight. Much of the correspondence is from the general public and consists of invitations, requests, and business offers. Other correspondence files contain congratulatory letters from VIPs, family members, and friends. Of special note is a copy of the e-mail message sent to Glenn by President William Clinton during the shuttle mission.

The newspaper clippings include chronological files of articles on Glenn's pre-flight training, space shuttle flight, and post-flight activities. The clippings date from January 1997 to May 1999 and include articles published by a variety of major domestic newspapers. Separate files contain articles published by newspapers in some foreign countries. Other clippings files contain editorials, cartoons, and articles from various Internet web sites. Another series of clippings, labeled Space Clips, contain articles on the STS-95 mission compiled by members of Glenn's senate office staff. This series dates from February 1998 and from October to December 1998. Complementing the newspaper clippings is a small number of NASA publications, including press kits on the STS-95 mission and informational materials on NASA in general.

The trip files contain correspondence, programs, schedules, and related materials on the pre-flight and post-flight activities of the Space Shuttle Discovery astronauts. Included is information on the ticker-tape parade held in New York City on November 16, 1998 honoring the Space Shuttle Discovery astronauts, along with files on the trips the shuttle crew took to Europe and Japan in January 1999. Other files contain materials on events honoring John Glenn prior to the shuttle mission, and on the trips he and his family made in 1998 to the Johnson Space Center in Houston and the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

The fan mail consists of three cubic feet of materials (boxes 81-83), along with six oversized boxes of postcards and scrapbooks (boxes 84-89), sent to John Glenn by the general public from 1997 to 2000. Contained within the first two boxes is a sampling of the tens of thousands of letters Glenn received from admirers across the country and around the world praising his determination to return to space at age seventy-seven. In processing this extensive amount of fan mail, it first was sorted into the categories of adult, children, foreign, poetry, and senior citizens. A random sampling then was done of each category, with one in ten letters kept for the collection. Letters within the collection are arranged alphabetically by category, with letters within each category arranged alphabetically by state or foreign country. An additional category, school class packets, contains packets of letters written by children in elementary school classes from around the country. These letters typically were bound together and sent to Glenn with a cover letter written by the class teacher. Ten percent of these school class packets, taken from a random sampling, are alphabetically arranged by state within the fan mail collection.

Included within the fan mail collection are three files and one oversized box containing printed copies of postcard submissions emailed to John Glenn by the general public. These email postcards were sent via the "Godspeed, John Glenn" link on the Spaceday.com Internet web site maintained by the Lockheed Martin Corporation from October 6 to November 9, 1998. Also located within the collection are twenty-four guest books dating from August 1998 to March 1999. These guest books contain inscriptions to John Glenn written by approximately 40,000 visitors to an exhibit commemorating Glenn's return to space displayed at the U.S. Astronaut Hall of Fame in Titusville, Florida.

The fan mail also includes five oversized boxes (boxes 85-89) containing a sampling of the dozens of scrapbooks on the Space Shuttle Discovery space flight sent to John Glenn by elementary school classes. Similar in nature to the school class packets, these scrapbooks may also contain newspaper and magazine clippings and children's artwork, as well as letters written by school children.

Series 4: Corporate Records

Boxes 90 – 100

The Corporate Series consists of fourteen cubic feet and one oversized box of materials dating from 1964 to 1974. Records within the series document the ten years John Glenn spent as a business executive between his retirement from the U.S. Marine Corps in 1964 and his election to the U.S. Senate in 1974. The series is arranged into the three major categories of correspondence, subject files, and personal files.

The five and one-half cubic feet of correspondence (boxes 90-95) consist of chronologically arranged files dating from January 1964 to September 1968. Other files, arranged alphabetically by author, cover the years from 1969 through 1974. Included are a few files pertaining to Glenn's consultant work with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, along with files of correspondence from the Kennedy family and from President Lyndon B. Johnson. VIP files contain letters from other notables, dating from 1964 to 1969.

Much of the correspondence are invitations for Glenn to attend or speak at events held by a wide variety of businesses and public and private organizations. Also included are letters requesting Glenn to provide an organization with some kind of service, typically a statement or object, to be used in an event sponsored by the organization. Other letters are from children and adults requesting advice or requesting information on Glenn's experience during his Friendship 7 space flight. Paired with the majority of the letters is a carbon copy of Glenn's reply.

The six cubic feet of alphabetically arranged subject files (boxes 95-98) date from 1964 to 1974, though the bulk of the records date from 1967 to 1974. Located within the files are records from Glenn's business activities, including his various positions with the Royal Crown Cola Company. Many of the records pertain to the investments he made during the early 1970s in a number of Holiday Inn motels located near the Disney World entertainment complex in Florida, and to his investment in another Holiday Inn located in Columbus, Ohio. The Holiday Inn files consist of correspondence, site studies, legal and financial documents, and a variety of construction related records. Another series of files document Glenn's work from 1967 to 1974 as an author and consultant for Field Enterprises, the publishers of the World Book Encyclopedia and Yearbook. Included in these files are correspondence, notes, drafts of articles, and background materials. Other files contain materials compiled by Glenn from 1972 to 1974 when he served on the Board of Directors of the Questor Corporation, an international consumer products conglomerate comprised of companies manufacturing automotive parts and sporting goods.

Two cubic feet of the subject files pertain to John Glenn's employment with the Royal Crown Cola Company, including his position as chair of Royal Crown Cola International. These records document Glenn's efforts to establish franchises in countries such as Japan, Italy, Burma, and Lebanon. The files contain correspondence and memoranda, financial statements, reports, news releases and newspaper clippings.

Also located within the subject files are records of Glenn's association with Wolper Productions, Inc. In 1967, this company employed Glenn to retrace the route through Africa taken during 1871 by Sir Henry Stanley in his search of Dr. David Livingstone. A documentary of Glenn's trip, titled "The Trail of Stanley and Livingstone" was broadcast nationally in January 1968 as part of the "Great Explorations" television program. Other Wolper Productions, Inc. files date from 1971 to 1972 and contain correspondence and scripts for a proposed documentary program the company planned to produce for television using Glenn as the commentator.

The two cubic feet of personal files (boxes 98.1-99) contain records pertaining to the charitable organizations and other institutions John Glenn actively supported during the 1964 to 1974 time period. Prevalent among these organizations and institutions was the Boy Scouts of America and the U.S. Marine Corps. Files for these two entities contain correspondence, speeches, and articles written by Glenn. During this time period Glenn also served on the Board of Trustees for Muskingum College. Materials on the college include correspondence, meeting agendas and minutes, reports, and miscellaneous publications. From 1964 to 1968, Glenn also sat on the board for the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. Files pertaining to the foundation include correspondence, brochures, press kits and other publications. Also located within the personal files is a series of background materials compiled by Glenn for speech writing purposes. Arranged by subject, the files include materials on such topics as crime, drugs, education, health care, and religion.

Box 100 of the Corporate Series contains two oversized scrapbooks of documents and photographs pertaining to Glenn's business activities. The first scrapbook is from the Life Magazine Executive Space Tour of 1964, in which Glenn participated as a NASA consultant. The second scrapbook contains photographs from a trip Glenn took in 1967 to Thailand while he was an executive with the Royal Crown Cola Company.

Series 5: Post-Senate Records

Boxes 101 – 116

Dating from 1999 to 2016, the twenty-eight cubic feet of Post-Senate Records are sorted into the four categories of correspondence, subject files, newspaper clippings, and schedules/events. The bulk of the chronologically arranged correspondence files contain in-coming letters to Senator Glenn of a general nature covering a variety of topics not located within the subject files. The files also contain a scattering of out-going correspondence. In addition, the series contains one cubic foot of correspondence arranged alphabetically by author.

The alphabetically arranged subject files document Senator Glenn's activities in the years following his retirement from the U.S. Senate. Many of the records pertain to events Glenn attended honoring him for his lifetime achievements in public service, such as the ceremony held in September 1999 naming the John H. Glenn Research Center at NASA's Lewis Field in Cleveland. Other files document his work to establish the John Glenn Institute for Public Service and Public Policy at The Ohio State University. Included in these records are materials concerning the merger in July 2006 of the John Glenn Institute with the School of Public Policy and Management at Ohio State to form the John Glenn School of Public Affairs, and the reformation of the Glenn School to the status of the John Glenn College of Public Affairs in 2015.

Notable within the series are files pertaining to Glenn's participation on a number of commissions or organizations after his retirement from the U.S. Senate. Included are materials Glenn compiled while serving in 1999 and 2000 as co-chairman, with former Senator Robert Dole, of the National Commission on Mathematics and Science Teaching. Also included are records from the National Commission on Service Learning dating from 2002 to 2003, records dating from 2002 to 2005 from Glenn's membership on the NASA Advisory Council, and records from the International Longevity Center dating from 1998 to 2008. Commission or organization files generally include correspondence, memoranda, meeting agendas and minutes, reports, and background materials.

The files of newspaper clippings date from 1999 to 2012. Most of the newspaper articles within the files document John Glenn's activities with the John Glenn College of Public Affairs at The Ohio State University.

The schedule/events files contain calendars and events files, both monthly and daily, dating from 1999 to 2016. The files document the activities that Senator Glenn, and to a lesser extent, Annie Glenn, participated in during this time period. Arranged chronologically, the files contain invitations accepted by Senator and Mrs. Glenn and may include other related materials such as correspondence, itineraries, and programs. Further information on many of the events listed within the schedule files may be located by name in the subject files.

Series 6: Personal Correspondence

Boxes 117 – 119

The Personal Correspondence Series consists of 2.5 cubic feet of letters dating from May 1942 to November 1953. The bulk of the series consists of letters written by John H. Glenn, Jr. to his wife, Annie Glenn, during his training and overseas duty assignments while serving as a pilot in the United States Marine Corps. Letters from John Glenn to his future wife, Annie Castor, dating from May 1942 to March 1943 describe the pilot training he underwent to earn his aviator wings during World War II. Glenn wrote the February 1944 to February 1945 letters during his overseas service in the Marshall Islands with Marine aviation squadron VMO-155. Although wartime censorship prohibited Glenn from describing his combat missions, these almost daily letters do provide some information about Glenn's activities and experiences during the war.

John Glenn wrote the letters dating from November 1946 to June 1948 while serving in Marine aviation squadron VMF-218. From November 1946 to March 1947, the squadron served in China to protect General George C. Marshall during his efforts to broker peace between the Communist and Nationalist forces vying for control of the country. Glenn's letters provide descriptions of the squadron's missions and his observations about Chinese people and culture. In April 1947, the squadron moved operations to the island of Guam. Glenn's letters written from Guam describe his activities with the squadron, though many of the letters focus on the birth of his daughter Carolyn and efforts to move his family to Guam.

Letters dating from May and June 1950 describe John Glenn's experiences learning to fly jet aircraft during an Instructor's Advanced Training course at Williams Air Force Base in Arizona.

The remainder of John Glenn's letters to Annie Glenn date from November 1952 to November 1953. These letters provide detailed descriptions of Glenn's ground-support missions in the Korean War during his assignment with Marine aviation squadron VMF-311. Letters dating from June and July 1953 describe Glenn's experiences flying a F-86 Sabre jet while on temporary duty with the U.S. Air Force in a pilot exchange program. These letters contain complete accounts of the missions during which Glenn downed three enemy MiG aircraft.

The series also contains the almost daily letters Annie Glenn wrote to her husband, John, during the year he spent overseas in World War II. Her letters contain information about her activities, her thoughts on the war, and news about family and friends. Many letters provide mention of the enlistment of mutual friends in the war effort and their experiences.

The series includes scattered letters written during World War II to both John and Annie Glenn by their parents, siblings, and friends.
